Prepaid tuition plan at a projected deficit

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' guaranteed prepaid college tuition program was running a projected deficit of $226 million earlier this year, according to a state audit.

A spokesman for the state comptroller's office, however, told the San Antonio Express-News for Friday editions, that 150,000 enrolled families will have their tuition paid without legislators needing to spend more money.

"It's a strong fund," said Andy Ruth, director of special programs for the Comptroller of Public Accounts, which oversees the plan with $1.4 billion in assets. "There's no need for state dollars now or in the foreseeable future."

In its Oct. 27 report, the state auditor's office attributed much of the fund's decline to financial markets, adding that legislative action leaving tuition rates up to Texas college and university overseers would have an "uncertain" effect.

The projected gap between program assets and liabilities in the Texas Guaranteed Tuition Plan, formerly the Texas Tomorrow Fund, could rise to $318 million under "more conservative investment return assumptions," the audit states.

Troops ambushed in Mosul as insurgency spreads northward

By JIM GOMEZ
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

TIKRIT, Iraq (AP) — An Army Black Hawk helicopter crashed Friday into a riverbank near Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit, killing six U.S. soldiers, the military said. It probably was hit by a rocket-propelled grenade, an officer said.

Two Americans also were killed in separate attacks Thursday and Friday in the northern city of Mosul, raising concerns that the insurgency was spreading north.

It was not immediately clear whether the chopper was brought down by hostile fire or a mechanical failure, a spokeswoman said. But an officer who asked not to be identified said it was probably hit by a rocket-propelled grenade.

"Six soldiers were on board and all of them were killed," said Maj. Josslyn Aberle, a spokeswoman for the 4th Infantry Division based in Tikrit. They were all from the 101st Airborne Division, she said.

White smoke could be seen rising from the crash site on the east bank of the Tigris River as three other helicopters circled overhead. More helicopters could be seen hours later flying over a hilltop village on the west bank of the river.

Separately, guerrillas attacked a convoy in the eastern part of Mosul, 250 miles north of Baghdad, with rocket-propelled grenades and small-arms fire Friday morning. The military said one U.S. soldier died and six others were wounded in the clash.

Three others were injured later in the day when a roadside bomb exploded near the Mosul Hotel, which is now used as a military barracks, the military said. A military statement released Friday said a soldier died the day before near Mosul when a homemade bomb exploded.

The latest confirmed U.S. military fatalities bring to at least 31 the number of American troops killed action in the first week of November. Two American civilian contractors working for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and a Polish officer also died in attacks over the past seven days.

The U.S. military said that the num-

Judges block abortion law in two states

NEW YORK (AP) — The government promised to defend a new law banning certain late-term abortions, despite rulings by three federal judges who blocked its enforcement so legal challenges — which they concluded would likely succeed — can go forward.

Federal judges in New York and California blocked the law Thursday, a day after it was signed by President Bush. The rulings likely prevent enforcement until a challenge to its constitutionality can be heard.

Judge Richard Casey in Manhattan suspended the effect of the law for 10 days, saying he expected an association of abortion providers in the United States and Canada and seven doctors will succeed in their challenge. The National Abortion Federation says its members perform half of abortions nationwide.

Later in the day, U.S. District Judge Phyllis

Hamilton in San Francisco ruled the law appears unconstitutional because it provides no exemptions for a woman's health, mirroring the reasons cited by the other judges and affecting doctors at 900 Planned Parenthood clinics nationwide.

The two rulings together cover a majority of the abortion providers in the United States.

On Wednesday, less than an hour after Bush signed the law, a federal judge in Nebraska made a similar ruling that covers four abortion doctors licensed in 13 states across the Midwest and East.

The Justice Department said in a statement that it "will continue to strongly defend the law prohibiting partial birth abortions using every resource necessary."

It cited arguments it made in court papers that Congress considered testimony over an eight-year period, including

CDC scientist testifies in plague trial

By BETSY BLANEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

LUBBOCK (AP) — A Centers for Disease Control scientist testified Friday that she was "surprised" when a Texas Tech University professor arrived at an agency facility with active plague cultures that could be infectious.

May Chu also said Thomas Butler invited the CDC to work on the plague study he was doing with the Tanzanian government, but that the Atlanta-based agency declined.

The defense team for Butler, a renowned researcher on trial for 69 felony charges relating to a bioterrorism scare sparked by his report missing plague vials, has said he was working with the CDC and other federal agencies.

"We needed to find out ... if the CDC could get into the study after the fact," Chu testified. "We found out it was not ethical."

She said she thought Butler would be arriving at the agency's Fort Collins, Colo., facility in June with noninfectious serum samples from Tanzanian plague patients and that she was supposed to arrange for the cultures to be shipped after completing a lengthy paperwork process.

"When I say I was surprised, it was because he had the cultures, the slides, everything," Chu said. "I was under the impression that the (culture) samples were still in Tanzania and that I was to arrange the shipment."

Butler on Jan. 14 reported 30 vials that contained bacteria responsible for the deadly bubonic plague missing from a university lab. The FBI has said Butler later admitted that he had accidentally destroyed them.

The report, coming amid public worry over biological attack, triggered a terrorism alert plan and prompted the FBI to rush dozens of agents to this West Texas city.

Among the charges, Butler, 62, is accused of lying to federal agents about the samples' whereabouts, illegally smuggling the bacteria into the United States and transporting them around the country and filing a false income tax return. He also faces theft, embezzlement and fraud charges related to "shadow" contracts prosecutors said Butler had with pharmaceutical companies.

Butler's defense team has portrayed him as a dedicated researcher who was doing plague research for the CDC, the U.S. Army and the Food and Drug Administration. His attorneys say he did not do anything criminal.

Prosecutors allege that Butler reported the vials missing to lash out in retaliation for and to deflect attention from difficulties with the university's Institutional Review Board. On Jan. 9, a letter was sent to Butler notifying him that the board was shutting down all of Butler's human research.

Couple faces capital murder charges in baby death

STINNETT (AP) — A Becky Salazar, 21, turned herself in to Borger police following their Oct. 29 indictment by a Hutchinson County grand jury on charges of capital murder, murder and injury to a child.

According to the indictment, Amrie Lanae Cervantes died after the couple shook, struck and threw her, the Borger News Herald reported in its online edition Thursday.

The couple was being held in the Hutchinson County Jail on $600,000 each, Borger police Sgt. Dennis Burton said. Both requested court-appointed attorneys but a judge has not yet named them.

Amrie died Oct. 6 after being removed from life support at an Amarillo hospital. Autopsy results showed extensive trauma, including bruising, a fracture to collarbone and brain damage, Burton said.

OBITUARIES

HENRY GRADY 'JUG' SHARP 1911-2003

DE LEON — Henry Grady "Jug" Sharp, 91, died Wednesday, Nov. 5, 2003, at De Leon Hospital. Services were to be at 2 p.m., today in Nowlin Funeral Home Chapel. Burial with Masonic graveside rites will be in De Leon Cemetery under the direction of Nowlin Funeral Home of De Leon.

Mr. Sharp was born Nov. 24, 1911, in Comanche County, Texas, to the late Caleb Henry Sharp and Lucy Edna Terrill Sharp. He'd been a De Leon resident for 33 years, moving there from Pampa, and retired from Exxon Company as a field gauger after 47 years of service.

He was a member of De Leon First Baptist Church and De Leon Armstrong Lodge #445. He married Thelma Newton on April 2, 1931, at Cisco; she died June 24, 1984.

He was preceded in death by two brothers, Dr. Terrill Sharp and Boyd Sharp; and two sisters, Virginia Price and Margaret Housinger.

Survivors include a son, Buddy Sharp of De Leon; two daughters, Mary Edna Tarpley and Henri Lou Pipes, both of Amarillo; nine grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; and a great-great-grandchild.

Unemployment rate falls to 6 percent in October as companies add new jobs

By LEIGH STROPE
AP LABOR WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 6 percent in October as companies added thousands of new jobs for the third straight month, new evidence of an improving labor market.

The Labor Department reported Friday that payrolls grew by 126,000 last month, significantly more than the 50,000 new jobs that economists had predicted. That followed a revised 125,000 new jobs in September, which initially was reported at 57,000.

U.S. companies also added new jobs in August, marking three months of hiring gains following a six-month slump. October hiring occurred across a broad swath of the business landscape, including technical services, temporary employment firms, health care, social work, education and retail.

"We can finally put the nail in the coffin of the jobless recovery," said Ken Mayland, president of ClearView Economics. "We are back on a rising job track."

Wall Street investors cheered the better-than-expected report in morning trading, with stocks moving higher, extending recent advances.

The Bush administration said its tax-cutting agenda is helping the economy grow and asserted that people who want jobs will start finding them.

"More Americans are taking home paychecks instead of unemployment checks," said Commerce Secretary Don Evans. "For those people who don't have a job, help is on the way."

The hard-hit manufacturing sector continued to shed jobs in October — 24,000 — and it was the 37th consecutive month of declines in that area. The pace of job loss, however, has slowed considerably.

The overall civilian unemployment rate improved from the standstill 6.1 percent level of the last three months.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan struck an optimistic tone about the employment outlook in a Thursday speech to the Securities Industry Association, saying hiring was expected to rebound.

"The odds ... do increasingly favor a revival in job creation," Greenspan said.

The jobs market has been the weak link in the robust recovery, with the economy growing at a sizzling 7.2 percent in the third quarter. Economists now believe the worst days are over, with significant hiring now occurring.

The improvement could benefit President Bush, who will be up for re-election next November. Democrats had hoped to use the lack of new jobs as a political issue to win back the White House, and indeed the election is still a year away.

"The most likely scenario is, we'll get enough jobs so it won't be the issue Democrats need to oust the president," said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Economy.com.

The service sector added 143,000 new jobs last month, the largest increase in nine months. That included a 33,000 gain in temporary employment services, which have added jobs for the last five months.

Economists say that shows companies still remain a bit hesitant about the strength of the recovery and are waiting to take on the increased costs of hiring new workers.

"In the short run, they are hiring temporary workers," Mayland said. "It is creating a pent-up demand for hiring. I think the rebound is sustainable and as we build up a track record," more hiring will follow.

Mayland said the positive employment picture is great news for the holiday season. Consumer confidence should spike, making shoppers more willing to open their wallets. That will help reduce business inventory and lead to new jobs.

Still, the gloom isn't over for all American workers. About 8.8 million remained unemployed last month, with about 2 million without jobs for 27 weeks or more.

Jobs in the airlines industry also continued to decline last month. Since reaching an employment peak in March 2001, the industry has lost more than 20 percent of its jobs.

Hiring in grocery stores got a boost as companies prepared for strikes in Southern California and elsewhere. About 13,000 new jobs were added last month.

WEATHER FOCUS

PAMPA

Today's forecast is calling for mostly cloudy skies with occasional light freezing rain or rain, a chance of rain showers in the afternoon, highs in the lower 40s, northeast winds 5 to 10 mph. A 40 percent chance of precipitation exists. Tonight should fall on mostly cloudy skies with a 30 percent chance of rain.

STATEWIDE

By The Associated Press
Bands of rain moved early Friday across North Texas as a cold front pushed into southern sections of the state.

Most rainfall amounts averaged around one-quarter inch, but totaled one-half inch between Wichita Falls, Abilene and Stephenville.

Some freezing drizzle and light freezing rain fell in the Panhandle, with showers and thunderstorms in the south Plains into the Permian Basin and Concho Valley.

Early-morning temperatures were unseasonably cold, ranging from 21 degrees at Perryton to 74 at Port Isabel.

Other readings included 35 degrees with rain at Wichita Falls, 50 at Marfa and 54 degrees at Nacogdoches.

Temperatures were mainly in the upper 20s north of Interstate 40 and in the 30s closer to Interstate 20.

Winds were mostly northerly to northeasterly at 10 to 15 mph north of the front and southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph to the south.

The front stretched from South Texas into the Big Bend.

Fog will be possible during the night and early-morning hours, with lingering showers across the low Rolling Plains and areas of light freezing drizzle or rain across parts of the southern Panhandle through Saturday morning.

Showers and a few thunderstorms will increase in coverage from the Permian Basin and Concho Valley into the South Plains and southeastern Panhandle.

Daytime highs were expected in the 40s except for 60s to 70s in the far west and along the Rio Grande.

Overnight lows through Sunday should be in the 30s and 40s, with near 50 along the Texas-Mexico border.

Diane de Groat, author of the "Gilbert" children's books, cups a hand to her ear as she listens to a student's question at Wilson Elementary School Thursday afternoon.

Author, illustrator visits local elementary schools

Diane de Groat, illustrator and author of the popular "Gilbert" children's books, visited with students at Pampa Elementary schools this week.

De Groat created a series of books involving the experiences of the character "Gilbert," a young opossum. Each book centers on a special day of the year and a catchy phrase. For July 4, there's "Liar, Liar, Pants On Fire." For Halloween, she wrote, "Trick or Treat, Smell My Feet." Her Thanksgiving book is titled, "Let's Gather Together, Now Get Away."

She's also started a new series of books for two and three year olds based on a character first scene in a Gilbert book - Lola. So far she's published, "Love Lola," and "I ola, the Elf."

After a slide presentation showing her books and the process she goes through to write them, de Groat answered questions from the elementary students.

"Did you want to be a writer when you were little?" one child asked.

"No, I wanted to be an artist," she replied, adding that she realized that she needed a story to go with her artwork, so she decided to write the story, too.

"How old were you when you started writing?" another inquisitor asked.

"I started writing 12 years ago and I'm 104 now," she responded with a grin.

One little girl asked, "Have you ever put your kids in a book?"

De Groat said she had put her daughter in many of her books, featuring her on seven of the book jackets.

When she asked her daughter to pose for an illustration, her daughter would say, "Oh, now I've got to be in another book."

Then one day while visiting the middle school library with a friend, she showed her where she was on a cover of one of her mother's books. The friend said "Wow, that's cool. I didn't know you were in a book."

"She never thought it was 'cool' to be in a book until her friend said so," de Groat added. Her daughter is 27 years old.

"Now I go shopping for kids to be in my books," she said.

ber of daily attacks on coalition forces dropped to 29 last week from a spike of 37 the week before.

The spate of attacks in the past week in Mosul, Iraq's third-largest city, has raised concerns among U.S. military commanders that the insurgency is spreading into that region from its main stronghold in the so-called Sunni Triangle, to the west and north of Baghdad.

The city is close to the semiautonomous Kurdish areas that lie between it and the Turkish border.

In Baghdad, about 500 people marched Friday toward coalition headquarters to protest the arrest of 36 clerics in the past couple of months.

They chanted Islamic slogans including "America's army will be wiped out," and "America is the enemy of God." They also carried a large banner reading "Prisons ... will never terrify us."

Near Karbala, 70 miles south of Baghdad, the Polish brigade serving as part of the U.S.-led coalition held a memorial service for Maj. Hieronim Kupczyk who was killed in an ambush Thursday.

It was the first combat death for Poland, which has 2,400 soldiers in Iraq and is in charge of a large swath of south-central Iraq where about 9,500 soldiers of several nations help maintain security.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, announced that one of the soldiers wounded in Sunday's downing of an Army Chinook helicopter died Thursday at a medical facility in Germany, raising the death toll to 16. Twenty-six others were injured.

In al-Assad, a desert base 155 miles northwest of Baghdad, hundreds of soldiers, some wearing ceremonial spurs and black regimental hats, assembled late Thursday to remember their comrades killed in the shootdown, the deadliest single attack against U.S. forces since the Iraq war began March 20.

Army officials said the helicopter's crew apparently had a last-second warning of an approaching missile and managed to launch flares designed to draw the heat-seeking missile away. The defensive measure did not work and the missile slammed into the right side of the helicopter's rear engine, destroying it and triggering a fire.

ACLU was "enormously gratified but not surprised that that law appears now to be unconstitutional."

ACLU attorney Talcott Camp said the organization got calls from worried physicians after the law took effect Wednesday without court rulings immediately nullifying its effect.

Camp said they "were indeed panicked at the prospect of having to face criminal prosecution for providing the absolute best medical care they can."

ment's ability to protect these premature infants."

The new law outlaws a procedure generally performed in the second or third trimester in which a fetus is partially delivered before being killed, usually by puncturing its skull. Anti-abortion activists call the procedure "partial-birth abortion." President Clinton had twice vetoed similar bills.

Opponents of the law say it is overly broad, lacks any exemption for the health of a woman and could outlaw several safe and common procedures. They also contended it is the first step in a larger campaign to ban all abortions and undo Roe v. Wade, the Supreme Court's 1973 landmark decision establishing a woman's right to an abortion.

Abortion-rights advocates expect a showdown over the new law with the Bush administration at the U.S. Supreme Court.

Anthony Romero, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, which argued the case in New York, said the physicians who "uniformly agreed that a partial-birth abortion is never necessary to advance the health or life of women."

Casey noted in his three-page order granting a temporary restraining order that a government lawyer told him at a Wednesday hearing that the medical community remains divided over the issue and that Congress did not reach a consensus.

He said the position left him with no choice but to "conclude that it is substantially likely" that the law will be found unconstitutional.

Douglas Johnson, a spokesman for the National Right to Life Committee, said the New York judge's ruling was "not surprising but it is distressing."

"It means that partly born babies will continue to die at the point of 7-inch scissors," he said. "Certainly these judicial orders severely impede the govern-

DEAR ABBY

written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips

Woman Struggles to Escape Her Ties to Drug-Using Cheat

DEAR ABBY: I am 38 and was in a relationship for 12 years. We had three beautiful children together. "John" started cheating on me a few months after we began dating and wound up cheating on me 14 times throughout our relationship. He has been into the drug scene and served some time in prison for setting a church fire.

John and I never married, but I remained faithful to him. He has been in a federal prison for almost five years, but we communicate through letters and phone calls. I have no trust in this relationship anymore and get aggravated when I hear his voice. I want to move on, but something keeps holding me back. I feel I am running out of time. Can you help me figure out what to do with my life, Abby?

KATIE IN WEST VIRGINIA

DEAR KATIE: Wake up and smell the coffee. The man to whom you have given your heart is a philandering, drug-using pyromaniac. He has no respect for the house of God and what it represents, and if he loved you and his children, he would have married you and shown some responsibility years ago.

Here is what to do with your life: Stop accepting his phone calls. If you haven't already done so, figure out how you are going to support yourself and the children.

Your future is ahead of you, so stop looking backward. There is no reason you cannot have a full life and a rewarding relationship with a man if you want it. But regardless of what he might say or promise, that man isn't John, so let him go. Concentrate on the present, and the future will take care of itself.

case of sleep apnea and refuses to see a doctor.

I am afraid he'll have a heart attack in his sleep. Horace is a heavy guy and he snores so loud the neighbors complain. He holds his breath, then jerks around until he can gasp air in again. It's scary.

I know there's treatment for this, but Horace is sure he'll need surgery. He hasn't been to a doctor since he was a child, and I think he's afraid he'll have to change his lifestyle. Any advice would be appreciated.

CAROLE IN CLEVELAND

DEAR CAROLE: Horace has a serious medical problem. Tell him that you care for him and think you have a future together — but only if he's living. There are treatments for sleep apnea that don't require surgery. The first step is for Horace to consult a sleep disorder specialist and be properly evaluated. Since he doesn't have a physician, perhaps your doctor could suggest a clinic.

Another source of information that could be helpful is apneanet.org. It provides a forum that facilitates the exchange of information and ideas for persons affected by this condition.

There is a solution to Horace's problem. However, to find it he must behave like an adult and face the fact that he has a problem.

DEAR ABBY: My relationship with "Horace" has been going well for several months. We're both in our early 40s. He drives 400 miles each weekend to spend time with me. The problem is he has a bad

Religious resistance insurgents

MOSUL, Iraq (AP) — Dhabla Ahmed saw her 22-year-old son leave home before the sunlight filled the sky and head for dawn prayers in the mosque as he did most days. This time, Ahmed Hassan Ibrahim never returned home. Only his bullet-riddled body did.

At about 6 a.m. on Oct. 23, a Thursday, four insurgents fired rocket-propelled grenades at a U.S. compound, the American military said. Troops opened fire killing two of their assailants and critically injuring a third. The fourth fled.

The U.S. military didn't give the names of the Iraqis killed in the attack, however it confirmed the incident.

Ibrahim's life and death, as portrayed by relatives, provide an insight into the motivation of some so-called resistance fighters. But Ibrahim didn't take up arms out of economic need or for ousted leader Saddam Hussein. His motive seemed to be religious.

Ibrahim was an engineering student who was married about a year ago. He owned his own house, but chose to bring his wife to live with his parents, six sisters and younger brother on a street dotted with neat houses surrounded by trees. His father and uncles own a trading company with branches outside Iraq.

Members of the affluent family said they always had been religious. But two years ago, Ibrahim became even more interested in Islam. Instead of praying at home, he went to the mosque, his mother said. He began to read more of the Quran and fast on Mondays and Thursdays like many devout Muslims.

Worried about security, Japan assesses military

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — Time seems to have stood still at this base that was once home to the Imperial Japanese Navy: Black submarines flying the rising sun flag huddle in the morning mist, while sailors clamber over their gray-hulled warships.

But outside the gates, Japan is rethinking decades-old attitudes about its military and the commitment to pacifism on which this nation rebuilt itself from the ashes of World War II.

Reflecting the anxieties of a country concerned it can no longer take its security for granted, the issue has become a hot button as Japan prepares for parliamentary elections on Sunday.

Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi's ruling Liberal Democratic Party has pledged to draft a proposal by 2005 to revise the 1947 constitution under which occupied Japan renounced armies, navies and the right to make war. Even the largest opposition party agrees on the need to debate the constitutional status of the nation's military, which exists in a legal gray zone as a "self-defense force."

The popular prime minister already has won broad support for initiatives loosening the reins on Japan's tightly controlled armed forces. Japanese warships from this base south of Tokyo have steamed into the Indian Ocean to provide logistical support for the war in Afghanistan.

Heading into the election, people list concerns they feel hit close to home — pension checks, doctors bills, highway tolls. Then there's one that's too close: North Korea.

"North Korea is just scary," said Tsunehiro Suzuki, a 48-year-old office worker in Yokosuka, which is Koizumi's home district as well as headquarters to Japan's Maritime Self-Defense Force and the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

"People in this country feel a lot less secure than back when the Soviet Union was supposed to be the enemy," Suzuki said.

Japan was shaken when North Korea test-fired a missile over its territory in 1998. It was shocked again when Kim Jong Il admitted last year that North Korean agents had kidnapped a dozen Japanese in the 1970s to steal their identities.

That threat pushed the government to launch the country's first spy satellites and move ahead with plans for a U.S.-developed missile shield, both of which have been criticized as contrary to the spirit of the constitution.

Suzuki scoffed at the suggestion.

Symposium to focus on BIOBIZ

CANYON — Entrepreneurs, researchers, venture capitalists and medical professionals will be represented at the Pickens College of Business sixth annual Executive Leadership Symposium, "Seeding the Future — The Business of Biotech," at West Texas A&M University.

The symposium is scheduled from 11 a.m.-12:15 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 12 in the Alumni Banquet Facility at WTAMU.

This year's symposium will explore one of the world's fastest growing markets, the "marriage" of biotechnology and business, termed BIOBIZ.

The format will consist of initial discussions drawn from seed questions provided to the panelists in advance; those will be followed by screened questions from the audience.

Dr. John W. Cooley, dean of the Pickens College of Business, will serve as moderator for the discussion, which is free and open to students, the business community and the general public.

Central Baptist revival presents former Pampa Baptist leaders

Central Baptist Church will hold revival services Nov. 9 through Nov. 12 featuring special guests, Dr. Claude Cone and John Glover, both formerly of First Baptist Church of Pampa.

Revival speaker, Dr. Cone, serves as executive director of the New Mexico Baptist convention. He is a graduate of Wayland Baptist University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Dr. Cone has preached in overseas crusades in Japan, Korea, Indonesia, Taiwan, and Brazil. He has pastored numerous churches in Texas including First Baptist Church of Pampa for 14 years.

Glover will lead in worship through music. He is presently pastor of First Baptist Church of Gopher and is music representative to east Texas for the Baptist General Convention of Texas. Glover served as music minister at First Baptist Church of Pampa for 29 years.

Sunday services will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Noon services will be held at 11:45 a.m., Monday through

Dr. Claude Cone

Wednesday, Nov. 10-12.

Cost for the meal is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Evening services on these days are at 7 p.m.

John Glover

Central Baptist is located at Starkweather and Browning streets.

For further information, contact the church office at 665-1631.

Revival features noted evangelist

Four nights of special revival services begin at 7 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 9, at First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock.

Services will continue each night, Sunday through Wednesday, Nov. 9-12, at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Leroy Blankenship - singer, musician, song writer, author and evangelist - will be guest speaker for these meetings.

Blankenship was born in Mountain Grove, Mo., and moved to the Yakima Valley in Washington at age 13. He attended high school in Grandview, Wash., and earned a PhD in theology at the School of Bible Theology in Hemet, Calif.

He spent 12 years in an established ministry as pastor and 33 years in full-time evangelism, traveling extensively throughout the United States, Canada and overseas. He now has missionary outreaches in Bolivia, the Philippines and in New Mexico.

As a singer, classic to country, Blankenship has appeared on the Grand Ole Opry, North American Christian Convention and numerous other conventions throughout the U.S. He was lead singer with the Christian Troubadours Quartet for three years. He is the composer of such songs as "He'll Only Need It For the Weekend" and "Clapping of the Nail-Scarred Hands." An accomplished musician, he plays the guitar and piano.

In the early 1960s, Blankenship signed his first publishing contract with Albert E. Brumley.

"Leroy, some day you will become a nationally-known song writer," Brumley said at the time.

Since that time, one of Blankenship's compositions was in the top five nominations for the American Music Awards. Several of his songs have been recorded by such Southern Gospel singing groups as The Lesters and The Dixie Melody Boys.

Blankenship also publishes children's books with Thomas Nelson Publishing of Nashville, Tenn. His first book, "Papa Oblong," was released in June 1998.

Albert and Mary Maggard, pastors, join with the First Pentecostal Holiness Church congregation in welcoming the public to these services.

ACLU won't challenge 'God Bless America' signs

SPARKS, Nev. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union, which advocates strict separation of church and state, has nevertheless decided not to challenge Sparks Mayor Tony Armstrong's new "God Bless America" signs at city hall.

Richard Siegel, president of the state ACLU, told the Reno Gazette-Journal the signs are no concern because they are not specific to any religion.

Armstrong was outraged after the word "God" was removed from similar signs at city hall on the advice of City Attorney Chet Adams, who feared they could be viewed as a city endorsement of religion and would invite lawsuits. Armstrong then bought new signs with his own money and posted them Sept. 30.

Presbyterians collect cans for 'The Heifer Project'

The public is invited to bring aluminum cans to First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray, for their Christmas recycling project to assist "The Heifer Project." Cash donations are also welcome.

This is the third year the church has worked toward raising enough money to buy an "ark." It achieved the goal in 2002.

An ark, according to "The Heifer Project" officials, consists of a $5,000 contribution which will pay to ship two of every kind of farm animal to a third-world community. The goal is to help such communities become self sufficient.

For the last two years, First Presbyterian has received coupons for a 3-to-1 match for any funds they collect. In other words, when the church raised $1,250, it was matched by a foundation three times, making the total donation $5,000. So far, these coupons have not been made available for 2003, so an even bigger effort is needed to collect for this organization.

Based in Little Rock, Ark., "The Heifer Project" grew out of the Spanish Civil War early in the 20th century when a farmer from the Midwest discovered that refugee children had no milk. He decided it would be better to give their families a cow than merely to give them milk.

Currently, families and communities throughout the world - including a project with goats in the Big Bend area of Texas - benefit from "The Heifer Project."

For more information on this non-government organization, log on to www.heifer.org or call 1-800-422-474.

Christ offers comfort for the hurting

One of the greatest attributes of our Lord and Savior is the fact He can bring comfort even in the toughest experiences of life.

COMFORT (Isaiah 40:1-2) - The Southern Kingdom (Judah) had sinned against God, and He had sent several prophets to warn them of His impending judgment on them. God calls Isaiah to comfort His people by telling them He had forgiven them and their suffering was over.

The Hebrews would eventually be released from captivity by Cyrus, King of Persia (v. 44:28). They would experience God's pardon or forgiveness for their sins. God's call to the prophet sought to change. He wanted the people of Israel to know that God was alive and in charge.

The Bible often mentions God's role as comforter of His suffering people. He is described as the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort (II Corinthians 1:3-4). Paul writes of His comfort, and

Minister's Musings

JIMMY FLYNN, PhD
 CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

Jesus told His disciples in the upper room that God would send the Holy Spirit to be the comforter after He offered comfort and help to those who felt weary and burdened by life's demands (Matthew 11:28-30).

REVELATION (Isaiah 4:3-5) - God had a construction project underway - a highway of hope. The gospel writers understood this text as a prediction of the role of John the Baptist: announcing the arrival of Jesus the Messiah (Matthew 3:3). The description of the preparation of the highway (v. 40:4) reflects the ancient custom of road building for a king.

The purpose of God's arrival would reveal His glory (v.

40:5). God's command for His people to prepare the way reminds us to be open to His coming to us. Our sin acts as road barriers between us and God. We need to confess our sin to make smooth His way to us.

PROBLEM (Isaiah 40:9-11) - god's power is like a military victor. God is strong enough to liberate His people from their captivity. Isaiah describes God as a shepherd gathering His flock. He is like a gentle giant; He is all powerful. Isaiah's description of God's strengths and tenderness reminds us that He is always available to help us in life's difficult times. He is the almighty Lord of the universe but also tender and compassionate.

TRUTHS TO LIVE BY
 You and I need comfort. Life is so fragile, but God can bring comfort.

Comfort comes in God's time.

Comfort comes in the personal presence of God.

Jesus says, "I am with you always even until the end of the world."

Jennie Rogers to be released from Dallas rehab center

PAMPA — Jennie Rogers is coming home. The Pampa High junior has been in a Dallas rehabilitation center since the last week of September after sustaining spinal injuries in a one-car accident. She is scheduled to be released Tuesday from Our Children's House at Baylor.

"Jennie is still paralyzed, but she's showing signs of coming out of the spinal shock," said Stephen Rogers, Jennie's father.

"She's being going to physical therapy three to five times a week, probably in Amarillo." Rogers, a standout athlete on the Lady Harvesters volleyball and softball teams, underwent two operations at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo before being transported to Dallas. "Jennie might be going back to school for maybe an hour a day if she feels like it. We're going to try and ease her back into a routine," Stephen said. "She's working hard at getting better. She has to wear a back brace. Once she gets that off I think she'll start doing better."

Her accident occurred Sept. 15 west of Pampa. Rogers was a starter on the volleyball team and was all-district in softball.

OU blowout victims still have big goals

DALLAS (AP) — Texas and Oklahoma State have plenty in common.

They've both been blown out by No. 1 Oklahoma. Both have seen their primary goals for the season stripped away, and yet they've still got an outside shot at getting into the Bowl Championship Series.

"The BCS will be more discussed than Iraq for the next five weeks," Texas coach Mack Brown said. "And no one knows what's going to happen. We need to just play our best over the last three games and someone will want us in a bowl game somewhere."

The 11th-ranked Longhorns (7-2, 4-1 Big 12) have won three straight games since their 65-13 loss to Oklahoma that wiped away any hopes of playing for the national championship. After an impressive 31-7 win over Nebraska last week, Texas moved up to 12th in the BCS standings, the lowest spot for eligibility in one of the top four bowls.

Texas plays Saturday at No. 21 Oklahoma State, which is coming off a 52-9 loss to the Sooners. But the Cowboys do have a 10-game home winning streak.

Oklahoma State (7-2, 3-2 Big 12) will need a lot of help to get eligible for a BCS game, at No. 19 in the BCS rankings. But the Cowboys still have plenty of reachable goals.

"Being the first team in Oklahoma State history to go 10-2 in the regular season.

Going to a nice bowl game," Cowboys defensive end Khreem Smith said of the goals still in place.

The goals were bigger before losing to their instate Big 12 rivals for the first time in three years. There is now virtually no chance of winning the Big 12 South.

Oklahoma (9-0, 5-0), the No. 1 team in every poll, gets a chance to avenge a loss last season to Texas A&M (4-5, 2-3).

In other Big 12 games Saturday, No. 22 Missouri (6-2, 2-2) goes to Colorado (3-6, 1-4); No. 19 Nebraska (7-2, 3-2) plays at Kansas (5-4, 2-3); Kansas State (7-3, 3-2) goes to Iowa State (2-6, 0-4); and Baylor (3-6, 1-4) is home against Texas Tech (6-3, 3-2).

The series between Oklahoma and Texas A&M is 100 years old, but this will be only the 22nd game between the two teams. The Sooners were 8-0 last season before the Aggies won 30-26 to beat a No. 1 team for the first time.

Oklahoma has already had five 50-point games, matching the school record set by the 1987 team. The Aggies have lost five of their last seven games, but scored a combined 118 points in the two wins.

While the Sooners have control in the South Division, the North is wide open with Nebraska, Kansas State and Missouri all with two Big 12 losses. Missouri has the upper hand with a win over the Comhuskers and a game left against K-State.

Baylor likely without answers to stop Texas Tech's offense

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor coach Guy Morriss knows how to describe Mike Leach and the offense he's run — or rather thrown — quite successfully at Texas Tech.

That doesn't mean Morriss has the answers on how to stop it, or even slow it down. Nobody else has.

"It's hard to duplicate in practice," Morriss said. "Your scout team just can't do the same things they do at the speed they do. It's really difficult to give your defense a good look at it at the speed they see on game day."

The Red Raiders (6-3, 3-2 Big 12), with the nation's top offense at 601 yards per game, play Saturday at Baylor (3-6, 1-4). The Bears have lost their last four games by an average margin of 39 points.

Senior B.J. Symons, in his first year as the starter after replacing record-setting Kliff Kingsbury, has thrown for 4,313 yards (479 per game) and 37 touchdowns. Texas Tech also has three of the league's top four receivers going against a Baylor secondary that starts three sophomores or freshmen.

The players change, but Leach's pass-happy system doesn't.

"He is eccentric," Morriss said of Leach. "He knows the system inside and out. He maybe thinks with a different side of his brain than most people do, but his methods are effective."

When Morriss and Leach were assistant coaches together at Kentucky in 1998, the Wildcats ran the system with quarterback Tim Couch. They were also on the same staff at Valdosta State in Georgia in 1992 and 1993.

In nine starts this season, Symons has more yards and touchdowns than Baylor's Aaron Karas in his 22 games over three seasons (3,773 yards and 21 TDs). But Symons is coming off a five-interception game in which he had "just" 399 yards in a 26-21 win over Colorado.

"I don't think there is any quarterback out there playing on any level that hasn't had a game like that," Leach said.

Wheeler clinches playoff spot

CLARENDON - Wheeler clinched a playoff berth Thursday night with a 34-7 win over Clarendon.

Quarterback James Chapman sparked the Wheeler offense with touchdown runs of 3 and 7 yards. Chapman also threw a 17-yard TD pass to Joe Don Glassey. Miller led the Mustangs in rushing with 121 yards on 29 carries.

Other Wheeler players scoring touchdowns were Josh Miller (6-yard run) and Josh Britt (3-yard run).

Wheeler finished the regular season 4-1 in District 3-1A and 6-4 for the season.

Retiring Jackie Sherrill was one of Bear's Boys at Alabama

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — When Mississippi State coach Jackie Sherrill announced that he would retire at the end of the season, he said he'd always be a Bulldog.

That might be true, but first he was one of Bear's Boys.

Sherrill played for revered Alabama coach Bear Bryant from 1962-65, winning national championships the final two seasons, and began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Bryant.

Sherrill will coach against his alma mater for the final time Saturday as Alabama (3-6, 1-4) tries to climb out of last place in the SEC West against Mississippi State (2-6, 1-3).

Never one to get sentimental in public, Sherrill said facing the Crimson Tide won't tug at his emotions. But get him talking about the late Bryant, and Sherrill opens up a bit.

"It'd be a lot more special if Coach Bryant was here," Sherrill said. "Coach Bryant in his lifetime had a big impact on a lot of people, regardless, but if you were a player for Coach Bryant you got to know him in a certain way. If you were a coach you knew him in another certain way. And if you were a fan, then you knew him in another way.

"He gave his players a lot more of himself than he gave anybody else."

Sherrill's 26-year career as a college head coach started at Washington State and led him to Pittsburgh and Texas A&M before he moved to Mississippi State 13 years ago.

He said there was a time he considered coaching at Alabama.

"Did I have some formal talks? Yes," said Sherrill, though he would not say when.

Sherrill also said that when he was at Pittsburgh in the early 1980s, Bryant told him that he was one of three people Bryant was recommending to be his successor.

"But I made a decision then to go to Texas A&M, so I took my name out of it," said Sherrill, who left Pitt for Texas A&M after the 1981 season.

Howell off to another strong start at Tour Championship

HOUSTON (AP) — Charles Howell III can't win the money title. His name won't be found on the PGA Tour player of the year ballot that gets mailed on Monday.

That doesn't mean the Tour Championship is any less important to him.

With all the focus on Tiger Woods and Vijay Singh in the final pairing Thursday, and Davis Love III and Masters champion Mike Weir trying to make one last statement about their seasons, Howell quietly posted a 4-under 67 to share the lead with Kenny Perry.

The final tournament of the year is his final chance to hold a trophy.

"Am I frustrated for not winning this year? Yeah, a little bit," Howell said. "I don't think you can ever give yourself an 'A' for the season without a win."

Howell got off to a good start for the second straight week, making three straight birdies on the back nine and holing a 40-foot birdie putt on the 18th.

Perry had the only bogey-free round at Champions Golf Club, where the greens are big and soft but not easy to get close to the hole because of the tricky breeze.

Fred Funk, Jerry Kelly and Chris DiMarco were at 68, and only 11 other players managed to break par.

As for those other guys? They were entertaining, even though they're nowhere near the lead.

Singh has a $768,494 lead over Woods on the money list and needs to finish in a three-way tie for third to wrap up the money title. Woods has no choice but to win.

Both are the leading candidates for PGA Tour player of the year.

Woods wasted no time sending a statement, putting five strokes between him and Singh after the first five holes.

Then, he wasted a good round.

"I hit two bad shots, and that was it," Woods said about his string of three straight bogeys. "The rest were mostly putting mistakes."

Woods, tied for the lead early in his round, wound up with a 1-under 70.

Singh had a pair of three-putt bogeys on his first four holes and never recovered, missing a few good birdie chances and signing for a 73.

Weir, who won at Champions in 2001, played the par 5s in 1 over and shot 72, while Davis Love III finished double bogey-bogey and shot 73.

Howell is considered one of the future stars in golf, although his only PGA Tour victory came last year at the now-defunct Michelob Championship.

"It's not easy to win out here," Howell said.

This week is no exception.

The Tour Championship is only for the top 30 players on the money list — 31 this year, because Darren Clarke earned enough money as a temporary member. So while there are fewer players to beat, all of them are among the best in the world.

Still, only one pairing seemed to matter in the first round.

Singh and Woods not only are Nos. 1-2 on the money list, they aren't likely to be found at dinner together.

The conversation was about the same as it was last month when they played in the final round at the American Express Championship.

A handshake on the first tee. A handshake on the 18th green.

"I didn't let that bother me," Singh said of his pairing with Woods, knowing Woods is the only guy who can take the money title away from him.

"I told my caddie, 'Let's just play another round of golf.' Don't get yourself involved in any of that. Stay away from him and just do your own thing."
