County Crop Outlook Shows Improvement

Finally!! Schools Out For Students

H. John Fuller, superintendent of the Muleshoe Independent School District, reports that attendance has been good and goals have been reached for the six-week summer program for Muleshoe Independent School District.

Teachers have reported that since the pupil-teacher ratio averages one to twelve, more time can be given to individual needs of students. Emphasis has been placed on language arts and math concepts that need to be strengthened for students to experience success of their particular grade level.

Twelve teachers have worked with approximately 140 students in grades K-8 during this six-week period from July 7-August 15.

The eight-week English as a Second Language (ESL) has been a part of the summer program, also. This class began June 30 and will continue through August 21.

Local teachers are Jody Lyle, Tammy Price, Diane Skipworth, Charlotte Donaldson, Helen Bryant, Evelyn Northcutt, Sue Espinoza, Peggy Burnett, Denise Keeling, Beth Skipworth, Jane Forster and Doris Scoggin. Mrs. Elizabeth Watson is the director of the summer program.

The superintendent said he is confident that the results of this program will be very positive for boys and girls enrolled in the Muleshoe Independent School District's Summer School.

SUMMER SCHOOL PARTICIPANTS--While hundreds of youngsters enjoyed a hot, lazy summer, more than 150 took advantage of Summer School, and attended school for the past six weeks. Successfully completing the summer school under the guidance of 12 Muleshoe teachers is this group of youngsters, perched on the steps of Muleshoe High School Friday morning. They participated in half day school all through July and the first of August to complete their summer school training. Overall coordinator of the school was Mrs. Elizabeth Watson, assistant superintendent, in charge of curriculum. Classes were conducted in the Muleshoe High School building, as ongoing renovation and construction was being done at both Dillman Elementary and DeShazo Elementary Schools. At this time, one segment of summer school is still being conducted, English as a Second Language. These students will complete school in another two weeks.

"The county crop situation has improved," says Bailey County Extension Agent Spencer Tanksley. "Basically, the crops all look pretty good and are growing good. The light showers we have received in the past week were very beneficial, but we still need a good two inch general rain on all our crops, and we really need it now, in one good rain, all over the county."

According to the county agent, one factor which may be hurting the crops at this time is a lack of moisture on crops that are not under irrigation.

He says there are between 30,000-40,000 acres of cotton in the county where normally 100,000 acres are planted; and both the cotton and grain in the southern part of the county look good. Some cotton planted in June is approximately three weeks behind schedule and there's still not much cotton blooms on the late cotton, he added, but grain sorghum is starting to head out.

"The corn crop is excellent in my opinion," said Tanksley. "For five to eight days we had real extreme heat, but that was basically good for the crops although it may have been bad on humans. We're back to normal heat across the county at this time. The extreme heat made the heat units excellent in July for crops, and we had an average high temperature of 94, and an average low of 61. This is the type of weather conditions the crops need."

The county agent said he did find some insect damage to corn, but very little to cotton or grain sorghum as yet, but cautioned, there could be a lot of bollworm infestations in August and September. Also, he said producers should watch for midge and greenbugs in the grain sorghum, because of the late crops.

Tanksley reports that both livestock and rangeland are very good at this time, and their outlook is very good right now.

Ogallala Aquifer Water Good Quality; Frequent Testing Keeps It That Way

Residents of the Texas High Plains generally enjoy a knowledge that they have a good source of high quality water from the Ogallala aquifer to meet their needs. However, the quality of this water, which is used for both agricultural and municipal purposes, cannot be taken for granted.

Irrigation water quality can affect crop growth. For instance, high salt concentrations can significantly reduce a plant's ability to utilize water. Thus, monitoring water quality is extremely important.

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. One cooperates with the Texas Water Development Board and the Texas Department of Health to protect the quality of water in the Ogallala aquifer through a water quality monitoring program that has been in operation since 1976.

Basically, the district takes water samples in select areas within its service area yearly, sampling wells in each area approximately once every five years on a rotating basis. The Texas Department of Health, under contract with the Water Development Board, analyzes the water samples. Results are shared with the Water District and, in turn, with the owners of the wells sampled.

Water District Geohydrologic Division Director Don

McReynolds explains, "We're collecting samples of water from the District's network of privately-owned water-level observation wells to establish baseline water quality data in new wells and to monitor changes in water quality in wells previously sampled."

"We're sampling observation wells because most of these wells have been sampled previously. This way, we can compare each new analysis to previous analyses to see if there's been a change in water quality. However, if for some reason, we cannot obtain a sample from the observation well, we may select a pumping well as an alternate to get a water sample."

The District carries out its own sampling effort as well, checking areas where there may be a high risk of water contamination. For instance, the District routinely samples in areas where petroleum production activities may create water quality problems.

"We sample wells in areas of potential contamination, such as feedlots, sewage disposal areas and industrial waste disposal areas, where there is a greater risk to water quality as a result of these activities," McReynolds notes.

School Board Meeting Slated Monday Night

Members of the board of trustees for the Muleshoe Independent School District will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow, Monday, in the school administration building.

Items on the agenda include the following: informational reports on the Muleshoe Effective Teaching Program and the State Plan for Regional Educational Service Centers.

Financial reports will include bank balances; fund balances and payment of current bills.

Items under 'business' are approval of bids for milk and gasoline for the 1986-87 school year; approval of bus routes for the 1986-87 school year; approval of early dismissal dates; approval of extra-curricular guidelines for competition above the district level; and approval of lunchroom prices for the 1986-87 school year.

Personnel considerations will include employment contracts; and a salary schedule for cafeteria employees for the 1986-87 school year.

Superintendent H. John Fuller will report on correspondence, school and community events and other items of interest.

Over the years, the most common problems associated with water quality in the District's service area have been high concentrations of sodium chloride and other salts, which are often associated with oil field activities.

If contamination is found, District personnel sample other nearby wells to determine the extent, and if possible, identify the cause. The District also

New Alcohol Control Affects The Under-21

A different kind of dry spell is coming soon for some Texans.

W.S. McBeath, administrator of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission has issued a reminder that the legal drinking age will rise to 21 on Labor Day. The present legal age is 19.

At 12:01 a.m. on Monday, September 1, possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages will be illegal for any person who has not reached his or her 21st birthday. The only exception is if the underage person is in the immediate physical presence of his own parents or spouse who is over 21. Possession of an alcoholic beverage by the underage person is a misdemeanor with a possible fine of $25 to $200.

It is also a crime for the underage person to present false identification or to misrepresent his age in an attempt to purchase alcoholic beverages, or to successfully make such a purchase even without misrepresenting his age. In either case, the first offense fine is the same as for possession. Giving alcohol to a minor carries a fine of $100 to $500.

Sale of alcoholic beverages to an underage person is the most serious offense. A fine of $100 to $500 and/or a year in jail is the penalty for a first violation. A second violation can result to the same jail term and/or a fine of $500 to $1,000.

McBeath also cautioned that the age change will affect persons entering package stores. Liquor stores may not allow underage persons to even enter the store, and most such establishments have warning signs prominently posted.

"Many young people do not realize it is a criminal offense to ignore the warning signs and enter a liquor store," said McBeath. "It is criminal trespass under section 30.05 of the Texas Penal Code, which is a Class B misdemeanor."

Another common misconception is that drinking age violations only apply to public place. "That's not true," said McBeath. "It will be just as illegal in a party barn, a fraternity house or a car parked on private property," he said.

McBeath urged voluntary compliance on the part of both licensees and underage former customers. Anyone who has a question about the upcoming change can obtain clarification from the nearest district office of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, or at the main office in Austin, telephone (512) 458-2500.

Garcia Eludes Officers After Fatal Shooting

Despite numerous 'sightings' by Parmer County residents, truckers and travelers, on Friday afternoon, Parmer County Sheriff Bill Morgan said Rene Garcia, 22, is still a fugitive and has evaded apprehension.

Garcia, a resident of Muleshoe, is being sought for last weekend's double shooting west of Bovina that left one Muleshoe woman dead and another wounded.

Following an apparent dispute west of Bovina on FM2290, Garcia was reported to be the gunman who shot down Christy Sotelo, 25, inflicting fatal gunshot wounds; and shooting Tonya Parkinson, 23, also of Muleshoe, in the abdomen.

Managing to escape the fusillade were Rosa Sotelo Vital, 23, and Hector Sotelo, 12, brother and sister of the dead woman, also of Muleshoe.

Another Muleshoe resident, Ida Sotelo, 17, was said to be taken at gunpoint by Garcia. She is also still missing.

ACROSS THE FENCE

By
Deana Finck
County
Extension Agent

This summer more than ever tourists may be traveling to Mexico to take advantage of bargain prices. But one bargain may not be in your best interest. I am referring to vanilla purchased in Mexico. The kind that is an extract of tonka beans or better known as coumarin is no bargain and may damage your health. This product smells like real vanilla and usually sells for $1.50 to 2.00 per bottle.

The genuine vanilla bean Vanilla fragrans, is a native to Mexico, but is not cheap, even where it is grown. The vanilla plant is an orchid in a vine form that grows in the subtropical areas of southeast Mexico and nearby countries.

The tonka bean, Dipteryx odorata, is a native of South America, but grows in Mexico. It is a tree that grows up to 150 feet tall that belongs to the pea family. It smells enough like vanilla to satisfy all but the experts. However, in 1954, this impostor was prohibited by FDA for use as a food or food additive because it was determined to be a poisonous and deleterious substance.

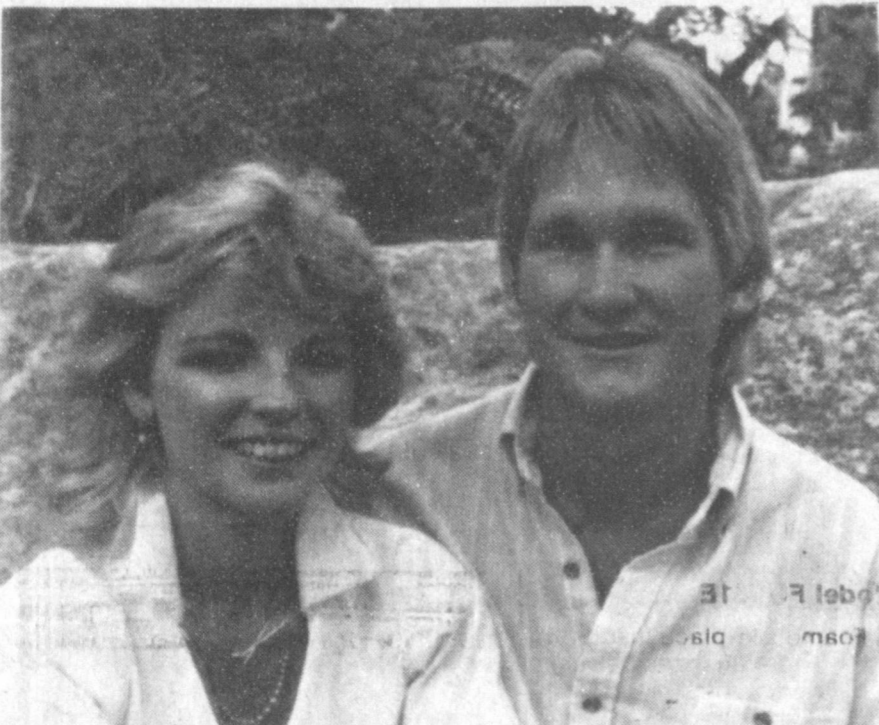

It is interesting to note that a derivative (dicumarol) of coumarin is used in certain blood thinning medicines (anticoagulants). This derivative also known as warfarin is used in rat poison as well, causing the rodent to die from hemorrhaging. There has been no evidence that coumarin itself has a blood thinning effect in humans.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) standards for vanilla extract specify that 13.35 to 15 ounces (depends on moisture content) of vanilla beans be used per gallon of extracting fluid. The extracting fluid consists of ethyl alcohol (35%) and water (65%). There are other standards for vanilla flavoring, (which is a more diluted solution); for mixtures with artificial vanilla (vanillin); and for concentrates and powders.

The chances for deception in buying vanilla would be lessened if everyone bought the whole bean. Vanilla beans are long (7-10") and thin (1/4") like a pencil. They turn dark brown to black when cured. The extract pod can be ground and used for flavoring, or the flavoring can be extracted with ethyl alcohol and water. Tonka beans, on the other hand are oval in shape, about 5" long by 3" wide. Only the seeds are used for flavoring. These are about 3 1/2" X 2" in size. The pod is not used at all.

Verifying the presence of coumarin in vanilla type products is relatively easy using a fairly simple laboratory procedure. FDA has tested many vanilla type products from Mexico and has found coumarin in often and in varying amounts. But how does the average consumer know before they buy? There is no good way to tell. Stay away from the real cheap bottles of vanilla ($1.50 to 2.00) is one suggestion. The best way to avoid coumarin in your vanilla is not to buy it in Mexico.

Crop Outlook

Some special crops are being marketed, according to the county agent, and leading the list are the onions, just completed; potatoes, near completion; as well as other fresh vegetables, including sweet corn, cabbage and cucumbers, with carrots nearing harvest time.

Immediate concerns for the producer, added Tanksley, includes the necessity of good weather in September, with heat and good temperatures, without much moisture to produce the late crops.

But, the worst thing facing the producer may be the markets, he said. "Farmers are facing the lowest prices they have faced in the last 5-10 years, and unless markets strengthen, we will be seeing a lot of the county crops going into the government loans," he said.

"Low prices the agriculture producer faces leave a rather bleak outlook right now," stated Tanksley. "And the farmer is frustrated and down, and the entire farming community is down."

He expects corn harvest to begin the latter part of August or first of September, as heat units have speeded up corn

Dual career couples retain intimacy if they share leisure activities

COLLEGE STATION — Married couples pursuing separate careers are more likely to be intimate and communicative with each other if they spend a lot of their free time together, a Texas A&M University study shows.

And the more leisure time they share, the more likely they are to enjoy that time together, says Dr. Martha Lynn Schramm, who recently received a doctorate in counseling psychology in Texas A&M's College of Education.

Schramm's dissertation examined the relationship between intimacy and shared leisure time among dual-career couples — an area that until now has not been carefully researched.

"It sounds like a lot of common sense. But no one had really studied it before," Schramm said. "Now we've got some research that substantiates it."

Schramm based her study on detailed information provided by 38 couples with graduate-level university degrees who were following separate professional careers. Most of them were between 30 and 50 years old and were married less than 10 years.

Wastewater Suggested For Irrigation Use

Wastewater from cities, food processing plants and livestock feeding operations can be partially treated and then applied to agricultural soils and crops.

The soil removes solid particles by filtration and decomposition, says Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer in waste management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System. The soil also removes disease-causing organisms and retains nutrients for plant growth.

"Although soils and plants benefit from the applied organic matter, nutrients and water, land application of wastewater has to be approached more carefully than irrigation with clean water," Sweeten points out. "Otherwise, problems can develop due to overloading the soil-plant system with certain constituents that could cause plant toxicity, soil salinity, nutrient imbalance or ground-water pollution."

Wastewater application rates should be controlled by at least three load limiting factors: hydraulic load, or depth of water applied; nitrogen load (many irrigated crops can use 200 to 300 pounds of available nitrogen per acre per year); and salt content. Too much salt will affect seed germination and crop yields and will damage soils. Also, clay soils cannot take nearly as much salt as sandy soils.

"Treated municipal effluent contains only about 10 pounds of nitrogen per acre-inch, so a farmer usually can apply about 25 to 30 inches per year to benefit his crops," says Sweeten. "With a 15 percent leaching rate, most of the salts would move on through the soil profile."

Food-processing plant wastewater may be a little more concentrated than municipal sewage but also can be effectively used as an enriched irrigation water, adds the engineer.

But some agricultural wastewaters, such as feedlot runoff or effluent in poultry manure treatment lagoons, may be high enough in nitrogen and salt that only six inches or less should be applied per year. Since it usually takes more water than this to fully irrigate a crop, wastewater can be used for supplemental irrigation, and additional or dilution water may maturity, and silage operations are expected to begin in the very near future.

Tanksley said he has noted lots of activity on land at this time, as many farmers are preparing for wheat planting time, although moisture is needed for the wheat seed to emerge.

Alfalfa is "resting" awhile, added the county agent, and has produced normal crops in the county, although alfalfa acreages are lower. He estimates that where formerly 10,000 acres were planted to alfalfa, there's only about 5-6,000 acres now. This is due to low prices and high irrigation costs, said Tanksley.

Also noted in his drives around the county, Tanksley reports more soybeans, planted as a late crop by producers who lost their early planted crops in adverse weather, but less sunflowers, due mostly to depressed prices.

The county agent is also keeping a close eye on the Conservation Reserve Program. It is estimated that some 50,000-60,000 of the 100,000 eligible acres will be signed into the 10-year Conservation Reserve Program by county farmers and ranchers.

He figures some wheat will be planted on the land as a cover crop, before converting to grasses next spring.

All in all, Tanksley reports an improved crop outlook -- if the weather -- and market prices -- improve.

notifies well owners of the problem and provides suggestions for corrective measures. However, if the problem lies within the jurisdiction of other agencies such as the Texas Water Commission, the Texas Railroad Commission or the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, then these authorities are informed of the problem.

The water quality analysis process consists of tests for selected chemical constituents, including chlorides, sulfates, nitrates and fluorides, as well as other elements.

be necessary to meet crop requirements. Sweeten points out.

He recommends a chemical analysis of both the soil and wastewater to determine how much agricultural or municipal effluent can be irrigated onto which crops. The Extension Service's Soil and Water Testing Laboratories at College Station and Lubbock as well as commercial labs, can provide that type of analysis, says Sweeten.

Henry Funeral Scheduled Here Tuesday

Funeral services for Bobby Don Henry, 28, will be conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the First Methodist Church in Muleshoe with the Rev. Bill Kent, pastor, assisted by the Rev. David Hamblin, Abilene, officiating.

Interment will be in Bailey County Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home of Muleshoe.

Air Force Capt. Bobby Don Henry, 28, a 1975 graduate of Muleshoe High School, was killed at approximately 8:30 a.m. Friday in a plane crash near Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

Air Force spokesman Thomas Boyd said Capt. Henry and Major Henry Daniels had just taken off from the base on a routine training flight when the crash occurred near the end of a runway.

Although the aircraft, an F-Four jet, burst into flames on impact, Boyd said both men had ejected from the aircraft prior to the crash. Major Daniels was reported to be in good condition in a base hospital.

Cause of the crash is under investigation by air force officials.

Capt. Henry was born June 6, 1957, in Lubbock. He graduated from MHS in 1975 and the Air Force Academy in Colorado in 1979.

He received his training at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock where he had pilot training and also received his "wings."

For the past 18 months, Capt. Henry had been stationed at Clark Air Base, located some 25 miles northwest of Manila.

A member of the First United Methodist Church, he was married to the former Belinda Nickels on June 2, 1979 in Muleshoe.

Survivors include his wife, Belinda; a son, Beau Cameron; his mother, Marcia Henry, Wolfforth; two sisters, Kristi Henry and Kaci Henry, both of Lubbock; a brother, Mike Henry of Muleshoe; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Henry of Canyon and Mrs. Selma Smith, Marble Falls.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorials to be made to The Bobby Henry Memorial Scholarship Fund at First Bank or Muleshoe State Bank.

contributions will be tallied, banked, and will benefit the respective local areas for use in research and patient services.

KLBK-TV, Channel 13, will broadcast the Jerry Lewis Telethon on Labor Day weekend to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA). Bob Benson and Vickie Hutson, KLBK's new anchor team, will host the local portion of the Telethon with special guest, Misty, MDA's local "Lady of Telethon."

The local Telethon will focus on area fund-raising events. MDA district director Paul Moore said that this will be the "year of the area pledge centers." Goal is to get more people in the pledge center communities involved. Over 12 area towns will join the Telethon telephone network.

In most of the hours during which the Telethon is on the air, KLBK will cut in for 15 minutes with local programming. Lewis noted that local affiliates use this time to inform viewers about what MDA does with the money it received.

MDA supports some 240-hospital affiliated clinics nationwide where patients with any of the 40 neuromuscular diseases covered by the Association's programs can receive medical care, counseling, and selected orthopedic aids. The Association also funds a massive worldwide research effort seeking treatments and cures for these disorders, which affect hundreds of thousands of Americans.

In the Lubbock area, an MDA clinic is located at Methodist Hospital. MDA also sponsors some 70 summer camps throughout the country for youngsters with neuromuscular diseases, including one in the South Plains.

Last year's Jerry Lewis Tele-

thon raised the highest pledge total in the show's 19 year history--more than $32 million in pledges. According to the data provided by A.C. Nielsen Company, a projected audience of some 96-million people watched the show, making it one of last season's top-rated programs.

The class is having an eight foot oak trophy case custom built for the school. The case should be completed by Homecoming in late September.

"The class is extremely pleased that they were able to take care of all their obligations, yet have enough money left from their moneymaking projects to leave a gift. The case will cost approximately $1,000. It has been a number of years since a class has left such a nice gift to the school.

"One hundred, seven students worked to make this possible."

Social Security News & Views

One of the interesting aspects of the fact that most people can look forward to a longer life in retirement is a tendency of many to continue working and even to start a second career. For some, it's a matter of filling the empty hours; for many others, however, it becomes a matter of need.

People who are thinking about working after retirement should be sure to understand how earnings will affect their Social Security benefits. To insure that benefits are paid to those who are actually retired, there is a limit on how much a person can make and still receive full benefits.

Under the annual earnings test, the earnings limit increases each year with increases in general wage levels. For 1986, it is $5,760 for people under 65; and $7,800 for people 65 to 70. The limit does not apply to people 70 and over.

Earnings over the limit cause benefits to be reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings above the limit. Generally, this means that a person is always better off working than not working, since it is possible to increase one's income substantially.

For example, a person retiring at age 65 in 1986 receiving the maximum benefit of $760 a month or $9,120 a year, could have a total income of $16,920, including earnings and Social Security benefits. He or she could earn up to $26,040 before all benefits are withheld.

A person getting benefits who expects to earn more than the limit must report this to the Social Security Administration so the benefits could be adjusted accordingly. Failure to report the earnings could result in overpayments-receiving benefits to which a person is not entitled. The law requires overpayments to be repaid to the Social Security trust funds. Generally, this is done by withholding portions of future checks, but repayments may be made by the overpaid person in a lump sum.

People who earn over the earnings limit are required to make a report by April 15 of the following year. The report also required them to estimate how much they plan to earn in the future. Benefits are adjusted based on the information in the annual earnings report. If this report is not made timely, there may be a penalty imposed.

Any change in expected earnings after the report is made should be reported to the Social Security Administration immediately to avoid the risk of an overpayment. If it is determined that a person willfully and fraudulently concealed earnings, penalties are possible, ranging from a fine to a jail term.

If you have any questions about earnings after retirement, please be sure to contact a Social Security office. If you plan on working, it makes sense to work smart and avoid potential problems.

Volunteers from throughout the KENW viewing area will be in Studio A of the Broadcast Center, located on the Campus of Eastern New Mexico University to serve as Hosts and take incoming telephone calls from Friends.

Silver-Haired Legislator Off To Good Starts

Nathan Tubb of Levelland a newly elected Silver Haired Legislator, has just returned from Austin where he attended a three-day training session to prepare for the first Texas Silver Haired Legislature, which will officially convene at the Capitol, Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1.

The SHL is an elected, representative, nonpartisan body of citizens 60-plus years of age, elected by their peers. The SHL was created by the 69th Texas Legislature last session.

This fall the SHL will meet to consider and propose legislation that concerns the needs of older Texans. This legislation will be forwarded to the regular Texas Legislature and the governor.

Nathan Tubb heard presentations from key legislators and government officials on how laws are made, the present and future of the Texas financial picture as it relates to state government and was assigned to the Insurance committee.

Health and cheerfulness mutually beget each other.

Hay Producers Across Texas 'Lending Hand'

With the extended drought in the southeastern United States, Texas hay producers are donating part of this year's crop to meet the emergency.

"In much of Texas, ample rainfall this spring provided for adequate production," says Dr. Neal Pratt, forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Since livestock producers in the southeast need hay this summer to stretch nutrition for their herds, Texas producers are ready to lend a hand."

Thirty-eight percent of the nation's cattle are in the southeastern states, says Pratt. Reduced nutrition from the drought results in lightweight calves and a reduced calf crop next year. For dairy cattle, it means less milk production and escalated feed costs.

Several states have established a Hay Crisis Center to coordinate receipt and transportation of hay. In most states livestock producers list their need with a county committee. The statewide center coordinates receipt, transportation and distribution to counties and farms needing hay the most, explains the forage specialist.

In addition to donating hay, Texas growers may list hay for sale at the crisis centers, adds Pratt.

"I" f every woman older than 40 years underwent annual mammography, 7,500 cancer deaths could be prevented each year. That startling statistic was part of the statement made by the AMA Council on Scientific Affairs late last year as it endorsed the mammography guidelines of the American Cancer Society. These Guidelines, for breast cancer detection in asymptomatic women, are:

Other important points in the Council's statement include:

- Mammography is the most effective diagnostic technique to detect nonpalpable of minimal breast cancers.
- Patients with tumors smaller than 1cm have a 90% ten-year survival rate, compared with only 10-20% survival for cancers larger than 5cm, with positive nodes.
- Modern mammography is an effective tool for early diagnosis of breast cancer. Its widespread use would reduce morbidity as well as mortality, reduce the need for extensive surgery, and mitigate women's fear of breast cancer."

Comprehensive mammography screenings are available at the affordable price of $72. Consult your physician today.

Texas A&M Press book tells story of battle over West Texas trading post

COLLEGE STATION — From the ashes and dirt of a burned out settlement in the Texas Panhandle, archeologists have sifted through the story of an epic clash of cultures in the Old West.

In 1874 a small group of men and one woman set up a trading post in the Texas Panhandle to serve the needs of the buffalo hunters. Built of sod blocks, the post was located at a place called Adobe Walls.

Less than six months later the settlement was burned to the ground by Plains Indians whose physical and cultural survival were threatened by the depletion of the buffalo herds. The Battle of Adobe Walls is the subject of a new book published by the Texas A&M University Press.

Entitled "Adobe Walls: The History and Archeology of the 1874 Trading Post," (413 pages, $39.50), the book is divided into two sections: history and archeology.
