Nixon Announces Tough Energy Saving Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon announced today tough, new energy conservation measures ranging from cutting down office building lights to an edict requiring government officials to give up their limousines.

Simon called the news conference to elaborate on the fuel allocation program he announced Wednesday—excluding a morning announcement that gasoline production would be cut 25 per cent and a correction 10 hours later revising the reduction to 5 per cent.

which he did not submit to questions—that if cooperation among Americans continues, the nation will be able to deal with the energy crisis. These were among new conservation measures he announced.

consumption by 20 per cent during July, August and September and gasoline use by 27 per cent. Fuel oil use was trimmed by 15 per cent.

gasoline production 25 per cent from 1972 levels. Some of the cut would go instead into production of heating oil. The written announcement was carried by all news media.

Violence Begins To Mar Various Truck Protests

United Press International
Shotgun blasts today riddled a number of trucks in Ohio whose drivers chose to ignore a call for a nationwide trucking

Illinois, Maryland, Nebraska and parts of California, as well as in Ohio and Pennsylvania. But in Michigan, some truckers tried to block highways west of Detroit early today.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said seven trucks were hit by shotgun blasts in the Youngstown area, two more trucks were shot at—but not hit—in southwestern Ohio, and there were at least 12 incidents of bricks and bottles thrown at trucks. Police also reported several trucks were forced off the road.

VC Say Saigon Bombed Residents

SAIGON (UPI) — The Communists accused the South Vietnamese government today of bombing residential areas of the Viet Cong's capital of Loc Ninh in a pair of afternoon air strikes.

In Cambodia, field reports said the Phnom Penh government sent fresh troops today into the battle for the strategic "rice road" linking the capital and the paddy fields of Battambang Province.

The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) said two government warplanes roared over Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, Wednesday afternoon and dropped "dozens of bombs on populous areas" of the town.

According to initial reports, they bombed Ninh Phu street, wounding many people and destroying many homes, the PRG said in a statement.

The South Vietnamese air force has conducted a series of "punitive" strikes around Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, since the government's Bien Hoa airbase, 14 miles north of the capital, was rocketed Nov. 6.

In other action, the Saigon military command said a South Vietnamese helicopter battled a squadron of armed Communist sampans Wednesday in a clash near the Cambodian border.

Command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said Communist gunners in the sampans opened up on the patrolling UH1 Huey helicopter, damaging the craft and wounding two of the four-man crew.

Hien said the pilot then dived down on the sampans with the Huey's two machine-guns blazing. He reported 10 sampans destroyed and 10 Communists killed in the fighting near the town of An Phu, 110 miles west of Saigon.

In Cambodia, field reports said the government sent another battalion of troops into the battle to reopen Highway 5, which runs from Phnom Penh to the ricefields of Battambang Province.

The rebels cut the highway Tuesday 12 miles northwest of Phnom Penh and government forces have been fighting since then to reopen the road.

The field reports said there were two government battalions at the scene today and two more heading for the fighting. The reports said one government soldier was killed and 19 wounded Wednesday in fighting for the highway.

Saxbe Says He Wouldn't Resign, Would Be Fired

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe says he will force President Nixon to fire him as attorney general rather than resign if any attempt is made to remove Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski from office.

With Jaworski by his side, Saxbe told the Senate Judiciary Committee that he will fight for the special prosecutor's "right to proceed as he sees fit" in the Watergate investigation and will "resist" any White House pressure to curtail the ongoing probe.

Jaworski assured the committee that he has been given complete independence in his work, and both men pledged to pursue the investigation even if it leads directly to President Nixon.

"The chips are going to have to fall where they may, no matter who's involved," Saxbe, an Ohio Republican, declared at his confirmation hearing.

Acting Attorney General Robert Bork was scheduled to testify today in an attempt to clarify the agreement under which a "consensus" of eight congressional leaders would be needed to restrict Jaworski's jurisdiction.

Chairman James O. Eastland said he thought Saxbe's nomination could be reported to the Senate by afternoon.

Pogue Forgets Filter Bentsen Says US Can Accept Cuba

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said Wednesday night the United States should improve its relations with communist Cuba.

"We cannot afford to close our eyes and our minds to the existence of any nation simply because we do not fully support its policies," Bentsen said in a speech before the World Affairs Council.

"In view of our new attitude towards the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, consistency demands a similar posture toward our closest neighbor," he said.

"Improving relations with Cuba would be symbolic of a new political maturity in the United States; of a new willingness to respect differences among peoples, and of a new realization that Latin America is seeking to fulfill its own destiny in its own way."

Bentsen said the "sudden reversal of policy in China left the Latin countries out on a limb" because they don't know what to do.

Governor Urging Speed Reductions

DALLAS (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday motorists could save 5 to 6 percent on their gasoline by driving no faster than 55 miles an hour and even more by staying home.

"This is a significant saving, but it is only a partial answer," he said. "Most driving is not done on the open road at high speeds. Seventy per cent of all driving is done around our cities and towns, at low speeds. Therefore, we simply have got to cut out unessential automobile trips."

He said the state will realize a significant savings on its proposals regarding the school systems, including shorter school hours, lower thermostats and no nighttime extra-curricular activities during the 90-day period.

Widow Sells Her Home To Get Dance Lessons

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Mrs. John P. Boyd, a 56-year-old widow, sold her home and used the proceeds of her husband's life insurance policy to pay for 2,438 hours of dancing lessons that cost her $27,000.

"I was lonely," she said. "My husband had passed away. I had no social life, and when I went to this studio they were friendly and loving, and in an intimate atmosphere, they would tell me 'You want to be a great dancer? You are going to be the best...'"

And they would flatter me and play upon my emotional status as a lonely widow to induce me to buy more lessons and I kept getting in deeper."

She paid the dance studio $27,000 for dance lessons and memberships in various dance clubs during one nine-month period. Finally she asked for her money back. The dance studio refused and Mrs. Boyd filed suit.

The suit, filed in 1971, asked $32,000 in damages from the Fred Astaire Dance Studio, R&J Inc., Bal-Fel, Inc., of Dallas, and three individuals, Bal-Fel, which licensed R&J to operate the Fred Astaire studio in Austin, filed a motion saying the suit should be filed in Dallas. But the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday the suit should remain in Austin where Mrs. Boyd lives and took the lessons.

In representing to appellee, a woman 56 years old, that this school teacher could complete nearly 2,500 dancing lessons and thereby become "a great dancer" capable of professional performance in international competition, is conduct manifestly deceptive and fraudulent," the court said in its written opinion.

"It is obvious from the record that the purpose of such fantastic representations was to obtain substantial sums of money from the appellee, a design that yielded more than $27,000 in less than nine months."

The woman borrowed money from a credit union to pay the first part of the cost of the dance lessons. Then she sold her home for $17,000 to pay for the credit union and to invest $10,000 in stock in the dance studio.

Court Rules Farm, Ranchland Valued On Agricultural Produce

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday school districts must tax farm and ranchlands on their value to produce agriculture and not on their market value. The court also indicated leasing land to deer hunters is not an agricultural use.

The court's decision upheld a lower court decision in favor of 10 Hays County landowners who sought to have their school districts value their land on its agricultural worth and not its market value for tax purposes.

The suit was originally filed in 1967.

The court ruled the 10 derived the bulk of their gross income from ranching activities on the land and are entitled to have it taxed on agricultural worth under a constitutional provision.

But the court said it is not satisfied with a lower court conclusion the lease of the land for deer hunting is an agricultural use. Lease revenue had been included as part of their agricultural income by landowners.

"The typical Texas farm or ranch is used for that purpose only a few months out of the year, and this does not ordinarily interfere materially with ranching or farming operations conducted on the land," the court said.

The court said the landowners can still apply for agricultural tax exemptions if the land is used exclusively for agricultural purposes with only incidental uses of it for deer hunting.

In another case, the court ruled Zanes-Ewalt Warehouse, Inc., of Farmers Branch is not entitled to recover $27,501 in state taxes paid under protest on cigarettes lost from its warehouse.

The court also turned down a request by Renner, Inc., of Jefferson County which wanted to avoid an order of District Judge Melvin Combs who has mandated two Renner officials produce testimony and records about alleged waste water discharges from the firm's waste disposal facility near Nederland.

CONCERNING QUALITY

Inflation Nibbling At Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While President Nixon and his increasingly vocal education critics remain poles apart on federal funding for schools, inflation nibbles steadily at the quality of education.

The National Education Association (NEA), largest teacher organization in the country with 1.4 million members, remains adamant in its goal that one-third of the funds for elementary and high school education should come from federal coffers, with no diminution of current state and local spending.

At year's end, however, about 51 per cent of the $55.9 billion in public school costs was paid from local sources, 41 per cent from state sources and 8 per cent from the federal government. Including private schools, colleges and other advanced schooling, a record $96.7 billion in government and private funds will be spent during the current school year on education.

Although this makes education the nation's largest enterprise, the Education Commission of the States (ECS) reports that record inflation in everything from school lunches to paper is forcing retrenchment for educators.

Inflation Blamed
Cutbacks are affecting the quality and quantity of a wide variety of school programs, including school lunches, pupil personnel services, driver education, innovative programs, education for handicapped children, construction plans and plant maintenance, the ECS said after a survey of state education departments.

In New York state, inflation is blamed for a pronounced decrease in the number of new school building projects and a pronounced increase in the number of additions and small alterations, modernization and renovation projects. Maryland is budgeting school construction costs with an inflation factor of 11 per cent a year.

The cost of school lunches has increased as much as 27 per cent over the last school year, causing a decline in both the number of paying participants and in the quality of food served, ECS said.

"No wonder teachers strike," complained Helen Wise, NEA president. "We too are frustrated by inflation and rising costs."

Spending Strategy
For the short term, NEA and its constituents recognize that the goal of increased federal spending to the one-third support level is a pipe-dream. If anything, federal spending for schools has gone backwards in recent years. The NEA says President Nixon actually asked for $900 million less for education during this school year than he did two years ago.

Aside from the budget request, if the administration doesn't want to spend school money that Congress appropriated, it doesn't impoundment is clearly a spending strategy. In the 1972-73 school year, $700 million in education money was withheld simply because the administration

TV Producers Reek Of Incest

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If the names of television producers are as familiar as the stars in the credits it is because the producers are more durable and are forever putting their heads and talents together.

The genesis of situation comedy producers often reeks of incest.

Take the team of Bill Persky and Sam Denoff, currently on the tube with "Lotsa Luck." Their backgrounds touch almost a dozen series in the past decade and an equal number of other producers.

They began as a writing team for New York's WNEW, producing jingles and promotional stuff. They wrote special material for Dick Shawn and Sid Caesar.

Their big break came with Steve Allen who brought them to Hollywood for 14 weeks as writers. Among Allen's other contributions were Andy Williams and Tim Conway with whom Persky-Denoff became involved at a later date.

When Allen was cancelled the boys were hired by Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear who produced "The Andy Williams Show." Yorkin and Lear now produce "All In The Family," "Sanford and Son" and "Maude."

Next Persky-Denoff wrote for "McHale's Navy" and "Joey Bishop" which was a Danny Thomas show.

Cislunar space is a term that designates the area of space between earth and the moon.

didn't want to spend it. NEA estimates the withholding total may reach $2 billion this year, including library support, vocational training funds, aid for areas impacted by heavy concentrations of federal workers, needy children and higher education.

At the college level, financial difficulties have prompted at least two high-level study groups to recommend increasing tuitions for middle-class students attending public institutions. The Committee for Economic Development, comprised of corporate executives and a smattering of academic leaders, and the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education both said that families who can afford college should pay a greater share of college costs so that subsidies can be concentrated more on the poor.

To which the American Association of State Colleges and Universities replied: "Families with incomes of $20,000 or less would be seriously hurt by this proposal, either forced deeply into debt, or forced to require their sons and daughters to do so, in order to obtain a college education."

Dear Abby

Daughter's family's loss Salvation Army's gain

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my husband and I had seven carefully selected Christmas gifts beautifully and individually wrapped, placed in one large box, and shipped to our daughter's home (out of state) to be placed under their tree. They were for our daughter, her husband, their four children, and my son in law's mother who lives with them. We received one thank you note from our daughter saying: "We ALL thank you for the lovely gifts."

Abby, all her children can write, and so can her husband and his mother. Just one short line scribbled at the bottom of her letter ("Thanks for the camera," or "The perfume was nice.") would have sufficed.

We have had it with ingrates who don't even bother to say thank you. This Christmas Eve we shall place ONE long distance phone call to their home and wish them all a merry Christmas. Then my husband and I shall drive downtown and drop $100 in the Salvation Army pot for people who need and appreciate a little remembrance at Christmastime.

TIRED OF INGRATES

DEAR TIRE: Too bad you had to have a bad experience with the greedy to motivate your giving to the needy.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any rule about how long a person is supposed to keep his wedding picture out on display?

My husband and I have been married for two years, and I have a picture of us cutting our wedding cake sitting on the mantle. It's a beautiful colored photograph in a lovely frame, and I enjoy looking at it.

A guest in our home noticed it the other day, and said in a rather ridiculing tone: "Don't tell me you still have your wedding picture out!"

I felt a little hurt and somewhat embarrassed. Please tell me honestly if you think it's in bad taste.

STILL A BRIDE IN NASHVILLE

DEAR STILL: The only "bad taste" I see in this situation is on the part of your guest who made the comment. Keep the picture out as long as you enjoy looking at it. And may it sit there for another 50 years.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me before I go completely out of my mind. I work for this doctor. He's a good one and I love my work, but I never have any time to myself.

The doctor and his wife are friendly with my husband and me, but they are too friendly. We live in a small town, and his car is parked in front of my house at lunch hour and my days off, too, and I just don't like the way it looks.

If the doctor isn't here, he has me tied up on the phone for long periods talking about this or that at the clinic or hospital.

I have my own work to do at home, and I'm always behind with it. My husband and I have other friends, but we can't plan anything without this doctor and his wife, as they pop in without even calling.

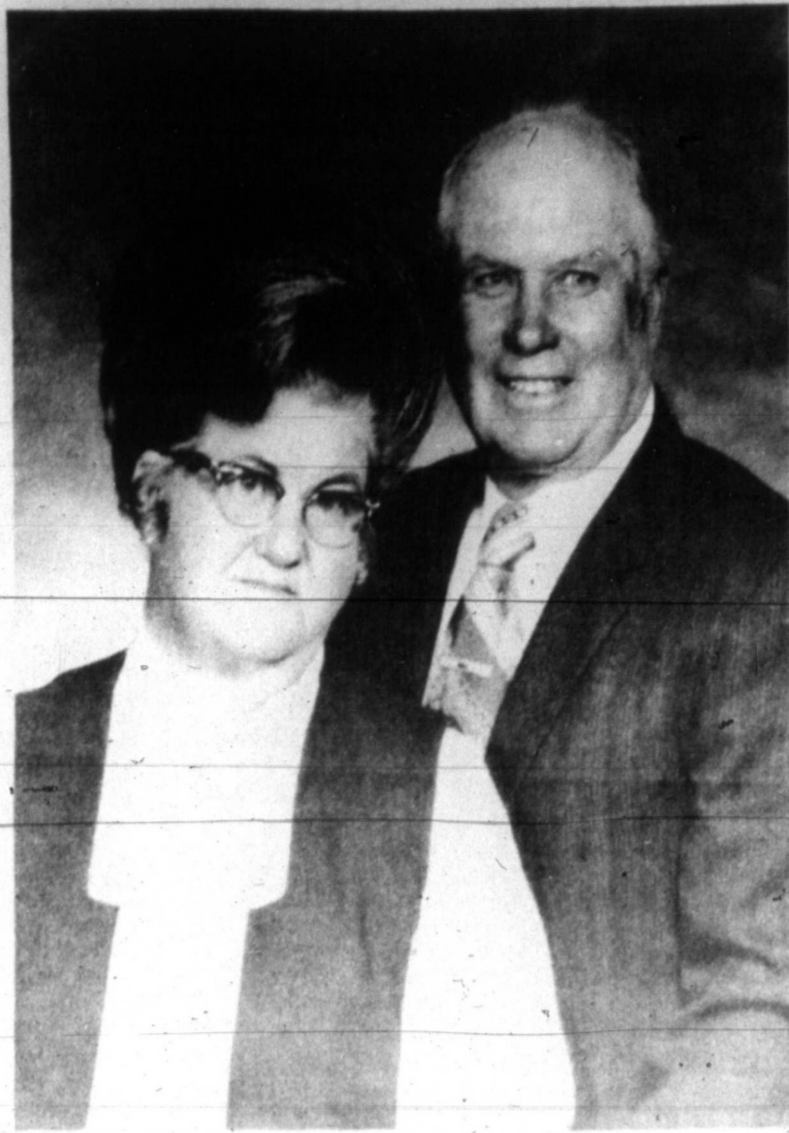

I'm afraid to relax in anything but my uniform at home because he even comes in without knocking. What can I do? My husband says he is just being friendly. I like friends, too, but I'd also like to forget about sick people, pregnant women, etc., when I have some time off. I've even considered quitting, but I do like my job.

TIRED OF PRETENDING

DEAR TIRE: If you do not tell the doctor that you can no longer be available after working hours because you have other responsibilities, you may have to quit your job. Your pretended 24-hour-availability has put you in a bind.

Golden Anniversary

A 50th Wedding Anniversary Reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. D.T. Pfeil will be held Sunday, Dec. 16 from 2 until 5 p.m. in their home, 210 W. 2nd Street, Lefors. Daughters of the couple will host the event. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

Orange Fruit Cake Breaks Tradition

AUSTIN — Orange Fruit Cake is one that breaks all the traditions, says Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

It doesn't have to be baked weeks ahead of time or wrapped in rum-soaked cloth. It does have to be iced.

The result is a delicious fruit and nut cake stuffed with dates, candied cherries, and pecans and moistened with buttermilk.

"It's as much in the holiday spirit as great-grandmother's most treasured recipe," Commissioner White said.

The cake, tested by Texas Department of Agriculture home economists, is topped with a tangy orange juice frosting.

ORANGE FRUIT CAKE
½ pound margarine or butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2½ cups enriched white flour
1 tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
½ cup buttermilk
½ pound chopped dates
½ pound chopped candied cherries
1 cup chopped pecans
2 Tablespoons grated orange rind
Cream margarine or butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift flour, soda and salt and add alternately with the buttermilk. Coat fruit with ¼ cup flour and add to mixture with pecans and grated orange rind. Grease and flour tube pan.

ICING
1½ cups powdered sugar
¾ cup orange juice
¾ Tablespoon grated orange rind
Mix and pour very slowly over hot cake.

"Gadzoos!" swore Sir Dinadan, the worst player at King Arthur's court. "It was all I could do to remember that South has another club left. Beating after each addition. Sift flour, soda and salt and add alternately with the buttermilk. Coat fruit with ¼ cup flour and add to mixture with pecans and grated orange rind. Grease and flour tube pan."

The play had started badly for Sir Lancelot. The wily Mordred had led a spade and dummy's ten had lost to the queen. A club return had lost to the queen of that suit. Another spade had been won by Dinadan's ace and a club by Mordred's ace. He led his last club to Lancelot's king.

Lancelot, the best knight and bridge player, had lost four tricks and needed the rest. He could get them legitimately if the queen of hearts would drop doubleton but that wasn't likely. The peerless one had also noted a possible swindle at the very start of play and had prepared for it by playing the four, five and six of clubs from dummy and keeping that tiny three spot.

Lancelot cashed dummy's ace and king of hearts and king of spades. Then he played out the diamonds to stop in dummy. Now he led dummy's three of clubs. Dinadan was down to a high heart and a high spade. The three of clubs was led from dummy. Dinadan was sure that Lancelot would win the trick so he chucked his good spade and let dummy's six of spades win the last trick.

GREAT FOR CHRISTMAS GIVING...

The First American Xmas Tree

Christmas traditions date back thousands of years... to the Druids and ancient Rome and beyond, but the first Christmas tree in America was brought into being comparatively recently... in 1847.

The place was Wooster, Ohio. A young German immigrant, August Imgard, a youth of 21, is said to have introduced the Christmas tree to America.

As Christmas drew near that year, it proved to young Imgard a season of somewhat dismal anticipation. He missed the fund of entertainment and observance which marked the Day in his homeland. So he decided to have one like those in Bavaria.

Two other reasons, very personal ones, were his nephew and niece. He wanted to bring added joy to their Christmas, and make it one they would never forget.

Young Imgard went into the woods and chopped down a spruce tree. From the village tinsmith he obtained a twinkly tin star. The family made paper decorations, and thus the Christmas tree, as most of us know it, came into being.

The townsfolk gathered round to admire it. Before long, the word had been spread far and wide, about the beautiful tree in Wooster, Ohio. It became an American custom.

America honors August Imgard. His tomb stands on Madison Hill in Wooster. This year, as in previous years, a lighted Christmas tree will probably stand at its door, a tribute to the man who first brought to America the symbol of joy and peace and love that should be Christmas for us all, all over the world.

☆ A churchman, John Pierpont, composed the gay Christmas song, "Jingle Bells," which has been popular for over a century.

Merry Christmas And A Happy New Pet

If you are planning to give your children a pet for Christmas, the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) has a few suggestions which can make the gift a joy for the entire family.

Decide what size pet you can accommodate in your house or apartment, allowing enough room for the animal to sleep, eat, play and exercise. Be sure to select a pet that will fit into your family's style of living.

Exotic animals such as monkeys, skunks, jungle cats and certain reptiles rarely make good pets. They are usually expensive and difficult to care for.

Pets cost money. Be prepared for the day-to-day expenses of food, health care and other essentials. "Free" pets from animal shelters also involve some expense. Any animal you bring into your home should be thoroughly examined by a veterinarian and vaccinated against infectious diseases. Your pet may also require a license. Regular visits to the veterinarian will help keep your pet happy and healthy.

It is a good idea to have your pet spayed or neutered as soon as your veterinarian says the animal is ready. Spaying will free you from the burden of trying to find homes for kittens and puppies—an increasingly difficult problem. You probably will find that the operation also makes your pet healthier and a better companion. Neutered animals are less likely to roam or "spot" furniture and carpets.

Careful selection, proper planning and responsible care can make pet ownership a wonderful experience for the whole family.

Holiday Decorations Hints Told To Pampa Garden Club

To preserve a cut Christmas tree, soak it overnight in a solution of two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of clorox, added to one gallon of water, reported Mrs. H.H. Boynton to members of the Pampa Garden Club at their recent meeting. The tree trunk should be re-cut before putting it into the preservative solution.

Mrs. Boynton, horticulture chairman of the Club, stated that now is the time to plant some annual seeds, as the poppy, candytuft, delphinium, bluebonnet, sweet pea, and forget-me-not. The seed can be scattered on the ground and covered lightly with a leaf mulch. Bulbs can still be planted but depths are important. If tulips are planted between seven and eight inches deep, they will have larger blooms after the first year because bulbets will be less likely to develop.

Mrs. Boynton urged that everyone read one gardening book and plant one seed new to them this new year. As one example she mentioned planting seeds taken from a fresh grapefruit or lemon for a green foliage plant.

The mixture for soaking pine cones in chemicals to add color in winter fireplaces is bordeaux for a green glow, potassium permanganate for purple, and calcium chloride for an orange glow. These chemicals can be obtained from the pharmacy.

"In listing 'do not's,'" Mrs. Boynton warned not to overmulch plants with rosettes of leaves, as pansies, violets, and strawberries for they will rot; do not clean under evergreens as this natural mulch is good for the soil; and do not throw away Christmas trees as they can be used for mulching.

She suggested wrapping the barks of young trees with paper or gunny sacks to protect them from winds and sun scalding. After receiving potted plants, keep them out of drafts and sponge away dust with soapy water so the plant can breathe.

In displaying Christmas decoration ideas, Mrs. Wallace Birkes included balustrades with candles, greens, and ribbon and butler's pulls made of plywood, covered with felt or velvet, and decorated with ornaments in a series of three's or garlanded with ribbon and fresh greens.

To add a fresh pine scent to a room without using the live or cut tree, she suggested the use of evergreen cuttings placed in a brass container with gold-sprayed cones arranged as flowers and garlanded with ribbon.

To incorporate the religious significance in Christmas decorating, Mrs. Birkes suggested the use of the advent wreath which can be made by wiring greens to a wire or styrofoam ring.

Patriotic in view of the current energy crisis, is the votive candle in paper sack which can be placed out of doors and used instead of electric lights. A traditional custom of our neighboring state of New Mexico, the candle-sack lighting is said to light the Christ child's way at Christmas time. It can be very effective when placed in groupings of a dozen or more. These candle lights can be made by filling a brown lunch sack one-fourth full of sand and turning the top of the sack down twice for added strength. The candle will burn longer if wrapped in tin foil before standing it in the sand base.

Mrs. Ralph Esson showed ways to use old plastic flowers and fruits to make Christmas decorations. They can be combined into a centerpiece and sprayed gold and accented with candles or covered with sequins held by pins. She also displayed the della robia wreath.

Following the meeting, members hung approximately 70 Christmas decorations on doors at the two convalescent homes in Pampa. Mrs. Joe Curtis announced that the junior garden club would have a terrarium workshop.

Hostesses for the meeting included Mrs. W.V. McArthur and Mrs. Booker Mohon. The next meeting will be a Christmas program. Members will bring Christmas gifts for shut-ins.

Mexican 'Fire Plant' Is Our Own Poinsettia

More than a hundred years ago our Ambassador to Mexico Joel Roberts Poinsett took a fancy to a brilliant tropical plant, known as the Mexican Fire Plant.

Returning to his home in South Carolina, he started growing the plant from cuttings he brought from Mexico. Soon the scarlet-leaved plant came to the attention of American botanists, and under the name "poinsettia," it was destined to become symbolic of Christmas.

In tropic climates, poinsettia is grown in varieties of white, pink and yellow, but by far the most popular is the bright red that carries out the color scheme of Christmas.

An old-fashioned Christmas is a favorite of all generations, and each year the season's joy is expressed in familiar holiday symbols.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says the best time to plant lilacs is in the fall, after the leaves have dropped but before the ground freezes.

Turning Coal Into Gas Can Become Fascinating

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Turning coal into a clean-burning gas has become an increasing fascination with people in the energy pinch.

The research effort, going along at a pace in the tens of millions of dollars a year, will surely quicken to a gallop. Proposals both by President Nixon and by Democrats in Congress would spend billions of dollars a year in energy research, with gasification of coal getting a big piece of the action.

The potential is great, but the potential harm is also great. Both factors will cost money—money to perfect the technology so gasification companies don't operate a losing proposition, and money to make sure the environment is not harmed overmuch.

Several Reasons Cited

There are several reasons for coal gasification's having gotten renewed attention. For one, this nation is loaded with coal. For another, ecology problems focused ideas on using coal in a cleaner way than just burning it.

"Without question, coal is the backbone of our nation's fossil fuel inventory," the Federal Power Commission said in a report. The U.S. Geological Survey estimates coal reserves at 1.4 trillion tons with about half that considered "recoverable" at present technology. Another 1.5 trillion tons of coal has been called "probable" in the long run.

Those figures would cover hundreds of years of coal consumption, even if the rate rose as sharply as is predicted.

The problems are many, and some in Congress want the nation not to be stampeded by an "energy crisis" into too fast a dependence on coal mining and processing.

Take Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., for instance. He is all for gasification work, he says, but in a different way, from the direction he says the Nixon administration is taking.

"I am very strong for coal gasification, but in the East, near the big underground coal deposits," Hechler told UPI. "This is the direction they (the administration) ought to go in. Instead, they are pushing for a rapid increase in strip mining."

Hechler said the emphasis on coal minable from the surface is "looking at today and tomorrow, not at the many years ahead."

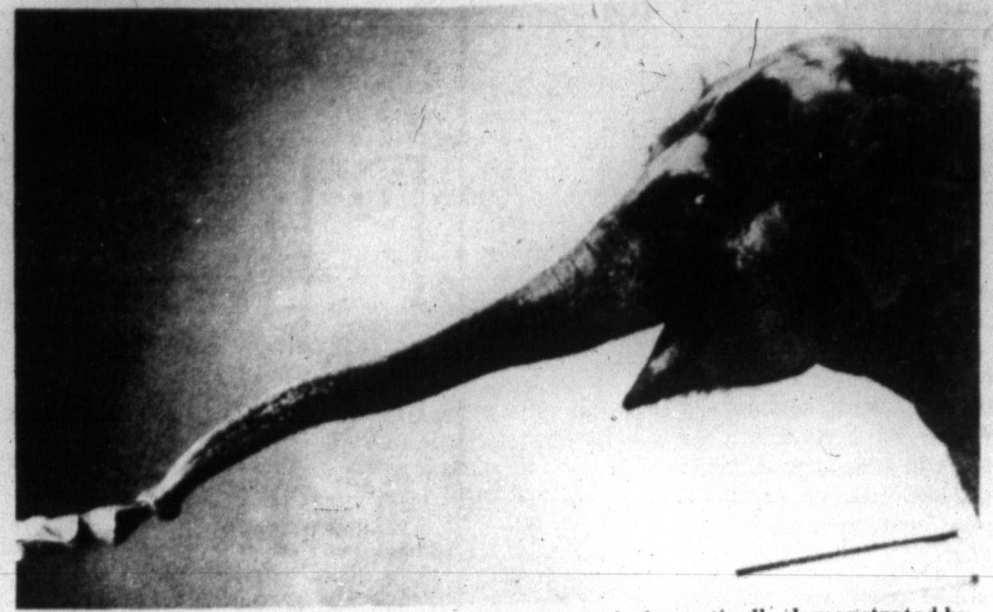

"I think it is wrong to go ahead with a plan without knowing the consequences," Hechler said.

Working it out with the environment is "one of the most difficult and complex problems to deal with," the FPC said. Mainly, there is the problem of restoring the land to something like it was previously.

But water consumption for gasification could be a problem, the FPC said. "In the semi-arid Western states, where approximately 80 per cent of the (potential) plant sites are, this could weigh very heavily on the environmental feasibility of particular plants, in terms of longrange water availability."

Impeachment Proceeding Could Be Good For Nation That Will Never Happen

Pampa, Texas 87th Year PAMPA DAILY NEWS Thursday, Dec. 13, 1973 7

By HOWARD FIELDS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — An impeachment proceeding could be one of the best things to happen to this nation in recent years.

On the surface, that's a strong statement, but it does not address itself to the merits of impeachment—merely to conducting the process to decide if articles of impeachment should be brought.

Much has been made of arguments against a presidential impeachment proceeding on grounds it would be too grave and awesome a step—that it would scar the nation and create nothing but disunity.

Little has been made of the counter-argument.

Three Groups
The nation already appears to be divided into three basic groups:

—One believes all the allegations against the President are put-up jobs, fomented by his enemies.

—Another, with a high distrust of the President, believes politics is inherently a dirty and dishonest business and that those with power and money command a position above the law.

—The third segment believes allegations against Nixon and his administration go to the heart of national survival.

Where are any of these people left if Congress goes no farther than it already has on the impeachment question? The reaction would be, of course, "See, I was right." Nothing would be changed.

There is a strong argument that the proceeding should not go so far as to remove President Nixon from office—that to do so might make it too easy at another, future time.

A Thorough Cleansing
But it would appear that if further disunity is to be avoided and the nation saved from irreparable scars that a thorough cleansing is in order.

There have been attempts to explain a way some of the Watergate-related abuses of the public trust by saying that Democrats played tricks on GOP campaigns, that LBJ, too, taped conversations in the White House; that LBJ and FDR used the FBI and other agencies to retaliate against their enemies; that Johnson advised Nixon to take a big tax deduction on his vice presidential papers; that Democrats accepted milk lobby contributions and pushed them to help the industry, and that both parties abused campaign financing laws in the past.

All that has been placed under the cloak of "politics as usual." If such activities do comprise "politics as usual" as the average American apparently suspects, shouldn't something be done to change that?

What better way than to demonstrate that the President is not above the law, that when he is alleged to have abused the public trust that he will have to answer for it before the American people represented by members of the House and Senate?

Treat The Symptom
What better way than to demonstrate to future office holders that abuses of the public trust will not be tolerated and that they will have to answer for abuses?

Such proposals as reforming campaign financing may be commendable but they would treat the symptom, not the illness.

The democratic system is constructed on the base of participation and control by the people. Without a demonstration that what has happened or has been alleged to have occurred in recent years is not "politics as usual," the result could be more voter apathy which can only result in dirty politics and the rich and powerful truly commanding a position above the law.

The bear moves with an awkward shuffling gait because he has no clavicle to keep the shoulder bones steadily apart.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said Wednesday when a 97-year-old visitor asked if he planned to resign.

The President's statement was relayed to reporters by former state senator M. Harvey Taylor of Harrisburg, Pa., who called on Nixon in the oval office to express his strong support for him.

Taylor, a former Pennsylvania state Republican chairman, told newsmen Nixon was "the most abused man in the United States."

"I told him no one is perfect," Taylor recounted. "The only perfect man was Jesus Christ."

Taylor likened the President's plight to that of an adulteress who was stoned by a mob until Christ waved his hand and said "let he who is without sin cast the first stone."

He said he told Nixon "he was the hardest working President we've had in 80 years."

The White House said Taylor comes to Washington about this time every year and is invited to meet with Nixon.

Taylor said he carried the word to Nixon that a group of Harrisburg women had told him to tell the President "that they did not want him to resign," and said when he raised the question, the President said "That will never happen."

Block Kennedy's Plan To Fund Congressmen

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON — It is most significant the way in which one decidedly important matter was carefully side-stepped throughout the six-day Senate battle that blocked the liberals' scheme to tap the federal Treasury for tens of millions of dollars to finance presidential campaigns.

Numerous matters, important and otherwise, were discussed during the long rhetorical melee, but remarkably not one word was said about this one.

It is the revealing light the affair shed on Sen. Edward Kennedy's political thinking.

On the basis of the dominating role he played in this politics-loaded legislative tug-of-war, it is fair to say that the Massachusetts Democrat is definitely a 1976 White House aspirant.

Kennedy intimates deny that a firm decision has been made. They do admit he may well be a candidate, but sonorously maintain his "options are still open."

That could be — but they are wide open to run.

That's a legitimate conclusion to be drawn from the key part Kennedy exercised on this politics-saturated Treasury-raiding legislation.

Not only did he mastermind the week-long Senate fight, but the measure largely originated with him. It was his strategy that the bill include a jury rule for House members — a $90,000 campaign handout for Congressmen.

That was craftily mightily tempting, but also fraught with dire peril to incumbents — as promptly spotted by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., acting chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and, as such, would have had to handle Kennedy's scheme during its consideration by the full House.

Ullman emphatically wanted none of the $90,000 provision, on the sound ground that "it would be ruinous for everyone who votes for it. Every constituent with a tax peeve would go out of his way to murder the incumbent who voted for this."

Ullman was willing to go along with public funding of presidential campaigning, and that's the way the liberals loudly-touted "election reform" wound up.

Front For Ted

Revealingly illustrative of Sen. Kennedy's adroitness was his wily strategy in carefully staying out of the limelight while vigorously pulling the wires and calling the turns backstage.

Further, this finessing was so skillful that he not only had Democrats fronting for him, but a top Republican — Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, Pa.

It was an intriguing spectacle to see Scott storming the barricades for the Kennedy-engineered "election reform" — that admittedly would cost taxpayers from $50 million to $100 million for campaign expenses.

The two Democratic spearheads, Senate leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Walter Mondale, Minn., are long-time Kennedy zealots. In addition, Mondale envisions himself as a "logical" running-mate on a Kennedy ticket — among a number of other eager-beaver hopefuls.

To cite a few — Sens. Birch Bayh, Ind., Lloyd Bentsen, Tex., Frank Church, Idaho, Gale McGee, Wyo., Gaylord Nelson, Wis., Adlai Stevenson, Ill., John Tunney, Calif.

After being soundly trounced by Sen. James Allen's (D-Ala.) filibuster, the frustrated liberals did a lot of talking about reviving the scuttled legislation in the 1974 session. Undoubtedly they will try — if for no other reason that it's an election year and "election reform" presumably makes a good campaign issue.

But how far a bill will actually get is highly conjectural.

There are a lot of parliamentary and political pitfalls in the way, and "there's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip." It remains to be seen what kind of a measure, if any, surfaces next spring.

Also overlooked in this significant battle was the unexplained absence of two of the Senate's highly vocal reformers and presidential aspirants — one a Republican, Charles Percy, Ill.; the other a Democrat, George McGovern, S.D., his party's 1972 standard-bearer and still burning with White House yearnings.

Neither was on hand for the crucial votes to impose cloture. Why is not known.

Both talk a lot about the need for "election reform," but they were missing when the showdown came to make good their pious professions. When their votes were urgently needed, they weren't around.

Curiously, McGovern also was missing when the Senate voted for daylight saving to help deal with the energy crisis.

No politico spouts more often and gloriously than the South Dakota radical about the energy problem and what's wrong with the administration's handling of it. When it comes to berating and criticizing, no one outdoes McGovern.

But on an important Senate ballot to do something concrete about the matter, McGovern was notable by his absence.

"All this recession talk is getting to Albert."

INSIDE LABOR

Labor Rebellions May Spread New U.S. Class War In 1974

By VICTOR RIESEL
NEW YORK — "River Rat" will not be long remembered. But what he started will. He is a meat-hauler J.W. Edwards, owner-truck driver operating out of Fernwood, Miss., and Overland Park, Kan., and he was the first in command when the one-man rig operators began jackknifing their vans into the traffic heart of America.

River Rat, the name he uses for communications over his citizen band radio network, touched off an angry militant revolt against the energy fuel crunch which has flared like swamp fever through the labor movement. It's the conversation piece everywhere.

Within a few days after River Rat's first blockade, a Transport Workers Union (TWU - AFL - CIO) 75-car caravan driven by striking Trans World Airlines flight attendants, crippled traffic on La Guardia and Kennedy airports' access roads. The cars were abandoned in heavy traffic.

Immediately the TWU, led by Guinan, usually a self-effacing man as his four daughters, all nuns, will attest, dispatched signals for a move westward towards Chicago and Pacific Coast airports. They decided to take on almost the entire commercial carrier industry — which is organized into the Airline Industrial Relations Conference (AIRCON) headed by Conrad Cooper, formerly a U.S. Steel vice president.

The battle, which began against TWA, has turned into a war on the airline industry's strike insurance (Mutual Aid Pact) agreement. And more. This campaign reflects a rank-and-file militancy which will whirlwind right through 1974. The aggressiveness will be the catalyst for what may well be called an American version of the "class war."

There's a rank-and-file belligerence also an uneasiness. Most of it is propelled by the uncertainty over the lack of fuel. The owner-driver truck operators rebelled over the high cost and scarcity of diesel oil. Just wait until some 7,000 building and construction contracts, covering a million workers, expire next year.

Already there is a lack of propane gas used for the "curing" of cement in construction work — especially in New England and the Midwest. There will be layoffs. Hedging against furloughs and firings will be attempted by union chiefs through some new wage and fringe income security clauses.

There can be no doubt of the aggressive spirit of '74. United Mine Workers president Arnold Miller has already announced that the coal-diggers will demand a six-hour day — and at increased pay. And that he is ready to defy the law, even go to prison. I suppose, when hit by federal court injunctions, and keep his bituminous men out for six months if necessary.

And he plans to present the convention-mandated demands to the coal companies as early as Jan. 2 — not even waiting for the New Year's hangovers to settle. The soft-coal contracts expire next Nov. 12 but the wildcat strikes already are flaring on any excuse. Note the Illinois coal fields which were struck in mid-November.

For the moment it all seems peaceful in the metal, copper and basic steel industries. Labor-management conferences have been under way. But the rank and file haven't yet been heard from.

The first basic steel talks begin in Washington on Jan. 9. But the "sound-off" sessions start in Washington's Hotel Shoreham Jan. 30.

In many coal belt regions miners live cheek by jowl with steelworkers. Militancy is contagious. It may not be all that peaceful "in steel." And those rebellious rig owners who haul steel, as well as other building materials, always are in close contact with construction workers. It's significant to note that most of these men (and women, of course) belong to small local unions which pay little heed to their more moderate national chiefs. So the going will be rough if diesel and propane fuel continue in short supply.

It's expected to chair-react. The nation soon will discover there is a powerful labor movement, even if it is noticed only when melodramatics such as blockades and inconvenient airline strikes hit the headlines.

The new year is virtually upon us with its huge contract renewals — including the Communications Workers of America which will be negotiating for some 500,000 telephone company employees. Three years ago, New York locals were out for some seven months.

And there are negotiations in virtually the entire airline field. Also "aerospace" and some railroads.

EPA: Example Of Political Power

It usually takes something outlandish, which pinches practically everyone, before the public is awakened to the deeds of political government.

We are hearing a lot of moans, groans and violent protests these days about the Environmental Protection Agency's proposed regulations for cleaning up the air. We hear such comments as "They can't do that to us" or "It's unconstitutional" or "the best yet." "Where did these guys come from?"

It is a bit late now to start crying. Certainly the extreme measures of the EPA will not be put into practice. The protests will cause the agency to pull back a bit. That's the psychology of it all. Rather like the man who announces he will cut off your head, and you find yourself relieved because he merely cuts off your leg.

We suspect the parking tax proposed by the EPA will go down the tubes, and everyone will relax at the realization that these are good guys after all.

What we fear the tax payers will have missed is that the EPA exists and has the power to do the things it suggests. It is not a body of officials elected by the tax payers of the nation. It is another example of the way political power in this country has shifted almost totally to the administrative branch.

When Congress passed the Clean Air Act, it created this agency and empowered it to establish rules, regulations and prohibitions in the name of clean air.

It is a perfect example of how the politicians operate to "help" the people.

We don't want to suggest that we are opposed to a clean, healthful environment, but destroying the economy to clean up the air is hardly a sensible approach to a problem.

A great many people began to express concern over the environment many years ago. Some of them started examining ways to improve it. Others started clamoring for political action.

The political activists made the most noise and the

Shop At Home

Each new day brings more evidence that we Americans have been caught up in our own folly. We have come to rely on foreign sources of energy and have neglected to develop our own. Now it appears that we shall have to pay for this folly through years of sacrifice and belt tightening, if indeed we ever recover.

The case bears a striking resemblance to our trend of recent years to shop more and more away from home. The more we buy in some other town, the less we buy at home, and the less we buy at home, the less our local stores can afford to stock complete top lines of merchandise. We have been behaving on the local level as we have on the national level. By neglecting our own, we have weakened them.

This Christmas season is an ideal time for us to correct our shopping folly, even as we pay the price for our national mistakes. By trading at home, we strengthen the lifeblood of our community, our stores. At the same time, we conserve fuel that must be conserved, and we help on the national problem.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Nixon-Watching Has Become One Of Top Indoor Sports

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
The great indoor sport of America these days is, of course, Nixon-watching. And that is as it should be, for — like him or not — the man is a master of the political arts. He can add colors to the chameleon, change shapes with Proteus for advantages, and set the murderous Machiavel to school. But any sport, even a good one, can grow tiresome, and if you have become weary of watching Richard Nixon, try for a change watching the Nixon-haters.

This crowd, of course, has been around almost as long as Nixon. Certainly ever since 1948, when young Congressman Nixon played a large and honorable role in the chain of events that sent Alger Hiss to prison. At least once it seemed that the Nixon-haters had triumphed for good — in 1962, when Nixon lost his race for the governorship of California and held his famous "last press conference." Later, in 1968, when he was elected to the presidency at last, and still more in 1972 when he carried 49 states in his triumphant race for reelection, it appeared that Nixon had won the game after all.

But as this year of Watergate draws to a close, it is Nixon who is on the ropes again, and the Nixon-haters have drawn blood. It is tempting to declare that it is only a matter of time that Nixon is truly down and out at last. And so, indeed, it may prove. Surely there must be a limit somewhere to the number of disasters (many, to be sure, of his own making) than can fall on the man without crumpling him. But, amid the general agreement that Nixon is through, I rise to make one small point. They haven't got him yet.

First, you will recall, the Nixon-haters were convinced that Watergate was going to spell his doom. Not only "White House employees" but Nixon's closest friends and advisors — Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman — were implicated in that messy business, and before Judge Sirica and Senator Ervin were through most of them were on their way to prison. But not Nixon. His line bent, but it held; no single aspect of the Watergate operation was traced to him personally.

Then it was learned that Nixon — to his subsequent undying regret, one may be sure — had secretly taped many of his official conversations and phone calls, and the cry went up: Produce the tapes. Nixon resisted so strenuously that he almost seemed to graze impeachment, but at last he yielded, and only the fact that a couple of conversations hadn't been taped after all, and that there was a missing 18-minute hiatus on one that had been saved, the famous tapes from the national amnesia that has washed over Sam Ervin and his wondrous committee.

By "Impeachment," the Nixon-haters will now tell you, they mean only impeachment, not removal. They draw a sharp distinction between the role of the House of Representatives, which must constitutionally "impeach" — i.e., bring charges — against the President, and the Senate, which must then try the charges. Their whole effort is to focus public attention on the desirability of the House impeaching Nixon, and to postpone if possible any consideration of whether he ought in fact to be removed.

Impeachment, the Nixon-haters purr, is merely a way to investigate Nixon's conduct in an orderly fashion — scarcely worse than a bad cold, you might say. And certainly, they murmur, there is plenty to investigate — always using those loose, imprecise but evily-sounding phrases that say so little and imply so much: "The wheat deal," "the milk deal," "the ITT deal," "the San Clemente expenditures," "the Rebozo hundred grand," "the President's tax returns," and so on. Somewhere in that ton of gas, they imply, there must surely be a pound of solid matter.

Well, maybe. But the Nixon-haters will have to find it before — not after — they impeach him.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Assessing Nixon Papers Raises A Few Questions

By VIC GOLD
WASHINGTON — A couple of weeks ago — for the record, before that White House favorite David Brinkley got hot on the trail of tax write-offs for official documents — I called Sen. Hubert Humphrey's office to find out what had done by way of claiming his vice-presidential papers as an income tax deduction. No reply as of this writing. LBJ's Vice President, I've been informed, is still checking the question out with his accountant.

Well, it all figured, you see. If President Johnson could be so free and easy in his advice to Richard Nixon, why wouldn't he have been at least helpful to his own Vice President? So we will await word from Hubert Humphrey's office and pass it on, one way or another, when it comes.

In the meantime, however, back at the 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue enclave, certain questions raised by President Nixon's $570,000 tax deduction for his vice-presidential papers persist. For example, the President's own revelation that idea for the write-off came from his predecessor in the White House in late 1968.

Frankly, it was somewhat disillusioning to learn that such ordinary matters as half-million-dollar tax windfalls are taken under discussion when outgoing and incoming Presidents sit down to talk. I had always naively imagined that the sole concern of such interregnum summits was the orderly transition of the public affairs of the people of the United States. At least, that's what they always tell us in the White House handout.

Oh, well. After 15 years in the nation's capital, one more jarring note about the vagaries of the high and mighty isn't enough to ruin a good lunch. But what I do find hard to swallow is the thesis submitted by the President at his recent Orlando news conference that in claiming his half-million-dollar deduct he was actually making something of a

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the least understood and appreciated social activities is talking to yourself.

As an article in the magazine Psychology Today points out, there is an "extreme imbalance in the supply and demand for conversation."

The problem is that too many people need to talk and not enough want to listen.

Therefore, a certain therapeutic value is derived from talking to yourself. Self-talk "helps reduce emotional tensions by providing an outlet for hostility," the article says.

Unfortunately, however, self-talk is associated in the public mind with what the article tactfully describes as "odd behavior." This tends to discourage people from bending their own ears.

It's Practiced Sporadically
Although we believe talking alone is practiced sporadically by almost everybody in our culture, it is practiced systematically by almost no one, the article says.

True enough, but I believe self-talk is inhibited by more than the strange looks you get from persons who chance to overhear your soliloquy.

The harsh fact is that in a big majority of instances what we have to say to ourselves is pretty boring.

Oh, I suppose there are a few ego-elocquent types who can regale themselves for hours on end by articulating their thoughts and feelings for their own gratification.

But most of us simply aren't much interested in what we have to tell ourselves and can't hold our own attention for more than a minute or two. No Hamlets, we.

Instead of a "to be or not to be" type of rumination, your musings are more likely to take the form of telling yourself about your operation.

Doesn't Take Much
It doesn't take much of that for you to drive yourself up the wall.

Another deterrent to self-talk is the annoying habit many of us have of muttering to ourselves. We may have clarification, enunciation in colloquy with others, but when we address ourselves we tend to speak under our breath.

I am a particularly bad offender on that score. Half the time I mumble so indistinctly I can't understand what I am trying to tell myself.

This happens most frequently at concerts or movies. Is it there muttering to myself about the quality of the performance but I catch so little of what I am saying I don't know whether I liked it or not.

I also mutter a lot when I am reading, which is distracting and causes me to lose my place.

That sort of thing really gets under one's skin and is the reason why most of us turn to someone else for conversation.

At times I become so irritated with myself I won't speak to myself for a week.

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Probably the two greatest influences on the life of the late Ben Webster were Coleman Hawkins and Duke Ellington.

Ben, who died in Copenhagen last Sept. 20 at the age of 64, was a fine jazz musician, a man in love with his tenor saxophone.

Webster more often than not found himself in the shadow of Hawkins, generally recognized as the greatest tenor sax player of all time. He followed the Hawk and Lester Young in Fletcher Henderson's great band of the 1930s and he had to play great music under those circumstances.

The Hawk remained No. 1 until his death but Webster was always considered the No. 2 man. And in later years, when Hawkins' health declined, there were some musicians who regarded Webster as the best of the living jazz saxophonists.

Retired to Europe
He played briefly with Ellington in the mid-1930s and rejoined Duke's orchestra just before the outbreak of World War II and remained in this formidable aggregation for four years. Ellington became one of his truest friends and admirers.

Webster spent his later years in Europe and molded some excellent combos there. They were excellent because the Europeans, especially those in the northern countries, embraced jazz at a time when it was losing popularity stateside.

Ben was beginning to age when he recorded "At Work in Europe" (Prestige P-24031) but only those who followed his career from the very beginning would be able to detect any deceleration of tone or technique in these selections.

All of the sides in this two-record album were recorded in 1969 but none of them has been released in the United States.

Ellington dominates the sessions as composer with "I Got It Bad," "Drop Me Off at Harlem," "Prelude to a Kiss," "Rockin' in Rhythm" and "In a Sentimental Mood."

Mann's Cerebral Music
Webster uses one of his own compositions, "One for the Guv'nor," and two from latter-day jazz composers, "The Preacher" by Horace Silver and "Work Song" by Nat Adderley.

Herbie Mann never ceases to delight his listeners with exquisite flights on his flute. Mann has contributed many albums to the jazz library and his latest, "Turtle Bay" (Atlantic SD 1642), belongs up-front. Mann's music is cerebral so all the listener has to do is sit back and dream. Tunes include "Family Affair," "Rainy Night in Georgia," "Never Ending Song of Love," "Reverend Lee," and "Balalaika Love Song."

Cannonball Adderley must rank as one of the giants of postwar jazz and because he was a man of stature he attracted many star musicians into his fold, among them Sergio Mendes, Wes Montgomery, Lou Rawls, Yusef Lateef, Nancy Wilson and Eddie Vinson. All of them may be heard on "Cannonball Adderley and His Friends" (Capitol SVBB-11233).

a reissue of sides recorded on Capitol and Riverside labels. Some of these recordings are hard to find in the record stores so this album should become a collector's item for jazz buffs.

Easter Seal Society Can Give Service

The Texas Easter Seal Society, according to Mrs. Betty Casey, Gray County seal representative, can provide the following services for handicapped persons who cannot afford to pay all or part of the costs involved and who are not eligible for help from any other source, public or private:

1. Assistance in paying for physical, occupational, and speech therapy when it is prescribed by a medical doctor.

2. Pay for special diagnostic evaluation (such as orthopedic, audiological language and psychological).

3. Purchase orthopedic equipment such as wheelchairs, walkers, crutches, braces, etc., when prescribed by a medical doctor.

4. Help to defray transportation costs for treatment or evaluation when the family is unable to meet these costs. This is determined by paying 30 cents per gallon — based on 10 miles per gallon, figured on a round trip basis or by purchasing round trip bus tickets.

5. Assist families and individuals to reach the right person or agency to obtain help from the Easter Seal Society of Texas cannot provide. People are often eligible for services from public or private agencies but do not know the person, eligibility requirements, or place to obtain the services needed. PERHAPS WE DO.

A limit of $150 per client per year for therapy and $150 for transportation has been set except in unusual cases requiring special attention. This limit can be exceeded only with the permission of the Treatment and Service Committee of the State Board.

All services must be authorized before being rendered by the Treatment and Service Department of the Texas Easter Seal Society.

Should you have any specific questions, please write us at the address shown on this letterhead or call the Treatment and Service Department AC 214-526-3811.

In case of emergencies after hours or weekends, call AC 214-526-3811.

Mrs. Casey said the following services cannot be provided by the Texas Easter Seal Society:

1. Tuition, room or board to special schools or sheltered work programs.

2. Surgery, drugs, medication or hospitalization.

3. Non-orthopedic or non-bearing items (such as glasses, contact lens, dentures, cosmetic devices, etc.).

4. School material (such as books, paper, pencils, etc.).

5. Clothing or food.

AUTUMN SPLENDOR is caught by a camera focussed on the tranquil Harpeth River near Nashville, Tenn. Un-usual effect was captured on infrared film using a fish-eye lens.

Ask Dick Kleiner Carradine lives!

DEAR DICK: I wish you would clear something up for me. My sister says David Carradine, star of Kung Fu, is dead and I say he isn't. Please rule this out. —ANGELINA, New Orleans.

I've gotten several letters lately from New Orleans asking this question. No, David Carradine isn't dead. Apparently, the rumor hit New Orleans with the force of a Kung Fu chop to the neck. I don't know where it started but it's completely false.

DEAR DICK: In the program All in the Family, we hear the song, "Those Were the Days." Can you tell me the words of the next to the last line? It's the line that comes after "Everybody pulled his weight." We cannot figure out the words. —M.H. John, Marinette, Wis.

That line goes, "Gee, our old LaSalle ran great." You probably have trouble with that because you're too young to remember that a LaSalle was one of the great cars of the early automotive days.

DEAR DICK: What has happened to The Lennon Sisters? What are they doing these days? —HELEN P. HEIDELBERG, Robertsdale, Ala.

The girls are still active although not as much as they used to be. They recently appeared on NBC Follies. But they're more concerned with family life and child-rearing than show business these days so they are very selective about their show appearances.

DEAR DICK: To settle an argument, please tell me Glen Campbell's height and weight. —RAY MURRAY, Harrah, Okla.

The official figures are 6 feet tall and 170 pounds in weight. Last time I saw him he looked a bit heavier than that but those are the statistics he gives out.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me whether "Gone With the Wind" has ever been on television. —MRS. RONALD DUDA, Killeen, Tex.

No, it never has been and it probably never will be. MGM dusts it off and brings it out every seven or eight years and it cleans up at the theater box offices. No point in killing that golden goose with a TV egg.

DEAR DICK: We have heard a rumor that Marlon Brando is dead. Is it true? —KATHY YOUNG, San Jose, Calif.

No, that's another of those rumors that sweeps the country once in a while over some invisible ghost-to-ghost network. Brando is terrifically alive.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if Robert Blake, the star of "Electra Glide in Blue," was the child actor Bobby Blake who played Little Beaver in the Red Ryder movie. Who played the part of Red Ryder? —S.N. PAL, Alexandria, La.

Yes, little Bobby Blake grew up to become that fine actor Robert Blake. He was in the Red Ryder films and Ryder was played by the great western star, Wild Bill Elliott.

For A Happier Holiday Serve Homebaked Bread

By BOBBYE COMBS

As family and friends gather to celebrate the holidays, make them gay and happier events by featuring meals complete with homemade breads.

The Jack Mitchell family will break bread together as families the world over have done at Yuletide. The only difference, the bread will be made by Jack.

Jack's cooking career started at the age of 13 or 14, when his older sisters left home to work, and a younger sister was only about four or five years old. There were seven boys in the family, so, someone had to double as a sister and Jack was elected.

Being taught by a mother who used the pinch and dash method, has caused some problems, but it has been an experience he really enjoys.

Jack told, "As far as I can tell, it has made me no less a man. We have always tried to share in the responsibilities of the home."

"To answer your question, before it is asked, yes, my wife, Wanda, is a very good cook," he commented.

The Mitchell's reside at 2125 N. Faulkner and have been Pampa residents for the past 18 years. He is employed at Pantex Ordnance Plant at St. Francis as production foreman. Their children are Laura, 18, Frankie, 17, Russell, 15, Molly, 14, Susan, 12, William, 3, and Jason, 2. They have also been foster parents to ten children from High Plains Children's Home.

Jack serves the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ as an elder and adult Bible class teacher, and they believe Pampa is a fine community and a good school system.

Let these holiday meals be your message of love to family and friends. And may the '73 season be the gayest, happiest year, ever!

won't stick to bowl or hands. Knead on floured surface 15 minutes. Additional flour may be added if needed. Place in greased bowl in warm place and let rise until mixture doubles. Punch down, divide into 1 1/2 lb. loaves. Place in greased loaf pans (8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2). Brush heavily with melted oleo and let rise until doubles. Bake at 400 to 425 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes. Turn out of pans and let cool. These may be frozen. They keep very well. (I weigh mine on baby scales to be sure I get 1 1/2 lb. loaves.)

NAVAJO FRY BREAD

4 cups flour
3 Tablespoons baking powder
1 Teaspoon salt
1/2 cup dry powdered milk
1 1/2 Tablespoons shortening
1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cups water
Sift and mix dry ingredients together in a large mixing bowl. Cut in shortening until well mixed with dry ingredients. Make a well in the flour mixture and add water. Mix with hands until dough is about the consistency of biscuit dough. Knead until dough is smooth. Let stand for 5 to 10 minutes. Using forefinger and thumb as cutters, squeeze off small balls of dough about 2 inches in diameter. Continue until all dough is in individual balls. Taking one ball of dough at a time, flatten it between your hands until it is about 6 or 8 inches in diameter by flipping it from hand to hand while patting and stretching. Pinch a hole in the middle and fry in deep fat until golden brown, turn and brown the other side.

NOTE: These are good almost anyway you want to eat them. We sometimes have them for breakfast covered with sugar and cinnamon.

NAVAJO TACO

Using Navajo Fry Bread for a base. Place refried beans or pinto beans, mashed and seasoned, with taco sauce or chili peppers on fry bread. Add shredded lettuce or cabbage and tomatoes. Top with grated cheddar cheese. Serve with long green chilis if desired.

OATMEAL BREAD

3 1/2 cups warm water
1 Teaspoon salt
3 cups rolled oats
1 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup melted oleo
1 pkg. dry yeast
6-6 1/2 cups flour

Mix water, salt, oats, sugar, yeast and oleo. Add flour and mix by hand. Knead well. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down and shape into 2 loaves. Place in greased pans 9 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 2 3/4. Let rise until doubled. Bake until dark brown in 375 degrees oven about 40 to 45 minutes.

BAR-B-Q BAKED BEANS

1 to 1 1/2 lbs. ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion or 1 T. onion salt
1/2 teaspoon salt (omit, if onion salt is used)
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 large can pork and beans or leftover pinto beans
1/2 to 1 cup ketchup
1 Tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
1 Teaspoon smoke seasoning
1/4 cup prepared mustard
Brown and drain ground beef and onion. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Bake in 350 degrees oven for 30 minutes.

PEA SALAD

1/2 lb. grated American cheese
2 small or 1 large jar chopped pimientos
1 large onion, chopped fine
1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
Mix these ingredients well. Add salt and pepper to taste. Add 1 large can English peas, well drained. Mix well. Chill and serve.

JACK'S CHOW-CHOW

4 quarts ground green tomatoes
2 quarts ground cabbage
1 quart ground onion
1 quart ground sweet peppers
5 cups sugar
4 cups vinegar
1 Teaspoon celery seed
1 Teaspoon mustard seed
2 Tablespoons salt
2 Teaspoons turmeric
Bring to boil and boil for a minimum of 5 minutes. Seal in jars.

DILL PICKLES

Place medium stalk of dill, 1 clove garlic and 1 small hot pepper in quart jar. Place pickles in jar. Add 1 Teaspoon salt and 1 Teaspoon sugar, dissolved in small amount of water. Add 1/2 cup vinegar. Fill jar to top with water. Seal. Place in warm water and bring to boil. Boil 15 minutes or until the pickles are transparent. Let cool and store for 2 months before eating.

Carol Singing Still A Popular Christmas Custom

Caroling is the custom in many countries throughout the world. And, there are about as many different customs connected with it as there are countries.

Bagpipe music accompanies the carolers in (no, not Scotland) Italy!

In England the carolers receive gifts for their efforts. "Gifts" of refreshments are often the case in America.

"Star-singers" is the name for groups of carolers in many nations. The term is taken from the pole they carry, which has a lighted star on top.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Cigarette smell lingers on and on

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My problem is removing stale odors left in the house from cigarette smoking. Even the draperies smell of it. I certainly would appreciate some help with ideas for its removal. —D.K.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns telephone operators and I am one. Why do people call information for a number and never have a pencil at hand to write it down? The operator waits while they get someone else to hand them one or else they call back two or three times for the same number. People like that slow down the answering time for other people. Some people do not seem to know what a directory is for and I think charging for such information would wake them up. —JOYCE.

Girls: Charging for information calls is being considered in some areas. —POLLY.
DEAR POLLY — This is to help Sandy sew on thin materials and synthetics. Lower the pressure dial, decrease the needle-thread tension and be sure to buy the correct type thread. Put a strip of tissue paper under the material being stitched, sew through it along with the material and then tear away. Test after making each adjustment using a scrap of the same fabric as you will be sewing with. —MARIAN.

DEAR POLLY — Sandy can keep the seams on synthetic fabrics from gathering and drawing if she will use a longer stitch. Test on a scrap of the same fabric until the desired length is found. When sewing on thin materials be sure the machine needle has a very sharp point. A blunt one will snag the material. To prevent the material from crawling put a piece of tissue paper over the fabric, stitch over the paper and when finished rip it off. —VIRGINIA.

(POLLY'S NOTE) — I think this should have read to put the tissue paper under the fabric. I do not see how one sewing could see the seam if the tissue was on top.

DEAR POLLY — I want to share a thrifty food idea. We are all so conscious of soaring food prices. A blue (for easy identification) plastic bag is kept in my refrigerator to hold small bags containing such things as onions, celery, carrots, tomatoes, beans, etc. These are all chopped or ground, ready to use, and are bits and pieces leftover but too small for second meals and too good to throw away. Scraps of meat such as roast beef, chicken and so on are also in little bags. In my freezer is another bag containing small bags of broth — mostly from marrow bones given me by my butcher when I buy meat. This is frozen in two cup portions. We like soup for lunch and in 10 minutes I can pick and choose for a tasty soup or broth with no charge and no time involved. I freeze these oddments as they accumulate and prefer separating them to combine what I would like at the time. The French have a better word for this but to us it is "Ten Minute Soup." I am 75 and it took me a long time to come up with this. —CLARA.

Psychoanalyzing Archie: 'It's good for the bad to come out'

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Psychiatrist Dr. Karl Menninger is an All in the Family fan. His reasons are interesting.

"I try not to miss All in the Family," he says. "Perhaps Archie represents what we all think, to some extent. I know there is a little of Archie in me although I try to fight it."

"Not long ago, I caught myself saying something about 'white people' when I meant 'good people.' I was horrified at myself and did penance."

All in the Family and the news are about all Menninger does watch. He's too busy with his other endeavors — reading, writing and attending to his various medical and psychiatric clinics. His latest book, "Whatever Became Of Sin?" deals with various types of sin but neglects the entertainment world. I asked him to fill in that gap.

wants to see so much pornography in movies," Menninger says. "I was in Amsterdam last summer — a laissez faire city — yet the Dutch don't go running off to see the newest sexy movie."

Menninger believes that TV has done the right thing in focusing so heavily on Watergate. He draws a parallel between that and psychiatry — "in both, it's good for the bad things to come out."

"You journalists," he says, "have done a great service in writing about Watergate and TV does a great service in covering it."

Maybe things are breaking in the movie business. Mel Shavelson thinks he sees some signs that such is the case.

The writer-director says four companies bid for his latest, "Mixed Company," which is strictly a family picture. It's about a basketball coach (Joseph Bologna) and his wife (Barbara Harris) who adopt an integrated family of kids.

"The problem with family pictures recently has been," he says, "that the movie industry has left that field to Disney, by default. And Disney doesn't make family films. It makes children's films."

His hope — and the hope of others — is that "Mixed Company" will be successful enough to spawn more in the same genre. He thinks it will happen because, "the way our world is today, the public wants escapist entertainment."

The film, incidentally, has a subplot involving a black basketball player. The role was offered first to Wilt Chamberlain. Wilt's attorney called to say that "Mr. Chamberlain does not even read a script unless he is given a piece of the film." Needless to say, they didn't use Wilt.

"Mixed Company" will probably have a PG-rating. It has some nudity and a sprinkling of four-letter words. That's the kind of family picture we have today.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

NEW FAMILY FILMS: Joseph Bologna (left) and writer-director Mel Shavelson feel new movie "Mixed Company" may bring back truly family films — even though it has nudity and four-letter words.

New Bills Would Have Congress Think Money

By GEORGE J. MARDER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some years ago, whenever the House was considering a spending proposal, a congressman from Pennsylvania would regularly demand, "Where's the money coming from?"

His colleagues never had an answer for Rep. Robert Richards. That wasn't the way business was done in Congress.

Congress may have to change its ways and answer that question if it completes a budget reform plan voted by the House last week. A similar measure is being considered in the Senate.

The heart of the reform proposal requires Congress to place itself on record definitely, unequivocally, and by specific vote if it approves more government spending than taxes will support. It must then decide, on the record, whether the money is to be raised by increasing taxes or by more borrowing — or whether to reduce the spending.

The Whole Budget
Under the House passed bill, Congress twice a year would have to take a look at the whole budget pie to decide the relationship between money to be spent and taxes to be paid. That has never been done by Congress before. It was once tried but abandoned.

At present, Congress operates under what could be labeled the no-budget policy—like a family where each member is allowed to spend for this and that, without considering the grand total or how much money is in the family till.

With spending having not even a distant cousin relationship to income, it would be no surprise to have that family go constantly in debt.

Traditionally, Congress handled the government's purse the same way. It approved separately spending for each government department, or group of departments, without considering what the grand total would be.

List Overall Figures
The house bill would change that by providing for a legislative budget for the first time in history. It would work this way:

By Jan. 15 of each year, the President would send his budget to Congress.

By May 1, Congress would adopt its version of the budget—a tentative one. It would list overall spending figures, with subtotals for each function of government, and show how much was expected from taxes—whether there was to be a deficit or a surplus and what the national debt would be.

The congressional appropriation committees would then go to work on the subtotals. By Aug. 1, Congress would complete action on all the separate appropriation bills. Those below the tentative budget ceilings would be sent to the President. Those above would be held back for more work.

By Sept. 15, Congress would be under deadline to approve its second version of the budget, confirming the original or revising it.

If Congress decided that excess spending was needed for the good of the country, it would have to say then and there where the money should come from. If not, it would order the appropriations cut.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

... it tells you how

CLEAN METHANE POWER

We certainly don't have an all-encompassing answer to the energy crisis... but it is satisfying here at THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS to know that we're doing our bit to develop one idea which could eventually supply this nation with at least 7% of its annual natural gas requirements.

What we've done is build a special kind of waste disposal unit called a methane generator. This is an airtight tank into which sewage is pumped. There, anaerobic bacteria—micro-organisms which can live and thrive without access to free oxygen—digest the waste and convert it into [1] a nitrogen-rich composted fertilizer and [2] methane gas. The fertilizer, of course, can then be used to improve the yield of crops... and the methane burned in any manner in which gasoline or natural gas is consumed.

Our prototype digester was loaded with a mixture of cow manure and water in mid-July and now—nearly five months later—is still producing a steady flow of "homemade fuel". We've used the vapor to run a gas stove, power a gas refrigerator, fire a space heater, light both natural gas and propane lamps and fuel a gas water heater. We've even run a 1948 Chevrolet six-cylinder engine on the methane from our generator.

We're quite excited about the possibilities we see for our "new" (actually it's as old as nature) method of garbage disposal. Especially since the fuel it creates burns with only a small fraction of the pollution that the combustion of gasoline leaves in the atmosphere.

With a salvaged 55-gallon drum, an old truck or tractor inner tube and $5.00 worth of pipe fittings, you can build a methane digester that will produce gas enough to cook one meal a day. For instructions, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 160, A DRUM METHANE GENERATOR.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH A Dull Diet For Diverticulitis?

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have diverticulitis and have been told not to eat fresh fruits and vegetables; also that cornbread and wheat germ were not permitted. I would like your comment on wheat germ and cornbread, and also on lettuce and tomato salad which has always been a main part of my meals.

I had an operation for hemorrhoids six months ago and for elimination I have to take bulk medication twice daily and eat spinach every day.

—Mrs. S.L.A.

There are two points here that I think should be made clear. First, who told you that you couldn't eat — your doctor or someone else? Second, it may be important to make the distinction between diverticulitis and diverticulosis, which could have a bearing on what you eat.

Diverticulosis merely means the presence of small pouches in the intestinal wall. These very often cause no trouble at all. (See my booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You.") Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy.)

Diverticulitis (note the last four letters) means that the pouches have become irritated and inflamed.

There was a time, some years ago, when it was taken for granted that a bland, low-residue diet was the correct thing for either condition. Experience has shown that this was not the right answer. A normal amount of bulk (see my booklet) is preferable with diverticulosis, as well as being necessary for good elimination.

Foods with seeds, as well as a few other hard, irritating items, still should be avoided, but for most patients, fruits and vegetables, which of course supply bulk, are perfectly alright.

Hence I see no reason to avoid cornbread, wheat germ, lettuce or tomatoes.

There is, however, this one exception: in an acute, spell of diverticulitis, you may have to resort to a low-residue diet temporarily until the inflammation has subsided. But that is not the same as saying you must follow the same diet after the acute phase has passed.

As to your spinach every day — it provides bulk, but I don't see why you need it every day.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Ever since we've been married (11 years) I have always left the butter out even in warm weather so it would be spreadable for sandwiches, toast, etc. As far as we know, we have never had an illness from this.

My mother-in-law feels this is dangerous due to the chance of the butter going rancid. Do you feel it is necessary to keep butter refrigerated?

—Mrs. B.J.K.

Leave butter out long enough and it will become rancid, but that is a matter of flavor, not health. Evidently you use the butter fast enough so it does not turn rancid. Lots of people leave the butter out for the same reason you do, with no danger.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 72 and have several things wrong, such as heart trouble, diabetes

Under Twenty

By TOM WILLIAMS
James Pursell is not new to the forest. As a boy he lived near and loved the woods.

"Conservation," he says, "was always something I was interested in. I knew we couldn't keep cutting down trees and not plant and care for new ones so I went into the field of forestry. I'm still new at it. I graduated two years ago, but to me it's satisfying work."

Jim is technically called a forestry aid and will, someday, become a forestry technician. He assists foresters in managing and caring for forest lands. He scales logs, marks trees, collects and records data on tree heights, diameters and mortality.

He also aids in preventing and controlling forest fires and instructs people using the forest. Should fire strike, he helps take inventory of the burned areas and plants new trees and shrubs. To Jim it is a rewarding job and one which keeps him outdoors which he likes.

Because of the emphasis on our national resources, opportunities for forest aids are expected to increase very rapidly through the 1970's. Prospects will be especially good for those having additional training, after high school, in forestry jobs will be available in private industry as well as with the federal government.

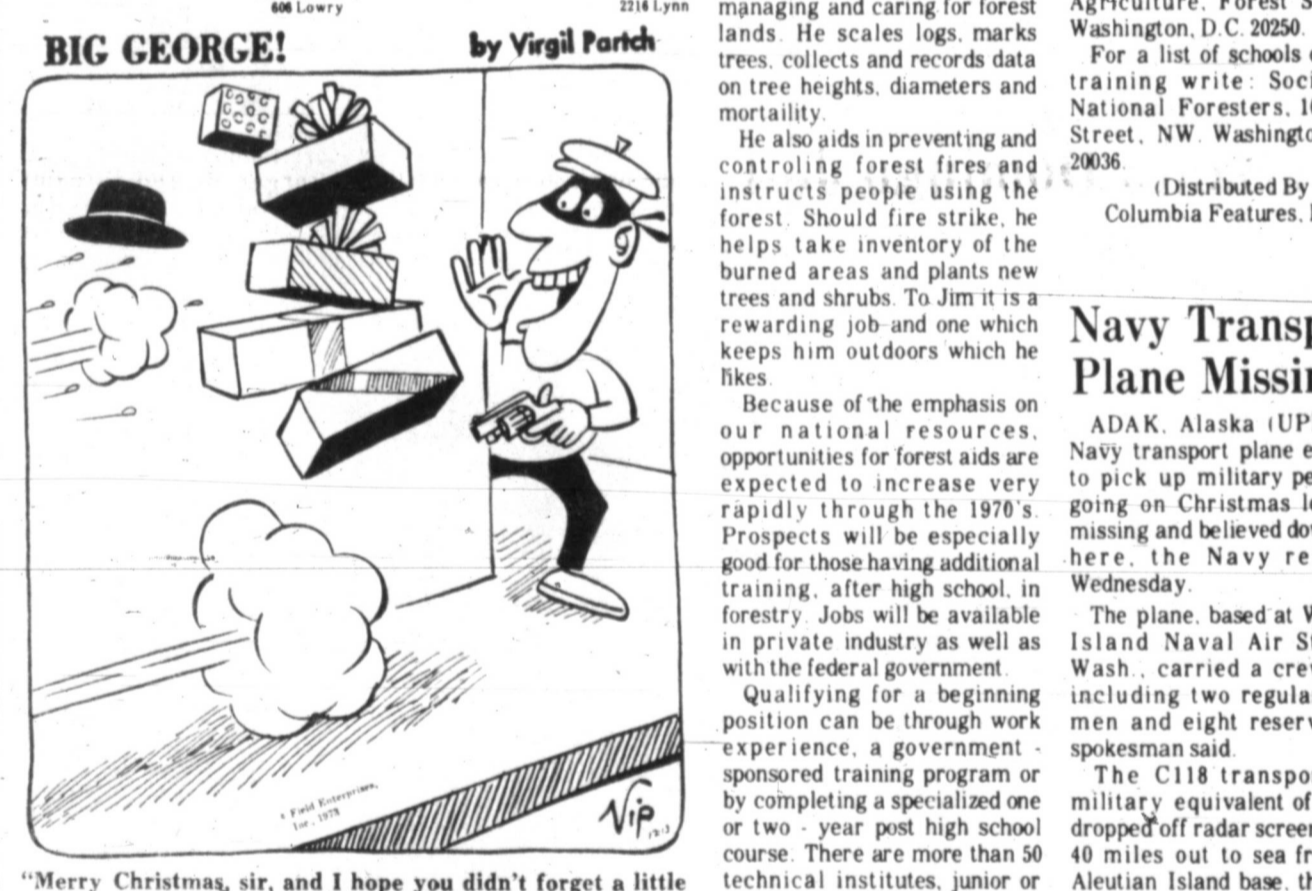

Qualifying for a beginning position can be through work experience, a government-sponsored training program or by completing a specialized one or two-year post high school course. There are more than 50 technical institutes, junior or community colleges and ranger schools offering curriculums for training forestry aids.

Earnings range from about $4,500 to almost $10,000 a year. The more training and experience, the higher the salary level. It is a rugged, outdoor kind of life. Time is spent outdoors in all weather conditions. In emergencies, such as fire-fighting and flood control, forestry aids work hard, long hours.

Information about a career in the federal government as a forestry aid is available from: U.S. Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, Washington, D.C. 20250.

For a list of schools offering training write: Society of National Foresters, 1010 18th Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20036.

Mara--Father Of NY 'Family'

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the late Vince Lombardi once was asked what one compelling force he considered principally responsible for his Green Bay Packers rise to the world championship, he used the word "love" and talked about how his ball club really was more like a "family."

Almost immediately other people in the NFL jumped on the "family" idea, which didn't actually originate with Lombardi to begin with, and before you know it everybody and his brother in the league began referring to his own team the same way.

It turns out, however, one family isn't necessarily the same as another. There are families, and there are families, even in football.

The New York Giants are a good example.

The Giants have been operated by the Mara family since 1925, the year they were founded, and that in itself wouldn't be so unusual except for the fact the club generally has been run family style.

Wellington Mara, the Giants' owner, probably identifies with his players more closely perhaps than any other owner in all sports.

What other owners takes such a deep personal interest in his players after they leave the club, makes snapshots of plays during a ball game and sends them over to his coaches, acts as his own general manager to all intents and purposes and works out so often with the team?

He Used to Shag Fly Balls
When Gussie Busch first took over the St. Louis baseball Cardinals, he used to grab a glove, trot out to the outfield and shag fly balls.

"You can do what you like, of course, Mr. Busch, it's your team," one of his front office men told the Cardinals' boss one day after one of his workouts, "but you lose something doing it some dignity. It just doesn't look right."

Gussie Busch quit working out.

Wellington Mara's impromptu workouts in themselves are not all that harmful, but thinking of his team in the subjective terms he does possibly could be.

Wellington Mara is a fan at heart.

All owners are to an extent, but there comes a time when they should quit letting their hearts rule their heads.

By his own admission, Wellington Mara says it nearly destroyed him to have to fire his best friend, Allie Sherman, his previous coach.

Alex Webster, his present one, saved him the pain of having to fire him.

He resigned Wednesday, effective after the Giants' final game this Sunday with Minnesota.

"I feel like Well is a father," said Webster, who originally joined the Giants in 1955, played fullback for them and tried everything he could possibly think of but still couldn't make them produce anything better than a 2-10-1 log this year.

Part of the Old Guard
In truth, Mara is an integral part of the "old guard" ownership in the NFL. George Halas of the Chicago Bears and Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers are pretty much of the same line of thinking when it comes to running a football team, except that Rooney did a complete about face four years ago.

Weary of losing year after year for more than 30 years, Rooney went out and hired young, individualistic Chuck Noll and told him:

"Look, it's your ball club. Take it and build it up. You won't have any interference from me."

Wellington Mara, on the other hand, continued his accustomed paternalism, naming "super nice guy" Alex Webster as his coach and staying with long-time organizational front office personnel he inherited rather than going out and trying to get such other more assertive, take-charge types as Don Shula, George Allen, Don Klosterman or Jim Finks.

In all fairness, the Giants did try to get Vince Lombardi as their head coach once after he had served as one of their assistants. They failed, and it really wasn't their fault.

That's the big trouble with the Giants. Nobody ever blames anybody although for the past 10 years now, they haven't been going anywhere.

A couple of weeks ago, someone asked Alex Webster the reason for that.

"If I really told you, I wouldn't be here very long," he said.

Alex Webster wouldn't tell if it killed him.

He's a member of the "family."

Pampa, Hirschi Vie In MW Invitational

WICHITA FALLS — Wichita Falls Hirschi, a two-time loser to Pampa this season, will see if "third time's the charm" as the Huskies and the Harvesters square off in the first round of the Midwestern Invitational Basketball Tournament at 3:30 p.m. today at Midwestern University Coliseum.

Hirschi lost to Pampa, 85-42 Tuesday in Pampa, and suffered 90-62 loss to Robert McPherson's troops last week in Wichita Falls.

Pampa, the victim of Berger last year in the tourney's finals, is a favorite this year in the three-day event, which ends Saturday night. Besides Pampa, Hirschi and Berger, this year's field includes Wichita Falls and Wichita Falls, Rider, Midland, Lawton, Okla., and Dallas Grady Spruce.

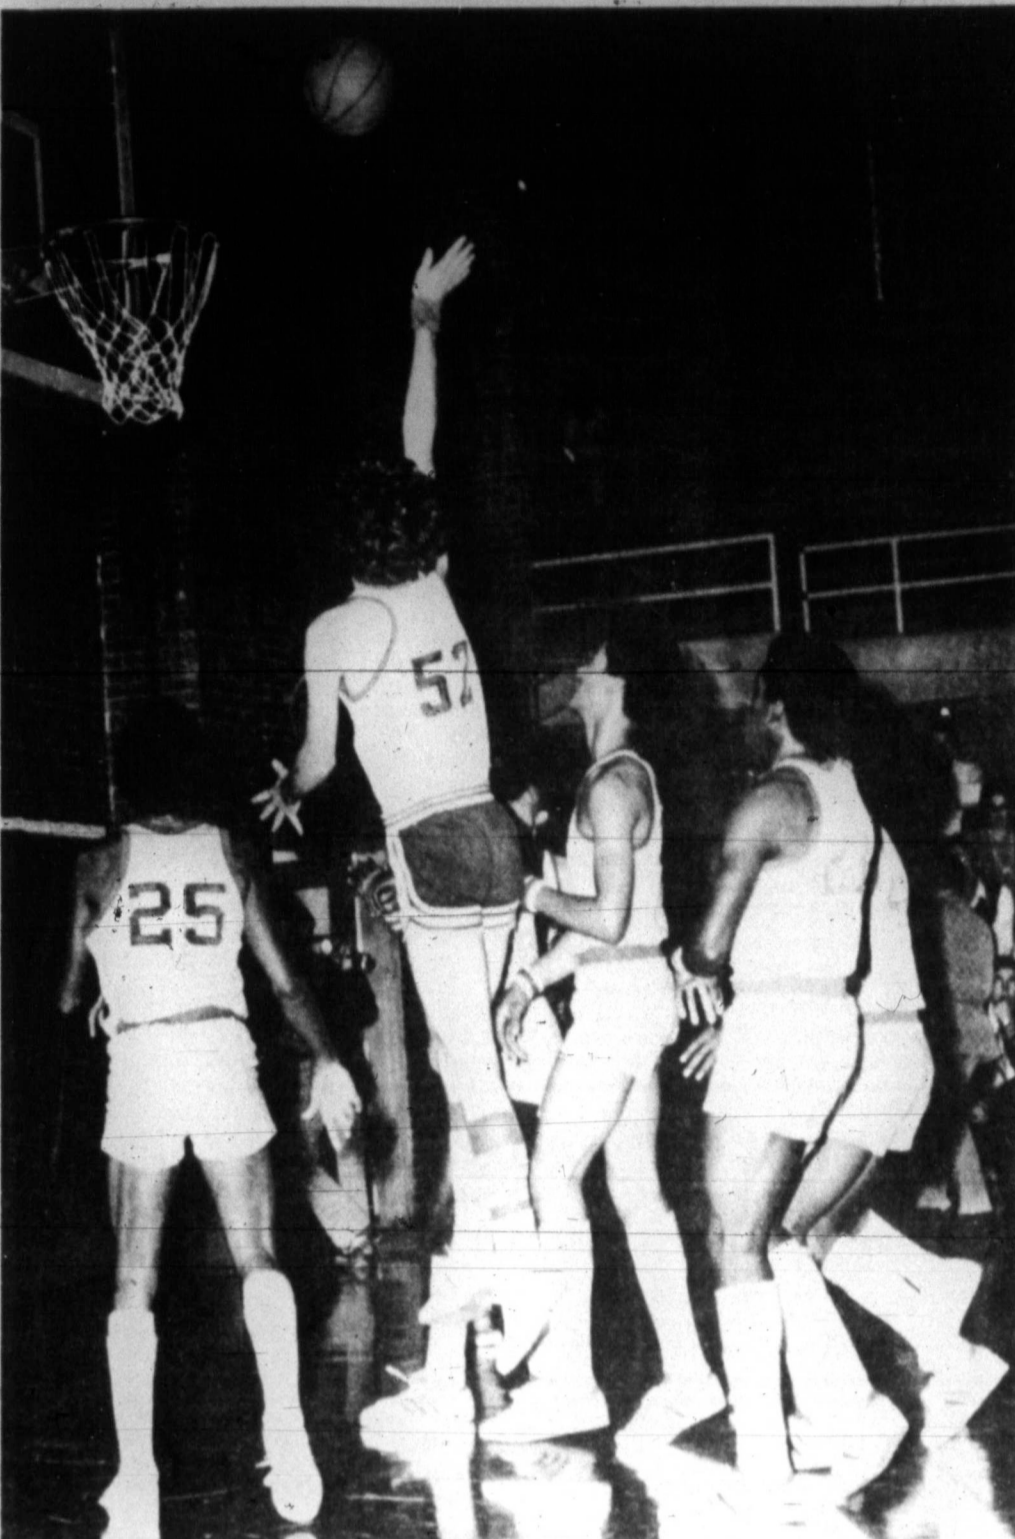

In the lower bracket are Petrolia, Olney, Nocona, Deer Creek (Okla.), Midway, Notre Dame (Wichita Falls), El Paso

Bowie and Childress.

Should Pampa win, it will meet the winner of Lawton-Wichita Falls at 6:30 p.m. Friday, and the winner of the semi-final contest will play at 9:30 p.m. Saturday against either Rider, Grady Spruce, Berger or Midland. The loser of the first-round game (either Pampa or Hirschi) will play in the consolation bracket at 6 p.m. Friday.

Mike Bridges' Huskies are led by post Claude Jenkins, 6-3, and guard Robert Rhoades, 5-10, who scored 12 and 17 points, respectively, against Pampa Tuesday. Other starters are guard John McDaniel, 5-9; forward David White, 6-0, and forward Lonnie Gipson, 6-2.

Pampa, 8-2, is led by 6-3 Billy Wilbon, averaging 19 points per game. Other starters will probably be 6-6 post Randy Warner, 6-5 forward Howie Lewis, 6-2 guard Rick Biesley and 5-10 guard Ray Powell.

STARTING POST for the Pampa Harvesters and a big reason Pampa is favored to win the Midwestern Invitational Basketball Tournament in Wichita Falls is 6-6 Randy Warner (52). Warner shoots over five Huskies in Tuesday's 85-42 win over Wichita Falls Hirschi. Pampa takes on Hirschi at 3:30 p.m. today in the first round of the Wichita Falls tourney. (Photo by Terry Hanna)

Sunday Could Be Last Day For Joe Willie As Jet QB

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath could be in a new uniform next year. Or he could be in no uniform at all.

Namath, who has been riddled with injuries for the last three years, will probably start at quarterback for the New York Jets Sunday against the Buffalo Bills at Shea Stadium.

But Wednesday he indicated that might be it for him.

"I don't know if I'll be back," he said, choosing his words carefully. "It could very well be. It's all according to how I feel and right now I can't say whether I'll be back or not next year. Right now my immediate goal is doing a good job this week. I'm not looking past this week. I don't have to make that decision right now."

Namath has just completed the final year of a two-year contract estimated at $250,000 a year.

Twisting his hands and fingers nervously, Namath also discussed what was once unthinkable—a trade.

"There's also the possibility that someone might not want me to play here. If I do get traded, it would have to be to a contender or a warm weather team. At this stage of my career, I'm not about to go somewhere where they're rebuilding...but I'd rather play here than anywhere else. I've been here nine years."

There could be another choice next year, however, and Namath getting it off the ground. It's the newly proposed World Football League and Namath's attorney, Jim Walsh, has been talking with officials of the new league for more than two months.

"I haven't talked to anybody and I don't know anything Namath said. "It's none of my business. My lawyer is talking with them. I have a job right now. The big thing is that I want to play for a winner. I don't want to go to a new team just to play."

Winning is something that has come hard for Namath since he led the Jets to their much-heralded Super Bowl victory over the Baltimore Colts in January, 1969. Since then he has been unable to defeat a winning team. He missed a good portion of the 1970 season with a broken wrist and most of 1971 when he injured his knee in a pre-season game. In September, he suffered a separated shoulder in the second regular season game and didn't return until Nov. 18.

He played two full games but missed Sunday's game against Philadelphia because of pain in his knee.

FOR SHOOTING Astro Spends 2nd Night In Santo Domingo Jail

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno, the star centerfielder of the Houston Astros, spent a second night in jail last night, charged with "voluntary homicide" in the motel shooting of a 19-year-old girl.

Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel continued Cedeno's preliminary hearing today after interrogating Cedeno and the first of four other witnesses called Wednesday. The hearing is closed.

Cedeno, 22, was charged with the pistol slaying of Altagracia de la Cruz, 19. The police report termed the killing accidental. Police said the girl took the .38 caliber pistol in her hands to examine it and it discharged when Cedeno tried to take it from her. The weapon was legally registered by Cedeno.

Dominican legal sources saw two possibilities for Cedeno:

That Magistrate Diaz will remand him to a criminal court for trial on the "voluntary" count, which is roughly equivalent to second degree murder in the United States, or that Diaz will reduce the charge to "involuntary manslaughter" and turn the case over to a "correctional court," a lesser tribunal than the criminal one.

There may be no opportunity for bail if Cedeno is tried for "voluntary manslaughter." If he is tried for involuntary, he may be freed on bond pending trial. The voluntary count carries a three-to-10 year sentence. The maximum sentence for "involuntary manslaughter" is three years, and the judge may even absolve the convicted defendant.

Spec Richardson, the Astros general manager who flew in from Houston, visited Cedeno yesterday in La Fe jail. He said:

"I came to cheer him up and give him confidence and to find out for myself what state the boy is in."

Richardson said Cedeno was "very concerned about what happened and a little frightened," but not emotionally disturbed.

Cedeno's Houston wife, Cora, 21, who was in the couple's winter home here at the time of the motel shooting accompanied Richardson and head Astro scout Pat Guillick on the jail visit.

Honor Inspires Muhammed Ali

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammed Ali says an award presented to him Wednesday by the British Broadcasting Company makes him feel obligated to whip Joe Frazier and George Foreman.

Ali received BBC's International Sports Award from former heavyweight champion James Braddock in a ceremony televised overseas. The award is given annually to the Sports Personality of the Year.

"This award gives me more incentive and drive to prove that I'm greater in the ring than Frazier or Foreman," Ali said.

"Now I feel obligated to whip Joe Frazier and George Foreman to prove worthy of this award."

The winner of the award is determined by write-in votes and a final decision by BBC officials.

Friars Hoping To Get Back On Right Trail

By United Press International
It would be fair to say the Boston Celtics have the Buffalo Braves' number and the number is now 20.

The Braves, who joined the National Basketball Association in 1969, met the Celtics for the 20th time in their history Wednesday night and all they came away with was their 20th defeat despite a 42-point effort by Bob McAdoo of Buffalo.

Reserve Steve Kuberski came off the bench and scored 10 of his 12 points in the final quarter to spoil Buffalo rookie Ernie DiGregorio's homecoming. The game was played at Providence, R.I., and marked DiGregorio's first visit as a professional to the scene of his college heroics at Providence College.

"We started getting our fast break going and that opened it up," said Kuberski, who replaced Dave Cowens when the Celtics' starting center picked up his fifth personal foul midway through the third quarter.

Boston led only, 90-89, after the third period but the Celtics, with Kuberski, Don Nelson and Paul Silas keying the attack and controlling the boards, outscored Buffalo, 28-6, in the first seven minutes of the final quarter to put the game out of reach.

PHS Hosting JV Tournament

Pampa's Shockers, sporting a 7-3 record and coming off a 50-47 win over Wichita Falls Hirschi's B-team, will be a favorite in the Pampa Junior Varsity Tournament today and Saturday in the Harvester Fieldhouse.

Teams entered in the tourney are Pampa B- and C-teams, Berger B- and C-teams, Hereford B- and C-teams, Perryton B-team and Canyon B-teams.

In today's first round Berger's B-team will play Canyon B-team at 3:30 p.m. Berger's sophomores will meet Hereford's sophomores at 5 p.m. Pampa's sophom will take on Hereford's B-team at 6:30 p.m. and Pampa's Shockers will play Perryton's B-team at 8 p.m.

The second round will be played Saturday afternoon and the championship game is set for 9 p.m. Saturday. The consolation game will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday and the third-place game will be played at 7:30 p.m.

The Shockers' third-place finishers last year, Berger won it, will start 6-7 post Matta Buntun, 6-1 post Ed Drew, 6-4 forward Nick Slavmaker and two 5-10 guards — Jesse Musgrave and Tony Stafford.

The Pampa C-team, 3-3 on the year, will start 6-2 post Greg Evans, 6-0 post Richard Parker, 6-1 wing Jewel Landers, 5-10 wing Mark Adair and 5-7 guard Roby Mallard.

Shocker and C-team coach Mickey Wilson has not been thoroughly impressed with his teams' play thus far. "I don't think we've shown what we're capable of," he is reproving, but not as fast as I'd like," said the JV coach.

"The C-team has had real good effort, but they don't have enough height."

3 Trojans On Sporting News Team

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Southern California placed three players on the Sporting News All-America Football team for 1973. It was announced Wednesday by the weekly sports publication.

Wide receiver Lynn Swann, guard Booker Brown and offensive tackle Steve Riley represent the Trojans on the squad. Their Rose Bowl opponents, Ohio State, put two players on the elite 24-offensive tackle John Hicks, who was also named Player of the Year, and linebacker Randy Gradisher.

Oklahoma's Barry Switzer was honored as Coach of the Year.

The offensive team was rounded out by the selection of wide receiver Wayne Wheeler of Alabama, tight end J.V. Cain of Colorado, guard Darrel White of Nebraska, center Steve Corbett of Boston College, quarterback Dave Jaynes of Kansas, Heisman Trophy-winner John Cappelletti of Penn State at one running back and Woody Green of Arizona State at the other running back.

Denver: Suffering from acute civic indigestion

Denver, Colorado (pop. 514,679), is the largest city between St. Louis and San Francisco and is situated one mile above sea level in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains. Founded in 1858, it is today one of the country's largest distribution centers and a major tourist area.

By Jack Olsen, Jr.

DENVER — (NEA) — This usually vigorous part of the nation is having a fatiguing bout with indigestion. Look to Washington for the cause. Even the staunchest Republicans here (and they are as common as out-of-state skiers waiting for the first yard of snow) are slouching a bit with that uneasy, queasy feeling. It's like, well, Richard Nixon has done a good job and all, and we Republicans always stick together, but, really, this Watergate business is getting out of hand. Next the President will want to appoint a "new, improved" Watergate prosecutor.

Jack Olsen is a reporter for the Denver Rocky Mountain News. Bebe Rebozo, perhaps, or television's Colombo.

Would someone please turn off the bubble machine? For a long time the visceral feeling here was that Watergate brought little more than a semi-amusing glimpse of the internal workings of politics. Like Pavlov installing a window in the stomach of his dog. When the bell is rung, the juices start flowing. Politicians respond to the stimuli of an election not unlike ants to a traumatized ant hill. Reflexively concocting dirty tricks. Juggling money. Watergate had shown us that almost all was fair in love and elections. So why get that upset? Even Agnew's momentous exit was almost taken in stride out here.

"He was a crook."
"No, he was a victim."
Reactions varied. But most agreed he was merely the vice president. It wasn't going to be difficult locating someone else capable of running to Southeast Asia for gaudy displays of solidarity or running interference through left-wing America. Thank goodness we weren't losing Charles Percy or John Tunney or someone important like that. And, thank goodness most of all, the President remained above reproach.

Long about mid-October, however, that feeling changed. Came the hunk of mozzarella that kept us awake all night for weeks and still has Denverites tossing and turning. Nixon saw fit to clash to the death with three men who were as above reproach as he, and perhaps a bit more above.

Why could not such stalwart symbols of integrity as Cox, Richardson and Ruckelshaus on the one hand and Nixon on the other exist in close proximity, stay in the same government? Was it that one or the other had something to hide? There was widespread feeling that the President had stepped across some undescribed, but always sensed, line. He had turned back honest men seeking justice. It wasn't going to make revolutionaries out of us, mind you. But it sure was unsettling. Pass the Pepto-Bismol. (NEXT: Wilmington, Del.)

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Black Tie Just Doesn't Fit In

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — I could have died.

When only I went black-tied. I got myself into one of those corners. I figured it was so dressy. I had to overhaul the dinner jacket or get it patched up. I got there and Paul Newman was in a turtleneck that was once white, and probably also wearing Long Johns.

And this is at the Blue Angel, formerly the Casino Russe on E. 54th St., and they are trying to bring back night life in New York with a spectacular French show called "Zou" which means "Crazy" — and everybody loves it as of this moment.

"Didn't nobody tell you nothin' about this not bein' no black-tie affair?" a millionaire playwright friend asked me. I mentioned that I had spoken with Paula Pretiss (pregnant), Mrs. Tony Perkins (pregnant) and numerous other ladies such as Jennifer O'Neill about hastening their work in order for us all to go see "Zou" more often.

The show is loud and big and girlish and also boyish because we heard from a pretty irresponsible source that the Mae West, Marilyn Monroe and Dinah Shore impersonations are done by males. It was hard to tell when the girls were girling and the boys were also girling. It gives New York a touch of old but still fashionable nightclub nonsense.

Elliott Gould was said to have been totin' Dyan Cannon home, and there were people like former Mayor Wagner and Phyllis Cerf, all soppin' up the hospitality of Donald Brooks, of fashion, who gave a big party in honor of the producer Peter Jackson.

The males who did the impersonations of the great sex symbols are a story in themselves. I am not going to swear that anybody is a specific impersonator but you can see it for yourself once you see the beautiful show.

Somebody yelled at an impersonator of Bette Midler that he (or she) "is better than Bette Midler."

John Wayne upon getting an award at the National Football Foundation Awards dinner said the reason he changed his name from Marion Morrison was "the studio wanted to give me Doris Day parts, and I didn't want to make love to Rock Hudson."

Vice President-designate Gerald Ford kidded that he gave all papers but one to Senate investigators — a letter from a football fan who saw him play once at the University of Michigan and asked him, "You were so bad, were you doped or were you trying to throw the game?"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Secret Stuff: A hot new film star is being called "the new Marlon Brando" — not for his acting, but because in his new pic he mumbles... Jackie Gleason's preparing for a January start on his NBC dramatic shows ("and if one of them hits right, a series will spin off"... MGM's "Westworld" has already grossed $10 million — almost ten times its cost.

Show Biz Quiz: Who played the title roles in "The Thin Man" and "Frankenstein"? Ans. to yesterday's Quizmasters on "Information, Please" and "Quiz Kids" were Clifton Fadiman and Joe Kelly, respectively.

Steve Steinlauf, producer of the off-B'way hit "The Moonchildren" will go back to college — he's 19... Danny Thomas got a 50G advance for his album "Tomorrow Belongs to You" (and it went to the St. Jude Hospital Fund)... Porno star Marilyn Chambers formed a production company, with porno star Linda Lovelace's ex-husband, Chuck Traynor... Rocky Graziano says he's made 150 TV commercials in '73, "more than any other actor in the country!"

TV star James Brolin's new company has a hot property — the cougar that does those auto commercials on TV... A curvy young actress who's made a bundle in the past few years is about to be sued by several companies — she has the dough but doesn't like to pay bills.

I'D RATHER BELIGHT TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Mary Blackstock wonders if queens can still have subjects beheaded who annoy them: "And until Capt. Mark Phillips finds out, he won't tell any mother-in-law jokes."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Larry Rhine notes that some banks now guarantee maximum interest for four years — which is more than a marriage license can do.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The world changes so fast that you couldn't be wrong all the time if you tried."

EARL'S PEARLS: This will be remembered as the winter of shortages — gas, energy, tapes.

Geoff Edwards of the "Treasure Hunt" Tver says that when he hands the $25,000 prize check to a winner there's trembling, gasping, tears, hysteria: "And that's just the sponsor's reaction!"

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Note my brother John's comment about the value of "Horse Sense" in our defeat of the British Redcoats in the Revolutionary War. Alas, gumption and resourcefulness seldom are taught to the "drawing board dreamers" in colleges even today!

CASE Y-594: My brother, Dr. John B. Crane, had dinner with us recently.

He formerly taught economics and history at Northwestern, Harvard, Earlham College and Iowa Wesleyan.

"Apropos of your constant stress on 'Horse Sense' in practical psychology," he volunteered, "that was also a main reason why we defeated the British in the Revolutionary War.

"For the Redcoats marched shoulder to shoulder into battle. 'Which made them easier targets for our pioneer riflemen.

"Better yet, those stubborn British Generals refused to O.K. the use of rifles so their first Rifle Corps wasn't created till the year 1800.

"So in 1776, the Redcoats still employed antiquated muskets. 'But the lethal range of such guns was only about one-third the distance of our American long rifles.

"Consequently, our soldiers could keep 50 yards out of range of the British muskets, yet still shoot back and decimate their ranks!

"As the British kept advancing, our men would then retreat till they could reload their long rifles, then stand pat for a few moments and fire back at the Redcoats.

"This strategy helped us offset the far greater numbers of British soldiers.

"George Washington and other American Generals also used additional resourcefulness (as when crossing the ice floes of the Delaware) so their greater 'Horse Sense' really gave us our American Republic."

HORSE SENSE

In all trades and professions, you will notice that some men are chiefly "book doctors" or "book engineers" whereas others are resourceful.

Which means the latter have "Horse Sense."

For education can be of the braintruster sort unless modified by practical experience (gumption).

You housewives thus remember the adage that states: "You must cut the cloth to fit the figure; not the pattern!"

And that's what we mean by wisdom vs. braintruster education.

Many "drawing board dreamers" thus concoct beautiful designs for new automobiles and other merchandise.

But it is the buyers thereof who soon find the "bugs" in those supposedly perfect products.

For example, the usual propaganda of "dreamers in Congress" also caused us an unnecessary fuel crisis earlier this year by scaring people with a horrendous picture of the hazards of auto exhaust fumes.

So an expensive addition was forced on cars, thus making them consume 15 gallons of gasoline to travel as far as 10 gallons formerly permitted.

This meant a 50 percent increase in gasoline consumption, which produced a threatened rationing of gasoline.

Farmers were thus hampered, which always adds to increased food prices at the food markets.

Yet there has been no serious medical ill effect from auto exhaust pipes despite 2 generations of heavy use even of ethyl gasoline!

A little "Horse Sense" would have prevented this "crisis" propaganda of braintruster ecological "dreamers."

So we laymen better demand more gumption from our state and national legislatures before they stampeede into passing such needless bills!

NEW YORK (UPI) — The market's third rally in a row was spurred on by news that the Committee on Interest Dividends had asked several banks to justify their latest hike in the prime rate and some conciliatory statements by the Saudi Arabian oil minister, according to E. F. Hutton.

The advance not only makes the market turn last week look more significant but also suggests that we will get a full technical correction of the steep six weeks 200 point decline," the firm says. Such a correction would carry the market back to the 890 area of the Dow Industrial Average, it adds.

Excellent investment opportunities often exist in "threshold companies, which have passed the $20 million annual revenue level but have not yet crossed into the "Fortune 500," says Vance, Sanders & Co., Inc. of Boston, Mass. The firm cites a recent issue of the Harvard Business Review, which reported of some 3,000 threshold companies monitored over the past three years, 300 made the Fortune list and the other 800 "had greater growth potential and larger downside risk than the 500 largest industrial corporations."

Homeowners Urged To Take More Energy Conserving Measures

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI) — The energy crisis, unlike some headline-making news, is one that hits home. Every home.

It behooves each homeowner to do what he can to save energy—fuel oil, heating gas, electricity. If he doesn't, it won't be a faceless "somebody" that suffers the consequences. It will be his own family.

From the experts come a welter of tips on how to keep warm using less fuel, how to use appliances most efficiently.

The single most effective way in which to save heating fuel without sacrificing comfort is to install a humidifier that puts from 15 to 25 gallons of moisture into the air each day, according to John P. Farrell, marketing manager of the Tappan Air Conditioning Division, Elyria, Ohio.

Evaporation Reduced
Installation of a humidifier, in conjunction with the government recommendation for turning down your thermostat six degrees, could save the homeowner as much as 25 per cent of his fuel bill, while maintaining a lower but acceptable level of comfort. A humidifier, alone, could save 15 per cent of that, Farrell said.

He explained the physiological reactions and laws of physics governing this "Perspiration evaporating from the skin cools the body. The rate of evaporation and, consequently, cooling of the body, is much higher when the humidity is very low. By increasing the humidity in the house, the rate of evaporation is reduced and the body's natural cooling mechanism slowed."

Farrell recommended also the following general practices for conservation of heat and fuel.

—Wear warmer clothing and turn down the thermostat a few extra degrees.

—Turn the thermostat still lower at night, when you go to bed.

—Install storm windows.

—Caulk and weatherstrip all windows and doors against leaks.

Add Insulation

Guy O. Mabry, vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., says adding insulation to a poorly insulated home can lower home heating costs by as much as 30 per cent—for savings of more than $100 a year for the owner of an average size home in an area with moderate winter temperatures.

Mabry explained insulation is measured in terms of "R" value, standing for thermal resistance. The higher the "R" rating, the greater the insulating effect.

Thickness, he noted, is not a good measurement standard because a 3 1/2-inch fiber glass blanket insulates as well as a 9-inch-thick wood wall, a 4 1/2-foot thick brick wall or an 11-foot thick stone wall.

Heat Travels Upward
Attics, he stressed, are the first place to be insulated since heat travels upward and is easily lost without a good "top" to keep it inside the house.

In addition to the attic floor—easy to insulate since it usually is unfinished—a do-it-yourselfer can insulate basement walls, garage walls that adjoin the house, the ceiling of any unfinished space below living space. In paneling a room, insulation can be installed on any outside walls. In addition, insulation can be tucked into baseboard cracks, space around window frames, pipes where they come through wall or floor, baseboard electrical outlets.

Adjust Water Level

Even though the energy required to run home appliances represents only about 5 per cent of all energy used in the country today, homemakers can help reduce this amount with the proper use of appliances and the application of a little thought and some old-fashioned "elbow-grease," say the experts at the Maytag Co., Newton, Iowa.

Maytag notes the water level and temperature controls on clothes washers, used properly, can conserve energy and water.

Adjust water level to the size of the load. Too much water for a small load is wasteful, but too little water for a large load will result in clothes that are not clean.

While it is generally recommended that white clothes be washed in hot water, the homemaker who is willing to "pretreat" soiled areas, will be pleased with the results given by warm water.

For clothes that are slightly soiled, a reduced wash cycle will conserve time and energy.

Wash Full Load

In using a dryer, be sure to remove clothes when they have a little moisture in them. And don't let a load tumble on and on. Be on hand to remove clothes when they are finished. Check venting and lint filters to be sure they are not obstructed.

In using dishwashers, conserve hot water by washing only a full load. Maytag suggests.

For many families this can mean once a day washing.

Dishes that are air dried are just as nice as those power-dried so this is another chance for a savings. When possible, eliminate the dry cycle.

The water heater should be set for 140-150 degrees, the temperature range for most efficient operation. Insulating all hot water pipes helps reduce heat loss, also.
