Borden County hosted a very special Horsemanship Clinic and Camp sponsored by both Borden and Scurry Counties on May 27, 28, and 29th from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. B.F. Yeates, Extension Horse Specialist from A&M University led the clinic with two student instructors, Melinda Harris and Melissa Miller, also from A&M. Mr. Yeates, a Dickens County native, is a well respected equine expert and has a marvelous rapport with students both young and old. Melinda and Melissa and their beautifully trained horses are very capable teachers.

Twenty-four horse enthusiasts came from Borden, Scurry, and Lynn Counties. Eleven of the students 'camped' overnight. Marvin Ensor, C.E.A. from Scurry County, and Susan Stephens, with the help of Lana Smith, chaperoned the campers. The Gail catered provided good meals during the three days. Ezell-Key of Snyder, contributed soft drinks for the participants throughout the scorching heat!

The program as designed to teach the rider basic riding skills, to teach the horse all the basic maneuvers, and to have practice sessions for different events such as showmanship, at halter, western pleasure and horsemanship, western riding, barrel racing and pole bending. It is a thoroughly informative program that offers something to all ages. One of the on-going lessons is how to begin with a very basic maneuver and build on it in order to have a well-rounded controllable, and pleasant relationship with your horse for work or pleasure.

The entire clinic was fun and successful. Thank you to all that helped make it possible!

BORDEN COUNTY OPEN HORSE SHOW

PUTTING TOGETHER A WINNING WARDROBE

If there has been a change in your lifestyle lately, you've probably come to realize your wardrobe no longer meets your needs. A new job, new activities, retirement, or simply an image you want to achieve can make your wardrobe look like a "closet full of nothings" to wear.

With a little planning and resourcefulness, you can economically coordinate a wardrobe that will help achieve the "look" you want. Although it may be hard to pinpoint the type of clothing most needed, one way to start is to list all the activities you recently participated in during a typical 2-4 week period or longer, and what you wore.

You will also want to consider the special activities on your calendar throughout the year. The list can help determine the type of garments worn most often and where some changes are needed.

Any general inventory begins by assessing your present wardrobe. You may begin by sorting the clothing into four categories: discards, repair or recycle; wearable as is; or items to build on.

Once you have a complete picture of your needs and of the wearable clothing in your present belongings, you can begin wardrobe planning.

Decide first on what you can afford to spend on new clothing. Also consider your personal preferences in colors, lines, textures and styles.

Adding to your present wardrobe requires a plan. And a good way to begin is to build around a few basic garments. The life expectancy of a garment can help you determine how much you want to invest. You may want to buy the best you can afford in such basic garments as coats and suits which can be worn through several seasons. However, you may not want to invest much money in "fun" garments that may be the latest fad this season, but gone the next.

Classics are always good investments, because they do not vary with seasonal fashion changes. For example, shirtwaist dresses and blazer jackets are popular through many fashion seasons. A good plan also builds around a few key becoming colors with which you're comfortable. Key colors do not have to be dark, but can be in any color range you like.

Also select a few good accessories, such as shoes, purses, scarves, belts and jewelry in your key color ranges. This will allow you to mix and match basic agrments with accessories to form many different outfits.

Careful planning and shopping can make the difference between a winning wardrobe and that "closet full of nothings"

The rules have changed on clothing care labeling.

ASCS NEWS BY JERRY STONE

CERTIFICATION OF SPRING SEEDED CROPS

Those that certified wheat will remember that it requires more time to certify this year. It takes more time to check the eligibility of ACR. ACR for the cotton program must meet both of the following: (1) acreage was planted to cotton one of the last three years and (2) was planted to a row crop, small grain or ACR in two of the last three years. Let me encourage you to bring your sketches of your planted acreages and come on in to certify or request measurement service. July 15 is the last day to complete this important job. If you have completed planting, you can beat the rush by completing this job now.

MEASUREMENT SERVICE

An accurate certification is a very important requirement. The tolerance is the larger of 1.0 acre or 5 percent of the reported acreage for program crops. This is plus or minus for total cotton wheat and grain sorghum. ACR can not be less than the larger of 1.0 acre or 5 percent of the required.

If you certify a farm out of these tolerances, you will be ineligible for program benefits and liquidated damages required if participating in the program. Measurement service is offered for those needing some help. If you have completed planting, you can beat the rush by making this request now. Your sketches will be helpful.

FAILED CROP ACRES

Remember to report any crop acreage that fails before destroying evidence by planting an alternate crop. June 20 is the last date you are required to replant cotton in Borden County. You may replant after this date if you wish.

Any deficiency payments that are due are paid on planted acreage only. Failure to report acreage failed before destruction of evidence will mean loss of history for payments this year and future years. Certification of total acreage of that crop on that farm is required before tailing of acreage can begin.

ACR COVERS

As you complete the planting of crops, now is a good time to check your ACR. A weed problem may be developing that can be corrected with the smallest cost to you. If you wait until its too late, program benefits can be lost. Remember that no matter what cover or practices has been established weeds and wind erosion must be controlled.

WHEAT LOANS

Wheat harvest will be getting into full swing as soon as the ground will hold up a combine in many parts of the county. Wheat farms that are participating in the 1985 wheat program will be eligible to place your wheat in the 1985 wheat loan program. The loan rate for wheat in Borden County is $ 3.30. The producer will be responsible for approximately nine months of storage that the wheat would remain in loan. In most cases, you will net approximately $ 3.08 per bushel depending on where you carry your wheat to be stored.

Regulations will require that the owner's and operator's and operator's names must be on the warehouse receipt and endorsed by both if both share in the crop. Individual warehouse receipts may be used for each producer, if you had rather do it that way.

PROVEN YIELDS

Production evidence should be submitted if you wish to prove your yield or if you intend to take out Federal Crop Insurance in future years. Acceptable evidence include settlement sheets (specifying farm number, commodity, weight, date of sale, name of buyer or storer), warehouse storage receipts or bin measurements.

DISASTER AFFECTED CROPS

Reports of scattered hail across the county have been received. If you received enough damage so that your wheat, barley or oats will not pay to harvest or you will make below your farm yield, you should come in and file a disaster claim for yield purposes. This should be done before you plow up or graze the crop evidence.

GRAZING-BALING ACR

Anyone having haygrazer, sudan, or other cover on their ACR (setaside) acres should first come in and certify these acres, sign a request and pay a $10.00 inspection fee before these acres are baled or grazed. Failure to do this could result in loss of program benefits.

BIG PLANS BEING MADE FOR RODEO

Big plans are being made for the annual Borden County Rodeo this year. The event will kick off in mid June with the first performance beginning at 8:00 p.m. on June 14th. The second performance will follow at 8:00 p.m. on June 15th. There are several exciting events scheduled to take place during the performances, such as bull riding, bronc riding, calf and steer roping, barrel racing, and many more. The age groups participating will be 8 & under, 13-15, and 16-19 years of age. Any one wishing to enter should contact Connie Voss (915-856-4361). Books will be open June 10, 11, 12 from 6:00-10:00 p.m.

The Borden County Livestock Association would like to invite one and all to make an effort to attend. Ya' ll come!
