MORE AND MORE OUTLOOKS

It's a confusing age, but wonderful. Speculating about the future is more fun now than it ever was, for science is dashing around in such headlong fashion that almost any guess is probable. There were two meetings the other day in widely separated cities. One was of chemists, the other of traffic engineers. The former were told in effect that the gaso-line outlook was getting better and better, that a new process of changing natural gas into liquid gasoline would have the effect of adding 20 per cent to the life-expectancy of the country's gasoline supply. The traffic engineers at the other meeting heard the principal speaker predict that the automobile of the future would not be run by gasoline but by electricity transmitted by ethereal waves. One report doesn't cancel the other, but the latter seems to change the gasoline life expectancy all over again, and the former seems to make the latter unnecessary. It's a wonderful age, but confusing.

WAR IN THE PLAYROOM

Such "militaristic" playthings as toy soldiers, toy tanks, and toy machines comprise less than 1 per cent of the merchandise on display at the American Toy Fair in New York. The reason is that "children's play interests" reflect those of their parents, according to a spokesman for the fair, and the toy demand these days is that of a "peace-loving American people." The same announcement was made a year ago. There have been a number of newspaper stories in the last couple of years describing a trend away from the military in playthings. But though the toy soldier and all his military accoutrement may comprise only 1 per cent of the merchandise displayed at the toy fair . . . a national exhibition for buyers . . . playroom artillery still takes up a sizeable space on the shop counters. It may be that it is not being sold, but just standing there. Or maybe the children are a little slow in catching their elders' peace-loving spirit, and the toy people are trying to hurry things along by talking about it.

About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Your correspondent is having dinner. Alone. It is easily nine o'clock and he is quite disheveled. No shave. Cuffs and collar untied. You get that way at ball games. And this wandering boy has just wandered in from the Polo Grounds where a 12-8 slugfest has taken place. . . That 12 to 8 score is mighty Anyway, as I say, it is nine or thereafter, your sympathies. . . Anyway, as I say, it is none or thereafter. . . And over in a corner quite secluded, or shall we say, quite out of the way of people, your man Friday is casually pecking away an order of scrambled eggs with sausage, when he looks up and beholds a familiar countenance. . . From the side it looks like Robert Montgomery. But this cannot be Montgomery, because he is in the west. There is a striking resemblance, however. A very strong resemblance, from this side. And then, for a split second, you get a head-on gander at this man who seems so familiar. You comb your intelligence for some clue, some tag-end of memory that will identify him, place him in your ken so you will be able to salute him as a man you have once known should be saluted—by his proper name. . . And then you know. A trick of lighting a cigarette, of discarding the burnt match, identifies him. You remember his striking a match that way months, or many months ago, in a distant city. And then it all comes back. It is Fay Thomas of Cleveland, Ohio. . . Mr. Thomas is the manager of the Carter hotel, in Cleveland. . . He is a Richmond, Virginia, man, a cosmopolitan who has lived in many cities. I was once his guest in Cleveland, at a party the night before the Great Lakes Exposition opened. . . And so a hastily scrawled note is sent over. . . He reads it. . . "Where is he?" he exclaims. . . And we meet in an aisle, just missing knocking down a waiter with an over-loaded tray. . . What of Fay Thomas? . . . Cleveland's Mr. Thomas has been down to

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 4—Reports that the German embassy had notified the State Department that she wouldn't participate in the New York World's Fair because of "financial difficulties" are greeted in Washington with amusement, mingled with little or no pain. At first it was supposed that Herr Hitler might be trying to retaliate for the refusal of Secretary Ickes to let Germany buy American helium. The idea that a nation which spends vast sums for armaments, foreign invasions and propaganda campaigns all over the world couldn't afford an exhibit at the New York fair was to absurd to be taken seriously. But now the word is getting around that the Nazis just didn't trust the citizens of New York City. It seems there are too many Jews there. The nature of Nazi treatment of Jews in Germany and Austria is no secret and even turns the average Aryan stomach in other lands. . . There was every reason to believe that any beautiful buildings which the Germans might erect at the fair would soon be found decorated by adhering portions of decayed tomatoes, squashes and similar material. A large force of outlying guards might have prevented such a catastrophe, but the Germans may have remembered that Mayor LaGuardia, who himself has cast a few verbal tomatoes at Hitler, is boss of New York cops. This explanation of German coyness is unofficial but is being commonly accepted.

Man to Watch
Securities Exchange Commissioner John W. Hanes, who lined up 16 big business men to sign a qualified pledge of co-operation with the government in its recovery program, came here from Wall Street and rapidly is becoming the outstanding liaison man between Wall Street and Washington. . . Thus far, at least, Hanes has inspired more confidence in himself among members of the administration's liberal wing than ever did Ambassador Joe Kennedy or RFC Chairman Jesse Jones, two of the New Deal's most conservative big shots. Hanes comes from Winston-Salem, N. C. where his brother is a prominent banker and business man. He made a spectacular success in Wall Street after starting practically from scratch and became senior partner in one of Wall Street's biggest firms. His attitude toward securities market reforms, more liberal than that of most Wall-Streeters, plus his recognized ability, caused his recent appointment to SEC. He is a sandy-haired, red-faced man of medium height who dresses well and is easy to like. His future ambition is to become a senator from North Carolina. Don't be surprised if he is promoted to a bigger administration job before the end of the year.

Spending Opposition
The latest appeal for funds by the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government—which helped defeat the Supreme Court plan, the wage-hour bill and the government reorganization bill—indicates that the organization will oppose the administration's proposed spending-lending recovery measures. Chairman Frank E. Gannett claims that the "pump-priming" theory was brought to the White House by "J. Maynard Keynes, the radical English economist." "It is high time," wrote Gannett, "for the people to put a stop to futile pump-priming and pump-sup appropriations to be spent as the President chooses." Conservative senators already are in huddles planning opposition to certain phases at least of the administration program.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY
The highest scholastic honors of Central high school went to Susie Bell Smaling, it was announced. . . At a meeting of the stockholders of the Schneider hotel, Alex Schneider, Jr., was elected president of the concern.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY
Pampans used 21,105,000 gallons of water in April, according to the report of the water department received by City Manager C. L. Stine. . . Rainfall such as farmers had hoped for many months fell in Pampa and most of Gray county, the total here since the previous day amounting to 1.45 inches. . . Washington a little business and just ran up to meet a few friends.

And how are tricks?
"Well," he says, "well, my son is in military school, you know, in Virginia. . . he's at August, a Military academy not far from where you went to school. . . You're a University of Virginia man, aren't you? . . . Well, the boy has been made a corporal. . . he's a non-commissioned officer. . . and the moment the chevrons were stitched on his sleeve he wrote me a letter. . . He said, 'Dear Dad, write me at once. . . and please address it to Corporal Thomas.'" . . Which was pretty swell, eh? . . . We chat for an hour and then he rushes away to catch a late train for a convention in Atlantic City. . . As he goes out you say, "There goes Fay Thomas, of Cleveland." . . But, he is something more than that, if you remember that letter if you remember that letter from the kid in Virginia. He may be a big shot in business, but tonight, with that grin on his face, he is only the Corporal's Old Man.

How's Your Health?

Mumps
Some years ago the countryside was spotted with advertisements showing a bewhiskered farmer with one pouting cheek. The legend read, "Taint the Mumps, it's Crewin' Terbakker." This humorous advertisement largely reflects the common attitude toward mumps. Many consider it a subject for humor rather than for serious concern. And this attitude is partly warranted, for ordinarily mumps is a discomfiting but not serious disease. However, the complications may prove serious. They may lead to sterility, to temporary or permanent deafness, to injury of vision, facial paralysis and disease of the kidneys. The specific cause of mumps is not definitely known. It is believed to be due to a filterable virus. The disease is contagious, but not highly communicable. It is spread usually by direct contact. Mumps is most infectious when the symptoms are most marked, but the disease may be transmitted before the swelling appears in the salivary glands and even several weeks after complete recovery. The disease is rare in infants and is most often seen in those between 4 and 15. Mumps usually manifests itself by a swelling of the parotid gland located in the lower jaw region, below and slightly in front of the ear. The other salivary glands may also be involved. One or both sides of the face may be affected. The onset of mumps is usually marked by a dull and aching sensation in the region of the ear and cheek. Depending upon the amount of swelling and resulting tension, movement of the jaw may be painful and difficult. Mumps usually lasts from 5 to 8 days. If the affected individual shows constitutional symptoms, such as fever and malaise, he should be kept in bed and fed a soft, bland diet. Treatment is not directed against the disease proper, but toward making the patient comfortable, and against threatening complications. The mumps sufferer should always receive medical attention. We have no specific preventive for mumps. Convalescent or immune serum has been used for prevention and treatment, but its value has not been established.

GOOD WHEAT CROP SEEN FOR LIPSCOMB COUNTY

HIGGINS, May 4—Approximately three and one-half inches of rain have fallen in this vicinity during the month of April, according to Lee Malsberger, official government weather observer here. A better wheat crop is in evidence than has been in this area about ten years. "But," says Charles Newcomb, rancher and wheat grower south of here, "our wheat is so rank, it is going to take two more good rains to make a crop." Apparently the crop as a whole, was not injured by the severe blizzard suffered here in April. Although considerable losses at that time were reported to be great, later information reported small loss. Having received plenty of moisture the past few months the rye, oats, barley, and other grains in this section are said to be in the best of condition and a better crop than for a number of years is expected. No greenbugs, as yet, have been reported in this area. Grasshoppers in the hatching stage, have been numerous reported. Some have

Well, this one will be betting on the Harvesters against the "all-American" exes tomorrow night. He's always for the "ins," not the "outs." But he'll watch the exes with intense pride, remembering their past glories. There'll be much to remember about old Noblitt, bless his fighting heart, and J. P. Matthews, than whom there was none greater, and Roy Showers, and John Henry Nelson and Topsy Reynolds and Doyle Ehloe. Boy if these exes were in shape one bit they ought to win—but they won't. That Harvester line isn't going to fold up—no sir, not Ripple, Montgomery, Welby Parish (say boy), Solomon, Stiles, Giddens, Bailey. "Bumple. Come on, J. P., come on little Noblitt, see if you can break through that line. Here's a 20-cent malt you don't! All right, Claude Heiskell, we'll admit you can punt and run and pass—you were almost as good as the best, meaning Saylor and Land, but we got J. W. and Albert Kemp and Pete Dunaway and Glenn Nichols on our side. Albert Ayr, I used to think you could catch them until I saw Bob Andis completely surrounded but catching them anyway. Now the fame of Roy Showers' passing has become almost a tradition in two years, but fans, I ain't lyin' to you one bit when I say that Doyle Andis is one passin' fool. Noblitt says he'll break Doyle in two—all right this one says you can't break him in two. If Doyle starts dunking those passes into Andis' big mitts—so long exes. See you tomorrow night, boys, and all those passing plays you've been practicing on secretly won't get you no place. A pass defense is one thing we'll have.

Cranium Crackers

Some children are playing on a level lot, and have arranged letters over a 100-foot stout fence. Two girls of equal weight have a board 12 feet long, and two boys of equal weight have a board 18 feet long. If they each put the exact center of their board on the fence, how much farther can the boys go from the ground than the girls? (Answer on classified page.)

CARLOADINGS

The Santa Fe Railway System carloadings for the week ending April 29, were 18,195 cars compared with 22,932 in the same week last year. Received from connections were 4,920 cars compared with 7,516 for the same week last year. Total cars moved were 23,115 compared with 30,448 in the same week in 1937. The Santa Fe handled a total of 22,636 cars in the preceding week this year. . . developed wings and are beginning to scatter. . . Twenty-eight tons of bran and about six hundred gallons of poison are stored at various points in the county awaiting the proper time for distribution. Farmers are expected to watch, in weight, with cottonseed hulls, bran, or saw dust, the amount of bran furnished by the government. . . Arrangements are being made to bring in cottonseed hulls which have proved an inexpensive and satisfactory grasshopper bait. Local committees in each community of the county have been set up to assist with the program this year.

Around Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—It's just dawning on us that Hollywood has a new movie clothes-horse—a girl who's all set to take over where Kay Francis leaves off if Kay does leave off when she marries in the fall. . . And a happy clothes-horse is Loretta Young, who doesn't like to think of herself as one at all. "Well," she says, "it just happens I've been playing a number of very rich girls—and presumably smart ones who'd wear smart cloths." . . All the same, at all Loretta Young preview, the gasps of the women in the audience are as audible as the occasional masculine titters whenever Loretta pops up in a new outfit. At "Four Men and a Crayon" the other evening the Young wardrobe included a change for every sequence in which Loretta appeared—and some of those outfits seemed mighty funny to some of us. Especially that one that included a hat that was a hat but might have been an inverted cookie-cutter. . . Must Be Different. . . Kay Francis doesn't bother much about clothes off screen, but Loretta has even more than the usual feminine interest. "That was a smart hat," she laughs. "I wasn't a movie hat, either. I bought it myself at a local store—and I saw one like it, even before the preview, on a woman dancing at La Conga. And remember how they laughed at that pan-cake hat Garbo wore in one of her pictures—within a month women everywhere were wearing hats like it!" . . . Loretta holds that "picture clothes" have to be "different." If they're "different" enough, and smart, they make talk, and talk makes interest. But she doesn't pretend to be a style leader. . . Buying Sprees. . . Many a woman would envy Loretta's shopping habits. Whenever she gets a "clothes" role she can go on a spree. She picks out things she thinks will do—and if the studio approves, she rents out her new wardrobe at so much per day. . . One of the amusing scenes in "Four Men" sprang wholly from the Young wardrobe. Rehearsing a scene in which she wore a heavily furred outfit, Loretta told the "butler" who would have taken her coat: "It's a dress." . . Everybody on the set laughed, and John Ford ordered the line left in the audience is left guessing, but I have Loretta's word for it that the think really is a coat.

Novel Theme Used At Class Banquet

HIGGINS, May 4—A unique affair was the Junior-Senior banquet given Friday night when suggestions pertaining to music, with a color note of black and silver, accentuated the banquet hall and tables. . . Clarence S. Bullz, president of the junior class, was toastmaster and Clifford Brown, senior class president, responded. . . Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of Miss Quillian Garrison, junior class sponsor. . . Among faculty members and school board members present were Misses Valie Harrell, Velma Harris, Quillian Garrison; Misses Jackson and Meers; and Mesdames R. L. Snider, O. G. Henderson, Russell Teter, Diane Fuqua and Roy Samsing. . . The peculiar esoteric produces an unearthly croaking sound that lasts for several minutes. When excited, the bird snorts, but the sound of the young sounds like the lowing of a cow.

Sharing the Comforts Of Life . . .

By R. C. HOILES
SPENDING VERSUS INVESTING.
There is one thing that the Townsend people, and in fact nine out of ten persons who have not made a study of economics, are confused about; that is, that spending and consuming help society as a whole. They get this impression because invariably when a man spends he does not consume the full amount of wealth his money represents. The party making the sale, makes a profit and this part, the man who consumes, does not consume. It is this profit that has led most everyone to believe that the spender is the benefactor. The thing that they fail to realize is that the spender is reducing the wealth of the country. . . If the spender would invest instead of spend, then there would be the same profit on the purchases as there would be if the man bought goods to consume. But the man who invests still has the wealth, while the man who spends to consume reduces the wealth of the country by the amount he consumes. . . And if the man invests in things that are really new and additional capital that will enable the workers to produce more with a given amount of energy, then this investing, instead of spending, permanently adds to the wealth of the country. It is not only permanently adds to the wealth of the country but it adds to the wealth that can pay a property tax, while the man who spends to consume reduces the wealth that can pay a property tax. . . Let us illustrate. Suppose a man invests $100 to have someone dance for him to entertain him. At the end of the dance, the dancer has the $100 and the spender has nothing. Suppose this man had spent the same $100 in hiring a man to raise a cow or build a typewriter. . . The man who hires a man to raise a cow or build a typewriter has the typewriter or the cow and the man who did the work has the $100. The world is better off by the typewriter or the cow and the worker would receive the same direct benefit from raising the cow or building the permanent machine as he would by dancing. . . So the net between the two transactions is that the wealth is still conserved and the present reward for the labor is just as much in one case as in the other, but the reward for labor each succeeding year is greater where the wealth is conserved. . . It is undoubtedly this confusion between investing and spending that has resulted in many tax laws and labor laws that have brought us into this depression.

ADD TO CAPITAL ASSETS.

Democratic Senator Wheeler of Montana is reported as saying that the public spending must be earmarked definitely for work that will "add to the capital assets of the nation." . . Now, this is entirely opposite from what the President and our modern educators are preaching. They continually are saying that we have plenty of capital; that, in fact, we have a plethora of capital. Some of our leading industrialists, like Tom Girdler, are confused and say we have plenty of capital, referring to the banks. But the banks have no capital. They just have methods of transferring credits to get capital. They have methods of inflation, of issuing check-book money which prevents those who have produced wealth and capital in the past and have it in the form of credits, or tokens, from tracing these tokens for wealth. In most cases it just transfers wealth that would go to former savers to the borrowers from the bank. And the bank gets the interest and the former savers get nothing. . . But the pity of it is, the money that the government spends seldom, if ever, is transferred into capital assets. It is consumed and destroyed and the world is poorer by all this pump priming. And the longer it continues, the poorer will be the people as a whole. . . Pump priming invariably takes wealth that could be converted by private ingenuity, by foresight, into "capital assets" and dissipates it in order to hold jobs for inefficient, incompetent officeholders.

Side Glances

Book A Day

By BRUCE CATTON
The modern big city has defeated its own ends. Rising by the cult of sheer business—around which are entwined innumerable tentacles of the profit-motive—it has grown unwieldy, helpless and congested that it has developed the seeds of its own doom. . . So says Lewis Mumford in "The Culture of Cities" (Harcourt, Brace; $5), a penetrating and acutely disturbing book. . . The metropolis, says Mr. Mumford is no longer what a city is primarily supposed to be: a civilizing agent in which the national and racial heritage of culture and tradition is nurtured and enlarged. On the contrary it has become what he calls a de-civilizing agent. It destroys the very values which it was created to foster. . . It must have slums—because it is keyed to a set of values which make slums inevitable. . . It must have an ever-increasing traffic congestion—because any remedy for congestion simply paves the way for added congestion in the future. And it cannot, in a profit economy, conceivably remove its disabilities, for they are integral parts of large-scale capitalism. . . So runs Mr. Mumford's indictment. The remedy, as he sees it, is decentralization—of industry, of finance, of human population—with the development of semi-autonomous regions in which a number of small cities would fulfill the functions now reserved for a few large ones. . . With much in this book you may disagree profoundly. You can hardly read it, however without, being forced to do some serious thinking about modern society and its effect upon the lives of the men who live in it. It is by all odds one of the most stimulating books of the year.

Executive Explains Boy Scout Program

SKELLYTOWN, May 4—Fred M. Roberts, Scout executive of the Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts of America, spoke to a group of over fifty adults here Sunday about the program of scouting. The Community church, or some branch of the Sunday school plan on sponsoring a troop here provided the parents are interested, according to H. C. Boyd, Sunday school supt. After which a cub pack will be organized for boys between the ages of 9 and 12. . . LOCAL REBEKAH DEGREE TEAM WINS CUP AT CONVENTION

PAMPAN NAMED ON EXECUTIVE TEXAS BOARD

In degree team competition at the first joint annual convention in several years of the Texas Panhandle and Northwestern New Mexico Odd Fellows and Rebekah associations which closed yesterday at Dalhart, the Pampa Rebekah won the cup over 15 other teams who took part in the event. Borger won the cup for the Odd Fellows.

At the final session the Texas group chose Herford and New Mexico chose Las Vegas for the next convention, April 24-25, 1938.

Pampa was represented by 21 members of the Odd Fellow team and 21 in the Rebekah group. Officers were elected as follows: for the Texas association, J. E. Rainey, Dalhart, president; C. M. Spencer, Amarillo, first vice-president; Mrs. Mary Weeks, Canyon, second vice-president; Ivan Wilson, Borger, secretary-treasurer; C. E. Hill, Dalhart, chaplain. The executive committee is George Sikes, D. M. Spencer, Borger, and V. J. Castka, Pampa.

New Mexico Group Elects For the New Mexico association, Alfred Myers, Las Vegas, president; Gladys Schneider, Clayton, first vice-president; Ida Atwater, Raton, second vice-president; Grace Voorhees, Raton, secretary-treasurer; Ella Steele, Clayton, chaplain; Anna Scott, Dalhart, Warden. There were no executive committee elections this year.

"The world is growing against war and is beginning, in some nations at least, notably America, to exemplify the biblical injunction that 'we are our brother's keeper,'" declared Ernest O. Thompson, Texas Railroad Commissioner and former mayor of Amarillo as he addressed a banquet of the convention last night.

"The welfare of the world," he asserted, "depends on the preservation of democratic government." He lauded the Odd Fellowship and any other effort that brings folks together and promotes understanding, because, he said, "as we, in the world, learn to know each other better we can stop the march of 'isms'."

Sincerity Emphasized M. C. Martin, an assistant attorney general, the other principal banquet speaker, said that "these are times that try men's souls" and emphasized the urgent need for "full sincerity" in every act and word.

"Loyalty to God and service to man are the only basis upon which nations and groups can be built," he said. He added a crying need "is a brotherhood that will lift us above all strife," and declared that Odd Fellowship promotes such a brotherhood.

D. D. Monroe, Clayton, past grand master of New Mexico, was toastmaster. The Dalhart male quartet and Miss Luzelle Hicks sang, and there was music by Letger's orchestra. C. E. Hill, prominent Dalhart Odd Fellow, gave the invocation and Rev. Harold Scoggins, Dalhart pastor, the benediction.

P-TA City Council Has Final Meeting

At the final meeting of the city council of the Parent-Teacher association in the high school auditorium recently, reports of the local units were presented.

After the minutes were read and approved, the treasurers report of $3.19 was given. Presidents of the local council gave reports of the year's work including one from Horace Mann stating that a beautification program was in progress at the school where sixty grade pupils were trying to figure out how many bulbs they will have next year by studying their flowers and bulbs.

Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, eighth district president, reported from the district and thanked all members in the P-T.A. for their support in the movement.

Reports given by various chairmen included publicity by Mrs. Thompson for Mrs. Frank Shotwell; hospitality, Mrs. E. A. Shackleton; and program, Mrs. F. M. Culbertson.

L. L. Sone responded to Mrs. Hunkapillar's report and asked the parents to back the school system in their building project.

It was announced that the presidents of all of the local associations and the round-up chairmen will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in L. L. Sone's office.

Mrs. G. Boston of the Sam Houston school invited all of Mother's Day singers to attend the next meeting of the P-T.A. which will be held May 12 at the school.

New Officers Installed Installation of officers by Mrs. Hunkapillar followed and Mrs. L. L. McCole presented Mrs. Roy Holt with a letter as a recognition of her service for the past year.

A history of the council, compiled by Miss Josephine Thomas, Mmes. Hunkapillar, W. E. Noblitt, and E. A. Shackleton, was read by Mrs. Noblitt. A vote of thanks of P-T.A. work in Pampa was given.

Council Leaders Named Completing the program was a report given by Mrs. Noblitt which follows:

"Let me have your mind for a moment while I paint a verbal picture for you.

"In 1930 a few delegates met at the high school. I believe that there were about three delegates from each school who formed the City Council of the Parent-Teacher association that shines over our city for education.

"I see a bright star, Mrs. J. M. Crain of Claude, who was eighth district president of the P-T.A., forming a group of stars around the brightest object, the big dipper, who was R. B. Fisher. Of course, the dipper could not be a success without a handle, who was L. L. Sone.

"I see a bright star step forward to take the lead who is from high school, Mrs. V. E. Fatheree, who gave her aid in helping to start the City Council and supervised the study of the Children's Charter of the City Council. In appreciation of her work in the City Council, Mrs. Fatheree was presented with a past president's pin.

"The second star that I see step out is Mrs. J. B. Townsend from eastward who sponsored the tree planting on the high school campus celebrating the Washington Bicentennial, in which all of the schools of the town had a part. In appreciation of her work, she was presented a past president's pin.

"The next star to step forward is from Baker schools, Mrs. Claud Lard, who headed the NRA drive under the Council and began the Thrift Room project. The Council sent her as a delegate to the district convention, and in appreciation of her work, honored her at a handkerchief shower. Beside this star I can see another bright star, Mrs. J. E. Griggs of Amarillo, who is now eighth district president of the Parent-Teacher association.

"And now the fourth star is stepping forward from westward school, Mrs. J. M. Turner, who is to be commended for her splendid work in promoting the welfare project.

HUGE GALAXY OF STARS IN EXES LINEUP

Football fans are scheduled to see a mid-season battle under the lights at Harvester field tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock when the Harvesters of 1938 meet the Ex - Harvesters in a full length scrimmage game to close the spring training period. Admission will be 10 and 25 cents with the proceeds going to the activity fund.

Coaches Odus Mitchell and J. C. Frejau put their Harvesters thru a workout yesterday afternoon that made railbirds think the game with Amarillo was 'just around the corner.' The coaches lined two teams up and had them run plays in relays until they were fagged.

Every play was gone over "with a fine tooth comb." Every assignment was checked and the plays run until every boy knew where he was supposed to go.

The exes will field one of the strongest teams ever to face a current Harvester squad. Coach Mitchell admitted after learning the exes roster. The former stars are working long and hard and will be in tip-top shape.

The Baylor Bears, 10-1 winners over Texas Christian University last night, moved above the 500-mark in the conference race. Tommy Fine, Baylor hurler, struck out 12 batters, gave up only seven hits, most of them scratches, and poled out a homer with one out.

The Bruins got nine safeties off Durwood Horner, starter, and Woodrow Duckworth, who succeeded him in the fifth.

Longhorns Meet SMU to Clinch Southwest Flag

(By The Associated Press)

Nine straight conference victories have put the Texas Longhorns within reaching distance of the Southwest conference title.

The Dischman meet Southern Methodist University for a two-game series Friday and Saturday to clinch things.

Sparked by Leftfielder Bob Evans, the Longhorns blasted three Texas Aggie hurlers for 17 hits and an 18-13 victory last night. A seventh-inning rally netted seven runs. The Aggie batsmen, however, accounted for 14 blows, including a homer and three doubles, off three Texas pitchers.

The Baylor Bears, 10-1 winners over Texas Christian University last night, moved above the 500-mark in the conference race. Tommy Fine, Baylor hurler, struck out 12 batters, gave up only seven hits, most of them scratches, and poled out a homer with one out.

Budge and Mako Head for Europe

LOS ANGELES, May 4 (AP)—J. Donald Budge, America's hope to hold on to the Davis cup, traveled east today, bound in easy stages for Europe and defense of the big silver trophy.

Weeks of rest and leisurely exhibition matches—which J. Donald dropped with consistent regularity—were behind, but strenuous weeks and matches ahead found the famed r-d-head primed for battle and modestly confident of success.

Accompanying Budge was Gene Mako, his doubles partner, who usually does the talking for the two because Budge generally can't be found. Don is no clam if cornered, but it's Mr. Mako who invariably takes care of all predictions, prophecies and whatever explanations are needed.

"Don't worry about the exhibition matches Don loses," advised the ebullient Mako as the pair bade goodbye to friends last night at the railroad station. "When Don's cut to win, he wins and he can't be stopped."

So far this year Budge's exhibition rounds are spotless. He hasn't won a match yet, including those practice affairs in Australia and back in California. His last setback was in San Francisco last week, when Sidney Wood of New York tossed in another bid for consideration for the United States Davis Cup family.

TULSA LEADS TEXAS LEAGUE

(By The Associated Press)

The Tulsa Oilers held a firmer grip on top place in the Texas league ranking today by virtue of an 8-4 victory last night over the second-place Beaumont Exporters.

Twelve hits by Tulsa batsmen and five errors by the visiting Texans brought the Oilers their second straight win from the Exporters.

The Shreveport Sports scored five runs in the ninth inning to down the Dallas Steers 10-6, dropping the Herd back into sixth place in the league standing. The visiting Shreveporters pounced on Beryl Richmond, relief pitcher, for the five counters after the game had been a see-saw affair. For the second straight time the Fort Worth Cats defeated the Houston Buffs, 2-1. Vern Mackie's single in the tenth turned the trick. John Grodzicki, Buff pitcher, allowed only six one-base hits, but he walked 10 batters.

A heavy shower in Oklahoma City terminated the Indians' game with the San Antonio Missions in the eighth inning after he Missions had annexed a 6-2 victory.

Warneke Leads Cardinals Along Comeback Trail

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

The old gas house gang ain't what it used to be. In fact it hardly has recovered from the shock received when its great mouthpiece, Dizzy Dean, was sold up the river to Chicago. But with a flock of new hangers beginning to show promise, the St. Louis Cardinals may have their usual piece to say about the National league pennant race.

Latest to encourage the fans' hope that St. Louis may cause trouble in the National league pennant chase are Lon Warneke, veteran right hander, and the new battery of Bill McGee and Herb Bremer.

Warneke has won his last two starts in fine style. McGee, getting credit for winning three, but he has pitched only one nine-inning stretch since joining the Cubs three weeks ago. He was removed after seven innings against the Phillies yesterday when he said: "I just ain't in shape yet, I'm plumb petered out."

Charles Leo "Gabby" Hartnett, catching star for the Cubs for 17 years, noticed something wrong on Dean's first pitch in the seventh to Bucky Walters. Hartnett signaled to Manager Charley Grimm, who ordered the rangy pitcher to the showers when he pleaded he was

DIZ 'PLUMB PETERED OUT' AS HE GOES TO SHOWERS IN 7TH

CHICAGO, May 4 (AP)—Old Dizzy Dean has turned in three victories for the Chicago Cubs, but he still hasn't answered the question that has the fans running around in circles.

"Is the famous $185,000 salary arm as good as ever or is it fading? Dizzy has worked in four games, getting credit for winning three, but he has pitched only one nine-inning stretch since joining the Cubs three weeks ago. He was removed after seven innings against the Phillies yesterday when he said: "I just ain't in shape yet, I'm plumb petered out."

Manager Grimm shares Dean's view. He said: "Dizzy is just tired, that's all. There is nothing serious. He will be okay when he gets in about ten days more work."

tired. However, Dean got permission to retire the next batter before being relieved.

"I just ain't in shape yet," he explained. "I had a lot of stuff out there but I just didn't have enough strength. This ain't like last Friday, my arm don't hurt more than just a little bit. I'm just tired, that's all. I'll be all right just as soon as I get more work. I know I wasn't in shape, because I'm already 11 pounds lighter than when I joined the club and I now weigh 193. My best weight is 185."

romantic flight

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES COPYRIGHT, 1938, BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Jackie tells Roger of her romantic predicament and Roger suggests he has a way to help her.

CHAPTER III

THE field was not a large one, but it had two concrete runways, a radio tower, a revolving beam and floodlights. The days were getting longer, so now as Jackie and Roger watched the mechanics wheel the ship, that looked like an awkward big bug on the ground, out of the hanger, the sky was soft gray in the east, while in the west the horizon still held the last lingering rosy patches from the sun.

"I love this time of day!" Jackie said with a sort of awed reverence. "The world is so hushed and perfect, like a beautiful bubble holding all the rainbow colors."

"Wait till you see it all wrapped up in its dark blanket," Roger dictated. "With the stars popping through and the moon trailing behind us. Those other little stars below, little towns lighting their thousands of candles and highways, like a diamond necklace. No one has ever seen anything, until he's flown at night."

He helped Jackie into the cockpit, climbed in beside her. It was as luxurious as any limousine with its leather upholstery and polished dashboard with so many shining instruments. The automatic starter sent the propeller whirling; they waited a few minutes until the engine's hum was rhythmic and steady, then taxied across the field.

Now came the moment that never failed to thrill Jackie, that last rushing contact with the earth, and then that swift upward surge as they left it behind. It seemed to her as though it was the world below that was falling away, rather than the plane that was moving upward. There was always that moment, too, when they had gained altitude and started flying on a level, in which the ship seemed to have stopped suddenly, held suspended by unseen hands high in the heavens.

Jackie forgot everything else for awhile, even Roger close beside her, as she looked down, watching the miracle of night take place. She almost held her breath. It was so beautiful, the gathering shadows growing darker and darker and then the little blinking lights turning one by one by one in tiny toy villages until the world lay all glittering and dancing, like a lady's sequin shawl. The stars came out, too, myriads of them, and the moon, round and golden, trailed along behind, as Roger had promised.

ONLY after she had filled all her senses, as one might breathe deeply of some strange hypnotic fragrance, did Jackie remember with a little start, that he had made her another promise, as well.

"What was the idea you had, Roger?" she asked, turning toward him. "I'll have to go a good one. You don't know my mother. And you do know how I feel about marriage and love and all that sort of thing."

Roger assured her he knew all about that. She had impressed it upon him often enough. "But you mother can't force you to marry him, or anyone else," he reminded. "That just isn't being done in this enlightened age." They had only to raise their voices ever so slightly as the motor was not noisy. The air was very calm; they were at an altitude of 3000 feet so that only now and then, when they hit an air-pocket, was there much sensation of movement.

"You don't know mother," Jackie repeated darkly.

"You'll have to get married sometime, won't you?"

"Not necessarily. Oh, maybe, when I've come everything else I want to do and feel myself getting bored. I might get married just to keep from being too lonely in my old age—to whomever happened to be handy. But goodness, Roger, I thought you said you had an idea!"

"Don't rush me," he cautioned. "Remember I have to keep my mind on a few things too."

He banked the ship sharply, turning it almost on its side. But since he had given her "all the works," loops, rolls, spins, dives and whip-tails, in the open ship he used for stunting, Jackie did not let out so much as a murmur. She could take anything he could hand out, which may have been why he threw her a side-glance of admiration.
