$200,000... ed to start a build... $300,000... complete it. Sues... lack of confidence in the county commissioners is a... On a contract basis, any good architect can estimate the cost to within a few thousand dollars. And whatever the cost in Pampa, as determined by the kind of building decided upon by the commissioners, the cost would be less by several thousand dollars than construction in LeFors, where material would have to be freighted over almost impassable roads at tremendous cost. Moreover, adequate fire protection through insurance would be many thousands dollars cheaper in Pampa, where a fire department would have plenty of pressure in any part of the city in which the commissioners might buy a location. If the courthouse should be built in Pampa, a very large building would not be advisable, because the city intends to build a large municipal auditorium, which could be used if the 31st and 84th district court sessions should overlap. Adequate quarters for the county officials, a good jail, and a fairly large auditorium would be satisfactory, with the addition of Pampa's other advantages, for many years. Talk of a half-million dollar courthouse is mere propaganda. "Removal of the courthouse to Pampa would mean high taxes imposed on citizens of the entire county," the circular declares. This too, is a statement which fails to reveal that Gray county residents long have been paying a 25-cent tax for a courthouse which they have not received. This year this tax will bring in $25,000. Before the oil play ceases, the tax would pay out a courthouse which would well serve Gray county. "When Gray county builds a courthouse it is entitled to as good a building as other counties," argue the opponents of removal, and on the same page they stress that road bond issues will keep taxes up for years to come. The only deduction possible from their statements is that they wish to get along with a ramshackle building for the next 25 years, despite the ability of the oil valuations to pay for a good structure in the next ten years. It is charged that Pampa has a "swelled population," that the oil trend is going eastward, and that "LeFors will doubtless become the center of population by the time a new courthouse could be built." Any oil field worker knows the population will not shift in this manner as the field develops. Moreover, the shifting field population, when it passes on to newer territory, will leave the same ratio of population as before, and Pampa, through her central position as a district oil center, and with the new Kell railroad she is going to cinch, will remain the wholesale, commercial capital of this part of the North Plains. The courthouse is not going to build Pampa—it has not built LeFors—but Pampa is building herself and is offering her advantages that the whole county may benefit through location of the county seat in keeping with modern development—in the center of population.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — —The desire for self-government among our so-called dependencies seems to be unanimous. The Philippines, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, the Virgin Islands and American Samoa have all been heard from and there is no doubt some dissatisfaction among the natives of Guam, Wake Island and the Midway Islands.

The Filipinos and Porto Ricans have legislatures but are under governors general appointed by the president. Both have resident commissioners in Washington. The Canal Zone is a military reservation and administered by the War Department. The Virgin Islands are under naval control and so are Guam, Samoa, Wake and the Midways.

The latest complaint comes from the Canal Zone, which has a population of about 30,000, including more than 8000 Americans.

Unable to vote or select any of their public officials, civilians of the Zone hold themselves nevertheless citizens of the United States and hence entitled to some of the privileges of our democratic form of government.

This sentiment appears to have come to a head recently with the removal of the federal district attorney for the Canal Zone on recommendation of the War Department. Protest is made not particularly against the dismissal, but about the secret manner in which his office was investigated and the failure of the United States government to give any accounting of the investigation or otherwise to indicate reasons for the dismissal.

F. Edward Mitchell, the district attorney, filed charges against Judge Guy H. Martin. Judge Martin in turn filed charges against Mitchell. Both men were presidential appointees.

According to information gathered at the War Department here, the charges were of a legal rather than criminal nature.

The War Department sent Colonel Grant H. Trent to investigate the dispute. On the basis of Trent's report, the judge was allowed to remain and the district attorney was dismissed. Two months after Colonel Trent left the zone, Mitchell formally requested his vacation and sailed for New York. He was not notified of his dismissal until the day he landed.

The complaint that comes from the Canal Zone is based on the fact that no explanation has ever been given to the people over whom Mitchell held such important authority. They don't know to what extent Mitchell is supposed to have been unfit or to what extent Judge Martin was vindicated. In Washington, one finds that the Trent report is held confidential and that there is no prospect that it will be made public.

The Panama American vigorously protests that "government of the people, by the people and for the people"

GOOD NEIGHBORS—It takes a mighty good neighbor to tell you things that even your dearest friends neglect to say. Such a neighbor is McLean. There is no cause to lose the temper over this county seat election; in fact, very few are doing so, and as our neighbor, Mr. Ball of Alareed, says, "This is a contest and the loser will take the result in a spirit of good sportsmanship." But McLean, knowing that her voting strength is deficient, and that a number of south county voters have seen the light and are for removal, is endeavoring to confuse voters in the Pampa vicinity by putting out scare-crow propaganda. There lies before us a large printed circular headed "Warning taxpayers—don't be misled." The first sentence says "a modern courthouse at Pampa should cost in the neighborhood of $500,000." The compilers of the argument are fearful that a bond issue of

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: Jesus and the Twelve.
Scripture lesson: Mark 3:13-15; 6:7-13.

Mark 3:13. And he goeth up into the mountain and calleth unto him.

14. And he appointed twelve, whom he might send forth to preach.

15. And to have authority to cast out demons.

Mark 6:7. And he calleth unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth by two and two; and he gave them authority over the unclean spirits.

8. And he charged them that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no bread, no wallet, no money in their purse;

9. But to go shod with sandals; and said he, put not on two coats.

10. And he said unto them, Where-soever ye enter into a house, there abide till ye depart thence.

11. And whatsoever place, shall not receive you, and they hear you not, as ye go forth thence, shake off the dust that is under your feet for a testimony unto them.

12. And they went out, and preached that men should repent.

13. And they cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them.

Time: The calling of the twelve, in the midsummer of A. D. 28, in the second year of Christ's ministry.

Place: The Horns of Hattin, a prominent hill west of the Sea of Galilee.

Golden Text: Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation—Mark 16:15.

Introduction
Simon and his brother Andrew were two hardy fishers of Capernaum. They already had much knowledge of Jesus, for they had been with him in Judaea hearing John the Baptist preach had heard the Baptist's testimony to him as the Messiah, and had witnessed some of Christ's miracles. The same is true of James and his brother John, who also were fishers of Capernaum. Therefore when the saviour bade them follow him and become fishers of men instead of fish, they were ready to leave their calling, their goods their homes and dear ones, and go along with Jesus in his great work of bringing men to God.

The One-Talented Man.
Andrew was the Bringer. He brought to Christ his brother Peter, and the lad with the lunch, and the party of Greeks. He was the discovering apostle, and so was one of the most useful of the twelve, though one of the quietest. Men like Andrew are the one-talented men who use their one talent sweetly and nobly, and show us the way we ought to go and the work which we can do.

The Twelve Selected, Mark 3:13-19
"And he goeth up into the mountain," Horns of Hattin, the only conspicuous hill on the western side of the Sea of Galilee, the place where the Christ spent the entire night in prayer (Luke 6:13); for the following day was to be full of momentous occurrences. Many disciples were present (Luke 6:13), for Christ's preaching and miracles had drawn large numbers to follow him. From this assembly, acting with knowledge supplied him from above our Lord chose his assistants. Doubtless, during the delivery of the wonderful sermon on the mount that followed they made an inner circle around the master.

The Apostolic Number, Twelve
"And he appointed twelve." Twelve, probably because of the twelve tribes of Israel, descended from the twelve sons of Jacob. In honor of them the numeral twelve has a high place in Bible history, but this use of it is the crown. For Christ's purpose, twelve was an ideal company, large enough to cover the country with evangelists, not too large to be easily taught and readily housed.

Names of the Twelve, Mark 3:16-19.
Mark gives a list of the twelve apostles, namely: (1) Simon Peter (Cephas) and (2) his brother Andrew, both fishers; (3) James and (4) his brother John, also fishers; and (5) Matthew (Levi), the publican. The remaining seven were: (6) James the Less or Younger and (7) his brother Judas (Thaddaeus Lebbaeus); (8) Phillip of Bethsaida; (9) Bartholomew (Nathanael) of Cana; (10) Thomas Didymus; (11) Simon the Cananean or Zelotes; and (12) Judas Iscariot or Judas of Kerioth in Judaea, the only one of the twelve who was not a Galilean. The list is given in three other places: Matt. 10:2-4; Luke 6:13-16; Acts 1:13.

"Judas, the Son of Perdition."
The greatest problem in connection with the Twelve is that of Judas, the treasurer of the apostles who stole from their little fund, whom Christ called "a devil" and "the son of perdition," and who at the terrible crisis in Christ's life, sold the Son of God to his enemies for thirty petty coins, and then died an apparently unrepentant self-murderer. Why did our Lord, who "knew what was in man, select such a man for an apostle unless that he should be a standing example of the evil of covetousness and false ambition, and a standing warning to all Christians? "Out of it all this lesson comes, that great privilege and responsibility have to be reckoned for and judged; and that we who have had the place and work of disciples will have to say what we have done with them what we have made of them and of ourselves."

The Twelve Went "Two and Two."
v. 7.
"And began to send them forth by two and two." That they might strengthen, cheer, comfort, and advise each other. Also, that each might fill out the other's lack. "They were not merely mated; they were matched. Christ was after a more perfect, apostleship, and he made six whole men out of the twelve. Each man was the complement of his apostolic comrade. Peter the extremist went forth with Andrew the conservative; James the elder with John the youth; Phillip the dullard with Bartholomew the sage; Thomas the man of doubts with Matthew the man of strong convictions; James the champion of duty with Judas the champion of doctrine; Simon the zealot with Judas the traitor."

A Life of Faith, v. 8.
"No bread, no wallet, no money in their purse." The wallet ("scrip in the King James translation) was a leather bag for food, and was carried slung over the shoulder. Money was kept in the folds of the girdle, which constituted the "purse." Pedestrians would often, in those simple lands, set out for a journey with no money, being sure of hospitality everywhere; but Christ's directions exceeded even the common simplicity, and were intended to emphasize trust in God and concentration upon the spiritual work in hand. Thus today in all lands a religious worker is regarded as lacking in devotion if he finds time to amass wealth.

"Shook off the Dust of Their Feet"
Acts 13:51.
"And whatsoever place shall not receive you, and they hear you not, as ye go forth thence shake off the dust that is under your feet for a testimony unto them." Whenever the Pharisees returning from a Gentile land, reached Judaea, they stamped off the dust from their shoes, as a sign that nothing of heathenism was adhering to their souls. The act thus symbolizes complete renunciation, and said to the hard-hearted and inhospitable strangers. "We have nothing to do with you." Thus Paul and Barnabas repudiated Antioch in Pisidida (Acts 13:51), and by a like gesture Paul testified against the Jews of Corinth. (Acts 18:5.)

"There Is Another Man."
"A ship came across another vessel with sails blown away and masts broken. Glasses were brought to bear upon it, but there was no movement on deck, nor, indeed, any sign of life. A boat was put off to board and examine the derelict. On the deck, in a huddled heap they found one man with sunken cheeks and glassy eye and bony hands—a mere ruckle of bones—but not dead. They took the starved creature back with them, and when they got him on board they applied restoratives to him, and by and by consciousness returned, and the lips began to move, and those who bent over him caught whispered sentences: "There is another man—there is another man." Saved ourselves, we ought to remember "there is another man," and seek to save him. The end of discipleship is apostleship."

J. E. Williams returned this morning from Denison, where he has been visiting relatives.

Hahn Set New World's Record in Half-Mile Saturday

Runs 3 Laps of Fast Track in Only 1:51.4

NEW YORK, Mar. 3.—(AP)—Lloyd Hahn, rugged Boston A. A. star, ran the greatest half mile in track history to night, shattering the world's indoor record, as well as surpassing the outdoor mark by winning a special race in one minute 51 2-5 seconds in connection with the I. C. A. A. A. championship games held here.

Hahn's performance smashed the 24-year old indoor mark of 1:54 3-5 made on March 19, 1904, at Buffalo, N. Y. It also surpassed the outdoor record of 1:51 3-5 established at Stamford Bridge, London, in 1926 by Dr. Otto Peltzer.

Dr. Peltzer, the German champion, was a spectator tonight as Hahn circled the fast intercollegiate track four times in probably the greatest race of his career.

Hahn had two opponents in his special attack on time, but he ran the last three laps virtually alone after Sam Martin of the Boston A. A. had set the pace for the first furlong. Pinkie Sober, the third starter, withdrew under the hot pace, but Martin stuck to the finish, coming in 30 yards behind the flying Hahn.

Again in record breaking form, Sabin Carr of Yale cracked the indoor I. C. A. A. A. mark by pole vaulting 13 feet, 3 inches, with plenty to spare and setting sail for higher laurels.

BY ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, Mar. 3.—(AP)—To a record breaking tune that saw four meet records shattered, Cornell returned to track and field glory tonight by capturing the seventh annual intercollegiate A. A. A. indoor championships ending Harvard's two-year reign.

The veteran Jack Moakley's big red team won its first I. A. A. A. title since 1922 by nosing out Georgetown and Yale in a hot three-cornered struggle for points.

Cornell beat out Georgetown by only a half point, 21 to 20 1-2, with Yale third, tallying 19 1-2 points.

Shifting tides of baseball are carrying Ed Holley (upper), giant Kentucky pitcher, up to the Cubs for a tryout this year while Wayland Dean (lower), a former Louisville Colonels team mate, who had the same chance last year, goes back to Louisville. Joe McCarthy, Cubs manager, developed both pitchers when managing the Colonels several years ago and thinks Holley has the stuff although he had the poorest season of his career last year.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—By a queer turn of fate Ed Holley, giant Kentucky pitcher, is to get an opportunity with the Chicago Cubs this year after a season in which he made the poorest record of his career, and Wayland Dean, one of baseball's bad boys, is coming back to Louisville to make a new start.

In winning only six games and losing 11 last year, Holley was buffeted by virtually every club in the American Association, but Manager Joe McCarthy, now of the Cubs but for several years leader of the Louisville Colonels believes he can be converted into a winning pitcher. So Holley will get his first chance in the big leagues.

Back in 1922, the year after the Colonels had won a pennant, a half dozen youngsters were taken to the spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. One was Earle Combs, of Owensboro, Ky. Another was Dean, just off the sand lots of Huntington, W. Va. and still another was Holley, who had ventured forth from Benton, Ky.

Dean vied with Combs for stardom and in the spring of 1924 Combs was sold to the Yankees and Dean became the property of the Giants, the Louisville club being enriched $100,000 through the deals.

With McGraw, Dean made an auspicious start and then began to slip. McGraw nursed him along for some time, but after he was alleged to have broken training frequently, Dean was sold to the Philadelphia Nationals. McCarthy, the man who had developed the pitcher, obtained him last year through the waiver route. Dean did not achieve any degree of success with Chicago and finally jumped the club toward the end of the season.

Combs became one of the mainstays of the Yankees' outfield. During all this time, Holley has experienced "up and downs" with Louisville. For a time he gave promise of becoming a greater pitcher than Dean and was reputed to possess the best fast ball in the Association. In giving Dean to the Colonels for Holley, McCarthy agreed to return the latter by June 1 if he failed to make good.

Dean gives every indication of coming back to Louisville determined to stage a comeback. To Captain William Neal, vice-president of the club, he has written: "I want to start again and I'm smart-

Sixteen Players to Report to Cats in Camp Monday

FORT WORTH, March 3.—(AP)—Sixteen additional players, six outfielders and ten infielders, are due to report to the Fort Worth baseball club's training camp here Monday.

Not a sore arm was reported Saturday when the third day of work had been completed.

New Pitchers Arrive at Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, March 3.—(AP)—Milt Steengrafe and Joe Kiefer, veteran right hand pitchers, are among the new arrivals in the Spudder camp. Lester Livingston, a big right hand sandlot pitcher from Lawton, Okla., and Bill Britton, a semi-pro infielder from Indianapolis, also have into camp today.

Houston Buffs Sell Mokan to Rochester

HOUSTON, March 3.—(AP)—The outright sale to Rochester of Johnny Mokan, outfielder, was announced Saturday by President Fred Ankleman of the Buffs. An unannounced cash consideration was involved. Manager Frank Snyder declared everything in readiness for the start of spring training here Monday. Before the close of the week forty men are expected to be going through their paces.

Tennis Stars Are Victors Saturday

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Mar. 3.—(AP)—Francis T. Hunter, ranking Number 2 American player, and Lawrence Rice of Boston, New England champion, won their semi-final doubles match in the South Florida tennis tournament this afternoon from Jack McKay, Miami Beach, and Carol Turner of Miami, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Waco Batteries to Start Practice Next Wednesday

WACO, Mar. 3.—(AP)—Waco pitchers and catchers have been ordered to report to Katy park for the initial practices of the season, Wednesday afternoon, March 7. Close to a score of prospects will be out that day, and by the end of the week the number will be increased to two dozen. The balance of the candidates will report for duty March 11.

In the mail yesterday was the signed contract of Stein, the southpaw who set the Virginia league afire with his brilliance last year.

Granite and Avery Will Meet First Time on Monday

More gloves will be thrown at the Pampa Athletic club tomorrow night than have been in some time when Kid Granite meets Lou Avery, the Russian Lion of Tulsa, in the ten round main event.

These two boys have never met before, but have both beaten the best in their class. They fight the same style, neither knowing what it means to back up and run. Avery's record includes victories over Don Long, Billy Peltz, Eddie Murdock and other good boys.

The fighting Granite has decisions over Windcat Monte, whom he defeated here last Monday night. Eddie Murdock, Claussine and Bobby Vincent, and many other veterans of the ring. This battle will be a slugging match and either boy might take a count although Granite has yet to leave his feet.

In the semi-final Frankie Farrell, the fighting youngster from Pampa, will tangle with the veteran Battling Young of Borger for eight rounds. Young took the last battle from the Pampa flash but since that time Farrell has found himself and is likely to upset the dope sheet and beat the boy from Borger.

Fete Burkett and Kid Buster, both weighing 140 pounds, will box the special six-round event. Both boys come highly recommended from past performances.

Two other strangers Kid Kolson and Bob White will mix in the preliminary scheduled to go four rounds.

A battle royal will open the big event at 8:30 p. m.

The New Court House Will be Built-WHERE!

Where shall we build the new Court House? This is the question that the voters of Gray County are considering. Soon the voters will go to the polls and register their decisions. It is fair and just that the new Court House be built where it will serve best the greatest number of citizens of the county.

The old wooden Court House at LeFors has served time for more than 25 years. It has become inadequate, out of date, unsanitary, and too great a fire hazard for the county records.

In the last few years the population, wealth and business of Gray County have become so great that the people demand of the county commissioners a more suitable fireproof building for the protection of the county records.

Now, Mr. Voter, let us impress upon your mind that the county commissioners are going to build a new, suitable Court House somewhere in Gray County, and that the proposition will be put up to you in a fair and square way on March 9 to decide where that Court House shall be built. It's your duty as a citizen of this county to study this carefully and ask yourself this question—"Am I making a wise investment in building this building at LeFors, where there is no town, no railroad, no fire protection, no sewer or sanitary conveniences, and a very undesirable place for county officers to live?"

Pampa's claims as a candidate for the county seat will appear on this page tomorrow. Read them!

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR OF THE BENSON MURDER CASE

CHARACTERS
PHILO VANCE
 JOHN P.-X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York County.
 MARGARET ODELL (The "CANARY")
 CHARLES CLEAVER, a man about town
 KENNETH SPOTSWOOD, a manufacturer
 LOUIS MANNIX, an importer
 DEAMBROSE LINDQUIST, a fashionable neurologist
 TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar
 WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator
 HARRY SPIVELEY, telephone operator
 ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the Homicide Bureau.

THE STORY THUS FAR
 Skeel's finger prints were found in the apartment of the murdered Margaret Odell but Vance does not believe him guilty. It is proved later that three other possible suspects had been lying about their whereabouts the night of the murder. The truth comes out that Mannix had been calling on a young lady in the apartment adjoining the "Canary's"; that Cleaver had been in the building around midnight and that Dr. Lindquist, knowing Spotswoode was calling on Margaret Odell, had planned in a jealous fit to kill him when he came out. But this plan was frustrated when Spotswoode jumped into a cab. Skeel telephoned that he will come to the district attorney's office and tell who committed the murder. They wait for him. He does not appear, and when they go to his room they find him dead—strangled, just as Margaret Odell had been.

CHAPTER XLII
 (Saturday, p. m., Monday, a. m., September 16-17)
 The investigation into Skeel's death was pushed with great vigor by the authorities. Doctor Doremus, the medical examiner, arrived promptly and declared that the crime had taken place between ten o'clock and midnight.

Immediately Vance insisted that all the men who were known to have been intimately acquainted with the Odell girl—Mannix, Lindquist, Cleaver, and Spotswoode—be interviewed at once and made to explain where they were during these two hours. Markham agreed without hesitation, and gave the order to Heath, who at once put four of his men on the task.
 Mallory, the detective, who had shadowed Skeel the previous night, was questioned regarding possible visitors; but inasmuch as the house where Skeel lived accommodated over twenty roomers, who were constantly coming and going at all hours, no information could be gained through that channel.

All that Mallory could say definitely was that Skeel had returned home at about ten o'clock, and had not come out again. The landlady, sobered and subdued by the tragedy, repudiated all knowledge of the affair. She explained that she had been "ill" in her room from dinner time until we had disturbed her recuperation the next morning.

The front door, it seemed, was never locked, since her tenants objected to such an unnecessary inconvenience. The tenants themselves were questioned, but without results; they were not of a class likely to give information to the police, even had they possessed any.

The finger-print experts made a careful examination of the room, but failed to find any marks except Skeel's own. A thorough search through the murdered man's effects occupied several hours; but nothing was discovered that gave any hint of the murderer's identity.

A .38 Colt automatic, fully loaded was found under one of the pillows on the bed; and eleven hundred dollars in bills of large denomination, was taken from a hollow brass curtain-rod. Also under a loose board in the hall the missing steel chisel, with the fissure in the blade, was found.

But these items were of no value in solving the mystery of Skeel's death; and at four o'clock in the afternoon the room was closed with an emergency padlock and put under guard.

Markham and Vance and I had remained several hours after our discovery of the body. Markham had taken immediate charge of the case, and had conducted the interrogation of the tenants.

Vance had watched the routine activities of the police with unwonted interest, and had even taken part in the search. He had seemed particularly interested in Skeel's evening clothes, and had examined them garment by garment. Heath had looked at him from time to time, but there had been neither contempt nor amusement in the sergeant's glances.

At half past two Markham departed after informing Heath that he would be at the Stuyvesant Club during the remainder of the day; and Vance and I went with him. We had a belated luncheon in the empty grill.
 "This Skeel episode rather knocks the foundation from under everything," Markham said dispiritedly, as our coffee was served.
 "Oh, no—not that," Vance answered. "Rather, let us say that it has added a new column to the edifice of my giddy theory."

"Our theory—yes, it's about all that's left to go on," Markham sighed. "It has certainly received substantiation this morning. . . Remarkable how you called the turn when Skeel to show up."

Again Vance contradicted him.
 "You over-estimate my little fluter in forensics, Markham dear. You see, I assumed that the lady's stranger knew of Skeel's offer to you. That offer was probably a threat of some kind on Skeel's part; otherwise he wouldn't have set the appointment a day. That would account, too, for his tim of his threat would become amenable in the meantime."

"And that money hidden in the curtain-rod leads me to think he was blackmailing the Canary's murderer, and had been refused a further donation just before he phoned you yesterday. That would account, too, for his having kept his guilty knowledge to himself all this time."

"You may be right. But now we're worse off than ever, for we haven't even Skeel to guide us."

"At least we've forced our elusive culprit to commit a second crime to cover up his first, don't you know. And when we have learned what the Canary's various armists were doing last night between ten and twelve we may have something suggestive on which to work—By the bye, when may we expect this thrilling information?"
 "It depends upon what luck Heath's men have. Tonight some time, if everything goes well."

It was, in fact, about half past eight when Heath telephoned the reports. But here again Markham seemed to have drawn a blank. A less satisfactory account could scarcely be imagined.

Doctor Lindquist had suffered a "nervous stroke" the preceding afternoon, and had been taken to the Episcopal Hospital. He was still here under the care of two eminent physicians whose word it was impossible to doubt; and it would be a week at least before he would be able to resume his work.

This report was the only definite one of the four, and it completely exonerated the doctor from any participation in the previous night's crime.

By a curious coincidence neither Mannix, nor Cleaver, nor Spotswoode could furnish a satisfactory alibi. All three of them, according to their statements, had remained at home the night before. The weather had been inclement; and though Mannix and Spotswoode admitted to having been out earlier in the evening, they stated that they had returned home before ten o'clock.

Mannix lived in an apartment-hotel, and as it was Saturday night the lobby was crowded, so that no one would have been likely to see him come in.

Cleaver lived in a small private apartment-house without a doorman or bellboys to observe his movements.

Spotswoode was staying at the Stuyvesant Club, and since his rooms were on the third floor, he rarely used the elevator. Moreover, there had been a political reception and dance at the club the previous night, and he might have walked in and out at random a dozen times without being noticed.

 "Not what you'd call illuminating," said Vance, when Markham had given him this information.
 "I eliminate Lindquist, at any rate." "Quite. And, automatically, it eliminates him as an object of suspicion in the Canary's death also; for these two crimes are part of a whole—integers of the same problem. They complement each other. The latter was conceived in relation to the first—was, in fact, a logical outgrowth of it."
 Markham nodded.

"That's reasonable enough. Anyway I've passed the combative stage. I think I'll drift for a while on the stream of your theory and see what happens."

"What irks me is the disquieting feeling that positively nothing will happen unless we force the issue. The lad who maneuvered those two obits had real bean in him."

As he spoke Spotswoode entered the room and looked about as if searching for some one. Catching sight of Markham, he came briskly forward, with a look of inquisitive perplexity.

"Forgive me for intruding, sir," he apologized, nodding pleasantly to Vance and me, "but a police officer was here this afternoon inquiring as to my whereabouts last night. It struck me as strange, but I thought little of it until I happened to see the name Tony Skeel in the headlines of a 'special' tonight and read he had been strangled."

"I remember you asked me regarding such a man in connection with Miss Odell, and I wondered if, by any chance, there could be any connection between the two murders, and if I was after all, to be drawn into the affair."

"No, I think not," said Markham. "There seemed a possibility that the two crimes were related; and, as a matter of routine, the police questioned all the close friends of Miss Odell in the hope of turning up something suggestive. You may dismiss the matter from your mind. I trust," he added, "the officer was not unpleasantly importunate."
 "Not at all," Spotswoode's look of anxiety disappeared. "He was extremely courteous but a bit mysterious—Who was this man Skeel?"

 "A half-world character and ex-burglar. He had some hold on Miss Odell, and, I believe, extorted money from her."
 A cloud of angry disgust passed over Spotswoode's face.
 "A creature like that deserves the fate that overtook him."
 We chatted on various matters until ten o'clock, when Vance rose and gave Markham a reproachful look.
 "I'm going to try to recover some lost sleep. I'm temperamentally unfitted for a policeman's life."

All-Holstein Milk Used by Physicians

Local physicians are recommending the new all-Holstein milk being produced by the Taylor Farm Dairy for children and invalids. Some children and invalids cannot drink milk with a large percentage of butter fat such as Jersey or mixed milk. O. R. Parks, who has had fifteen years dairy experience, is in charge of the dairy, and is specializing in the new Holstein milk. All the Holstein cows in the large Taylor herd are milked separately and 30 minutes after milking by machine the milk is chilled and bottled. The entire herd has health certificates, and is milked under the best sanitary conditions. Inspection of the herd and quarters is invited.

REVENUE OFFICER HELPS IN INCOME TAX FILING

J. B. Littlebridge of Amarillo, with the internal revenue service, was here Friday and Saturday assisting local people with their income tax returns. His service was free in helping citizens determine their tax liability. Income tax reports must be filed with the income tax bureau by March 15. Willful failure to make a return involves a possible fine of up to $10,000 or a year in jail, or both.

In connection with farm production returns, the revenue department is urging that farmers use what is known as Form 1040, from which the income tax statements can easily be taken at the end of each year. This form may be obtained by writing to the U. S. department of Internal Revenue at Washington. Mr. Littlebridge and others of the Amarillo office are making visits to all Panhandle towns.

The members of the Azor class of the Baptist church will entertain Wednesday afternoon at tea from 3 to 5 o'clock, in the home of Mrs. G. C. Malone on North Somerville. Each Azor is asked to bring three guests.

P. H. Shumaker is in the hospital seriously ill.

said the obtaining of a second railroad would mean that others, when built, will come here.

P. B. Mooney, chairman of one of the county seat election committees, said he had talked to many of the residents of South Pampa and found them for removal. F. T. Mason, former city councilman, said Pampa will be unanimous for moving the county seat. He said there will be men designated in each block in his part of South Pampa to get out the vote on election day. He praised the calibre of the former city council and present city commission, and said their attitudes had always been for the good of Pampa as a whole. He also spoke strongly in favor of taking advantage of the opportunity presented by Frank Kell's railroad proposal.

Mayor Hobart recalled his early connection with the Pampa territory, and how 45 years ago he checked the deed on 631,000 acres of the White Deer Lands, with which he later became connected as local manager. He said his commission had employed City Manager Cavin and ordered him to work for the good of Pampa, without reference to any part whatever. He recalled a former county seat election, in which Alanreed fought for the county seat as strongly as she is now fighting Pampa's bid. "We are going to raise this $50,000 and get the Kell railroad," asserted J. N. Duncan, finance chairman of that drive. He urged all who have not done so to call at the Chamber of Commerce and file their subscription. In speaking of the county seat, he said it would be very expensive to freight building material to LeFors for a new courthouse. He also said better government should result from removal.

R. R. Rieves and C. S. Rice of McLean and W. J. Ball of Alanreed attended the meeting, and Mr. Ball spoke briefly. The Alanreed man said he has many friends in Pampa, and if the county seat is moved here he will be a game loser. He opposes removal on the grounds that to do so will make south county people drive further to court, that there should be equal rights to all and special privileges to none, and that taxes likely would be raised. He said, however, that he realized a new courthouse is badly needed.

Ivey Duncan commended Mr. Ball's public spirit, and chided him for, in a previous election, working for removal to McLean as hard as he is now fighting removal to Pampa. C. H. Sharpe predicted removal by a large majority, and V. E. Fatherson urged a unanimous vote for Pampa, a city in the center of 80 per cent of the population and taxable property. It was humorously suggested that Pampa trade any contrary citizens for those who vote for removal in south Gray county.
