County OKs new employee

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners gave County Clerk Susan Winborne approval this morning to hire an employee to replace one who retired at the end of April.

Commissioners met at 9 a.m. today in the second-floor courtroom of the county courthouse.

Winborne had asked permission to hire a replacement for Carolyn Law at commissioners' April 1 meeting. Commissioners asked her at that meeting to try working without a replacement for a short period of time to see whether her office could function sufficiently well with fewer staff.

"We have tried it for a month and a half. I feel like we're getting further behind all the time," Winborne told commissioners this morning.

A new arrangement for maintaining the proper amount of collateralization through bond transactions was approved.

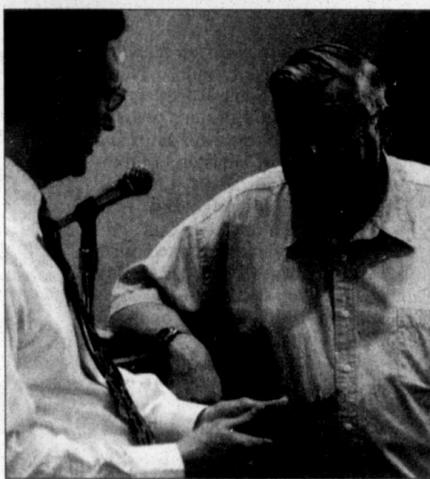

Prior to this morning's approval, County Judge Richard Peet and County Treasurer Lee Cornelison reviewed and approved sales of bonds held by the county before such sales could be completed for the purpose of collateralization.

"I opened and viewed the software this week, and it's really wonderful. With this new system, Bank of America (the county's bank depository) is tied in directly with the Bank of New York. Balances, purchases, sales, and so on occur instantly. It's not a waiting game like before. Our current method of doing sales includes a delay," Cornelison told commissioners.

Bond transactions under the newly approved method would not have to wait for written approval before being completed.

A contract with the state Attorney General's office was extended through Aug. 31, 2006.

New heater for city pool subject of special meeting

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

The Pampa City Commission was expected to meet in emergency session at noon today to approve a new heater for the M.K. Brown Swimming Pool.

City Commissioner Lana Miller noted during the commission's regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday that her family uses the pool and that the heater isn't working.

Shane Stokes, who oversees the pool for the city, said the heater is out.

He said that the commission had budgeted money for a number of repairs at the pool this year, but those budget items did not include repairing or replacing the heater. Stokes said he had hoped they could get by for one more year before having to replace the heater.

"It's useful life is over," Stokes told the commission.

A new heater will cost $18,000 including installation, he said, and will take three to four weeks to get one and install it.

Swimming Coach Greg Miller appeared before the commission with a request to fix the heater.

"The kids are freezing to death," he said.

Because it was not on the commission's agenda as an action item, they called a special meeting for today in order to approve the purchase and installation of a new heater.

"This is an emergency situation," said Commissioner Ray Boring. "We need to fix the heater."

Horst said that because of increased sales tax revenues the city had surplus funds for the purchase.

In other business, the commission heard a report on having a booth at the Texas Municipal League convention in October in Dallas.

"We're not a beach-front city," said City Manager John Horst, "but we have a lot to offer."

City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers suggested playing a video that the Pampa Chamber of

Hoover VFD gets grant for new truck

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Hoover Volunteer Fire Department has been awarded a $54,000 grant from the Texas Forestry Service for a new fire truck.

"This will be our first new truck. We've never had a new truck before," said Hoover VFD Fire Chief Joe Millican at this morning's Gray County commissioners' meeting when he announced the grant.

The truck will be used to fight grass and brush fires in rural areas of Gray and Roberts counties.

"It will take about five to six months to put together the truck components and get it built. We have to decide what size tanks, which truck, and all the components. We'll have to put it together ourselves," Millican said.

The grant is a 90/10 split, meaning that Hoover VFD will have to pay about $5,400 of the total cost of the new truck in order to use the grant money.

"This is not taxpayers' money. It is coming through insurance compa-

Hemphill Co. water district juggles competing interests

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

CANADIAN — A management plan was the main topic of conversation at the Hemphill County Underground Water Conservation District Tuesday night.

With both Mesa Water, Inc., and the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority bidding on water rights in Hemphill County, the water district's management plan is key to water development projects there.

Following a three-hour management plan work session with the district's manager and board of directors, Bob Harden, an Austin hydrologist familiar with the Ogallala Aquifer, commended the district for their openness and willingness to hear and discuss a variety of ideas.

"They purposefully started with a clean slate," Harden said. "They're working diligently through the process."

He said he thinks the district will develop a management plan that will balance various competing interests.

Harden has been hired by Mesa Water to monitor the district's rule-making process.

Mesa Water, headed by Roberts County rancher and Dallas businessman Boone Pickens, is buying water rights in an effort to sell water downstate to San Antonio or cities in the Metroplex area.

The Canadian River Municipal Water Authority provides water to its 11 member cities, including Pampa.

Both entities have extensive water rights in Roberts County.

Mesa recently announced the purchase of 90,000 acres of water in Gray and Roberts counties and 10,000 acres of water rights in Hemphill County. The purchase is contingent on the landowners being able to obtain well permits.

Consumer prices drop last month

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices fell 0.1 percent in May, the first decline in 10 months as energy prices retreated after a big run-up in the previous three months. The Labor Department reported Wednesday that the decline in its closely watched Consumer Price Index followed big gains of 0.4 percent in February, 0.6 percent in March and 0.5 percent in April. Those increases had been driven by a surge in energy costs this year as crude oil prices hit all-time highs in early April. Analysts had expected inflation would moderate in May, given recent declines in energy prices, but the outright drop came as a surprise. They had been forecasting a small 0.1 percent increase. Outside of food and energy, inflation remained well contained as well with a modest increase of just 0.1 percent. Another government report showed that production at the nation's factories, mines and utilities rose a solid 0.4 percent in May, reversing a 0.3 percent decline in April. The increase reflected a big 0.6 percent jump in output in manufacturing as auto production stopped falling and other sectors actually posted increases. Output at the nation's mines, a category that includes oil production, rose by 0.1 percent while production at utility plants fell by 0.7 percent after an even bigger 2.4 percent decline in April. The 0.4 percent overall gain in industrial production was double the 0.2 percent increase that economists had been expecting. It left U.S. industry operating at 79.4 percent of capacity in May, up from an operating rate of 79.1 percent in April. The moderation in inflation pressures in May helped boost the incomes of American workers. Weekly earnings of nonsupervisory workers after adjusting for inflation rose by 0.3 percent in May compared to April. That gain followed three straight monthly declines. However, workers' weekly pay is 0.3 percent lower than it was a year ago. The Commerce Department reported that business inventories held on shelves and backlogs rose by 0.3 percent, a slowdown from the gains of the previous several months. Analysts are looking for inventory building, which added significantly to economic growth in the first quarter, to slow in the current quarter.

NASA installs safer fuel tank on shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA returned the space shuttle Discovery to the launch pad today for the first mission since the Columbia disaster, after replacing the external fuel tank with a new model designed to prevent dangerous ice buildup. Shuttle managers are aiming for a liftoff as early as July 13. Discovery's four-mile trek from the assembly building to the launch pad aboard the giant shuttle transporter took more than nine hours. The morning trip was halted several times because of overheated bearings in the transporter, and the speed fell below the usual mile per hour. "A little bit of deja vu — we've done this before, we're doing it again," vehicle manager Stephanie Stilson said as Discovery crept to the pad. The shuttle team was disheartened when it had to haul Discovery off the pad last month for more work, but understood it was the right thing to do, Stilson said. "Today was not quite the excitement of the first time, but still, what a great thrill to be back on track, moving in the right direction, getting ready for launch, getting back out to the pad," she said. Discovery was transported to the pad in April but removed May 26 after NASA determined that potentially deadly pieces of ice could form over an expansion joint on the external fuel tank after the super-chilled fuel was loaded. Managers decided to install a heater at the joint, located along the feed line for liquid oxygen. Falling chunks of ice could be even more menacing than pieces of the fuel tank's insulating foam, which was responsible for Columbia's destruction during re-entry and the deaths of seven astronauts 2 1/2 years ago. Because of their focus on keeping big chunks of foam from coming off the tank during liftoff, engineers did not realize the ice threat until April. NASA replaced Discovery's fuel tank with one intended for Atlantis on the second post-Columbia flight, because it was quicker to add a heater to the expansion joint on that second tank. Discovery also got the two booster rockets intended for Atlantis. Stilson said Discovery should now be the safest shuttle to ever fly, with all the other safety modifications made in the wake of the Columbia catastrophe. NASA is still assessing the potential danger of ice buildup on brackets on the tank. Options for reducing that risk include using infrared lamps at the pad or putting bags over the brackets. Discovery's 12-day mission to the international space station is considered a test flight because of all the changes.

'Today was not quite the excitement of the first time, but still, what a great thrill to be back on track, moving in the right direction, getting ready for launch, getting back out to the pad' nies," he said of the Forestry Service grant funds. Hoover VFD applied for the grant last year, and was notified last week that they had been awarded the funds, Millican said. "We're still running about 30 firemen at this time. Twelve are signed to go to municipal fire school this year," he said. The department has responded to 33 calls for fiscal 2005, which began last October, he said. "We've had some good response from our rural citizens. They've been pleased. "We still have to work on dispatch. Communications is always a problem," Millican told commissioners. "The department was very fortunate in receiving this grant. They were one of many volunteer fire departments who applied," he said.

Under the contract, the district clerk's office collects child support payments for the attorney general's office in return for a handling fee paid to the county by the attorney general.

There are about 150 child-support cases in which the district clerk's office collects the payments, said District Clerk Gaye Honderich at this morning's meeting.

Commissioners approved Sheriff Don Copeland's request to renew his contract with Dobson Cellular for cell phone service.

Precinct 4 Commissioner James Hefley's completion of his 2004 continuing education was recognized.

A request from Jerry O'Neal to cross County Road N with a gas line was approved.

Action on opening bids for imaging records was deferred until a future meeting.

The county treasurer's report was approved. Total current assets, excluding courthouse restoration funds, was $5,292,168.65 as of May 31, Cornelison said.

Bills totaling $149,961.44 and salaries of $205,937.49 were approved for payment.

Line item transfers for 223rd District Court, the veterans service officer, White Deer Land Museum, the Precinct 2 justice of the peace, and the county auditor were approved.

Miscellaneous announcements included an emergency responders' training and damage prevention class, to be held in July at M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium, and the June 28 groundbreaking in Amarillo of the Texas Veterans Land Board's new retirement center.

Commissioners discussed a written request by Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley for a 3.5 percent pay raise "to reward good employees at his discretion," said Precinct 2 Commissioner Gary Willoughby, who reported on the request as the county's representative on the appraisal district board.

Cop Corner

I hope everyone enjoyed the "Burning of the Bricks." From a law enforcement perspective, we had very few problems. This is a credit to the organizers, the fans, and the participants. One of the things that made this year's celebration easy for me was the role our non-paid voluntary officers played during the weekend. Currently we have four sworn officers who perform police duties on a part time basis. Very soon, the number will increase to five. Each of these officers has met the same requirements as a sworn, full-time Pampa Police Officer. Three of the officers are past employees of the department. The most known of these officers is Ken Hall. Most of you know Ken as the Emergency Management Coordinator for Gray County. Since I joined the department, Ken has served as the interim Police Chief on two occasions. For those of you cruisin' on Saturday night, another officer volunteer, Chad Johnson was on bike patrol. On Sunday, at Recreation Park, the "toughest" of our volunteers, Collin Jordan, braved the rain and highway traffic to help ensure there were no accidents at the entrance to the park. Actually, Officer Jordan may not be the toughest, but he is able to shed water better than most. These officers are a great asset to the community and the department. My hat goes off to them for their service.

Commerce has and passing out pins.

"I think it's a good opportunity," Boring said.

Horst, however, recommended putting on hold a decision to present the City of Pampa on an internet website called Mayor.TV.

The website, funded by advertising from local merchants, shows streaming videos of cities. Horst said Woodward, Okla., and Arlington, are on the website, but in talking to other cities, he said he had run into complaints from merchants concerning the advertising banners and from city officials concerning the quality of the videos.

Mayor Lonny Robbins said he was not impressed with the quality of the videos.

Pampa Fire Chief Kim Powell told the commission that the city had gotten a $193,500 grant to buy another new fire truck. The city's part of the matching grant would be about $50,000.

The city just got a new fire truck this spring for $240,000. Chief Powell said that price could be locked in if the commission decided to make the purchase soon.

"We have not bought a truck in 17 years," Powell said.

It will take 180 days from order to delivery, she said.

The commission also began work on next year's budget.

At the end of last fiscal year, Horst said, the general fund had a $2.1 million surplus. He's projecting a $2.3 million surplus for this fiscal year.

Using conservative figures, Horst estimated next year's budget at about $9 million.

former city commissioner

"We're looking good," Horst told the commission.

He said there was money that would cover over three months of the city's operations in case of emergency.

"If we had a tremendous emergency," Horst said, "we could deal with it."

Prior to Tuesday's city commission meeting, the city held a reception for two former commissioners.

Robert Dixon, who served on the commission for 16 years, and Jeff McCormick, who served for 10 years, were honored.

Dixon said he was proud that the Pampa Economic Development Corporation was established on his watch. It brought two dairies and the prison to town, he said.

McCormick said he was proud of the work the city had done on the streets and purchasing a new fire truck while he was on the commission.

"I wish the present commission all the luck," Dixon said. "God bless Pampa."

Mayor Robbins commended them both for their dedication to Pampa.

Both were defeated in last month's city elections.

sending the Hemphill County landowners wanting to sell water to Mesa, wants the Hemphill County Underground Water Conservation District to develop a system similar to that of neighboring water district, the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, which regulates water in Roberts and Gray counties.

Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District issues an initial production permit, which allows the landowner to sell certain water rights, but then requires a production permit from any developer that plans a water project to transport water out of the district.

Janet Guthrie, general manager of the Hemphill

Underground Water Conservation District, said that no decisions have been made concerning the proposed management plan, but she said that the district would like to submit the plan to the Texas Water Development Board by the end of August.

The plan has to meet the goals and guidelines of the Regional Planning Group.

The problem the district is facing is that little research has been done on the aquifer beneath Hemphill County, the Ogallala.

While there is some data available at the state level, more recent research locally indicates that the older information may be questionable.

Harden noted that a recent test well by Mesa found a 600-foot thickness of saturated sand no one knew was there.

Best things in life may be right beside you

The average person today lives approximately 25,500 days. When putting the length of life into days, it makes one realize just how short life is. During the last days of your life, however, what will you look back on and think of as the best things in life? What will stand out? What will bring a smile to your face upon life reflection?

I've been fortunate in my life to live in different areas, different cultures, and even different countries. Blessed with the opportunity to travel, I've been to 36 U.S. states and 23 foreign countries — living in two of them: Mexico and England. After seeing all of these places, it is easy for me to say the Panhandle of Texas is so rich with the best things in life. But no matter where I go, there are some very common expressions I hear, even when living in Pampa or Canyon. One common human imposed limitation I have heard is "I'm only from (fill in the blank)," implying that since they were from that town, that area, they were limited in life in what could be done. In high school I often heard, "I can't wait to leave this town!" implying the grass is greener on the other side. I have heard that same saying numerous times during my travels, and especially while living in England. No matter where people are from, there are many who think the same thing: Life must be better somewhere else.

Interestingly, being overseas has given me an even greater appreciation of what the best things in life really are and it has given me a better realization of what we have in the United States. In much of the world's perspective, the greener grass is the United States.

Currently in the midst of an international MBA program in Northern England, I am one of 43 students from 15 different nations, many of whom have lived in the U.S., many others who dream of living there someday. But

I've come to learn that no matter where you are from, where you are going, or what you have been through, the best things in life are usually taken for granted and sometimes not even realized until it is too late. Love, family, friends and the opportunity we all have everyday to make a positive difference in someone else's life — these are the best things in life. The best things in life are intangible — cannot be seen, but only felt.

Consider for a moment a time in your life that brings a smile to your face. A fond memory from your childhood, or a feeling from a deep love — or something special that someone did for you, or something special you did to help someone else. Is your thought of a possession? Is our thought of money? An asset? A stock? A bond? A mutual fund? Probably not. I would guess your special memory is of love or friendship, or something someone did that was special to you, or something great that you have accomplished or were a part of. What a precious, precious lesson to learn — it is not where you are from or what you have, the best things in life are priceless — and many times unexplainable to others. It is an experience. A feeling. It is love.

Instead of always looking for greener pastures, what might be more fulfilling is to look around you and give that special someone a big hug, send a special thank you to members of your

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, June 15, the 166th day of 2005. There are 199 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 15, 1215, England's King John put his seal to Magna Carta (the Great Charter) at Runnymede.

On this date:

In 1520, Pope Leo X threatened to excommunicate Martin Luther if he did not recant his religious beliefs.

In 1775, the Second Continental Congress voted unanimously to appoint George Washington head of the Continental Army.

In 1836, Arkansas became the 25th state.

In 1844, Charles Goodyear received a patent for his process to strengthen rubber.

In 1849, James Polk, the 11th president of the United States, died in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1864, Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton signed an order establishing a military burial ground, which became Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1904, more than a thousand people died when fire erupted aboard the steamboat General Slocum in New York's East River.

In 1944, American forces began their successful invasion of Saipan during World War II. Meanwhile, B-29 Superfortresses made their first raids on Japan.

In 1978, King Hussein of Jordan married 26-year-old American Lisa Halaby, who became Queen Noor.

In 1994, Israel and the Vatican established full diplomatic relations.

Ten years ago: President Clinton met with Japanese Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama on the opening day of a Group of Seven summit in Halifax, Nova Scotia. At the O.J. Simpson murder trial, Simpson struggled to don a pair of gloves that prosecutors said were worn the night Simpson's ex-wife, Nicole, and her friend Ronald Goldman were murdered.

Five years ago: Al Gore named Commerce Secretary William Daley to take over his presidential campaign, replacing Tony Coelho, who had abruptly resigned, citing health problems. Denis Savard, Joe Mullen and Walter L. Bush Jr. were selected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

One year ago: The Southern Baptist Convention quit a global federation of Baptist denominations as SBC leaders denounced the Baptist World Alliance and other groups for accepting liberal theology. Tim Berners-Lee received the $1.2 million Millennium Technology Prize in Helsinki, Finland, for creating the World Wide Web.

Government does not own us

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), an office within the U.S. Department of Transportation, just finished its annual campaign to get us to wear our seatbelts under a program called "Click It or Ticket." States receive federal subsidies to ticket drivers if they or their passengers are not buckled up.

Some states, such as Maryland, are so eager that they've equipped their officers with night vision goggles, similar to those used by our servicemen in Iraq. Maryland state troopers bagged 44 drivers traveling unbuckled under the cover of darkness. The NHTSA's "Click It or Ticket" program is another step toward making Americans serfs of the state.

Let's look at it. I personally believe that wearing seatbelts is a good idea, and I buckle up and remind my passengers to do so as well. Because seatbelt usage saves lives, mandating such is an abomination in a free society. There are many other legislative actions that are offensive to liberty and can have saving as their justification, a matter I'll turn to later. But let's talk about the immorality of mandated seatbelt usage.

Let's start with the question: Who owns Walter E. Williams? Is it President Bush, the U.S. Congress, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or do I own myself? I'm guessing that any reasonable person would agree that I own Walter E. Williams. The fact that I own myself means that I have the right to take risks with my own life but not others'. That's why it's consistent with morality to mandate that my car have working brakes. If my car doesn't have working brakes, then I risk the lives of others, and I have no right to do so. If I choose not to wear a seatbelt, then I risk my own life, which I have every right to do.

Blair gets more platitudes than pledges

Tony Blair must be miffed. The British prime minister has been dancing on a political hot plate and endures a reduced majority in Parliament because he supported the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq. But when he came to Washington last Tuesday to ask Bush for a hand with his Africa relief plan, Blair got more platitudes than pledges.

Blair wants the wealthy nations that make up the Group of Eight, when its leaders meet July 6-8 in Gleneagles, Scotland, to sign off on forgiving the international debt that cripples Africa's poorest nations. On Saturday, finance ministers from the G-8 agreed to write off more than $40 billion of debt.

Blair also wants G-8 nations to double the amount of aid they provide Africa during the next five years. And he proposes to jumpstart African economic development by boosting access to international markets.

U.S. humanitarian aid to Africa has tripled to $3.2 billion under the Bush administration. But measured against what he asked for, Blair got little from the United States no buy-in on the plan to squeeze an additional $25 billion a year in aid from the world's most highly industrialized nations, and no support for creating an International Finance Facility to raise monetary aid through the sale of bonds that could be paid off with future development appropriations.

Instead, Bush promised $674 million in food aid for the famine victims in Eritrea, Ethiopia and Somalia. Congress already appropriated the money, but has not earmarked it for specific countries.

"Our country ... has taken the lead in Africa, and we'll stay there," Bush told reporters after his meeting with Blair. If only that were the case.

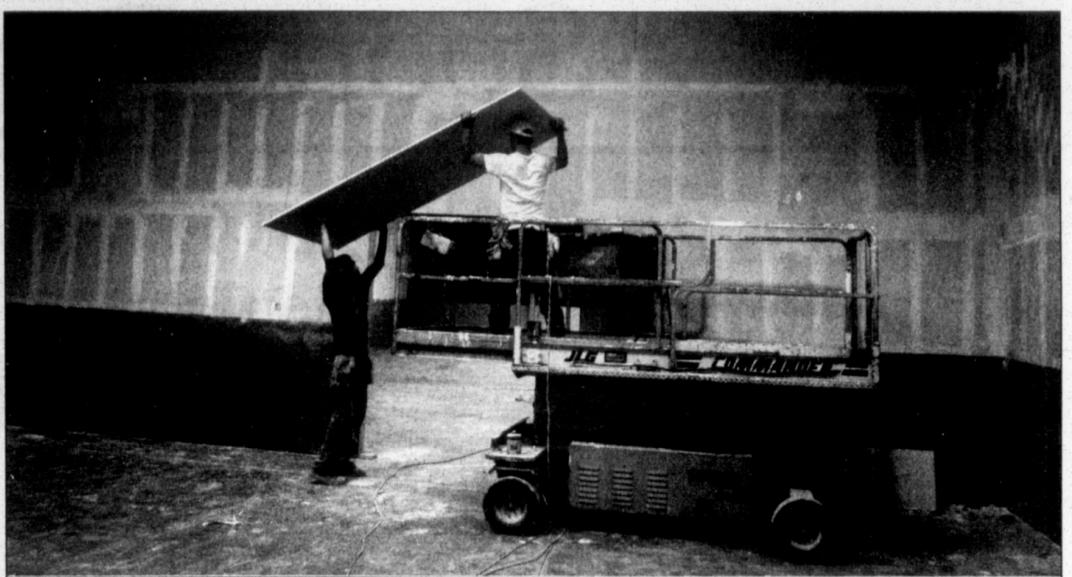

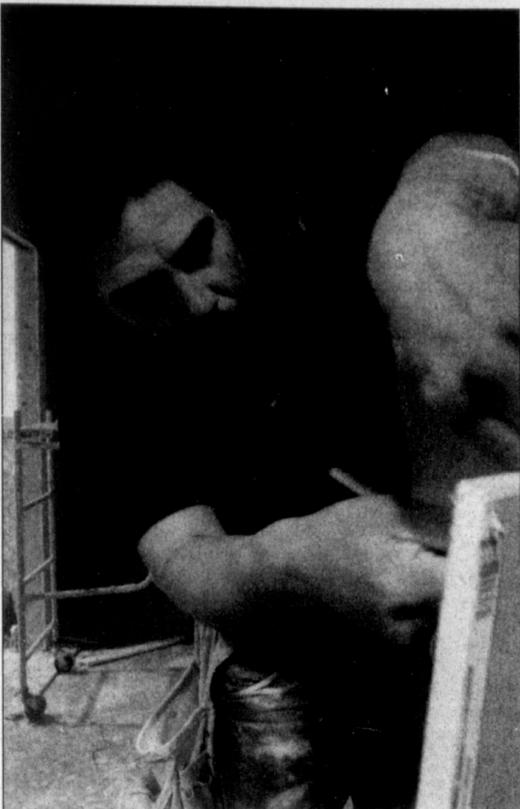

To his credit, Bush supports the debt relief plan and has dispatched two senior White House advisers, Michael J. Gerson and Kristen Silverberg, to Africa to assess his anti-AIDS initiative and other humanitarian programs. However, U.S. aid levels, as a percentage of gross domestic product, lag far behind those of other wealthy nations.

Blair developed his plan with the Commission for

Major quake rocks northern California coast

Tremors prompt brief tsunami warning, evacuation of residents

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A powerful earthquake jolted the ocean floor off the Northern California coast, triggering a brief tsunami warning that sent thousands of residents evacuating a community that was hit by a killer wave four decades ago.

The feared tsunami did not materialize, and there were no reports of significant damage or injuries.

The 7.0-magnitude quake struck at around 7:50 p.m.

Tuesday, 300 miles northwest of San Francisco and about 90 miles southwest of the coastal community of Crescent City, where a 1964 tsunami killed 11 people, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

A tsunami warning was briefly in effect from the California-Mexico border north to Vancouver Island, British Columbia.

The tsunami siren system in Crescent City was activated at 8:14 p.m. and continued for about 40 minutes, Del Norte County Sheriff Dean Wilson said. About 4,000 people were evacuated.

Wilson reported some minor traffic accidents but no injuries. He said it was the third evacuation he has taken part in of his 27 years in law enforcement.

The evacuation served as a tsunami drill for Crescent City following December's devastating wave in the Indian Ocean.

"You have a short time frame to deal with it," Wilson said. "We had approximately 20 minutes to evacuate and we cleared out about 4,000 people. There was some disruption of phone service, which hampered the effort. But we had a great response from volunteers, local enforcement and the CHP (California Highway Patrol)."

Xiojin Yuan, owner of the beachfront Hampton Inn and Suites in Crescent City, said police told him to evacuate the 53-room hotel. "People evacuated in a really orderly way," he said.

The only tsunami on record that has caused deaths on the West Coast struck Crescent City with 20 feet of water and leveled 29 city blocks on March 28, 1964.

That tsunami, caused by the Good Friday quake in Alaska, also was blamed for more than 100 deaths in Alaska and four people in Oregon.

The wave also caused damage in San Francisco Bay and at the Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors.

family, or simply look for ways to help another fellow human being.

God's commandment to us to love our neighbors as ourselves is not intended to hinder our lives, but to enrich it; because the truth is, the best things in life are derived from love. And love is the greatest gift from God. In fact, the Bible says "God is love."

The Beatles sang a song just down the road from where I am right now that said "All you need is love." How true. How true. The wonderful thing about precious memories is that when you go through life's valleys and difficult times, a smile can quickly return to your inner soul by remembering what truly are the best things in life. Let's make the most of those 25,500 days on earth and focus on the things that really count. God bless.

Of course, if it's stipulated that President Bush, the Congress or the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania owns me, I have no such right; I'd be risking their property. Some might rejoin by saying, "Williams, if you're not wearing a seatbelt, and don't do us the favor of dying in an accident and become an incapacitated vegetable, society will have to bear the expense of taking care of you." That's not a problem of liberty and self-ownership. It's a problem of socialism.

There's no moral case for forcing anyone to care for me for any reason. When we buy into socialism, we buy into paternalistic government. It reminds me of what my mother used to say during my rebellious adolescent years: "Boy, as long as you're living in my house and I'm paying the bills, you're going to do what I say!" Paternalism is OK for children, but is it suitable for adults? For those who agree with "Click It or Ticket" because it saves lives, would they agree with other possible lifesaving mandates?

Each year, obesity claims the lives of 300,000 Americans and adds over $100 billion to health care costs. Should government enforce a 2,000-calorie intake limit per day? There's absolutely no dietary reason to add salt to our meals. Salt can lead to hypertension-induced heart attacks that kill thousands. Should government outlaw salt consumption? Sedentary lifestyles have been shown to lead to shorter and less healthy lives. Should there be government-mandated exercise programs?

The justifications used for "Click It or Ticket" can easily provide the template for government control of our diets and other lifestyle features. Maybe I'm a bit out of touch with today's Americans. With the silence in the face of attacks on Burger King and McDonald's, alleging they cause obesity, maybe Americans are pining for more government control over their lives

-- and "Click It Or Ticket" is just softening up the rest of us for what lies ahead in the future.

Africa, a group that includes the continent's government and finance leaders. Regrettably, those leaders have been unable or unwilling to rein in the worst of their peers, who do more harm to their people than any indirect misery caused by insufficient U.S. assistance.

Zimbabwe's President Robert Mugabe is on a brutal campaign to destroy the country's shantytowns. His dictatorial oppression has turned the country, once southern Africa's breadbasket, into a catalyst for famine that threatens millions in the region.

South African President Thabo Mbeki, who met with Bush in Washington earlier this month to ask for increased African aid, refused to acknowledge genocide in Sudan's Darfur region. If African leaders will not recognize and condemn the mass murder and ethnic cleansing that are causing suffering for millions, any hope for progress must be tempered.

Blair and Bush both insist that African countries deal with corruption and embrace democracy as a condition of receiving the additional assistance. That's as it must be. But one can't help but ache for the millions of Africans who despair that relief is contingent upon a decision by corrupt and oppressive leaders to change their evil ways.

Cabot tops Rotary Club 10-9; elimination game set for tonight

Garrett Sewell lined a double over the right fielder's head to bring home Mitch Simon from second and give Cabot Corporation a pulsating 10-9 victory over stubborn Rotary Club in the bottom of the sixth inning in Optimist 11-12 City Tournament action Tuesday.

Cabot will play Duncan, Fraser & Bridges Insurance Agency in an elimination game today at 7:45 p.m. following a Celanese Corporation and Glo-Valve Service winners' bracket game at 5:45 p.m.

Simon was hit by a pitch to open Cabot's half of the sixth inning. He moved to second on a wild pitch and stayed there after an infield single by Ryan Smith. Rotary had tied the score at nine in the top of the sixth on walks to Ryan Pearson and Trent Carter, a passed ball and a ground out RBI hit by Cody Cole.

Rotary scored first in the first inning on walks to Carter, Braxton Reagan and Ian Smith and a wild pitch. Cabot tied the score in the bottom of the inning with walks to Steven Botello, Chase Ferguson and Sewell sandwiched around Ryan Smith's being hit by a pitch.

In the third inning Rotary took the lead. Channan Clendennen was hit by a pitch and was sacrificed to second by Reagan. Ian Smith singled up the middle to bring in Clendennen.

He went to second on an error, stole third and scored when Cole Wilson was safe on an error. Wilson was cut down at third trying to steal. Sam Cain kept the rally going with a walk and came around to score on a passed ball, a wild pitch and a throwing error to give Rotary a 4-1 lead.

Cabot got two of the runs back in the bottom of the third on walks to Ferguson, Simon and Sewell followed by two wild pitches. Rotary increased its lead to 6-3 in the fourth inning. Carter opened with a double to left field. Cole was hit by a pitch. Clendennen forced Carter at third. Cole stole third and scored on Reagan's infield single.

Clendennen raced home on an infield hit by Wilson.

A six-run rally by Cabot in the bottom of the fourth gave Cabot a 9-6 lead. Lane Dyer was safe on an error after his hit bounded off the first base bag. Botello walked. Kyler Patton was safe on an error to load the bases. Ferguson blasted a two-run double to left. Simon singled Patton in. Ferguson scored on a passed ball. Walks to Ryan Smith and Sewell and three passed balls allowed tallies from Simon, Ferguson and Ryan Smith.

Rotary edged closer in the fifth inning scoring twice when Carter was hit by a pitch and Cole walked. They scored after a throwing error, two wild pitches and an RBI single by Wilson to set up the dramatic sixth inning for both teams.

Ferguson, who relieved Botello in the fifth inning, was the winning pitcher. He allowed three runs and one hit. He struck out six, walked five and hit two batters. Botello gave up six runs on five hits. He walked seven, hit three and struck out nine.

Carter and Cole pitched for Rotary. Carter surrendered four runs and Cole six. Cabot made two hits off Carter and two off Cole. Carter walked six, hit a batter and struck out six in two and two-thirds innings. Cole walked five and struck out six in two and one-third innings.

The defensive play of the game was made by Rotary's Dustin Whinery, who made a sliding catch of a fly ball on the right field line in the first inning.

Ferguson led Cabot's offensive production with three walks, a double, two runs scored and two RBI. Sewell had three walks, two RBI and the game-winning double for Cabot. Wilson, with a pair of hits and a pair of RBI, was the leading hitter for Rotary.

FORMER BAYLOR PLAYER SENTENCED

Dotson receives 35 years for killing teammate

WACO, Texas (AP) — Former Baylor basketball player Carlton Dotson was sentenced to 35 years in prison Wednesday, a week after he unexpectedly pleaded guilty to murdering his teammate two years ago.

Dotson, 23, faced from five years to life in prison for killing Patrick Dennehy, 21, who was missing for six weeks before his body was found in field a few miles from campus in July 2003. On June 8, five days before his murder trial was to start, Dotson pleaded guilty without a sentencing deal with prosecutors.

Instead of hearing from witnesses Wednesday, state District Judge Ralph Strother made his decision based on documents filed by prosecutors and defense attorneys.

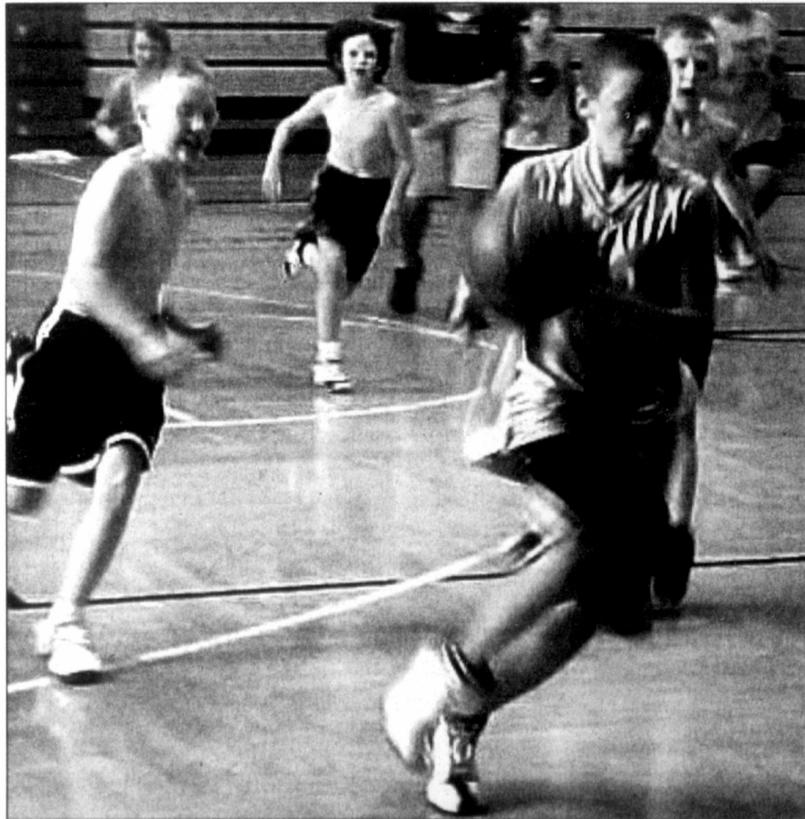

Part of the prosecution's report included FBI documents detailing Dotson's confession, in which he said "a higher power told him to talk to the FBI" and told authorities where to look for Dennehy. The body was found a few days later.

Dotson told agents that he thought people were trying to kill him because "he is Jesus, the son of God." Dotson, who moved in with Dennehy in May 2003, said he had received threatening telephone calls and that the two bought guns for protection.

He told FBI agents that on June 11, Dennehy pointed a gun at him after the pair went to gravel pits for target practice. When Dennehy's gun jammed, Dotson said "Father, please forgive me," and shot his friend. He then went to pack his belongings, called a relative to wire him money and drove home to Maryland, throwing the gun in a lake along the way.

But the autopsy doesn't support his self-defense claim. Dennehy was shot twice: once above the right ear and once behind it toward the back of the head.

Last fall, Dotson was found incompetent to stand trial and was sent to a state mental hospital. He was released and returned to jail in February after a hospital psychologist said Dotson was competent but must continue to take anti-psychotic medication.

Game 3: Pistons 96, Spurs 79

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs should have known they were in trouble when they saw the hair.

On his wife's orders, Ben Wallace had his famously shaggy mane teased to its full, glorious height before Game 3 of the NBA Finals — and the face beneath the 'fro was all grim determination.

"She said, 'Let your hair down and go out there and play some basketball, or else you can't eat,'" Wallace recalled.

The Detroit Pistons, a collection of castoffs turned into resilient champions, are at their best when they're playing as if their dinners depend on it. Down 0-2 in the best-of-seven series, they essentially had to win their first game back home.

And with a hair-raising passion they lacked last week, the Pistons beat the Spurs 96-79 Tuesday night.

The defending champs got 24 points from a revitalized Richard Hamilton, 20 points and seven assists from big-game guard Chauncey Billups — and a spur to excellence from Wallace, their defensive leader.

When Wallace stole the game's opening pass and roared downcourt for a dunk, he reminded the Spurs that Detroit's veteran roster still knows what's necessary to win in June. Wallace was all over the court, even by his own athletic standards: He blocked five shots in the first quarter, then added a decisive dunk in the fourth.

"There really wasn't a message,"

Billups said. "We all knew how big this game was. You know the kind of desperation. You've got to play without fear. It was really just a silent message going around."

Perhaps that's because the Pistons couldn't hear each other over their deafening home crowd. Detroit's fans were their usual raucous selves, breathing life into their team with every standing ovation.

The Pistons harnessed that energy in the early minutes and again in the fourth quarter, when they put away the game with all the ruthlessness shown by the Spurs last week in San Antonio.

After the Spurs seemed capable of sweeping the finals during two convincing victories in Texas, Detroit trimmed San Antonio's lead in the best-of-seven series to 2-1.

Game 4 is Thursday night, with Game 5 on Sunday.

Almost nothing about Game 3 resembled the first two, when San Antonio seemed to get every loose ball, every big shot and every call.

Hamilton, hounded into ineffectiveness by Bruce Bowen in the first two games, credited the shift to "energy."

"We have to come out here and help each other out," he continued. "We have to come out and hit first. We can't come out and allow them to hit us and react to it. We have to be the ones that are aggressive."

Braves beat up on Rangers 7-2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rookie Kelly Johnson hit his first major league homer and 46-year-old Julio Franco also connected in a five-run fifth inning to help the Atlanta Braves beat the Texas Rangers 7-2 on Tuesday night.

Jorge Sosa (3-0) allowed two runs and five hits in five innings in his first start of the season after 21 relief appearances. He struck out seven and walked none.

Adam Bernero and Chris Reitsma combined to limit Texas to no runs and four hits over the final four innings.

Mark Teixeira hit his 17th homer for the Rangers, who had their nine-game home winning streak snapped.

The Rangers took a 2-1 lead into the fifth. Starter Pedro Astacio had retired 13 of his previous 14 batters when he hit Ryan Langerhans with a pitch. Wilson Betemit followed with a single and Johnson, batting .059 entering Tuesday, put the Braves in front 4-2 when he homered to right-center.

Marcus Giles singled later in the inning and Franco hit his third homer to make it 6-2, knocking out Astacio (2-8).

Johnson, whose is from Austin, had three hits and drove in three runs. Franco, who played for the Rangers from 1989-93 and won the AL batting title in 1991, also had three hits and three RBIs.

Pettitte, Astros fall to Orioles 6-1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Andy Pettitte was enjoying another exceptional performance against the team he's dominated the most during his 11-year career. Then came the sixth inning, when the left-hander discovered these aren't the same old Baltimore Orioles.

Miguel Tejada homered against Pettitte to highlight a three-run sixth, and Bruce Chen allowed three hits over seven scoreless innings to lead Baltimore past the Houston Astros 6-1 on Tuesday night.

Pettitte came in with a 20-4 lifetime record against the Orioles. The former New York Yankee was 12-2 at Camden Yards and 8-0 against Baltimore since June 25, 2002. He allowed just three singles through the first five innings, but yielded four hits in the decisive sixth.

By the time he was done, Pettitte (3-7) surrendered six runs and 10 hits in 7 2-3 innings. Tejada led the way, aided by Sammy Sosa, who had two hits and two RBIs.

"Obviously, they've got some different players, but a lot of guys who have been here. The only different people are Tejada and Sammy," Pettitte said. "They are good hitters, and it definitely adds to the lineup."

Larry Bigbie had his second straight three-hit game for the Orioles, who had lost 11 straight series against NL opponents before taking the first two games of this three-game series.

Bigbie experienced many a loss with the Orioles when Pettitte pitched for the Yankees, even though he's 11-for-14 lifetime against the two-time All-Star.

"Pettitte goes back to the Yankee days, when they used to beat up on us," Bigbie said. "He pitched a great game tonight, but we were able to get to him. This team isn't the same one we had a couple of years ago. This is definitely a new and improved team."

LIGHTNING STRIKES TWICE

Young golfer gets two holes-in-one

WYLIE, Texas (AP) — Chase Williams of Aledo did something few golfers ever do Tuesday. He made a hole-in-one, and then he made another one.

Williams, 16, got the first one on his third hole of the day, the par 3, 17th, as he played in a Westcott Junior Tour event at Hawks Creek Golf Club in Fort Worth. His second came on the par 3, 10th.

The odds of making two aces in the same round are 67 million to one, according to the National Golf Foundation.

"I hit it well, it faded a little right, bounced, then rolled and hit the pin. We all heard it, but I was not sure if it went in until I got to the green," Williams said of the first hole-in-one. He used a pitching wedge from 120 yards.

He used a four wood from 190 yards for the second ace.

All three games of the series have been close in the fourth quarter, but Detroit put this one away with nine straight points early in the period.

Billups, last season's finals MVP, started the rally with a 3-pointer and a steal for a layup on consecutive possessions.

Tony Parker scored 21 points for the Spurs, who allowed 90 points for the first time in the franchise's three trips to the finals. San Antonio's vaunted defense thrives on momentum, but the Spurs had none of that fuel in Detroit.

The Pistons held Manu Ginobili to seven points and limited Tim Duncan to a 5-for-15 performance on the way to 14 points and 10 rebounds. Though San Antonio led at halftime and kept it close until the fourth, Detroit always seemed to be in control.

"We didn't play well for three quarters, and we were almost tied," Ginobili said. "It's something that we've got to be happy about in some sort of way. ... As a team, we just didn't have that juice, that sharpness that you need to play well on the road. I didn't play well. I don't think any of us played particularly well."

Ginobili confounded the Pistons in the first two games with his knack for making improbable fourth-quarter shots, but the Pistons were determined to squelch his creative game.

They ran at least four defenders at him in single coverage, from lanky Tayshaun Prince to dogged Lindsey Hunter, and gave him few chances to affect the game.

Ginobili might have been mildly hobbled by a collision with Prince in the first minute, but he accepted the blame for having as many turnovers (six) as shots.

Hunter, who also slowed Miami's Dwyane Wade in the conference finals, seemed particularly effective in preventing Ginobili's drives to the hoop — which could mean trouble for the Spurs.

"I don't know if they tried anything different," Duncan said. "Their aggressiveness was up, so that fueled what they were doing."

Notes: Though Robert Horry struggled for the Spurs, he made the 43rd 3-pointer in the NBA Finals, breaking his tie with Michael Jordan atop the career list. ... The Palace crowd booed Ginobili with unusual intensity during the pregame festivities. ... Much of Detroit's musical royalty turned out, including Kid Rock, Anita Baker and Eminem, who frequently jumped to his feet and waved a towel behind the Spurs' bench to cheer on his Pistons.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, June 16, 2005:

You have the ingenuity and vision necessary to create what you want this year. Ideas come out of the blue, but brainstorming with others also helps. You see shortcuts where others don't. This creative gift will help you no matter what field you choose to work in or how you live your life. Curb a tendency to overindulge — if you can! If you are single, romance could become a dominant factor in your year. For many, this person could be the one. In any case, romance adds that splash of spice to your days. If you are attached, your relationship will benefit from adding more romance, like you did during your courtship. LIBRA might like you as more than a friend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Others — including you — have finally calmed down. Your instincts lead you in the right direction, especially with a property or domestic matter. Extremes mark your behavior, as well as others'. Try not to get others to conform to your way of thinking. Tonight: Go along with another's request.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ You might have to handle much more today than you had originally anticipated. You have the energy, drive and creativity to make your way through a problem. Unexpected developments could impact a friendship. Tonight: Easy does it. Haven't you done enough?

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Your playful mood could distract others, as well as yourself. Still, you cannot contain yourself. A compliment from someone you respect makes your day. The unexpected occurs with a public or professional matter. Tonight: Let off steam.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Family, home and real estate take priority. Make it your pleasure to deal with these issues. You care about the quality of your life. Do what's necessary to make it better. Reach out for someone at a distance. Tonight: Home is your castle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Distraction could be a problem. Do yourself a favor: Make a list of what you must do. A partner or associate could surprise you with unanticipated information or actions. Others provide many imaginative ideas. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ You need to shore up some financial agreements, or at least clear out bills. You might decide to start a new health or diet program. Check with the doctor first. If there is something you really want to do with your life, start talking about it. Tonight: Order in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You naturally do the right thing. You might be considering a major change in your work or, at best, a different approach. Someone lets you know how very special you are. You beam from ear to ear. Tonight: Plans with your favorite person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ The less you say the better. Your gut instincts are right-on with a family member and long-term goal. Do needed research and find out more. Follow through on what is important to you. Don't share details yet. Tonight: Get as much sleep as possible. You will need every ounce of energy tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You no longer need to debate or struggle to get what you want. Everything finally falls into place — to your delight. A partner wants to go overboard with spending or in some other way. Tempted as you might be, you need to say no. Tonight: Be with the crowds.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Take charge while you can. Others are finally docile and easygoing. Your ideas meet mutual agreements. Listen well to suggestions. Incorporate good ideas. Others respect your leadership. Tonight: A late night.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Continue actions that help your mind grow. Some of you might sign up for a class; others will travel. Aquarians are never happy unless they are breaking into new territory and thoughts. Accept a last-minute invitation. Tonight: Try a new restaurant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Work with a trusted associate. In fact, you do better with one-on-one contact. Maintain eye contact, and don't allow your mind to drift. Share an idea or two that you might have kept to yourself. The reactions you get might be important. Tonight: Share more of yourself.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 years old and two months away from moving in with the man I love. We're moving into a house he purchased but cannot afford without me. I love him and cannot imagine my life without him. We fit each other perfectly in every respect except one: I want children and he doesn't. Whenever I bring up the subject, he becomes agitated and argues that he hasn't made up his mind about it, but is "leaning toward no." I'm left wondering if I should take this huge step when I know if he doesn't want kids, I will have to leave. Should I force him into telling me once and for all what the deal is, or wait to see if maturity changes his mind (as my peers have urged me to do)? Won't it be harder to leave after I move in? -- SECOND THOUGHTS IN NEW YORK

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: It not only will be harder to leave once you move in, it will also be harder to leave after you have invested more time in the relationship. What if maturity doesn't change his mind? You may love him, but you would be making a huge mistake to move in with him while this question remains unresolved. I recommend premarital counseling before you make up your mind about this man.

DEAR ABBY: I have a close friend who has decided to be married 2,000 miles away from home -- as well as the home of 90 percent of her guests. I am the only single person among the bride's group of friends, and I have been told I will not be invited with a date.

I tried to talk to her about this privately, explaining that I will feel uncomfortable being the only one without a date among six or seven couples. I also told her the expense would be too much for me to bear alone. Her response? "You never know; you could be in a serious relationship or engaged by the time I send out the invitations. Then you'd be invited with a date." Is it appropriate to invite out-of-towners to a wedding without a guest? How do I respond without looking jealous, petty or rude? -- SINGLED OUT IN CHICAGO

DEAR SINGLED OUT: Many brides limit their guest list because of financial constraints; however, in this case lack of money seems to be less her problem than glaring lack of sensitivity. Handle the problem by citing the reasons you have given me, and decline the invitation "because the expense would be too much to bear alone."

DEAR ABBY: My spouse and I enjoy having friends over and entertaining. Both of us tend to be "early-to-bed and early-to-rise." Our problem is, when we have friends over, they often don't want to go home. By 11 p.m., both of us are starting to fall asleep. They don't seem to get the message. How does one let their guests know the party is over? -- SLEEPY IN NEW YORK

DEAR SLEEPY: There are two ways to accomplish it. The first is to invite your guests over for a specific period of time, for example: dinner from 7 to 10. Or, when you or your spouse grows tired, stand up and say, "Well, it was wonderful of you good people to come, but it's time to call it a night." Give it a try; it works.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

As warm weather and Spring approaches, baseball and softball season begins. After being inactive all winter, weekend warriors are anxious to hit the field and play ball. If you are not prepared your chance of injury increases. A number of injuries can occur with baseball or softball including shoulder injuries involving the rotator cuff, bicep injuries, and impingement syndromes; ankle injuries, and hamstring or quadricep pulls to name a few of the most common. Most injuries occur from over-use, improper sliding, and failure to prepare your body in the pre season or before game time.

Shoulder injuries typically occur from not stretching or warming up the arm before playing. They are also common as a result of the repetitive motion of throwing. Ankle injuries can occur from stepping in a hole while going for the pop fly or sliding improperly into the base. Hamstring and quadricep strains are very common and can be avoided if stretching or jogging is done before playing.

Overhead, stretching and warming up the shoulder with gentle throwing motions will help to loosen the muscle and the joint. To help decrease your chance of injury, stretching and strengthening in the preseason are very important. Stretching or warming up loosens the muscles and joints making the muscle and joint more flexible and less apt to injury. Hamstring and quadricep stretching along with slow pace jogging assist in warming up the muscle in preparation for running.

Initial treatment of these type of injuries consist of following the RICE principles (Rest, Ice, Compression and Elevation).

Resting the area injured to prevent further wear and tear is the first step in recovery.

Icing the injured area immediately will help reduce swelling. Typically applying ice for 10-15 minutes ever 2-3 hours for the first 24-48 hours is recommended and continue if swelling persists.

Compression of the area with an elastic bandage to support the structure.

Elevating the affected area above the level of the heart will help prevent further swelling or accumulation of fluids.

So remember to warm up, cool down, and play safe to prevent injuries during this baseball and softball season. If pain or symptoms persist after using RICE, contact your physician. Play Ball!

Everyone's A Winner!

We want to congratulate the Pampa Optimist Club on 50 great years of dedication to service to the youth of our community. As kids we couldn't wait to get to the Optimist Park to play ball. As adults we have proudly watched all 6 of our children participate in the Optimist programs. We want to thank all the members, coaches and individuals who volunteered their time throughout the years. You have all touched our lives and provided us with many wonderful memories. May you have continued success in the future.
