That may be, but he had it for a long time. He was a schoolbox wonder of 16 when the Giants got patches from Pompton Lakes tell bed up with the Yankees to become one of the best right-handers in the American League.

He played with two great Yankee teams, the roistering crew that won pennants in 1921, '22, and '23 and the terrific sluggers that tore the league apart in 1926, '27, and '28 and won eight straight world series

Lawson Little Not Ashamed of His Pro Record

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)-Lawson Little, long-hitting Californian who was some punkins as a golf amateur but has been fairly small potatoes since becoming a pro, is giving himself two more years before he starts worrying about his game.

Right now the former U. S. and British amateur champion hasn't the time either to worry or to do anything about remedying some obvious defects in his golf. He's too busy with an exhibition and lecture He has six exhibition dates and expects to play in the Toledo four-ball tournament before he attempts to qualify May 31 at

He's been busy ever since he turned pro in April, 1936, the year after his second successive triumphs in the American and British amateur championships.

"I kept a log of my wanderings the first year." said the square-built youngster who calls San Francisco home. "The log showed that in 365 days I played about 275 18-hole rounds-in competition, exhibition and practice-besides traveling 64, 000 miles.'

Grooming is much more of a problem in the summer time than it was during winter months. Every beauty-minded woman finds it more difficult to keep hair fresh and soft looking, face and hands scrupulously clean, accessories spic and span and makeup in order when the weather is very hot.

Therefore, it's a good idea to begin now to plan ways and means to attractive as well as comfortable during July and August.

You can, for instance, buy several inexpensive summer dresses instead of one or two rather heavy models that always have to be dry-cleaned. This cuts down the strain on the budget, of course. Besides, a freshly laundered dress always gives spirits a lift on a particularly sultry morning. Then, too, you can see that the white collars and cuffs on the dark street dresses

A YANKEE IN HIROHITO'S COURT Although the archipelago of Japan has been on the maps for centuries, it is only within the last half century or so that the ordinary American has really been conscious of Japan's existence.

Much of this consciousness has been born of irritation-a feeling that these perky little people from the far east were feeling their oats altogether too much, and that their capacity for starting trouble was out of all proportion to their size. But underneath this irritation there has run a vague, haunting, feeling that we had seen the Japanese before. We knew him but we couldn't quite place him, so to speak.

Now it is possible to clear this feeling up. A recent protest in the British House of Commons over the shipment of Japanesemade cotton shirts to the Malay States casts a flood of light on everything.

The Japanese send cotton to Malaysia under a rigid quota. But someone finally discovered that the shirts that were coming in were equipped with the most prodigious tails ever seen-three feet and more in length. The explanation was simple. The importer simply cut off the tail, marketed the shirt, and then had a nice bit of cotton piece-goods to sell in defiance of the restrictions.

So now- to repeat-we can see where we have met the Japanese before. He is nothing but a down-east New England Yankee, of the vintage of Sam Slick.

What is this yard-long shirt-tail racket but a variant of the old Connecticut wooden nutmeg gag? Verily, the race that invented it would have at home along the Merrimac and the Housatonic.

Which, joking aside, is something worth thinking about. For the Japanese are in a great many ways very like ourselves. To be sure they wear kimonos and they live in paper houses and they are unutterably polite; but under the surface there is a kinship which we would do well to recognize.

Like the Japanese, we set out to carve an empire by force of arms. We fought each other, the English, the Indians, the Mexicans, and the Spaniards before we were satisfied and the drive that set us off on this career of conquest was much like the one that made the Japanese plunge into Asia.

Like them, we have been go-getters, energetic salesmen, eternal modernizers. Like them, we have gone our own gait with scant regard for the wishes of other nations. Like them, we have been convinced that through us a better civilization is to take form upon the earth.

Ultimately, our recognition of these liknesses ought to bring about permanently cordial relations between our countries.

About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK-This correspondent knows a man who has stolen thousands of pounds of sugar in recent years. He takes it from restaurants, scooping up handsful of the little paper-covered squares and cramming them into his pockets. He goes from restaurant to restaurant, filling his pockets. His method is to sit down and fend off the waiters by telling them he is waiting for somebody. Then he puts on his hats and departs with his pockets

Once he is safely at home, he removes the drappers and packs the sugar carefully in little white boxes. Each box holds a pound. Then he sells it to waterfront cafes and hamburger stands of the cheaper variety. Averages $18 to $25 a week, he says, which is all gravy. Sugar gravy.

* * * Probably the weirdest trial on record was that of the chef who was being sued, along with a hotel, by a grieved customer who ate chicken a la king and got a bone in his throat. It caused him extreme anguish and cost him a sizeable doctor's fee, he declared.

"You must describe to his honor how the dish was served," pointed out a lawyer. Whereupon the man told of having been served by a beautiful blond waitress. However, five minutes later the case was thrown out of court because it was proved that the hotel in question used waiters-that is, males, there being no waitresses, or females (as the record state), employed in that hostelry's dining room,

The chef was grateful. As he prepared to depart, the judge beckoned to him "Listen," confessed the judge, "I became so hungry listening to that description of that chicken a la king that I'm going home and ask my

Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON, May 17-A disconcertingly huge flood of protests against Boss Frank Hague of Jersey City has been reaching the White House

Letters and telegrams began to pour in after Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, was ejected from Jersey City when he tried to make a speech there. No one on the receiving end supposed people would make too. much rumpus. But it would take a much mightier shout to make the administration act against Hague."

President Roosevelt can hardly butt into Jersey City's affairs just because Mayor Hague denies the right of free speech there. But he could move to oust Hague from his post as, vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee and he has been asked to do that.

Neither Roosevelt nor Nation Chairman Jim Farley, however, is willing to sever relations with a Democratice machine boss who controls a state as populous as New Jersey. Meanwhile, such Republican leaders as former Governor Landon of Kansas and Governor Aiken of New York have publicly attacked Hague and his strong-arm tactics.

* * * Black Divides Court

Although conservative Supreme Court justices have no love for Justice Hugo L. Black, it's the liberals who new dominate the Court and the split among this group is perhaps the most interesting, definite fact behind the scenes in the current hubbub over charges that other justices were taking cracks at

Justice Harlan F. Stone has denied he ever told anyone that Black was incompetent or lacking in craftsmanship. But Stone's friends know that he and other liberal justices believe Black wants to move altogether too fast in tearing down a structure of Court rulings and precedents with which most liberals don't Stone and the more cautious liberals want to proceed step by step, without making the Court turn spectacular flipflops. Black believes in prompt, vigorous attack on what he considers a century or more of constitutional misinterpretation. Thus his recent spectacular dissent denouncing the 50-year-old Court ruling that a corporation was a 'person."

The dispute between Stone and Black, largely over tactics, seems to be most of the real fire beneath recent clouds of smoke,

"I've taken an oath to uphold the Constitution, not to be guided by political exigencies or strategic consideration," said Black recently when a friend told him of criticisms of his dissents within the Court.

The editor of a weekly newspaper in Iowa recently wrote in a humorous column that it was rumored a WPA worker had died of heart disease and that officials had to examine 24 workers to see which of them it was. Curiously enough, a WPA worker did die of heart failure that very day and a delegation of a hundred or more WPA employes marched to see the editor, who was out at the time, but subsequently apologized.

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Boyer was giving Leonid Kinsky a colossal, well-timed beating-up. Kinsky, Boyer had just guessed, was a low informer trying to trap him for the French police. As a prosperous jewel thief, safe in the Casbah or native section of Algiers where French police didn't prosper, Boyer didn't want to be lured outside. The only trouble-from Boyer's point of view—was that he didn't want to hurt Kinsky really. After all, Boyer knew it was only a movie named "Algiers" and Kinsky, a Russian for all his pantaloons and fez, wasn't a bad sort.

There a story back of that little squib in the paper; it means whole lot more to Howard and his friends than you can put in a news story. Many of you have known "Half-Pint," a name which he has outgrown, for years. You have seen him play baseball and grab all the honors in his class, at swimming pool. He seemed to be pretty good at anything he set his head to do. Well, it looks like he's going to be pretty handy with airplanes. At any rate they have become one of his major passions. . . Few sorrier spectacles mark current world affairs than the decay of royalty-the fall of the Hapsburgs, Hohenzollerns, Romanoffs; the subordination of Italy's Victor Emmanuel to Mussolini, the loss in prestige of the crown heads generally.

All this came about, of course more or less as a direct result of the World war and the new world order. The nations clamored for democracy in place of reyalty, and got dictatorships. Now it appears that many of these countries would be better off had royalty been retained.

At least this is the thesis of Jonathan F. Scott, who marshals his argument in a thoroughly jarring book, "The Twilight of the Kings' (Reynal and Hitchock: $2.75). Mr. Scott traces the decay of the royal families, from the Stuarts, the Bourbons, the Czars, down through the ages, and for these autocratic clans he has no feeling. As he says. they paid the price of autocracy. Time Table for Babies Marvelous fellows, those statisticians! They gather up columns and columns of figures, juggle them according to their own mathematics, and lo!-they turn out the most extraordinary results.

Here, for example, is Jacob Yerushalmy, Ph.D. of the division of maternity, infancy and child hygiene. New York State department of health, who has drawn up a time schedue for parenthood.
Starting with the premise that the strongest babies are those who most successfully resist the forces of death during the first month of life, he has figured out that the best babies are born to fathers aged 25 to 29 years.

The best ages for mothers, in terms of the order and number of their babies, are: Mother's Age

Third ..... 24-29 Fourth ...... 26-31 Sixth and seventh ..... Eighth and ninth ...... Tenth and later ...... 36-41 Of course, one may protest that these findings, interesting as they are, are somewhat beside the point Not everyone is free to choose his and her time for parenthood, nor to space one's children quite according to the statistically ideal time table. And yet the study is not without solid value. The obvious deduction is that girls married in their teens, who become pregnant, and women whose first pregnancy occurs at a comparatively late time in life re quire especially thorough prenatal care. The same type of prenatal care should be given to mothers who have had a large number of babies. In this way they may be helped to overcome the handicap of not having their babies during the most fitting years of their lives.

To those who are in a position to choose their years of parenthood, this "time table" should prove a useful guide.

There is one other item that bears on having children at the right age. The child's chances of being well formed are best when the mother is not too old.

However, the older "potential" mother should not take this time table too seriously. With good prenatal care and the services of competent obstetrician and a first class maternity hospital, she runs no greater risk even when her pregnancy is "behind schedule."

Proposed Law Would Further Reduce

A petition has been signed by the required number of Congressmen to bring out the Wage and Hour Bill. This bill has two objectives: one, to limit the hours of work; the other to establish a minimum wage. We shall discuss only the limiting of hours in this issue.

All the comforts of life come from labor. All wages come from produc-tion. If, then a man can produce more by working more hours, he can secure more wages, more of the comforts of life. If this be true, then it would seem that the government by passing a law limiting the num-ber of hours that a man dare work for another man, would be limiting the comforts that a man could secure by his own efforts. It is argued that a man can work for himself but men work for others only because they can be rewarded more than they can by working for themselves and to prevent them working for others longer than a specified time, is, therefore, to prevent them from getting comforts they could not have without the longer hours of work.

A law like this is certainly taking away from an individual certain es sential liberties that belong to every man. The law originates from the theory that prices are important; that scarcity increases prices and, therefore, helps the worker. The error in the theory is that if one kind of production is limited in order to create a price, others will be limited and the real reward and the real comforts of life will thereby be reduced for all people. The great mass of people will not believe, strange as it may seem, that one man's working and producing in no way interferes with another man working and producing. For one-man to make a fish hook, build a hut, or a palace, in no way interferes with another man, with like energy, doing exactly the same thing. In fact, instead of retarding or preventing the man who has not done it from doing it, it stimulates him; it encourages him; it is an example to him; it helps him.

It seems absurd that in order to learn, we have to try such ridiculous theories which seem so self-evident to rational people as to pass a law limiting the hours that a man dare work, on the theory that the worker can have more by working less. get the idea because we have per-mitted monopolies to limit production and limit output in violation of the original Sherman Anti-Trust Law and be temporarily benefited by it, at the great detriment of the rest of society. Preparations were under way today to send two more train loads north to an unannounced destination. Even half of President Lazaro Cardenas' own guard of 400 men has gone to San Luis.

The general's friends, likewise, continue to insist that he has no wish to revolt, although he is politically a Cardenas opponent. They charge the president is endeavoring to build up a situation justifying action against Cedillo.

Bitterness between the two countries has been increased by the sensational break last Saturday when Mexico severed diplomatic relations on the grounds of England's alunfriendly attitude.

Official faces in London burned with anger at this move, which was accompanied by a bit of official mud-slinging on both sides.

Britain, in referring to Mexico's proposal to pay for the expropriated property, asserted that even before the seizure Mexico had piled up a large foreign debt. To this, Mexico called attention to "the fact that even powerful states, having at their command abundant resources, may not pride themselves on being to date on the payment of all their monetary obligations."

No one could take this Mexican dig as anything else than a crack at Britain's war-debt to the United States. On Dec. 15 last, England owed close to a billion dollars which, appropos of nothing in particular, is about four times the value of the property taken over. has defaulted on payments for five

Just what has given President Cardenas of Mexico so much courage to back his convictions is a matter of some speculation, if indeed he isn't impelled by the necessity of trying to find a quick answer to the subject to fairly wide interpretation, but in the past it has permitted old world nations to employ some vigorous and direct methods in settling disputes.

The British government, however. would hardly be likely to make any strong-arm move in Mexico without acquiescence of the Amercan govcrnment. It would be for Washington to decide what measures were justifiable for Britain to take

This is especially true in view of the fact that Cardenas also expropriated American oil properties valued at $150.000.000. Britain has been looking for a lead from America which thus far has regarded the position with great restraint.
