Gray County property owners will have a chance to be heard concerning a proposed property tax rate of .488926 cents per $100 valuation.

A public hearing is scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday in the second floor courtroom at Gray County Courthouse concerning the proposed rate.

A second public hearing concerning the proposed rate is scheduled for 9 a.m. Friday at the same location.

The proposed rate is the same as the 2005 proposed rate, but it will result in more tax revenues collected for 2006, which is why a public hearing has been set.

Volume 101 • No. 1345

In 2005, $5,486,273 in property taxes was collected. For 2006, $5,750,990 will be collected, which is an increase of $264,717.

"An effective rate creates the same amount of revenue that was collected last year using new appraisals. If we go above that effective rate, it is considered a tax increase even though the rate stays the same," said County Judge

Richard Peet.

Tax rate hearing scheduled Tuesday

"We know we have inflation; we have higher costs. Our total expenditures budget is going to be greater than last year," Peet said of the proposed 2006 county budget.

"We have proposed a rate that will meet these budget needs. It is not the final rate yet. We have to pass the budget first, and then set a final rate to meet that budget," he said.

The proposed 2006 county budget is $8,164,534, according to County Auditor Elaine Morris. The budget, which has not yet been finalized or approved by county commissioners, consists of $6,490,265 for the county's general fund, $1,553,840 for the road and bridge fund, and $120,429 for debt service.

50¢ Daily • Sunday $1

"Expenditures last year were about $7 million. We now have a greater expenditure need. We will need a little more," Peet said.

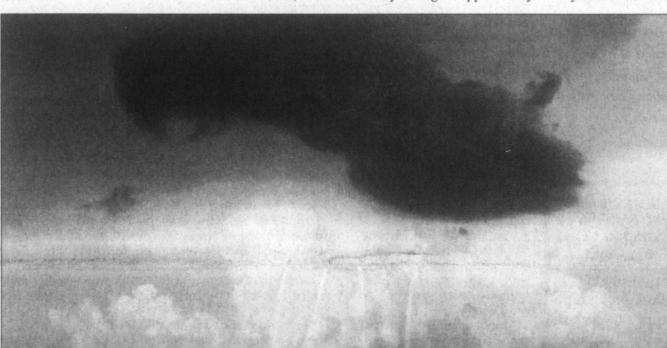

Rising fuel costs are one factor in the increased budget amount. At the Aug. 15 county commissioners' meeting, Peet said that fuel costs had risen about 30 cents per gallon after departments had submitted their budget requests.

This weekend's weather forecast calls for showers and thunderstorms. If the weather prognosticators are correct, residents can expect to see some storm clouds like these floating around the Pampa area.

The jet took off Friday from California and arrived at Louisana's Barksdale Air Force, one of several refueling stops. Shuttle managers were to meet Sunday morning to reasses the flight plan, Buckingham said.

An Air Force KC-135 has flown ahead of the shuttle and the modified Boeing 747 to monitor weather along the route. The expected cost of the trip: at least $1 million.

Under a storm cloud

Four Texas Panhandle veterans were named to the Panhandle Veterans Hall of Honor at a dinner Friday at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The Hall of Honor is located at Freedom Museum USA, 600 N. Hobart. This was the 16th year for the Hall of Honor dinner.

В. Arthur Baker, Christopher N. Hoover, Harry B. McGregor and Jerrold E. Thomas are this year's honorees.

Baker was drafted into the U.S. Army in February 1941 at Amarillo, when he was 22. He arrived on Corregidor Island in April, and by August he had been captured by the Japanese and imprisoned at Manila's Bilibid Prison.

He escaped into the mountains, where he survived for a few months in the jungle with the help of some local residents. In return, he helped train the locals to fight the Japanese before he was recaptured and sent to Cabanatuan POW Camp No. 3.

At Cabanatuan, after digging his own grave, Baker and two other Americans were told to stand on stools holding sticks over their heads. They were left to continue the pose through a day and a night. One of the two other Americans fell and was immediately shot.

From Cabanatuan, Baker was sent by freighter to Japan, where he was taken to POW Camp Tanagawa. He survived a bout of dysentery and spent the next two years helping to build a dry dock near Osaka. He was later transported by rail to the northern mountains, where he worked at Camp Aomi, a mine, until the war's end.

Baker spent 1,219 days as a POW and returned to Texas after his discharge on June 9, 1946. He received the Prisoner of War Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Philippine Liberation Medal, the Philippine Republic Presidential Unit Citation Badge, the Asiatic Pacific Campaign Medal, the World War II Victory Medal, and a special citation from President Harry S. Truman. ...

Lefors Volunteer Fire Dept has applied for another variance for your local ambulance. This variance allows for the ambulance to run with only one certified EMT and one firefighter. This is a last resort but if we do not get this variance we may have to depend on Pampa for services. This would only apply to certain hours and only if two EMT's are not available. WE feel at this time the variance is important to our community. TDH will be conducting a meeting Monday, August 22, 2005 at 7:00 PM at the firestation. Your attendance and support will be needed. Hoover was born Oct. 6, 1966 in Amarillo and graduated from Booker High School in 1985. He attended college in San Antonio and Amarillo before enlisting in the Air Force.

He served four years, was released after a training jump accident, and then reenlisted in 1999. He is currently a staff sergeant stationed at McChord Air Force Base in Tacoma, Wash.

After Sept. 11, Hoover was a member of the U.S. Special Forces Team in the mountainous border regions of Afghanistan. His job as Combat Control Operator was to use radios, which he carried in backpacks, to guide aircraft in for air support.

During one mission, Hoover volunteered for a two-man team to help an Afghan military force which was pinned down along the border. He orchestrated close air support by attack helicopters to suppress the enemy force.

Hoover's actions in the battle resulted in him being awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Second oak-leaf cluster with Valor.

As the United States later prepared to enter Iraq, Hoover was a member of a Special Forces team that c rossed the border several days ahead of the main U.S. invasion to look for Scud missiles.

Iraqi soldiers dressed as civilians ambushed Hoover and his team. Hoover called in F-16s to drop bombs and end the battle.

Hoover's mission in Iraq lasted about 55 days. His team sustained no casualties and captured approximately 40 Iraqi soldiers.

Town hall meeting set for barbers, cosmetologists to solicit input our life may change...

AMARILLO — William Kuntz, executive director of the Texas Department of Licensing and Regulation (TDLR), and Brian Francis, TDLR's deputy executive director, will conduct a town hall meeting in Amarillo for Panhandle residents who are involved in the barber and cosmetology professions to acquaint them with the agency and solicit information that will help shape the future of barber and cosmetology regulation in Texas.

"The barbering and cosmetology professions are about to undergo their most change significant in decades and we want everyone involved to have a voice in the future of their professions," Kuntz said. "TDLR is committed to working with the members of these professions to ensure that our regulations are fair and reasonable and based on common sense."

The meeting will be on Monday at the Education Service Center, Panhandle Conference Room, 5800 Bell Street, in Amarillo. To ensure that all interested individuals have the opportunity to participate, TDLR will conduct two sessions:

• 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. -Barbering Schools and Shop Owners, and Cosmetology Schools and Shop Owners; • 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. -Barbers, cosmetologists and specialty licensees, such as manicure specialists, facial specialists, hair weaving/braiding specialists and shampoo specialists.

Senate Bill 411, which was passed by the 79th Texas Legislature and signed by Gov. Rick Perry on June 18, transferred regulation of the cosmetology and barbering professions to TDLR, effective Sept. 1, 2005.

The town hall meeting

will allow barbers and cosmetologists to become acquainted with TDLR and agency leadership. It also will provide an opportunity for barbers and cosmetolo-gists to voice concerns and offer suggestions related to the rules and regulatory efforts affecting their professions. It will help TDLR to gain a better understanding of how the barbering and cosmetology professions work so that the agency can be better prepared to provide services when the programs are transferred.

Barbers and cosmetologists who are unable to attend the meeting still may provide comments and suggestions to TDLR in writing or by e-mail, at strategicplan@license.state.tx.us.

For more information about the meeting, barbers and cosmetologists may call (512) 463-3173.

In Memory Of "Nick" Williams Our Beloved Son, Father, Brother, Uncle & Friend

If we could have a lifetime wish and one dream that could come true, We would pray to God with all our hearts just to see and speak to you. A thousand words won't bring you back: We know, because we've tried, and neither will a million tears: We know, because we've cried. You've left behind our broken hearts and precious memories too. But we've never wanted memories, we only wanted you. No farewell words were spoken, no time to say goodbye. You were gone before we knew it, and only God can tell us why. Our thoughts are ever with you, we miss you more each day. For life is not the same to us, since you were called away. No one so soft and gentle, no heart so tender and true. No sorrow life could bring us, to equal losing you.

Medical EYE CLINIC Optometrist helps bordering

By CHRISTOPHER MAHER Alice Echo-News Journal

ALICE, Texas (AP) - Nearly every Monday for the past year, Alice optometrist Gary Cloud has left town at 7:30 a.m., heading south. Cloud, normally accompanied by his two assistants, drives just over two hours to the town of Roma, Texas, where he crosses the border and enters the community of Miguel Aleman.

There, in a small room in a building owned by the Red Cross, Cloud operates a clinic where he performs free eye screenings. The clinic includes modern equipment, most of it donated by Cloud through the Alice Rotary Club and the Rotary Club of Roma-Miguel Aleman.

La Clinica de los Ojos, as it is called in the community, is well known in the town of 40,000 people, and is the only recourse for those with vision problems who cannot afford medical treatment.

Cloud said he was initially introduced to the community of Miguel Aleman through a Rotary Club project 10 years ago, so he was aware of the need in the area. Although his Alice clinic is still open, he recently closed a clinic in Kingsville, leaving him with extra equipment.

Cloud said while he was thinking of possible uses for the equipment, he remembered how helpful the Rotary Club members from Roma-Miguel Aleman had been and the idea for the clinic quickly came together.

"I had all this extra equipment, and speak Spanish, and I love Mexico, and I knew how hardworking these guys were," Cloud said, "Everything just kind of fell in place."

Victor Gutierrez, a representative of the Roma-Miguel Aleman Rotary Club, said his group quickly moved to support Cloud's idea.

"We are never scared of any of the projects that we do," Gutierrez said. 'We always work with the idea of helping the communities."

Volunteers helped transport the heavy equipment from Alice to Miguel Aleman and turned a small supply room in the Red Cross building into an exam room.

A local resident donated an air conditioner to the clinic, which now has the only air conditioned room in the building. Several doctors and assistants have volunteered their time and resources to help run the clinic.

Since the clinic opened a year ago, Cloud and his volunteers have performed 955 screenings at the clinic and in 14 area schools.

Gutierrez said he and the other volunteers are constantly approached by people on the street who thank them See VISION, Page 9

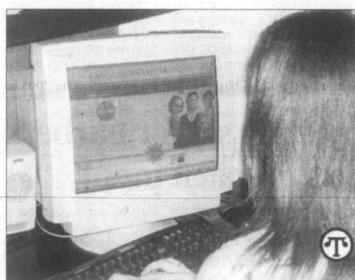

Fight against cervical cancer far from over

According to a recent poll, 97 percent of women age 18 and over are unaware that the human papillomavirus (HPV) is the cause of cervical cancer, and seven percent say they haven't been told by their health-care provider that an HPV test is available. But now there is a new resource to help women manage their risk of cervical cancer: an interactive Web site, TheHPVtest.com. For those without Web access, a companion brochure is available by calling 877-HPV-FACT.

Medical specialists now risk increases to nearly 100 know that when an HPV test is combined with a Pap in women 30 and older, the the development of cervical years, it can miss abnormal cells while they are still in their pre-cancerous stage.

The HPV test directly detects the virus that causes those abnormal cells in the first place.

Christine Baze, a cervical cancer survivor, musician founder and of Popsmear.org, urges women to visit the site.

"When I was diagnosed with cervical cancer, after having repeated Pap tests that appeared normal, I didn't know anything about HPV or the fact that the Pap by itself could miss women with abnormal cells," says Baze. "Today, women are lucky, because they can take charge of their own 'education' by visiting

PKD: What everyone should know about life-threatening genetic disease

(NAPSA) - Polycystic kidney disease (PKD) is the most common life-threatening genetic disease in the real. world - yet few even know it exists.

PKD affects more newborns, children and adults than cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy, hemophilia, sickle cell anemia and Down syndrome combined-yet it still doesn't have a cure.

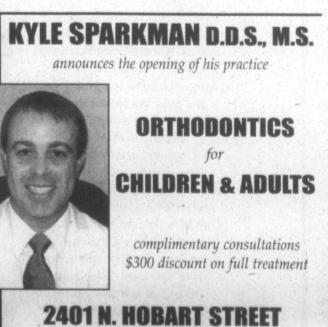

More than 600,000 Americans and 12.5 million across the globe battle PKD every day - yet many don't know they have it.

Their son, 4-year-old Luke, has a relatively rare form of PKD called autosomal recessive polycystic kidney disease or ARPKD.

According to the PKD Foundation, the often deadly disease only affects one in 10,009 babies and can cause significant mortality in the first month of life.

Although Luke survived, his short life hasn't been easy. The Cross River, N.Y.,

boy is small for his age and tires easily.

In addition to swallowing several pills a day and baring his arm for shots each week, Luke also struggles with high blood pressure and, at times, dehydration.

Despite those challenges, Luke will attend prekindergarten this fall and undergo a kidney transplant sometime soon. His dad plans to be the donor.

Like Luke, more than 60 percent of PKD patients experience kidney failure and are forced to rely on dialysis or a transplant to live.

Approximately one-third of children with Luke's form of PKD need dialysis or a transplant by their 10th birthday.

The Hope

Luke's experience with PKD has been tough. Not just for him, but for the entire family. That's why the Sclater-Booths have decided to reach out to other families and help spread awareness of PKD.

In the last year, Kirsten has helped organize an ARPKD Chapter of the PKD Foundation, the only organization in the world dedicated to finding a treatment and a cure for PKD.

She also established Luke's Team, which raised See PKD, Page 9 for the work they are doing. Gutierrez also said the impact the clinic has had on the community is very noticeable.

"Just by seeing all the little kids that have these changes," Gutierrez said. "Sometimes they didn't even know they had a problem, and sometimes they knew they had a problem, but they didn't have the resources to go to a doctor."

The clinic is seeking status as a nonprofit corporation, and Cloud said he hoped that would allow it to accept donations to increase the amount of care he can provide.

A fellow doctor in Alice has agreed to perform cataract surgeries at the clinic, so volunteers are working to bring the necessary equipment.

Cloud said one of the most difficult jobs in the clinic is obtaining high-prescription lenses. Although some companies have donated frames for glasses and normal lenses can be produced relatively cheaply, Cloud said he hopes to receive donations that will allow him to decrease the cost of high-prescription lenses to patients.

There is still a lot of work to be done at the clinic, and Cloud said he plans to continue making the 298mile round trip every Monday.

"I guess the main reason I go down and do this is because it makes me feel good," Cloud said. "I've had a good life, and it feels good to help."

Research seeks answers about Lygus Bug

By TIM W. MCALAVY Texas A&M News

LUBBOCK _____ Got Lygus? You may indeed, without knowing it. Sampling your alfalfa, cotton or even roadside vegetation with a sweep net will tell the tale pretty quickly.

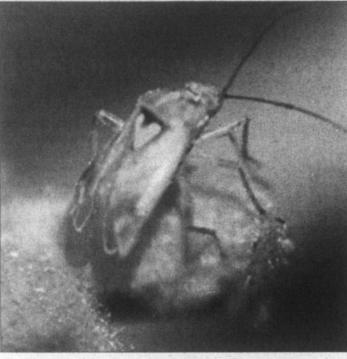

Research under way at the Texas A&M University System Agricultural Research and Extension Center here is geared toward finding out more about lygus bugs and their potential impact on cotton.

"Lygus are an unknown quantity here," said Dr. Megha Parajulee, a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologist. "They can damage cotton by feeding on young squares ... the fruit that becomes lint-bearing cotton bolls. In 2002, we began a study to determine which species of Lygus are common here and which host plants they prefer to inhabit during their life cycle.'

The study has revealed two species of lygus bugs in a 25-county survey area around Lubbock: pale legume bugs and western tarnished plant bugs. The latter is more numerous and can pose a threat to cotton if its preferred food plants are not abundant.

"In our species survey we determined that Lygus prefer to live in and feed on flixweed and mustard from mid-March through mid-April," Parajulee said. "Then they move into alfalfa, pigweed and Russian thistle. They overwinter here in alfalfa and pigweed.

"They are opportunistic

(Texas Cooperative Extension photo by TIM W. McALAVY) Adult lygus bugs such as this western tarnished plant bug are occasional cotton pests on the Texas High Plains. When deprived of other vegetation, they can move into and damage cotton by feeding on squares, blooms and bolls. stain and reduce the amount of lint. This damage means fewer dollars for farmers at harvest and in the market place.

"Lygus populations on the South Plains have been pretty static for several years," said Dr. James Leser, a Texas Cooperative Extension cotton entomologist who partners with Parajulee in this research. "Lygus and fleahopper damage was especially high in 1999, but has generally been much lower and spotty during the last six years. In 1999, combined damage from Lygus and fleahoppers averaged about 12 percent, and control costs added up to more than $7 million dollars.'

pests has allowed their Lygus infestations to reach damaging levels. I think they are becoming more noticeable in the Texas High Plains because we, too, are eliminating boll weevils and reducing bollworm infestations.

"But more importantly, our producers read about the eastern Lygus problems and assume that they, too, will have similar problems. Thus far this has not been the case."

plants that lygus bugs prefer, with a strong Extension their feeding behavior and patterns of movement, the scientists hope to develop tools farmers can use to protect their cotton. "We are also evaluating methods for sampling and detecting Lygus in the field. If we can combine accurate sampling with knowledge of how and when they move and feed, we may be able to control them before they move into cotton," Parajulee said. "We are also evaluating host plants in the lab to see which ones Lygus favor for reproduction. And we are evaluating cotton varieties for Lygus resistance and tolerance in the field as well as in the lab."

Knowing which varieties are more tolerant to lygus bug feeding damage and when bolls become safe from the damage may help the researchers develop solid thresholds for spray treatments

"All of our current treatment thresholds are from Arizona," Leser said. "It will be helpful to have treatment thresholds for Texas and to know which insecticides and doses will work best here. We are also looking for a simple, hand-held tool producers can use to gauge boll hardness in the field - so they can tell when Lygus are no longer a threat.'

The researchers are also studying how irrigation regimes may affect Lygus populations.

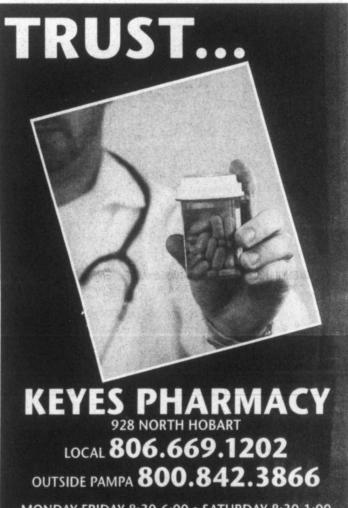

As the researchers gather more information about Lygus, they will step up their education campaign with area farmers. Leser's weekly "Focus on Entomology' electronic newsletter provides information about many important insect pests. Lygus will also be a featured topic in an ongoing series of Crop Production Guides Leser and other scientists are compiling. Extension's integrated pest management agents are another avenue of sharing lygus bug information with producers.

"Focus on Entomology" is available weekly during the cotton growing season on the Internet at http://lubbock.tamu.edu/focus/

"This is a team effort that By studying the host combines applied research component," Parajulee said. "We hope to one day have more solid information about Lygus than questions."

We believe they prefer these hosts plants over cotton, but there is a June through September window when they will move into cotton and feed on squares, blooms and bolls ... if they are forced to. That window closes after cotton plants attain about 350 heat units a measure of daily heat accumulation based on maximum and minimum temperatures. The bolls then harden and become impenetrable to lygus bugs.

Common sense needed in everyday decisions

Sometimes I wonder if it would be worth it to pursue legislation that would make it a crime for morons to breed. Of course I'm being facetious, but after reading about the PCPSBs recently, it makes me wonder what happened to common sense. PCPSB stands for Politically Correct Paper Shuffling Bureaucrats.

You know who I'm talking about. Those people who have jobs that require no skills or sense at all. Well, it does take some skill to successfully shuffle papers most of the day.

What sent me off, you might ask. Two things I read phone calls and e-mails

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Aug. 21, the 233rd day of 2005. There are 132 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Aug. 21, 1945, President Truman ended the Lend-Lease program that had shipped some $50 billion in aid to America's allies during World War II.

On this date:

In 1831, former slave Nat Turner led a violent insurrection in Virginia. (He was later executed.)

In 1858, the debates famous between senatorial contenders Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas began.

In 1904, jazz musician and bandleader William "Count" Basie was born in Red Bank, N.J. In 1940, exiled Communist revolutionary Leon Trotsky died in Mexico City from wounds inflicted by an assassin.

In 1944, the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and China opened talks at Dumbarton Oaks in Washington that helped pave the way for establishment of the United Nations In 1959, President Eisenhower signed an executive order proclaiming Hawaii the 50th state of the union. In 1984, Democratic vice-presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro appeared before reporters in Queens, New York, to field questions about her family's finances. In 1991, the hard-line coup against Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev collapsed in the face of a popular uprising led by Russian federation President Boris N. Yeltsin. In 1993, in a serious setback for NASA, engineers lost contact with the Mars Observer spacecraft as it was about to reach the Red Planet on a $980 million mission. Ten years ago: ABC News settled a $10 billion libel suit by apologizing to Philip Morris for reporting the tobacco giant had manipulated the amount of nicotine in its cigarettes. A suicide bomber set off an explosion that tore through two crowded Israeli commuter buses, killing five others. A commuter plane crashed near Carrollton, Ga., killing nine people. Five years ago: Rescue efforts to reach the sunken Russian nuclear submarine Kursk ended with divers announcing none of the 118 sailors had survived. One year ago: The International Gymnastics Federation ruled that South Korean Yang Tae-young was unfairly docked a tenth of a point in the all-around gymnastics final at the Athens Olympics, costing him the gold medal that ended up going to Paul Hamm of the United States; however, the ruling did not change the final result.

be described as "mythstakes." Some original mythologies bore shreds of truth, but most were clearly fictional. The latter stretched until imaginations snapped, and a bunch of them have held on.

We've added "urban" to many myths, but folks telling stories warranting deep belly laughs are dwindling. Check out cafes and drugstores in your community. Diminishing are the Monday morning quarterbacks who solved the world's problems over coffee. 'Course, maybe there was more to laugh about when java was a nickel a cup.

I miss community storytellers. Some didn't recognize truth when they saw it and lied for no more reason than to stay in practice. (My mom NEVER called people liars. "You can make your point by accusing them of fibbin, or windjammin" she opined.)

Maybe that's reason enough to rekindle the ones that are instructive or amusing for future generations.

I have made genuine efforts to verify an account first heard 35 years ago. It was oft-repeated at lecterns, and I confess to being among the leather lungs dispensing it.

Here's the gist of it: It is alleged that around 1970, Bart Starr of Green Bay Packers fame, Most Valuable Player of Super Bowls I and II and arguably one of the most notable athletes of all time, stopped for lunch at the Huffman House café in Winters, Texas.

as "Bart Starr of the Green

Huffman responded. "And I guess the reason I didn't recognize you is that we get our meat from Gooch's over in Abilene.'

Reportedly, Bart collapsed in laughter, figuring she might be the only person on the planet who had never heard of him. He sent an autographed picture, and it was proudly displayed at the Huffman House until it closed several years ago.

This vignette came to mind a few weeks back, so I called friends in Winters. I learned that they've just completed a 13-year, $330,000 project to upgrade Winters Historical the District. The little communi-Old No. 15 was said to ty of 3,000 souls raised all of

I asked Randall Conner about the Starr story. "I've heard it for years, but eye witnesses may all be dead or gone," he said, including both of the Huffmans.

"We've got the autographed picture of Mr. Starr in the museum," he said. He's mighty proud of the eclectic memorabilia including the first patented mechanical cotton picker (1912), old wedding dresses dating back to 1904, and the Rogers Hornsby baseball exhibit. "Yes, Rogers was born here in 1896," Conner assured. "And I'm not 'myth-speaking.'

Arthur Laffer – the happy supply-sider economist

Last time I talked to economist Arthur Laffer was in 1979 when I interviewed him at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. In those miserable economic times, before he was dubbed "The Father of Supply-Side Economics," Laffer was considered a kook by the liberal econestablishment for pushing his idea that cutting taxes in certain circumstances can simultaneously stimulate economic growth and put more tax revenue into government coffers. Today his famous "Laffer Curve" is no longer ridiculed, and the former member of President Reagan's Economic Policy Advisory Board is famed for cutting revolution. I talked to him by telephone from his home in San Diego:

A: I'm really shocked by O: How do you define it. As you probably know, I was not a fan of his father's. I voted for Clinton twice. really thought Bush (the elder) and Bob Dole were tax collectors for the welfare state. The reason I voted for Bush W. was more Al Gore than it was Bush. And now I am just totally a fan. This guy is just incredibly good at economics.

Q: You are not concerned about the big deficits or the former steel tariffs?

A: Oh, the steel tariffs (were) terrible. They're embarrassing. By putting on steel tariffs, what you do is cause U.S. companies that buy steel to pay higher prices for lower-quality steel. Now you tell me what happens to the American automobile industry and the other products that use steel as an import? I was born and raised in Youngstown, and I know steel pretty well. It does not help America, it doesn't help steel, and it doesn't help Youngstown. It hurts everyone.

Q: The biggest economic issue of the moment?

It was only an afternoon of scrimmages against the Frenship Tigers, but the Pampa High School freshmen, junior varsity and varsity football teams looked good Friday on the Astroturf of Kimbrough Stadium in Canyon.

Each showed signs of early off-season rust. The freshmen and junior varsity teams both struggled with holding onto the ball. The freshmen offensive line had a tough time with the size speed of the Tiger's defense. But as the afternoon wore on, things began to click for both.

The JV offense appeared to score as often, if not more than the Tigers. The defense showed signs of strength, especially against misdirection/counter plays and wide sweeps. Pampa picked off a few passes as well.

The freshmen offensive line began to adjust to the opposing defense, which allowed for better ball movement and a few scores. The defense remained up to the Tiger challenge all afternoon.

The varsity squad looked like a team that has already bought into and believes in whatever it is new Harvester head coach Bryan Wood has brought to the traditionrich Pampa program.

Junior James Coffee in particular made it apparent from the onset he will be one of the Harvesters the opposition will need to pay close attention to. Coffee began the afternoon with a towering punt that not only covered a lot of distance, but had great hang time as well. Within the next 10 minutes or so, he would find the Tiger quarterback while on defense, and the end zone as a running back on offense.

Seniors Nick Robbins and Keenan Davis each drilled extra point and short/medium range field goal attempts.

Senior Brody Smith looked comfortable at quarterback, whether under center or in shotgun formation. And those curious about Smith's passing ability need only have seen the connection he made with senior Sharod Young who had gained position on his defender down the left sideline, made a sensational catch, and darted to the end zone.

It was easy to forget that as both teams worked on basic schemes, that this was just a scrimmage. However, given Frenship is a perennial 4-4A power, Pampa looked great. Probably more accurate to say they looked disciplined. And though he will no doubt say there is still work to be done, Coach Wood must have been pleased by what he saw from his team yesterday.

Now he and his Harvesters can busy themselves this week with preparing for the season opener Friday at home against the Rangers of Perryton. That game will start at 7 p.m.

Stewart racing in rarified air

Tony Stewart is in a zone rarely achieved in NASCAR.

With five victories in the last seven races and his spot in the Nextel Cup playoffs virtually assured, Stewart can take it easy.

Don't count on it.

"Even though we have that flexibility to relax a bit from knowing that we're going to make the Chase, we still have the pressure to make sure we've done everything we can to be prepared for when the Chase starts," he said. "We're pretty much guaranteed to be in, but we don't want to just settle for being in.

"We want to do what we can to win the championship."

And in case he forgets, crew chief Greg Zipadelli will be certain to remind him of that. Stewart probably will be on top when NASCAR squeezes the points after 26 races to five-point intervals among the top drivers, who'll chase the title over the last 10 events.

His lead is 105 points over Jimmie Johnson heading to Michigan for Sunday's GFS Marketplace 400.

"We can't even think about getting complacent," said Zipadelli, the only crew chief Stewart has had since his rookie season with Joe Gibbs Racing. "My attitude after last week is we've got to work even harder. I want to win more than I did last weekend because it's the following weekend."

everywhere inside Anaheim Arena and there's not a golf club or perfectly manicured green in sight.

These birdies are made of goosefeathers and whiz through the air across five courts set on top of the ice rink used by the NHL's Mighty Ducks.

This week, the Asian- and Europeandominated sport of badminton is staging its world championships in the United States for the first time, and this isn't the version played with a beer in one hand at backyard barbecues.

That's the image familiar to most Americans, who might be surprised to learn badminton is called the world's fastest racket sport because a shuttle can be smashed at more than 200 mph. Put a 3 1/2-ounce racket in the hands of the world's best players, most of whom are Chinese, Korean, Malaysian and Indonesian, and watch them turn the game into a survival of the fittest.

They might cover more than a mile in ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Birdies are one match — jumping, running and going up-and-back or side-to-side on a dime. The shuttle — weighing just under a quarter of an ounce — and its 16 feathers fixed in a cork base can be obliterated with one brutal leaping smash.

> The shuttles are humidified to prevent dryness and brittleness. They are made from left wing and right wing feathers plucked from white geese. Only six or seven specific feathers from each wing can be used to make a shuttle, and the feathers cannot be mixed. Three geese can produce two shuttles, with four feathers left over.

> Players need split-second reactions to keep the shuttle from touching the ground during play, which is illegal.

> "It's the athleticism, the effort and the skill that goes into it," said spectator David Turner, an Englishman who planned his U.S. vacation around taking in the championships.

CALL PAMPA COUNTRY CLUB GOLF SHOP AT 806-665-8431 FOR REGISTRATION INFORMATION Bears' Benson last first-round pick unsigned

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) - Upset and frustrated that running back Cedric Benson is still a holdout and the only first-round draft pick without a contract agreement, the Chicago Bears have made their final offer to the No. 4 pick.

"After missing all of training camp, we want to make it abundantly clear that the Chicago Bears have made their best and final offer to Cedric Benson," Bears general manager Jerry Angelo said in a statement released by the team.

"No dollars are left on the bargaining table and at this point the only contract discussions that will be entertained will be reflective of the considerable loss of value to the club created by the player's extended absence," the statement said.

Benson's holdout reached its 26th day Thursday and the former Texas star has already missed two preseason games. The Bears' training camp at Bourbonnais, Ill., ended Wednesday.

The Bears are back at their Halas Hall training facility and play again Saturday at Indianapolis. They have two exhibitions remaining after that before opening the regular season Sept. 11 at Washington.

The Bears have been burned by holdouts from first-round running backs in the past, most notably Curtis Enis, who was drafted in 1998 and is who is no longer in the NFL after a disappointing injury-plagued career.

"The Chicago Bears have always placed a premium on having our players in camp on time," Angelo said noting that two other first-rounders represented by Benson's agent, Eugene Parker, were in on time quarterback Rex Grossman and defensive tackle Tommie Harris.

Apple juice? Gatorade? Tang, perhaps?

No, these kids are talking about which big-time slugger might be on steroids, proving that even the littlest of Little Leaguers isn't immune from the controversy engulfing the majors.

"I think it's cheating," French Creek Valley player Mitchell Wood said before his team played recently in the Pennsylvania Little League tournament for 9- and 10year-olds in Bellefonte.

Organizers of the Little League World Series, the tournament for 11- and 12-yearolds starting Friday in South Williamsport, expect talk about steroids to come up there, too. "We're disappointed and concerned with what message that it's sending to Little Leaguers," said Stephen Keener, president of Little League Baseball and Softball. Keener says Little League, which doesn't test players for drugs, has no plans to address the steroids issue during the series.

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) - It's 30 min- least, it's all about answering "Who's on the juice?"

Taking a break under a tree as teammates took batting practice, several French Creek Valley players rattled off a list of names they'd seen hit home runs on the nightly highlights over the year.

Mark McGwire? "Yeah," some say in unison while a couple others say "No." McGwire has denied using illegal performance-enhancing drugs but refused to do so under oath while testifying before Congress in March.

Sammy Sosa?

"I think Sammy's too good a guy," says 10-year-old David Bradley about the Baltimore Orioles outfielder who denied having used performance-enhancing drugs at the same congressional hearing.

Bradley's teammate John Macken interrupts. "No, he's on the juice, David," the 10-year-old says.

Macken is even more convinced about Sosa's teammate, Rafael Palmeiro, suspended 10 days earlier this month for violating Major League Baseball's new steroids policy. "He's a great ballplayer, but what he did wasn't right," Macken said.

and it's a great feeling, but game in our eyes."

O'Donnell hoped to attract about 3,000 daily spectators for the preliminaries through Thursday and about 5,000 for the final rounds Saturday and Sunday. ESPN2 planned delayed coverage.

Clearly, Americans need educating about a sport that originated in China in 500 B.C. and made its way to India, where British army officers stationed there brought it to England in the 1870s.

Singles player Nina Weckstrom of Finland had to explain the game to confused U.S. customs officials.

"It's a bit strange that people actually don't know what badminton is," she said, laughing. "They were like, 'What's that? Is it the one with the stick and the rink?""

Stewart showed that sort of versatility. Now, some are comparing Stewart to them.

Even with several years of racing ahead of him, that might be a bit of a stretch. And who would want that kind of pressure anyway?

Stewart doesn't mind. "It doesn't put pressure on me," he said. "If anything, it's very flattering. "Hopefully, I'm one of

"It's real easy to say, 'Hey, we're in this thing. We're OK,"' Zipadelli said before the race at The Glen. "We've got to keep the intensity, the pressure on ourselves to perform, not slip up, not sit back and let your guard down."

Every point counts, and for the Home Depot team there is no alternative other than racing as hard as it can each time the rubber meets the road. It's been that way for most of Stewart's 34 years — from the time he began beating the rest of the kids in go-karts.

Since then, Stewart has won in dirt cars, midgets, sprints and everything else he's driven. He came to the fore as the 1997 IRL champion, and then moved to NASCAR.

Only racing greats Mario Andretti and A.J. Foyt growing pains and temper one else.

Even if it's a car I haven't the domination is back, but driven before. I might not be able to win right away, but at least I'm competitive and don't look like I've never driven something like that before."

He's demonstrated that repeatedly, and his victory Sunday at Watkins Glen leaves him as the unchallenged king of the road courses.

It was his fifth win on a serpentine layout, not bad for a kid from Indiana who grew up in the left-turn-only environment of midwestern tracks.

There have been plenty of more frequently than anytantrums along the way. He was placed on probation Tuesday until the end of the year for hitting another car after the Busch series race Saturday. But nothing seems to hurt his performance.

"This sport is mental," Zipadelli said of Stewart and the team. "We've been through a lot of adversity in the last seven years. But as a group we've been able to put things behind us and > believe in ourselves and in our driver." Given Stewart's immense talent, that's not difficult. He has won 24 times on the world's premier stock car racing circuit, and was a threat to win virtually every week from 2000 to his championship season of 2002. Now

Stewart isn't taking it for granted.

"There are no guarantees that because you're good one year you should be good the next," Stewart explained. "If everybody would quit working to get better and you were good, you could just not have to worry about it. You'd be good all the time. It just doesn't work that way.'

Right now, everything seems to be working, and Zipadelli hopes the opposition doesn't figure out why Stewart is the favorite far

"We're kind of slowly catching up," said Lee, who lost her first-round singles match to one of Estonia's two competitors. "We could definitely use sponsorship. You can't really make a career out of badminton."

Unless you're in Asia, where matches attract up to 15,000 fans. The Chinese government funds training, travel and equipment for its athletes, something Lee can only dream about.

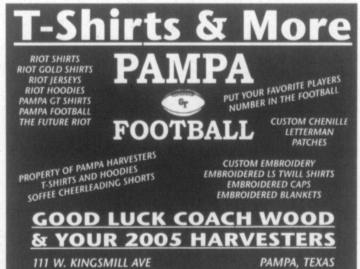

"For them, it's like their job," she said. "For us, it's just like something you do if we don't have school."

Trying to beat the powerful Asian athletes can be demoralizing to the mixed doubles team of Daniel Shirley and Sara Runesten-Petersen from sparsely populated New Zealand.

Boys Ranch Rodeo, Tascosa Rendezvous in offing at Boys Ranch

BOYS RANCH - Dust off your cowboy boots and shine your spurs - it's time for the 61st Annual Boys Ranch Rodeo at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch. Cheer the riders from Boys Ranch and Cal Farley's Girlstown, U.S.A., as they compete for buckles and saddles while displaying their skills in pole bending, barrel racing, calf and bull riding, bull fighting and breakaway roping. And don't miss the younger buckaroos in the crowd-pleasing favorites of mutton bustin' and stick-horse barrel racing.

This year's new event, breakaway roping, is a timed event requiring skillful coordination between the roper and his trained horse. The event begins as a calf is given a head start into the arena, followed by a horse and roper. One end of the rope is tied to the saddle horn with a string.

The roper attempts to throw the other end of the catch rope onto the calf. Once the catch is made, the horse slides to a halt and the rope breaks away from the saddle horn. A brightly colored cloth is attached to the end of the rope to assist the judges in seeing and timing the break. The breaking of the string marks the end of the run, and the fastest time wins.

Before the action in the rodeo arena begins each day, a barbecue lunch will be served. The meal is free with the purchase of a rodeo ticket.

Tickets are $5 general admission; $8 box seats. For ticket information, call 372-2341.

On Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3-4, barbecue will be served from noon until 2 p.m. The rodeo is set to begin at 2:30 p.m. each day.

The 6th Annual Old Tascosa Rendezvous is held in conjunction with the rodeo. The Rendezvous allows visitors to experience the "rough and rugged" times of Old Tascosa as early cowboys, explorers and Native Americans lived it in the old town's heyday.

Historical re-enactors will display their wares in primitive campsites and teepees typical of the 1800s. Step into the past to watch games and demonstrations such as fire making, black powder shooting, hide tanning, beading and campfire cooking.

The Rendezvous is open to the public and free of charge. Dates and times: Friday, Sept. 2, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 3-4, 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

mod- IGNORED IN CANADA

DEAR ABBY: I recently received a modest inheritance. My husband and I are about 10 years from retiring. The money is just enough to put away for a secure retirement, not enough for a lavish lifestyle.

The problem is my mother-in-law, "Vera." She is 70, healthy and active. She manages very well in her paid-for home. Vera has now begun looking at assisted-living communities that, for a hefty monthly rent, provide chef-prepared meals in a dining room, activities and transportation. She's assuming that my husband and I will pay this rent, since we are now "wealthy" in her estimation.

Abby, if we take on this responsibility, the money will be spent by the time we retire, and Vera will still need to pay her rent. I never discussed this inheritance with my mother-in-law. It came from my side of the family and is really not her business. We didn't brag or start making showy purchases.

My husband feels as I do about putting it aside for retirement, but we're both stumped about how to handle his mom. Have you any suggestions? -- "THE HEIRESS" IN UPSTATE N.Y.

DEAR "HEIRESS": Before your motherin-law's fantasy about dwelling on easy street becomes any more grandiose, you and her son must schedule a reality session with her. If she's planning on upgrading her lifestyle from what it is now, she should first consult her CPA or financial planner to make sure her assets will cover the cost. It may be a rude awakening for the lady, but better now than later.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in a real bind. I have an employee who decides on her own hours even when a schedule 'is posted every month. Some days, she doesn't show up for work at all, and other times she leaves before her shift is over.

When I confront her about it, she gets angry and threatens me with, "I'm going to phone Labor Standards on you!" Can she be fired for this kind of behavior? --

DEAR IGNORED: Here in the United States, it is recommended that the matter be handled by calling the employee in, reminding her of the posted work schedule, and "counseling" her that she must be at work during work hours. Afterward, a memo -- signed or initialed by the employee -- would be placed in her employee file. If this doesn't remedy the situation and the woman is still noncompliant, there would be grounds for dismissal, and the Labor was justified. Because I am not familiar with the law in Canada, I urge you to discuss the matter with someone familiar with labor law there.

Board would probably agree the dismissal

DEAR ABBY: When we're together, my middle-aged daughter insists on talking about her mother, from whom I've been divorced for many years. Our daughter always mentions her in a caring way, as if it really mattered to me what's going on in my ex-wife's life. I should point out that the divorce was a bitter one for all parties. My daughter isn't happy that I don't show an interest in her mother. I have tried to explain why I feel the way I do, but she keeps saying, "She IS my mother!" What's your take on this, please? -- PERPLEXED IN CACTUS COUNTRY

DEAR PERPLEXED: Your daughter is either insensitive to your feelings, or she's trying to drum up some interest on your part regarding her mother. The next time she tells you, "She IS my mother," tell her, "Well, she's no longer my wife -- so please stop inflicting her on me" and change the subject.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

COLLEGE STATION - The time: about 5 p.m. on a weekday. Traffic is beginning to build up as people head for home.

The place: one of the busiest intersections in an urban area of about 150,000.

The scene: Surrounded by vehicles much larger than his own, a man sits on an idling motorcycle waiting for the traffic light to turn green.

He is not wearing a helmet.

He is talking on a cell phone.

As the light turns green and traffic in his area begins to move forward, he moves forward with it ... still surrounded by much larger vehicles, still helmetless. And still talking on a cell phone.

That scene spotlights many safety hazards, said Janna L. Ter Molen, with the Brazos Valley Injury Prevention Coalition of Texas Cooperative Extension. And statistics hint that this kind of carelessness might not be all that unusual.

"Motorcycle fatalities in the United States have risen steadily for years," she steps, she said: said.

Figures from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration show 3,661 motorcyclists killed on U.S. roads in 2003, with 3,927 deaths projected for 2004. (Figures are not yet available.)

That's a 7.3 percent increase in one year, Ter Molen said.

"Motorcycle fatalities in Texas have also risen steadily since 1997," she said. "Based on Texas Department of Public Safety and U.S. Department of Transportation data, there were 323 motorcyclists killed on Texas roadways in 2003. This represents a 26.2 percent increase from the previous year, which is considerably greater than the national increase."

And many of those fatalities could have been prevented through the use of safe practices and common sense, she said.

In addition to always wearing helmets and never talking on cell phones while riding, motorcyclists and their passengers can improve riding safety with these -Complete a motorcycle rider education course. These courses are designed to give motorcycle riders the skills needed to ride safely in traffic.

-Get a motorcycle driver's license. For information on the rules and regulations in Texas, contact the nearest office of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

-Never mix alcohol with motorcycles. In 2003, Ter Molen said, 30 percent of fatally injured motorcyclists had an elevated blood alcohol count.

Wear gear designed to provide protection in a crash and to make motorcyclists more visible to others on the road. For night riding, wear reflective gear.

Ride where you can be seen. Always make sure to have extra space for emergency braking or avoidance maneuvers. Stay out of other drivers' blind spots. Make lane changes gradually and use proper signaling.

-Never share a lane with a car. The driver may not see or hear you.

Don't weave between cars.

Motorcycle operators and their passengers aren't the only ones who should be aware of safety precautions.

"Over two-thirds of fatal motorcycle crashes involve a motorcycle and another vehicle," Ter Molen said. Too many times drivers don't see the motorcycle at all or don't see the motorcycle in time to avoid a crash, she added.

"It is important for motorists to know that their actions affect the safety of motorcyclists."

These tips might help raise awareness of motorcycle safety, even for drivers of fourwheeled vehicles:

· Keep in mind that a motorcycle is a vehicle with all the privileges of any other vehicle on the road. When driving near a motorcycle, don't drive too close.

· Watch for motorcyclists at intersections, especially those making left turns, and for motorcyclists changing lanes.

For more information, contact Ter Molen at (979) 845-1146.
