Miers nomination causes political conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush asked the Senate today to confirm Harriet Miers for the Supreme Court by Thanksgiving and urged Democrats to give her a chance to explain her views of the law and the Constitution.

Miers, who was meeting today with Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a former Judiciary Committee chairman, and Finance Committee Chairman Charles Grassley, R-Iowa., was nominated to replace retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

The American people are going to know what I know: This woman deserves to be on the bench. And she'll bring credit to the bench and to the law," he said.

Business Review

Construction firm has its eye on the details

Pete Ward was a talented Building Trades student, and at 17 years old he made a decision to compete in a district contest with his peers. His confidence was boosted when he won first place. With his new-found interest in competing, he went on to win at the regional level as well. This only fueled his confidence for the State level competition, and Pete knew with his desire to build things with his hands and his attention to detail he could do whatever he set his mind to.

Pete won the State competition in 1975 as a Senior at Caprock High School, and he hasn't stopped building things since.

Pete started his career in the building business working part-time as a framer and going to school. He was fortunate enough to be able to build Pizza Huts and Taco Villas in the Amarillo area and to start out learning commercial construction as well.

Ward Builders & Design, Inc., has built gymnasiums and portables for school districts in Amarillo. The firm has built other commercial businesses and showrooms in Amarillo. Commercial building is interesting, and with all the State regulations you must be on your best game. The firm's commercial building experiences have made house building a breeze.

"It's always best if a builder has had hands-on experience, actually strapping on a tool belt and doing the work yourself," Pete said. "I started out as a framer, and I figure I had framed over 200 homes before I became a Builder. I was job supervisor for several builders and learned the 'ends and outs' of the business before I decided I was seasoned enough to be a builder."

Pete Ward, of Ward Builders & Design, Inc., has built gymnasiums and portables for school districts in Amarillo. The firm has built other commercial businesses and showrooms in Amarillo.

Pete found himself back at Caprock High School, except this time he was the Building Trades instructor, teaching students how to build houses. Pete took a group of kids each year for 16 years and taught them each phase of construction from the ground up all the way to "Open House."

"Teaching Building Trades allowed me the freedom of having the summer season off to build custom homes with my own company. We are very proud of the reputation that we have in the building business. Today, there are so many new builders out there that don't have 'hands-on' experience, and I believe the customer deserves more than that. Building your home is one of your largest investments, and hands-on experience from your builder should be a prerequisite," Pete said.

As a builder, you absolutely need to know every phase of construction. Details are so important, from the very beginning of picking out house plans and bidding the job to installing the homeowner's new door locks and handing them the keys to their new home.

Pete said, "We enjoy building custom homes, and interaction with the homeowner is a detail that most builders overlook. In these fast-paced times, most builders find it easier to build spec homes as opposed to custom homes because they don't have to bother with details or the homeowner. We have formed many great friendships with our customers and have ongoing relationships with them still."

"My wife Tammi," Pete continued, "has a wonderful gift of design and decorating. She works with our customers, helping them with paint colors, wall finishes and other decorating tips as well."

"Honesty and Integrity are top priorities with us at Ward Builders & Design, Inc. We offer 'old-fashioned' customer service with attention to detail. We only build what you want and what you can afford, whether it be your home or your commercial building. We are licensed and registered in good standing with The State of Texas and the Texas Residential Construction Commission," Pete concluded.

Call Pete today and visit with him about your new home or business. The number(s) is (806) 683-2098, (806) 683-2099 or (806) 359-3965.

Exactly how much is too much?

A friend of mine has a catchy comment whenever someone relates a story to her that is too graphic, too personal, or too whatever. She says "TMI," meaning "too much information," sometimes while making the "T" for "time out" symbol with her hands.

It is a sad fact that people say newspapers don't carry any good news, while at the same time, the papers that sell out are the ones with the most sensational or heinous stories on the front page.

An example is the recent homicides which occurred Friday south of Pampa.

It seems that everywhere I go, ever since the news first got out that the homicides had happened, people ask me for more information on the subject.

Each day that The Pampa News has printed stories and/or photos of the tragedy, the newspaper has sold every copy.

I explain to the people wanting more details that all I know for sure is what is in the stories I have written on the homicides, and anything else I have heard is not from an official source or from my own firsthand observations and therefore can't be reported as fact.

Sometimes people tell me what they have heard regarding the shootings. Sometimes they express their feelings about the crime.

It can be very easy to give in to temptation and add a few details that one hears repeatedly from different sources, yet are neither confirmed or denied or even offered by officials directly involved in the case.

Sometimes those details turn out to be true. Other times, they are not.

Even if they are true, it would be irresponsible to publicize information that may jeopardize the investigation, mislead the public, be libelous, endanger anyone, or otherwise serve no purpose except to wallow in gossip.

It is generally acceptable to state that someone said "no comment" in answer to a question. At the same time, it is a tightrope walk to balance the public's desire to know with the need to restrain oneself from repeating information that hasn't been provided by someone considered a reliable

Marilyn Powers
Staff Writer

In this case, reliable sources are the law enforcement agencies who are investigating the shootings, along with other officials involved in the case, such as the justice of the peace who ordered the autopsies.

Another reliable source would be anyone who witnessed the crime personally. I'm sure the aforementioned law enforcement officers would love to talk to them, too.

So far, only one person has expressed the opinion that The Pampa News has printed too much information on the homicides.

The person, who gives an Amarillo address, said that it was irresponsible to publish the information visible on the outside of the mailbox which is across Highway 70 from the house where the shootings occurred. The reason for this concern was that it might be a case of providing information that law enforcement wished to be kept quiet so as not to jeopardize the investigation or put others in danger.

The mailbox information was included in Sunday's story in this newspaper. Also on Sunday, at least one Amarillo television station broadcast the names and ages of the victims, and their obituaries appeared in the Amarillo newspaper. The obituaries were faxed to The Pampa News also and were received Saturday, but too late to be in the Sunday paper.

Too much information? Not enough? There will always be people on both sides. The trick is to write just the facts, ma'am.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 4, the 277th day of 2005. There are 88 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 4, 1957, the Space Age began as the Soviet Union launched Sputnik, the first man-made satellite, into orbit.

On this date:

In 1777, George Washington's troops launched an assault on the British at Germantown, Pa., resulting in heavy American casualties.

In 1822, the 19th president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, was born in Delaware, Ohio.

In 1931, the comic strip "Dick Tracy," created by Chester Gould, made its debut.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred at Brenner Pass in the Alps, where the Nazi leader sought Italy's help in fighting the British.

In 1957, the television series "Leave It to Beaver" premiered on CBS.

In 1965, Pope Paul VI became the first reigning pontiff to visit the Western Hemisphere as he addressed the U.N. General Assembly.

In 1970, rock singer Janis Joplin, 27, was found dead in her Hollywood hotel room.

In 1978, funeral services were held at the Vatican for Pope John Paul I.

In 1980, some 520 people were forced to abandon the cruise ship Prisdendam in the Gulf of Alaska after the Dutch luxury liner caught fire — no deaths or serious injury resulted.

In 1985, Islamic Jihad issued a statement saying it had killed American hostage William Buckley. (Fellow hostage David Jacobsen, however, later said he believed Buckley had died of torture injuries four months earlier.)

Ten years ago: Pope John Paul II arrived in the United States for a five-day visit. Hurricane Opal battered the Florida panhandle.

Five years ago: Amid fresh bloodshed in the West Bank and Gaza, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright brought Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat together for talks in Paris. In an apparent attempt to buy time for Slobodan Milosevic, Yugoslavia's highest court invalidated parts of the presidential election after thousands of opposition supporters forced police to back off from seizing a strikebound mine.

One year ago: The SpaceShipOne rocket plane broke through Earth's atmosphere to the edge of space for the second time in five days, capturing the $10 million Ansari X prize aimed at opening the final frontier to tourists.

'Knowledge is like a garden: if it is not cultivated, it cannot be harvested.'

— Guinean saying

Market allocation frees up resources

Evacuations are not a benign process. Twenty-four people were killed when a bus carrying 38 Houston nursing home residents and six employees caught fire in a traffic jam. It's thought that oxygen tanks used by elderly evacuees had a role in the fire. Given the hurricane predictions for Houston and Galveston, one can't blame officials for ordering evacuations, but the lesson to be learned is evacuations can be costly. In addition to injuries and loss of life, when evacuations are ordered, there are costs associated with opportunistic criminal behavior such as looting, which there were reports of in Houston.

Hurricane Rita provided us with another evacuation lesson as millions sought to leave Houston and Galveston. Gasoline stations ran out of gas leaving hundreds of motorists stranded. Many abandoned their cars. Police officers were deployed to carry gas to motorists whose tanks were empty.

Texas authorities also asked the Pentagon for help in getting gas to stranded motorists. Much of the blame for the shortage rests at the feet of Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott, who recently ordered that penalties of up to $20,000 be imposed per incident of price-gouging. You say, "How come you blame Greg Abbott?" Let's look at it.

When the hurricane evacuation order came, there was an immediate change in the demand conditions for gasoline; namely, demand became much greater than the available supply.

Retailers, in fear of prosecution by the attorney general, didn't do what would have brought demand more in line with the available supplies of gasoline — raise prices.

Suppose a family evacuating Houston chose to make a 146-mile drive to stay with relatives in Austin. Their car has a half a tank of gasoline — plenty to get to Austin — but just to be safe, they decide to fill up. What do you think they might do if they expected to pay $2.75 a gallon but when they got to the gas station they found the gas selling for $3.75? I bet they'd say, "The heck with that; we'll fill up in Austin." That's wonderful; they've voluntarily made gas available for someone running out of gas. In my book, for a motorist who's running on empty, gas available at $3.75 a gallon is preferable to gas being unavailable at $2.75 a gallon.

Attorney General Abbott also threatened legal action against what he called "unconscionable pricing" by hotels. Take that same family. The husband might have said, "Honey, I don't feel like driving all the way to

Authorities making up relief efforts as they go

■ Sept. 26
The Dallas Morning News on Hurricane Rita efforts:

"So now there's still no plan, for fuel or anything else, to get folks back home except 'Don't come back.'" A quote from Good Ol' Dan on Houston's KHOU-TV message board

Yes, Dan, authorities are still making it up as they go, to a point. Hurricane Rita had that effect, scaring the stuffing out of the nation's fourth-largest city and causing an unprecedented near-instant migration of 2.5 million people away from coastal Texas.

They exhausted everything in their path, gasoline, highway capacity, motel rooms, emergency shelters, tempers and many contingencies in the planning manual.

Now they are headed back under blue skies and according to an ad hoc plan that encourages staggered arrivals and guarantees gripes from those who don't tolerate inconvenience.

Despite the spectacle of huge traffic jams, the massive undertaking has to be judged a success if measured by the one statistic that matters most: loss of life after Rita's landfall.

A relieved Gov. Rick Perry yesterday said that the toll appeared to be zero in Texas.

As the storm pummeled and drenched East Texas and Louisiana over the weekend, untold numbers of citizens were where they needed to be: out of harm's way.

A cruel statistic is the evacuation-related death toll of 24 nursing home residents from Houston whose chartered bus burst into flames near Dallas. Pinpointing the cause is important to more safely evacuating this fragile population in the future and overcoming the obstacles of transporting oxygen tanks and their special needs.

Many Texans will ask the inevitable question of whether it was proper to evacuate these older residents or, for that matter, much of Houston, which ended up slipping Rita's punch.

The answer is an emphatic yes.

The process began as Rita appeared headed toward the record on important issues to all Americans and whose judicial philosophy is well-formed," said Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., one of Congress' most fervent anti-abortion lawmakers. "I am not yet confident that Ms. Miers has a proven track record."

The conservative National Review, in a Monday editorial, called the Miers nomination a "missed opportunity."

"Being a Bush loyalist and friend is not a qualification for the Supreme Court. She may have been the best pick from within Bush's inner circle," the magazine said. "It seems impossible to maintain that she was the best pick from any larger field. It seems highly unlikely that she will be the kind of justice who, in combination with Roberts, Scalia, and Thomas, will attract additional votes by the sheer force of her arguments."

In a round of television interviews Tuesday, White House counselor Dan Bartlett sought to reassure conservatives who have expressed concern that Miers might not be conservative enough for their tastes because she had no strong record on hot-button issues like abortion and gay rights.

"She shares President Bush's judicial outlook and that is that justices shouldn't be creating law from the bench, they should be strictly interpret the Constitution," Bartlett said on CBS' "The Early Show."

Bartlett said that Bush had not asked Miers her views on issues like abortion or gay rights. "President Bush thinks it's very important not to impose a litmus test on judicial candidates," Bartlett said.

house after a 911 call was received at about 7:15 a.m. Friday to report a shooting. Michell Conrad was pregnant at the time of her death.

Gray County Sheriff's Office and the Texas Rangers are heading the investigation into the homicides.

"We still have leads coming in, and we're pursuing every lead," Chief Deputy Kelly Rushing of the sheriff's office said this morning.

"Each lead is being followed with all diligence. Also, some suspects have been identified and are being carefully scrutinized," said Trooper Daniel Hawthorne, public information officer for the Texas Department of Public Safety in Childress, in a press release dated Monday afternoon. Sheriff Don Copeland declined to comment on the identification of suspects in the multiple shooting this morning.

"Limited information is being given to maintain the integrity of the evidence," Hawthorne said.

Funeral services for the four are at 2 p.m. today at First Baptist Church, with interment at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

about the homicides. Classes at PHS ended at 1:30 p.m. today so that any students and staff members who wished to attend the funeral could do so, he said.

"I think the main thing is that in times such as these, it's time to reflect on what is really valuable and important in our personal lives," said the Rev. Lynn

Hancock, minister of Briarwood Full Gospel Church, where the family were members. "It also shows us how fragile life is and how we need each other, and how we need God in our everyday lives."

Austin to stay with your mother and father; let's rent a room." When they get to the hotel, the rooms are no longer $75 a night but $150. The husband says, "OK, I'll put up with the in-laws." That's wonderful, too. They've made a room available for a family who has no other alternative.

Market allocation isn't the only way to make sure people economize on resources that have suddenly become scarce. Texas officials resorted to pleading with motorists not to top off their tanks. Their pleas were ignored. What Texas officials could have done was to place anti-top off officers at every gas station to make sure people weren't buying more gas than they needed to get to their evacuation destination. Texas officials also could have stationed hotel officers at every hotel. The job of the hotel officer would be to query potential guests as to whether they had nearby relatives or friends with whom they could spend a night or two. If they had relatives or friends within a reasonable distance, such as my example of the husband and wife with relatives in Austin, the hotel officer would tell them to hit the road. Would measures such as these have been preferable to rising prices or the unavailability of gas and lodging?

Don't get me wrong. There's nothing pleasant about rising prices in the wake of a disaster. My argument is that not allowing the market mechanism to allocate suddenly scarce resources produces the inferior outcome.

storm. One of the tragic lessons of Hurricane Katrina in New Orleans just last month was that hesitation is foolhardy and often fatal.

The lessons of Rita should be how to do it better the next time.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from "Standing on Principle," who thinks she should get $5 a week for driving her 17-year-old niece to work half a mile away. Because it is such a short distance, that girl should WALK to work!

Our nation is growing fatter and fatter, more and more out of shape physically, because of less and less exercise and active play, and more and more computer and video games. I am a registered nurse who sees a lot of people in ill health. I know that a major portion of that ill health could be avoided or improved by eating a healthy diet, being active and losing weight.

I understand that for some people it's hard to get in that mind-set. But it's a simpler, far less expensive solution to health care than medications, tests and more tests, and frequent doctor/hospital visits, to say nothing of a poor quality of life.

Adults need to think about this, not only for themselves but also for their children -- who are at increased danger of diabetes, etc. because of poor lifestyle habits. -- A VERMONT NURSE

DEAR VERMONT NURSE: You are not the only reader who was quick to point out that a half-mile walk isn't a hardship. The face with the egg on it is mine. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: With regard to "Standing on Principle in Knoxville," who "needs" a ride to work every day, I think a couple of points are in order.

First, it's not unreasonable for that girl to pay for gas. She is earning a few bucks, I expect. But if she's going a mile a day five days a week, even an SUV would make a profit on $5. How about $5 a month?

My other point is really the reason for this letter: Why does that kid need a ride? Unless she lives in the worst neighborhood in all of Maryland, she could easily walk -- and it would do her some serious good to do so. I'm older than dirt and had a coronary bypass nine months ago, and I walk a couple of miles every morning without fail. If I can do it, why can't she? -- WALKING ON PRINCIPLE IN SAN JOSE

DEAR WALKING ON PRINCIPLE: That's a good question -- and one that only the young lady can answer.

DEAR ABBY: I charge my son for driving him to and from work, not because I need the money but because he needs to understand that there are costs associated with transportation. He earns a reasonable wage, and the amount I expect is just sufficient enough to let him know that nothing is free, and therefore he should plan his expenses carefully. My time is valuable, but I give it willingly.

That niece should understand that $5 is less than a taxi, and certainly more convenient than a bus. -- MARC L., CLEARWATER, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: There's another way to look at that situation. Years ago, our local chamber of commerce sent 10 underprivileged kids to two weeks of overnight camp. Five of them paid $5 and five paid nothing. Upon their return, we received five thank-you notes from the ones who paid. We heard nothing from those who attended for free. I think people only put a value on things that cost them something. -- PENNY C., PARADISE VALLEY, ARIZ.

PHS tennis team suffers first district loss of season, hosts Caprock this afternoon

The Harvester Tennis Team suffered its first district loss Saturday falling to Dumas, 11-8.

The match remained close coming out of doubles with the score 3-4, Dumas leading. Pampa managed to tie the match at 7-7 before Dumas took all but one of the remaining matches to win.

"It's always disappointing to lose but we have to keep our heads up and know that we can still win district," said Coach Emily Laurence.

Pampa now enters a 3 way tie for first with Dumas and Palo Duro. "There were a lot of close matches against Dumas that could have gone either way," Laurence said. "We'll look forward to playing them again in the second half of district play and this time we'll have a different outcome."

The Harvesters will face Caprock today in Amarillo before starting the second half of district with Randall coming to Pampa Saturday.

Rangers will not offer Rogers new contract

DALLAS (AP) — Kenny Rogers will not return to the Texas Rangers, who are cutting their ties with the pitcher best remembered this year for throwing a tantrum and shoving two television cameramen.

The Rangers said in a statement Monday that the 40-year-old lefty will not be offered a contract for 2006. He will become a free agent.

"The Texas Rangers organization would like to thank Kenny Rogers for his efforts over the last two seasons and during his entire Rangers career," general manager John Hart said. "As we look at 2006 and beyond, we feel it is in the club's best interests to move forward without him."

Rogers' agent, Scott Boras, didn't immediately return a phone message.

The team offered no further comment. Hart was scheduled to meet with the media Tuesday to discuss the 2005 season and the team's plans for the off-season.

Rogers was 14-8 with a 3.46 ERA, and was an All-Star for the second straight year. But what most people will recall about his third stint with Texas, and 12th season overall with the team, was the videotaped tirade June 29 in which he shoved the cameramen while walking onto the field.

While appealing his 20-game suspension, which eventually was reduced to 13 games, Rogers pitched in the All-Star game and was booed by fans at Comerica Park in Detroit. As an All-Star, he earned a $50,000 contract bonus — the same amount he was fined.

This Week: Conflict Resolution
PART 3 OF 3

© 2005 by Vicki Whiting, Editor Jeff Schinkel, Graphics Vol. 21 No. 41

FAIR OR FOUL

Has this ever happened to you?

Today is a special day for Liz and her class. They have just finished reading a book about how kids lived long ago. After recess, there will be a surprise snack to celebrate. Riiiiinnng! "There goes the bell," yells Bill. "Last one in line is a rotten egg!"

Circle the cartoon that shows the best thing you think Liz could do.

Panel 1: Bill! Get the heck out of my way! I'm first!

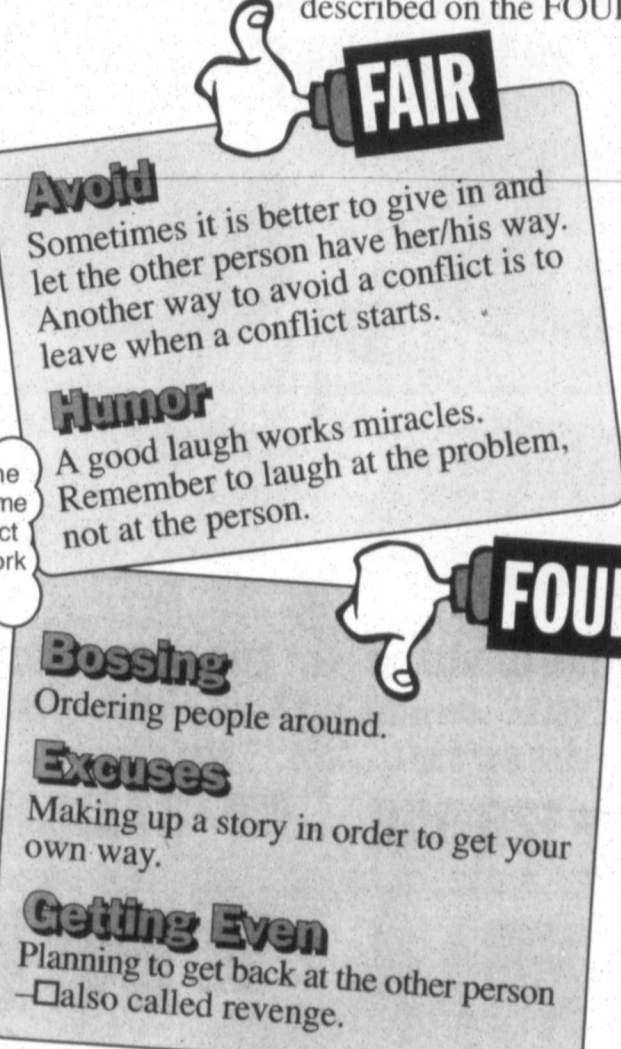

Panel 2: I'm going to trip you next time you walk by my desk!

Panel 3: For me it is a pleasure to let you go first!

Panel 4: The teacher said I should go first because I have to help her. Well, she did ask me to collect homework later!

Liz runs her fastest to get to the front of the line, but Bill beats her. Liz feels angry. How would you feel? What would you do?

Liz STOPS and THINKS. The next thing she does could make the conflict worse. This would be a FOUL. Look at the fouls described on the FOUL card. Do they sound familiar to you?

FAIR
Sometimes it is better to give in and let the other person have her/his way. Another way to avoid a conflict is to leave when a conflict starts.

Humor
A good laugh works miracles. Remember to laugh at the problem, not at the person.

Bossing
Ordering people around.

Excuses
Making up a story in order to get your own way.

Getting Even
Planning to get back at the other person — also called revenge.

Liz could try one of the FAIR ways to resolve her conflict. Look at the FAIR card. Which one do you think she should try?

Extra! Extra! Cutline Cut Ups

The description printed under a newspaper photo is called a cutline. Cut out three news photos and their cutlines. Cut apart the photos and their cutlines. Give a partner the three photos and the three cutlines and see if he/she can match them.

Standards Link: Language Arts/Research: Students understand the layout of newspapers.

Be Prepared! One good way to quickly resolve a conflict is by thinking about it ahead of time. What will you do next time someone cuts in front of you in line?

Standards Link: Health/Conflict Resolution: Students know strategies for solving interpersonal conflicts without harming others.

YOU'RE THE REFEREE!

Alexis and Tyler have a science project due today. It isn't ready. Look at the ways in which Tyler and Alexis are handling their conflict. Decide if they are acting FAIR or FOUL. Can you name the FAIR and FOUL things they are doing?

Standards Link: Health/Conflict Resolution: Students know possible cause of conflicts in school and strategies to prevent them.

Panel 1: It's your fault, Tyler! You haven't done anything for this project!

Panel 2: It makes me feel mad when you blame me, Alexis. After all, we were both responsible for this project.

Panel 3: How could I do anything? You didn't get the materials! You always want everything all for yourself! You're a selfish jerk!

Panel 4: Calling me names won't get our project done. Let's ask the teacher if we can bring it in tomorrow.

Panel 5: Okay! I'll come over after school and we'll finish the project!

Genie to the Rescue!

There are many ways to react to a conflict. Here's a fun way to solve a conflict — use the Genie's Conflict Resolution Choice-O-Meter! At www.kidscoop.com/kids/index.html, you can print out the Choice-O-Meter and get instructions on how to make it.

Then, next time you are faced with a conflict, Genie will help you and your friends reach a solution at random!

Standards Link: Reading Comprehension: Follow written directions.

Kid Scoop News Navigator

News Photos

The photographs that go with a newspaper article can give more information and create a feeling about a news event.

Review the reporter's notes about the news event. If you have been following this activity the last two weeks, you have written a lead and a headline for this news article. Today you are going to select a photograph.

1. Review the reporter's notes of the event:

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Pete's Pizza Parlor, near downtown mall police find gorilla in kitchen wearing chef's coat

gorilla's name is Cuddles

Cuddles escaped from the Nada Vista Zoo

Police Chief Mike Jenkins responded to call from a neighbor who saw the lights go on after the pizza parlor was supposed to be closed.

The call came in to the police department at midnight.

Police arrived at Pete's at 12:15 AM

2. Which picture would you use? Write a cutline to go with the photo you select.

Standards Link: Language Arts / Research: Understand the organization of newspapers.

Kid Scoop VOCABULARY BUILDERS

This week's word: HUMOR

Humor is something that makes people laugh or feel amused.

The humor in the story made the whole class laugh.

Use the word humor in a sentence today when talking with your friends, parents or teachers.

BEYOND Kid Scoop

Values We Share

Values are basic beliefs or standards which an individual or society live by. Find examples in the newspaper of people demonstrating their value systems. Is conflict resolution valued? Does your community share values?

Standards Link: Social Science: Students recognize ways in which they are all part of the same community sharing values and beliefs.

What can you lose that will make an argument even worse?

ANSWER: Your temper!

Write On!

Kids Care at School

How do you and other kids in your school show that you care about your school? What other things do you think kids could do to make schools great places?

RRC posts oil, gas stats

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission issued a total of 1,541 original drilling permits in August 2005 compared to 1,339 in August 2004. The August total included 1,282 permits to drill new oil and gas wells, 43 to re-enter existing well bores, and 216 for re-completions. Permits issued in August 2005 included 295 oil, 416 gas, 787 oil and gas, 34 injection, zero service and 9 other permits.

Texas preliminary July 2005 crude oil production averaged 865,567 barrels daily, down from the 910,201 barrels daily average of July 2004.

The preliminary Texas crude oil production figure for July 2005 is 26,902,201 barrels, a decrease from 28,338,570 barrels reported during July 2004.

In August 2005, operators reported 357 oil, 566 gas, 29 injection and zero other completions compared to 358 oil, 520 gas, 23 injection and two completions during August 2004.

Total well completions for 2005 year to date are 6,793, down from 7,232 recorded during the same period in 2004.

Operators reported 621 holes plugged and zero dry holes in August 2005 com-

Texas production in July 2005 came from 136,474 oil and 64,218 gas wells.

NOBEL PRIZE

Two Americans, German share physics in optics

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Americans John L. Hall and Roy J. Glauber and German Theodor W. Haensch won the 2005 Nobel Prize in physics Tuesday for work that could lead to better long-distance communication and more precise navigation worldwide and in space.

The prize was given to the three for their work in applying modern quantum physics to the study of optics. Engineers have used their observations to improve lasers, Global Positioning System technology and other instruments.

Glauber, 80, of Harvard University, took half of this year's Nobel for showing in the 1960s how the particle nature of light affects its behavior under certain circumstances. Although those conditions are rarely observed in nature, they are often relevant in sophisticated optical instruments.

Hall, 71, of the University of Colorado, and Haensch, 63, of the Ludwig-Maximilian-Universitaet in Munich, won "for their contributions to the development of laser-based precision spectroscopy, including the optical frequency comb technique." Their research determined the color of light at the atomic and molecular level. Haensch used evenly spaced laser pulses to determine the frequencies and Hall refined the technique.

Hall and Haensch will split one half of the $1.3 million prize, with Glauber receiving the rest.

"It's a huge surprise, a great pleasure," Hall said, noting the work was a team effort.

Speaking from his office in Munich, Haensch called the award a high point of his career.

"I was speechless but of course very happy, exuberant," he said. "Now, I am trying to get used to this."

He said the fruits of their work could eventually be applied to improving communication across the globe and beyond. The research could also be useful in helping spacecraft navigate more accurately on long journeys, or creating better digital animation.

Hall, 71, of the University of Colorado, and Haensch, 63, of the Ludwig-Maximilian-Universitaet in Munich, won "for their contributions to the development of laser-based precision spectroscopy, including the optical frequency comb technique."

France says Turkey needs 'major cultural revolution' to join EU

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — French President Jacques Chirac said today that Turkey would need to undergo a "major cultural revolution" before entering the European Union, and he reiterated that France would hold a referendum on admitting Ankara to the bloc.

The comments by Chirac represented the tough road ahead in Turkey's membership in the 25-nation EU. It took last-minute wrangling after two days of arduous talks between EU foreign ministers to overcome Austrian objections to start the negotiations.

The entry talks are expected to last for at least 10 years before the EU can absorb Turkey and stretch its borders to the Middle East. There is broad opposition among Europeans to admitting the poor, predominantly Muslim nation of 70 million people.

"Will it succeed? I cannot say. I hope so. But I am not at all sure," Chirac said at a news conference in Paris.

It will be "a considerable effort" for Turkey," he said. "It is a major cultural revolution," that will take "at minimum 10 to 15 years."

He reiterated that Turkey's membership would need to be approved by the French in a referendum. Austria also plans such a vote, and other countries may also decide to hold one.

"The French will have the last word, as it should be in a democracy," he said.

"We will see when the time comes."

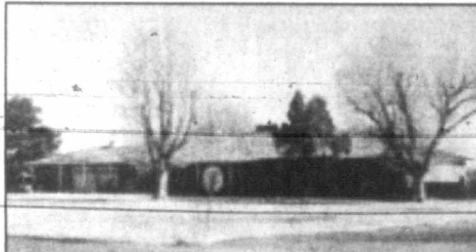

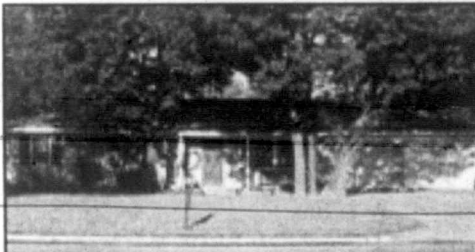

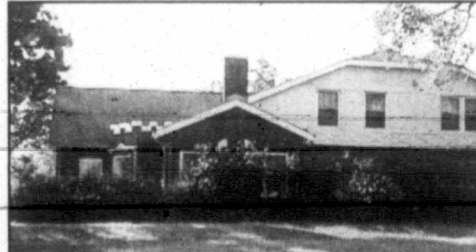

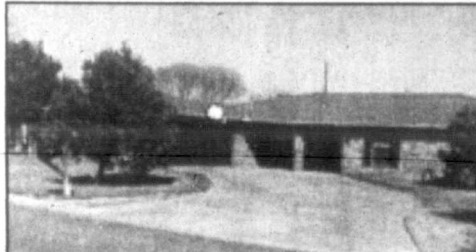

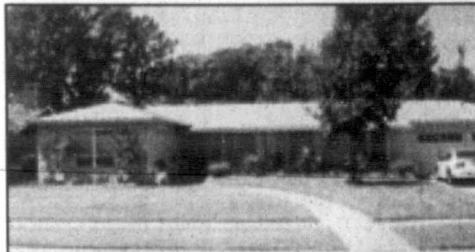

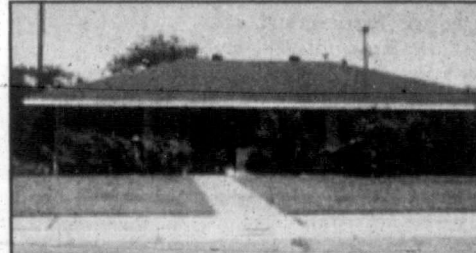

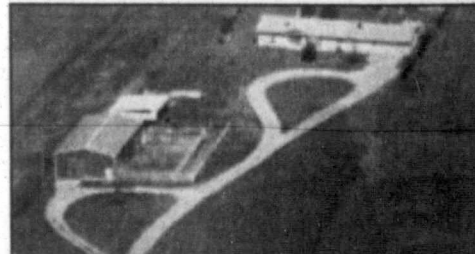

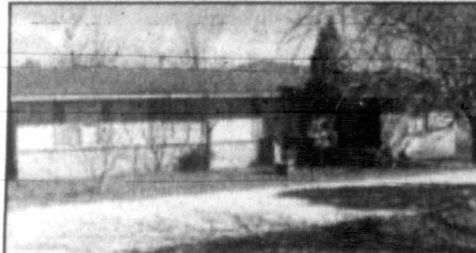

In Turkey, there was no immediate reaction to Chirac's comments, which were reported by Turkish television, but Culture Minister Atilla Koc's office said he was reviewing them. Akif Beki, spokesman for Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan, was not immediately available for comment.

British Prime Minister Tony Blair, who currently holds the EU presidency, also said negotiations would take a long time, and would mean a "very big change" for the Europe and Turkey.

"It will be an issue of controversy for years to come," he told reporters in London.
