"Two suspects remain at large," Courtney said. "They are Thalamus Malone and Cedric Pafker. Both have felony warrants for manufacturing and delivery of a controlled substance."

Constant knee-jerk reaction can make you tired

I am more than usually scatterbrained this week, so this column represents a scattergun approach.

First off, I'm going to revisit an old topic on pronunciation. Once again, the correct way to pronounce Hobart, as in the street, is HO-bert. The incorrect way is Ho-BART. Trust me, I've interviewed a member of the family.

While I'm at it, here's one I missed last time. LUH-FORS is the correct way to say the town's and airport's name, not LEE-fors.

Autumn is here. That means that soon I won't have the heat to gripe about. For a few weeks, the temperature will be perfect. Then, I can start complaining about the cold.

The weather in the Gulf of Mexico can be blamed for the recent bouncing ball known as fuel prices. Fuel prices can in turn be blamed at least in part on recent stock market quotes. It all becomes a giant knee-jerk reaction.

Kind of makes you tired, doesn't it?

I found out that a lot of countries offered assistance when Hurricane Katrina hit the Gulf Coast, as did a lot of entertainers. Of course, one entertainer said she didn't understand how anyone could sit at home and not help the hurricane victims.

Marilyn Powers

Staff Writer

When pressed by the interviewer about how she was helping, she said one of her first impulses was to gather up clothes and send to the victims.

She then said she and her husband were looking at how they could best help. I wonder how long they took to analyze the situation before deciding that sending used clothing was not the best way to help.

At least she did want to help. That does count for a lot.

The speed limit on Duncan street, from Central Park north, is 35 miles per hour. I got so perturbed one day I tried to keep up with one driver who zoomed past me. I chickened out at 50 miles per hour.

It was midafternoon on a weekday, between Fairview Cemetery and 23rd Avenue, when the 50 mph-plus driver shot by me. Granted, maybe they had an emergency and needed to get to the hospital. But their hazard flashers weren't on, so it's harder to know why they were in such a hurry.

I'm just glad no one got in their way.

Part II of how a newspaper works deals with who does what. Part I, which I covered in a previous column, explained different things that can be found in a newspaper and how they get there.

Today in History

Today's Highlight in History:

'A man who is afraid will do anything.'

— Jawaharlal Nehru
Indian statesman
(1889-1964)

On Sept. 27, 1964, the Warren Commission issued a report concluding that Lee Harvey Oswald had acted alone in assassinating President Kennedy.

On this date: In 1779, John Adams was named to negotiate the Revolutionary War's peace terms with Britain.

In 1854, the first great disaster involving an Atlantic Ocean liner occurred when the steamship Arctic sank with 300 people aboard.

In 1928, the United States said it was recognizing the Nationalist Chinese government.

In 1939, Warsaw, Poland, surrendered after weeks of resistance to invading forces from Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union during World War II.

In 1942, Glenn Miller and his Orchestra performed together for the last time, at the Central Theater in Passaic, N.J., prior to Miller's entry into the Army.

In 1954, "Tonight!" hosted by Steve Allen, made its debut on NBC TV.

Our readers write

Ask yourself what the money is worth to you ...

People need to think about something.

You know we're always being warned about con artists and scams. Look at the water bills. Aren't we all being scammed by that?

But the main thing is, with all this money — I'm talking about millions and billions — was all of this worth it letting all those people die and having to go to other strange places because of low income? They were poor, and nobody wanted to turn lose the money and help them before.

Is it worth it here, right here in Pampa, to let people die or live in unsafe homes or refuse to sell or help them because of their incomes when there's all kinds of money coming in and it can't be used for the low income people?

So I ask you again, was all the lives that were lost in the storm and the lives here because they're poor?

Sue Meeks

Faith to the Constitution political suicide

President Bush recently promised the nation that the federal government will pay for most of the costs of repairing hurricane-ravaged New Orleans, adding, "There is no way to imagine America without New Orleans, and this great city will rise again." There's no question that New Orleans and her sister Gulf Coast cities have been struck with a major disaster, but should our constitution become a part of the disaster? You say, "What do you mean, Williams?" Let's look at it.

In February 1887, President Grover Cleveland, upon vetoing a bill appropriating money to aid drought-stricken farmers in Texas, said, "I find no warrant for such an appropriation in the Constitution, and I do not believe that the power and the duty of the General Government ought to be extended to the relief of individual suffering which is in no manner properly related to the public service or benefit."

President Cleveland added, "The friendliness and charity of our countrymen can always be relied upon to relieve their fellow citizens in misfortune. This has been repeatedly and quite lately demonstrated. Federal aid in such cases encourages the expectation of paternal care on the part of the

Walter Williams
Columnist

Government and weakens the sturdiness of our national character, while it prevents the indulgence among our people of that kindly sentiment and conduct which strengthens the bonds of a common brotherhood."

President Cleveland vetoed hundreds of congressional spending measures during his two-term presidency, often saying, "I can find no warrant for such an appropriation in the Constitution." But Cleveland wasn't the only president who failed to see charity as a function of the federal government. In 1854, after vetoing a popular appropriation to assist the mentally ill, President Franklin Pierce said, "I cannot find any authority in the Constitution for public charity." To approve such spending, argued Pierce, "would be contrary to the letter and the spirit of the Constitution and subversive to the whole theory upon which the Union of these States is founded."

In 1796, Rep. William Giles of Virginia condemned a relief measure for fire victims, saying that Congress didn't have a right to "attend to what generosity and humanity require, but to what the Constitution and their duty require." A couple of years earlier, James Madison, the father of our constitution, irate over a $15,000 congressional appropriation to assist some French refugees, said, "I cannot undertake to lay my finger on that article of the Constitution which granted a right to Congress of expending, on objects of benevolence, the money of their constituents."

Here's my question: Were the nation's founders, and some of their successors, callous and indifferent to human tragedy? Or, were they stupid and couldn't find the passages in the Constitution that authorized spending "on the objects of benevolence"?

Some people might say, "Aha! They forgot about the Constitution's general welfare clause!" Here's what James Madison said: "With respect to the two words 'general welfare,' I have always regarded them as qualified by the detail of powers connected with them. To take them in a literal and unlimited sense would be a metamorphosis of the Constitution into a character which there is a host of proofs was not contemplated by its creators."

Thomas Jefferson explained, "Congress has not unlimited powers to pro-

Governmental data belongs to the people

Many New Orleans readers know the name Mark SchleiStein. An environmental reporter for New Orleans Times-Picayune, SchleiStein in 2002 helped write "Washing Away," a disturbing prediction of the calamities Katrina has rained on New Orleans. This month, with his own home deluged, SchleiStein is reporting on the flood's environmental effects. But his requests for Environmental Protection Agency data have gone unanswered.

Soon after Katrina hit, SchleiStein asked the EPA for reports of chemical spills, fires and other sources of industrial contamination. He also asked for the EPA's communications about the reports to other agencies and data on the EPA's response to the incidents.

On Sept. 4, after getting no reply, he filed a Freedom of Information request. He still hasn't gotten the data.

EPA public records coordinator Larry Gottesman says there is nothing mysterious in the delay. It simply reflects emergency priorities. In the wake of Katrina, almost two dozen reporters have made FOIA requests.

Much of the information has to be compiled from the field, where EPA employees have been feverishly gathering facts, testing water and helping with damage assessment and cleanup. The agency has posted information about its findings on the Internet. In what some are calling the worst environmental disaster in U.S. history, the EPA must analyze the mind-boggling range of results.

But the agency still needs to prioritize journalists' needs. More than any other natural disaster, Hurricane Katrina showed the media's role as an essential source of information for the public and the primary guardian of the public interest. It was press images and interviews during the flooding, not government summaries, that stirred federal officials from their shameful torpor. Reportage like the Times-Picayune's debunked any claims that Katrina's effects were unforeseeable. As a result, the public demands an accounting of the poor with page layout and other things involving design and creation.

Pressroom staff maintain and operate the press on which the paper is printed.

Inserters see to it that advertisements and other extras known as inserts, which are separate from the actual newspaper itself, are put together with the newspaper they belong to.

Carriers deliver the newspaper to subscribers.

Circulation heads up the process of getting the paper out to subscribers, newspaper vending boxes, businesses which sell the paper, and others.

Then there are those who answer the telephone, route calls to the

The business office deals with the internal business of the paper's day-to-day operation, including billing, keeping up with the money and such things as employees' hours.

At the head of this operation

Government data belongs to the people. Even in the quantities Schleifstein asked, it needs to move into reporters' hands quickly. Journalists can help by honing their requests. The EPA, however, should take seriously a new survey of 55 environmental reporters that shows government agencies have grown slow and uncooperative answering FOIA requests since Sept. 11, 2001. It's easy to believe EPA is swamped by the work and questions unleashed by Katrina. But it is in the public interest when journalists press hard for answers.

vide for the general welfare, but only those specifically enumerated." In 1828, South Carolina Sen. William Drayton said: "If Congress can determine what constitutes the general welfare and can appropriate money for its advancement, where is the limitation to carrying into execution whatever can be effected by money?"

Don't get me wrong about this. I'm not being too critical of President Bush or any other politician. There's such a broad ignorance or contempt for constitutional principles among the American people that any politician who bore truth faith and allegiance to the Constitution would commit political suicide.

Extension class to explore type 2 diabetes

By Joan Gray-Soria
Gray County
Extension Agent

Diabetes is a serious illness. But the good news is, it doesn't have to be a life-threatening one. Early diagnosis and treatment, and good management practices are the keys to a long and healthy life for persons with diabetes.

According to the American Diabetes Association, when a person has diabetes, his or her body doesn't produce insulin (type 1) or properly use insulin (type 2), a hormone needed to convert some foods into energy. No one knows what causes diabetes, although genetics and such factors as lack of exercise and obesity may contribute.

Facts and figures from the ADA list about 17 million Americans with diabetes — but only about 11.1 million diagnosed. This means nearly one-third — 5.9 million people with diabetes — don't know they have it.

The costs of all these cases of diabetes is enormous. The ADA estimated the total direct and indirect cost in 1997 (the most recent year figures are available) to be $98 billion. Of that, $44 billion was medical and treatment costs, and $54 billion was for indirect costs, such as disability.

A simple blood test by a health care provider is required for a diagnosis of diabetes. However, being aware of the symptoms can lead to an earlier diagnosis and a better quality of life. The ADA lists some of the symptoms to look for — frequent urination, excessive thirst and extreme hunger, blurry vision, increased fatigue, irritability and unusual or unexplained weight loss.

Once the medical diagnosis has been made, proper treatment and management can make life healthier for the person with diabetes. A combination of exercise, weight control, proper diet and sometimes medications can keep the person — not the disease — in charge of his or her life.

Texas Cooperative Extension in Gray County will be offering a six week Diabetes Management Seminar "Do Well, Be Well with Diabetes" program on Wednesdays starting this Wednesday through Nov. 9. Classes will be held at the Bank of Commerce in McLean beginning at 9:30 a.m. and ending at 12 p.m. The cost is $5 per family. Scholarships are available if needed.

"Do Well, Be Well with Diabetes" is an educational program to help people with type 2 diabetes learn the skills they need to understand and manage their diabetes, to reduce their risks for complications and to attain their highest possible level of wellness. This program aims to help people control their diabetes rather than letting the disease control them. The class curriculum consists of 12 lessons — one introductory class, which is an overview of diabetes, six nutrition lessons and five self-care lessons.

For information on living with diabetes, especially type 2, plan to attend "Do Well, Be Well with Diabetes" program, hosted by Texas Cooperative Extension-Gray County and taught by several health professionals and myself, Joan Gray-Soria. Call 669-8033 to find out more.

Wildlife program scheduled in area

CANADIAN — Hemphill County Extension Office will conduct a wildlife program titled "Marketing Your Own Field of Dreams" between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Thursday at Hemphill County Exhibition Center. Lunch will be provided free.

The program will feature a variety of speakers, beginning with Kyle Barnett, CEA-Ag/Natural Resources, Hemphill County. Barnett's topic will be "Build It and They Will Come," a landowners guide to building a wildlife marketing plan.

"Advertising 101" will be delivered by Luke Lewis, certified wildlife biologist and marketing assistant for Texas Prairie Rivers Region. Lewis will cover the basics of advertising in today's world including web page design, web links and promotional items.

Cal Ferguson of 4F-Outfitters will discuss managing hunters and hunting on private land. From a small landowner-managed operation to a full-time outfitter, Ferguson can draw from his many years of experience and answer questions as to the do's and don'ts of wildlife management.

Marketing Your Own Field of Dreams will wrap up with "Show Me the Money" by Dr. Steve Amosson.

A total of two general continuing education units will be awarded to pesticide applicators. To sign up or for more information, call (806) 323-9114.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with the advice you gave to the girl who signed herself "Latchkey Kid in Seattle." While I agree that the last resort might be to find another adult the girl can stay with while her mom "entertains" her boyfriend/boss, her first step should be to try to solve the problem at home. A woman who devotes so much attention to her married boss at the expense of her own daughter is losing a lot of herself and destroying any future relationship with the girl.

I say the girl should talk with her mother about her feelings first, and how they can best balance the needs of both of them. Single parents can be blind to how their actions affect their loved ones when they become focused on their own needs. Mom should be told by her daughter how much she is needed and how important it is for her to know that her mom will be there for her. Companionship isn't the only issue here. The daughter needs her as a role model, parent and friend.

If Mom refuses to give her daughter the time and attention she so greatly deserves, then I say the daughter should seek help elsewhere. -- MICHAEL M., TAMPA, FLA.

DEAR MICHAEL M.: The mother KNOWS what she's doing. The writer indicated that it happens regularly. That's why I told her to talk to her father or another adult relative, or parent of a friend, about spending time in another household while "Mom is out on her dates." However, from the responses I received about that letter, some readers feel I wasn't hard enough on the mother. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am an art psychotherapist. Abandonment is the worst kind of mental and physical abuse. That mother should be reported as a child abuser. Instead of directing the child to family or friends' parents to watch over her, you should have told her to go to the father, school counselor or another trusted adult for help in getting out of this dangerous situation PERMANENTLY. I have seen the result of such neglect and abuse. It's horrible. Please advise other readers in similar situations that they don't have to be abused in this way. It could save a life. -- SANDY IN SUNNYVALE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Department of Social Health Services worker in Washington state. It is against state law here to leave a child under the age of 12 alone without an appropriate caregiver. That child needs to talk to another adult or family member immediately, as you suggested. But not for a refuge while her mother is "otherwise occupied." She needs a safe, sane and loving home in which to live. If there is no family member she can talk to, she should talk to someone at her school. The schools are required to report instances of suspected child abuse/neglect to Child Protective Services for investigation. -- CONCERNED IN VANCOUVER, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: I thought that as a parent you were supposed to put your child first. "Latchkey Kid's" mother is irresponsible, and her behavior shows concern for her needs only and none for her daughter. Maybe if Child Protective Services gets involved, the mother will get a wake-up call and go back to being the parent the girl deserves. -- DISGUSTED IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: You missed the boat here: You should have advised "Latchkey Kid" to go over and hang out with Mom's boss's wife. She is obviously alone as often as "Latchkey" is -- and she might appreciate the company! -- SHANNON IN PORT CHARLOTTE, FLA.

FBI investigating racist hate mail sent to Jeter and other celebrities

NEW YORK (AP) — Yankees star Derek Jeter has received a threatening letter reportedly warning him to stop dating white women or "he'll be shot or set on fire."

FBI special agent Scott Wilson, speaking by phone from Cleveland, confirmed the bureau's probe Monday, saying "we have an ongoing open investigation into racially threatening letters to Jeter and others across the country." He declined to comment further.

The New York Police Department has also investigated the matter.

The Daily News reported Monday that the hate mail to the Yankees' 31-year-old captain called him a "traitor to his race" for dating white women. It warned him "to stop or he'll be shot or set on fire," the News said.

The Daily News reported that others received similar threats, including U.S. Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas, Miami Dolphins defensive lineman Jason Taylor, and the parents of tennis star James Blake.

Jeter, picked by People magazine as one of the world's most eligible bachelors, has been linked with models, singers, actresses and athletes of various racial and ethnic backgrounds in New York's gossip columns. His mother is white and his father is black.

The NYPD's hate crimes unit recently completed a four-month investigation into the letter to Jeter — mailed to Yankee Stadium earlier this season, according to Detective Brian Sessa. The department has not made public the investigation's outcome.

Yankee spokesman Jason Zillo declined to comment. In an interview broadcast Sunday on CBS' "60 Minutes," Jeter said that he and his sister were taunted for being biracial while growing up in Michigan. But the soft-spoken, cool-headed Yankee said that he has never heard any racial epithets from the fans at Yankee Stadium in his 11 seasons as a Yankee.

The threats have been traced to the Cleveland area.

This Week: Conflict Resolution
PART 2 OF 3

© 2005 by Vicki Whiting, Editor Jeff Schinkel, Graphics Vol. 21 No. 40

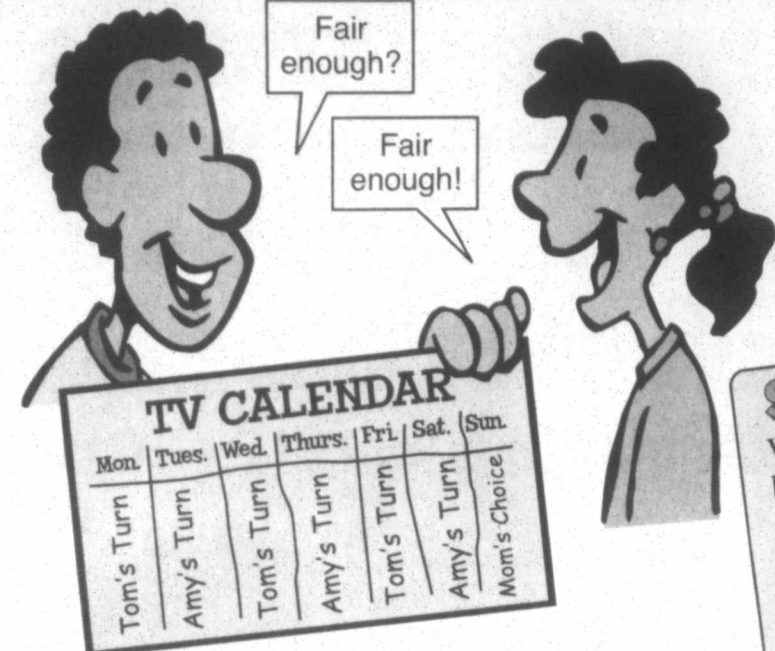

FAIR OR FOUL

Has this ever happened to you?

After a long day of schoolwork and play, Tom was tired. He couldn't wait to rest and watch his favorite TV show. Just as he got settled, his sister walked in and flipped the channel to a different show. Tom felt angry! How would you feel? What would you do? Tom knew this was the time to STOP and think about what he would do next.

He knew that the next thing he said or did could make the conflict worse. This would be a foul. Look at the fouls described on the FOUL card. Do they sound familiar?

Fair enough?
Fair enough!

Getting Things Resolved

Tom decided to try one of the FAIR ways to resolve his conflict with his sister. Look at the FAIR card. Which one do you think he tried? Use the code to find out his resolution to the conflict.

Standards Link: Health: Students know the difference between positive and negative behaviors used in conflict situations.

FAIR

Share
When people share, good feelings become more important than things.

Postpone
Put off resolving the conflict until you calm down.

Get Help
Find someone you both trust to make a fair decision.

FOUL

Put-Downs
Saying things that hurt the other person's feelings.

Pushing or Hitting
Any way of acting that can hurt the other person's body.

Bringing Up the Past
Talking about things a person said or did in the past.

Extra! Extra! Synonym Search

A synonym is a word that has the same or nearly the same meaning as another word of the same language. The words happy and glad are synonyms. Look through today's paper and find five pairs of words that are synonyms to complete this chart.

happy	glad

Standards Link: Language Arts: Recognize and use synonyms.

Kid Scoop News Navigator

What's a headline?

The headline is the title of a news article. It is written in large, bold type above the story. Most headlines have a subject and a verb that tell the topic of the article and summarize the main idea, or most important part of the topic.

Create a headline for last week's Kid Scoop silly news event.

- Review the reporter's notes of the event:

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Pete's Pizza Parlor, near downtown mall police find gorilla in kitchen wearing chef's coat

gorilla's name is Cuddles

Cuddles escaped from the Nada Vista Zoo

Police Chief Mike Jenkins responded to call from a neighbor who saw the lights go on after the pizza parlor was supposed to be closed.

The call came in to the police department at midnight.

Police arrived at Pete's at 12:15 AM

- Topic of news event: _____
- Main idea of news event: _____
- Your headline for a news article about this event: _____

Kid Scoop VOCABULARY BUILDERS

This week's word: RESOLUTION

A resolution is a solution or an end to a disagreement or argument.

Taking turns holding the boa constrictor was a resolution to the students' problem.

Use the word resolution in a sentence today when talking with your friends, parents or teachers.

YOU'RE THE REFEREE!

Read the above lists of fair and foul ways to handle a conflict. Then look at how the children in the comic strip below handle the conflict over the ball. Which foul is each child doing?

Standards Link: Health/Conflict Resolution: Students know conflicts can be resolved in a non-violent manner.

Matt and his younger brother, Trevor, are playing baseball. Trevor keeps missing the ball...

You big baby! Can't you hit the ball?

You big bully! You are ALWAYS picking on me!

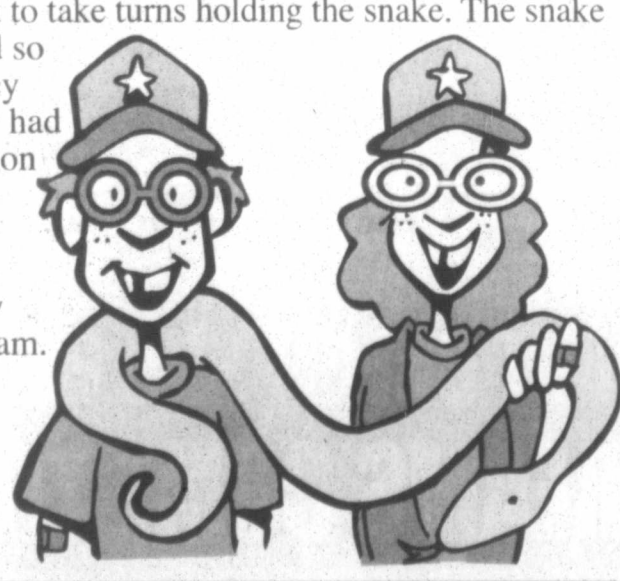

You tell Mom and I'll get you!

If you get me, I'll tell Mom you ate those five cookies before breakfast!

What fair things could they say to resolve this conflict?

Boa Bickering

Alma and Sam had a conflict the first day they met. They both wanted to play with the class snake. They finally decided to take turns holding the snake. The snake was happy and so were they. They found out they had more in common than a love of snakes.

Look carefully at Alma and Sam. Circle seven ways they are alike.

Standards Link: Health/Conflict Resolution: Students know possible causes of conflicts in school and strategies to prevent conflicts.

Double Double Word Search

Find the words in the puzzle, then in this week's Kid Scoop stories and activities.

BEYOND Kid Scoop Common Ground

Finding ways that groups of people are the same often helps them to find a resolution to their conflicts. Find an example of a conflict in the newspaper. Make a list of the ways the people on both sides of the conflict are the same. How could these similarities lead to a resolution?

Standards Link: Health/Conflict Resolution: Students know how negotiation and collaboration can be used to resolve conflicts.

Where do children learn their ABCs?

ANSWER: IN THE LIBRARY SCHOOL!

Write On! Cool Off!

What do you do when you get angry? Do you try to calm down or "cool off"? How do you do this?
