Pretrial motions for Roach to be heard Oct. 20, 21

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

The second-floor county courtroom at Gray County Courthouse has been reserved for Oct. 20 and 21 to hear pretrial motions in the state's cases against former 31st District Attorney Rick Roach.

Roach was indicted June 21 by a Gray County grand jury on charges of aggravated perjury in connection with an affidavit of financial status and request for court-appointed counsel which had been filed June 10 by Roach's attorney, Bill Kelly of Canyon.

On July 8, Kelly filed motions to have Emmert and David T. Scott, a Perryton attorney appointed as district attorney pro tem in Roach's state cases, removed from the cases. Scott filed a response on July 11 and Aug. 18 to the motions.

An order for a writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum, filed Sept. 22, directs the sheriff of Gray County to have Roach appear at 9 a.m. Oct. 20 and answer to the charges in the state drug cases against him.

Two other documents filed by Scott on Sept. 28 and Oct. 3 notifies Kelly of a list of oral and video recordings of Roach. The list includes cassette and VHS tapes and compact discs.

William D. Smith, 84th District Judge, was assigned to Roach's cases after 31st District Judge Steven Emmert recused himself from hearing the cases. Roach was indicted May 17 by a Gray County grand jury on two state charges of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

One indictment concerns methamphetamine, and the other specifies cocaine.

Both indictments state that a handgun was present at the time of the incident, that the amount of the substance was four or more but less than 200 grams, that the incidents occurred Jan. 11, and that they occurred within 1,000 feet of a drug-free zone.

Community Christian School, 220 N. Ballard, is within 1,000 feet of Gray County Courthouse, where Roach was arrested Jan. 11 by agents of the FBI's Amarillo office on a federal charge of possession of methamphetamine. Further federal charges involving methamphetamine, cocaine and firearms were added to the federal indictment on Jan. 12.

Roach pled guilty to the firearms charge in a plea bargain agreement on Feb. 8, the same day that he resigned as 31st District Attorney. In a June 1 hearing in federal court in Amarillo, he was sentenced to five years in federal prison followed by three years' supervised release.

Roach is currently incarcerated at Federal Medical Center of Fort Worth.

Tralee Crisis Center seeking volunteers

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and Tralee Crisis Center is seeking volunteers to help serve those who are victims of domestic violence.

The center kicked off the month with a proclamation by Mayor Lonny

Robbins and an Honorable Man March, at the end of which several Pampa men were recognized on the steps of City Hall.

The crisis center chose the men based on essays nominating them for the honor.

"Honorable men are those who have chosen to live a violence-free life," said Lyn Ledbetter, volunteer coordinator and educator at the center.

Every 19 seconds, someone in the United States is affected by domestic violence, according to information from the crisis center.

BSA Lyceum lands Pulitzer winner Dave Barry

AMARILLO - If laughter is the best medicine, humorist Dave Barry will bring that prescription to the BSA Health System Foundation 2005 Lyceum Oct. 27 at the Amarillo Civic Center Grand Plaza.

The BSA Lyceum is known for bringing top-notch speakers to Amarillo and the Texas Panhandle. Speakers as diverse as Colin Powell, Elizabeth Dole, Prime Minister John Major, and even Terry Bradshaw and Amber Burns have brought their stories to Amarillo. For 2005, Dave Barry will entertain patrons as he talks about "The World According to Dave Barry."

The evening will include a silent auction and cash bar beginning at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner featuring recipes from Amarillo celebrity chef Becky McKinley, Dining by Design. Catering will be by Bourbon Street Cafe executive chefs Chad

Tickets are available by calling Diann Brown at the BSA Foundation at (806) 212-7645.

Proceeds from the evening will benefit the "Create the Future" capital campaign for the new Ware Tower at Baptist St. Anthony's Health System.

Barry got his start as a journalist. In true Barry style, he recalls that he covered a series of incredibly dull municipal meetings for the Daily Local News in West Chester, Pa. He believes some of them are still going on.

Fortunately for his fans, Barry broke free from the city hall beat and found his true calling as a columnist for the Miami Herald. His Pulitzer Prize-winning columns appeared in hundreds of newspapers - including the Amarillo Globe-News - before he decided to take a mid-life sabbatical.

Edna Begert Trask, 92

Edna Begert Trask, 92, of Pampa, Texas, went to her heavenly home on Oct. 7, 2005, at Pampa.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 10, 2005, at Carmichael-Whatley Colonial Chapel with Dr. Johnny Funderburg, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating. Hiram Begert, nephew of Mrs. Begert, will deliver the eulogy.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Begert was born July 18, 1913, on the family farm near Plainview, Okla., to Lola and Andrew Jackson Falkner. She was the youngest of 10 children, all of whom preceded her in death.

She graduated from Southwestern State College in Weatherford, Okla., where she met and married Sam Begert. They lived and taught school in Allison, Texas, before moving to Pampa in 1946. After 40 years together, Mr. Begert preceded her in death in 1977.

She married Lon Trask in 1981, and he preceded her in death in 1991. Her only child El Dean Begert also preceded her in death in 2001.

She taught fifth grade at Sam Houston

Elementary for 29 years, three years at Woodrow Wilson and then substituted for three more years. She was past memorial chairperson for the American Heart Association, volunteered for the American Cancer Society and the Red Cross, and had played piano for her Sunday school class at First Baptist Church where she was a member.

She was a member of the Son Shine Club and of the Retired Teachers Association.

Survivors include one granddaughter, D'Ann Gonzales and husband Johnny of Pampa; three great-grandchildren, Anthony Gonzales and wife Maricel, Cristan Whittington and husband Jason, all of Amarillo, and Andrew Gonzales of Pampa; two great-great-grandchildren, Cheyenne Whittington and Collin Gonzales, both of Pampa; and one daughter-in-law, Sherry Begert of Pampa.

The family requests memorials be to the American Heart Association, 6605 I-40 West, Amarillo, TX 79106; or to the American Cancer Society, c/o Gerry Caylor, 2130 Charles, Pampa, TX 79065.

Jessie Lee 'Buddy' Simmons, 81

LAFAYETTE, LA. — Jessie Lee "Buddy" Simmons, 81, of Lafayette, died Oct. 5, 2005, at Lafayette. Services are pending with Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors of Pampa.

Mr. Simmons, a native of Decatur, was born to James E. Simmons and Duff LeClair Mulkey Simmons. He was a drilling superintendent for Cabot Oil and Gas for more than 30 years and belonged to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7093 in Beaver, Okla., as well as API Pioneers of the Oil Patch and Westside Baptist Church.

Mr. Simmons was a U.S. Navy veteran, serving during both World War II and the Korean Conflict.

He was preceded in death by his parents, a brother, and five sisters.

Survivors include his wife of 59 years, Betty Holt Simmons; a son, Steve Simmons; and two grandchildren.

Frances Johnson, 89

BROWNFIELD — Frances Loraine Johnson, 89, of Brownfield died Oct. 5, 2005, at a hospital in Plainview. Graveside services were at 2 p.m. Saturday in Fairview Cemetery in Pampa under the direction of Brownfield Funeral Home.

Mrs. Johnson was born July 13, 1916, at Pampa, to Earl and Roberta Talley. She married Alvin Bowen Johnson on Aug. 6, 1935, at Amarillo; he died in September of 1977. They moved from Pampa to Kermit in 1944.

Mrs. Johnson — a clerk for the U.S. Postal Service for 45 years — was a member of the Methodist Church where she kept the nursery for many years.

She was preceded in death by a brother, Robert Talley; and by a sister, Naida Sparkman.

Survivors include a daughter, Jan Porter of Brownfield; three grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggest memorials to a favorite charity.

The commission oversees the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife. Bivins is a rancher and partner of Corsino Cattle Co. He is director of the Texas Wildlife Association, former trustee of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Foundation, and chairman of the Lone Star Legacy Campaign with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Foundation. Bivins is a member of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, and the University of Texas Chancellors Council.

UNITED WAY

Salvation Army spreads Christmas cheer

The Salvation Army, a United Way agency, had a busy year last year. They provided 683 programs for the youth of this community, which averaged serving 165 youth a week with arts, crafts, meals, a badge earning awards, as well as a wholesome refuge from the streets. Summer camp experiences were an addition to those events. The 342 adult programs provided instruction in skills necessary to nurture the family unit as well as promote improvements in personal life applications.

This came to an average of 146 persons per week. Added to the busy schedule was the activity in the Social Service office where 72 men, 44 women, and 504 unduplicated families were provided with 8,523 meals from our food pantry. Home bound meals for 91 unduplicated persons provided 569 meals. The record of 238 cases that were helped for the first time in this community shows that the need increased over the previous year by 160 households. This accomplishment was a positive effect on this community as a whole. The everyday routine of the Salvation Army is to serve 3,655 individuals through the Social Service Office. Although it bears the task of time-consuming interviews that reveals a true "need" from a "want," donations from the community helped those who would have otherwise gone without food, utilities, rent, emergency lodging, transportation and prescriptions that were necessary to sustain the basic human needs to maintain the quality of their lives. Through its Thrift Store program, 4,102 articles of clothing, 239 furniture items, and 250 personal care kits were provided to individuals who could not otherwise purchase them. At Christmas, 1,936 new toys, and 5,536 new gifts were provided for individuals who would not have had anything providing them with "true" Christmas cheer. This is especially a time when depression of the oppressed is at its peak. Thanks to this caring community, the United Way provides agencies such as The Salvation Army with funding for their programs. —This article is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 2005 fund-raising campaign.

Gray County Texas Cooperative Extension announces upcoming food training course

Texas Cooperative Extension in Gray County will offer a food manager certification training course Oct. 24-25 at the Gray County Annex, 12125 E. Frederic in Pampa. This program will be offered for $79. Cost includes training, materials, and the state food manager certification examination. If a manager needs to re-test, he or she may contact the County Extension Office for more information. The registration deadline for the upcoming training is Oct. 17. Statistics indicate that foodborne illness continues to be a health issue in the United States. Each year, 1 in 4 Americans will become sick, 1 in 1,000 will become hospitalized, and 5,000 will die due to a foodborne illness. During the past legislative session, a statute was amended that allowed the Texas Department of State Health Services (DSHS) to require each food establishment to have one certified food manager. Recently, the Texas Board of Health adopted rules to implement this statute. Many in the food industry have already received a letter from the Texas Department of State Health Services regarding this. Under these new rules, each food establishment permitted by the Texas Department of State Health Services must have one certified food manager. Statistics indicate that foodborne illness continues to be a health issue in the United States. Each year, 1 in 4 Americans will become sick, 1 in 1,000 will become hospitalized, and 5,000 will die due to a foodborne illness. New food manager certificates will be valid for 5 years. This program is designed to not only prepare foodservice managers to pass the certification examination, but to provide valuable education regarding the safe handling of food. Almost 50-cents of every dollar Americans spend on food is spent on meals prepared away from home. Therefore, careful attention to food safety will help keep customers safe and satisfied. Foodborne illnesses are estimated to cost thousands of dollars in lost wages, insurance, and medical bills. With these statistics, knowledge of how to prevent foodborne illness is essential. The benefits of improved food safety include:

- Increased customer satisfaction;
- Improved relationships with health officials; and
- Prevention of bad publicity and lawsuits due to foodborne illness.

By attending the course, food service managers will learn about:

- identifying potentially hazardous foods and common errors in food handling preventing, contamination and cross-contamination of food
- teaching and encouraging personal hygiene for employees
- complying with government regulations
- maintaining clean utensils, equipment and surroundings; and
- controlling pests.

Foodborne illnesses can be prevented by following simple food safety practices. For more information about the food manager certification training course of Texas Cooperative Extension, called "Food Safety: It's Our Business," call Joan Gray-Soria at 669-8033.

Panhandle-Plains museum to host fashion show

Thank You

Over 25 years ago I, along with my daughters, Kathy Topper and Jan Woods opened "Joy's Unlimited" in the strip mall by Subway. We were nervous and excited to own a business selling gifts and bridal selections, but Jan soon got a job with the Tax office (a paying job- I guess she's the smart one.) We later moved beside Collector's Corner at 2218 N. Hobart. This was alot of fun since we could watch our children (or for me- grandchildren) grow up. They would play between stores and sometimes "help" customers. Now we have moved downtown. We are truly blessed to have such a beautiful and spacious location. The Lord has truly taken care of us and let us grow into a successful business. However, it is now time for me to close this chapter in my life and let my "girls" run the show. So, I would like to take this opportunity to thank my Lord and Savior for blessing me with a job I love, customers who are now my friends, and for the time I got to share with my children. This was an opportunity a mother only dreams of. I also want to thank my husband John, whom I have been married to for almost 26 years. You have put up with busy days, slow days, and sorting through bridal gifts and makeup. Not every man could have handled it. To Kathy how can I thank you. You have been my baby, my business partner and my friend. I am so proud of you. You have worked hard to get to where you are, and I know that nothing but success lies ahead. And to our Customers....you supported us during good times and bad. Your ideas and opinions I always took to heart. I have come to love each and everyone of you like family. Thank You for 25 years of patronage. And I can't leave out Pam who has been a part of our family for six years, I love you for all you do. The time has come to leave my keys at the door and let Kathy (and her girls- Jennifer and Keely) take the reigns.

I Love You All,
JoyZelle Potts

National sports action at its best this time of year

The national sports scene has arrived at one of the most exciting times of the year -- when the baseball Championship Series get started and college football and the NFL are in full swing, leading up to the World Series.

I can remember during the late 40s and early 50s when baseball fans looked forward to the World Series. Professional football was not that well organized. Baseball was the only game in town and anticipation filled the air. Radio was the main means of communication. In the eighth grade, the nuns would allow someone to bring a small radio to class and we were allowed to listen to parts of the games. Television was just starting out. And the Series games were played in crisp autumn weather.

The owners of professional teams discovered they could stretch the season and play more games in order to rake in more profits from parking and concessions, which resulted in some playoff games and World Series games being played in bitterly cold weather.

The National Football League and Major League Baseball both used the opportunity to stretch the season so they could pay exorbitant salaries to their pampered stars.

The NFL preseason is a case in point. Years ago, preseason scrimmages were open to the public. When owners saw that a lot of fans watched the practice games, they started charging admission and selling concessions just like a real regular season game.

I saw firsthand the results of those concession prices in Houston at Minute Maid Park last month. A beer is now $7.50 at the old ball park. That's $45 for a six pack.

The costs keep going up to pay salaries of talented players. That has turned off a lot of fans who refuse to pay homage to pampered athletes.

I continue to follow baseball because it is the sport I played as a youth and grew up with.

This whole salary debacle is totally the fault of the owners. You can't blame the players for taking what the owners will give.

Of course, I'm partisan on this issue. I've been working for peanuts all my life.

The Texas Department of Transportation, TxDOT to those of us who keep them dear to our hearts, has issued a warning to consumers.

It concerns the more than 200,000 cars and trucks that were damaged in the recent hurricanes in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Texas.

Some of these flood-damaged vehicles could soon appear on the market.

Texas titles are issued with salvage/flood damage brands, and TxDOT advises residents to look for such remarks on a title.

TxDOT's Vehicle Titles and Registration Division's Customer Help Desk at (512) 465-7611 can help consumers search for flood-damaged vehicles by Vehicle Identification Number.

Further, TxDOT's Web site contains a list of vehicles damaged by Texas floods in 2001-2002, and the list will be updated as additional vehicles are titled with the flood damaged remark.

"Consumers should be aware that some states do not carry forward flood damaged brands," said Mike Craig, interim director of the titles and registration division.

Here are some tips on how to spot possible flood damage.

- Search from under the dashboard with a flashlight for mud, grit, rust or mold.
- Search for mud and grit in the engine compartment.
- Inspect the vehicle's undercarriage for rust and flaking.
- Be aware of odors, both musty and recently shampooed.

As always, caveat emptor.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Oct. 9, the 282nd day of 2005. There are 83 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 9, 1888, the public was first admitted to the Washington Monument.

On this date:

In 1635, religious dissident Roger Williams was banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

In 1701, the Collegiate School of Connecticut — later Yale University — was chartered.

'The world is divided into people who think they are right.'

In 1776, a group of Spanish missionaries settled in present-day San Francisco.

In 1930, Laura Ingalls became the first woman to fly across the United States as she completed a nine-stop journey from Roosevelt Field, N.Y., to Glendale, Calif.

In 1936, the first generator at Boulder (later Hoover) Dam began transmitting electricity to Los Angeles.

In 1958, Pope Pius the XII died. (He was succeeded by Pope John XXIII.)

In 1962, Uganda won autonomy from British rule.

Pets can benefit elderly in many ways

I am writing for all the pet owners of Pampa. I am an elderly lady and have been alone for a number of years, living on Social Security. Last Christmas, a sweet couple here in Pampa gave me their little schnauzer, only about a year old, and my life changed forever. I loved him so much.

He gave me a reason to get up and around every day. He played with his squeaky toys. He gave me hugs and was so happy. He loved every one, and especially the birds, squirrels and five little rabbits he found in the backyard. Two little rabbits lived out front in the shrubs and bushes.

We started letting him out front to see the rabbits. One recent Wednesday, he was run over on Harvester and Jupiter streets, chasing the little rabbits, and the pain and hurt to see him run down and killed, and the person didn't stop, didn't care and did not have the decency to see about him.

They know who they are, but what they'll never know — how it broke my heart and spirit. I'll never have the money or means to have another little loving pet like him. Little schnauzers are quite expensive, but if any one has one, please call me, and be sure and watch over your pets better than I did.

Finally, a 'must see movie' is released

It's been quoted so many times, I've plumb forgotten who may have said it first. Or maybe we never knew. Perhaps the line was written by cavemen on walls, or wafted skyward in Indian smoke signals.

That said, it is the line we've heard, and re-heard and re-heard on "Hee Haw": "I hate to repeat gossip, but I don't know what else to do with it."

That's the way I felt a while back while leaving the theatre. The wife and I went to the movie because we promised friends and relatives that we would. They'd cut no slack until we showed them our ticket stubs.

We didn't go to the show to offer a review, but rather to be refreshed, inspired and informed. The movie provided that — and more — so now we better know how the gossip monger felt. This time, we're dealing with truth; I don't know what else to do with it! ...

So, for the first time (and perhaps the last), I assume the role of movie critic, feeling very much like the guy who claims to know little about art, but he knows what he likes.

I do not offer a certain number of stars, thumbs up, or other categorical symbols of cinematic excellence. Further, I realize the movie is nearly finished with current theatre rounds, but will be at video rental stores come Nov. 29.

Bonafide critics will chide me for withholding the film's title until the ninth paragraph.

So what? I've been chided before, and I make no claims about being an authority on anything, particularly movies.

Prepare to have your timbers shivered. The film was photographed at Antarctica, where temperatures dip to 50 degrees below zero.

By now, you know the movie is called March of the Penguins. If stars have to be people, there are none.

(Unless you count the voice of Morgan Freeman a mbling through 84-minute documentary.)

Clearly, the stars are the Emperor penguins, whose determination, commitment, sacrifice, cooperative spirit and love of offspring teach us much.

In the 100 percent clean film, this film provides the best love story since, well, "Love Story."

It showed us how "mom and dad" penguins must remain "on their toes" at all times for eggs to have the chance to hatch.

The interwoven theme is clear: Whatever sacrifices faced by the present generation are worth it to assure that we have a next generation.

Give the film an A-plus, too, for covering all the bases without becoming maudlin. It didn't reveal that the Emperor penguin population has halved in the past 50 years (due largely to a "warm spell" in the 1970s).

Neither did it mention that some years, only about 10 percent of the young birds make it to adulthood.

The movie brought to mind a reference to darkest Africa, where, each morning, a gazelle wakes, knowing that if it doesn't outrun the fastest lion, it will perish. In the same forest wakes a lion, knowing that if it doesn't outrun the slowest gazelle, it will starve.

Be assured that both creatures wake up ready to run.

Miers offers no easy target for either side

President Bush appears to have made another shrewd political call by nominating his White House counsel, Harriet Miers, to succeed Justice Sandra Day O'Connor on the U.S. Supreme Court. There's no guarantee the Senate will confirm her, of course.

But like new Chief Justice John Roberts, Miers is eminently qualified in terms of legal experience and intellect, and, though conservative, she falls well short of being branded as a far right ideologue. On these two appointments, we might be seeing something of the old Gov. Bush: conservative, for sure, but not the highly partisan officeholder we've seen since he was elected president.

Miers, 60, has never been a judge, but that should not count against her. She would bring to the court a different perspective, that of a woman who began her legal career at a time when women had trouble breaking into the all-male ranks of major law firms. Miers not only became partner, but her demonstrated competence and work ethic put her in charge of a major Texas firm and got her elected the first female president of the State Bar of Texas.

We hope that experience will keep her mind open to others who turn to the courts when they must overcome prejudice to protect their rights and access to what this nation has to offer.

Of course, the most burning issue for many is whatever her position is on Roe v.

Wade, the abortion-rights case that many conservatives want reversed.

One episode sure to get scrutiny was her unsuccessful attempt in 1993 to have the American Bar Association hold a referendum on its support of abortion rights. Accounts of Miers' opposition centered on her questioning the appropriateness of the ABA taking such a stand without membership approval, not the constitutional issue of abortion itself. But abortion-rights groups won't take any comfort from that. Yet, many anti-abortion activists are same criminal transaction or different criminal transactions pursuant to the same scheme or course of conduct, it is capital murder," she said.

- Under age 6. If the murder victim is under 6 years of age, the case may be classified as capital murder.

- A peace officer. "If the victim is a law enforcement officer in the lawful discharge of their official duty at the time of the murder, it is capital murder," Switzer said.

- Another felony at same time. If the murder occurs in the process of another felony being committed, it may be classed as capital murder.

- Money. If the murder is committed for monetary gain, it can be considered capital murder.

- Escape. If the murder occurs while the alleged perpetrator is escaping or attempting to escape custody or incarceration, it may be considered capital murder.

"Under the current case law, we are allowed to prosecute an unborn child's death as another murder," Switzer said.

One instance in which the death penalty cannot be included for consideration, even if one or more of the criteria is met to classify the case as a capital murder, is if the accused is age 17 or younger, she said.

"If they are 17 or younger, they cannot be sentenced to death," Switzer said.

Center

In 2004, there were 115 deaths in Texas as a result of domestic violence.

Tralee Crisis Center had 527 domestic violence victims last year, and another 1,171 family violence calls, for a total of 1,823. Family violence occurs among family members who may not live in the same household, Ledbetter said. Domestic violence occurs when the parties involved live in the same home.

The statewide death total for 2004 is 25 percent less than the year before, Ledbetter said. At the same time, Tralee is seeing more men becoming victims.

"We are serving men more this year than we ever have before," Ledbetter said. "Both men and women can be victims."

The center serves Carson,

Childress, Collingsworth, Donley, Gray, Hemphill, Roberts and Wheeler counties. It provides a 24-hour shelter, 24-hour crisis hotline, crisis intervention and counseling, and emergency transportation.

Center staff also assist with applications for protective orders and crime victims compensation, and accompany clients to court.

Individual and group counseling is provided to victims, along with parenting and self-help classes. Assistance with food, clothing and household goods through community donations is also offered.

Anyone who is interested in volunteering at the center may work either directly or indirectly with clients, do clerical work, or work in the center's resale shop or warehouse.

For more information, call Ledbetter at the center at 669-1131 or e-mail her at lyn.tralee@amaonline.com.

Enough of the sublime; it is time for the ridiculous. Perhaps I never again will have opportunity to ease into a joke, variations of which have survived many decades.

A man, drunker than somewhat, stumbles into the zoo, asking the keeper to inventory his penguins. "I want to make sure they're all here and accounted for," the tipler said.

"Yes, we have 12 penguins, and they're all in the pen," the zoo keeper responded.

"That's what I was afraid of," slurred the inebriate. "I'm afraid I just ran over a nun."

Finally, these T-shirt messages that didn't make last week's column:

"You have mistaken me for someone who cares."

"If a man says something in a forest, and his wife's not there to hear him, is he still wrong?"

"Never argue with an idiot. He will drag you down to his level, then beat you with experience."

— Dr. Newbury is a speaker and author in the Metroplex. His column appears weekly in 125 newspapers in six states. He welcomes comments by email, newbury@speakerdoc.com.

Miers

reacting with disappointment to this nomination because Miers has not said publicly just what her views are.

As important as the abortion issue is, however, it should not be the only benchmark by which a nominee is measured. There's the issue of civil rights, especially in an era when the government's handling of suspected terrorists and its efforts to find them have raised concerns.

There's also the continuing controversy about the relationship between church and state, spilling into areas as diverse as the teaching of the origins of life and the Pledge of Allegiance. As the size and reach of the federal government continue to grow, even under Republican administrations, the rights of the states still stir disputes that go to the nation's high court.

We also note that, if confirmed, Miers would be only the second Texan ever named to the court. The first was Justice Thomas C. Clark, 1949-1967, who was appointed by President Truman. And she would be only the third woman to serve on the court, after O'Connor and Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Miers no doubt will face tough questioning from the Senate, and perhaps her critics will find something embarrassing or questionable about her legal career or personal life. We suspect not, though. Miers, like Roberts, offers no easy targets for partisans of either side.

North Central Texas Cattleman's Clinic in offing

GRAHAM — What's the time line for mandatory animal identification? Is there a good preventative for wheat pasture bloat? Is there a major change coming in cattle prices?

Cattle producers can get the answer to these and other questions Nov. 3 at the 12th annual North-Central Texas Cattleman's Clinic, said Brad Morrison, Texas Cooperative Extension agent in Young County.

The clinic will be held in the Young County Arena on U.S. Hwy. 380 East. Registration begins at 1 p.m. The program will conclude with a steak dinner at 5:30 p.m.

"This clinic is sponsored by Extension offices in Young, Jack, Palo Pinto and Stephens counties," Morrison said. "There is a $5 fee for dinner. We would like those who plan to attend to RSVP for the dinner by Nov. 1.

"Those who attend will qualify to earn pesticide continuing education credits from the Texas Department of Agriculture."

This year's clinic will include presentations on:

- "Cattle Price Outlook," Dr. Stan Bevers, Extension economist at Vernon;

- "Wheat Pasture Bloat - There's More To It Than Meets The Eye," Dr. Bill Pinchak, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station ruminant nutritionist at

Vernon;

- "Premise and Cattle ID - Your Herd Is On The Clock," Kenny Edgar, Texas Animal Health Commission, Austin; and

- "Assisting In Difficult Calving Situations - Reducing Stress On You And The Cow," Dr. Buddy Faries, Extension veterinarian at College Station.

For more information or registration, contact Morrison at (940) 549-0737, the Extension office in Jack County at (940) 567-2132, the Extension office in Palo Pinto County at (940) 659-1228, or the Extension office in Stephens County at (254) 559-2313.

Rotary Club

Ken Hall, emergency management coordinator for Pampa and Gray County, recently discussed four phases of emergency management at a meeting of Pampa Rotary Club. Besides the four phases — mitigation, preparedness, response and recovery, Hall discussed yearly training practices involving local law enforcement and local industry. The emergency coordinator has been in Pampa for 23 years, relocating from Plainview where he was based for 11 years.

Realty board convenes meeting

Pampa Board of REALTORS®, Inc., will hold its Installation Banquet Nov. 11 at Pampa Country Club. The evening will begin with a cash bar at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Benny McMahan, president and CEO of Texas Association of REALTORS®, will preside over the installation and deliver the program.

Officers for 2006 are Sue Baker, president; Irvine Riphahn, vice president; Becky Baten, secretary; Sandra Schuneman, three-year director; Joan Mabry, two-year director; and Judi Edwards, one-year director.

Brandi Morphis was recently inducted as a new member in a ceremony at Vicary House, and Sharon McKee has relocated to Lubbock. Jim Ward has transferred his license to First Landmark Realty.

The Texas Association of REALTORS® will be increasing yearly dues by $10. The amount due Jan. 1 is $286, according to the board. Five dollars of the increase is TAR dues and the other $5 is for Issues and Mobilization Committee.

The committee supports or opposes, a news release from the board said, possible or proposed measures or actions by state and local governing bodies which concern the preservation of real property rights, real estate brokering, and the legal and economic rights of the real estate industry.

One example cited by the board release was a situation in which the committee helped in defeating a law that would require new home builders to have a bond for more than $200,000 for each new unit built.

The board reports a change in SAE requirements. Individuals applying prior to Jan. 1, 2006, must show evidence of having completed a minimum of 30 hours in core or related real estate education each year or until a total of 270 classroom hours have been completed.

At least 210 hours of the 270 hours must be in core real estate. Those applying after Jan. 1 must complete a minimum of 60 hours in core or related real estate education during the first year of licensure. Again, at least 210 hours of the 270 hours must be in core real estate.

Agents not under SAE, must, upon renewal, have 15 classroom hours (six hours legal) of TREC approved MCE courses. The six-hour mandatory legal courses must be three hours of legal update and three hours of legal ethics. TAR is currently working toward having these courses online.

A seminar with Petey Parker is scheduled between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Oct. 25 in Amarillo. Cost is $10 including lunch. For more information, contact the Amarillo Association of REALTORS®.

Forum gearing up for 'Campaigning Boot Camp'

AMARILLO — Amarillo Area Women's Forum is gearing up to offer "Campaigning Boot Camp" for all area women. The boot camp "How to run an election campaign and position yourself for appointment to local, regional, and state boards and commissions" will be offered between 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday at the Fifth Seasons Inn West on Interstate 40.

The following speakers are scheduled:

- Judge Pam Simon. "What is a campaign?"
- Amarillo Mayor Debra McCartt. "Campaign Organization — Strategy & Getting Out Your Message" and "city appointments"

- Judge Nancy Bozquez. "Fund-raising"
- Richard Gore. "Ethics & Reporting"

• Rebecca King, retired Potter County district attorney. "Election and appointment experiences."

- Jane Juett, Governor's Commission on Women.
- Sharon Miner, former aide to Sen. Teel Bivins.
- Ellen Neal. "Media & Public Relations."

• Sue Bartolino and Glenna Canada. "Personal Behavior and Conduct."

Cost of the boot camp is $25 with lunch included. To register, send a check with your name and address to: Barbara Miner, 2422 S. Hughes, Amarillo, TX 79109. For more information, phone Rita Bryant at (806) 352-7425.

Historical commission to record WWII stories

PANHANDLE — Carson County Historical Commission and Square House Museum in Panhandle are initiating a program to capture memories from Carson County veterans and other county residents alive during World War II.

The 60th anniversary of the end of the war has brought attention to war stories not yet collected or recorded. Time may be running out. In fact, many stories have been lost as the war veterans have died.

All across the nation, veterans and other Americans are telling how they were affected by the war.

The historical commission wants to hear these recollections before it is too late.

The museum has discussed such a program for years. Now a committee has been formed and museum officials will be contacting Carson County World War II veterans to schedule interviews. A list of veterans is being compiled. Carson County veterans are asked to contact the museum with their name, address, telephone number and branch of service if they have not already done so.

The interviews will be stored at the museum and the Southwest Collection at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Copies will be made available for persons participating in the interviews.

Library planning children's craft day, Story Time party

Pampa's Lovett Memorial Library is planning a Halloween and Fall Craft Day for 10 a.m. Saturday in the library auditorium. Shanla Brookshire will lead the youngsters in fashioning scarecrows, black cats, pumpkins, and ghosts in the spirit of Halloween. The target age for the program is 3- to 8-year-olds.

The program is free and all materials will be furnished.

A Halloween party is scheduled at 10 a.m. Oct. 25 for the library's "Pre-School Story Time." Costumes are optional. Story Time is every Tuesday at 10 a.m. for children between 18-months and 4-years of age. Story Time includes stories and crafts.

For more information on either of these programs, contact the library at 669-5780 or log onto www.lovettlibrary.org on the World Wide Web.

Children's weight linked to price of produce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new study suggests the price of fresh fruits and vegetables has a stronger connection to weight gain among children than whether they live near fast-food outlets.

It adds more confusion to the muddy picture of what causes youngsters to gain weight.

Advocacy groups have suggested a strong link between obesity and the proximity of fast-food restaurants or the lack of supermarkets stocked with fresh food. But the new study by the Santa Monica-based Rand Corp. think tank found little support for that connection.

"You see lots of stories about the poor becoming obese because they're in neighborhoods with lots of restaurants and no access to healthy food," said Roland Sturm, a co-author of the Rand study. "We show that well, maybe those stories don't hold up."

The study examined the weight gain of 6,918 children of varying socio-economic backgrounds from 59 U.S. metropolitan areas as they advanced from kindergarten to third grade. Researchers compared the weight gain figures with the price of different types of foods and the number of food outlets in the areas.

— Roland Sturm
Study co-author

They did not examine what the children ate, however.

The results showed that young children who live in communities where fruits and vegetables are expensive are more likely to gain excessive amounts of weight than kids who live in areas where produce costs less. That connection was stronger than the proximity to fast-food restaurants.

On average, children in the study gained 29 pounds. But for the region with the highest relative price for produce — Mobile, Ala. — children gained about 50 percent more excess weight as measured by body-mass index (a ratio of height to weight) than children nationally.

Among kids in the area with the lowest relative cost for fruits and vegetables — Visalia, Calif. — excess weight gain was about half the national average.

The study also found that many children who live in poverty have just as much access to grocery stores as kids in higher-income neighborhoods.

The finding, Sturm said, "flies in the face of a lot of theories," including some that the poor do not have enough access to grocery stores.

Susan Foerster, chief of the Cancer Prevention and Nutrition Section of the California Department of Health Services, said the findings support what she has heard from the low-income families she serves.

"Lower-income families are more price-sensitive," she said "They have to be careful with how much they spend in food, because housing and transportation is expensive in California." Foerster said the study provides evidence that low-income people need help buying healthy food.

However, Elizabeth Frazao, a U.S. Department of Agriculture economist, noted that a separate USDA study showed low-income consumers, when given an additional dollar, didn't increase their purchase of fruits and vegetables.

"There's this perception that fruits and vegetables are expensive when maybe it's not so much the cost, but the pleasure and taste that people get," said Frazao, whose department funded the Rand study.

"If you have a dollar, would you rather buy apples, a candy bar or soda?" she asked.

Sturm suggested providing fruits and vegetables free to schoolchildren would improve their diets. The USDA launched such a program in about 100 schools, he noted, and it has been popular with parents and teachers, but it's not clear whether it's affecting children's weight.

He acknowledges more research is needed on the issue.

"There's no shortage of ideas when it comes to childhood obesity," he said, "but the data out there are a lot more limited" than the theories.

Dentists can sometimes help with back pain

(NAPSA) — Here's news that may help take weight off your shoulders. If you experience common problems such as headaches, facial pain, neck, shoulder and back pain, jaw pain, sore or worn teeth, chipped or broken teeth, clicking or popping in the jaw or limited jaw movement, it could be due to a treatable condition called temporomandibular joint disorder (TMD) or sometimes incorrectly referred to as TMJ. In addition to pain, it can lead to snoring, grinding of teeth, and breathing problems.

In most cases, TMD is caused by malocclusion. Malocclusion means your upper and lower teeth do not close together in the correct way, often causing underbites and over-bites. When teeth are misaligned and the jaw is not in the right position, the muscles are stressed and can cause chronic pain.

Fortunately, the condition is treatable with the help of a neuromuscular dentist.

"Traditional dentists concern themselves with only the teeth, bones and gums. Neuromuscular dentistry goes beyond that to address the dynamic relationships involving the muscles of the head and neck and the position of the bite," says Dr. Bill Dickerson, founder of LVI Global, the leading post-graduate neuromuscular dental training center.

To treat problems such as TMD, neuromuscular dentists find the most comfortable muscle position of the lower jaw, Dickerson said.

The dentist will then place a repositioning orthotic, usually on the lower teeth, to see if the pain the patient is having is related to their bad bite.

Once the bite is realigned and the jaw is in place, pain that is a result of the imbalance will disappear. Then the dentist works to realign the bite and restore the teeth permanently to that optimal position.

Patients of neuromuscular dentists also report longer-lasting dental restorations. Learn more about eliminating jaw pain and locate a neuromuscular dentist in your area at www.leadingdentists.com.

Protein-rich diet boosts benefit of exercise

(NAPSA) — Everyone knows that a smart weight-loss program combines diet and exercise, but a new University of Illinois study reports that exercise is much more effective when it's coupled with a protein-rich diet.

Study participants who enjoyed more high-quality proteins in place of carbohydrates, along with regular activity, like walking, stretching and strength training, lost more weight and almost 100 percent of it was fat, while they maintained lean muscle mass.

"There's an additive, interactive effect when a protein-rich diet is combined with exercise," said Donald Layman, Ph.D., a University of Illinois professor of food science and human nutrition and lead researcher on the study. "The two work together to correct body composition; dieters lose more weight and they lose fat, not muscle."

Forty-eight adult women participated in the 4-month study, published in the August 2005 issue of the Journal of Nutrition.

One group ate a protein-rich diet and a second group consumed a diet that contained higher amounts of carbohydrates.

Both groups consumed the same number of calories, but the first group substituted high-quality protein foods, such as lean meats, lowfat dairy and eggs, for some of the foods high in carbohydrates, such as breads, rice, cereal, pasta and potatoes.

"Both diets work because when you restrict calories, you lose weight. But the people on the higher-protein diet lost more weight," said Layman. "The protein-rich diet also dramatically lowered triglycerides and had a statistically significant effect on abdominal fat, both risk factors associated with heart disease."

According to Layman, a diet including high-quality proteins, such as lean beef, lowfat dairy products and eggs, can improve the overall quality of your diet while helping you lose weight too.

One of the most effective ways to protect baby against dry skin is to give baby a bath using a non-drying cleanser just for babies, such as Aveeno(r) Baby Wash & Shampoo. Immediately after the bath, pat the skin dry and apply a moisturizer like Aveeno(r) Baby Daily Moisture Lotion to help lock in the moisture from the bath water — and to also help prevent chafing and chapping. And using the right cream, like Aveeno(r) Diaper Rash Cream, at every diaper change can help protect baby's skin from diaper wetness and soils to help prevent rash.

Harvesters rock Randall, 21-17

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

"This is what we've been talking about for five weeks. This is the game we've been preaching to them about. Not Randall, just week six." Head Coach Bryan Wood shared those thoughts just minutes after his Pampa Harvesters defeated Randall, 21-17, in exciting come-from-behind fashion Friday night at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

Ryan Torres started the night by taking the opening kick off, then took a shot near the Harvester 30 yard line that got the Raider homecoming crowd excited. Torres managed to shake off the hit and chewed up another 20-yards before he was tackled at midfield.

Brody Smith, in his first game back as Pampa QB since suffering a foot injury a few weeks ago, led his team onto the field and into the end zone with some nifty running and a couple of great pass-and-catch plays to Sharod Young. With 7:20 to play in the first quarter, Pampa led 7-0.

The Raiders looked ripe for the picking throughout the first half. Randall was unable to establish any rhythm on offense, committed a number of penalties and turnovers, including two fumbles recovered by Shavious Kelley and Eric Kingcade. Randall threatened late in the half, coming within 10-yards of the Pampa end zone, only to be stopped by the stellar Harvester defense on a fourth-and-one attempt.

Randall would get a 42-yard field goal to send the teams to the locker rooms at the half with Pampa leading, 7-3. The Raiders jumped on Pampa early in the third quarter, when Blake Bonner took a hand off on the first play from scrimmage and didn't stop until he made it to the Harvester end zone. Randall would strike again with 4:22 to play in the third, and stretched its lead to 17-7.

Just 19 seconds later, Smith reciprocated, sending a tight spiral to A.J. Manzanares, who made a finger-tip catch and burned Randall for a 64-yard touchdown.

Pampa's defense gave the offense every opportunity to win, holding the Raiders at bay for the rest of the game. And with little more than two minutes to go in the game, the Harvesters thanked them.

A Randall punt and a running error by Young left Pampa with a 90-yard challenge. Young, however, would redeem himself. He kept the Harvester's hopes alive with two "you-should-have-seen-it" catches.

One in the middle of the field where he was surrounded by Raiders. The other down the left field line, where he did a tightrope act to get Pampa within 10-yards of a win. Moments later, Smith pitched the ball to Young who capped the drive with a TD. Keenan Davis converted all three extra point attempts.

Said an exhausted Coach Wood afterward, "This is a credit to our kids. They never thought this game was over. This was a total team effort."

Pampa improves to 2-4, 1-0. Randall is now 2-4, 0-1.

Cowboys hope to make McNabb, Eagles less comfy in Texas

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Over the last five years, the series between the Philadelphia Eagles and Dallas Cowboys sure has provided a lot to talk about. Such as two game-opening inside kicks. And an unbelievable scramble-turned-bomb by Donovan McNabb. Plus the energizing powers of pickle juice. Or a bawdy intro with a Desperate Housewife.

The only thing missing? Good games. The Eagles have won nine of the last 10 against the Cowboys and nearly all have been routs. McNabb unintentionally emphasized this week how lopsided the matchup has become by talking about playing at Texas Stadium with the excitement of someone going to visit an old friend.

"Although I don't have a star on the side of my helmet, it feels good to be in that place," he said.

Philadelphia is 4-1 at Texas Stadium since 2000, with each victory by at least 24 points. Counting the Eagles' five straight wins on their home turf, their average margin of victory in this series lately is 22.1.

Cowboys coach Bill Parcells dismisses such things as irrelevant. It's not just grandstanding for reporters, either. He's telling his team to ignore it, too.

"He makes you feel you belong in the stadium with any team," defensive end Greg Ellis said. "It does let you know, especially young guys and even some of the old guys who've been getting our butts kicked for a long time by those guys, 'Hey man, we can play with them.'"

Still, considering the way things have gone, the Cowboys might have to settle for a close game, which has been their pattern this season anyway. Dallas is 2-2 with all four games decided in the final minutes.

The Cowboys have hung tough by scoring 32 fourth-quarter points, but they've needed them because they've yet to score in the first quarter. As imbalanced as it seems, the result is they've scored as many points as they've allowed.

"We've kind of been up and down, played some very close games, but now we're going to face a good challenge," quarterback Drew Bledsoe said. "I think this will give us a good indication of exactly where we are as a team."

With back-to-back games at home against the Eagles and New York Giants, the Cowboys will have data on whether they'll have a chance to win the NFC East. Having already lost at home to the Redskins, Dallas can't afford to be 0-3 in the division with all three rematches on the road.

Philadelphia (3-1) has won three straight since losing its opener and is coming off its biggest comeback win in 12 years, having scored 31 straight points after trailing Kansas City by 18. The explosiveness is no surprise considering the Eagles have the NFL's most productive offense.

Despite a sports hernia and serious bruises on his chest and shin, McNabb is off to his finest start anyway, leading the NFL in yards passing and touchdowns. He has the league's receptions leaders at three positions in wideout Terrell Owens, tight end L.J. Smith and running back Brian Westbrook, and now will be going against a defense vulnerable to long passes.

McKenzie returns to face Packers' piecemeal offense

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Mike McKenzie saw the Green Bay Packers slipping. What he never envisioned was this fast a fall by the team he deserted a year ago when he forced a trade to the New Orleans Saints.

The Packers are an NFL-worst 0-4. They haven't won at home since Dec. 12, Ahman Green hasn't topped 100 yards rushing since last November and Brett Favre is on pace to throw 32 interceptions — double his career average.

On top of that, Favre may be without as many as six offensive starters Sunday when he faces McKenzie and the Saints (2-2) at Lambeau Field.

"In this league, you can never say you're surprised," McKenzie said. "But I am kind of surprised they haven't found a way to pull out some Ws."

The Packers have lost their last three games by a total of six points. That includes a 32-29 loss at Carolina on Monday night in which Favre nearly led them back from a 19-point fourth-quarter deficit behind a makeshift line and without Green and wide receiver Terrence Murphy, who were both injured.

The Packers will be without Flanagan, who had abdominal surgery, and maybe Clifton on Sunday.

On Thursday, Tauscher lined up at left tackle and Kevin Barry took his spot on the right. Second-year pro Scott Wells was at center.

moved to Clifton's spot Monday night, has six years in the league, but he and rookie right guard Will Whitticker are the newest members of this ragtag bunch.

"If they ask me (for direction), I might look at them puzzled," Klemm acknowledged.

Favre said he's not worried about his piecemeal protection.

"I don't know who's going to play this week, (but) my job doesn't change," Favre said. "There's no other way to approach it than to play it like it's any other week with everybody in there. ... I can't be concerned."

Favre, who lost his top target when receiver Javon Walker blew out his knee in the opener, might not have Green (high, knee) or Pro Bowl tight end Bubba Franks (knee) this week, either.

Giambi rewarded with comeback player award

NEW YORK (AP) — Jason Giambi arrived at spring training unsure whether his swing or fan support would return.

Following a second half that returned him to the ranks of baseball's top power hitters, Giambi was rewarded Thursday when fans voted him the AL Comeback Player of the Year.

The New York Yankees first baseman hit .271 with 32 homers and 87 RBIs, and led the AL with a .440 on-base percentage and 108 walks. He also was eighth in the league with a .535 slugging percentage.

Beset by a twisted ankle, a stomach virus, a strained groin, a respiratory infection, an intestinal parasite and a benign pituitary tumor, Giambi hit 208 with 12 homers and 40 RBIs in 2004. He was so weak at the end of the season, he wasn't included in New York's postseason roster.

During the offseason, the San Francisco Chronicle reported Giambi told a federal grand jury that he had used steroids. Just before spring training, on Feb. 10, he held a news conference at Yankee Stadium and fidgeted as he repeatedly apologized, without specifically admitting that he had used steroids.

Cowboys

Owens and McNabb have played together only once at Texas Stadium, and they put on quite a show that Monday night.

Owens caught six passes for 134 yards, three touchdowns and one star-stomping TD celebration. McNabb topped it all by spinning, twisting and running from defenders for 14 seconds, then unleashing a 60-yard pass to Freddie Mitchell.

The buzz for days afterward, though, centered on a pregame promotional skit for ABC that featured actress Nicollette Sheridan professing, "I love you, T.O.," dropping her towel and jumping naked into Owens' arms.

Owens' parting line was "the team's going to have to win this one without me." That proved prophetic for the next game against Dallas.

Philadelphia needed a touchdown by Dorsey Levens with 1:57 left to pull it out 12-7. But the overriding memory was Dallas' Roy Williams bringing down Owens from behind and breaking his leg, a play that led to Owens' gallant return for the Super Bowl — and a league ban on the "horse-collar tackle."

In the one game lately that Dallas won, a 23-21 squeaker in '03, Eagles coach Andy Reid tricking the Cowboys with a game-opening inside kick. Randal Williams was ready for it and returned it for a touchdown.

How could he have expected it? Well, Reid tried the same thing in 1999, in his very first game as Philadelphia's coach, which also was at Texas Stadium. It worked, sparking the Eagles to a 41-14 victory on an exceptionally hot afternoon that the club supposedly endured by slurping pickle juice.

Whatever the formula, Philadelphia has dominated Dallas ever since.

FINAL COUNTDOWN

Wallace down to last seven races of career

By MIKE HARRIS
Associated Press

There are seven races remaining in the driving career of Rusty Wallace, and the longtime NASCAR star would like to make them memorable. Wallace, the 1989 champion of NASCAR's top stock car series, is focused on winning another title in his final season, dubbed "Rusty's Last Call."

Heading into Kansas Speedway this week for what will be the 700th start of his career, Wallace is one of the 10 drivers racing for the title in the second Chase for the Nextel Cup championship, and he trails only series leader Tony Stewart and second-place Ryan Newman, his Penske Racing South teammate.

It's somewhat surprising that two of the top three in the standings, separated by just 76 points, are driving Dodges, since the new Chargers have won only three of 29 races this season and have not been competitive in many more.

So what does the Penske team have to do to have a shot over the final seven races of the 10-race Chase?

"We've got to put a major importance on handling," Wallace said. "I honestly can't say the problem we have is the Dodge, though. And I know it's not the engines. I think it's just the individual teams not getting the setups right."

"The other teams have done a little bit better job, but I tell you, I think we held our own if not exceeded some of these guys at the last 10 or 15 races at some of these tracks. I've had a lot of top fives and top 10s, which got me to second in the points."

"The weird crash at Talladega has got me back to third now, so I'm confident going into the rest of them, that's for sure. But the big thing right now is to get these cars handling well."

Wallace got caught up in a multicar wreck at Talladega, but was able to get back on track and finish 25th. What upset the veteran racer more than being in one of the several wrecks in the race at the big Alabama track was what he views as the reason the crashes happened.

"I just couldn't believe the bump drafting I was seeing," said Wallace, referring to the tactic used by drivers at Talladega and Daytona, the two tracks where NASCAR requires horsepower-sapping carburetor restrictor plates to slow the cars. With all the cars so even, drivers bump the guy ahead of them to make both cars go faster.

"The guys were really causing a lot of wrecks by extreme bump drafting," Wallace said. "That's one thing that come Daytona (in February) NASCAR is going to have to crack down on with some severe penalties," Wallace said. "It could have killed some people. It was just the wrong way to race."

NASCAR president Mike Helton repeatedly has said that the sanctioning organization would love to find a way to get rid of the plates, but that no safe alternative has been found. Wallace, who never has been afraid to tell NASCAR what he is thinking, has an idea.

Wallace noted that drivers already are penalized with a pit road drive-through or being sent to the rear of the longest line on a restart if they drive below the yellow line at the edge of the tracks at Talladega and Daytona.

"My solution is a safe solution," he said. "If you go below the yellow line, we're going to black flag you. If we catch you bump drafting, we're going to black flag you."

"It's no harder to police than it is to police the yellow line rule, so I consider the bump drafting and yellow line rule the same. They should receive the same penalty. I believe that will stop (it)."

But that's old news for Wallace now.

"The big picture is, I don't have to worry about it anymore because that was my last (plate race)," he said.

Instead, he will concentrate on the remaining races.

"I feel like we're prepared for Kansas," Wallace said. "We've just got to get back up in the points. Losing 70 points was a blow."

WEATHERFORD, Okla.

Joshua Miller and Erin Raber, both of Pampa, were each recently accepted and are currently enrolled in their first semester at Southwestern Oklahoma State University's College of Pharmacy in Weatherford.

Raber is the daughter of Craig and Ronna Raber of Pampa.

Miller is the son of Johnny and Jeanna Miller of Pampa.

Forty-one students were admitted into the Doctor of Pharmacy program for the 2005 fall semester at SWOSU. The class has an average cumulative grade point average of 3.75 and is composed of 21 women and 20 men.

Minimum requirements to make application for admission to SWOSU College of Pharmacy include the completion of at least 58 semester hours of specified pre-pharmacy courses with a cumulative GPA of at least 2.00.

The selection process is competitive and based on a number of factors, according to H. David Bergman, dean of the College of Pharmacy. These include, but are not limited to, science and mathematics GPAs, overall GPAs, ACT or SAT scores, Pharmacy College Admission Test scores, motivation, character and communication skills.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Army Reserve Pfc. Heather R. Compton, daughter of John Compton of Pampa, has recently graduated from basic combat training at Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C.

During the nine weeks of training, the soldier studied the Army mission, history, tradition and core values, physical fitness, and received instruction and practice in basic combat skills, military weapons, chemical warfare and bayonet training, drill and ceremony, marching, rifle marksmanship, armed and unarmed combat, map reading, field tactics, military courtesies, military justice system, basic first aid, foot marches, and field training exercises.

CANYON — Savanna Shipp, a freshman theatre major from Wheeler, will play Mrs. T. Muse in the upcoming production of Thornton Wilder's farcical comedy "The Skin of Our Teeth" to be staged by Branding Iron Theatre at West Texas A&M University Oct. 13.

Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13-15 and Oct. 20-22 on the BIT stage as this Pulitzer-Prize winning play examines the everyday mundane life of a typical American family in Excelsior, N.J. Perry Crafton, assistant professor and director of theatre, directs a 21-member cast through three acts with interchanging roles and hilarious hijinks involving dinosaurs and fortune tellers.

What makes a man honorable?

About 45 participated Tuesday in the Honorable Man March along Cuyler and Foster streets. Pampa High School Band drummers provided one beat every 19 seconds, the frequency at which someone in the United States is affected by domestic violence. The march ended at City Hall, where Tralee Crisis Center recognized six honorable men who "have lived their lives with integrity and have not used their hands in violence against their family," said Lyn Ledbetter, crisis center volunteer coordinator and educator at the crisis center and one of the event organizers.

Breanna Beesley, right, nominated her father Rick Beesley, left, as an Honorable Man. In her nomination, she said he was "the man I most respect and love in the entire world . . . I am thankful for him every moment of every day."

Darryl Hughes, left, shares top honors as one of the two Most Honorable Men named Tuesday by Tralee Crisis Center. Megan Addington, right, who attends the church where Hughes is a youth minister, nominated Hughes. She wrote, "In everything he does, you can tell God comes first. Just by talking to him once, you can tell he is totally one guy who can change the world."

Marty Field, left, shared top honors as one of two Most Honorable Men named Tuesday by Tralee Crisis Center staff. Miranda Ely, right, read Taylor B. Reeves' nomination of Field, who is a speech and debate coach at Pampa High School. "He gives selflessly, always seeking to find a way to change someone's life, or if that isn't possible, to make it better for just one day," Reeves said in his nomination.

► Rick Bradley was nominated by Aaron Ledbetter. "Rick is my best friend's dad and is like another father to me. He is a very fair and honest man and is one who believes that a problem can be discussed and solved without violence," Ledbetter wrote. He also said that Bradley had once helped a homeless man and had on another occasion gotten a mother and infant out of a car stalled at an Amarillo underpass which was flooding.

Lori Covil, left, nominated her father, Roger Crawford, right, for the title of Most Honorable Man. She wrote of his devotion to his family, his faith, and his battle against non-Hodgkins lymphoma. "I watched as he still praised God and stood on Scripture during the most difficult times . . . He's an inspiration to me, and you can bet that when I think of the word honorable, it's his face I see," Covil said in her nomination.

Roger Myers, right, was nominated by Colby Stevens, one of his students. Myers is a music teacher for Pampa Independent School District. Miranda Ely, left, read Stevens' nomination. "His theme was and still is, 'If better is possible, then good is not enough.' . . . He tries to make the band better by making the players better," Stevens said in his nomination.

behavior in times of crisis and panic," Crafton said. "This play wasn't written specifically for our times; it's just a coincidence that this play is so relevant to what is going on in the world- we are now in a state of renewal and beginning again. That is the central message of the play: our inherent and instinctive ability to survive and continue."

The play premiered in New York City in November 1942 just as America was recovering from the Great Depression of the 1930s and getting involved in World War II in 1941. It earned Wilder his second Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1943 and illustrated how Americans have continued to triumph throughout history by the skin of their teeth.

Crop & Weather Report

Texas sugarcane crop survives storm, drought

By MEGAN KNIGHT
Texas A&M News

COLLEGE STATION — Texans have a reputation for being tough, and this year, the Lone Star state's sugarcane crop was too, say experts from Texas Cooperative Extension.

The Lower Rio Grande Valley, where most of the crop is grown, survived a hurricane and a drought this year. These extreme weather conditions caused some people to wonder if the sugarcane crop would survive to be harvested.

"There's certainly a crop, and prospects look good," said Brad Cowan, Extension agent for Hidalgo County. "We did have a dry spell this summer, but luckily we came through it okay with irrigation."

The area was first hit by Hurricane Emily in July 2005. Some damage was reported, Cowan said, but the crop escaped extensive harm.

"We weren't hit directly by (Hurricane Emily); we were south of it," Cowan said. "There's some debate as to whether it hurt or helped us. Overall, I think it was a benefit to the cane. It moved some around, but it provided moisture to the crop."

Harvest is set to begin, he said, and could last for a while.

"It takes a long time by design — there's only one sugar mill for the whole crop, and it has to be fed slowly into the mill where it's crushed and the water is squeezed out of it," Cowan said. "They've developed early and late varieties of cane so they don't have to accommodate the long harvest season."

Almost 44,000 acres were planted in within the three main sugarcane-producing counties of Hidalgo, Cameron and Willacy.

Seven from Hoover VFD achieve intermediate status

Seven firefighters from Hoover Volunteer Fire Department recently achieved intermediate certification through the State Fireman's and Fire Marshal's Association of Texas Certification Board. The certification required 360 hours minimum training in 31 subjects. The training combined classroom studies and live fire training under controlled conditions.

The newly certified firefighters are Wayne Hinds, Joe Millican, Jeffery Sweeney, Bud Rose, Bill Campbell, Trent Price and James Powell.

Intermediate certification subjects include fire department organizations, forcible entry, ladder practices, hose practices, salvage and overhaul, fire streams, apparatus familiarization, ventilation practices, rescue operation, first aid, inspection practice, water supplies, fire protection system, transportation emergencies, fire service alarms and communication, public relations, records and reports, emergency vehicle driving, fire cause and origin, live fire training, firefighter safety, pump operations, ground cover firefighting, hazardous materials, SCBA, ropes, portable extinguishers, and public education.

For several years, the firefighters have attended classes in Canyon, Floydada, Higgins, Matador, and Wheeler as well as Municipal Texas Fire Training School at College Station. Additional training exercises were conducted in-house at Hoover Fire Station #2.

The firefighters are now working to become advance certified.

FUND-RAISER

CattleWomen Style Show benefits scholarship fund

Top O' Texas CattleWomen recently held its annual Style Show and Brunch at the Pampa Country Club. Those attending enjoyed a brunch consisting of beef crepes, egg estrada, fresh fruit, and mixed muffins.

Stores participating in this year's show were Bealls Department Store, Dunlaps, V.J.'s Fashions and Gifts, all from Pampa; Cavenders Boot City from Amarillo; The Willow Tree from Elk City, Okla.; and Audra's from Shamrock.

Several door prizes were given away and the winners were Edy Brainard, Kathleen Greene, Mary McDaniel, J.J. Stone, Margaret Tolbert, Barbara Wiley, and Tabitha Winkler.

Proceeds from the annual Style Show and Brunch help with the chapter's three annual scholarships, beef education, and beef promotion activities.

The grand prize, a $1,000 travel certificate redeemable at Complete Travel in Pampa, was won by Carolyn Buckingham of Pampa.

Sponsors of the travel certificate were Citizens Bank and Shamrock Livestock Auction, both of Shamrock; G&J Ranch, First National Bank, First Ag Credit, all of Canadian; Tejas Feedyard, Panhandle-Plains Federal Land Bank, Pampa Branch of First State Bank - Miami, and B&B Solvent, all of Pampa; Joe Magee of McLean; Ronnie Gill of Miami; and Wheeler Feedyard.

Proceeds from the annual Style Show and Brunch help with the chapter's three annual scholarships, beef education, and beef promotion activities.

Texas Panhandle MHMR board convenes its meeting

AMARILLO — J.T. Jolley, chief financial officer for Texas Panhandle Mental Health Mental Retardation, presented the 2006 fiscal year operating budget at a recent meeting of TPMHMR's Board of Trustees. The proposed budget was approved in the amount of $20,975,015.

Mellisa Talley, Mary Jo Tuley, Tammy Lamberson and Jamie Hardman addressed the board about how changes to Medicare will affect the center.

More than 150 community members, including law enforcement officials, attended a recent agency-sponsored seminar titled "Sights and Sounds of Schizophrenia." Janssen Pharmaceutical Co. provided a virtual reality simulator that allowed participants to "virtually" experience a psychotic episode such as schizophrenia's experience.

The board approved a contract with Texas Correctional Office on Offenders with Medical or Mental Impairments.

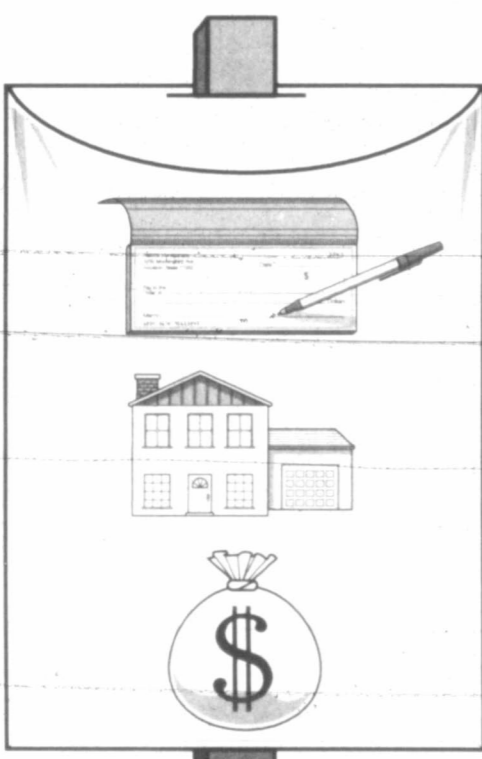

The board represents the residents served by TPMHMR in the upper 21 counties of the Texas Panhandle and serves as a policy-making body. Members of the board include Sharon Braddock of Pampa.

The agency has offices in Pampa, Amarillo, Borger, Clarendon, Dumas and Hereford.

For questions about TPMHMR and its services, contact Susan Kitchens, director of Client Relations, at (806) 351-3400.

The agency receives funding from the United Way.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I moved away from my ex-boyfriend, "David," seven months ago. Since then, our "perfect" relationship has changed drastically. He has been using horrible language toward me and saying he hates me. David also has said if I was near him, he would beat me. Now that I have told him it is over and have begun talking to someone else, he has decided he wants a second chance. First, David begged me to go back to him. Then, when I refused, he threatened to ruin my life. He knows some things about me that are very confidential and has threatened to call my mom and tell her everything. He claims he loves me, but then he tells me he hates me. I don't understand. I have always treated David with respect and tried to be a good girlfriend. But I can't do it anymore, and I'm afraid of how things will turn out. I can't take David harassing me. I don't know if I am in danger or if this is something to worry about. -- SCARED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR SCARED: People who love each other do not treat each other the way you are being treated. Your ex-boyfriend has become obsessed, and is trying to force you to capitulate through intimidation and blackmail. Tell him once more that it is over and you want him out of your life. Then screen your calls, block his e-mails, and if he approaches you, tell him that if he persists you will inform the police. And if you must, beat him to the punch and tell your mother what he's holding over you. It may not be your proudest moment, but it will loosen his hold over you.

P.S. Under no circumstances should you reconcile with him. This is just a taste of what you'll get if you do. If the harassment continues, go to the police and file a report.

DEAR ABBY: I have always been an animal lover. I have had a peek-a-poo, "Flopsy," for 12 years. She's the last of my pets, and loves me as much as I love her. Flopsy was hit by a car and her hip was fractured. Now I must confine her to our house until she's well. My fiance, "Lenny," complains I have spent too much money at the vet on her. Lenny says he can put a 20-cent bullet in her and solve the problem. Of course, I would never permit it, nor will I do anything like that. Flopsy doesn't bother him. She always stays in the same room as me no matter where I go. I have no demanding chores in my life, so I don't see the harm. Do you think I should put her out of her misery? Am I being selfish? -- ANIMAL LOVER IN GEORGIA

DEAR ANIMAL LOVER: You're asking me something that should be discussed with Flopsy's veterinarian. If, at her age, she can regain her health and mobility and frolic again, I see no reason to euthanize her. If she can't, then it might be the kind thing to do. Something else in your letter concerns me, however. The relationship you have with Flopsy apparently does "bother" your fiance. I suspect that he resents the love you have for her and the time and attention you lavish on her. To have suggested "putting a bullet in her" shows he has a cruel streak. If you are wise, you will think long and hard before marrying someone like that.

Thousands of kids missing school because of Hurricane Rita

GROVES, Texas (AP) — Like most 9-year-olds, Lennon Comeaux isn't all that upset that he has been out of school since Hurricane Rita toppled trees, tore off roofs and smashed windows in this East Texas town nearly two weeks ago.

Lennon has helped his parents clean the yard, reads while its daylight outside — there's still no electricity — and cares for his cats, parakeet, puppy, turtle and toads.

Tens of thousands haven't been in a classroom since days before Hurricane Rita slammed into the Gulf Coast on Sept. 24. More than three dozen East Texas districts were put out of business temporarily.

"He did ask us this morning if he was going to get paid for this," his mother, Joni Comeaux, said with a laugh.

"I was trying to make some money," Lennon said with shy smile.

Joni Comeaux and her husband, Jay, said Rita is teaching better lessons than anything Lennon could get in a classroom.

"It's been a good life lesson for him, though, because we faced a lot of adversity and a lot of discomfort, if anything, and he's kind of had to roll with the punches and pull his own weight," Jay Comeaux said. "So that trade-off for the book knowledge is a life lesson."

Lennon said Rita, which caused some roof and siding damage to the family's 75-year-old house, and the hurricane's aftermath have taught him patience.

"I kind of like it," Lennon said of his time away from the classroom, even though most of his classmates aren't around to play with.

Joni Comeaux said she thought briefly about putting Lennon in a school near Austin, where the family waited out the hurricane, but decided against it. If enrolled elsewhere, she said, Lennon would have to adjust and keep up at a new school then cover the same material again back home.

"It was really too many changes for our family," she said. "It was too much all at once and we just decided to come home, make the best of it."

"We are going to have to put this puzzle back together as best we can."

— Willis Mackey
Superintendent

Willis Mackey, the superintendent of Port Arthur Independent School District, says district officials were still assessing damage at its 18 campuses and didn't know when any of the schools would have electricity and water.

The winds blew off roofs, broke windows and water flooded some buildings, Mackey said. The district also has to find its 62 school buses, which were used to evacuate 3,000 people.

Some of the buses are as far away as Oklahoma and Arkansas. Mackey now has to figure out how to get gas money to the drivers so they can come home and drive the kids to school once classes resume.

"It has been very difficult," said Mackey, who has been working from Houston and a Port Arthur hotel powered by generator. "It has been a strain on the community and on the district that was unforeseen. We are going to have to put this puzzle back together as best we can."

Mackey's goal is to have at least one campus open by Thursday, to accept any students who are ready to come back.

"We want kids in the area, kids we can locate to come back to school," he said. "We will do our best job to educate them."

Mackey said principals are sorting out issues like how to generate report cards, and feed and transport children.

They're also mopping floors and cleaning putrid, spoiled food out of cafeteria freezers and refrigerators.

The Houston Independent School District has enrolled about 210 students displaced by Rita and more than 5,300 from Hurricane Katrina.

"For those who are staying here for the time being, we have the space, we have the resources, so make use of that opportunity," Houston schools spokesman Terry Abbott urged parents, calling every day a student misses school "a tremendous opportunity lost."

Texas Education Commissioner Shirley Neeley says schools closed for up to 10 days will not have to make up the days but those closed longer will have to reduce the number of holidays, extend the school year, lengthen the school day or hold classes on Saturdays.

Companies continue to blame the hurricanes for their woes

NEW YORK (AP) — When Hurricane Katrina hit the Gulf Coast, women across the country crimped their cosmetics spending. Or at least that's what companies like Avon Products Inc. and Estee Lauder Co. want investors to think.

Katrina also caused mattress sales to slide, according to Tempur-Pedic International Inc. Same goes for business at Books-A-Million Inc. stores and Diebold Inc.'s automatic teller machines.

With the third-quarter earnings season kicking into gear next week, the blame-it-on-the-rain excuses are starting to pile up across corporate America. It's a challenge for investors to sort out fact from fiction in those reasons.

There is no doubt that many companies were hard hit by Hurricane Katrina, and in some cases, Rita, too.

Given the size of those storms and the paralysis of business along the Gulf Coast, there will certainly be some legitimate costs for business there.

Insurance companies are getting clobbered, as is any business that used New Orleans as a major port. Many retailers with large operations along that coast have also seen significant damage to their stores.

But many excuses lately seem murky, and more are expected as companies report their quarterly results in the coming weeks. Are the storms really hurting business or are they being used to divert attention from more serious problems?

Avon, for instance, slashed its earnings forecast last month in part due to Katrina, and said that higher gas prices are hurting both its sales representatives and its customers. But the company's problems aren't new, according to Fulcrum Global Partners analyst Alice Beebe Longley, who said many are attributable to a "deterioration in management control."

Spice maker McCormick & Company Inc. highlighted Katrina as one major reason for its earnings to fall short of forecasts. Its Zatarain's line of flavored rice and other products is based just outside of New Orleans.

That, though, really wasn't the driving force behind its earnings miss. During a conference call with analysts, the Sparks, Md.-based company said that only about 25 percent, or 2 cents to 3 cents, of its 8-cent earnings shortfall came from the hurricane. The remaining amount was due to continued weakness in its industrial business.

A way for investors to size up whether companies are just doling out excuses or if problems really exist is to watch how their competitors deal with such issues.

If the hurricanes are plaguing Avon, then other cosmetics and consumer product companies should also be warning of trouble ahead. Estee Lauder noted the "continued negative impact" of Katrina when it said it would miss its profit targets, but similar red flags haven't come from giants like Procter & Gamble Co., one of the largest manufacturers of mass-market cosmetics and beauty supplies.

Or consider the case of Tempur-Pedic. Along with the hurricane, the Lexington, Ky.-based company offered up another curious reason for its expected profit miss: the incentives being offered in the auto industry. Apparently, consumers who bought cars at deep discounts weren't interested in buying $2,000 mattresses.

CIBC World Markets analyst Joseph

Altobello noted in a report to clients that he was somewhat "skeptical" that the issues plaguing the company were industry-specific and short-term in nature.

The company cites a slowdown industry wide in mattress sales, but Altobello points out that its competitor, Select Comfort Corp., recently forecast it would exceed its long-term growth targets for the second half of this year.

Krispy Kreme Doughnuts Inc.'s situation provides a recent example of why investors should be skeptical about excuses. A year ago, the doughnut maker blamed its earnings shortfall on the low-carbohydrate craze, although its competitors weren't complaining of similar concerns.

Soon after, it became apparent that the company's business was in serious financial trouble.

Since then, the company has restated earnings, has come under investigation for financial irregularities by securities regulators and fired its top executives.

No one is suggesting any company today is following a similar path. But investors need to be on the lookout for excuses.

Florida Fruit and Spice Park has plants that have stories

REDLAND, Fla. (AP) — To the untrained eye, the thousands of trees and plants at the Fruit and Spice Park look simply like lush greenery. But don't be fooled.

The dark bushes sprouting little red beans are African "miracle fruit," which block the tongue's ability to taste sour and make fresh limes taste sweet as sugar.

The tall Sapodilla tree bleeds white goo that was the source of the first chewing gum.

And the papaya plant produces a milky sap that was once popular as meat tenderizer and now tenderizes women's faces as the active ingredient in some "natural, botanical" exfoliating skin products.

"I know this just looks like a bunch of bushes, but every one has a story," said park manager Chris Rollins.

The 35-acre garden, owned and operated by Miami-Dade County Parks, is billed as the only tropical botanical garden of its kind in the United States with more than 500 varieties of fruit, vegetables, spices, herbs and other plants.

"It provides a real opportunity for the public to see a vast array of tropical fruits that you normally wouldn't come across," said Michael Davis, a plant pathologist at the University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences based in nearby Homestead.

That includes coffee, cashews, olive trees, a vineyard of Muscadine grapes, a virtual forest of bamboo and a patch of papyrus, the first paper. There's also lotus flowers, a symbol of enlightenment, and the knotted, dense lignum vitae or "tree of life" — which was used to treat syphilis in Europe during the age of Christopher Columbus, though not effectively.

"It didn't really cure anything," Rollins explains, "but it was so disruptive that it distracted them for a while."

If the park has a distraction, its the 1,200-foot row of 125 varieties of mangoes. Some are as smooth as butter, others fibrous, and the flavors range from lemony to buttery.

During the summer mango season, visitors can eat the succulent ripe fruit that drops to the ground until their stomachs bulge and their hands and clothes are stained in sweet, tangy juice.

"That's how we like to have people leave," Rollins said, smiling.

In addition to telling the stories behind the plants, tour guides offer visitors a taste of nearly every edible, ripe fruit at the park, and a chance to smell the leaves of dozens of spices.

"People kind of get to sniff and munch their way through," Rollins said.

Before anyone embarks on their fruit and spice safari, they can snack from an exotic fruit tray on display at the gift shop.

On a recent summer morning, the samplings included gak, a Vietnamese vegetable that's used to make rice orange. Inside the softball-sized spiky exterior are slimy bright red globules, appropriately called "devil's guts."

The tasting tray includes several strange-looking bananas, some of the 75 varieties available at the park.

Also on the tray is jackfruit, which Rollins said is the heaviest tree-borne fruit, weighing more than 70 pounds. About the size of a watermelon, but with a spiky green shell, jackfruit sprouts out of tree trunks and tastes of banana, cantaloupe and Juicy Fruit gum.

Jackfruit, native to Asia, India and the Philippines, is so popular that the park hires uniformed security to stand by its 35 trees to prevent theft when the fruit is in season.

Today's flourishing garden is a far cry from 1992, when the park took a direct hit from Hurricane Andrew.

"Almost every other tree was lying back down on the ground," Rollins said. Of the 750 canopy trees blown over, staff and volunteers were able to prop up and save about 250, Rollins said.

But Rollins, who has managed the park since 1981, used the opportunity to reorganize.

The trees and plants had previously been scattered around the park without any order. Now the park has a master plan, with plants organized according to geographic region: Tropical America, Africa, Asia, Pacific/Australia, and Mediterranean.

'Sight Night' places focus on giving this Halloween

Pampa Lions Club is teaming with the local post office for "Sight Night" in Pampa on Oct. 31. The postal carriers will help "Give the Gift of Sight" by gathering used eyeglasses while delivering mail throughout the city. The used eyeglasses will be recycled and hand-delivered by LensCrafters and Lions Club volunteers to people in developing countries who can't afford eyeglasses.

Sight Night is part of a national collection drive conducted annually by "Give the Gift of Sight," a family of charitable vision care programs sponsored by the LensCrafters Foundation in conjunction with Lions Clubs International.

"We hope we'll receive a large donation of eyeglasses on Sight Night. It's a great way to make use of eyeglasses we don't need anymore," said ReDonn Woods, Pampa Lions Club member. "Our efforts will change lives. Some of the people who receive these glasses may not be able to work because of their poor eyesight, and may never have seen their own families' faces clearly."

According to the World Health Organization, one-fourth of the world needs corrective eyewear, but many people, especially those in developing countries, do not have access to it. Each year, Give the Gift of Sight sponsors optical missions to developing countries such as Mexico, Bolivia, Laos, and Thailand.

"Look for your used eyeglasses and sunglasses in every nook and cranny of your home or place of work," said Woods. "Children's glasses are especially in need, as they are in high demand but in short supply. Whether they are big or small, fashionably 'in' or 'out,' your glasses could change how someone in a developing country sees the world!"

"If you miss the postal carriers at your house on Sight Night, have no fear. Used eyeglasses for the program can be dropped off during October at the Pampa Post Office."

Give the Gift of Sight charitable programs have provided eyeglasses to people in need across North America and in more than 24 developing countries. Each year, LensCrafters volunteers and doctors help more than 500,000 people worldwide.

Lions Clubs International, a partner with LensCrafters since 1988, is the world's largest service club organization with 1.4 million members in more than 44,600 clubs in 189 countries. Lions clubs have been collecting and recycling eyeglasses for more than 70 years.

Club news

Club news is published strictly on a first come, first serve basis due to space limitations. The deadline each week for Sunday's paper is Wednesday at 5 p.m. This changes to 12 noon Tuesday on holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas. Meeting the deadline does not guarantee publication that week. Thank you.

Pampa Art Club

Pampa Art Club met Oct. 4 at the home of Cara Morris. Eleven members and two guests, Jennifer Peet and Carol Dunham, were present.

The following business was conducted and announcements made:

—Fenton Motors has invited the club to organize an exhibit in its showroom Nov. 3-5.

—Madeline Gawthrop will teach a class on glass painting at the next meeting. Members are advised to bring a piece of glass suitable to work on.

The next meeting will be at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 18 at the Pampa Community Building (Chamber building) with hostess Billie Collinsworth.

TDA seeks historic farms, ranches

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs has announced that the Texas Department of Agriculture is seeking applications for the 2005 Family Land Heritage Program, which recognizes farms and ranches that have been in continuous agricultural operation by the same family for 100, 150 and 200 years. Since the program started in 1974, more than 4,020 farms and ranches have been recognized in 226 Texas counties.

The deadline to apply is Nov. 15.

Farms and ranches that qualify will be honored during a ceremony in Austin in March 2006. The history of the farm or ranch will be chronicled in the 2005 Family Land Heritage Registry. In addition, honorees can obtain historic farm or ranch signage for their property.

Program applications are available through TDA, county judges and on TDA's Web site at www.agr.state.tx.us. For more information, contact Family Land Heritage Coordinator Melissa Blair, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711, (512) 463-2631 or melissa.blair@agr.state.tx.us. Locally, contact Darlene Birkes at 665-2913.
