Stevens pleads guilty to child abandonment charge

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

The trial of a Pampa woman indicted for child abandonment was over before it began yesterday afternoon in 223rd District Court. Margaret Bernadine Stevens, 44, pled guilty in Judge Lee Waters' court to the second-degree felony offense of abandoning a child. She was sentenced to 10 years and a $1,000 fine. The 10-year sentence was commuted to seven years' probation, and Stevens will be required to serve 21 days in Gray County Jail, "one day for each day she left that child alone," said 31st District Attorney Lynn Switzer.

Stevens is also required to perform 240 days of community service. The maximum penalty for a second-degree felony is 20 years and a $10,000 fine. Stevens had already begun serving her 21-day jail sentence as of midafternoon yesterday, according to David Scott, a Perryton attorney who represented her in the case. Prospective jurors had already been summoned and qualified by Judge Waters, and jury selection was scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m., when Switzer said she learned that the victim's therapist, Dr. William Kleinpeter of Amarillo, recommended against the victim testifying in the trial against his mother. "I didn't find out about the therapist's concerns about the possible effects of testifying on the victim until about 11 a.m. yesterday. The therapist was concerned the child would have a psychotic or rageful episode," Switzer said yesterday afternoon. "Everyone in the room was attempting to act in the best interest of the child, including my client. My client did not want him to go through the stress of testifying," said Scott. "She admitted on the stand that she made a mistake," Scott said of Stevens' guilty plea.

"My greatest concern was for the victim, and I felt that I didn't need to subject him to any more trauma," Switzer said. "Mr. Scott was as concerned about the child as I was," she said. Stevens was indicted in October 2004 by a Gray County grand jury in 223rd District Court on a second-degree felony charge of abandoning a child after Pampa Police Department officers found her then-11-year-old son living alone in a house at 414 E. Browning on Aug. 13, 2004.

Weather balloon causes bomb scare

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

The poor guy was just trying to follow instructions. Little did he know that his actions would trigger a response by emergency personnel. At 11:34 a.m. yesterday, emergency services dispatchers received a call about a bomb threat. Pampa Police Department and Pampa Fire Department were both notified, and they responded in full force. The "bomb" was in a free-standing streetside mailbox in the vicinity of Rham and Nelson streets. Police used their vehicles to block off an area surrounding that location. When the item in question was examined, everyone relaxed and canceled the "red alert."

It turned out to be the instrument box from a weather balloon. The balloon had landed on a resident's property, and he had followed the instructions on the instrument box, which said to cut away the balloon. "Please place in any mailbox" was the next instruction. So the box, still trailing wires, was dutifully placed in the mailbox, said PPD Sgt. David Lee. No information was available as of press time today on whether the instrument box had been sent on to its proper destination. "I've never heard of anything like that happening before," said Matthew Kramer, meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Amarillo, concerning the box being seen as a possible bomb.

Civic duty

Early voter turnout in both the EDC and the state constitutional amendment elections has been characterized as heavy by election officials.

Senators say Alito has respect for Roe v. Wade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee Samuel Alito said the court's landmark Roe v. Wade decision deserves "great respect" but did not commit to upholding it in the future, senators said today. Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., said Alito told him the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision establishing abortion rights "was precedent on which people, a lot of people, relied, and had been precedent now for decades and therefore deserved great respect."

Lieberman called that "encouraging," but also said the federal judge had not assured him that he would not overturn Roe. Abortion will be a key question Alito will face at his Supreme Court confirmation hearings in January. President Bush has nominated him to replace retiring Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who has been a key vote on areas like abortion restrictions, the death penalty, campaign finance, affirmative action and states' rights.

As an appeals court judge, Alito held that states can require women seeking abortions to notify their spouses. The Supreme Court disagreed. Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, also asked about abortion in a later meeting with Alito. "I asked him whether it made a difference to him if he disagreed with the initial decision, but it had been reaffirmed several times since then. I was obviously referring to Roe in that question," she said after meeting Alito. "He assured me that he has tremendous respect for precedent and that his approach is to not overturn cases due to a disagreement with how they were originally decided," she said. The White House has yet to officially nominate Alito as O'Connor's replacement, but he already has met more than two dozen senators in preparation for his confirmation hearings.

Clydesdales here today

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

The Budweiser Clydesdales were scheduled to be in Pampa from 4 to 6 p.m. today at the Pampa Mall. Anyone wishing to have their photo taken with the huge horses may do so for a fee. Proceeds will benefit the Pampa Special Olympics. The draft horses, famous for advertisements showing them pulling an old-fashioned red beer wagon with an eight-horse hitch, are also scheduled to perform nightly at the WRCA World Championship Ranch rodeo in Amarillo Thursday through Sunday.

Dog sought after biting boy, 4

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

A dog which bit a 4-year-old at about 4 p.m. Sunday is being sought by Pampa Animal Control. The incident occurred at the intersection of Montagu and West streets, said Animal Control Officer Monty Montgomery. The dog is described as small and short-haired, with a rough brown coat, Montgomery said. "We know it's probably somewhere between 10 and 12 inches tall," Montgomery said. A small white dog was with the brown dog at the time of the incident, he said. The brown dog may at one point have been dragging a green leash. "We've got to get the animal located pretty quickly. If we don't get the animal located, the child will have to have rabies shots," Montgomery said. Anyone with information concerning the dog is asked to call 669-5700 or 669-5775.

Cattle rustlers keep busy in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — With beef prices on the rise, investigators say cattle rustling in Oklahoma and the United States has doubled since last year.

"Of course when they are worth more, they tend to be a little hotter item to steal," said Larry Gray, director of law enforcement for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Fort Worth, Texas. "It becomes much more lucrative."

In Texas and Oklahoma

last year, the association recovered more than $4 million in livestock and equipment. That included 2,447 cattle and 62 horses.

This year, the numbers are on pace to hit $9 million, Gray said.

One of every four dollars recovered by the association is from Oklahoma. The association has 29 livestock theft investigators. Three work exclusively in Oklahoma and four work in Oklahoma and Texas, Gray said.

Joe Rector, a field inspector and Oklahoma supervisor, said he's recovered more than $1.2 million worth of livestock this year. He works 15 counties in central Oklahoma.

Eight cattle valued at $4,000 were stolen last year from Gary Hajek's ranch near Hennessey. Rector tracked the cattle to an El Reno sales barn. Hajek said he wouldn't have found them without Rector's help.

"It's pretty wild country out here," Hajek said. "You just don't keep good track of them. They are more like wild animals."

A weak economy has spurred theft, Gray said. Drug users, Gray said, have realized they can make a quick buck off high-priced livestock: they can load $20,000 worth of cattle into a trailer in about half an hour.

Derrell Peel, a state marketing specialist, said cattle prices have increased up to 10 cents a pound from last year. So a 1,300-pound steer that brought $1,000 last year might bring $1,130 this year.

The best way to prevent a theft is to brand cattle, Gray said. He said 65 to 70 percent of stolen branded cattle are recovered. That number dips to 35 percent when not branded.

Child

Officers found the child after an anonymous caller to Pampa emergency services said the child had been living alone at the house.

The boy admitted officers inside the home, which was filled with debris, animal feces and urine, and dirty clothing, according to a PPD news release.

"There was little furniture in the house, trash was heaped in the kitchen and living room, and dirty clothes were strewn about the bedroom floors. There were several pets at the residence that were covered with fleas. Throughout the house also, feces, urine and vomit from the pets was discovered on the beds, furniture and floors," according to the police department release.

The pets included at least two cats, a Chihuahua, a guinea pig and a turtle, all of which were removed to Pampa Animal Shelter at the time police visited the home.

The boy was taken into custody by Child Protective Services caseworkers, and as of press time today remains in CPS' temporary managing conservatorship.

Information gathered by police indicated that the boy had been living alone at the house for one to two months. Stevens would bring food to him once or twice a week, according to the PPD news release.

Two adult sisters of the boy were also aware of the situation, and one had taken him to register for school, according to the release.

"The boy did not know where his mother was living, and had lost the phone number she had given him. Officers believed he had last seen relatives on Thursday, Aug. 12," said Chief Trevlyn Pitner in the release.

The boy's mental competency was in question at the time of the incident, said then-31st District Attorney Rick Roach when the incident occurred.

CPS caseworker Nita Mize and Larry Davis, whom Stevens said she was living with at the time of the Aug. 13, 2004 report to police, both testified in custody hearings that the boy is a "special needs" child.

A final hearing on custody of the child is scheduled for 9 a.m. Dec. 7 in Judge Phil Vanderpool's court.

Election Day is finally here ...

Election Day is here. Voters statewide are voting on nine proposed state constitutional amendments. The one drawing the most attention may be the amendment co-authored by our own state representative, Warren Chisum.

The proposed amendment states that a marriage shall be made up only of one man and one woman. Any other combination of people would not be recognized as a marriage.

Pampa voters have the added opportunity to vote on whether to form a new economic development corporation.

There has been much debate on the EDC issue. On the one hand, Pampans remember what they feel went wrong with the last EDC, prompting its demise by voters.

On the other hand, it is argued that Pampa will not survive, grow and prosper without an EDC to attract businesses to town.

Local early voting totals in both elections have been described as heavy. That's good.

More voters means a more realistic representation of what a majority of residents wish.

When only a small percentage of voters cast their ballots, the true picture may not emerge and the true opinions of the majority of residents may not win the day.

Those in favor of an EDC point out that in cities which have EDCs, new businesses are being established and those cities are growing. It seems that if a city doesn't woo a company or business by offering all sorts of tidbits through an EDC, that company will go instead to a place that does offer such things.

They seem to be having difficulty trusting local elected representatives, and they say they don't want to pay for another fiasco.

The most obvious comments concerning the proposed constitution which defines marriage may be the yard signs around town which indicate that one man plus one woman equals one marriage.

Others have added their own comment to these signs. A number of them have been spray-painted in red. I hope that whichever way each election turns out, everyone can move on without lingering bitterness and confrontation. Some people seem to enjoy and even thrive on confrontation. It has its uses, but it can also be counterproductive and harmful.

Let us all agree that, whatever the final vote totals are after 7 p.m. today, we realize that those casting their votes have spoken, and the majority rules.

If we are registered voters and went to the polls ourselves, we can say that we did our duty and had our say.

If we did not bother to go to the polls, we shouldn't say anything at all.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 8, the 312th day of 2005. There are 53 days left in the year. This is Election Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 8, 1923, Adolf Hitler launched his first attempt at seizing power with a failed coup in Munich, Germany, the "Beer-Hall Putsch."

On this date:

In 1837, Mount Holyoke Seminary, a college exclusively for women, opened in South Hadley, Mass.

In 1889, Montana became the 41st state.

In 1932, New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated incumbent Herbert Hoover for the presidency.

In 1933, President Roosevelt created the Civil Works Administration, designed to create jobs for more than four million unemployed.

In 1942, Operation "Torch" began during World War II as U.S. and British forces landed in French North Africa.

In 1960, Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy defeated Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the presidency.

In 1965, the soap opera "Days of Our Lives" premiered on NBC.

In 1966, Ronald Reagan was elected governor of California.

In 1988, Vice President George Bush won the presidential election, defeating Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

In 1994, midterm elections resulted in Republicans winning a majority in the Senate while at the same time gaining control of the House for the first time in 40 years.

Ten years ago: Retired General Colin Powell embraced the Republican Party, but said he would not run for president or any other political office in 1996 because it was "a calling that I do not yet hear."

Five years ago: A statewide recount began in Florida, which emerged as critical in deciding the winner of the 2000 presidential election. Early that day, Vice President Al Gore telephoned Texas Gov. George W. Bush to concede, but called back about an hour later to retract his concession. Waco special counsel John C. Danforth released his final report absolving the government of wrongdoing in the 1993 siege at the Branch Davidian compound in Texas.

One year ago: Thousands of U.S. troops attacked the toughest strongholds of Sunni insurgents in Fallujah, Iraq, launching a long-awaited offensive aimed at putting an end to guerrilla control of the city. The U.S. dollar was eliminated from circulation in Cuba. Jason Bay became the first Pittsburgh Pirates player to win the National League Rookie of the Year award, while Oakland shortstop Bobby Crosby took the American League honor.

'What is politics but persuading the public to vote for this and support that and endure these for the promise of those?'

Do we really care about nation's future?

I cringe with disgust when I hear politicians say, "We're doing it for the children." What's worse is so many Americans mindlessly fall hook, line and sinker for the hype. Judging by our actions, Americans could not care less for future generations, and future generations will curse us for it. Let's look at it.

According to several respected authorities, including the Concord Coalition (co-chaired by former Sens. Warren Rudman and Robert Kerrey), the Congressional Budget Office, U.S. Treasury Secretary John Snow, and the Social Security Administration, the estimated present value of the unfunded liability of Social Security and Medicare ranges between $61 trillion and $75 trillion dollars.

"Williams," you ask, what's this present value business?" Simply put, between $61 trillion and $75 trillion dollars is the money that would have to be put aside right now, at current interest rates, in order to meet future obligations of Social Security and Medicare.

To put an astronomical sum like $61 trillion or $75 trillion in a bit of perspective: The value of our entire national output of goods and services (GDP) in 2004 was only $12 trillion.

Congress can't put aside $75 trillion as reserves against future liabilities of Social Security and Medicare. Therefore, according to the Dallas, Texas-based National Center for Policy Analysis (NCPA), the annual rate of Social Security unfunded liabilities is growing at a $667 billion clip and Medicare's at $4 trillion.

What does all this mean?

It means little in pocket book terms to today's Americans who are 65 years or older. They will collect their Social Security checks and their promised Medicare benefits, but not so for future generations. Here's that future according to House Ways and Means Committee testimony, given by Dr. John Goodman, president of the NCPA (May 2005). "In 2020, combined Social Security and Medicare deficits will equal almost 29 percent of federal income taxes. At that point the federal government will have to stop doing almost a third of what it does today. By 2030, about the midpoint of the baby boomer retirement years, federal guarantees to Social Security and Medicare will require one in every two income tax dollars. By 2050, they will require three in every four." And by 2070, Social Security and Medicare will consume all federal revenues.

There are some "optimists" who seek to minimize the pending disaster that will be caused by these and other federal unfunded liabilities. They argue that the federal government can always meet its obligations through its power to tax. According to some estimates, by 2030,

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ Oct. 31
Austin American-Statesman on continued FEMA follies:

It is just mind-boggling that a bureaucratic snafu has blocked access to federal records that might help Texas law enforcement authorities identify which convicted sex offenders and unsupervised parolees from Louisiana have found refuge here after Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

The state of Texas has asked the Federal Emergency Management Agency for access to its database of evacuees. FEMA refuses, saying Texas has to tell it exactly who it's looking for. Steve McCraw, director of Texas homeland security, said late last week that some Louisiana sex offender names were provided to FEMA on Oct. 16, but no results were available yet. And, McCraw said, it would be much more efficient if the state could simply run various crime databases against the FEMA list.

The bottom line is that there is almost certainly hundreds of convicted sex offenders and unsupervised parolees from Louisiana in Texas, and law enforcement officers here have little idea of who they are or where, although it's been two months since Katrina swept through.

FEMA is right to worry about privacy laws, but there's something wrong with an agency that apparently sees little difference between law enforcement agencies and a mail-order business. As state officials have noted, given the state of emergency declared by the president, there must be a legal way that law enforcement can get access to the names of criminal evacuees while protecting the privacy of all the others. Texas officials are justified in their anger and frustration over this problem.

Gov. Rick Perry led the way in welcoming hundreds of thousands of Louisiana evacuees to Texas, and an estimated 395,000 are still here. FEMA ought to go out of its way to help the state find out which of those evacuees might threaten their hosts. The hurri-

France declares state of emergency in wake of riots

PARIS (AP) — President Jacques Chirac declared a state of emergency today, paving the way for curfews to be imposed on riot-hit cities and towns in an extraordinary measure to halt France's worst civil unrest in decades after 12 nights of violence.

Police said overnight unrest was still widespread and destructive but not as violent as previous nights.

"The intensity of this violence is on the way down," National Police Chief Michel Gaudin said, citing fewer attacks on public buildings and fewer direct clashes between youths and police. He said rioting was reported in 226 towns across France, compared with nearly 300 the night before.

The state-of-emergency decree allows

The mayhem sweeping the neglected and impoverished neighborhoods with large African and Arab communities is forcing France to confront anger building for decades among residents who complain of discrimination and unemployment.

curfews where needed and will become effective at midnight Tuesday, with an initial 12-day limit. Police who have been massively reinforced as the violence has fanned out from its initial flash point in Paris' northeastern suburbs were expected to enforce the curfews. The army has not been called in.

The mayhem sweeping the neglected and impoverished neighborhoods with large

African and Arab communities is forcing France to confront anger building for decades among residents who complain of discrimination and unemployment. Although many of the French-born children of Arab and black African immigrants are Muslim, police say the violence is not being driven by Islamic groups.

Vandals burned 1,173 cars overnight, compared with 1,408 vehicles Sunday-Monday, police said. A total of 330 people were arrested, down from 395 the night before.

Local officials "will be able to impose curfews on the areas where this decision applies," Chirac said at a Cabinet meeting. "It is necessary to accelerate the return to calm."

The recourse to a 1955 state-of-emergency law that dates back to France's war in Algeria was a measure both of the gravity of mayhem that has spread to hundreds of French towns and cities and of the determination of Chirac's sorely tested government to quash it.

Networks to offer replays of prime-time shows for 99 cents

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS and NBC have announced deals to offer replays of prime-time programs for 99 cents per episode, shifting television toward a sales model that gained popularity with downloaded music.

CBS is teaming up with Comcast Corp. and NBC with satellite operator DirecTV to offer the on-demand replays.

NBC Universal will offer commercial-free episodes of "Law & Order: SVU" and other shows to subscribers of DirecTV Group Inc. who use the satellite company's new digital video recorder.

Comcast's on-demand customers in some markets will be able to view "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," "NCIS," "Survivor" and "The Amazing Race" at their convenience.

Terms of the deals, which were announced Monday, were not disclosed.

"This is an incredibly exciting evolution for CBS and network television — video on demand is the next frontier for our industry,"

CBS Chairman Leslie Moonves said of the deal with Philadelphia-based Comcast, the nation's largest cable systems operator.

CBS, which is owned by Viacom Inc., announced last week it would stream episodes of its show "Threshold" over CBS.com.

Future

Social Security and Medicare obligations alone will require a 50 percent increase in payroll taxes. If tax increases are off the table, 2030 will see a 30 percent reduction in promised Social Security benefits and stringent rationing of health care services promised by Medicare. There's another "solution." Even though Congress can't increase our life-expectancy, they can raise the age of Social Security and Medicare eligibility. Were Congress to make 80 as the age for Social Security and Medicare eligibility, they'd solve the problem because most of us would be dead.

Let's look at the raw politics of the Social Security/Medicare situation. Few, if any, of our 535 congressmen will be around in 2030 and later when the real crunch comes, but they are subject to today's, not tomorrow's, political pressures. Similarly, few of today's Americans 65 years of age and older will be around. Other than mouthing a concern for future generations, both have little economic incentive to be concerned about what happens in 2030. After all, what do they have at stake?

In 2030, will young people in the labor force be willing to see themselves taxed at Social Security rates of 20, 30 and 40 percent to take care of some old people? I don't think that will politically fly, and they might begin to get ideas about euthanasia. In addition to economic strife, Social Security and Medicare are laying the groundwork for intergenerational conflict. Unfortunately, the politics of today don't give us room to prevent these twin disasters.

Folly

It was spotlighted again this week when it was learned that FEMA has extended for another 30 days the employment of Michael Brown, its former director who resigned in disgrace on Sept. 12 because of withering national criticism of his and his agency's work after Katrina.

Officials of the Department of Homeland Security, which oversees FEMA, say Brown is needed to advise the department on his experience with Katrina, but that he has no management authority or responsibility. Not many people are so paid well as Brown ($148,000 a year) to explain in detail how what went wrong on his watch was somebody else's fault.

Five steps to better hearing

The very first step to better hearing is admitting you have a hearing problem – and that's probably the most difficult. Perhaps that's because hearing loss typically occurs gradually.

"Most people don't realize that every day, in some way, they probably damage their hearing," says Shirley Moore, hearing specialist and owner of High Plains Hearing Aid Center.

Moore knows that it is still difficult for most people to admit they have a hearing problem, but even former President Clinton was fitted for hearing aids.

"There is absolutely nothing to be ashamed of," Moore says.

Hearing impairment affects approximately 10 percent of the population. Although people of all ages can be affected by a hearing loss, the majority of people with impaired hearing are over 60-years-old and their hearing loss is related to the aging process. Because the deterioration of hearing ability typically is not painful, often it is not taken seriously.

But once you've accepted that you have hearing loss, it is time to take it seriously and make a personal choice to seek help with a good attitude. That good attitude about going through the process to improve your hearing must be yours – not that of your spouse, son or daughter.

"We offer a free hearing assessment in a friendly, no-pressure environment, so avoiding a visit is much worse than actually coming in," Moore says.

The third step to better hearing is personal education – learn all you can about your hearing problem. The highly trained and certified staff at High Plains Hearing Aid Center can explain the different types of hearing loss: conductive, sensorineural, and mixed hearing loss.

They can also work with you to determine what type of hearing loss you have and assist you in choosing the Assistive Listening device which best meets your needs.

Fourth, it's important to set realistic expectations. Once fitted with the right hearing aid, you should notice results within minutes, but it may take several months to completely realize the benefits of your new hearing instruments. Hearing tends to deteriorate gradually over time, so when sounds are reintroduced to the brain in a 30-minute fitting session, it can be overwhelming.

Finally, practice, time and patience are your keys to success. You will need to wear your hearing aid consistently and follow the advice of your hearing professional. Also, should you have any questions or just become frustrated, it's essential that you call your hearing professional for help – and High Plains Hearing Aid Center makes it easy.

"We offer service, availability, price, qualifications, professionalism, kindness and compassion," Moore says.

To learn more or to schedule an appointment, call High Plains Hearing Aid Center at 665-6246 or visit them at 100 N. Cuyler, Suite 103.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DRIVER'S LOSS OF CONSCIOUSNESS REQUIRES PASSENGER RESPONSE DEAR READERS: A reader asked what a passenger should do, and in what order, if the driver of a car loses consciousness at the wheel. I contacted the California Highway Patrol (CHP) and was told: Lean the driver back, grab the steering wheel, hit the turn signal, keep your seatbelt fastened and begin merging into the lane(s) to the right, remove the driver's foot from the accelerator, and bring the vehicle to a stop on the shoulder. Then use a cell phone to call 911. (To which I added, while doing all of the above, it couldn't hurt to start praying.) Half a dozen people wrote to say that they'd had this experience, and mail arrived from all over the United States informing me that the CHP's advice left something to be desired:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I decided we'd try the CHP's suggestions on our way to church. Here's what we learned: It was almost impossible to pull my husband's foot off the gas pedal. I had to grab his pant leg while trying to watch the road -- not an easy task! Also, if the car has a console -- ours does -- the passenger can't reach the brake. (Perhaps downshifting would work better?) -- CONNIE AND TERRY, COEUR D'ALENE, IDAHO

DEAR ABBY: The passenger should be shown or reminded in advance where the cruise control switch or button is, so she can turn it off if it has been activated. -- NANCY IN ERIE, PA.

DEAR ABBY: The first thing the passenger should do is put the transmission into neutral to slow the vehicle, regardless of whether or not the driver's foot is on the accelerator. -- ARCHIE T., VALLEJO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: This happened to my husband and me. When it happens, it happens very quickly. I grabbed the wheel with my left hand and, as we started crossing into oncoming traffic, tried to avoid hitting anyone. Foremost in anyone's mind in that situation should be to get the driver's foot off the gas. To heck with the turn signal! This happens more than people realize. The year before the accident, my husband's car was totaled because the driver of an oncoming car passed out, crossed the line and hit him. -- GLAD TO BE ALIVE, CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: My diabetic husband had low blood sugar while driving on a five-lane highway. I was later told that had I used my emergency flasher, someone with a cell phone would have called the police and they would have assisted me in getting off the highway. At the time I didn't even know we HAD a flasher. Now I know -- and my husband eats something before we get into heavy traffic. -- ELLA IN WALDON, N.Y.

DEAR READERS: Needless to say, after reading the above letters, I contacted the National Highway Safety Commission in Washington, D.C. In a nutshell, here's what they told me:

"While your advice was accurate, we're more concerned about the reason behind the question, and the message that it's safe to drive with occasional loss of consciousness as long as one has a co-pilot. Relying on another person in a vehicle to take control is neither responsible nor safe."

"If a person experiences loss of consciousness for any reason, they need to stop driving until they are treated by a doctor who gives them permission to resume driving. This means they'll have to find another means of transportation, at least temporarily. Families have a role to play. If they are aware of the risk, they need to tell the state licensing agency and the doctor."

Pirates CC team has solid showing at UIL Regionals

Eight Lefors High school students competed at the UIL Regional Cross Country meet held at Mae Simmons park in Lubbock Saturday.

The LHS girls team qualified for the regional meet by winning the District 1-A meet Oct. 24 in Amarillo. At the regional meet, the girls placed ninth in a field of 23 teams — 174 individual runners.

In the boys division, Gabriel Miller place 90th in a field of 149 runners. Miller's time for the 3-mile race was 21:04. Miller qualified for Regionals by placing seventh at Districts.

Lady Harvesters open season tonight

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

The 2005-2006 Lady Harvesters basketball season starts tonight when Pampa hosts Amarillo High in The Pit. The JV game will tip-off at 6 p.m., followed by the varsity game at 7:30 p.m.

Head Coach Troy Fry took his team into the playoffs for the first time in more than a decade last season, and no doubt expects to to the same this season. Fry and his team will be put to the test right out of the gate. In addition to tonight's game, Pampa will be on the road Thursday through Saturday to compete in the Frenship Tournament. The team will then take on the Lady Sandies again Tuesday in Amarillo.

The Lady Harvesters will not be home again until Nov. 22 when they will host Borger.

Playoff tickets on sale now

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

Playoff tickets for Saturday's bidistrict game between Pampa and Big Spring are on sale now at the PHS Athletic Office.

According to Athletic Director Dick Dunham, pre-game tickets will cost $3 for students, $5 for adults. All tickets purchased at the gate will be $7.

The Harvesters (5-5, 4-1) will face the Steers (3-7) 3 p.m. Saturday at Lubbock's Lowrey Field.

Manning finally wins vs. Pats

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. (AP) — The question of when Peyton Manning would win his first road game against the New England Patriots has been answered. Now, he and his Indianapolis Colts face a more pleasant one:

When — if ever — will they lose their first game this season?

It didn't happen against the two-time defending Super Bowl champs Monday night when the Colts dominated in a 40-21 victory. Manning threw three touchdown passes, Marvin Harrison and Reggie Wayne each had more than 100 yards receiving and Edgerrin James gained 104 yards on 34 carries.

So Manning is 1-7 in Foxborough, the Colts are 8-0 this season and Miami's status as the last team to have an unbeaten season, 17-0 in 1972, remains in jeopardy.

CANYON - After not having any Lone Star Conference South Division Defensive Player of the Week Awards since 2000, the Conference Champion-West Texas A&M University football team picked up its third such award this season Monday as Max Steward received the award for the second time this season.

Steward, a 6-1, 220-pound junior LB from Visalia, Calif., registered 13 tackles (7 solo, 6 assists), including 3 tackles for loss, one being a sack, in WTAMU's 30-26 come-from-behind win over Tarleton State University Saturday night at Stephenville.

Steward now has 64 tackles (31 solo, 33 assists), including 8 TFLs, three sacks, one interception, four pass break-ups and three forced fumbles, which rank tied for third in the LSC and tied for 49th in NCAA-II. Steward ranks 39th in the conference in tackles with 5.8 per game.

The win gives WTAMU its first LSC title since 1986 and is the Buffaloes' first 10-win season since 1950. WTAMU is the No. 1 seed in the NCAA-II Southwest Regional Playoffs, marking the Buffaloes' first-ever playoff appearance.

WTAMU is now 10-1 overall and 9-1 in the LSC, winning the conference title outright, as well as the LSC South crown with a 5-1 division record after being picked last in the LSC South Preseason Poll.

This was Steward's second award this season and the Buffaloes have now collected nine of the weekly Conference honors, compared to five in the previous four seasons combined (one last year, three in 2003, one in '02, none in '01).

WTAMU is the No. 1 seed for the NCAA-II Southwest Region Playoffs, as the playoff field was announced Sunday by the NCAA.

The win was WTAMU's fifth win by eight points or less and sixth game overall. In their first-ever NCAA-II Playoff appearance, the Buffaloes will host a second-round contest on Nov. 19 at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium against the winner of fourth-seed University of Nebraska-Kearney and fifth-seed Pittsburg State University who play Saturday.

Tickets went on sale Monday. Season-ticket holders have until 5 p.m. Friday to claim their respective seat. There will be a limited number of reserved seats available to the general public for $15. General admission tickets are $10 for adults, including senior citizens, as no senior citizen discount will be valid, as mandated by the NCAA. Students are $3. No discounts, passes or complimentary tickets of any type will be available, also as mandated by the NCAA. The NCAA also does not allow any noise-makers of any kind at Championship events.

For ticket information, contact the WTAMU Athletics Ticket Office at 806-651-4424.

Eagles suspend outspoken receiver Owens for rest of season

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terrell Owens can take his touchdowns and dance somewhere else.

The tempestuous star receiver won't return to the Philadelphia Eagles this season — or probably ever — "a result of a large number of situations that accumulated over a long period of time," coach Andy Reid said Monday.

Owens was suspended for Sunday night's 17-10 loss at Washington, and will remain suspended for three more games without pay. After that, the Eagles plan to deactivate him for the rest of the season.

Reid said the outspoken player "had been warned repeatedly about the consequences of his actions."

"We gave Terrell every opportunity to avoid this outcome," he said.

Owens was suspended Saturday, two days after he said the Eagles showed "a lack of class" for not publicly recognizing his 100th career touchdown catch in a game on Oct. 23. In the same interview with ESPN.com on Thursday, Owens said the Eagles would be better off with Green Bay's Brett Favre at quarterback instead of Donovan McNabb.

Owens also was involved in a fight last week with former Eagles defensive end Hugh Douglas, who remains with the team as its "ambassador." Owens apologized for his comments about the organization in a brief statement on Friday, but he didn't apologize to McNabb or the team.

"The league has been notified by the players' union that they will be grieving our right to take that action," Reid said, "therefore there is nothing more that I can say at this point."

This Week: Lewis & Clark

Eyes of the Explorer!

Prairie dogs, grizzly bears, coyotes and pronghorn antelopes are all animals that Lewis and Clark had not seen before. President Jefferson asked that detailed descriptions of these animals be written for people back east.

To be an explorer, you need to look carefully at new things and record detailed observations so you can tell people back home what you saw. Read William Clark's description and see if you can guess what animal he is describing. Then cut out the squares below and reassemble them to reveal the answer.

"Near the foot of this high Nole we discovered a Village of an annamale the french Call the _____ french Call the _____ which burrow in the grown [ground]. ... The Village of those little _____ is under the ground a considerable distance we dig under 6 feet thro rich hard clay without getting to their Lodges ... their mouth resemble the rabbit, head longer, legs short, & toe nails long ther tail like a g[round] Squirrel which they Shake and make chattering noise ther eyes like a dog, their colour is Gray and Skin contains soft fur."

- William Clark Sept. 7, 1804

THE Lewis and Clark Expedition

Around two hundred years ago, a party of nearly 50 men and a dog set out on a journey. They had been asked by President Thomas Jefferson to explore North America. The expedition was led by Captains Meriwether Lewis and William Clark. They were given the task of taking detailed notes on everything they saw.

Communication Challenge

As Lewis and Clark crossed North America, they met different groups of people that spoke many different languages. Lewis and Clark and the people they met tried different ways to communicate. Besides using gestures, the parties involved also brought along translators, people who spoke more than one language.

Help Meriwether Lewis ask Cameahwait, who speaks only Shoshone, for horses. See if you can put the people in the correct order to communicate the message.

Communication challenge activity featuring portraits and descriptions of six individuals: Captain Lewis (English only), Sacagawea (Hidatsa and Shoshone), Charbonneau (Hidatsa and French), Francois Labiche (French, English, and several Indian languages), and Cameahwait (Shoshone). Includes an 'Extra! Extra! Observation Game' with instructions to underline facts and opinions in a text.

Standards Link: Mathematical Reasoning: Analyze problems by sequencing and prioritizing.

Reaching the Pacific

Lewis and Clark traveled through territory that would later become individual states. Unscramble the names of the 11 states they crossed. Then color each of those states green on the map.

We are now in plain view of the Pacific Ocean. The waves rolling, & the surf roaring very loud. on the opposite shore to us we discovered, the Tops of trees which we supposed to be on an Island laying a very great distance in the Ocean. We are now of opinion that we cannot go any further with our Canoes, & think that we are at an end of our Voyage to the Pacific Ocean, and as soon as discoveries necessary are made, that we shall return a short distance up the River & provide our Selves with Winter Quarters, & We suppose that we shall find a considerable Quantity of Game low down on the River.

- William Clark Nov. 16, 1805

Note: The text from Clark's notebook uses the same spelling and punctuation as the original journal entries.

Food Confusion

Sharing food was a way to communicate friendship. But sometimes the communication was confusing. Here is a story told by the Salish Indians.

"When the dried meat was brought to the men, they just looked at it and put it back. It was really good to eat, but they seemed to think it was [symbols] or [symbols]."

Use the code to find out what the Lewis and Clark expedition members thought the dried meat was.

HISTORY MYSTERY

Are you good at solving mysteries? Read the Corn Mill Mystery and write down what you think happened. Then, read the answer below to see if you were correct.

Corn Mill Mystery

President Jefferson suggested that Lewis take iron corn mills to trade with the Indians. The mills made grinding corn less work than it was with mortars and pestles.

On October 29, 1804, several members of the expedition wrote that Captain Lewis gave the Mandan chiefs one of the corn mills. Clark wrote that the mill was "very thankfully received." However, almost two years later, a fur trader passing through the Mandan villages wrote in his journal that he "saw the remains of an excellent large corn mill which the foolish fellows had demolished to barb their arrows."

What do you think happened?

AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different. 11-8 CRYPTOQUOTE NLT MCRRP EVT MREITP JLTVT KCZ PNEAG XA RXAT UCV E ILEAIT NC GTIXGT JLC JXRR PMTAG KCZV QCATK - PCZVIT CSPIZVT Yesterday's Cryptoquote: TO MAKE YOUR CHILDREN CAPABLE OF HONESTY IS THE BEGINNING OF EDUCATION. — JOHN RUSKIN

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Nov. 9, 2005: You might revise your thinking about your finances. You also have a greater potential to make more money because of your creativity and imagination. You might take a course in accounting or financial planning, which could open doors for you. Avoid risks that could cause a big problem if they fall through. You are lucky this year, start this new 11-year luck cycle well. If you are single, romance will be exciting, although you will either choose someone very unusual or find that the bond is not stable. If you are attached, add that old spice to your relationship. Indulge your sweetie. PISCES adds to the moment. The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult. ARIES (March 21-April 19)  If you approach a wild situation differently, you are likely to get a different response. Break out of the mold and past your normal thinking, and you'll finally find agreement and solutions. Slow down as the day gets older. Tonight: You need some downtime. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  You are in the limelight, and others seem to respond to your ideas. In fact, someone is finally going to revise his or her thinking so he or she can understand where you are coming from. Now you might be able to move on a project. Tonight: Join friends. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Others finally adapt, relax and can open their eyes. You will see life much differently as a result, and so will those you deal with. Open up to possibilities. You might need to take a stronger position than usual. Tonight: A force to be dealt with. CANCER (June 21-July 22)  You need to work with others more and bend in their direction. You will find that a different approach will work much better, especially if you are working with a team player. Step back and think before making any strong decisions. Tonight: Rent a movie or relax to music. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Others respond to your creative ideas. You can be an enormous source of solutions, humor and perspective. You are quite capable of turning situations around. Use this skill. Touch base with others. Tonight: Get together with a dear friend. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Your ability to get through hassles and still get the job done makes a big difference. Others admire your persistence and ability to adapt. Anything could be possible. Think positively. A change in attitude could affect everything. Tonight: Accept an invitation out. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Your ability to verbalize the same concept in many different ways could make all the difference. You'll get your message across. Be ready to put in extra time in order to make an idea a reality. Tonight: Get into a new project. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  You have a way of stating issues that others might not be able to grasp. Learn to be more precise in your communications. Learn to get past power plays, though you don't necessarily have to change your mind. Tonight: Enjoy the evening. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  You will find that a new openness on your part allows life to feel renewed. You have a lot going on, but you make headway because of your attitude. Your sixth sense will guide you. Tonight: A lazy night. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  If you revise your thinking, you will see life differently. Open up to a new beginning. You might need to employ a more creative touch with your financial patterns.
