Annual mud bog scheduled Saturday at Recreation Park

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

It's time to once again sling mud in Pampa -- literally.

The third annual Mud Bog, sponsored by High Plains Off Road, is Saturday at Recreation Park.

Tech checks and registration for contestants begins at 7 a.m. and continues until 9:30 a.m. The event begins at 10 a.m.

"The pit will be a little different. It might be a little faster this year," said Jeremiah Montgomery, one of the event's organizers.

There are nine categories for entries. They are: ATVs/four-wheelers; two-wheel drive vehicles; stock to 31" tire four-wheel drives; 32" to 34" stock 4WD; 32" to 34" modified 4WD; 35" to 37" stock 4WD; 35" to 37" modified 4WD; 38" to 44" 4WD; and extreme.

Only the first 15 entries in the ATV/four-wheeler class will be accepted, Montgomery said.

Entry fees are $20 per class. Proceeds go toward a scholarship. Daniel Gatlin, the most recent recipient, was awarded a $1,500 scholarship.

"Last year, this was the second largest mud bog in the entire Panhandle as far south as Vernon," Montgomery said. Last year's bog drew 92 entrants and at least 2,000 spectators at any one time throughout the day. Attendees came from as far away as Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado and south Texas.

A number of prize giveaways will be held for contestants. The largest prize will be a Chevy long block 350 engine provided by Raymond Douglas.

The pit will not be the only difference this year. Spectators will not be allowed on the west side of the pit, Montgomery said.

For more information on this year's bog, call Montgomery at 664-1906; Jeremy Hill at 662-7671; or Brandon Helms at 584-2180.

Terry Pillars of Amarillo created excitement at last year's Mud Bog when his extreme entry, "Terrybly Wild," made it through the pit and continued to the barricades before stopping. Pillars was one of 92 entrants at the event. This year's Mud Bog begins at 10 a.m. Saturday at Recreation Park.

Roach hearing postponed again

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

A court hearing concerning two motions filed in connection with state charges pending against former 31st District Attorney Rick Roach, which was scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday in Gray County Courthouse, has been postponed until the week of June 26, according to Jan Lewis, court administrator for 84th District Judge William D. Smith, who will hear the state's cases against Roach.

The hearing which was to have been held Monday had already been rescheduled from May 5 due to a scheduling conflict with another case being heard at that time by Smith.

The reason for the current change of schedule is "a scheduling conflict beyond the control of the Court," according to a letter from Lewis dated Thursday afternoon.

The June 26 hearing will be in the second-floor courtroom of the courthouse. It will concern a motion to disqualify Attorney Pro Tem David Scott and a motion for appointment of assistant district attorney, according to a letter filed in the district clerk's office on April 19.

Other pre-trial hearings in the case are scheduled for May 17 in Gray County

National police week observance starts today

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

Today marks the beginning of National Police Week, May 14 through 20.

Pampa Police Chief Trevlyn Pitner told the city commission Tuesday that he would like to recognize the Pampa Police Department, Gray County law enforcement people and the Texas Department of Public Safety for the work they do on a daily basis.

"Back in April, we had 911 Telecommunicators Week," Pitner said.

He said the proclamation from the governor's office didn't arrive in Pampa until the end of the week.

"We just wanted to recognize the men and women that serve in dispatch centers everywhere, not just Pampa PD," Pitner said. "That's where all the calls come in and they catch it there before we catch it on the street."

Pitner praised the dispatchers.

"They have a lot of control and power in those positions to guard the officers and firefighters and EMS people on the street," Pitner said. "We rely on them so much. More than anyone knows."

County to discuss fireworks resolution

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Fireworks of various sorts will play a part in Monday's county commission meeting, which begins at 9 a.m. in the second-floor courtroom of Gray County Courthouse.

A resolution concerning the use of fireworks will be debated. The resolution, which will concern fireworks sales and use including during the Independence Day holiday, was sparked by dry weather conditions and high wildfire danger.

Commissioners will vote on whether to continue the burn ban currently in place for the county. The ban was instituted Jan. 3 and prohibits all outdoor burning anywhere in the county.

Three other items on Monday's agenda are also connected to the March and April wildfires.

Item No. 9 is to "consider any additional help that the County can legally provide to ranchers and farmers regarding the wildfire disaster."

About half a dozen local ranchers who suffered losses in the wildfires met with County Judge Richard Peet last Tuesday concerning emergency relief.

Gray County has received about $12,000, which is to

Moussaoui begins serving sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Sept. 11 conspirator Zacarias Moussaoui on Saturday began serving his life sentence at the nation's most secure prison after U.S. marshals flew him overnight from Virginia to Colorado.

Marshals brought Moussaoui early Saturday to the Supermax federal prison in southern Colorado, where he will spend 23 hours a day in his cell and have little to no contact with other notorious criminals.

"He has now begun serving his sentence of life without the possibility of release," the U.S. Marshals Service said in a statement.

A special team of deputy marshals took Moussaoui from a detention center in Alexandria, Va., late Friday night, put him on a small jet operated by the agency and delivered him to the prison in Florence, Colo., about 90 miles southwest of Denver.

Moussaoui was the only prisoner aboard, said Ken Deal, chief deputy U.S. marshal in Denver. Deal said he did not know if the 37-year-old Frenchman made any statements during the transfer.

"He is secure in the administrative max (prison) in Florence, Colorado," Deal said. "All the inmates transferred there are handled with the highest level of security."

Moussaoui arrived at 5:17 a.m. EDT, the Federal Bureau of Prisons said in a statement.

The transfer came got under way on the same day that Moussaoui's court-appointed lawyers appealed his life sentence and the denial of his request for a new trial.

In a one-paragraph notice of appeal, the lawyers said Moussaoui wanted the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to review the final judgment and sentence he received May 4 and Judge Leonie Brinkema's May 8 denial of his request to withdraw his guilty plea and go to trial on the original charges.

The $60 million Supermax, formally called Administrative Maximum, was built in 1995 in a town of 3,600 people. The triangular, two-story prison was designed for inmates once held at the U.S. Penitentiary in Marion, Ill., which had replaced Alcatraz when it closed in 1963.

'He is secure in the administrative max (prison) in Florence, Colorado. All the inmates transferred there are handled with the highest level of security.'

Film distributor in hot water

BERLIN (AP) — A film about communist East Germany's all-pervasive Stasi secret police was awarded the German Film Prize in the best film category, while its director and star won in their categories as well.

"Das Leben der Anderen (The Life of Others)" was director Florian von Donnersmarck's debut feature film; he took best director for it, and star Ulrich Muehe was named best actor for his performance as a loyal Stasi officer who keeps surveillance on a leading playwright and increasingly begins to doubt his beliefs.

The movie topped other nominees for best film Friday at the awards, including "Paradise Now," this year's foreign language Oscar nominee, and "Requiem," a tale of exorcism in 1970s West Germany.

Last year, the top award went to "Alles auf Zucker (Go for Zucker)," a lighthearted look at contemporary German Jews and lingering differences between west Germans and those from the former communist East Germany.

NEW YORK (AP) — A film distributor has been indicted on charges of using the names of celebrities, including John Travolta and Jodie Foster, to defraud at least 22 investors of nearly $4 million.

Alexis Quinlin, 56, of Manhattan, is accused of soliciting investors to finance transactions in which he claimed his company, Offline Releasing, would buy DVDs and flat-screen TVs and resell them in Europe at a profit, the Manhattan district attorney's office said.

The sales never occurred, the district attorney's office said, but Quinlin used his company and phony contracts with the forged signatures of celebrities to generate cash so he could pay off some early investors.

Quinlin pleaded not guilty at his arraignment Thursday in state Supreme Court on charges of second-degree grand larceny, scheme to defraud, forgery, criminal impersonation and criminal possession of a forged instrument.

Justice Michael Ambrecht set $100,000 bond and ordered Quinlin to return to court next month.

Quinlin, also known as Quinlan, ran his scheme from January 1999 into April 2006, prosecutors said.

He had bogus contracts claiming that Virgin Atlantic Airways founder Richard Branson, French actor Daniel Auteuil, Travolta and Foster had invested, and also posed as French fashion photographer Jean-Baptiste Mondrian, according to prosecutors.

His victims included lawyers, businessmen, a teacher, a model and a personal trainer, the district attorney's office said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charlie Sheen and Denise Richards agreed to extend a temporary restraining order requiring the actor to stay away from his estranged wife.

A judge issued the order in April after the 35-year-old actress alleged in court papers that Sheen pushed, shoved and threatened her and her parents.

Sheen, 40, has denied the allegations.

On Friday, the restraining order was extended to July 13 so a psychologist can evaluate and make a determination regarding a custody arrangement for their two young daughters, Sheen's publicist Stan Rosenfield said.

Justice Michael Ambrecht set $100,000 bond and ordered Quinlin to return to court next month.

Quinlin, also known as Quinlan, ran his scheme from January 1999 into April 2006, prosecutors said.

Waco group calls for formal apology

WACO (AP) — In Nona Baker's family, the story of her great-uncle's 1905 lynching was told through the generations in whispers or hushed voices, never uttered in public for fear of retaliation.

Sank Majors, a 20-year-old black man, was convicted of raping a white woman and sentenced to death after jurors deliberated for just three minutes. A judge agreed with the defense attorney's claims of improper jury instructions and granted a new trial.

But two days later a mob of several hundred broke into the jail, dragged Majors away, tied a rope around his neck and forced him off a horse on top of a bridge. As his body was hanging, the crowd cut off his fingers and clothes.

Now a local group wants city and county governments to adopt an 800-word resolution apologizing for lynchings in the area to "end our documented history of silence" and start the "delicate process of healing." About 500 of the 4,700 lynchings nationwide in the 1800s and early 1900s were in Texas.

Fatigue thought to be to blame for drop in SAT scores

By The Associated Press
A small but noticeable decline in scores on the newly expanded SAT exam has some wondering whether fatigue is affecting students' performance — an issue that could prompt the College Board to adjust the test.

Possible changes to how the SAT is administered were the primary topic at a meeting Friday in New York City of the College Board's SAT advisory committee. Some guidance counselors have called for the College Board, which owns the exam, to let students take separate sections on separate days.

The new SAT, which debuted in March 2005, now officially lasts three hours, 45 minutes, but takes longer if instructions and breaks are included.
"Right now, it's longer than the GRE, the LSAT and the GMATs, and those are all taken by college students or college graduates," said Brad MacGowan, a guidance counselor at Newton North High School in Massachusetts, who has asked the College Board to let students split up the exam.

The College Board added a writing section and made other adjustments to the new test, which debuted in March 2005, but insisted scores would remain comparable.

Some colleges, however, are reporting substantial declines. The University of California system saw a 15-point drop, while La Salle University in Philadelphia saw a 12-point drop — even as their applicants looked better than last year's group by other measures.

"I've never seen better (students') records, and lower scores. Never seen it in 36 years," said Bob Voss, La Salle dean of admission.

There may be other explanations.

Typically, students' scores rise a combined 30 points on the math and critical reading sections on a second try. While more students are taking the SAT, fewer are taking it multiple times, said College Board spokeswoman Chiara Coletti. The price of the test has risen from $28.50 to $41.50, though fees are sometimes waived.

Jeff Olson, executive director of research at test-prep company Kaplan, said some high-achieving students may have decided to stick with the good scores they got on the old SAT. But he said fatigue could have played a role, too.

be used for persons who were displaced from their homes as a consequence of the wildfires, Peet said. The funds arrived last week, and a committee will be formed by commissioners Monday to distribute the amount.

Other assistance in the form of funds and materials which is being collected through benefit events and donations is being administered by the organizations which are collecting them, Peet said.

Use of the Gerald Tate Memorial Ag Barn in McLean is also on the agenda. The barn has been in use as an emergency shelter and treatment center for livestock injured in the recent wildfires, but prior commitments are beginning to create scheduling problems for the barn's use, Peet said.

A policy modification concerning the use of alcoholic beverages in Clyde Carruth Pavilion and the Gerald Tate Memorial Ag Barn will be considered.

Other items on Monday's agenda include a request by Sheriff Don Copeland to declare certain vehicles as surplus property; a request from Precinct 2 Commissioner Gary Willoughby to go out for bids on declared surplus property; a request from Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright to replace an employee; and approval of a jury selection plan.

Courthouse. No information on any rescheduling of the May 17 hearings was included in the Thursday letter from Lewis.

A jury trial is currently set for June 26, with counsel for both sides expected to be present at 9 a.m. Jury selection will begin at 10 a.m.

Roach was indicted May 17, 2005 by a Gray County grand jury on two state charges of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver. One indictment concerns methamphetamine, and the other specifies cocaine.

Both indictments state that a handgun was present at the time of the incident, that the amount of the substance was four or more but less than 200 grams, that the incidents occurred Jan. 11, 2005, and that they occurred within 1,000 feet of a drug-free zone.

Community Christian School, 220 N. Ballard, is within 1,000 feet of Gray County Courthouse, where Roach was arrested Jan. 11, 2005, by agents of the FBI's Amarillo office on a federal charge of possession of methamphetamine. Further federal charges involving methamphetamine, cocaine and firearms were added to the federal indictment on Jan. 12, 2005.

Roach was also indicted June 21, 2005, by a Gray County grand jury on charges of aggravated perjury in connection with an affidavit of financial status and request for court-appointed counsel. The affidavit had been filed June 10, 2005, by Kelly.

Roach pled guilty to the federal firearms charge in a plea bargain agreement on Feb. 8, 2005, the same day that he resigned as 31st District Attorney. In a June 1, 2005, hearing in federal court in Amarillo, he was sentenced to five years in federal prison followed by three years' supervised release.

Roach is currently incarcerated at Federal Medical Center of Fort Worth.

He said they are often in awkward situations where they can't see what's going on.

"They hear the call," Pitner said. "They hear the screaming. They hear the police officer being shot or Pitner said it is a very stressful job.

"We thank them for everything they do on a daily basis," Pitner said.

Modern workplace a source for new vocabulary words

The Internet has a wealth of information, a lot of it useful and a lot of it bunk.

Colleague David Bowser, the mysterious enigma who sometimes hangs out in questionable places, found this one from one of his questionable friends and shared it. I think it is time for it to be shared with others.

New words for 2006: Essential vocabulary additions for the workplace (and elsewhere).

1. BLAMESTORMING: Sitting around in a group, discussing why a deadline was missed or a project failed, and who was responsible.

2. SEAGULL MANAGER: A manager who flies in, makes a lot of noise, dirties everything, and then leaves.

3. SALMON DAY: The experience of spending an entire day swimming upstream only to get screwed and die in the end.

4. CUBE FARM: An office filled with cubicles.

5. PRAIRIE DOGGING: When someone yells or drops something loudly in a cube farm, and people's heads pop up over the walls to see what's going on.

6. MOUSE POTATO: The online, wired generation's answer to the couch potato.

7. SITCOMS: Single Income, Two Children, Oppressive Mortgage. What Yuppies turn into when they have children and one of them stops working to stay home with the kids.

8. STRESS PUPPY: A person who seems to thrive on being stressed out and whiny.

Dennis Spies

Editor

9. SWIPEOUT: An ATM or credit card that has been rendered useless because the magnetic strip is worn away from extensive use.

10. XEROX SUBSIDY: Euphemism for swiping free photocopies from one's workplace.

11. IRRITAINMENT: Entertainment and media spectacles that are annoying but you find yourself unable to stop watching them. The J-Lo and Ben wedding (or not) was a prime example — Michael Jackson, another.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 14, the 134th day of 2006. There are 231 days left in the year. This is Mother's Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 14, 1643, Louis XIV became King of France at age 4 upon the death of his father, Louis XIII.

On this date:

In 1796, English physician Edward Jenner administered the first vaccination against smallpox to an 8-year-old boy.

In 1804, the Lewis and Clark expedition to explore the Louisiana Territory left St. Louis.

In 1904, the first Olympic games to be held in the United States opened in St. Louis as part of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

In 1942, the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps was established.

In 1948 (according to the current-era calendar), the independent state of Israel was proclaimed in Tel Aviv.

In 1955, representatives from eight Communist bloc countries, including the Soviet Union, formed the Warsaw Pact in Poland. (The Pact was dissolved in July 1991.)

In 1973, the United States launched Skylab, its first manned space station.

In 1975, U.S. forces raided the Cambodian island of Koh Tang and recaptured the American merchant ship Mayaguez. All 40 crew members were released safely by Cambodia, but some 40 U.S. servicemen were killed in the military operation.

In 1980, President Carter inaugurated the Department of Health and Human Services.

Illegal means against the law ...

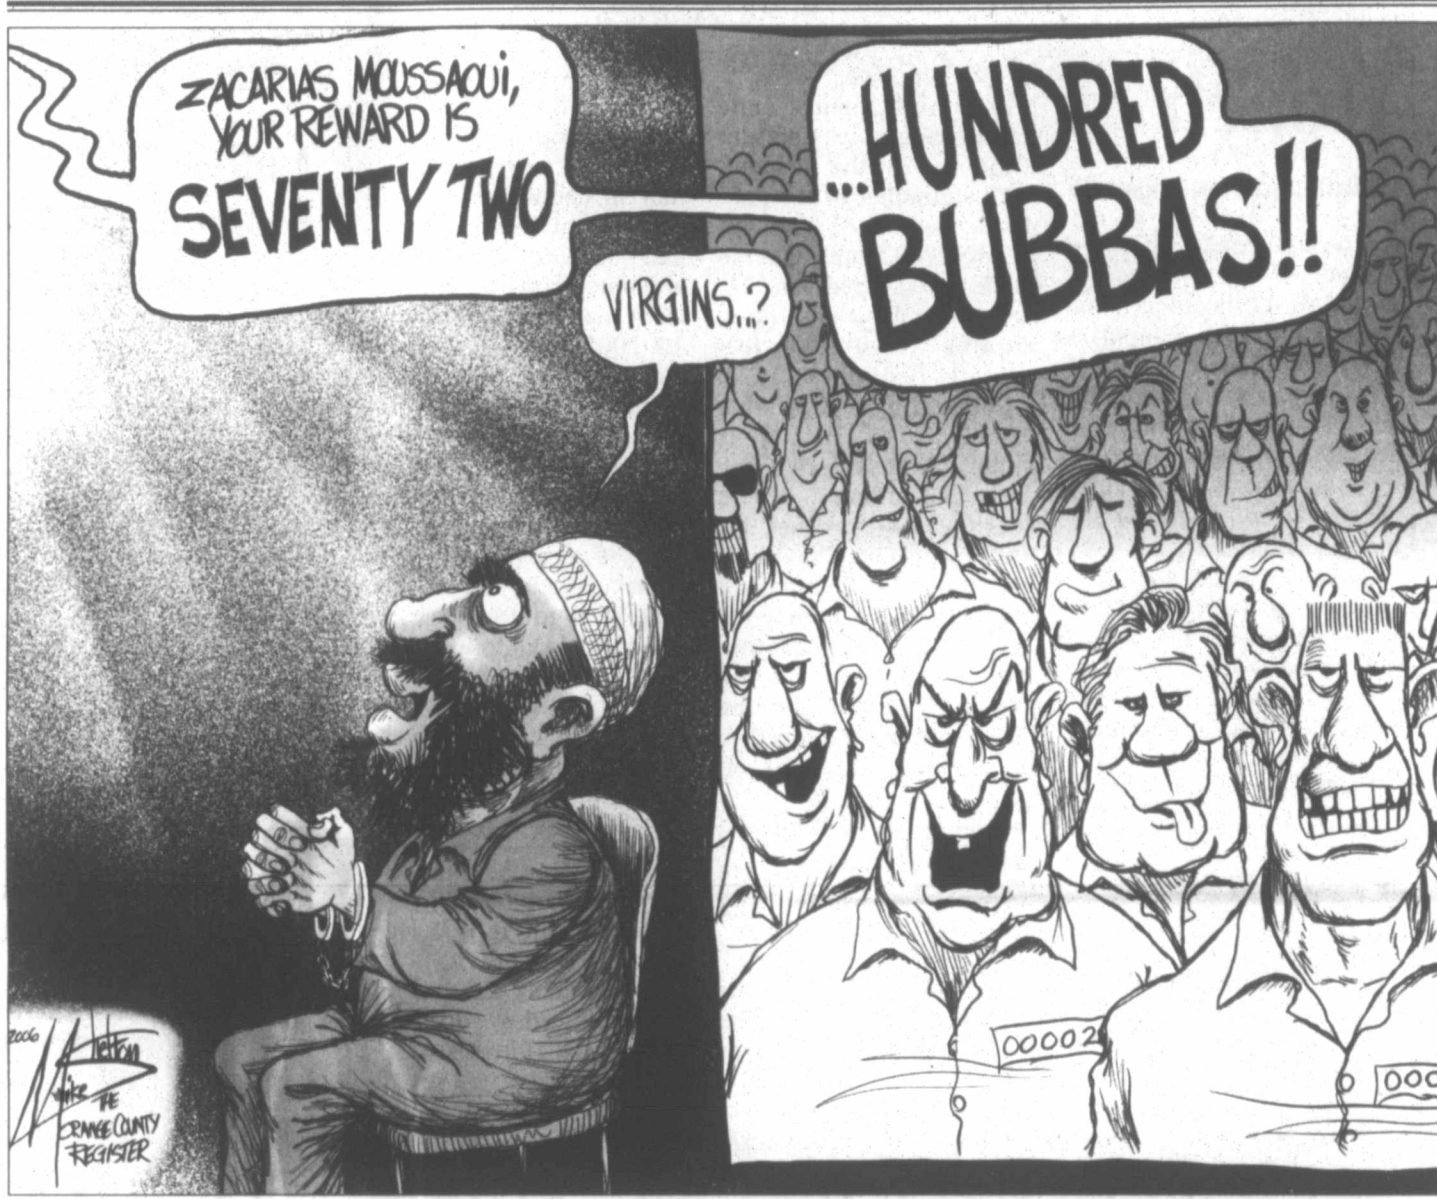

The students from Whittier High School in Pioneer, Calif., who removed the U.S. flag, replaced it with a Mexican flag and then reattached the U.S. flag upside down should be: 1) if they are legal citizens they should be jailed for at least six months; 2) if they are not legal citizens they should be immediately kicked out of the USA. If the school officials did nothing to stop it, they should be fired. If the school officials tried to do something to stop it, but someone higher up the political ladder stopped them, then that person should be immediately fired. Respect Old Glory or get out of the United States.

If the management of Urban Box Office Records follows through with their project to rewrite the U.S. National Anthem in Spanish and to make significant changes in it by adding a complete verse in support of illegal immigrants, they too should be jailed for at least six months. Respect our National Anthem or get out of the United States.

Illegal immigrants in any nation are not just unpapered immigrants. Illegal means "against the law." Get the paperwork or get out.

Why don't we run our nation's affairs more like God runs His? God doesn't Idle American: Our flag is still here ...

The zealous first grade teacher, eager to pour useful knowledge into the youngsters' minds, wanted them to know early on about museums. She spoke slowly, offering tidbits she thought might be particularly interesting to this age group.

Some of them were wide-eyed, and several hands went up. Johnny waved his arm like a scarecrow in the pumpkin patch.

He asked, "Are you telling us that museums are kinda like zoos, except everything in 'em are dead?"

This vignette came to mind during a recent tour of the Freedom Museum USA in Pampa, Texas. The all-military museum opened a dozen years ago. It is a testament to the determination, commitment, vision and plain old hard work by folks who want to make sure Americans remember the high cost of freedom.

"We've operated on a wing and a prayer from day one," a VFW member said. (The VFW Post 1657 operates the ever-expanding museum, depending totally on gifts from individuals, businesses and foundations.)

It is housed in an old water-pumping station built by the PWA (Public Works Administration) in 1939. The city deeded it to the museum, and continues to "water and mow" the grass. That's the extent of governmental support ...

Located near downtown, the museum is hard to miss. Several military vehicles surround the building, including a Vietnam-era Huey helicopter. It's mounted on a steel pedestal several feet above the roof line.

"When you spot the helicopter, you'll find the museum under it," a local mentioned.

The helicopter became a conversation piece, particularly when it sprang a leak ...

Though patriotic to the core, the folks who make the museum tick don't claim to be experts on anything. They weren't sure what to do when the helicopter's floppity 50-foot rotor blade started whirling in a high wind.

"We were scared the helicopter might take off if the wind got stronger, so we tethered the blade on each end," one man said.

It turned out to be a bad decision. One day a strong wind snapped the ropes. They said the whirling blades sounded like a scene from TV's Mash. Then, an oil seal broke ...

What a mess! The blades threw oil as far as four houses away, so the vets had serious apologies — and cleanups — on their hands.

They re-thought the tethering idea and put the ropes away. The blades now spin as they will.

"If the thing takes off, it takes off," one of the museum people said ...

The museum is open to the public from noon until 4 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays. But, like aggres-

Texas Thoughts

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

The Dallas Morning News on prescription drug benefits:

A week from today, Medicare wraps up its largest expansion since the 1960s. Except for seniors qualifying for a subsidy, next Monday is the cutoff date for enrolling in Medicare's prescription drug plan without paying a penalty. (Some Democrats want the deadline extended, but it's hard to see how an extension would nudge the minority of seniors who haven't signed up.)

The drug plan started with horror story upon horror story. Bureaucratic snafus ensnared pharmacists, and seniors seeking answers about benefits endured long phone waits.

Problems still exist, but here's what we know:

1) The drug plan is turning into a good thing for seniors and Washington. Medicare's top officer, Mark McClellan, told this newspaper recently that about 30 million of the nearly 42 million eligible seniors have enlisted. The phone waits are down to about a minute average. And, best of all, costs are dropping for seniors and the government.

Starting with President Bush, both parties can cheer alongside seniors. Despite some serious bumps along the way, the benefit plan shows what happens when Republicans and Democrats come together. They passed a plan that Mr. Bush signed and that the Rev. Jesse Jackson's Operation Push is promoting. That's bipartisanship, folks.

2) Less than 10 percent of seniors have picked the standard plan. The rest have selected drug coverage that fits their needs.

This pattern, which relies upon consumers making choices with good information, represents medicine's future. If the consumer-choice model spreads, it will give patients power and a way to fight costs.

3) This isn't the last battleground for Medicare. The same bipartisan spirit that helped pass this benefit now needs to correct the system's overall finances.

Business after Hours

Sue Abbot and Steve Giles visit recently during Pampa Chamber of Commerce's monthly "Business After Hours" hosted by Pampa Custom Framing, located at 107 N. Cuyler and owned by Abbot. Attendees were greeted with a Hawaiian luau complete with a limbo challenge, ring toss, door prizes, and Hawaiian appetizers. Guests were able to network and to see the quality of work that the folks at Pampa Custom Framing, 107 N. Cuyler, provide. The luau will continue throughout the month of May. Businesses interested in hosting the Chamber's ongoing series of "Business After Hours" events should contact the Chamber at 669-3241.

sive automobile salesmen who'll "meet us at any hour if they know we're coming," museum leaders will work the same deal for groups.

Among the people passing through annually are the thousand or so students from area high schools. Some of them have limited knowledge of what has gone before, particularly World War II.

One area high schooler asked, "If we hadn't bombed the Japanese, do you think they would have attacked us?"

And she was serious ...

Memorabilia is largely from World Wars I and II, Korea, Vietnam and the Persian Gulf. But, there also are Civil War and Wright Brothers exhibits. Many of their holdings are stored for exhibit later.

When you are in the area, stop by. You'll reek of patriotism upon seeing the exhibits and meeting folks giving most of their waking hours to the cause. The men and women supporting the Freedom Museum expect to link arms soon with veterans returning from Iraq.

The new vets will be invited to join a bunch of Pampa patriots who line up along side Horace Mann, the "Father of American Education." More than 150 years ago, he wrote: "No man escapes when freedom fails. The best men rot in filthy jails. And those who cried, 'Appease, appease,' are hanged by those they tried to please ..."

May God bless America. May He likewise bless veterans, and may our flag long wave.

Finally, may citizens who want to help the Freedom Museum lay down the cash for granite blocks on the two walkways. One is for the vets; the other for friends.

After all, here's the chance to see our names in granite before we're under it ...

A new report shows Medicare's expenses will start to overrun its revenues in 2018, two years earlier than expected.

Both parties should study how the consumer-choice approach has worked with drug benefits and apply it to other aspects of Medicare. Greater competition, and more information can help keep expenses from overwhelming Medicare once baby boomers retire.

allow "illegal guests" in His Spiritual Kingdom. With God it is simple: surrender to Jesus and faithfully serve Him or get out. When the Lord found that an "illegal guest" had sneaked into His Son's wedding feast, He had him secured, tied-up and thrown out into a horrible, dark place. Mt 22:1-14.

Of course the big difference with God's illegal guest in the parable, he was speechless. That means that he kept his mouth shut. Too bad many of the illegal guests in our country don't have the same manners.

EMS WEEK

Guardian ambulance open house Monday

The American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP) recently announced that this year the 33rd annual Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week will be observed throughout the nation May 14-20. The event brings together local communities and medical personnel to publicize safety and honor the dedication of those who provide the day-to-day lifesaving services of the medical "front line."

Guardian EMS of Pampa will celebrate EMS Week from 2-4 p.m. Monday with an open house at its headquarters, 1010 S. Barnes. Hot dogs and Cokes will be served and public tours of the facility and ambulances will be offered. Mayor Lonny Robbins signed a proclamation recognizing the weeklong observance. "As this year's theme emphasizes, the brave men and women who serve as EMS providers are often first on the scene of a disaster, a motor vehicle crash or other event that may place them in a hazardous environment," said Dr. Frederick Blum, president of ACEP. "It's important that we take the time to honor these front line medical responders for often going above and beyond the call of duty to save lives, while risking their own."

From the start, emergency medical services (EMS) has defied simple explanation. Its mission — to save lives of sick or injured people in emergency situations — seems simple enough. But EMS, and its unique history in both health care and public safety, is much more complex. It was born in the United States of several influential parents — traffic safety, trauma care, cardiology, resuscitation science and military medicine — and it continues to cross the boundaries of numerous disciplines, including health care, medical transportation, public health and homeland security.

To understand where EMS is today, it is necessary to look back on its recent history, which began 40 years ago, with the publication of "Accidental Death and Disability: The Neglected Disease of Modern Society" by the National Academy of Sciences (NAS).

That paper reported that in 1965, 52 million accidental injuries killed 107,000 Americans, temporarily disabled more than 10 million and permanently impaired 400,000 more at a cost of approximately $18 billion. Accidental injury is "the neglected epidemic of modern society" and "the nation's most important environmental health problem," the paper concluded.

The NAS recommended several solutions, including standards for ambulance design and construction, equipment and supplies, and training and supervision of ambulance personnel. The report also called for local "ways and means of providing ambulance services ... [in coordination with] health departments, hospitals, traffic authorities and communication services."

Congress responded by enacting the National Highway Safety Act of 1966, which mandated the newly formed Department of Transportation (DOT) to establish minimum standards for provision of care for accident victims.

DOT, through its National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), took the federal leadership role in the creation and funding of EMS systems, providing more than $48 million for EMS between 1966 and 1973, creating national standard curricula and defining the necessary components of an EMS system.

Although accidental injuries were the impetus for federal support of EMS and trauma systems, modern EMS also developed out of simultaneous advances in cardiology and resuscitation science, including mouth-to-mouth breathing, chest compressions and defibrillation.

Emergency physicians, then practicing a new medical specialty, recognized that these cardiac interventions could save more lives if they were brought out of the hospital into the ambulance. At the same time, medics returning from Vietnam found that lives could be saved by using trauma treatments once reserved for the hospital on patients in the field, thus reinforcing the notion that EMS is, in essence, an extension of in-hospital emergency medical care.

As EMS expanded to include care and transport of all kinds of medical emergencies, EMS programs began to take shape in the federal Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

The funding mechanism for EMS system development changed drastically in 1981 when the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act ceased funding under the federal EMS Systems Act of 1973 and consolidated EMS funding into state preventive health and health services block grants. This change put the onus on the states to develop and fund EMS systems based on state and local priorities and led to a great variety in the way EMS is delivered and funded from state to state.

States control and direct EMS system development to this day, and several sources of federal EMS grant money are disseminated through state EMS offices.

While EMS originally was conceived to respond to accidental death and injury and cardiac conditions outside the hospital, its role has expanded to become the primary safety net for Americans, especially those who are un- or under-insured. Public health authorities also are turning to EMS to assist in prevention activities and the promotion and implementation of community-based health and wellness programs.

Man-made and natural disasters in recent years also have changed the role of EMS, which today is expected to provide immediate emergency medical response and patient transport to large numbers of affected patients following a disaster. In fact, the role of EMS on the nation's public safety front line has led to spirited debate about the appropriate role of EMS in the new federal Department of Homeland Security.

Loans

"Eligibility for these loans is based on the financial impact of the disaster only and not on any actual property damage," explained Alfred E. Judd, director of SBA's Disaster Field Operations Center - West. "These loans have an interest rate of 4 percent, a maximum of 30 years, and are restricted to small businesses without the financial ability to offset the adverse impact without hardship."

Businesses primarily engaged in farming or ranching are ineligible for the disaster assistance. For more information and application forms, call 1-800-659-2955 or log onto www.sba.gov/disaster on the World Wide Web.

Winkelman powers Pampa past Andrews for 8-6 Game 1 win

By MICHAEL J. STEVENS
Sports Editor

"You can breathe now," said Lady Harvester assistant coach Troy Owens to head coach Bobbi Gill as the two walked off Lady Bulldog Field in Plainview Friday evening.

After eight innings of wild competition, Pampa fans also breathed a sigh of relief. The Lady Harvesters took Game 1 of the Class 4A regional quarterfinal game against Andrews, 8-6, and held a 1-0 advantage in the best-of-three series going into Saturday.

a 6-5 lead.

The intensity level of most post-season games usually rises a notch or two. It was almost off the chart Friday.

The Lady Mustangs took a 1-0 lead in the game in the bottom of the first inning.

Both teams would manage hits throughout the game, but plating runners was not easy.

Pampa took a 2-1 lead in the top of the fifth, only to see Andrews score four in the bottom of the inning.

Down 5-2 going into the top of the sixth, the Lady Harvesters quickly loaded the bases only to take two quick outs afterward. Junior catcher Logan Winkelman strode to the plate and sent Lady Mustang Charli Winkelman wasn't finished.

The Lady Mustangs scored a run in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game a 6 all. Nicole Clark, who relieved Cassy Tice in the fifth, then shut Andrews down.

Tice and Clark would each get on base in the top of the eighth. Winkelman sent a pitch rolling to the center field wall for a double, scoring Tice and Clark for the final runs of the day.

Pampa (21-5) and Andrews (21-11) were scheduled to meet for Game 2 Saturday morning at 11. Sports Day will have a complete series wrap Monday.

Rangers drop Sox in rain-shortened game

BOSTON (AP) - Hank Blalock was 2-for-3 with a homer and Kameron Loe earned his first career complete game when the Texas Rangers beat the Boston Red Sox 6-0 Friday night in a game shortened to 5 1/2 innings by rain.

Loe (2-3) allowed five hits and a walk, striking out four before the game was called in the bottom of the sixth with a 2-2 count on leadoff hitter David Ortiz. Matt Clement (3-3) gave up four runs and six hits, walking two and striking out four in five innings.

The Red Sox put runners on second and third in the third and fourth innings, both times with one out. But Loe pitched out of it with two groundouts each time, then got the side in order in the fifth.

Fog enveloped the stadium in the second inning and, in the third, a heavy rain began to fall. After Clement's third pitch to Brad Wilkerson in the fourth, the grounds crew ran on the field to put a drying compound on the mound and home plate area.

Head groundskeeper Dave Mellor was out to update the umpiring crew on the weather during every half inning. But the game kept going until the umpires signaled for the tarp at 9:16 p.m.; it was called at 10:04.

Rain is expected to plague the entire three-game homestand.

Clement last pitched on May 4, and his start was pushed back because of a rainout when the Red Sox decided to keep the rest of the rotation on its regular days. He gave up Blalock's homer to lead off the second, then Texas scored three in the third.

Astros rip Rockies, 12-2

HOUSTON (AP) - There's no place like home for the Houston Astros.

The Astros rebounded from a brutal seven-game road trip with a 12-2 victory over the Colorado Rockies on Friday night.

Houston, which won only the final game of the road swing, has the best home record in the majors at 15-4 and has won five straight games at Minute Maid Park.

Morgan Ensberg had four RBIs, including a tie-breaking three-run homer in the sixth inning, and Craig Biggio and Mike Lamb both homered for the Astros, who came up one run shy of their season high.

"It feels good to be back home," Astros manager Phil Garner said. "We had some difficult games on the road. So tonight we put that out of reach pretty quickly."

The loss gave Colorado its first three-game losing streak of the season.

Ensberg took Rockies starter Jason

Jennings to a full count with the score tied 1-1 and the crowd on its feet and cheering wildly. He then homered to left field to drive in Biggio and Lance Berkman.

"During my at-bat you couldn't hear a thing," Ensberg said. "That stuff helps. I mean you can't hear at all. And I just think when it's difficult for you to concentrate because you're not used to it, it helps us because we are used to it."

Jennings (2-3) allowed two hits over the first five innings before Houston tagged him for six in the sixth. He struck out five and walked one. The outing came six days after he pitched a complete game in a 5-0 victory over Houston.

"We got desperate at times and then things got away from Jason," Rockies manager Clint Hurdle said.

He was lifted with two outs in the sixth after an RBI-single by Brad Ausmus.

CHASING HISTORY

Bonds makes it memorable for all the wrong reasons

By TIM DAHLBERG
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO - Willie Mays was busy cutting a birthday cake and chatting with friends Friday night. They held a star-studded celebration on the infield for his 75th birthday, and 40,000 or so turned out to say hey.

Actually, they came to see Barry Bonds hit No. 714, but that's another story.

On the big video screen in center field there were clips of Mays making his famous catch in the 1954 World Series and hitting monster home runs. Look up and you could see him running the bases, his hat falling off as usual as he made his mad dash.

Then there was the tender image before the game, with Mays and Bonds walking hand-in-hand onto the field for the party.

Perhaps the greatest player ever and his godson, the greatest hitter of his time.

A full moon shone over the bay. The hated Dodgers were in town. The planets seemed aligned for a memorable night.

It was memorable, all right. But for all the wrong reasons.

Bonds went 0-3 with a walk, disappointing the faithful who are still waiting for him to tie Babe Ruth.

They were disappointed they were not a part of history. They should have been even more disappointed with the casual indifference Bonds paid to the game.

The fly ball he didn't run after that dropped between him and Steve Finley in the sixth inning was embarrassing enough. Bonds is slow, out of shape, and would rather the center fielder catch anything not hit directly to him.

But even Mays had to be rolling his eyes after Bonds turned for the dugout after popping up in the eighth inning and was lucky not to be doubled up when Dodger second baseman Jeff Kent dropped the ball.

The Say Hey Kid always ran everything out. The So What slugger plays baseball on his own terms.

Manager Felipe Alou would have yanked any other player for committing what in baseball is a cardinal sin. When he left Bonds out on first to run the bases and then sent him out to the field for the ninth inning, he might have been the first manager to punish a player by leaving him in the game.

What made Friday's baserunning gaffe even more interesting is the that it was Kent who dropped the seemingly simple popout.

Conspiracy theorists could have a field day with this one.

Especially after Kent refused to come clean.

"Question of the day," he said. "I don't give away my secrets. I'm the wrong guy to ask."

It was Kent, you might remember, who scuffled with Bonds when the two were teammates competing for the MVP award a few years back, and the Dodger second baseman has never hid his feelings about Bonds.

In the clubhouse before the game, Kent said he had read the book, "Game of Shadows" and found it intriguing. He should, because he was sharing a clubhouse with Bonds when Bonds suddenly bulked up and began hitting more home runs than he ever had before.

Asked if the book was a page turner, Kent said:

"I read it cover-to-cover. Considering it was the only book I read cover-to-cover in a year, I guess."

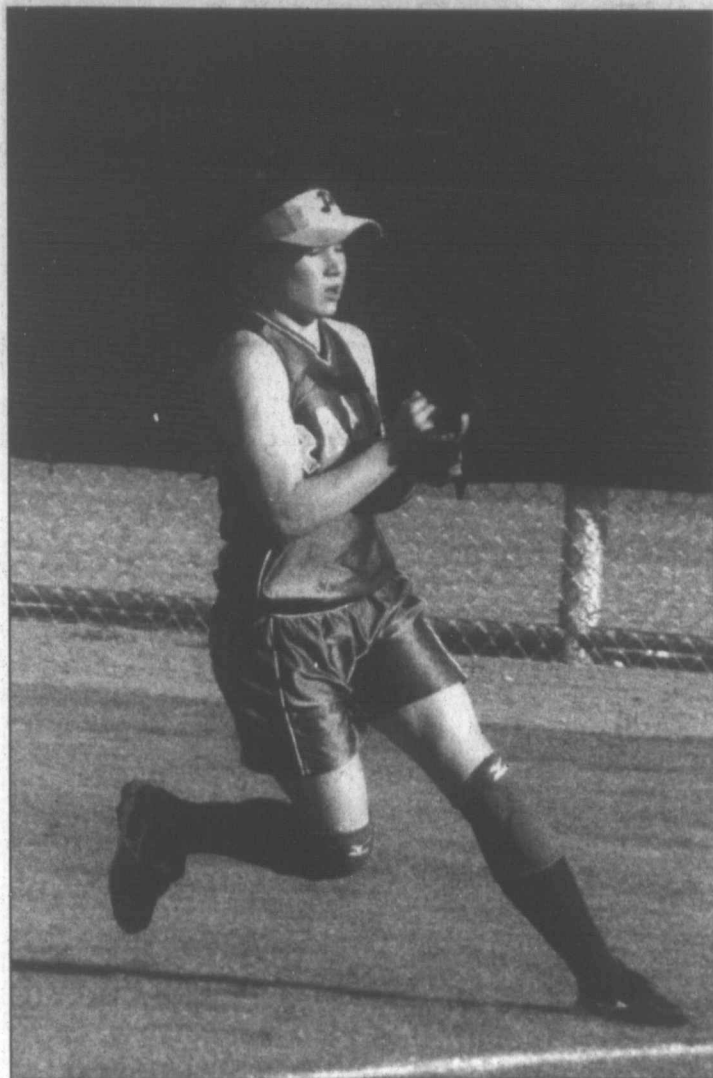

The night was a microcosm of a homestand that has gone bad for Bonds.

He's played in four games, had one home run taken away and not come close to any others. The day before against the Cubs he ended up upside down in the stands after lumbering clumsily after a foul ball, then let another ball get past him in the corner for a triple that ruined a shutout.

Just how Bonds feels about all of this is hard to tell. He hid out in the trainer's room after the game where he didn't have to deal with the press.

Alou, though, allowed that his 41-year-old star isn't in good shape and is somewhat of a liability in left field.

Run and catch

Pampa freshman Kelby Doughty gathers an Andrews fly ball in right field during Friday's Class 4A regional quarterfinal Game 1 at Lady Bulldog Field in Plainview. Pampa won the game, 8-6, to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three series against the Lady Mustangs. The two teams were scheduled to meet for Game 2 Saturday morning at 11. Sports Day will have scores, stats and comments Monday.

Track condition leads to shortened Grand Prix

HOUSTON (AP) - The Grand Prix of Houston was shortened from 115 to 100 laps after a last-minute track change led to slower times.

When drivers first tested the 1.69-mile course at Reliant Park, they complained there was no runoff near the 90-degree second turn. In response, track officials set up a chicane of orange cones to slow the drivers before they reached the dangerous turn.

The chicane increased lap times and with a two-hour television window on Saturday, race officials shortened the race.

The drivers welcomed the change for another reason. They've complained all week that the course set up in the parking lot next to Reliant Stadium was too bumpy and slippery.

Chopping off 15 laps will be easier on them and their cars.

"That's definitely a help," driver Paul Tracy said.

But even at 100 laps, Tracy said the drivers are preparing for a rough, demanding race.

"Getting to the end of this race is going to be tough," Tracy said. "It's very easy to make a mistake here and go in the runoff or hit the wall. Attrition is going to be a factor."

SECOND LEGGE: Rookie Katherine Legge will try to become the first woman to earn back-to-back top-10 finishes in a Champ car this week.

Legge's eighth-place finish in Long Beach on April 9 was the best for a female in the circuit's history. The 25-year-old Legge blames herself for not placing higher.

"We had a good race pace, we struggled to pass," she said. "We're getting on with it, we're going through it. We should've finished sixth."

Legge won three races in 2005 on the developmental Atlantic series. She admitted she made rookie mistakes in her Champ car debut, but said the experience has built her confidence heading into Saturday's race.

"At least I've done it now, at least I've been through a race," she said. "At least I can say, 'OK, I know what that feels like.' It's recorded to the memory banks."

Legge will start from the No. 15 position on Saturday after turning a fast lap of 100.964 mph in qualifying Friday.

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced that Chassey Oxley of Pampa has been named a Collegiate All-American Scholar.

Oxley

U S A A established the Collegiate All-American Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The Academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all college students.

To be eligible for the honor, students must earn a 3.3 or higher grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school official or other qualified sponsor are accepted. USAA Collegiate All-American Scholars are named in the Collegiate All-American Yearbook, published nationally.

The scholars are also eligible for other awards given by USAA.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history," said Dr. George Stevens, USAA founder. "Certainly, winners of the Collegiate All-American Award should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement."

Oxley attends Frank Phillips College in Borger. She was nominated for the award by Becky Green. Oxley is the daughter of John and Karen Oxley of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Gordon of Jonesburg, Mo.

Edson Miranda, son of Felix Miranda and Obdulia Miranda, graduated from the University of North Texas with a bachelor of arts degree in radio, television and film and a minor in Spanish. Convocation was held Saturday.

The Academy bestows USAA awards upon fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students. The PHS students were nominated for the award by Starla Kindle, a counselor at PHS.

All USAA award-winners will appear in the USAA Official Yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history," said Dr. George Stevens, USAA executive director.

Danny Seabourn, PHS principal, recognized foreign exchange students Deschna Afram of Germany and Marzia Scampuddu of Italy and thanked them for sharing their cultures with PHS students and staff.

PROPERTY TAX PROTEST AND APPEALS PROCEDURES

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these appeals procedures if you have a concern about:

- *the values placed on your property
- *any exemptions that may apply to you
- *the cancellation of an agricultural exemption
- *the taxable status of your property
- *the local governments which should be taxing your property
- *any action taken by the appraisal district that adversely affects you

Informal Review

The first option a taxpayer may use to protest a value is to visit with the chief appraiser or a staff member. Records on individual properties are available for review by every taxpayer. This informal review is to the benefit of the taxpayer, as many protests are resolved at this level.

Review by the Appraisal Review Board

If you cannot resolve your problem with the appraisal district staff, you may have your case heard by the Appraisal Review Board (ARB).

The ARB is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals or other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the appraisal district to make necessary changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice of protest) before the deadline the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You will receive written notice of the time, date and place of the hearing. The hearing will be informal. You and the appraisal district representative will be asked to present evidence about your case. The ARB will make a decision based on the presented evidence. NOTE: You should not try to contact ARB members prior to the meeting. The law requires ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they have not discussed your case prior to the ARB meeting.

Review by District Court

After the ARB decides your case you will be sent a copy of its order by certified mail. If you are not satisfied with the decision, you have the right to appeal to district court. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you receive the ARB's order. If the appraisal district has appraised your property at $1,000,000 or more you must file a notice of appeal with the chief appraiser within 15 days of the date you receive the ARB's decision.

Additional Information

You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district. You may obtain more information by contacting the appraisal district at the address or phone number before or by contacting the State Comptroller at the following address:

State Comptroller's Property Tax Division
PO Box 13528
Austin, TX 78711-3528

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Would it be OK to offer an interest-free loan to a prospective son-in-law to buy my daughter an engagement ring? They have been dating -- indeed, living together -- for more than two years. They talk about wedding plans all the time. He's already like part of the family. We conjecture that he has not popped the question because he can't afford to purchase an engagement ring. He's currently working part-time, low-income jobs while he waits for our daughter to get her college degree before he/they go to graduate school. — CARING DAD IN WASHINGTON

DEAR CARING DAD: When in doubt -- don't. Although your idea is generous, I think you should refrain from making the offer. Your daughter's boyfriend may have other reasons for not popping the question, including not feeling ready to make a life-time commitment to your daughter.

DEAR ABBY: I recently went to a salon to have my hair dyed back to my natural color. The stylist did a wonderful job and I'm happy with the results, as it's hard to match the color of someone's roots with hair dye. However, later I went out to dinner with a friend, and she pointed out a large stain of hair dye on the back of my shirt. I'm not sure what to do. I'm fairly certain the stylist must have seen it as she walked me to the counter. It was a brand-new shirt and cost me $40 the day before I went to the salon, and it was the first time I had ever worn it. I'd like to ask the salon to pay for the cost of the shirt, but would this be proper? — SCARLET WOMAN IN LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR SCARLET: You are certainly within your rights to ask if you feel that the stylist saw the problem and kept it from you. When you went in for the procedure, you should have been offered the opportunity to change into a smock so there would be no chance that your clothing would be ruined. And in the future, when going to a beauty salon for color, you should ask for one.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my husband and oldest son went to pick up my youngest son from my parents' home. During the 15 minutes they were there, my parents told them nine times that they had something for our children, and they would be over another day to help assemble it. Also, my mother repeated eight times to our oldest son to make sure he didn't allow his brother to have a small object. None of us have hearing problems, and my oldest son is very smart and responsible when it comes to knowing what his little brother can and cannot have. My parents are in their early 60s. Both of them are healthy. The thing is, they repeat themselves over and over again all the time. What makes a person do this? We have tried telling them that they have already told us a dozen times. Whenever we try, they either "don't get it" or they get upset and pout. Does anyone else have to deal with this? It's really annoying. — PETE AND REPEAT IN OHIO

DEAR PETE AND REPEAT: Absolutely. However, they are usually families whose relative is suffering from some form of dementia or has had small strokes. I don't know how long this problem has been going on, but your parents' doctor should be alerted that there may be a potential problem.

East St. Louis one of many cities realizing riverfront asset impact

By JIM SUHR
Associated Press Writer

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — As many American cities grapple with how to make better use of their riverfronts, parks chief Mike Buehlhorn stands on the scrubby, stubby patch of land along the Mississippi River in this battered city and sees better days.

With envy, he looks at the towering Gateway Arch across the water — at least the portion of the glistening landmark he can see over the concrete levee wall and rusty railroad boxcars. By spring, truckloads of dirt will begin fashioning most of a 34-acre swath into a park.

The site will boast a four-story tall, multi-level overlook with breathtaking views of the stainless steel arch, all of it, just as Malcolm Woods Martin always envisioned until his death in 2004 at the age of 91.

Martin knew the arch's architect, Eero Saarinen, wanted a sprawling park on this side of the Mississippi to complement and marvel over Saarinen's masterpiece. At long last, Buehlhorn said, it will happen.

"It's going to be a jewel on the Mississippi," he said.

Similar ambitious pushes to make the best use of waterfront — in many cases, prime real estate that often has been overlooked or neglected — are playing out elsewhere as communities are awakening to their shorelines as natural development opportunities, one observer says.

"Waterfront is magic when it comes to revitalization," said Doyle Hyatt of Hyatt-Palma, a national consulting firm specializing in helping revive business districts. "People are drawn to water. And in the past 20 to 30 years, people have realized the significance of rivers to transform and mesmerize cities."

No need to stress that to Dave Heiar, the economic development chief in Dubuque, Iowa.

Over the past decade or so, he said, that Mississippi River city of about 62,000 helped find new homes or otherwise clear from its port petroleum companies, a sawmill and some logging-type outfits, cleaning up environmental problems some of those businesses left behind.

Now that property includes a hotel with an attached waterpark, the National Mississippi River Museum and a convention center near a moored gambling boat. The city has invested $1 million to stabilize what used to be an old brewery, into which a local developer plans to sock $6.5 million to make it into commercial space perhaps including a winery, restaurant or theater.

"It's totally transformed," said Heiar, adding that there's welling interest in the 30 acres the city still looks to rehab. "I have no doubt that in a short time, all of that area is developed."

"The whole attitude of the community has just changed. The community has picked itself up by the bootstraps and really turned itself around."

Tom Lyons touts a similar riverfront revival for Louisville, Ky.

Working in phases, developers there ripped out scrapyards and other industrial eyesores and put in marinas, restaurants, an amphitheater and a "great lawn" area now used for everything from concerts to festivals, said Lyons, a University of Louisville professor specializing in urban and regional planning. A bike-and-running trail extends from one end of the riverfront to the other. There's a children's playground, even a new minor-league baseball stadium.

"It's like night and day from what it was 10 to 12 years ago," Lyons said. "The waterfront's an amenity, an asset they have to leverage for quality of life. A former industrial wasteland is now sprawling greenspace. It's quite a story."

Getting it all down, he said, was no great struggle: Planners and politicians "established a very attractive, engaging vision up front. People said, 'We love that, we want that.' It wasn't a hard sell."

In East St. Louis, Buehlhorn is eager to work on the Malcolm W. Martin Memorial Park on the land given to his Metro East Park and Recreation District last summer by Martin's 38-year-old foundation, along with $2.5 million to help transform the site. Illinois' Department of Natural Resources is adding $400,000.

The park's focal point will be the 11-year-old Gateway Geysir, which twice a day from mid-April through Oct. 15 puts on a 15-minute show by shooting water skyward nearly as high as the 630-foot arch, weather permitting.

The observation platform will offer good looks of the arch and geysir, as well as river traffic. Plans also call for a terraced amphitheater, a cultural interpretive center commemorating this city's history and people, and sweeping greenspace linked to nature trails. It could take two to three years to complete.

Buehlhorn believes the park in this city of 31,000 could draw several hundreds of thousands of guests each year, perhaps many of them seeking a respite from the Casino Queen riverboat moored just to the north along the riverfront.

"It will be a huge step in the continued revitalization of our riverfront," said Karen Cason, chairwoman of the city's community development committee.

Many agree the city could use such a shot in the arm.

Once a thriving community that had been home to glass manufacturers and other industrial companies, East St. Louis has withered into one of the nation's poorest cities since the decline of smokestack factories and the exodus of whites in the 1960s.

Many crumbling buildings are within easy view of the planned riverfront park. Schools were broke for years. The deed to City Hall once went to a man to cover a multimillion-dollar judgment over a jail beating before the city got the building back on appeal.

Legal immigrants face hurdles

By DEEPTI HAJELA
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Kshitij Bedi recently marked his fourth wedding anniversary, but it wasn't much of a celebration, just a long-distance phone conversation.

The Long Island resident has barely seen his wife, Shweta, in the past four years. She is in India, waiting and waiting — and waiting — for the visa that would allow her to join her husband, a legal permanent resident, in the United States.

Bedi applied for the visa in April 2002, less than three weeks after the couple's wedding. He tries to visit India as much as possible, but essentially, "I've been a bachelor since then."

"There's nothing we can do," he said. "We're so helpless."

In all the recent talk about immigration reform, most of the focus has been on the millions of people in the United States illegally. But part of the problem, legal experts and immigrant advocates say, is a complicated legal immigration system in which the demand for visas far outstrips the supply.

"People aren't choosing to walk through the desert; they're doing that because the front door is closed," said Benjamin Johnson, director of the Immigration Policy Center at the American Immigration Law Foundation. "The only way to get in is the back door."

Some foreigners are left waiting for a visa for more than a decade. And those are just the ones who fit into one of the complex categories of people eligible to apply for a visa. The ones who don't? Forget it, experts say.

"For the vast majority of people who would like to move to the United States, there is no line to get on," said Julie Dinerstein, deputy director of immigration advocacy for the New York Immigration Coalition.

In general, there are four ways foreigners can get permission to move to the United States: They can be sponsored by an American citizen relative, or in some cases, a legal resident relative; they can be sponsored by an employer; they can claim refugee or asylum status; or they can win a visa lottery.

But each one of the categories has limitations. For American citizens, their spouses, parents, and unmarried children under 18 can get immediate visas, with no wait. But any married children or adult siblings have to get in line, and other relations, such as cousins, cannot be sponsored. Legal permanent residents, like Bedi, can sponsor only spouses or unmarried children, not other relatives.

There are about 226,000 family-preference visas available in a year for the entire world, divided equally among countries. (Immediate family members of American citizens are not counted in this category.) For companies looking to sponsor an employee, there are about 140,000 visas.

To win refugee status, foreigners must prove they face persecution in their homeland. As for the visa lottery, it is only for residents of countries that aren't already sending large numbers of people here. About 50,000 diversity visas are given out each year.

But those totals don't even come near to accommodating the millions of people who want to come here.

According to the latest government bulletin:

— The waiting list for unmarried adult children of legal permanent residents is nearly 10 years long. For those coming from Mexico, it is almost 15 years.

— For adult siblings of American citizens, the wait is more than 10 years; for those coming from the Philippines, almost 23 years.

The numbers of visas given out is set by Congress; the last adjustment was more than a decade ago. The basic framework, that all countries get the same number of visas, was put into place in 1965.

Emily, Jacob still popular baby names

By KASIE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When kids born in 2005 head to kindergarten in a few years, a lot of them will be raising their hands when the teacher calls out "Emily" or "Jacob." In border states, it will be hard to miss Jose, Angel and Mia.

For the 10th year running, Emily is the most popular name for infant girls in the United States, according to figures this Mother's Day weekend from the Social Security Administration.

"The whole question was whether Emma going to beat out Emily this time," said Cleveland Evans, a professor at Bellevue University in Nebraska and president of the American Names Society. Emma was number two on the list.

Biblical names dominate the boys' list. Jacob is the most popular, as it has been since 1999. Other top picks for boys are Michael, Joshua and Matthew.

"There's a lot more men mentioned in the Bible than women," Evans said. Maybe that's why the girls' list includes so many non-biblical names such as Madison.

New to the top 10 lists this year are Anthony at No. 8 for boys and Ava at No. 9 for girls. Anthony jumped up from the 11th spot. Ava has risen steadily since 1990, when it was ranked 952.

For male twins, parents like to combine Jacob with Joshua, Matthew with Michael and Daniel with David. The most popular combination for female twins was Hope and Faith.

The agency also releases separate lists for each state, and the most popular names in states along the U.S.-Mexico border reflect the impact of immigration.

Jose is the most popular name for boys in Texas; in Arizona, it's Angel. Mia is the second most popular name for girls in those two states and fifth in California.

The agency has compiled the 1,000 most popular names since 1997 and started listing twin names in 2004. Variations in the spelling of the same name are counted separately, so there are different entries for Kaitlyn, Katelyn and Kaitlin.

The top 10 for girls in 2005: Emily, Emma, Madison, Abigail, Olivia, Isabella, Hannah, Samantha, Ava and Ashley.

For boys: Jacob, Michael, Joshua, Matthew, Ethan, Andrew, Daniel, Anthony, Christopher and Joseph.
