Silver-Haired Legislature election set here Tuesday

In accordance with the Texas Election Code, the Texas Silver-Haired Legislature Area Steering Committee has called for an election to be held on Tuesday to elect four candidates to represent the Panhandle at large in the 11th Texas Silver-Haired Legislature in Austin.

Twelve senior citizens centers across the Panhandle have been designated as official polling places. Polls will be open in Pampa at the Pampa Senior Citizen Center from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Tuesday under the direction of election judge Nancy Looper. Eligible voters do not have to be a member of the senior citizens center, but they must be at least 60 years old, a registered voter and a resident of the Panhandle. Each voter gets one ballot, and may vote for four candidates.

Six candidates are competing for the four positions. Five candidates, Alan Abraham, Jean Clark, Sandra Henderson, Herman Hill and Betty Trotter are from Amarillo. Chester Cunningham from Fritch is the only candidate seeking office from outside Amarillo.

The 11th Texas Silver-Haired Legislature will meet in the House Chamber during September of 2006 to advocate for senior citizens and adopt resolutions that will be presented to the governor, lieutenant governor and the 80th legislature during the regular session in January 2007.

'Click It Or Ticket' campaign gears up beginning next week

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Any driver or passenger who normally doesn't buckle up might want to take up that habit before Monday to avoid a fine of up to $200.

Pampa Police Department is participating in the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's "Click It Or Ticket" campaign, scheduled for May 22 through June 4. The campaign is meant to educate and encourage people to wear their seat belts, said Pampa Police Sgt. Colby Brown.

"Starting May 22, there will be extra officers on duty doing seat belt enforcement," Brown said. "The things that we are looking for are non-use and improper use."

A seat belt or child safety seat must be used as the manufacturer designed and intended in order for it to protect the person, Brown said.

"An example of improper use of a seat belt would be wearing it under the arm," he said. "It is a shoulder strap and for it to work properly, it has to be over the shoulder."

Nearly one in five Americans still fail to regularly wear their safety belts when driving or riding in a motor vehicle, according to the NHTSA.

Among those least likely to buckle up are

Pampa Police officers Michael Ryan, left, and Colby Brown prepare to demonstrate the rollover simulator this week to show how wearing a seat belt can keep occupants safer in a vehicle than without one.

Barrett named Blood Donor of the Year

Raymond Barrett of Pampa has been named 2005 Whole Blood Donor of the Year by Coffee Memorial Blood Bank in Amarillo.

Barrett received the honor last week at Coffee Memorial's annual appreciation luncheon.

"I have plenty of blood and other people are in need of it," Barrett said.

Barrett has been donating blood since 1988 and is one unit away from 100 units donated, according to a press release from Coffee Memorial.

The Coffee staff said Barrett's claim to fame is that he is always looking for new blood by recruiting prospective donors.

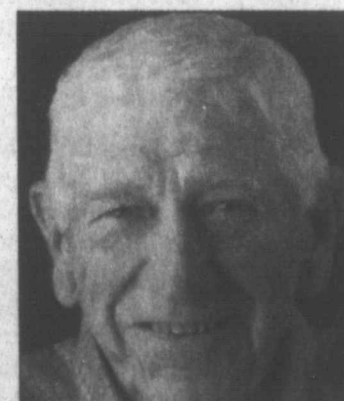

When he finds prospects that have never donated, he treats them to lunch and educates them on donating blood.

He has provided rides to people who had no transportation to blood drives.

Coffee Memorial said that when they go to Celanese and other businesses in Pampa, Barrett always brings people to donate.

Barrett likes to donate every eight weeks, but his schedule and Coffee's schedule got off track so now he drives to Amarillo to donate.

The Coffee staff said Barrett is dedicated and enthusiastic about saving lives whenever and however possible.

 The board also approved moving the Feb. 19 holiday, the day before the TAKS test, a holiday, to Feb. 26.
 The PISD board of trustees voted to stay with the aggregate deductible option of the workers compensation program. Dr. Barry Haenisch told the board the school district has participated in the TASB workers compensation group for a number of years and has saved in the cost of premiums over the last three years by choosing the aggregate deductible option.
 The board denied a request by Clearwire, a broadband wireless Internet company, to lease one of the Harvester Stadium light poles on which to place a tower. The tower would be three to five feet tall, and the company proposed to pay the district $500 a month, but Haenisch said the interference clause in the contract was unacceptable for future technological growth.
 The board heard from the Pampa Soccer Club, which wants to solicit donations for a scoreboard and signs for the soccer field. The scoreboard would cost between $2,500 and $4,000. The signs would be between $2,300 and $5,000. The soccer club wanted the school district to pay for installation and running electricity to the signs and scoreboard. They will work with the district to estimate installation and electrical costs and to get quotes.

 The Tennis Booster Club has resurfaced some of the courts at the high school and plans on finishing the rest of them this summer along with the awnings and windscreens.
 The school board also heard from representatives of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper Architectural Firm concerning the district's building and facilities needs.
 Allen Wolf and Mike Baker with the firm said that Pampa's elementary schools were basically in good shape, the junior high and high school had some major problems and other facilities like Horace Mann may need to be torn down.
 The board also reviewed on first reading policy guidelines for wellness, nutrition, nutrition education and physical activity.

Some immigrants fear worker plan a ruse

HOUSTON (AP) — Martin Saucedo, an illegal immigrant from Michoacan, Mexico, would like to participate in a guest worker program like one Congress is considering as a part of sweeping immigration reform.
 But he's worried whether a proposal to grant millions of illegal immigrants a path to citizenship is really just an effort to find and deport them.
 "It's not a good idea. It won't give us what we need, to be able to come back," Saucedo said in Spanish during a break from clearing tree branches from power lines while working at a landscaping company.
 A bill before the Senate calls for providing up to 200,000 new temporary guest worker visas a year. Guest workers would be able to seek legal status on their own if the government determines American workers aren't available to fill the affected jobs. Temporary workers would be required to return home at the end of the program.
 "Absolutely there is concern," said Kathleen Walker, vice president of the American Immigration Lawyers Association. "The government is your friend' is not the mantra of this area. ... For those who feel they have nothing in their home country and have lived underground for years, how is that an incentive for them to come forward?"

 Despite some immigrants' fears, the immigration debate has recently inspired more to seek legal permanent residency and citizenship.
 Nationwide, the number of applications for permanent residency has jumped from 57,011 in January to 76,831 in March, said Maria Elena Garcia-Upson, spokeswoman for U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services. Citizenship applications have increased from 53,390 to 74,943 during the same period.
 "Anytime there is anything that might affect people's status here in the United States, there tends to be an increase in applications," said Garcia-Upson. "We expect these numbers to increase even more."
 Maria Robles, 55, an immigrant from Monterrey, Mexico, said in Spanish she is glad her permanent legal residency application has already been approved because she would be afraid to apply for it in the current political climate.

 "Many times the government says one thing, but in the end they might want to just deport all the immigrants back to their countries," she said.
 Robles, who has been in the country for 12 years, said she doesn't think the guest worker proposal will benefit illegal immigrants because many of them won't want to return to their home countries after their visas expire.
 Community groups who work with illegal immigrants said they have been counseling many who are worried that Congress hasn't yet decided on anything.
 "I think a lot of people don't know. They hear talk, the president is talking about immigration, Congress is talking about legalization, and people want to know what's happening and what the law says," said Adam Chester, supervising attorney for Catholic Charities.

young males, pickup truck drivers and their passengers, people who live in rural areas, and nighttime drivers.
 In 2005, the observed safety belt use rate in pickup trucks was only 73 percent, compared to 83 percent in passenger cars and 85 percent in vans and SUVs.
 The failure of pickup occupants to buckle up can have deadly results. In 2004, the latest year for which the information is available from NHTSA, 68 percent of pickup drivers and 73 percent of pickup passengers who were killed in traffic crashes were not buckled up.
 One type of accident in which seat belts can make a lifesaving difference is the rollover. Occupants of a vehicle involved in a rollover may be ejected from the vehicle if they are not buckled in.

 In 2004, 74 percent of passenger vehicle occupants who were totally ejected from their vehicle were killed. But only one in 100 drivers and passengers in fatal crashes who were wearing their safety belts were totally ejected and killed, according to the NHTSA.
 Lower safety belt usage on rural roadways is reflected in the motor vehicle crash fatality rate. The rate in rural areas is almost double that in urban areas, according to the NHTSA.
 Part of the danger to rural motorists comes from delayed recovery and emergency response, but much of the danger is also due to excessive speed, increased alcohol use, vehicle rollovers and higher occupant ejection rates, according to the NHTSA.
 "Seat belt use should be a habit. No one knows when they might have a crash, so for the seat belt to work, you have to wear it every time," Brown said.

Republicans need to run like Dems to win

Over the past 30 years, there has been an inexorable growth of party-line politics in Washington. Where crossing party lines was once an accepted and routine part of congressional practice, it is now almost as rare as in a parliamentary government, where massive defections on any issue could bring down the government.

The growth of party-line voting reflects a parallel tendency to nationalize congressional elections, a trend that dates back to Newt Gingrich's revolution of 1994, in which he wrested control of both houses from the Democrats. Until Gingrich, the maxim of his predecessor Tip O'Neill that "all politics is local" was the order of the day.

But national funding of political campaigns, central discipline over political consultants by party apparatchiks, partisan control over reapportionment and the nationalization of congressional issues have enforced a conformity on candidates from both parties, which makes them little more than local stand-ins for the national party.

All this is terribly convenient when your party is awash in good times. The money rolls in while you run in your comfortably gerrymandered district, advised by spin doctors who are adept at putting the party line out in ever more artful ways and are especially trained by the national party at eviscerating an opponent with negative ads.

But in bad times, the party's ties bind too closely. They restrict a Republican candidate's ability to run to the left or a Democrat's to move to the right to avert defeat in a partisan landslide. The party discipline makes maneuver impossible and forces the incumbent to hunker down in his partisan fortress and hope that he can defeat the barbarians at the gates.

For the first time since the Gingrich revolution, the Republican Party is facing massive defeat. Will its congressmen and senators go down in the upcoming 2006 elections like the Democratic lemmings did in 1994, faithfully parroting their president's dogma while they sank below the horizon? Or will they have the dexterity and flexibility to move to the center and the left to meet the coming onslaught?

The only way for a Republican to survive in 2006 is to run like a Democrat. The GOP line on oil companies totally misses the fact that voters see a vast conspiracy by big oil companies to manipulate the price to feather their own nests. All talk of supply increase or demand decrease is quite beside the point for the average voter. The issue is whether or not you are part of the conspiracy to fix and raise prices.

The Republican position on climate change — that it isn't happening or, if it is, it's inevitable — also completely misses the views of the average voter who sees hurricanes, droughts, tornadoes and such as the consequence of years of air pollution.

The GOP wisdom on Iraq also fails to address the underlying isolationism that is catalyzing opposition to the war. Instead of searching for a decent way out, most voters are just disgusted with the party that landed us in this no-win situation.

Taken together, the only way for a Republican to survive 2006 is to shed himself of his party ideology and run like a Democrat, using the entire playing field — left, center and right — to address voter concerns.

But is the Republican Party able to allow its candidates the doctrinal freedom to do so? Will its donors permit such heresy? Are its consultants wise enough in the ways of the center to bring their clients over from right field? Will the administration allow apostasy?

Lately some have suggested that candidates use local issues to survive. But the wisdom of Tip O'Neill will not save a party that has convinced the nation that congressional races are national, not local.

It is only by moving to the center and the left that the congressional Republican Party can respond to the massive voter anger its candidates encounter at every turn.

Unless the harness of party discipline loosens, GOP congressmen and senators will go, in step, over the cliff.

Today is Friday, May 19, the 139th day of 2006. There are 226 days left in the year.

One hundred years ago, on May 19, 1906, the Federated Boys' Clubs, forerunner of the Boys' Clubs of America, were organized.

States must adopt own immigration laws

Illegal immigrants are not going to gather much sympathy by waving a Mexican flag in the face of Americans. I'm glad they're doing it, however, because it might awaken the American people from their stupor.

The first step in dealing with illegal immigration is to seal the border. Don't say it can't be done. It can be done. All that is lacking is the political will. Barbed wire is cheap, and if necessary, we can build an electrified fence from the Pacific to the Gulf of Mexico. Furthermore, there are about 50,000 Marines in the Pacific with nobody to fight and another 70,000 or so troops in Europe with nobody to fight. They should be brought home to seal the border, which is, after all, a federal responsibility.

Only after the border is sealed and the flow cut off should we even think about dealing with the illegals who are already here.

Step one in that process is to change the law, the Constitution if necessary, so that a child born to an illegal immigrant does not gain citizenship. This will eliminate illegal women sneaking across the border to dump their babies.

Step two should be to offer all illegal immigrants citizenship on three conditions: one, they learn to speak and write English; two, if they are able-bodied, they enlist for three years in the armed forces; and three, once granted citizenship, they forfeit the right to bring relatives into the U.S.

The loophole about bringing in relatives is especially important not only for the illegals but for legal immigrants. Otherwise, if you give citizenship to 10 million people, you are really doing it for 40 million to 50 million. We ought, in fact, to declare a moratorium on all immigration to give us time to assimilate everyone already here.

I'd give illegals one year to sign up for the program and then the door slams shut. After that, all illegals will be arrested and detained until they are deported.

Next, Congress should pass a zero-tolerance law. The way to get people to obey the law is to remove their economic incentive for disobeying the law. Hence, if you find an illegal alien in a home, confiscate the home; in a business, confiscate the business; and in a church, confiscate the church building. Christians who believe they are doing God's work by breaking the law should remember that Caesar must also do Caesar's work.

All of the above is pure fantasy. Congress is not going to enforce the laws or enact tougher ones, and neither is the president going to do anything to stem the flow of illegal aliens. The members of Congress are so gutless, you could eviscerate the whole lot of them and not find enough guts to fill a bucket. As for the president, he's a sorry excuse for a leader.

If the American people are serious about stopping this mass migration, they will have to rely on their state governments. All states should pass immigration laws and empower local police to enforce them. The border states should build their own fences. Americans should boycott Mexico, never set foot in that country and never spend a dime on a Mexican product. They should boycott American

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ May 5
Austin American-Statesman on the trial of Zacarias Moussaoui and justice in America:

The trial, conviction and sentencing of Zacarias Moussaoui for his role in the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks was a true testament to the American legal system.

An unrepentant terrorist bent on mass murder had competent defense lawyers, a respected judge and a fair trial in federal court. A jury deliberating for seven days painfully dissected the case to return a sentence of life in prison, not death.

It was, in the end, a good example of the defining character of the United States. In a world where adulterers can be stoned to death in the Mideast and a convert to Christianity in Afghanistan is threatened with beheading, the Moussaoui trial showed both the power and restraint of the rule of law in America.

For the families of the victims of the Sept. 11 attacks, the verdict and sentence provide no catharsis. There is still a void in their lives, a palpable sense that a great wrong has not been righted.

Some wanted Moussaoui to die for what was at best a limited role in the al Qaeda plot.

But executing Moussaoui wouldn't fill the emptiness, wouldn't provide any more justice than will his life in a maximum-security federal prison. And executing Moussaoui might have made him a martyr in the Muslim world.

No one would wish for the life ahead for Moussaoui. He will, as U.S. District Judge Leonie Brinkema said as she sentenced him to six life terms without possibility of parole, "die with a whimper."

Moussaoui is paying for his crimes and American justice was won.

businesses and institutions, including churches and media, that support illegal immigration.

The problem is not the Mexican people. The problem is Mexico's corrupt, sorry, no-good government, which denies an economic opportunity to great masses of its people. The problem is our sorry, no-good federal government, which refuses to enforce its own laws. This problem is government-made on both sides of the border.

What Americans have to decide is, Do they wish to preserve their own country? What makes a country is not the geography but the people. Mexico lost Texas because so many Americans moved there; they were able to take it away from Mexico. Now, Mexico might well regain its lost territory the same way.

If Americans have become so lazy and so timid that they will no longer fight for their country, then I say: "Welcome, amigos. Come on in. A land should belong to people who love it enough to protect and preserve it. You're showing you are willing to take risks and endure incredible hardships to get here, while Americans are too lazy to even write their congressman. You deserve it, and they don't."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with four children. My mother passed away in March 2004, and 11 months later I found my husband dead in our bathroom after he had shot himself in the head. Needless to say, my world has turned upside down. I think I am managing pretty well, and I thank God every day for my children. I don't know what I'd do without them. However, I miss my husband more and more every day. I do not know how I am going to handle all this. I don't know what I will tell my 3- and 4-year-olds one day when they ask me how their daddy died. I also can't picture myself loving another man, or being loved by one. Am I destined to be a lonely widow? How can I tell my children the truth without destroying their lives? — MOURNING IN ARIZONA

DEAR MOURNING: I hope you realize that all of the emotions you are experiencing right now are NORMAL. You have suffered two tremendous losses in a short period of time, so it's not surprising that you are feeling the loss deeply. When your children are old enough to begin asking questions about their father, explain to them that although their daddy loved them very much, he was sick and he suffered from an illness -- depression -- and that one day he took his own life. As they grow older, they may need this information, because depression can run in families. They also need to understand that there is treatment for it. You do not have to give your children all the details at once, and it may be better that you don't. As for being "destined to be a lonely widow," nothing could be further from the truth. But you will first have to deal with your own feelings about what happened. A source of support that might be helpful would be the American Association of Suicidology, which has hundreds of associated groups. It can provide you with referrals to local self-help groups for survivors. Newsletters, pamphlets, etc., are also available for a fee. The organization's address is 5221 Wisconsin Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20015, and the Web site is www.suicidology.org. Being a survivor of suicide can be isolating, but it doesn't have to be inevitable. By writing to me, you have already taken the first step in reaching out. I wish you happiness in the future.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a problem with a fellow classmate. He sits in front of me, and every day during class he turns around and asks me to marry him. Of course I say no, but he won't stop it, and it's starting to creep me out. One day he asked me why, and I told him because I have a boyfriend (which is true). Now he says he wants to hurt him! I have tried asking him nicely not to talk to me anymore, but he still does, and he's in more than one class with me, so a seat change won't do much good. I'm not sure exactly what to say to him. Could you help me out? — CREEPED OUT IN WINTER SPRINGS, FLA.

DEAR CREEPED OUT: The next time Romeo proposes, tell him that if he doesn't knock it off, you will tell your teacher and the principal that he's harassing you and making threats against your boyfriend. If that doesn't cool his ardor, follow through. He may deserve an A for effort, but he deserves an F in English if he can't comprehend what "no" means.

FBI says it has strong clue in search for long-missing ex-Teamsters boss

MILFORD TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — For three decades, Jimmy Hoffa's disappearance has spawned endless theories about the former Teamsters boss's demise:

He crossed the mob, he was entombed in concrete at Giants Stadium, he was fed to the fishes.

Now the FBI is investigating another theory. Federal agents are digging up a horse farm once owned by a Hoffa associate not far from where Hoffa vanished in 1975.

Agents aren't saying exactly what they know, but they plan to spend a couple weeks trying to determine if Hoffa was killed and buried somewhere on Hidden Dreams Farm. They are bringing in cadaver dogs, demolition experts, archaeologists and anthropologists and suggested they might remove a barn.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — After her first road tour in 10 years, Toni Braxton has found a new place to call home.

The six-time Grammy-winner will take over as the headliner at the Flamingo hotel-casino on the Las Vegas Strip in August, replacing Wayne Newton, whose run wraps up July 1.

Beginning Aug. 3, the R&B singer will perform six nights a week through March 2007 in a full-scale musical production called "Toni Braxton: Revealed."

"This is a show where I'm going to reveal myself to my fans, because there are a lot of things they don't know about me," Braxton, 37, told The Associated Press on Thursday.

"It's going to be sexy," she said. "It's going to be intimate."

The production will take fans through her musical career beginning in 1992 and feature a high-energy fashion show likely with clothes from designer Dolce & Gabbana, she said.

"I'm not a Britney Spears or a Janet Jackson, but I have a little rhythm," she said.

In March, Braxton embarked on her first tour in a decade to promote her latest album "Libra." The tour ends July 3 in Houston at the Essence Music Festival.

Braxton, who is best known for hits such as "Breathe Again," "You're Makin' Me High" and "Love Shoulda Brought You Home," has starred on Broadway in "Aida" and "Beauty and the Beast."

It was not clear what would happen to Newton, 64, who started a limited run at the Flamingo in November that was extended several times. Newton's publicist could not immediately be reached for comment.

CASTROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Off-key "American Idol" washout William Hung has something new to crow about: He's being crowned "Artichoke King" in the small city that calls itself the "artichoke capital of the world."

Hung, 23, the earnest crooner who butchered Ricky Martin's "She Bangs" tune on the Fox talent competition, will ride in a parade Sunday and perform new versions of the Beach Boys' "Surfin' USA" and the Billy Ray Cyrus line-dancing anthem "Achy Breaky Heart."

Marilyn Monroe was the first "Artichoke Queen" at the 1947 Castroville Artichoke Festival.

The festival features an artichoke eating contest, music and plenty of artichokes for sale.

Awarding the reality TV reject-turned-recording artist the title was an attention-gaining gimmick, said Cheryl Della-Mora, the festival's arts and crafts director.

"We've already gotten a lot of exposure from it," she said.

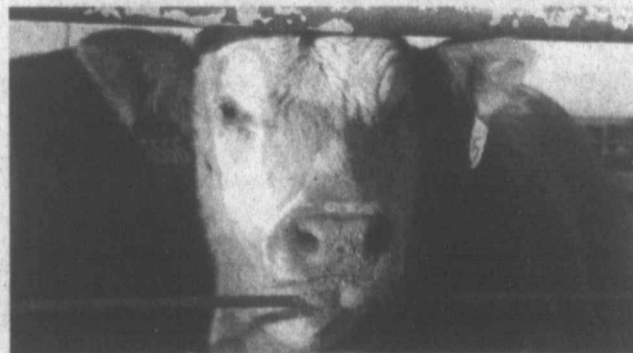

Heavy spring rains dampened artichoke production by as much as 20 percent, but local growers said there will be more than enough.

Growers in Monterey County sold more than $48 million worth of artichokes in 2004, the latest year for which data is available.

Janet Abbe, left, scholarship chair for Pampa Classroom Teachers Association, recently presented Keana Daughtry with a scholarship in the amount of $1,000. MINISTER'S MUSINGS

What if all Christians were like you?

What if every Christian in every church in the world was just like you? What would happen? What impact would it have on the kingdom of God on the earth?

Would churches explode in growth? Would record amounts be given for mission work? Would every church be packed every time the doors were opened?

Would volunteers have to be turned away or be assigned to other projects because there were just too many of them? Would the sick of the congregation ask for the church folks not to come around so often to visit? Would the elderly in each church be overtired from visiting too much with church members stopping by too often? Would the needy forget what it was like to be needy?

Or would tons of churches close their doors? Or would missionaries be called back to the USA due to lack of funding? Or would the churches still open be conducting services to empty sanctuaries? Or would church leaders be gathering to determine which projects and ministries would have to be axed due to the lack of volunteers?

Mike Sublett
Hi-Land Christian

Or would the sick of the congregation be lonesome and discouraged, wondering if anyone in their church family cared about them? Or would the elderly in each church be trying to figure out how to fill the hours of each lonely day? Or would the needy be starving and homeless, without hope?

It is not likely that the church throughout the earth would remain the same if everyone was just the kind of Christian as you. Either things would get remarkably better or horribly worse. Which would it be with you? So take a moment and ask yourself what kind of influence you would have?

Whatever your answer is, it is not only the kind of influence you "could have," but it is the influence that "you are having" and have been having for a long time in your own church. So maybe it is time for a little "self inspection."

One of my favorite singers is Ray Stevens. Here is Ray's advice, in his song: "Have A Little Talk With Myself":

"And I think it's just about time to have a little talk with myself. Have a little private conversation, a little self-examination, a little attitude correction, a little soul search and inspection. Then start heading in the right direction."

God bless.

Girls in Action

The Girls in Action mission group of Central Baptist Church recently conducted a fan drive. They collected fans to donate to Good Samaritan Christian Services. Good Sam will distribute the fans to those in need during the hot weather. Teachers are Angie Cotton and Denise Parks. Life is made up of many individual choices

Before we had television entertainment, children and youth played games together. Many games required choosing sides. Most of the games we played when I was a child I have now forgotten.

Many card and domino games are played by a team of members. The ball games have two teams. Members of the Dallas Cowboys football team are 1,000 percent for their team. Not one play is made to help the other team win a game or make a point. Every move is made for the benefit of the Cowboys.

Some have said it this way: "You use every device in the book to win." Every player must play only for their team. Every team member must make such efforts that all the fans will know which team they are playing for, otherwise that player would be replaced. Life is made of choices. Some choices leave scars on the hands, arms, legs or face.

Other scars are covered with clothing but never go away. The same is true of the scars we put on our never-dying souls.

Forgiveness of sins does not remove our memory or regret for those sins that were forgiven when we were born of the spirit. Memory reveals the sin that scarred our soul. Sorrow for sins is an eternal sorrow that drives us to obedience to Christ. The sorrow that I had for sins the night I was forgiven is as strong today as it was 73 years ago when I poured out my tears and heart to Christ in repentance.

Archie Cooper

Pentecostal Holiness

When I was growing up, many parents when referring to Satan would call him "The Old Bogyman." When children would tell lies, mothers would warn them if they told lies the Old Bogyman would get them. Even though that description of the devil cannot be found in the Bible or dictionary, it was used very powerfully to train children not to do or say sinful things.

Shame on the parents who do not teach their children the benefits of telling the truth and the eternal dangers for not doing so. We have filled our churches with members who want to be truthful when it is convenient and helpful. Like Moses, we have come to the time when we need to ask, "Who is on the Lord's side?"

Christians who have been martyred for Christ had the opportunity to recant and live. The apostles who were martyred for Christ knew that Jesus was the Christ, the son of God. They knew, and the devil knew without asking whose side they were on. They knew that the cause they were fighting for was worth dying for, and, dear friends, it still is.

Jesus is in need of laborers in His field, and soldiers in His battle. Many years ago, a young man was pronounced

Local church to host CrossWalk America group

CrossWalk America, an Arizona-based Christian organization, will cross the path of Pampans May 26. The group of eight walkers will be hosted by First Christian Church of Pampa.

The members of CrossWalk began their trek in Phoenix, Ariz., on Easter Sunday and are on their way to Washington, D.C.

The walkers plan to arrive in Pampa on Friday afternoon, spend the night in the church's Family Life Center, and continue their journey Saturday morning. They're scheduled to arrive in Washington, D.C., on Sept. 3, Labor Day weekend.

"CrossWalk America is part of an emerging Christian movement — one that joyously embraces the love of God, neighbor and self (Jesus, core values)," according to information provided by the organization. "We stand for openness to other faiths, care for the earth and its ecosystems, valuing artistic expression in all its forms, welcome and inclusion of all people, opposing the co-mingling of church and state, seeking peace and ending systemic poverty, promoting rest and recreation, prayer and reflection and embracing both faith and science."

A group of clergy, lay people, theologians and biblical scholars from mainstream denominations around the country articulated the CrossWalk America beliefs into a document of 12 principals called "The Phoenix Affirmations."

The walk is intended to share the group's mission with people throughout the 2,500 mile journey. Participants will carry a set of "The Phoenix Affirmations" and "nail them to the doorway of America" as part of a large Labor Day weekend rally in Washington at the conclusion of the walk.

Supporters of the initiative are invited to join the walk for as much time and distance as they desire or to participate in events and rallies planned along the route. The group will cross Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Maryland before entering the District of Columbia. Financial donations to help with expenses of the walk are also welcome.

For more information about The Walk, visit the www.CrossWalkAmerica.org on the World Wide Web.

"The Solid Rock"

Edward Mote's parents did not allow a Bible in their impoverished London home, but young Edward heard the gospel as a teenager and became a Christian. He later became a skilled carpenter and owner of a cabinet shop. One morning in 1834, as he was laboring in his shop, he decided to write a hymn after thinking of the chorus: "On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand." By the end of the day, he had completely written all four verses. In many hymnals, this song is also known as "My Hope Is Built."

Sports Day

After 0-3 start, Dusters look to improve to 4-3

QUICK FACTS

Teams: RGV Dorados (4-3) vs. Amarillo Dusters (3-3)
Date: Saturday
Kickoff: 7:05 pm
Site: Amarillo National Bank Field
Radio: KPUR 1440 AM
Internet: www.dustersfootball.com

THE STAKES

After 3 consecutive wins, the Dusters have climbed back to .500 and climbed back into the early-season playoff race in the Midwest Division. They seek to get their 4th consecutive victory, which would also be their 4th consecutive victory against a division opponent. The Dorados look to bounce-back from last weekend's loss at Bakersfield, and improve their record to 5-3 overall. This is the first meeting between these two teams.

COACH PERDUE'S THOUGHTS ON THE RIO GRANDE VALLEY

"They are solid across the board in everything they do. But, they've been up and down all season, so it's hard to say which team we'll face. For us, we know we can't be as sloppy as we were on Saturday night and expect to have a chance against these guys. They have a veteran group of players, and they are well-coached. Those guys will quickly take advantage of our mistakes, so the goal for us this week is to play mistake-free football. We have to continue putting heat on the quarterback, and we can't drop balls like we did against Bossier City. Every snap of the football has to count for something."

BIG KERT BRINGS IT UP THE MIDDLE

Dusters' C/NG Kert Turner has made a huge impact over the last two games, especially on defense. He has racked up 3 sacks, 1 forced fumble, and 5 batted balls in the past two games from his nose guard position on defense. Offensively, he has yet to allow a sack this season.

KEY MATCHUP - QUARTERBACK PLAY

History will be made again on Saturday night, when for the first time in af2 history two starting International quarterbacks will face off in a game. For Steve Panella and J.R. Davies, this won't be the first time the gunslingers have fired bullets on the same field. On November 15, 2003, Panella led his St. Mary's Huskies against Davies and his Simon Fraser Clan in the National Semifinals of Canadian College Football. Panella got the upper hand that night, going 10 of 14 for 149 yards and 2 touchdowns in a lop-sided 60-9 victory. Davies had a solid night as well however, as he went 14 of 29 for 178 yards and 1 touchdown. Both Panella and Davies earned All-Canadian honors that season.

In 2005, Davies played in 5 games for the Dorados, completing 28 of 45 passes for 307 yards and 6 touchdowns with 2 interceptions. In two games of action this season, he has passed for 246 yards with 5 touchdowns and 1 interception.

In 2005, Panella saw action in 9 games, completing 53 of 87 passes for 606 yards and 8 touchdowns with 2 interceptions. As the starter for all 6 Dusters games in 2006, Panella has completed 108 of 197 passes for 22 touchdowns and 0 interceptions.

Savanna Mertz sends a pitch plateward Saturday in a softball game pitting her Pampa Green Team against the Dumas Incredibles. The two teams were among those taking part in the USSSA Tournament at Recreation Park. The tournament was sponsored by the City of Pampa. The Green Team defeated the Incredibles 11-2 and went on to finish third overall.

POYC BASEBALL

Glo-Valve blanks DFB, 9-0

Glo-Valve Service avenged an earlier defeat and white-washed Duncan, Fraser & Bridges Insurance Agency 9-0 Thursday at Optimist Park behind the four-hit pitching of Cody Davis.

Davis dominated the 11-12 Cal Ripken League game stranding eight DFB runners while allowing only one runner to reach third base. He struck out 11 and walked three as Glo-Valve, 8-1, opened up a three game lead over DFB, 5-4. Davis, who has only allowed one run in 22 innings pitched this season, lowered his earned run average to 0.27 in winning his fourth game of the season against no losses.

Glo-Valve wasted no time in taking control of the game scoring five times in the bottom of the first inning. Reid Miller opened with a double. He took third base on an error and scored on a passed ball. Zach Graves walked and came home in front of a triple by Davis. Davis crossed the plate after a wild pitch. Schrade Thompson continued the rally by being hit by a pitch. He advanced to second on a fielder's choice, to third on a wild pitch and scored when Landon Powell was safe on an error. Powell took second on an error and scored after two passed balls.

Miller singled in the second inning for Glo-Valve and was forced at second by Latigo Collins. Collins raced home on a triple by Graves to give Glo-Valve a 6-0 lead.

Glo-Valve wrapped up the scoring in the fourth inning. Taylor Smith reached base on an error. Miller tripled for his third hit of the game scoring Smith. Collins brought Miller in with a single and advanced to third base on passed balls. He then alertly scored on a sacrifice fly line drive by Graves.

Dane Periera pitched for DFB. He allowed seven hits, two walks and hit a batter. He struck out 10.

Shelby Carpenter, Shane White, Zach Murray and Cody McIntyre had hits for DFB.

Glo-Valve's Cory McCarn made the defensive play of the game by snagging a fly ball in center field.

Cink leads Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Stewart Cink shot a 6-under 64 and has the lead after the first round of the Colonial.

At 65 were Bubba Watson, Zach Johnson, Arron Oberholser, Charley Hoffman and Stephen Ames, who briefly got to 7 under before running into trouble. Defending champion Kenny Perry was among a group of eight players at 66.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Natalie Gulbis, Beth Bauer and Hee-Won Han were tied for the first-round lead at the Sybase Classic with 3-under-par 68s.

Suddenly, Astros reeling after fast start

HOUSTON (AP) — All of a sudden, the Houston Astros look nothing like the defending NL champions.

Since opening 19-9 — the best 28-game start in franchise history — the Astros have dropped 10 of 13, capped by a three-game dusting by the San Francisco Giants in which they were outscored 34-5 at Minute Maid Park.

"This is about as bad a series as I can recall," manager Phil Garner said after Wednesday's 10-1 loss. "We didn't pitch it, we didn't hit it, we didn't catch it. That about sums it up."

The Astros allowed at least 10 runs in all three losses and were swept in a three-game series at home for the first time since April 2004.

"We got pummeled," said catcher Brad Ausmus. "There's no other way to say it. The Giants beat the snot out of us."

All three of the Astros' starters in the series — Taylor Buchholz, Wandy Rodriguez or Fernando Nieve — gave up runs in the first inning, and none reached the fifth.

Buchholz and Nieve are rookies, and Rodriguez is in his second year. Garner expected them to struggle at times this season.

But more than ever, the Astros would seem to need Roger Clemens, who's still mulling a return for a 23rd season. The seven-time Cy Young winner is expected to decide by early next month, and the Astros, New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and Texas Rangers are in the running to sign him if he comes back.

Andy Pettitte, one of Clemens' closest friends, talked to him this week but wouldn't speculate on Clemens' intentions.

"I'll leave the odds and everything else up to him to let everybody know," said Pettitte.

For now, it's largely up to Pettitte and right-handed ace Roy Oswalt to keep the Astros afloat.

Pettitte looked as strong as he has all season on Sunday, hurling a three-hit, complete-game shutout against the Rockies. Oswalt, who will start against Texas on Friday, has lost his last two decisions, but his 3.50 ERA still leads the regular starters.

Wilkerson, Rangers drop Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Brad Wilkerson made the most of his first series at Yankee Stadium, working in some sightseeing before helping the Texas Rangers get a much-needed win Thursday.

He hit a two-run homer and Vicente Padilla pitched into the seventh inning in the Rangers' 6-2 victory over the Yankees.

Wilkerson, a six-year veteran who was acquired by Texas in the offseason, hit three homers in his first series against the Yankees in New York, helping the Rangers earn a split of the four-game set.

"The first day I was here, I was really excited to finally play here," he said. "I went out early and went through monument park and just looked around. It's really different how the ballpark is laid out. You can see the ball really good in this ballpark and that helped me a lot."

Kevin Mench and Rod Barajas also had two hits for the Rangers. Padilla (4-3), whose last start was May 10 against Minnesota, allowed two runs and three hits in 6 2-3 innings.

"He had a couple of days extra rest,"

Rangers manager Buck Showalter said. "I thought he was real strong, strong with his fastball."

Yankees starter Jaret Wright (2-2) pitched well in the first six innings but ran into trouble in the seventh when the Rangers broke through for four runs. Mench led off with a single and Wilkerson then hit a 2-2 pitch from Wright into the first row of the upper deck in right for his seventh homer.

Wright hit Mark DeRosa with a pitch before he was pulled for Scott Erickson. A walk and a sacrifice forced the Yankees to play their infield in and Gary Matthews Jr. hit a slow roller to second baseman Robinson Cano, who bobbled the grounder and threw the ball past catcher Kelly Stintnet.

DeRosa and D'Angelo Jimenez scored to give Texas a 4-0 lead. Cano's off-target throw was New York's second error of the game and its 17th miscue in its last 11.

"It doesn't bother me because we're working at it," manager Joe Torre said.

Birdie putt

Brother Derek, Sweetnorthernstaint pose Preakness challenge for Barbaro

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Kentucky Derby loser isn't necessarily a Preakness loser.

Afleet Alex proved that last year by rebounding to win not just the Preakness but the Belmont Stakes. Point Given did the same thing in 2001.

And while 20 of the past 22 Preakness winners also ran in the Derby, more than half — 12 — didn't win the first of the three Triple Crown races.

With that in mind, the trainers of Brother Derek and Sweetnorthernstaint hope history is on their side Saturday.

"There are a lot of nice horses that get an opportunity to run in the Derby every year that don't always get the best chance to win the race," said Sweetnorthernstaint's trainer, Michael Trombetta. "I'm going to give favoritism to the horses who went a mile-and-a-quarter and are shortening up."

A nine-horse field and a two-week turnaround could be the great equalizers for rivals of Kentucky Derby winner Barbaro. At least that's what Trombetta and Brother Derek's trainer, Dan Hendricks, are hoping.

Barbaro's win in the Derby was so overpowering against a 20-horse field that Brother Derek (fourth) and Sweetnorthernstaint (seventh) are the only Derby rivals coming back to face the handsome colt at Pimlico.

Their roles are reversed this time — Barbaro is the even-money favorite, Brother Derek is 3-1 and Sweetnorthernstaint 4-1. In Louisville, Brother Derek was the early favorite and Sweetnorthernstaint went off as the top choice on Derby day.

Barbaro ran his unbeaten record to 6-for-6 with a 6 1/2-length victory in the Derby — the largest winning margin since Triple Crown winner Assault won by eight lengths 60 years ago. While Barbaro and Edgar Prado had clear sailing in the 1 1/4-mile race at Churchill Downs, his chief rivals were compromised nearly everywhere on the track.

Brother Derek, leaving from the far outside No. 18 post under Alex Solis, was forced to stay wide most of the race but still made a late run and dead-heated for fourth. Sweetnorthernstaint, with Kent Desormeaux aboard, got off to a slow start, made a run around the far turn but faded to seventh.

"I always said the Preakness should be our race more than the Derby," Hendricks said Thursday at the Pimlico stakes barn.

"You've got to run in the Derby with a top horse. The Preakness should be a cleaner-run race. There is more certainty. You can run your race and not worry about four or five speed horses."

A win for Barbaro in the Preakness would set up a seventh Triple Crown try over the last 10 years in the Belmont Stakes. The son of Dynaformer will be the sixth unbeaten Derby winner entering the Preakness — the last three won (Smarty Jones in 2004, Seattle Slew in 1977 and Majestic Prince in 1969).

It's been 28 years since Affirmed became the last Triple Crown champion, and there aren't many rooting against Barbaro.

"I hate to see him not win it this year because I think he is a deserving horse to win it," Hendricks said. "But we're out to win. That's all there is to it."

Desormeaux, who won the Preakness in 1998 with Real Quiet, is looking forward to another chance at Barbaro.

"Barbaro may be the best horse that ever looked through a bridle, but I would at least like to challenge him with an unaltered trip," the jockey said.

Trombetta's confidence is growing, too. "Time heals all wounds," the Maryland-based trainer said. "It takes a little bit to get over it. I got a good horse and I got him home healthy. We're working real hard to win this race."

The rest of the field for the 1 1/16-mile race is filled with new shooters, with Withers winner Bernardini (8-1) and Gotham winner Like Now (12-1) the most formidable of the group. Long shots include Greeley's Legacy (20-1), Diabolical and Hemingway's Key (both 30-1) and Platinum Couple (50-1).

Michael Matz, who trains Barbaro, has kept a low profile at Fair Hill Training Center 60 miles away in Elkton, Md. But his colt has thrived in the tranquil setting, his gallops looking more powerful every day.

"We're probably not as fresh going into the Preakness than we were in the Derby, but the three of us are all in the same boat," Matz said, referring to Brother Derek and Sweetnorthernstaint. "But Barbaro's a big strong colt and I'm sure he'll hold his own."

Unlike the Derby, the three favorites will line up next to each other in the starting gate: Brother Derek breaks from the No. 5 gate, Barbaro from No. 6 and Sweetnorthernstaint from No. 7.

Struggle

Brandon Backe was the No. 3 starter when the season began, but he's been out since April 13 with a strained right elbow. He's expected to return by the middle of next month, leaving Buchholz, Rodriguez and Nieve to hold down the back of the rotation.

Garner has no immediate plans to mix up the order.

"I don't think the way the rotation is set up is the problem," Garner said.

It's not the only thing contributing to the Astros' struggles, either.

The Astros won six of their first seven series, but they've now been swept twice this month — the first time by Colorado at the start of a 1-6 road trip.

The problem in Denver was a sputtering offense. The Astros were shut out for the first time this season at hitter-friendly Coors Field and had a 15-inning stretch without a run.

The Astros beat the Rockies 12-2 last Friday, but they've scored a total of nine runs in their last five games, losing four. The latest drought has coincided with Lance Berkman's hamstring injury — he sat out the last four losses and homered in the game Houston won.

Berkman has 13 homers and 40 RBIs, but Garner thinks there's more to the Astros' hitting woes than Berkman's absence.

Preston Wilson, signed in the offseason to add power to the lineup, has only three hits in last 19 at-bats and hasn't homered since April 28. Jason Lane, also expected to produce runs deep in the batting order, has five hits in his last 23 at-bats and only 17 RBIs.

"Since our 12-run game," Garner said, "we haven't done much."

Everything unraveled against the Giants this week amid the Barry Bonds sideshow. Garner insisted his team wasn't distracted by the slugger's pursuit of Babe Ruth's home run mark, but the Astros seemed preoccupied by something, making uncharacteristic mistakes.

Center fielder Willy Taveras dropped two fly balls. Lane let a line drive by Bonds skid past him to the wall. Sure-handed SS Adam Everett, who had not made an error all season, bobbled a grounder.

"We weren't even in these games," said backup first baseman Mike Lamb. "It's disappointing because we're not that bad."

Garner isn't close to panicking yet. After all, the Astros started 15-30 last season and reached the World Series.

"If it happens a couple more games, I'll be really upset," Garner said. "But I think we can bounce out of it."

Rangers

"I mean it's something I don't expect to continue because we certainly make it a lot tougher on the pitching staff if we continue to give the opposition extra outs."

Johnny Damon hit a two-run single off Francisco Cordero in the bottom half but Cordero rebounded to strike out Derek Jeter with runners on first and second to get out of the inning.

Akinori Otsuka struck out the side in the ninth in his first appearance since he allowed Jorge Posada's game-winning homer in the ninth inning of New York's 14-13 win Tuesday.

The Rangers added two runs in the ninth on Barajas' third homer of the season and Mench's RBI groundout.

New York's injury-riddled outfield took another hit in the fifth when Bubba Crosby left the game with a strained right hamstring after lining a single to right. Crosby is listed as day to day.

Sluggers Gary Sheffield (left wrist and hand) and Hideki Matsui (broken left wrist) are already on the disabled list.

"It's definitely frustrating," Damon said. "We lose perhaps two of the best outfielders in the league when Matsui and Sheffield go down and then Bubba, ... a guy who can do all the little things to help you win, he's down too."

Torre said the team may put Crosby on the disabled list depending on how he feels on Friday.

Wright retired the first eight hitters he faced before Barajas singled with two outs in the third. He worked six-plus innings, giving up six hits and three runs.

UT's Osterman gunning for college title to go with gold medal

AUSTIN (AP) — Cat Osterman keeps her Olympic gold medal in a shadow box in her apartment. She puts it on whenever she's asked to speak to youth softball players or Special Olympics events.

The Texas pitcher's father had wanted her to put it in a safe-deposit box, but she was having none of that.

"What's good is it if you don't get to reflect back and see it every day," she said.

The only thing that's missing is a national championship ring to wear with it.

Osterman is winding down a college career in which she owns the NCAA strikeout record and has twice led the Longhorns to the Women's College World Series.

But a national championship, a goal she had long before she ever dreamed of being an Olympian, has eluded her.

The Longhorns (49-7) host the Austin Regional beginning Friday with Utah (38-19), Indiana (29-23-1) and Texas-San Antonio (37-12).

"I wanted to bring the first national championship to Texas softball," Osterman said. "I feel like I've accomplished a lot of the other things I set goals for. I was All-American, Olympian (and) player of the year. I've checked off all the things I wanted to do, and winning a national championship is the one thing I haven't been able to accomplish yet."

Osterman has already reached the pinnacle of her sport. After leading Texas to the WCWS as a sophomore, she left for a year to join the U.S. national team.

She was the youngest player and only collegian on the squad that won the gold medal at the Athens Olympics in 2004. She pitched a complete game shutout of Japan and six more shutout innings in a win over Taiwan.

Coming back to college took some getting used to. Class and study halls got in the way of going shopping and hanging out at the lake.

It didn't take long to find her groove again. She led Texas to a 49-13 finish last season and won her second USA Softball college player of the year award.

Osterman's dominance stands out in a sport where even average pitchers rule the game from a mound just 43 feet from home plate.

While strong pitchers can overpower hitters with a good fastball, Osterman does it with finesse, mixing speeds and moving the ball around with an array of pitches that rise, drop and curve toward both parts of the plate.

She has a career record of 130-23 with 2,146 strikeouts. She is 32-2 this season with an ERA of 0.42 and 511 strikeouts in 232 innings.

But her last outing was a shocker: a 5-0 loss to Texas A&M defeat in the second round of the Big 12 tournament. Osterman gave up two home runs, including a grand slam.

It was a stunning loss for a team used to watching their star pitcher mow down opposing batters, not get ripped like a rookie.

"That never happens to her," said junior catcher Megan Willis, who called the loss a "flake."

Osterman says the two home run pitches were "total meat"

"I'm human. I'm not happy with it (the loss), but I'm over it," she said.

Willis expects Osterman in top form this weekend.

Texas coach has knee surgery

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas football coach Mack Brown had knee joint replacement surgery and is recovering well, a school spokesman said Friday.

Spokesman Bill Little said Brown had surgery on his left knee Tuesday and should return home soon. Little declined to disclose the doctor who performed the surgery or the hospital where Brown went.

Brown had his college playing career cut short at Vanderbilt and Florida State in the 1970s because of knee injuries which required multiple surgeries.

The defending national champion Longhorns open the season Sept. 2 against North Texas.

Terry suspended from Game 6

DALLAS (AP) — The Mavericks-Spurs series took another wild turn Thursday, with Dallas guard Jason Terry getting suspended from Game 6 for punching former teammate Michael Finley while chasing a loose ball in the closing seconds of Game 5.

Terry and Finley jostled with 3.4 seconds left in San Antonio's 98-97 victory on Wednesday night. Terry wound up on his back, grasping the ball, but Spurs forward Manu Ginobili got a hand on it, too, to force a jump ball.

While officials were trying to sort out who had possession, Finley was visibly angry and needing to be restrained by teammates. He appeared to be making a fist and telling his teammates that someone had punched him.

Nothing was called at the time. Neither team mentioned it during postgame interviews.

"Unbelievable," Mavs owner Mark Cuban wrote in an e-mail to The Associated Press. "Michael Finley does a pile driver with his hip to Jason's head while he is on the ground. Jason is on his back with Ginobili laying on top of him."

"No question he tried to get Finley off of him and he should be fined for that. But to suspend him is questionable."

Terry missed a 15-foot jumper in the closing seconds, allowing San Antonio to keep alive its title defense.

The Mavericks still lead the series 3-2. They have another chance to advance to the conference finals with Game 6 at home. If the Spurs win, Game 7 would be Monday night in San Antonio.

Wheat prices climbing amid global drought

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A global drought in major wheat-producing countries coupled with the lowest world grain stocks in a quarter century are fueling rising wheat prices amid predictions of shortages, farm economists said.

"It has been a steady climb," Mike Woolverton, a grain marketing economist at Kansas State University said Thursday, adding that he expects prices to continue rising.

Among the latest indicators is a 10-day forecast for the Great Plains showing hot and dry weather, he said.

Wheat prices have surged to well over $5 a bushel on major commodity exchanges since the Agricultural Statistics Service released its forecast last week for the nation's winter wheat crop, down 12 percent to 1.32 billion bushels.

Hard red winter wheat, the premier wheat used to make bread, is forecast to be down 23 percent. The last time wheat prices surpassed $5 a bushel was 2002.

But not since the winter of 1995-96 have prices stayed at that level or higher for months, said Terry Kastens, an agricultural economist at Kansas State University.

Prices then briefly hit $7.50 on the futures markets after drought and massive freezes in Kansas.

Prices for wheat have been on a steady upturn as drought decimated U.S. winter wheat crops in the nation's Southern Plains, where the hard red winter wheat is grown.

terminally ill. While passing his bedroom door, his mother heard the young man crying.

She made inquiry, and he said, "Mother, I have spent my life for pleasure and the devil but nothing for Christ, and I am going to meet Him empty handed."

The boy, like the thief on the cross, only had time to ask for forgiveness and mercy and to testify to the public as to whose side he was on. In Jesus' game, there are 10 members to one sitting on the sidelines knowing almost nothing about Jesus' rule book on how to play to win. (See Matthew 22:37)

Dear reader, isn't it time that Jesus' team plays to win? How many will make a renewed commitment to Jesus? He paid such a high price to make you a clean and powerful member of His team.

Don't seek church membership until you have first sought forgiveness from your offended Savior. The next time you sit in the bleachers watching the game that you are so anxious about, ask yourself if you are playing a fair game with Christ. Get serious about living a clean and dedicated life for Christ.

Church members who are careless about adhering to high standards of purity and prayer make poor team members with Christ. The five foolish virgins were rejected and never had the door opened to them because they were careless and did not keep oil in their lamps. (Matthew 25:1-12).

Friends, that is a sad possibility that I hope to help you escape. Please get on your knees and get serious about being a good team member for Christ.
