Judge orders man to keep quiet during hunting season

ITALY, Texas (AP) — An Ellis County man has been ordered by a judge to keep the noise down on his property during deer season after he was found guilty of a misdemeanor charge of disrupting hunters.

An Ellis County jury found Galen Morris, 38, guilty on Tuesday of violating one count of the state Sportsman's Rights Act. He was found not guilty of a second, similar charge.

The judge in the case ordered Morris to make sure his children don't disturb hunters on a neighboring property by playing loud music or driving four-wheelers before noon or after 4 p.m. during deer season, which starts in November. Morris was also issued a $250 fine and a year of probation.

"I kind of got mixed feelings out of it," Morris said. "Basically what they're saying is, during deer season you got to keep your kids indoors. You could sneeze and scare a deer off."

The Sportsman's Rights Act makes it illegal "to intentionally interfere with another person lawfully engaged in the process of hunting or catching wildlife."

Peggy Carroll, part owner of a ranch neighboring the Morris property, said the court's decision is fair. She said she hopes the noise restrictions and threat of jail time will keep it quiet for the hunters who use her land.

$3 billion pledged for global warming

NEW YORK (AP) — British business mogul Richard Branson said today he would invest about $3 billion to combat global warming over the next decade.

Branson, the billionaire behind the multi-platform Virgin brand, said the money would come from 100 percent of the profits generated by his transportation and airline sectors. It will then be invested in efforts to find renewable, sustainable energy sources in an effort to wean the world off of oil and coal.

Branson made the announcement on the second day of the Clinton Global Initiative, a conference of business, political and non-profit leaders hosted by former President Clinton that debuted last year.

"Our generation has inherited an incredibly beautiful world from our parents and they from their parents," Branson said at a news conference with Clinton at his side. "We must not be the generation responsible for irreversibly damaging the environment."

Clinton praised Branson as one of the most "creative" and "committed" people he had ever known.

The commitment ensures that the conference, which brings people together to brainstorm on solutions to global issues, would more than meet its goal of matching last year's pledges of more than $2 billion.

Branson, 56, started Virgin as a music retailing company, then expanded into fields including Virgin Airlines in 1984 and now has dealings in train travel, wireless communications — even space flight.

Branson, knighted by the Queen of England in 1999, is also known for extracurricular activities including sailing and hot-air ballooning.

The initiative began Wednesday with a slew of world figures, from first lady Laura Bush to Pakistan President Pervez Musharraf.

The session today featured Afghan President Hamid Karzai and Queen Rania al-Abdullah of Jordan.

Jobless claims increase in latest report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key gauge of future economic activity fell for a second straight month while the number of newly laid-off workers filing for unemployment benefits rose last week, providing further evidence that the economy has slowed.

The Conference Board reported today that its Index of Leading Economic Indicators dipped by 0.2 percent last month following a similar 0.2 percent fall in July.

Seven of the 10 components of the index contributed to the August decline. The index has been down five of the last eight months as the economy has flashed numerous signals of a slowdown under the impact of rising energy prices, high interest rates and a cooling housing market.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department said that 318,000 workers filed claims for jobless benefits, up by 7,000 from the 311,000 benefit applications filed the previous week. It followed two weeks of small declines in claims.

Wal-Mart to test generic drug prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc., facing pressure from critics who call its employee health care coverage inadequate, plans to begin selling nearly 300 generic prescription drugs for a sharply reduced price of $4 for a month's supply.

The world's biggest retailer said Thursday that it will test the program in Florida and it will include 291 generic drugs available for conditions from allergies to high-blood pressure. The plan is available to its employees and customers, including those without insurance.

Wal-Mart officials said the reduced price represents a savings to the customer of up to 70 percent on some drugs.

"Wal-Mart is taking this step so our customers and associates can get the medicines they need at a cost they can afford," Bill Simon, executive vice president of the company's professional services division, said in announcing the plan at a Tampa, Fla., store.

The program will be launched on Friday at 65 Wal-Mart, Neighborhood Market and Sam's Club pharmacies in the Tampa Bay area and will be expanded to the entire state in January.

Simon wouldn't be specific about why Florida and specifically the Tampa Bay area was chosen for the roll-out of the initiative, saying only that there was a need for it there.

Atlantis

thermal tiles which protect the shuttle from blasting heat. Four other unidentified objects, including a possible garbage bag, floated near the shuttle over the next day.

In a news conference, Griffin downplayed the litter in space, saying debris can slip out of the shuttle cargo bay because people are not perfect. He and launch director Mike Leinbach said Atlantis came back as clean, if not cleaner, than Discovery in its two previous landings.

The unplanned drama threatened to overshadow what had been a nearly flawless mission filled with strenuous spacewalks and rigorous robotics work that placed the space station back on a path to completion after its long hiatus. The crew of five men and one woman were the longest-trained in NASA history, because they were originally supposed to fly to the space station in 2003. But the Columbia accident kept them grounded.

The mission was the first of 15 tightly scheduled flights needed to finish constructing the half-built space lab by 2010.

"We are rebuilding the kind of momentum that we have had in the past and that we need if we're going to finish the space station," said Griffin.

NASA and its international partners of Russia, Europe, Canada and Japan must finish building the space station before the U.S. space agency ends the shuttle program in 2010 with plans to return to the moon in a new vehicle. The massive, 25-year-old shuttles are the only spaceships large enough to haul construction parts to the space lab.

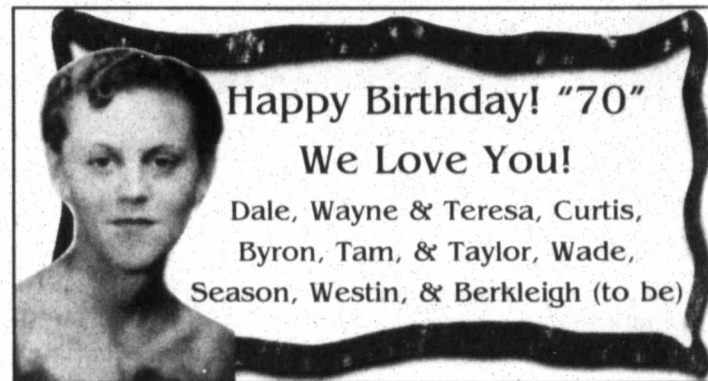

The next flight in the construction sequence is set for December.

The mission was book-ended by delays. The launch was scrubbed four times in two weeks because of a launch pad lightning bolt, Tropical Storm Ernesto and problems with the electrical system and a fuel gauge. Griffin called those snags "just routine life in the space business."

With all the postponements, NASA negotiated with the Russians to squeeze out one last chance in its launch window. The Russians were worried the trip would interfere with their Soyuz trip to the space station with a paying customer, Iranian-born space tourist Anousheh Ansari, a Dallas businesswoman. The Soyuz lifted off Monday, just hours after Atlantis had undocked from the space station.

Less than 24 hours after Atlantis undocked, an oxygen generator on the space station overheated and spilled a toxic irritant, forcing the three-man crew to don masks and gloves in the first emergency ever declared aboard the 8-year-old orbiting outpost.

Beware of non-edible pet refreshments

Do you realize we are now square dab to the left of the middle of National Dog Week — Sept. 20 through Sept. 26? Merilee Kern with Kern Communications just made me privy to this information in an electronic news release.

Local support of this singular occasion is clearly lackadaisical. I have not observed a single flyer or heard one community announcement commemorating this weeklong event.

Let's hope national efforts are more energetic.

Luckily, the folks at "About.com" are very much in the spirit of the week. On its Family Crafts page, About suggests several projects to make the week more significant to your family.

"Biscuit Dog" tops the list of the recommended projects. Biscuit Dog is project No. 1 and something called "Dog Ears Headband" is dead last. (Other projects include Blues Clues Costume, Dalmatian Costume and Dog Coloring one s Skyla Bryant News Editor designed to look like a dog bone), felt, wiggle eyes, glue, pompoms and red seed beads.

Biscuit Dog requires a dog

Instructions for this project are available at About's Web site.

I was disappointed to find that Biscuit Dog involved the use of non-edible items.

How, may I ask, is Rover or Susie to enjoy dog week if is that?

I am unsure if felt, pompoms or wiggle eyes are poisonous. Some dogs — like my, dumb, I mean, my sweet dog — could no doubt chew them up and, er, spit them out with absolutely no problem, but red seed beads?

Come now, that's a recipe for disaster.

I don't know about you, but I'm not trying the Heimlich maneuver on either my Labrador or my mastiff. I just don't see either of them allowing such an operation during a choking attack.

They would probably think I was trying to finish the job off the bead had begun instead of trying to help them. My dogs are very suspicious.

Of the two projects, Dog Ears Headband is definitely the most economical. It only requires construction paper, crayons or markers, and a stapler or tape. Instructions and a photo for this project are, of course, available at the Web site.

However, I recommend an activity that interests Rover or Susie as well as the rest of the family — and whatever you do be sure to include the cat!

Quicken has evolved many times ...

Whenever a family buys a computer, their reasons can run the gamut — Internet access, educational programs for the kids, games, and finances. While the first three are pretty easy to figure out, many adults get in a quandary about the last one. How, exactly, do you "put your finances" on the computer?

Two of the most popular programs used to solve that problem are Intuit's Quicken and QuickBooks.

Quicken
If anyone ever asked me what computer program I have used the longest, I would have to reply, "Quicken." I've been using this program since the days of DOS, when "color monitor" meant choosing between orange or green text. Back then, a 10 megabyte hard drive was "infinite in capacity" and, as Bill Gates quoted back then, "No one will ever need more than 640k of RAM."

Quicken has seen many changes over the years, most in the form of interface design. Basically, Quicken was designed for home finance. If all you want to do is "balance your checkbook," get Quicken. You don't have to worry about "debits" and "credits," accounts receivable versus payables, or double-entry accounting. The data entry screen even resembles a paper check to ease your transition into the electronic world.

Intuit offers four "flavors" of Quicken: Quicken Basic, Quicken Deluxe, Quicken Premier, and Quicken

Home and Business.

If all you need to do is balance your checkbook, get the $29.99 Basic edition. While lacking many of the bells and whistles of the more expensive versions, it does an excellent job at balancing your checkbook, paying your bills, and tracking your spending.

If you need to monitor your investments, prepare for tax time, and save for financial goals, choose the $49.99 Deluxe version.

Eric Spellmann
Columnist

Quicken Premier ($69.99) includes "wizards" that help you maximize your investment portfolio, find tax-saving opportunities, and prepare for retirement.

Quicken Premier Home and Business ($79.99) is almost a hybrid between QuickBooks and Quicken. While containing all of the features of Premier, it adds the ability to customize invoices, track accounts payable and accounts receivable, and provides wizards for business taxes.

QuickBooks
Ask most accountants what financial software they recommend to their clients, and they will respond with

"QuickBooks."

What it lacks in ease of use, it makes up for in its comprehensive feature list. And as with Quicken, QuickBooks comes in a variety of flavors: Simple Start ($99.95), Online (19.95/month), Pro ($199.95), and Premiere ($399.95).

Without going into a lengthy explanation of the hundreds of features included in these packages, let me sum it up this way:

Simple Start: Everything you need if you are just starting out.

Online: If you dread installing or upgrading software, this option is for you. You simply pay $19.95/month and access your finances over the Internet. Your records are stored in a highly secure database run by Intuit. All software upgrades are seamless since you are accessing THEIR server. But, if your Internet access is flakey ...

Pro: Adds multi-user capability and integration with Outlook, Excel, and Word.

Premiere: The "Full Meal Deal." Lots and lots of freebies, including the "Complete Guide to QuickBooks" on CD, incredibly detailed report customization, and the ability to password protect a closing date.

In a nutshell, if you need invoicing, inventory tracking, or payroll management, get QuickBooks. Otherwise, stick with its easier-to-use brother, Quicken. Find out more at <http://www.intuit.com>.

See you in Cyberspace!

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ Sept. 8

The Odessa American on guarding the National Guard:

National Guard outfits have long served varied and valuable roles whenever emergencies have arisen. It can be argued, however, that lately the Guard has become a convenient crutch for officials who are overwhelmed, as well as an easy source of labor for political pet projects.

It's becoming more and more apparent that our loyal Guard needs protection itself. For this reason it is crucial to maintain some separation between the Guard and the president, especially while the current White House occupant continues to deploy Guardsmen on dangerous whims.

Texas Gov. Rick Perry has added his name to those of all other governors on a letter to congressional leaders, opposing a provision in the current military funding bill that would give the president and secretary of defense direct authority to activate and deploy National Guard troops.

Currently, Guard outfits serve under the governor of each state in which they reside. In times of emergency, the president has asked for the troops, and the respective governors have dutifully called up the Guard and made them available.

National Guard troops aren't only helping in Iraq and Afghanistan.

President Bush has sent Guard troops to the U.S.-Mexico border to quiet rabid nationalists in his own party.

It also maintains one more check on the president's ability to maintain power by having armed troops at his immediate disposal. President Bush has been systematically working to erase checks and balances to his power, checks that were placed specifically to guard against tyranny by protecting the people from any branch of government that might assume too much power.

The current system of utilizing our National Guard has worked for two centuries. It isn't broke and doesn't need fixing. Congress should heed the governors of all U.S. states and territories, and scratch the presidential call-up provision from House Resolution 5122.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Proud of My Friend" in Wisconsin (8-7), to give their friends who have just become U.S. citizens an American flag, was great. To make the gift "extra" special, "Proud" could first have the flag flown over the U.S. Capitol building, and then present it to their friends with a certificate stating the day it was flown. All congressional offices provide this service for their constituents, charging only for the cost of the flag and shipping. (Flags can be purchased for as little as $15.) Please encourage these folks -- and any others who would like to mark a special occasion, memorial or honor -- to contact their congressional representative. And if they are not sure who their representatives are, they should "fire up their computers" and visit www.house.gov and enter their ZIP code. (Most representatives have forms and information on flags on their Web sites.) -- FORMER CONGRESSIONAL STAFFER IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR FORMER STAFFER: Thank you not only for your kind words, but for providing so much information for Dear Abby readers about how to order these special keepsakes. While many of the readers who commented about that letter agreed that an American flag is an appropriate gift for any new citizen, I also received some other worthwhile suggestions. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: While your idea was a good one, a more appropriate gift than a flag might be a copy of the Declaration of Independence or the Bill of Rights. These can be purchased as posters and framed, or found on the Web in a form suitable for hanging. If someone is handy with Print Shop, it can be produced on his or her own PC. I believe that people tend to forget that it's not the flag that we pledge to uphold when we swear in for public office, military duty or as new U.S. citizens, but the Constitution. While the flag is a common symbol, it is not truly what America is all about. -- REMEMBERS DUTY TO THE CONSTITUTION

DEAR ABBY: I would consider it a nice gesture if someone were to make me a scrapbook containing a few "Americana mementoes" (images of America or pictures with historical significance) sprinkled with a few traditions or family cooking and baking recipes. Romanians have a deep appreciation for the culinary arts, so one could never go wrong with giving them an all-American cookbook, or better yet, an all-American dessert cookbook! -- RIGHT HAND RAISED IN LOMA LINDA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: "Proud of My Friend" asked about a suitable gift for friends who have just become U.S. citizens. The oak is our national tree, so if they have the space, perhaps an oak tree for their yard would be a lasting reminder of their new country. -- LINDA IN TUSTIN, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I loved your idea about giving the newly sworn U.S. citizens an American flag. The family can hang it proudly, or buy a triangular display case to keep it in. The cases are advertised in catalogs and are very handsome. -- DONNA IN THE USA

DEAR ABBY: I was recently invited to a birthday party for one of my friends. Although I had a gift, I had not considered buying a card to go with it. My mother said it is rude to give gifts without a card. What do you think? -- DANA IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR DANA: It isn't "rude" to give a gift without including a card or note with it; it is impractical to do so without identifying the giver. How else will the recipient know whom to thank?

Pampa High School running back Chase Harris stands tall under pressure while carrying the ball on a run to the left against Amarillo High. Harris and Harvester teammates will visit Borger Friday night for a showdown with the Bulldogs at 7:30.

Owens may not miss any games after all

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Thanks to the timing of the bye week, Terrell Owens might not miss any games because of his broken hand.

Owens broke the bone leading to his right ring finger Sunday night and had a plate surgically attached to it Monday. Although Owens' hand was swollen and aching Wednesday, Dallas Cowboys coach Bill Parcells said he's optimistic the receiver will be back at work next week and catching passes a week from Sunday against Tennessee.

"I certainly wouldn't rule it out now," Parcells said. "Maybe five days from now I might, but I wouldn't rule it out now. ... I know we're looking to try to get him moving around pretty good in the next day or so. So we'll see where we are."

Owens did not speak with reporters Wednesday, but said Sunday he'd be out two to four weeks. A return against the Titans would be 13 days after the surgery.

Pampa Junior High splits with Westover Warriors

7th Grade Pampa Gold 32, Westover Park 6

The Pampa Junior High School 7th grade Green and Gold football teams went to Amarillo Tuesday to play Westover Park. In the first game, the Gold team took advantage of some breaks early and Ryan Pearson had a 2-yard run for Pampa's first touchdown. The extra-point run was good by Jesse Cruz.

After some unsuccessful drives, Cruz had a 45-yard run for the second touchdown of the afternoon. Pearson ran the extra point. At the half it was Pampa 16, Westover 6.

The second half started with a Pampa drive that was capped off by a 5-yard TD run by Cruz. The extra point run by Trevor Morgan was good. As time was running out in the fourth quarter, Collin Killgo ran into the end zone from four yards out. He also took care of the extra point.

Pampa Green 20, Westover Park 0

In the second game, the Green team started out slow but gained momentum by the start of the second quarter.

Latigo Collins had a 40-yard run for Pampa's first touchdown. The extra-point run was no good.

Pampa got a punt block a short time later but was unable to move the ball.

Pampa held Westover right before half and finally got a safety with 52 seconds left. Pampa led at the break, 8-0.

The third quarter was relatively quiet for both teams. However, in the fourth, Pampa's Reid Miller passed to Trevor Smith for a 35-yard touchdown. The extra point run again failed.

The final score of the game came at the end of the fourth when Miller ran 17 yards around the left end for a TD.

Pampa plays again Tuesday when they host Plainview. The Gold team game will begin at 4 p.m., followed by the Green team at 5:15.

8th Grade Westover 12, Pampa Gold 6

Both Pampa Junior High 8th grade teams fell to the Westover Park Warriors Tuesday at Harvester Field.

The Gold team found itself in another hotly contested ball game with Westover as they were the week before against Borger.

The Warriors were able to take advantage of two Gold team fumbles that led to the touchdowns, eventually giving the Warriors the win.

The Gold did put together a great drive in the fourth quarter with good runs from Kendon Horst and Joseph Meshelay to get the Gold team in striking distance from the Warrior 15-yard line. On a fourth-and-10 from the 15, Meshelay executed a play-action pass, lofting the ball into the end zone where Brian Gayton gathered it in for a Pampa TD. The point after failed.

Westover 26, Pampa Green 0

The Pampa Green team ran into a very talented Westover Warrior squad. The Warriors were not only big, but fast. Westover scored in each quarter of the game, going on to a 26-0 win over Pampa.

The Green team was never really able to get on track offensively, even though there were great runs by Reid Bradley, Brandon Voyles, Garrett Ericson and Trent Carter.

Defensively, there were some good performances and great plays made. Walter Johnson and Juan Martinez did a good job on the outside and Bradley made a great interception of a Warrior pass in the third quarter.

Missed tackles were the downfall for the Green team's defense as many times they would have the Warriors for a loss or short game only to have the ball carrier escape and go for positive yards.

Pampa plays again Tuesday in Plainview. The Gold team at 4 p.m. Green team at 5:30.

High School Football

The Pampa High School freshman team will host the Borger Bulldogs today at Harvester Field. Kickoff is scheduled for 5 p.m.

The junior varsity team will also host Borger at Harvester Field today. That game is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

The varsity team (1-2) will travel to Borger Friday night to hook up with the Bulldogs. Game time is set for 7:30.

Lane a load in A&M backfield

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M coach Dennis Franchione isn't concerned about Jorvorskie Lane's weight.

The 274-pound running back is the other team's problem.

"He hasn't lost any of his speed and ability to cut and run, and I don't care what he weighs if he can still do that," Franchione said.

The 6-foot sophomore was stopped behind the line on a fourth-down play late in the Aggies' 28-24 win over Army on Saturday, but that doesn't happen much. Heading into Saturday's game against Louisiana Tech (1-1), Lane leads the Big 12 with eight touchdowns, all of them bruising, straight-ahead runs.

"I'm glad I don't have to tackle him," said A&M's 267-pound defensive end Chris Harrington.

Lane rushed for 101 yards and three touchdowns against Army. He's emerged as the Aggies' No. 1 back because of an undisclosed injury to senior Courtney Lewis and the unreliable hands of freshman Michael Goodson, who has fumbled four times in two games.

"Me and Coach Fran have a little eye-to-eye deal that he can trust me and I can trust him," Lane said.

During fall workouts, Franchione was concerned about Lane's weight and considered holding Lane out of the season opener. Then he watched some videotape of Lane nimbly dodging tacklers — when he wasn't running over them.

"He is an unusual athlete," Franchione said. "I don't know if he can dance, but I'm betting he can because he is light on his feet. He'll slip once in a while and fall because he cuts off the wrong foot — but not too often."

CATCH IF YOU CAN: Franchione said Chad Schroeder is still his choice to return punts even though he fumbled one that led to an Army touchdown last week.

Schroeder has returned eight of the 10 punts by A&M's opponents.

"I'm really disappointed in myself I didn't get the catch on that one," Schroeder said. "But it's something I've gotten better at. I'm comfortable back there."

FANTASTIC FIVE POLL

OU, Oregon instant replay faux pas

Should last week's game between Oklahoma and Oregon be stricken from the record books and treated as though it was never played due to the controversial call by the officials who were suspended for one game?

Stevens

Not at all. The human element is what makes sports exciting. However, replay in the NFL and at the NCAA D-I level has created a sense of officiating fear. Calls are now made knowing they (officials) have the safety net of replay. College has actually adjusted its game to allot for the influx of reviews as plays can be double-checked at any time. To accommodate for that, the NCAA has decided to start the game clock as soon as the official whistles the ball in play, not at the snap. This is mechanizing the game. In one way, almost taking the fan out of the picture. There is something to be said for a bad or questionable call and the uproar of an angry home crowd to fire a team up. Now, they have to break the momentum of the game and wait. At least the NFL puts the monkey on the coach's back, with the exception of the final two minutes of each half.

Baseball is a great example how the human element still makes the game exciting. Can you imagine what the late Billy Martin would have been like with replay? B-O-R-I-N-G.

Yes it was a bad call. Yes the replay officials 'upstairs' got it wrong. However, most coaches will take some time prior to the post-game press conference to gather themselves, then step to up to the podium, look in the cameras and say, "Sure it was wrong. But you know, we should have never allowed them to get in a position to win."

Hooper

To begin with, the human element of sports has been taken away with instant replay. I hate it! The referees make mistakes just like the players and coaches do during a game so why should they be judged any differently? The call WAS a bad call and the apology by the NCAA and suspension of the officials was warranted. But I don't think the game should be stricken from the record books. They would have coaches from years past calling and wanting national championships erased and division games deleted from the books. There will always be controversy in officiating and even instant replay. It's a part of football that makes it fun to be a fan. Oklahoma should have put themselves in a situation to win the game without kicking an inside kick with less than 1:00 to go in the game. Sorry OU fans, I know its not fair but it happened.

Boring

The officials are a part of the game. I am not in favor of changing the books due to the fact that history would be changed. I think you must live with the game as played, good or bad. The system works. The officials were reprimanded. These are the things that keep the sport exciting. This type situation is also the reason there is instant replay. The game is played by humans and officiated by humans. Leave it alone.

Smith

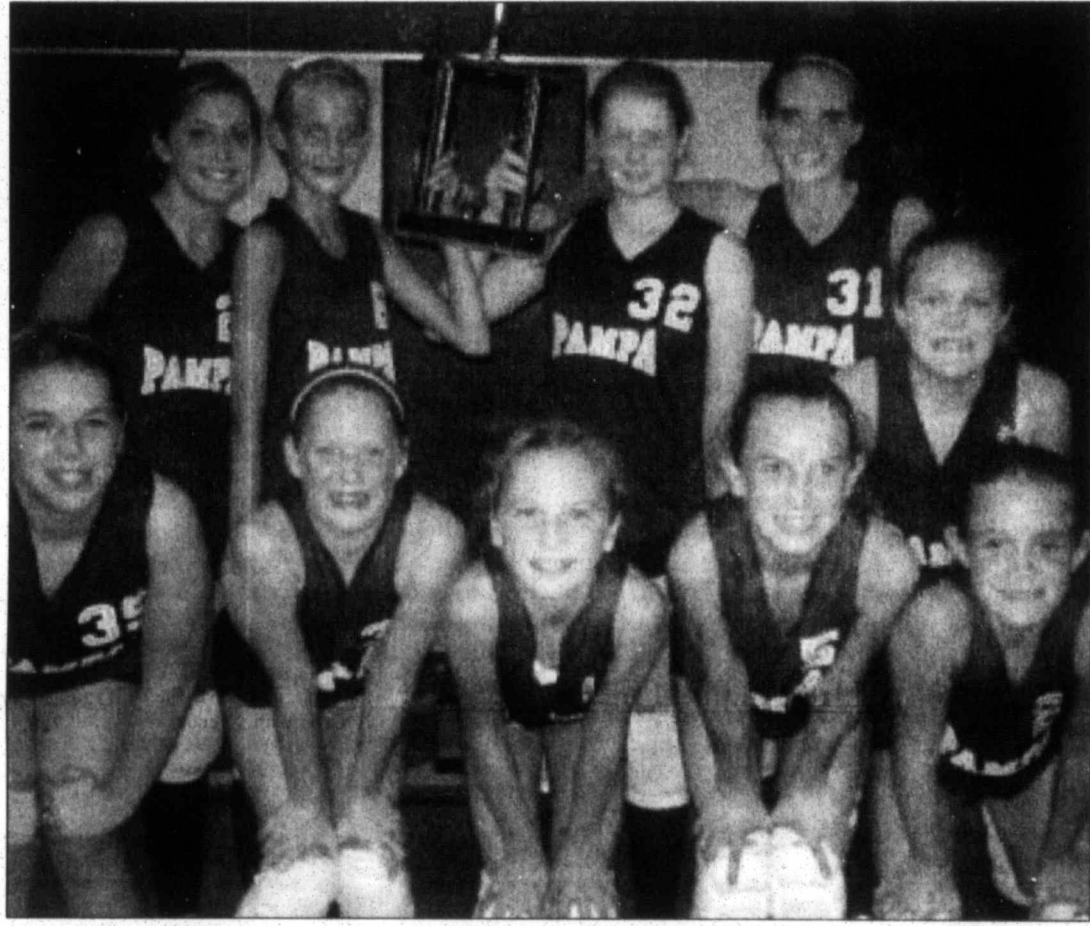

Of course not. To do so would set a new precedent for the game and that would prove detrimental.

Stokes

Heck No! Oklahoma is not the first team to lose a game on an official's call. Plus, they had several other opportunities to win that game and did not cash it in.

Note: Ray Boring and Shane Stokes tied in last week's picks. So who gets the Easy's Pop Shop bottomless cup this week? Perhaps they need two straws.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Sept. 22, 2006:

You could discover that this year turns out much different from what you expected or, for that matter, from what anyone could have anticipated. The key will be to remain flexible and not allow your preconceived ideas to run you. Your openness could help initiate a very special period in your life. Many of you will question your life choices. Once you come through this year, you will be much more confident and happy. If you are single, someone could be beating down your door before you know it. Are you ready for a commitment? If you are attached, you might find your bond evolving into a different type of connection or caring. LIBRA can sometimes test your patience.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You might sense a change in the wind, though you might not be sure how it will manifest. Honor your energy levels. Sometimes you push yourself way too hard. Don't make a needless mistake because you are tired. Tonight: Early to bed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Though you might feel flat out of ideas, you will replenish your thinking and creativity given time. A special person might be entering your life soon who could serve as a muse. Be open to possibilities. Nothing is impossible. Tonight: Let off steam.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Sometimes you see life differently from those in your immediate world. Events in the near future will open your eyes to why a certain someone thinks the way he or she does or makes certain choices. Let your energy guide your plans. Tonight: You're hot stuff.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Sometimes the less said the better. You could be far more overworked and exhausted than you realize. Understand where others are coming from. Give up judging so much, and you will feel better as well. Tonight: Listen to the woes of a family member.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ What you realize, though you might not like knowing, is that nothing stays the same. You do have more control over your finances and interpersonal relationships than you might believe. Stop and think rather than have a knee-jerk reaction. Tonight: Dinner out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ You might be ready for some big changes, whether you realize this fact or not. You do need to think before you make a major decision. You also need some time, as situations can and will change radically. Tonight: Talk up a storm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★ If you feel uncomfortable with a situation, just say so. Not everything is as it seems. Your point of view is different from many. Let time and events play out. Avoid all major decisions for the next few days. Tonight: Nap and then decide. Keep it light!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ You might be a bit put off by someone in your immediate circle. He or she might be acting unusually strange. Give this person the benefit of the doubt. You really don't know what is going on or where you are heading. Tonight: Play it low-key.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ You might not understand what is going on around you, though you will have to bend with the circumstances. You might not always have the "right" or only idea. Situations will change quickly during the next few weeks. Tonight: In tune with your friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ How you see a situation could change radically because of dealing with someone in charge or a higher-up. You don't always need to understand what is going on around you. In fact, a more easygoing approach will work. Tonight: As you wish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Others reveal much more of themselves than in the past. You need to understand what is happening, although answers will not be immediately forthcoming. Think positively about the possibilities you would like to make into probabilities. Tonight: The offbeat choice works.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Work with others as best as you can. You could be overly tired and exhausted. Do understand your reactions, but also know that you don't need to react to them. In fact, process your feelings rather than act on them. Tonight: Out with a special pal.

Knight weighs in on controversial call that cost OU a win at Oregon

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OKLAHOMA CITY — Texas Tech basketball coach Bob Knight, whose Red Raiders lost to Oklahoma on a controversial call three years ago, said he knows how fans feel about wanting a forfeit after OU's loss to Oregon on Saturday.

Knight called for Oklahoma to forfeit its basketball game with Tech on Jan. 20, 2003, when the Sooners won 69-64 in overtime at Norman after two clock controversies in the final seconds of regulation.

Video replay later showed the game clock started late after OU in-bounded the ball on the game-tying drive.

"Maybe now those people at Oklahoma understand what I was talking about," Knight told The Oklahoman.

"Had Oklahoma forfeited that game against us like I suggested, they would have gotten far more positive publicity out of that than if they had gone to the Final Four that year. Now I guess the 'duck' is swimming in the other pond."

Oregon scored two touchdowns late to beat Oklahoma 34-33, including the game-winner that came after the Ducks recovered an inside kick.

Video replay showed Oregon touched the ball before it went the required 10 yards, but the replay official did not overturn the call.

The replay official, Gordon Riese, who was suspended by the Pac-10 for one game, requested a leave of absence for the remainder of the season, the league announced Wednesday.

Golden Spread Boy Scout Council gearing up for annual popcorn sale

AMARILLO — The Golden Spread Council of the Boy Scouts of America will launch its annual Popcorn Sale Saturday, Sept. 23 in the area. The sale is set to conclude Oct. 23.

Monies raised through the sale support Scouting activities throughout the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles.

"The popcorn sale will not only raise needed funds for local Scouting programs, but will also help teach Scouts salesmanship, customer service and fiscal responsibility," said Brick Huffman, council Scout executive.

"We appreciate the support that all of our Scouting activities have received from the area and wish to express our thanks to everyone who participates," said Bob Rathbun, council president. "When a Scout comes to your door, please welcome him, and what better way to help him than through the purchase of some of the finest popcorn you can buy."

For more information about the sale or the local council, call (806) 358-6500 or log onto www.goldenspread.org on the Internet.
