Happy birthday to us, we're 100 this year

The Pampa News is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

The newspaper was first named The Crony and was published weekly by Miami newspaperman L.L. Ladd beginning in April 1906.

Ladd later moved The Crony's printing press from Miami to Pampa, where it was housed in the rear of a land office at 123 S. Ballard.

Subscriptions were $1 per year, and 250 subscribed to The Crony that first year.

In 1907, pharmacist Joe Smith bought The Crony from Ladd and renamed it The Pampa News, which continued to be published weekly.

Smith had learned the printing business from his brother in Indiana before coming to Texas in 1867. He had a newspaper and drugstore in Bonham before he moved to Pampa.

Smith's son, Joe Jr., learned the newspaper trade from his father and worked for papers in Iowa and Illinois before joining the elder Smith at The Pampa News in 1917.

Father and son owned the paper until 1926, when it was sold to J.L. Nunn and David Warren. Nunn and Warren changed The Pampa News from a weekly to a semi-weekly newspaper, and in 1927 they created

The Pampa Daily News. The name has since reverted to The Pampa News because it is not published on Saturdays.

Warren left the partnership in 1934, and Nunn and his son Gilmore operated the paper until 1936.

That year, R.C. Hoiles, a Santa Ana, Calif., publisher, bought the Pampa newspaper and added it to his chain of papers known as Freedom Newspapers.

The Pampa News was owned by the Freedom chain until 1997, when it was bought by PTS, Inc.

The newspaper had several homes in Pampa before settling at its current location at 403 W. Atchison. Smith moved the paper from the back of the land office to the east end of the First National Bank Building, 100 N. Cuyler. Successive moves were to the rear of Perkins Pharmacy, then to 123 W. Foster, and finally 322 W. Foster before its current home, where it was moved in the early 1950s.

Publishing methods have changed since The Crony was first printed on a hand press. The linotype, or "hot" type, system followed, in which entire lines of type were set on a metal slug by use of a keyboard.

In November 1970, the paper was converted to off-set printing, in which a

Chicken debate leads to frivolity

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Steve Volan drew guffaws and cackles when he walked into City Council meeting dressed in a yellow chicken costume.

The councilman's outfit led to a string of jokes before the serious business of debating whether chicken-keeping within city limits should be allowed got under way.

During Wednesday's discussion, 21 audience members spoke in favor of allowing residents to raise egg-laying chickens and four spoke against the ordinance. Volan joined the 5-1 council majority in voting to recommend the ordinance for final approval.

The word "chicken" was uttered more than 200 times and council member David Sabbagh jokingly asked whether three unrelated birds would be allowed to co-roost — a reference to a city ordinance restricting the number of unrelated adults allowed in single-family homes.

Opponents of chicken-keeping said they fear that neighbors with chickens would impact property values, and threaten the public health.

California wildfire nearly contained

BEAUMONT, Calif. (AP) — The Santa Ana winds propelling a wildfire that killed four firefighters had all but disappeared this morning, leaving officials confident that the blaze would be soon be fully corralled.

"The weather has shifted in a very, very favorable way," Capt. Don Camp, a California Department of Forestry spokesman, said early Monday. "The winds are mostly gone and we're getting an onshore flow that's keeping the temperatures down."

The blaze, which authorities believe was deliberately set, still threatened wilderness plagued by drought and filled with dead trees. But fire officials said they believed they could get the blaze under control by Monday evening if the winds stay away.

The favorable conditions have helped firefighters bring containment of the fire to 90 percent. Since it started around 1 a.m. Thursday, the fire has burned 63 square miles, or 40,200 acres, northwest of Palm Springs. The fire destroyed 54 structures — 34 homes and 20 other buildings.

Fire officials were still concerned with the blaze's southeastern flank, which borders a wilderness area that hasn't burned in more than 30 years and has been devastated by a bark beetle infestation that has killed hundreds of trees.

"This is the only place the infrared shows any activity at all. This is also the place with the heaviest fuels we have," said fire analyst Timothy Chavez.

Last week, a shift in the winds turned deadly when a gust pushed a wall of flames around five firefighters trying to protect a house. Four of the firefighters died, while another was hospitalized with serious burns over most of his body.

Pablo Cerda, 23, remained in critical condition Monday at Arrowhead Regional Medical Center. He underwent surgery Friday to remove damaged skin.

About 50 of Cerda's relatives gathered at the hospital, praying for him.

"They want everyone to know that Pablo's dream was to help people, and on Thursday morning, that's just what he was doing — protecting and serving," said Eddie Cortez, a family spokesman.

Vigils were held at several Southern California churches and fire stations for Cerda and to pray for the families of the fallen firefighters. Killed were Mark Loutzenhiser, 43, of Idyllwild; Jason McKay, 27, of Phelan; Jess McLean, 27, of Beaumont; and Daniel Hoover-Najera, 20, of San Jacinto.

Blood drives planned in Pampa

A second drive is scheduled from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. Nov. 9 at Coronado Nursing Home.

The Bloodmobile will be in the parking lot at 1504 W. Kentucky.

Every donor will receive a football sweatshirt and football stress ball. In addition, they will be entered into a drawing to win a trip to see the Dallas Cowboys play Detroit in Dallas on New Year's Eve.

To make an appointment, call 1-877-574-8800.

James Bowie provided fodder for budding journalist

James Bowie trafficked in slaves, participated in land fraud and drank too much — but he did not lack for grit.

Eight years after his death in the Alamo, the New Orleans Picayune carried an article titled "Col. James Bowie" that offered insight into his personality and preserved for posterity an incident reflecting on his mettle.

The author of the newspaper piece, a roving Irish-born adventurer and journalist named Matt Field, did not get off to much of a start: "We are in possession of a little anecdote highly characteristic of those remarkable men — Bowie and his brother Rezin, which has never, we believe, yet appeared among the various printed relations of their battles, dangers, bravery, etc., that have met the public eye."

Field went on to relate the tale, which after his telling languished for another century before John E.

Sunder collected Field's literary productions for the 1960 University of Oklahoma Press book, "Matt Field on the Santa Fe Trail."

The story Field told about Bowie happened "among the wild prairie regions of Texas." Field does not offer a more specific location or date, but his anecdote is an artifact of a fight Bowie and his brother, along with six other men and a boy, had with Indians on Nov. 21, 1831, in what is now McCulloch County. The Bowies had left San Antonio earlier that month in search of the fabled Lost San Saba Mine.

Not only did Field back into his story, he rambled on a good bit about Bowie before he finally got to the point. In doing so, he did at least offer some insight into the famous man's character.

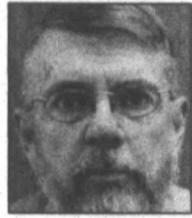

Field viewed Bowie as "undoubtedly a man of vigorous intellect, as well as of firm and flintlike nerve. His character is one of bold and captivating individuality, and would form a magnificent study for some native novelist."

Despite a well-deserved reputation as a fighter, Field continued, Bowie came across as "bland and gentle, so much so as to heighten materially the interest of his character. He spoke with slow and impressive intonation, nicely articulating every syllable he uttered, and with strict yet easy politeness observing every form of delicacy and good-breeding." Unless he had a drink or three under his belt, or faced an enemy.

Bowie and his brother, at the head of a "brave little band" in the "Texan wilds," ran into a large number of Indians. Field called them "Camanches," but Bowie reported them to have been Tawakonis. (Their leader was Tres Manos, a moniker he picked up because of the mummified hand that hung from his neck.)

Seeing that the Indians badly outnumbered his party, Bowie "maneuvered his men as completely to conceal his inferiority of force, and, securing a position for defense, he very coolly awaited the moment for action.

Field continued: "A favorable chance for execution soon occurred, and a few American rifles began to blaze away upon the savages in such a manner as to convince them that the party told about double its actual number. Still the Camanches were appearing in all directions, flying about in great force, and the condition of the little American party became extremely critical."

Though all the Americans possessed long rifles, Rezin Bowie had the best weapon, "a perfect prince of shooting irons." Not only that, Rezin "was as sure of his mark as of lifting food direct to his mouth."

When James noticed that Rezin had propped his rifle across a log, had his eye to the sight and his finger posed on the trigger, he drew an imaginary line with his eyes from the end of Rezin's rifle to his target: The obvious leader of the Indian war party. Near him rode an Indian who, judging from his plumage and bearing, carried equal or nearly-equal rank.

"Brother Rezin," Bowie said, "do you not see these two red ras-

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 30, the 303rd day of 2006. There are 62 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 30, 1938, the radio play "The War of the Worlds," starring Orson Welles, aired on CBS. (The live drama, which employed fake news reports, panicked some listeners who thought its portrayal of a Martian invasion was real.)

On this date:

In 1735, the second president of the United States, John Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1944, the Martha Graham ballet "Appalachian Spring," with music by Aaron Copland, premiered at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., with Graham in a leading role.

In 1945, the U.S. government announced the end of shoe rationing.

In 1953, Gen. George C. Marshall was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. Dr. Albert Schweitzer received the Peace Prize for 1952.

In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb, the "Tsar Bomba," with a force estimated at about 50 megatons.

In 1961, the Soviet Party Congress unanimously approved a resolution ordering the removal of Josef Stalin's body from Lenin's tomb.

In 1975, the New York Daily News ran the headline "Ford to City: Drop Dead" a day after President Ford said he would veto any proposed federal bailout of New York City.

In 1979, President Carter announced his choice of federal appeals judge Shirley Hufstедler to head the newly created Department of Education.

In 1985, the launch of the space shuttle Challenger was witnessed by schoolteacher-astronaut Christa McAuliffe, who died when the spacecraft exploded after liftoff in January 1986.

In 1995, by a razor-thin vote of 50.6 percent to 49.4 percent, Federalists prevailed over separatists in Quebec in a secession referendum.

Ten years ago: After a four-hour trial, a Chinese court sentenced pro-democracy activist Wang Dan to 11 years in prison for "conspiring to subvert the Chinese government."

"Cuando amor no es locura, no es amor." (When love is not madness, it is not love.)

The growth of demagoguery in the U.S.

A lot of Americans delude themselves that they live in a democracy and that they control the government. Actually, we don't live in a democracy, and we control the government for only one day every two years.

The form of our government is a republic. That means we don't get to decide issues by referendum, at least not at the federal level. Instead, we elect representatives for two-year terms and senators for six-year terms. During their term of office, they can do pretty much what they want, whether we like it or not. There is no recall authority in our Constitution, and in fact, letters to representatives and senators don't have much effect.

But on one day only every two years, control of the government reverts to the people. On Election Day, according to republican theory, we judge our representatives and senators. If we approve of what they've done, we re-elect them. If we disapprove, we elect new ones.

Every two years, all 435 members of the House and one-third of the Senate must stand for re-election. Thus, the Constitution gives the American people the power to instigate a peaceful revolution. Can you imagine the political impact if 435 representatives and a third of the Senate were replaced in one election? Politics in America would never be the same.

Alas, we have corrupted our political process. Mistake No. 1 is universal suffrage. Voting should be considered a privilege that has to be earned, not a right. People so ignorant they couldn't tell you the name of their state capital should not be allowed to vote.

Before a foreigner can become an American citizen, he has to pass a test about the country's history and its form of government. We should require passing that same test before anyone is issued a voter-registration card. Any native-born American who can't pass a test routinely passed by people from foreign countries doesn't deserve to be allowed the privilege of voting.

It is from the fertile ground of ignorant voters that demagoguery grows like a kudzu vine. The worst kind of politicians want to keep expanding the vote, some wanting to include convicted felons, and others even noncitizens. We should be restricting the vote, not expanding it.

A second failure is the fault of the press. It is an axiom of self-government that if the people are provided with accurate information, they can make the right decisions. The contrary is also true — without accurate information, it's impossible to make the right decisions.

The media ought to be all over their respective representatives and senators like bears on honey. Alas, most papers that have a Washington bureau staff it with people who seem to think that it is demeaning to

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ Oct. 23
El Paso Times on big business breaks:

We're seeing an example, maybe it's a rare example (you decide), of an American "big business" helping out the little guy.

At a time when our federal and state governments aren't doing much to help control the ever-increasing costs of prescription medicine, or health care in general, one of the nation's biggest companies has stepped up and dramatically lowered its prices.

Last week, Wal-Mart announced it will expand its program of $4 prescriptions for generic drugs throughout 15 states. Texas is among them. El Paso is included.

The program was initiated in Florida and covers a month's supply of 143 generic drugs, in a variety of dosages, for $4 apiece.

Critics say this is just a stunt to get customers into their stores. Perhaps. Actually, probably. But a $4 prescription is a great deal when one can figure the same drug is likely to cost $40, or $140, somewhere else.

Wal-Mart's Web site shows the company has 3,900 stores in the U.S. and another 2,700 in more than a dozen other countries. It purchases the goods it sells in such large lots that, as some critics may exaggerate, it can almost name the price it will pay its suppliers per lot of product. In any case, it's a lower price than smaller companies, who buy in smaller lots, generally must pay.

Thus, companies that buy in tremendous bulk can sell cheaper.

Thus, they can likely come out ahead in the long run, such as Wal-Mart selling its prescription drugs for $4 a monthly dosage.

What might happen here, and we hope it does, is other large companies following suit. Already Target Corp., the country's No. 2 discounter behind Wal-Mart, has said it would match the Florida prescription prices.

In some cases, it's not good for a local economy when one large retailer

Aaron Urbanczyk, from left, and Bobby Bichsel cut sausage in preparation for the annual Polish sausage dinner at White Deer. Both Urbanczyk and Bichsel are descendants of White Deer pioneers. This year's meal will be served from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday in the parish hall of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Parish to present annual dinner

WHITE DEER — The annual Polish sausage festival at White Deer will be staged from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in the parish hall of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Barbecue and steamed sausage will be served along with potato salad, cole slaw and pinto beans. Dinner tickets are $8 per adult and $4 for children 10 and under.

The event, inspired by a Polish priest named Father Zienta in 1938, was first held in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the parish.

Sausage was steamed in large black kettles and served on wooden blanks in the pasture in back of the church.

The Sacred Heart Altar Society organized the first dinners. The festival has been observed in the fall every year since except for a few years during the Second World War.

This year's meal is under the direction of John Alden Kotara, dinner chair. Some 4,200 pounds of sausage, 700 pounds of cole slaw and potato salad, and 250 pounds of pinto beans are being prepared for the affair.

Take-out dinners and bulk sausage will be available.

cover stories with a local angle. They'd rather traipse behind The New York Times and the network faces to cover the president. What the media should be doing is reporting every vote for or against an issue, where their congressional members live, who they hang out with, who finances their campaigns and what are their opinions on the daily issues. Most of the time, most newspapers tell their readers zip about their delegation.

Finally, there is the fault that lies with the people. Despite a lack of both danger and threats, time and time again we see only a small percentage of people turn out to vote. It's apathy that keeps people at home in most cases, and the cure for that is, miss two elections and your voter-registration card is revoked.

To put it in terms of a fantasy story, there is one magic day that occurs every two years. A door is opened, and you can enter to exercise your chance to influence or change your government, then the door closes and won't open again for another two years.

Rezin told his brother not to hurry him. "If I pull one down, brother, the other will get out of my reach," he continued. "But wait till they lap, and then I'll pull them both down."

Rezin waited patiently until both Indians lined up on an imaginary line extending from the end of his rifle.

As James Bowie later told it: "Rezin pulled the trigger — and, as I am an honest gentleman, they both fell from their horses!"

The Indians had managed to kill one member of the Bowie party, but both brothers left the field with scalps intact, living "to pass through many perilous adventures after that."

can sell products at such low prices that the smaller retailers, including the mom and pops, go out of business because they cannot compete. It means consumers have fewer choices of where to shop.

In this case, though, such a great deal on prescription medicine helps everyone.

We hope this move proves to be a catalyst in forcing private business, including the large prescription-drug companies, to bring down what are now outrageously high prices in the health care and prescription medicine fields.

Economy: Consumer spending up, incomes growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers kept a pretty firm grip on their wallets in September, boosting spending by just 0.1 percent, the smallest increase in 10 months.

The Commerce Department's report, released today, showed that consumers had a solid appetite for big-ticket goods such as cars and appliances last month but they cut spending on nondurable goods such as food and clothes.

The increase in spending in September, down from a 0.2

percent rise posted in August, matched a 0.1 percent rise in November of last year. The last time spending was weaker was in August of last year, when consumers trimmed purchases by 0.1 percent.

Americans' incomes, the fuel for future spending, rose by a brisk 0.5 percent in September. That was up from 0.4 percent in August and marked the biggest gain since June.

The income and spending figures aren't adjusted for inflation.

When consumer spending is adjusted for inflation, which is now easing, the spending picture looked better. Spending rose by a 0.4 percent in September, a turnaround from a 0.1 percent dip in August.

September's spending increase was less than the 0.3 percent gain that economists were expecting. Income growth, however, turned out to be stronger than the 0.3 percent increases that economists were forecasting.

When consumer spending is adjusted for inflation, which is now easing, the spending picture looked better. Spending rose by a 0.4 percent in September, a turnaround from a 0.1 percent dip in August.

Even though consumers spent respectably during the July-to-September quarter as a whole, the economy grew at a feeble pace of 1.6 percent, the slowest in more than three years. The culprit in the slowdown: the slumping housing market, which shaved just over 1 percentage point from overall economic activity.

With the Nov. 7 elections around the corner, the latest snapshot of national economic health fueled fresh debate between Republicans and Democrats competing with each other to hold sway at the ballot box.

Economists, meanwhile, are hopeful the current October-to-December quarter will turn out to be better and that the housing slump will not be a significant drag on overall economic activity. In addition, lower energy prices should help out, taking pressure off consumers and businesses and making them more inclined to spend and invest.

KFC phasing out use of trans fats from its menu offerings

NEW YORK (AP) — KFC said it is phasing out trans fats in cooking its Original Recipe and Extra Crispy fried chicken, Potato Wedges and other menu items. Trans fats are believed to raise consumer cholesterol levels.

The restaurant chain said today it will start using zero trans fat soybean oil systemwide with the rollout expected to be completed by April 2007. KFC said many of its approximately 5,500 restaurants already have switched to low linolenic soybean oil, replacing partially hydrogenated soybean oil.

Crispy Strips, Wings, Boneless Wings, Buffalo and Crispy Snacker Sandwiches, Popcorn Chicken and Twisters also are part of the menu change.

The announcement came just ahead of a New York

City Board of Health public hearing on a plan to make New York the first U.S. city to ban restaurants from serving food containing artificial trans fats.

Artificial trans fat is so common that the average American eats 4.7 pounds of it a year, according to the Food and Drug Administration. But health officials say trans fat belongs in the same category as food spoiled by poor refrigeration or rodent droppings.

The switch was applauded by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, which sued the Louisville, Ky.-based KFC in June over the trans fat content of its chicken.

KFC is part of Yum Brands Inc., which also owns the Taco Bell and Pizza Hut chains.

Hey Goblins, Ghosts, and Ghouls!
 Remember these simple Halloween Rules!

- 1 Walk, slither, and sneak on sidewalks, not in the street.
- 2 Look both ways before crossing the street to check for cars, trucks, and low flying brooms
- 3 Cross the street only at corners.
- 4 Don't hide or cross the street between parked cars.
- 5 Wear light-colored or reflective-type clothing so you are more visible. (And remember to put reflective tape on bikes, skateboards, and brooms, too!)
- 6 Plan your route and share it with your family. If possible, have an adult go with you.
- 7 Carry a flashlight to light your way.
- 8 Keep away from open fires and candles. (Costumes can be extremely flammable.)
- 9 Visit homes that have the porch light on.
- 10 Accept your treats at the door and never go into a stranger's house.
- 11 Use face paint rather than masks or things that will cover your eyes.
- 12 Be cautious of animals and strangers.
- 13 Have a grown-up inspect your treats before eating. And don't eat candy if the package is already opened. Small, hard pieces of candy are a choking hazard for young children

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am 38, a mother of three, and my husband and I have been married 16 years. I'm an only child. Daddy passed away 10 years ago. Now my mother, who is 74 but in good health (according to her doctor, whom I talk to regularly), insists that she "must" come and live with me. My husband has made it clear that she's not welcome. Mamma has caused untold trouble with virtually every family member over the span of her lifetime, and is cruel and verbally abusive. Her presence in our home would not be positive for our children because she is critical, demanding and impossible to please. I talk to her daily (we live seven hours apart), and every day she tells me how "mean" I am because I won't allow her to come and live with us. Abby, I am currently working on my MBA. I would not be where I am without the love and support of my husband and three children. I cannot ask them to bear the burden of my mother, but her constant nagging is making me physically ill. What do I do? I would deeply appreciate and respect your advice. — TORN APART IN TENNESSEE

DEAR TORN APART: For the sake of your family, do not allow yourself to be guilted into letting your mother move in. Offer to help her find a nice residence for active seniors or an assisted living facility if she feels she needs one. (Her doctor might be able to recommend some good ones.) Your mother appears to be a master at guilt and manipulation, and you may need professional help to fend her off. You are both adults, so stop letting her treat you like a naughty child. If necessary, make an appointment with a psychologist to help you through this difficult period. P.S. Daily phone calls seem excessive. You will feel better if you do not talk to your mother as often as you have been.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl, and for almost three months I have been e-mailing a 16-year-old boy I'll call Derek. Derek tells me how much he likes me and how much he would love to date me. I feel the same way, but when I talked to my parents about it, they did not approve. The reason is Derek's sexual past. He was having sex in his last relationship, which lasted a little over a year. My parents are concerned that he will expect that from me. I explained to Derek that if we were to date, I would not go that far. He respected that and promised that he would never force me to do anything I wasn't comfortable with. I explained this to my parents, but they still don't trust him. What can I do to show them I'm trustworthy enough to date an older guy and I can make good decisions for myself? — NOT A CHILD IN CASCADE, MONT.

DEAR NOT A CHILD: Your parents know you are not a child, and their concern is not that you are untrustworthy. They are concerned about Derek's trustworthiness, and whether he is mature enough to make the right decisions regarding his relationship with you in light of the fact that he was having sex with his former girlfriend for more than a year. Although it is nice that Derek wouldn't force you to do anything you weren't comfortable with — which could be regarded as rape, by the way — you should ask yourself if you would both be ready to deal with the consequences if you did "get comfortable." At 14, you might be ready to socialize as part of a group, but not one-on-one. And one way to earn your parents' trust is to put some trust in their decisions.

Romo, Cowboys take hard-earned win in Charlotte vs. Panthers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tony Romo was worried he might be nervous in his first NFL start. Thanks to a book he recently read, he came out poised and confident.

Romo rallied the Cowboys from a 14-point deficit, throwing for 270 yards and a touchdown, and Julius Jones ran for 94 yards and a score to help the Dallas beat mistake-prone Carolina 35-14 on Sunday night. The Cowboys set a team record with 25 fourth-quarter points.

"I actually read a book a couple of months back, and I can't tell you (who wrote it), but there was a part in it, the guy said he went into a big situation in a key important game," Romo said. "He goes 'I expected this big crazy thing and I walked out there and it was just like it had always been. It was just like practice. You've done it all week, you've seen all the coverages. Just get it to the guy who's open.'"

Which Romo did by spreading the ball around and taking advantage of his mobility. He led the Cowboys (4-3) back, with poise, using a variety of short passes to a number of receivers. The Cowboys, who had given up 18 sacks in six games, allowed only two against Carolina (4-4).

"I know it was a big decision to make," Dallas coach Bill Parcells said of the decision to bench veteran and less-mobile Drew Bledsoe, ending his streak of 70 consecutive starts. "It was a hard decision to make. I'm glad it worked out temporarily anyway."

The comeback picked up steam early in the fourth quarter. Facing a third-and-12 from the Carolina 21, Romo sidestepped pressure and fired a 16-yard pass to Jason Witten. It led to Mike Vanderjagt's 24-yard field goal that cut the Panthers' lead to 14-13.

On the ensuing kickoff, Sam Hurd ripped the ball from Brad Hoover and recovered the fumble at the Carolina 14. On the next play, Jones ran untouched up the middle for the touchdown. The Cowboys added the 2-point conversion when Romo faked a draw and threw a pass to Terrell Owens to make it 21-14.

"He played very well. He managed the game," said Owens, who had nine catches for 107 yards. "He can play on the national spotlight. We just need to go out and make plays for him."

The Panthers, meanwhile, imploded in the fourth quarter, committing three turnovers in their second straight loss and their sixth straight regular-season defeat to Dallas. "I apologize for all the people who paid for tickets," Panthers coach John Fox said. "We dropped balls. We fumbled balls. We didn't tackle. It's probably as poor of 15 minutes that I've ever seen."

Marion Barber took advantage of the miscues with touchdown runs of 3 and 14 yards late as Dallas coach Parcells won a game after trailing by 14 points in the first quarter for only the second time in his career.

Romo completed 24 of 36 passes and had one interception, which led to Steve Smith's 24-yard touchdown run that made it 14-0.

Duke accuser 'talking crazy'

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The woman who said she was raped after performing as a stripper at a Duke lacrosse team party was clearly impaired and "talking crazy" afterward, the second dancer at the party said in an interview broadcast Monday.

"The trip in that car from the house ... went from happy to crazy," Kim Roberts told ABC News, which aired the interview on "Good Morning America" Monday and posted details on its Web site. "I tried all different ways to get through to her."

Roberts, who has previously called the rape allegations a "crock," left the party with the accuser and drove her to a nearby grocery store. Unable to get the accuser to leave her car, Roberts said she pushed on the woman's arm and leg to try to force her out.

At that point, Roberts said, the accuser said: "'Go ahead, go ahead. Put marks on me. Go ahead. That's what I want. Go ahead.' And it chilled me to the bone."

Durham County District Attorney Mike Nifong declined to comment Monday when asked about Roberts' comments.

While Roberts said she feels that detail should be considered at trial, she is worried it will lead people to make assumptions about what happened at the party.

"It's going to solidify their opinions so much, that they're not going to want to hear the other aspects of the case, which I think are just as important," she said, adding, "It's going to make people not listen to any other part of the story."

The accuser, a student at North Carolina Central University, told police she was raped in a bathroom by three men at a March 13 off-campus team party. A grand jury indicted three players on charges of rape, kidnapping and sexual offense; all three have strongly declared their innocence.

Roberts' story of what happened at the house has changed over several interviews. In April, Roberts told The Associated Press she was not in the bathroom and therefore couldn't say if a rape occurred, but she said those at the party were guilty of something other than underage drinking. In her single police interview, Roberts said the rape allegations were a "crock" and that she was with the accuser the entire time they were at the party, according to documents filed by the defense.

Roberts has since said the two women were separated at various points during the party.

Nifong said during a court hearing last week that he and his staff still hadn't interviewed the accuser about the facts of the case, leaving that to police, and on Monday he reiterated that his responsibility is to direct the investigation, not conduct it.

Titans pull off win in Houston

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vince Young didn't post spectacular numbers against hometown Houston, nor did he beat the Texans singlehandedly.

Doesn't matter. The Tennessee Titans are very happy he was on their side Sunday.

As for the Texans — who now have an idea of what to expect from the rookie they passed over because they already had David Carr — well, they sure could've used his skills.

Young ran for a 20-yard touchdown and threw for another in helping the Titans beat Houston 28-22 Sunday for a second straight victory. It's Tennessee's first winning streak since the end of the 2003 season — a span of 39 games.

His teammates credit Young with boosting the Titans' confidence. Young now is 2-2 since taking over as the starter, and both of his TDs came on third down on the Houston 20.

"Guys feed off him because he's calm and relaxed and easygoing," Titans running back Travis Henry said. "He just wants to go out there and make plays, and I think that has a lot to do with this football team's swagger these last couple or three weeks."

Titans coach Jeff Fisher understands what Young brings, even though he only ran for 44 yards and threw for 87 more.

"You say, 'How did we pull it off?' He made some key plays. The keys with his legs, the touchdown run is something that we want to see," Fisher said.

The Texans (2-5) missed their first chance at topping last year's victory total after winning last week. Carr, the reason the Texans drafted defensive end Mario Williams with the first pick overall in the draft, watched most of the second half from the bench after his third turnover.

Carr got angry with Houston coach Gary Kubiak, even though Kubiak had warned his quarterback that he would pull him after another turnover.

"I demand that who ever plays that position protect the ball, and that's what I just told David," said Kubiak, who also said Carr will be his quarterback against the New York Giants.

Carr apologized after the game to his teammates, the coaches and Texans owner Bob McNair.

"Obviously, standing on the sideline there I reflected on a lot of things," Carr said. "It was tough for me."

Sage Rosenfels nearly rallied the Texans from a 21-3 deficit in the third quarter, throwing three TD passes. Houston out-gained the Titans 427-197 on offense and held the ball for more than 36 minutes.

But an onside kick went straight to the arms of Titans receiver Bobby Wade, who also caught a 20-yard TD pass from Young despite playing with a sprained shoulder. The Titans ran out the clock for the victory.

Young finally admitted after the game that this opponent meant a little more to him.

"It means something to me, my family and all the fans back home in Houston, but at the same time, it meant the most here," Young said with a smile. "The Tennessee Titans wanted to get another victory coming off the bye."

Steelers, Seahawks not looking very super this season

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Steelers and Seattle Seahawks aren't looking very super these days.

The teams that met in the last Super Bowl are quickly losing sight of next February's big game. At least Seattle, which lost 35-28 at Kansas City, still is tied for first place in the NFC West, albeit at 4-3. The Seahawks have lost two straight.

Pittsburgh sank to 2-5 with a 20-13 loss to equally lowly Oakland. The defending champion Steelers trail Baltimore by three games in the AFC North.

Seattle actually led 28-27 late in the game before Larry Johnson scored his fourth touchdown, a 3-yard run, and the Chiefs (4-3) added a 2-point conversion. Damon Huard, playing with a sore groin muscle, completed 17 of 25 passes for 312 yards and a touchdown. "We made it hard on ourselves at the end, but came back and overcame some obstacles and put it away," Johnson said. "We gave them more chances than they needed."

Pittsburgh was even more generous, particularly Ben Roethlisberger. Both of Oakland's touchdowns came on interception returns, a 100-yarder by Chris Carr and a 24-yarder by Nnamdi Asomugha. The Raiders also had five sacks, 2 1/2 by Derrick Burgess.

"I'm embarrassed about the way I played," said Roethlisberger, who was coming off a concussion suffered last weekend. "I'm letting the whole team down. It just seems like one guy makes mistakes and that's me. ... In my wildest dreams, I didn't think I'd be playing this bad."

Elsewhere, it was Indianapolis

34, Denver 31; Atlanta 29, Cincinnati 27; Baltimore 35, New Orleans 22; Chicago 41, San Francisco 10; Cleveland 20, the New York Jets 13; San Diego 38, St. Louis 24; Jacksonville 13, Philadelphia 6; Dallas 35, Carolina 14; the New York Giants 17, Tampa Bay 3; Green Bay 31, Arizona 14; Tennessee 28, Houston 22.

On Monday night, New England is at Minnesota.

Don't take your eye off the '6-5, 239-pound laser, rocket arm'

By JIM LITKE

AP Sports Columnist

There are only so many times an athlete can make you sit up and pay attention.

Most are lucky if those moments linger for a game or two. Some get a series, others a season. A handful — the ones with a steady supply of the ball in team sports, or those who command center stage because they compete as individuals — sustain it over the course of a career. A few do it so often we take those performances for granted.

Peyton Manning is that guy right now.

That's not to say he's unappreciated, or underexposed. Manning was the league's MVP in 2004, he shared the award with Steve McNair the year before, and lost it to Shaun Alexander in a close race the last time around. He set NFL records for most touchdown throws and highest passer rating in a season, and is on pace to claim a dozen others.

The only place Manning might be easier to spot than in the record book is on TV.

He's doing commercials for top-drawer companies, spoofing his regular-guy image by bugging grocery clerks to autograph melons for his little brother, or his own lack of sex appeal by donning a wig and mustache to convince cell-phone users to download the highlights of a certain "6-5, 230-pound quarterback (with a) laser, rocket arm."

With Tiger Woods on winter break and Kobe Bryant still recovering from knee surgery, try finding an athlete who delivers your money's worth more often than Manning.

Sunday in Denver, facing a defense that hadn't allowed a touchdown at home and only two this season, he was his usual, unspectacular self.

Manning led the Colts to scores on seven of their final eight drives, and that's only because he took a knee at the end of the first half, when they trailed 14-3, to run out the clock. He completed 39 passes in all, 6-of-7 on the next-to-last drive, and all five attempts in the final one, marching the Colts to set Adam Vinatieri's 37-yard game-winner with 2 seconds left. He might as well have been staging a clinic.

"This is where Coach (Tony) Dungy is so great," Manning said, recounting a conversation just before that last drive. "He said,

'Hey, there's a minute, 50 seconds left, three time-outs, we got plenty of time, you don't have to get very far. ... That keeps everybody calm.'"

The knock against Manning, of course, is that he only has games like this during the regular season.

The only place Manning might be easier to spot than in his record book is on TV

And that while the Colts might be a perennial threat to go undefeated through the part of the schedule that's already penciled in, the playoffs are another matter.

Last year, Manning seemed ready to close that chapter of his career. He got a measure of revenge against his usual tormentors, clobbering the Patriots and Tom Brady in a Monday night game at their place. It wasn't exactly a fair fight — New England was missing a half-dozen key players, soft in the secondary and stuck with a sorry imitation of a running game. Still, as part of an unbeaten run that stretched to 13 games, it locked up three weeks rest for the Colts and home-field advantage through the playoffs.

But a season that began with such promise took a tragic detour with the suicide of Dungy's 18-year-old son, James, in late December, then ended with a loss to the eventual Super Bowl champion Steelers at home. The Colts lost Edgerrin James in the offseason, picked up Vinatieri and vowed to get better.

Counting Sunday's 35-31 win, Indianapolis is 7-0 and doesn't appear to have skipped a beat. Manning's passer rating, already near his record season of 121.1 heading into the contest, wasn't hurt by the 129.2 he posted before heading out of town. Next week's gut check, conveniently, takes the Colts back to New England, where they will again be underdogs and coach Bill Belichick will have a healthier complement of players at his disposal and a running attack punishing enough to occupy the Colts' so-so defense.

But before all the attention shifts toward what's coming up, take a moment to savor some of what Manning left behind: a wrecked Denver defense that was the stingiest in the league, tailored to neutralize his favorite weapons by trading for one corner, Champ Bailey in 2004, and using its first-round pick on another, Darrent Williams in 2005. And none of it made a difference.

Manning doesn't project Brady's cool, Michael Vick's flair, Donovan McNabb's improvisational skills or even Brett Favre's fading charisma. The only thing he does markedly better than any of them is study, poring over charts on the sideline more during games than some coaches do in a week. Then he brings them unerringly to life.

If that's not endorsement enough to watch each and every time Manning takes the field, take Mike Shanahan's word on it. The Denver coach has seen more games than he cares to remember and just about all he had to say watching Manning this time was, "He amazes me."

Kansas Against States' Determining Alcohol Permitted

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Senator Curtis of Kansas, who is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, declared today for a plank in the next party platform pledging strict enforcement of the prohibition laws. Also, he announced his opposition to the states' determining what alcoholic content should be permitted, and said he was against the repeal either of the Eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act. His ideas were stated in a letter to Senator Borah of Idaho, who is questioning all Republican presidential candidates on the wet and dry issue.

Business Men Move Next Meet Forward to Tuesday Noon

Because of the Pampa Automobile show the regular noon day meeting of the Pampa Business Men's association for this week will be postponed until Tuesday noon. This meeting will be one of the most important yet held. The ministers and officials of the Chamber of Commerce will be present. The most important discussion will center around the closing hours of the business houses of Pampa. Uniform closing hours for the different business houses has been inaugurated and further plans for its carrying out will be discussed.

No Testimony Is Offered in Bandit Case by Defense

RASTLAND, Jan. 25.—Immediately after the state rested this morning, the defense closed its case without offering testimony on behalf of Marshall Ratliff, charged with robbery in connection with the holdup of the First National bank at Cisco, December 23. The court then recessed until 1 p. m.

Absent Citizen Pays Poll Tax

A. E. Shaw, a resident of Pampa who is visiting in Phoenix, Ariz., and who will not be back until after January 1, sent Dr. A. W. Mann proxies for payment of poll taxes for him and Mrs. Shaw, that they may vote upon their return to Pampa. In his letter, Mr. Shaw stated that he learned through the columns of the Pampa Daily News, which he is receiving every day, that the residents of Pampa and this precinct are slow in paying their poll taxes. He stated that he and Mrs. Shaw will be in Pampa in time to vote on the court house election, and declared it is the duty of every eligible voter in the city to pay the poll tax so as to be able to vote on this important question.

Anecdotes Told on HAD THEIR FUN Automobile Dealers

Highly pleased with their advertising trip over the surrounding trade territory, members of the Pampa Automobile Dealers' association returned yesterday afternoon slightly ahead of the announced schedule. Much valuable publicity for the big automobile show to be held here in the Sharp building Friday and Saturday was obtained, and much interest was aroused in the show. Here are some sidelights on the trip:

Eleven towns were visited by the caravan and fifteen to twenty-minute band concerts were given at each stop.

Henry Thum, driving a Studebaker Commando, stopped with the first sign of the town between Mobeetle and Wheeler.

The "1928 Buick" of the Underwood Motor company was one of the highlights of the long drive.

Walter Butler of the Pampa Motor company had difficulty in bringing home the Pontiac coach he was driving, as several men wanted to buy it "on the spot."

Twenty-five dealers and friends and eleven new automobiles went on the trip yesterday, which covered 205 miles.

Five new Whippets of the Willis-Dean Motor company at Shamrock led the caravan in its parade in that city.

The other dealers are wondering whether it was Bonnie Rose or that beautifully colored Chrysler "72" he was driving that attracted the women where stops were made.

It took only a few minutes for the Olympia Jazz Five to attract a crowd at even the smallest towns. Some places the turn out was 100 per cent.

Interested spectators did everything to the new Ford but turn it upside down in examining it. In fact, on the last half of the trip, as soon as the caravan stopped, Tom Rose lifted the engine hood to save time.

Biggs Horn was official carrier of musical instruments in his big Nash coupe.

After one of the negro musicians rode between towns in the Dodge new Victory Six and waited for his fellow players he chided them: "Boy, why don't you ride with us; then you'll get there."

The Chevrolet of the Jumping Jack Tire company advertised itself by making the trip without a puncture.

M. J. McGarrity (Handing a McLean citizen one of the circulars advertising the Automobile show) "Come to Pampa to our automobile show Friday and Saturday."

McLean citizen: "Paid you poll tax yet?" McGarrity: "Sure have. Come up to Pampa to court next year."

T. F. Smalling, president of the association, was official spokesman, extending the invitations to visit the show.

A Miami citizen rubbed his eyes and yawned (the caravan arrived at 8:20 a. m.) as the band started a lively tune, and remarked: "If a fellow couldn't step to that he couldn't step at all."

DISTRICT C. C. MEETS SET BY HOMER D. WADE

Pampa Convention Will Be Held Next August

BARCUS WILL DECIDE DATE

Twelve Conclaves Will Be Sponsored During This Year

STAMFORD, Jan. 25.—Twelve conclaves to be held each month during the current year in twelve widely separated points of West Texas Chamber of Commerce territory were announced here this week by Manager Homer D. Wade of the regional organization.

Eleven of the gatherings scheduled are West Texas Chamber of Commerce district conventions, two of which fall in one month, while the twelfth is the big tenth annual membership meeting to be held in Fort Worth some time in June.

The 1928 district convention season of the West Texas Commercial body will open in February when the town of Colorado will entertain delegates of the West Central District. Three other district meets are scheduled for the spring months: Dublin will be host to the Oil Belt District in March; Lamesa will fetter the South Plains section the month following, and Quanah will entertain the Lower Panhandle District in May.

July will see two district conventions, which are features of the second annual motorcade to be sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. These will be the Pecos Valley Inter-Mountain meeting in the famed Carlsbad Caverns of Carlsbad, New Mexico, and the Big Bend gathering at Fort Davis.

During the remaining five months of 1928 the following gatherings are scheduled: Panhandle-North Plains district, Pampa, August; Hills Country district, Lampasas, September; Trans-Canadian district, Spearman, October; Red River district, Decatur, November; Central Texas district, Merkel, December.

Exact dates for the district conclaves will be set by local secretaries of chambers of commerce, while dates for the annual membership meeting in Fort Worth next June will be set by a special committee composed of the following: President R. W. Haynie, and Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Amon G. Carter, chairman, General Arrangements committee, tenth annual convention.

Prisoner Escapes, But Is Recaptured

Henry Chetwood, held in the county jail on a charge of having had liquor in his possession, broke from jail this morning while the jailer was making his inspection, but was later re-captured. Chetwood at the time was sweeping the run-way, and while the jailer was at one end of the corridor he stepped out the door, which was unlocked, and made his get-away.

He later was captured while hiking east on the Mobeetle road about five miles from Pampa, and brought back to jail.

BIG RAIL FIXED.

AUSTIN, Jan. 25.—Bail of $15,000 was granted by the Court of Criminal Appeals today for Charlie Knox, charged with participation in the Tebuscans bank robbery, several weeks ago.

A Case of Fluency—Plus!

Nearly all the members of the U. S. Senate find it easy, as a rule, to express themselves. And Senator Tom Heflin, whose expansive battle front is pictured here, is no exception to the rule. Whether recent efforts of his fellow solons to quiet him will be effective remains to be seen.

COMMUNITY MASS MEETING TO DISCUSS POLL TAX TONIGHT

The mass meeting called by the Chamber of Commerce for this evening is not only for its membership, but for all local citizens and the community at large.

The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

The "Pay Your Poll Tax" Committee met last night and checked its records, and tonight it will have some very definite plans to complete the drive in a very intensive manner. While poll taxes are coming in steadily, it is evident that the total to be reached before January 31 is apt to be dangerously small.

The vote on the county seat removal issue, which likely will be held in the near future, will make necessary a very large Pampa vote if this city is to obtain the county government. Knowing that another vote cannot possibly be held until two years after the coming election, local people are determined to decide the issue now for all time.

Plans to make success certain will be discussed at length tonight.

HOURS TOO LONG.

(By the Associated Press.) AUSTIN, Jan. 25.—A. W. Tabor, superintendent of the State Confederate Men's Home, was found guilty here today of violating the state law prohibiting employment of women more than nine hours a day or 5 1/2 hours a week. He was fined $50 and costs. He gave notice of appeal.

FLOW GAUGES 150 BARRELS HOURLY TODAY

No. 5 Jackson Brought in With Rotary Tools

BIG PAY TOPPED AT 3,045 FEET

No. 8 to Be Finished by Company Very Soon

M. O. Danciger brought in his fifth well with rotary tools this morning for an initial flow of 150 barrels an hour.

The Danciger Oil and Refining company's No. 5 Jackson in section 88, block B-2, in the Bowers pool, was drilled in this morning by the oil process and with rotary tools. Big pay was encountered at 3,045 feet. The 8 1/2-inch casing was set at 2,730 feet and drilling commenced.

Mr. Danciger seems to be the only operator in the Pampa field who is having any success at drilling in with rotary tools. His system is to clean out the hole before drilling in, and then use crude oil.

The Danciger Oil and Refining company's No. 8 in section 88, block B-2, is setting 8 1/2-inch casing at 2,775 feet and preparing to drill in. This well will also be drilled in with rotary tools.

The Danciger Oil and Refining company has made locations to drill its No. 9 and 10 in section 88, block B-2. Drilling operations will commence immediately.

The Roxana Petroleum company has deepened its No. 3 Worley in section 38, block 3, from 3,059 feet to 3,092 feet, and increased the flow from 60 to 100 barrels a day, natural.

The Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Worley, in the same section which commenced flowing when the casing was being pulled preparatory to plugging, has been completed as a 10-barrel well.

J. B. Patterson, Panhandle superintendent of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, and Roy Autry, district traffic chief, visited the local exchange yesterday.

Local Creamery Now One of Most Complete in the Pampa Territory

Although unable to secure enough milk and cream to meet its demands, the Gray County Creamery is distributing about 250 gallons of milk daily.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gerhard, owners and managers of the creamery, moved here March 7 of last year and opened a small dairy. Since that time the small dairy has grown into a complete creamery with $20,000 worth of equipment. Excepting Lubbock, the Gray County Creamery is one of the few complete plants of its kind in this territory handling milk, cream, butter, ice cream and buttermilk.

In this up-to-date creamery, 1,800 pounds of butter and many hundreds of pounds of ice cream can be made daily while milk in any quantity can be handled by the large pasteurizing machine which heats the milk to 145 degrees and by a late process cools it to 40 degrees before being bottled and capped by machinery.

From the time the milk is received in the creamery, it is never touched by hands, the complete equipment handling it until it is placed on the rigs for delivery. Milk is received from local farmers, who have been unable to meet the demand. Local farmers have herds of mixed cows, the majority of which are Holsteins and Jerseys.

All the cream used for butter and ice cream is pasteurized before being used. Also, the 1/2-gal and butter-milk is pasteurized before being bottled and capped.

The large sanitary washing vat and rack is one of the most complete, all bottle being scalded before being used. During the summer months, more than 350 gallons of milk is used and at that time the need of more dairy farmers in the territory is apparent. Mr. Gerhard, who is an experienced creamery man, says:
