Juanita Sanders, 525 N. Wells, left, and friend Barbara Palmer, 529 N. Wells, share a laugh about a special surprise Palmer prepared for Halloween. The spooky figure

Candidates cleared in bugging incident

AUSTIN (AP)—Former Gov. Bill Clements says "somebody misbehaved," but a U.S. attorney says it apparently wasn't anybody with either Clements' or Gov. Mark White's campaign staff.

"Right at this time we have no reason to believe that one of Mark White's or Bill Clements' campaign staff was involved in the bugging of former Gov. Clements' campaign headquarters," Helen Eversburg, U.S. attorney in San Antonio, said Tuesday.

"But the investigation is continuing," she added. "That is all I can say right now."

Clements, meanwhile, said that, "Somebody has misbehaved. I haven't the slightest idea who it was, and I know nothing about the details."

Asked if he would seek prosecution, he said, "I don't think it makes any difference what I suggest. They have violated federal laws and a federal grand jury will take whatever action they deem appropriate. I don't have anything to do with it one way or another."

And White would say only that "I know our campaign wasn't involved in it."

FBI officials have said they are concentrating their investigation on the private security company hired to sweep the offices of Clements chief consultant Karl Rove.

The FBI has subpoenaed the company records of Knight Diversified Services Co., which found the device behind an embroidered wall hanging in Rove's Austin office.

Tax question stalls bonds for sewer treatment plant

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Pampa city commissioners postponed action Tuesday on selling revenue bonds after a bond consultant told the commission there were possible legal problems that might complicate the sale.

Kenneth E. Smith, vice president of Schneider, Bernet & Hickman Inc. of Dallas, told commissioners he had "a note of bad news" concerning the bonds, which were proposed to finance water works and sewer system improvements.

Smith said recently passed national tax legislation had created some problems of interpretation of a phrase in the city's contract with Operations Management International Inc. (OMI) for operation of the Pampa Wastewater Treatment Plant.

The bond consultant said interpretation of the phrase could throw the bonds into private activity bond category, which would change the procedures for issuing the bonds and attach more restrictions to the sale and payoff.

Smith suggested the commission postpone action on the bonds to allow attorneys to review and study the tax legislation and contract through the weekend to determine the proper interpretation.

Noting that he had a bid in his folder with him at the meeting, he said at first he had felt there would

Gray jobless rate climbs; area rates show decline

Pampa and Gray County's unemployment rates rose in September while three surrounding counties showed a decrease, according to figures released by Texas Employment Commission Pampa Director Charles Vance.

Pampa had an unemployment rate of 10.2 percent for September, up 0.1 percent from the 10.1 percent listed in August, Vance noted.

The city had a total labor force of 11,548, with 10,365 employed and 1,183 unemployed, Vance reported. The total labor force dropped from 11,734 listed in August, he said. At that time, 10,548 were employed and 1,186 unemployed.

Gray County had a September unemployment rate of 10.5 percent, up from the 10.3 recorded in August. Total labor force last month was 14,231, with 12,741 employed and 1,490 unemployed.

In August the county had a total labor force of 14,460, with 12,966 employed and 1,494 unemployed, Vance reported.

Vance said the drop in the number of persons in the total labor force in the two months was due to a variety of factors. He said some just may have given up looking for a job, while others apparently have left, either returning to school or moving to a new location.

Both the unemployment rate and the labor force are up from a year ago for the city and county.

In September 1985 Pampa had an unemployment rate of 5.9 percent, with Gray County registering 6.0 percent unemployment. The city's labor force was listed at 10,477 a year ago, while the county labor force was at 12,123.

In three of the other four counties served by the Pampa TEC office, the unemployment rate dropped over the two-month period, Vance said.

Hemphill County had an unemployment rate of 8.5 percent in September, down from the 9.4 recorded in August. The county's total labor force last month was 2,268, down slightly from the 2,279 listed for August.

In September 2,075 were listed by the office as employed, with 193 reported as unemployed in Hemphill County. In August, 2,064 had jobs while 215 were unemployed.

At this time last year Hemphill County had an unemployment rate of 7.3 percent.

Roberts County had a September unemployment rate of 3.3 percent, down more than a percentage point from the 4.4 percent listed in August. Total

Dick and Buck spar in 88th District race

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Dick Waterfield and Buck Buchanan share the same goal in their quest for the 88th District House seat: to give a conservative district a conservative voice in the Legislature.

The candidates just have different plans to accomplish that shared goal.

Dumas Democrat J.W. "Buck" Buchanan, 78, says his tenure in the House — four years from 1959-1963 and from 1979 to the end of his current term this year — is proof enough of his conservative leadership. He believes residents in his district — the top 10 counties of the Panhandle, plus Carson and Wheeler counties — need such experience.

Says Buchanan: "My experience would be an advantage to the district, rather than giving it to a newcomer."

The "newcomer" is Republican Dick Waterfield, a 47-year-old Canadian rancher and school trustee. Waterfield's calling for a more assertive voice in the Legislature; and one way he thinks that can be obtained is with more Republicans in there.

"This is a Republican district. We went strongly for Reagan and for Beau Boulter," Waterfield said. "We just need more good business people in Austin."

"We need strong statements about the jail system, to watch the deficit," he said.

Waterfield said Buchanan's voice in Austin has not been strong enough — that he needs to be a leader, not just a representative. Waterfield recalls visiting with Buchanan in an effort to get agriculture legislation passed.

Waterfield

Buchanan

"I tried to get him to lead the way," Waterfield said. "I thought it was kind of sad that he wouldn't lead ag legislation."

Buchanan dismissed Waterfield's claim as "political rhetoric."

"I've led the way on a lot of things. I got legislation passed," Buchanan retorted, citing his involvement in such committees as the Conference Committee on Water Problems as a sign of his leadership.

He also dismissed Waterfield's candidacy as a Republican ploy to regain control of the seat.

Rice and Greene rematch hurdles the political fence

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Four years ago, Gray County Commissioner Ronnie Rice and Pampa-area farmer Jim Greene squared off in the Democratic primary, and Rice won a narrow victory to continue representing Precinct 2.

This year, the two again are battling for the Precinct 2 seat, but this time it's from opposite sides of the political fence.

Rice and fellow Commissioner Ted Simmons switched from the Democratic Party to the Republican Party in February, claiming that the Democrats had grown too liberal for their tastes.

Both Rice, 48, and Greene, 49, survived primary contest to get to this point, emerging from a one-time field of seven candidates. Rice topped three other Republicans in May and Greene defeated fellow Democrat W.C. Epperson in a run-off election in June.

Precinct 2 includes northwest Gray County, including Kingsmill, and the southeast corner of the city of Pampa.

Challenger Greene refuses to dwell on the past in his quest to unseat the nine-year commissioner.

"You've got to go forward from here," Greene said. "I'm not running on what's been done wrong or hasn't been done in the past. I want to run on what can be done in the future."

Both men have concerns about the feasibility of building a public golf course in current economic slump.

Greene said he doesn't want to commit himself either way until he can view some actual figures showing how much money the Pampa Public Golf Association has. He said he has some questions concerning whether the county can afford a course at this time.

"It'd be nice to have a golf course, but it'd be nice to buy everybody in the town a new car," he said. "I don't think the people of the county need to be paying for something new when it's hard enough to pay (now). It's going to be hard enough in the coming years to pay for the services they're already committed to without adding something new."

Greene also expressed concern about a plan to lend county equipment for the building of the course when many people are unemployed at the

Unforgettable dates

My niece Amy Morris celebrated her 13th birthday on Oct. 18. Her birthday and her sister Kjersti's (that's pronounced CHURSTI) birthday are two dates I will never forget. I had the honor and pleasure of being present at both events.

Well, not actually present, but very close at hand.

You see at the tender age of 16, almost 17, I became resident mid-wife for my sister Diana. Well, not mid-wife really. Maybe my job could be best described as family representative and moral-support-giver. At that age I certainly "didn't know nothin' 'bout birthin' babies," as the maid proclaims to "Miz Scahlett" in Gone With the Wind.

Amy's birthday stands out in my mind, however, because I very nearly WAS present as she made her entrance into the world - quite a traumatic experience for an extremely naive 18-year-old. I relive that time every year when her birthday rolls by. Who can believe it's been 13 years?

My sister was living in Phoenix, Ariz., where her husband Keith was stationed with the Air Force. They had a cute little house with a flat roof and stuccoed walls, typical of the Southwestern architecture so prevalent in the area. Though it was mid-October, the days were still warm with temperatures running in the 80s and 90s every day.

I had graduated the spring before and had moved with my family to Amarillo. As Diana's time neared, Mother decided I, unemployed and unattached as I was, should be the one to go help my sister with 18-month-old Kjersti.

Armed with a stuffed animal for Kjersti, I flew to Phoenix. On the airplane, I sat beside a sweet old lady who unknowingly insulted me by asking what grade I was in. I guess I did look a bit young holding the little stuffed dog like a security blanket.

Diana and I had a good time for the two weeks leading up to Oct. 18. I'm not sure that I didn't bring more work for her than help, however.

Oct. 18 dawned bright and sunny, (like it does every day in Phoenix). Keith had driven 30 some-odd miles to the air base before I had even gotten up. Diana had awakened with a backache, but after experiencing several embarrassing false alarms with Kjersti, she decided to wait until she certain.

Soon after I got up, however, she WAS certain. But the problems came when she tried to call Keith. For some security reason, the base had shut down completely. No calls were allowed in or out. No ONE was allowed in or out. And Keith had driven their only car.

Here I sat with a hysterical pregnant woman in the final stages of labor and an 18-month-old child and I "didn't know nothin' 'bout birthin' babies!" To my surprise, Diana wasn't concerned about her situation as she was worried about what was going on at the air base and why she couldn't get through to Keith.

Okay, I thought. Now it's time to go on the second plan of action - call their close friends, the McGirrs - both of whom were college professors and real estate agents. (Everyone in Phoenix is a real estate agent). Surely they'd know what to do. I certainly didn't.

First few times I called, no one answered. Things were getting scary. Diana was in the "I want to push!" stage and I was in the "Momma!" stage. Kjersti tried to help by giving her mother "Fuzztop" a pillow shaped like a round rabbit's head. "Fuzztop" always made Kjersti feel better. Surely it would make her mommy feel better.

Finally, I got through to Mrs. McGirr. She was at home, alone, without a vehicle. She wasn't as panicky as I was, thank goodness.

She gave me the best advice I'd heard all day - "Dee Dee, call an ambulance."

To my relief, the ambulance arrived within minutes. Soon after, Mrs. McGirr arrived. She took Kjersti home with her. The ambulance driver let me ride in the front seat on the way to the hospital - only three minutes away. We could have walked there in the time I had wasted running around like a chicken with its head cut off.

I couldn't believe how the ambulance driver drove so calmly through the Phoenix traffic. I'll always remember his hand on the little knob that adjusted the tone of the siren as he whistled under his breath. To him, this was all routine. In a city like Phoenix with a population of about 3 million, what was one more baby?

To me, though, this was a very special baby. This was my sister's baby and my niece or nephew. And it was my sister's voice, raised in fear and pain, that I heard behind me.

Amanda Ruth Morris was born in the hospital delivery room - barely. She almost made her debut in the elevator. She was all red and squalling and I'll never forget her hair. It looked like a bad bleach job growing out, dark roots with white tips, and sticking straight out all over. To me, she was the most beautiful thing in the whole world.

Now she's 13 years old, taller than I, with blue eyes and curly blonde hair. And she has an aunt that's very proud of her.

Happy birthday, honey. I may be late telling you, but I didn't forget your birthday. Believe me, I will never forget your "birth" day!

Continental wins Love Field suit

DALLAS (AP) — A state district judge says he has ruled that Continental Airlines should be allowed to operate out of Dallas Love Field and that he expects to order the city next week to give the airline gate space.

Judge Harlan Martin said Tuesday he issued a summary judgment in his chambers Friday in a lawsuit that Houston-based Continental filed against the city of Dallas in late July.

Martin said the issues in the case centered on whether Continental intended to offer only intrastate flights to and from Love Field - a requirement being met by the other two airlines using the airport.

Continental "met that requirement," Martin said. "Therefore, the city should offer it a lease."

Study shows Texas banks lose $247 million

AUSTIN (AP) — According to a new study released by Sheshunoff Ratings Services, Texas banks posted considerably greater losses than banks nationwide during the first half of this year.

Feeling the impact of falling oil prices and a slump in commercial real estate, the state's 1,957 banks reported combined first-half losses of $247.4 million. In the first half of 1985, Texas banks reported earnings of $652.2 million, said Sheshunoff, which rates banks and savings institutions.

During the same period, earnings of the nation's 14,248 banks fell 2.6 percent, from $9.27 billion to $9.03 billion.

Non-performing loans made up 4.5 percent of total loans by Texas banks during the first half. Such loans for banks nationwide represented approximately 2.9 percent of total first-half loans, Sheshunoff said.

The Sheshunoff study is based on the Federal Reserve Bank Board's June 30 preliminary report of condition and income. But Texas' bank holding companies have subsequently posted considerable third-quarter losses or diminished earnings.

First City Bancorp of Houston posted a third-quarter net loss of $47.9 million, compared with net income of $10.8 million a year ago.

InterFirst Corp. of Dallas reported net income of $2.1 million for the third quarter, down 87 percent from $16.2 million last year.

MCorp of Dallas posted net income of $7.1 million, down 78 percent from $32.9 million in last year's third quarter.

Man is stabbed by booby trap

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — A real estate broker says he wants to see the prosecution of whoever is responsible for setting a booby trap that stabbed him in the chest when he entered a carport door.

Jesse Kennemer, 66, suffered a 2-inch deep stab wound to the upper right chest Tuesday when he was struck by one of two butcher knives mounted to a sawed-off crutch that fell from the ceiling when he opened a carport door, authorities said.

Kennemer was treated at the Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital emergency room and released.

Although he was reluctant to discuss the incident for fear of harming the police investigation, Kennemer said he "definitely wants the person responsible for the trap to be prosecuted."

"One of the knives hit me in the chest," he said. He said he was glad his wife wasn't with him because "she could have been hit in the face."

Kennemer said he owns the home, which is rented through the Public Housing Authority. He said he went there to check the condition of some furniture that was damaged from a leaking roof.

Police questioned a possible suspect but no charges had been filed by late Tuesday night.

Detective Barry Alwine told the San Angelo Standard-Times the knives, each about 6-inches long, were placed in the lower part of the crutch and braced with a brick.

Party on Halloween

Preschool and elementary age children are urged to wear their costumes for the city's second annual Halloween parade and party Friday evening.

Sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department, Wal-Mart and Burger King, the activities will begin at 5:30 p.m. with children gathering in front of the Lovett Memorial Library.

A police escort will lead the children down Foster Street to the Central Fire Station.

At the fire station, Burger King will give each child a trick-or-treat bag, and Wal-Mart will be furnishing the candy treats.

Danny Lance, school liaison officer for the Pampa Police Department, will talk to the children about Halloween safety.

The party also will feature cartoon movies.

"This is a free event for the children, and we look forward to sharing approximately one hour of enjoyment with them," said Recreation Supervisor Jackie Harper.

"In case of inclement weather, we will dispense with the parade and meet at the fire station for the party," she added.

Halloween at Mall

Pampa Mall merchants will sponsor Halloween activities in the mall from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, including a costume contest and a haunted house.

The costume contest will be for children in three age groups: 5 years and under, 6 to 9 years, and 10 to 12 years, according to Becky Salyer, mall manager.

The Pampa High School Theater Arts Department will have a Haunted House at the mall for the children Halloween night.

In addition, merchants will hand out wrapped candy to trick-or-treaters, and Crack-O and Jo-Jo the Clown will be performing magic and clown acts during the evening.

"Mall merchants enjoy being able to offer a fun, safe alternative for children and their parents on Halloween," Salyer said.

After hours session sponsored by chamber

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring another of its monthly "Business After Hours" sessions Thursday at the Pampa Mall.

The informal meeting for businessmen, merchants and others interested in attending will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. in the mall shop south of Dave's Pet Shop.

According to Chamber President Bill Duncan, the gathering will feature food, fun, fellowship and drawings for door prizes.

Those in attendance are invited to bring their business cards for the informal visiting. The after-hours session is a chance for Pampa residents just to mingle, chat and relax after the workday, Duncan said.

Those who plan to attend are asked to call the Chamber office at 669-3241 so that preparations can be made for the expected attendance.

Cost is $3 for Chamber members and $5 for non-members.

Training programs waste tax dollars

President Reagan sweetly contends that a federal job training program called the Job Training Partnership Act has been a brilliant success and can boast a 68 percent job placement rate. But the Washington-based Cato Institute respectfully disagrees: JTPA, like all the other federal job training programs that have preceded it over the past quarter-century, says the libertarian think tank, is a total failure.

The "partnership" referred to in JTPA's name is between government and business. "JTPA," according to Cato, "pays employers 50 percent of a worker's wages for up to six months if the employee is receiving on-the-job training." But "little monitoring is done to ensure that businesses actually train the worker." The program's 68 percent job placement figures are based largely on a count of how many JTPA graduates spend at least one day on a private sector job. And a General Accounting Office study conducted a few years ago suggests that the average "successful" graduate of a government job training program quits his new job or is fired from it within six months.

JTPA also provides "customized training" — programs designed to meet the training needs of particular companies. Beneficiaries of these programs have included General Electric and McDonald's restaurants. So taxpayers pick up the tab for training that once was provided and paid for by employers themselves. As the Cato Institute study concludes, "JTPA is largely a welfare program for business."

As for the dozens of other job training programs that preceded JTPA, says Cato, their main beneficiaries "have been the legions of social workers, consultants, and 'manpower experts' that have made a good living off these foundering programs for 25 years." Indeed, some evidence suggests that welfare recipients and other poor job seekers have better luck finding work when government sends them to private employment agencies that when these "public servants" handle their cases. Yet government employees, fearing their own displacement, have successfully lobbied against such referrals. "Low-income people thus stay unemployed," the Cato report concludes, "simply to help ineffective bureaucrats keep their jobs."

As for the unemployed workers who are supposed to be the beneficiaries of the training programs, Cato concludes that "many, if not most, of (them) would be better off today if the programs had never existed. Aside from wasting scores of billions of dollars, government manpower programs distorted people's lives and careers by making false promises, leading them to believe that a year or two in this or that program was the key to the future," when "they could have been developing real skills in private jobs with a future" instead.

And as for the future, the Cato report is unequivocal. "Federal job training programs will almost always be either unnecessary or worthless. Either the government will be training people for jobs that the private sector would have trained them for anyhow or the government will be training for jobs that don't exist." Your taxes at work.

Time to stop drug hysteria

In a year that has brought us tax reform, an overhaul of the immigration laws, the first real effect of Gramm-Rudman and a near-agreement by the superpowers to abolish nuclear missiles, you would think political candidates would be able to talk about matters of substance. No such luck.

Instead, in races across the country, a new form of McCarthyism has emerged, posing the question: Have you ever used or tolerated illicit drugs? A "yes" answer, like an admission of past involvement with pro-communist groups back in the 1950s, requires the candidate to express profound remorse and to demonstrate his zeal for the new social consensus. No one wants to be accused of being soft on drugs, even when it means endorsing stupidity.

The most notable case is Lt. Gov. William Scranton III of Pennsylvania, who is running for governor. Scranton, who has admitted using "recreational drugs" in the late 1960s and early '70s, has gone out of his way to inveigh against the dangers of drug use. In Michigan, Democratic Rep. Bob Carr, who as a student wrote an article advocating the legalization of marijuana, now stoutly calls for measures to "stop the flow of drugs."

In Indiana, Rep. Frank McCloskey, accused by his opponent of having smoked opium (yes, opium) while he was mayor of Bloomington, has denied it, though he admits to twice experimenting with marijuana some years ago. Mark Green, running against incumbent Sen. Alfonse D'Amato of New York, has so far stuck to his past endorsement of marijuana's decriminization, while primarily insisting he has never even tried the stuff: "I'm a bit of a Boy Scout."

There are plenty of other races where one or both contestants have demanded, usually successfully, that the other submit to a urinalysis. In Arkansas, the results of drug tests have been released not only by the two candidates for governor, but by their wives. Rare is the politician who has the nerve to reply to such a challenge as Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., did: "I'll take a drug test as soon as my opponent takes an IQ test."

All this piety gets pretty obnoxious, particularly when it relates to marijuana, a drug plainly less hazardous than those time-honored staples of middle-class life, alcohol and tobacco, and not much less popular. Bill Scranton and Frank McCloskey have smoked dope? What a shock to find politicians — politicians! — among the roughly 40 million Americans who have done that.

Some people have short memories, but the fact is that among young adults, particularly college-age ones, marijuana use once was (and maybe still is) about as unusual as Levis. It was a rite of passage, affirming adulthood while providing a gesture of defiance against one's elders.

Few of those who enjoyed it as students washed up on Crack Street. In fact, among my college acquaintances, I have noticed a direct relationship between the consumption of illicit substances as a student and the likelihood of becoming a lawyer, doctor or other respected professional. So why should politicians be held to account for youthful indiscretions that were as common for their generation as reckless boozing was for their parents?

The usual response is that breaking the law is a serious matter. Well, sometimes it is, and sometimes it isn't. Would anyone vote against Scranton if they found out he once had gone 60 in a 55-mph zone? Of course not. But driving over the speed limit is illegal and, unlike marijuana, dangerous to other people. It is also exceedingly common. Potheads, like most Americans, scrupulously obey all the laws that don't interfere with what they want to do.

Marijuana use is certainly illegal, but these statutes, like those against sodomy, survive only because they are not enforced. If the police actually began breaking down doors in pursuit of well-to-do suburban pot smokers, to say nothing of putting them in jail, repeal would take, oh, about two weeks. We keep the laws as a harmless expression of disapproval, secure in the assurance that the police and prosecutors generally will ignore them.

Politicians who reached maturity before the rise of the drug culture may be forgiven for defending the status quo, because most of them act out of pristine ignorance. But the Scrantons and McCloskeys know better, and they shouldn't defer to the prevailing hysteria. Enough of the confession-and-repentance nonsense. Candidates with firsthand knowledge should be able to recognize the absurdity of our draconian drug laws, particularly our treatment of marijuana, and to inject some informed sobriety into the crazed drug debate. Or is it possible that one long-term side effect of smoking dope is to induce political cowardice?

Avoiding mid-air collisions

We are a curious dichotomy: 41 percent of American motorists have now disciplined themselves to wear seat belts — yet, nearly one-third of adult Americans continue to smoke.

In early September over Cerritos, Calif., a Mexican airliner collided with a Piper Archer. Both planes crashed, and 85 people were killed.

During that same week, comparatively unnoticed, two Soviet ships collided in the Black Sea, and aboard the passenger liners almost 400 people died.

Paul Poberezny, in this month's issue of Sport Aviation, dares to suggest that humans are fallible, that in spite of our inventions and improvements in technology, accidents continue.

In the wake of human tragedies we are deluged with informed speculation, sensationalism, hysteria.

There are some who see accidents as an opportunity to make money through lawsuits; these may be expected to charge "negligence" or "carelessness."

Others in government, see mishaps as an excuse for piling more laws on laws seeking regulations, restraints, prohibitions.

At present some members of Congress are demanding that the FAA institute additional safety measures to prevent mid-air collisions.

Most of the clamor is for more "ground-based control," more "computerization" of air traffic.

Poberezny notes that Americans have fought an assortment of wars "to preserve freedom," yet the government we employ to serve us is ceaselessly imposing greater restrictions on our freedoms.

There are those in and out of government who believe that our skies are now so crowded that most of the sky should be off limits to all but commercial airliners.

This is as much as to say that all our nation's highways should be reserved for commercial traffic — trucks and busses only. Motorists would never sit still for that and airmen must not allow themselves to be fenced out of the sky.

Poberezny's Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) is not accepting mid-air collisions as inevitable. The EAA has for years supported the installation of an Airborne Collision Avoidance System in the cockpit.

And EAA members are challenged even now to develop improved proximity warning systems.

But, meanwhile, our skyways and our highways will continue to be less than 100 percent safe.

To expect otherwise is to expect too much.

Stamp symbolizes European cooperation

By Don Graff

GUMMERSBACH, West Germany (NEA) — They're getting ready to issue a new postage stamp — in 1988.

Ordinarily that is not the sort of news that makes front pages. And it didn't make many. But it was considered worth at least a paragraph somewhere.

The stamp is to be a joint French-German issue, valid in both countries and marking the 25th anniversary of their treaty of cooperation. It will symbolize how close the once sworn enemies (which used to be the German epithet for France — "der Erbfeind"; the more colorful French terms for Germany are best not repeated) have become in recent years.

Much more meaningful evidence of that closeness will occur next fall when French forces will participate in maneuvers with German units. This will not be the first such exercise. The French, as an occupying power, have been at it regularly since World War II.

This will, however, be the first time that the Force d'Action Rapide, the French equivalent of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force, has been deployed in Germany. The French force was conceived, as was its U.S. counterpart, as an elite "fire brigade" to be rushed to distant trouble spots. It has seen most of its action in France's former African colonies, such as Chad and most recently Togo.

Its German debut is viewed here as a significant strengthening of the French commitment to defending West Germany against attack from the East. Even more significant, Germans think, is the location of the 1987 joint exercises — along the Czechoslovak border.

Heretofore, the French have kept close to the German side of the Rhine, a good forward position for defending France itself but of no help to the Germans. The shift to Germany's eastern border suggests French willingness at long last to play a role in NATO strategy, which is to start fighting at the border. No falling back.

The change comes 20 years after Charles de Gaulle pulled France out of the NATO military structure, and may be the most significant step yet in the recent gradual relaxation of the French attitude.

French-German cooperation is based on a treaty concluded in 1963 that was largely de Gaulle's doing. What he had in mind at the time was the creation of a special relationship between France and Germany that would be a counterweight to the U.S.-British alliance that dominated NATO.

The Germans, however, did not see things quite the same way. They wanted the association with France but refused to loosen the ties that bound them to the United States. And they pressed for more European cooperation with Britain, not less — leading de Gaulle to observe that he had arranged a marriage only to find himself still a virgin.

Nevertheless, the troth once pledged endured. The new French-German amity replacing centuries of enmity took, broadened and deepened. Now, the two countries are an alliance within the alliance, much more so institutionally than the United States and Britain ever have been.

One consequence has been that, in the post-de Gaulle era, their association with good NATO member Germany has slowly brought the French into closer tacit association with the alliance as a whole.

Not, however, that anyone is expecting them to officially rejoin the military command at any time in the foreseeable future.

Don't expect one stamp to deliver everything.

Journalists seek Anderson's freedom

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "Free Terry Anderson" petition drive has attracted the signatures of more than 1,200 journalists demanding freedom for the U.S. newsmen and the other hostages in Lebanon.

The drive was launched three weeks ago by two Associated Press reporters who initially set out just to gather support from the Washington press corps.

But friends and co-workers of Anderson, the AP's chief Middle East correspondent, began circulating copies of the petition in New York, on the West Coast and, more recently, in foreign capitals.

One reporter gathered signatures at the recent superpower summit in Reykjavik, Iceland, and 135 newspaper editors signed it last week at the Associated Press Managing Editors convention in Cincinnati.

Scores of journalists signed the petition in Tokyo, where Anderson was once an officer of the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan.

The petition asks President Reagan, Secretary of State George Shultz, their counterparts in the Middle East and others with influence in that strife-torn region "to work diligently for the speedy release" of Anderson and the other prisoners.

Among the signers are: John Scali of ABC News, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations; Bernard Gwertzman of The New York Times; Bill McLaughlin of CBS News; Susan Stenberg of National Public Radio; John Fogarty of The San Francisco Chronicle; Colman McCarthy and David Ignatius of The Washington Post; and White House correspondents Michael Putzel of the AP, Helen Thomas of United Press International, Gene Gibbons of Reuters, Walter Robinson of The Boston Globe and Owen Ullmann of Knight-Ridder.

It has also been signed by Louis D. Boccardi, president of the AP, and Walter R. Mears, vice president and executive editor of the news service.

Anderson, who turned 39 on Monday, was kidnapped in West Beirut on March 16, 1985. He is one of seven Americans believed held by the Islamic Jihad or other terrorist groups.

He made his first videotaped appeal for help in early October.

Diane Duston, who supervises Metro news coverage in the AP's Washington bureau, said that when she saw the tape, "It struck me that Terry was feeling abandoned. ... I just had to do something."

"It's not political," said Joan Mower, her co-organizer. "It's just a statement of outrage from journalists."

"It's not much, but what else can you do?" added Mower, who has reported on the hostages.

The two plan to keep gathering signatures until Nov. 27 — Thanksgiving Day.

The 100-word petition reads:
"FREE TERRY ANDERSON."

"We, the undersigned journalists, call on the governments, organizations and individuals with influence in the Middle East to work diligently for the speedy release of Associated Press Bureau Chief Terry Anderson. After more than a year and a half as a prisoner in Lebanon, Terry Anderson appears no closer to freedom than he was on March 16, 1985, the day he was kidnapped.

"He and the other captives in Lebanon must be freed.

"We address our petition to President Reagan, Secretary of State Shultz, the House and Senate foreign relations committees and the governments of the Middle East."

Prentice Rasheed raises his arms at a press conference Tuesday with his attorney, Ellis Rubin, left, after a grand jury declined to indict him for the booby trap death of an intruder at his Miami business.

No indictment against store owner in booby trap case

MIAMI (AP) — A grand jury's refusal to indict a shopkeeper whose wire-mesh booby trap electrocuted a burglar is a signal to criminals "that people are going to stand up and fight back," the merchant's attorney says.

The Dade County panel said Tuesday that Prentice Rasheed wasn't justified in taking justice into his own hands by electrifying metal grilles above the door of his shop, but that there was no evidence he meant to kill anyone.

"Sure, I'm happy and relieved about the whole thing," Rasheed said Tuesday night, "but at the same time I don't feel anybody's mother, father, son or daughter should lose their life like that again."

Rasheed, 43, was arrested on a manslaughter charge after Odell Hicks, 26, was killed Sept. 29 when he touched the mesh. Rasheed has said he set the trap after his Central City Flea Market in the crime-ridden Liberty

City area of Miami had been broken into eight times. The trap has been disassembled, he said Tuesday.

"The grand jury has spoken and ... has spoken very forcefully," said a disappointed Dade County State Attorney Janet Reno, adding she would not pursue manslaughter or other criminal charges against Rasheed.

"It's not justice," said Aretha Hicks, the victim's sister. "He got away with it, so people are going to think they can get away with it."

Rodell Allen, another merchant in the area, said, "I'm sorry a burglar got killed, but Rasheed had to do something."

Researcher says

Segregation strong in older American cities

DETROIT (AP) — The North has replaced the South as the nation's most segregated region, according to a researcher who says the "chocolate city-vanilla suburb" trends of the 1970s are unlikely to change.

Detroit and Chicago are the nation's most segregated cities in terms of housing for blacks and whites, followed by New York and Los Angeles, University of Michigan sociologist Reynolds Farley said Tuesday.

Washington, D.C., is the most successful in integrating neighborhoods, said Farley, who has spent three years analyzing 1980 U.S. Census Bureau statistics.

In addition, he said in a telephone interview from Ann Arbor, despite gains in education and economic status black-white segregation is typically nearly two times greater than that involving Hispanics or Asians.

Farley said he had little hope that most cities will become more integrated in the near future.

"With regard to residential segregation, the traditional patterns of racial isolation seem unchanged," he said. "A continuation of the trends of the 1970s offers no hope that the chocolate city-vanilla suburb pattern will be changing anytime soon."

Segregated neighborhoods are most common in cities with slow population growth, especially those established before the Fair Housing Act of 1968, which made it illegal for real estate agents to discriminate on the basis of ethnic origin, Farley said.

"In 1940 and 1950, segregation levels were much higher in the South, but that's not the case anymore," he said. "Higher segregation levels are in the northern cities. The differences are not fabulous, but that's the case."

He attributed the shift to growing populations in the Sun Belt, as well as forced integration in schools.

Farley devised an index in which zero represents complete integration and 100 complete segregation.

Detroit ranked 88 for blacks, 45 for Hispanics and 48 for Asians. Chicago was 88 for blacks, 64 for Hispanics and 46 for Asians.

New York rated 81 for blacks, 65 for Hispanics and 49 for Asians, and Los Angeles was 81 for blacks, 57 for Hispanics and 47 for Asians.

Washington was 70 for blacks, 32 for Hispanics and 31 for Asians.

Farley said the study did not investigate how or why segregation patterns developed, but other studies he conducted in the Detroit area did.

"It is quite clear that many whites assume that when blacks move into a neighborhood, it will become a completely black neighborhood, the value of the property will go down, and crime will go up," he said.

"And many blacks are reluctant to be the first blacks to move into a white neighborhood. Most commonly they said they'd be uncomfortable."

But, he said, segregation extends beyond housing, reaching shopping centers, parks, hospitals, restaurants, transit lines and especially schools.

Integration of schools, now common in small and medium-size cities nationwide, has been rare in larger cities, where public schools enroll few whites but many blacks and Hispanics, he said.

Child turns in parents for drug use

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 10-year-old girl who told authorities her mother was freebasing cocaine has been taken away from her family and put in protective custody, police said.

The girl's call to the 911 emergency number from a pay phone Monday night resulted in the arrest of her parents and another man. It was the fourth such case in California in the last three months.

"She was very concerned for her mother's safety," Officer Margie Reed said. "I think she did it totally out of love."

Safe house called White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of a White House staff member overseeing U.S. support for Nicaraguan Contra rebels received telephone calls last month from a safe house in El Salvador used by Americans handling supply flights for the rebels, Salvadoran phone bills show.

During September, calls were made to two private lines used by Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, a staff officer on President Reagan's National Security Council. Both lines were answered Tuesday by a tape-recorded message saying "you have reached a non-working number for the executive office of the president."

According to rebel and administration sources, North has been the chief White House contact with the Contra aid network over the past two years. From October 1984 until this month, U.S. government military assistance to the Contras would have been illegal, although two weeks ago, Congress approved resumption of direct U.S. military aid to the rebels.

An administration official, authorized to speak on the matter but only on condition of anonymity, said, "To his knowledge, Colonel North has never received any phone calls from the safe houses." But another source close to North said he would not necessarily know where calls were coming from.

Another source close to the Contra aid network said the bills could have been concocted by Nicaraguan intelligence agents. But two Associated Press reporters who have examined the documents said they appeared to be genuine bills from Antel, the Salvadoran government's telephone company.

The bills also showed calls to Stanford Technology Trading Corp. in the Virginia suburbs of Washington. Stanford is a company he led by retired Army Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, a former assistant deputy secretary of defense, who has been named in news accounts as helping arrange aid for the Contras from Saudi Arabia.

Secord has acknowledged giving the Contras advice, but "has steadfastly denied that he is a conduit or a middleman for Saudi Arabian aid," his lawyer, Tom Green, said.

Another number listed on the bills belonged to Southern Air Transport Inc. of Miami, a one-time CIA-owned company which had employed one of two American pilots killed when a C-123 cargo plane was shot down over southern Nicaragua on Oct. 5.

Plane's near disaster probed

TOKYO (AP) — An official today said investigators believed an explosion may have been responsible for a Thai jetliner's near disaster, but refused to speculate on whether it could have been a bomb.

However, three mass circulation newspapers said Osaka police experts suspected a hand grenade or similar device blew up after being hidden in a lavatory by Japanese "yakuza" gangsters who boarded the plane during a Manila stopover on the Bangkok-Osaka flight.

The Thai Airways International A-300 Airbus was nearing the end of the flight Sunday when there was a loud "bang," the cabin filled with white mist — characteristic of a sudden pressure loss — and the plane went out of control. Sent into a wildly bucking five-mile plunge, the plane tossed passengers and luggage around like toys before the crew regained control and landed at Osaka. Sixty-two of the 247 people aboard were injured, at least five of them seriously.

The accident resembled history's worst single-plane disaster, which occurred last year when a Japan Air Lines jumbo jet with 524 people aboard crashed into a central Japan mountaintop, killing all but four on board.

Officials apparently are skeptical the near-disaster was caused by any structural weakness in the plane, which was virtually new and had been in service only since Oct. 12.

Bell heads home after failure

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell flies home today after being barred from meeting a captured American mercenary to help prepare his defense.

Bell, who headed the Justice Department during the Carter administration, said the Nicaraguan government's refusal Tuesday to permit the meeting was a "moral outrage."

Visibly upset, he told reporters, "You've got a person charged with serious crimes who cannot talk to his lawyer."

Eugene Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., was taken prisoner by Sandinista soldiers Oct. 6 after the C-123 cargo plane he was on was shot down in southern Nicaragua while transporting arms to U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

The former Marine, held in a prison outside Managua, is on trial before a revolutionary People's Tribunal composed of a lawyer, a truck driver and a laborer. He is charged with terrorism, violating public security and conspiracy, and if convicted, faces up to 30 years in prison.

Bell, who practices law in Atlanta, said he would return today to the United States to prepare the defense but would fly back to Nicaragua on Sunday.

Hasenfus' Nicaraguan attorney, Enrique Sotelo Borgen, has been allowed by the government to confer with Hasenfus.

Bell said today was the beginning of an eight-day period during which the defense and prosecution submit evidence to the tribunal in written form.

Fraternity housemother has more than 100 'sons'

By CHERYL COGGINS FRINK
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN (AP) — Her second daughter was born 17 years after the first. Then she waited 17 more years. This time she got boys. More than 100 boys, all of them young and all of them hungry.

"I cook for about 150," says Mrs. Camillus "Shelly" Angel, housemother at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity near the University of Texas campus.

"Only about 120 come, but there is never much food left over. Some boys eat for three," says Mrs. Angel, one of 10 women who serve as housemothers for the 31 UT fraternities.

Angel, which is what her boys call her, moved into the ZBT house about four years ago. Since then she has learned a few things about boys that she might have missed while raising her own two daughters.

First, there's the tuna salad conundrum. "Everybody's mother makes it different," says Mrs. Angel, who has been a widow for almost 10 years.

So at the ZBT house, which has about 130 members and more than 50 pledges this fall, you'll find at least four different kinds of tuna salad involving two different kinds of tuna. "Let's see, there's tuna with pickle relish and tuna without, tuna with eggs and tuna without, tuna with onion and tuna without," says Mrs. Angel. "And we use both albacore and chunk light tuna."

Then there's the matter of ketchup. Lots of ketchup needed over on fraternity row, Mrs.

Angel has discovered. "Oh God, they live in ketchup," she says.

But then there are the sweeter lessons, those lessons known by heart by all mothers of young boys everywhere.

"There is something special about boys. I must say that," Mrs. Angel says. "Girls wouldn't come up and give you a hug or a kiss and say, 'Oh, that supper was awesome. Oh, that grilled chicken, that deli today, it was awesome.' I thought awesome finished at 16, but they're still using awesome."

Tuna salad and buckets of ketchup aside, there is a more serious aspect to this housemother business. Mrs. Angel thinks her young men are better behaved simply because she's around.

"Those fraternities that have housemothers don't get into trouble, because as wild as they (fraternity members) might get or horsing around, you walk through, and that dampens it," Mrs. Angel says.

"I say, 'Would you do that in front of your mother?' They at least get practice saying, 'I'm sorry,'" Mrs. Angel says.

Eric Webber, director of the UT Interfraternity Council, agrees that housemothers generally have a positive effect on fraternity members. "Most of the time, they are a little better behaved. If there is a housemother, it kind of keeps down too much outrageous or boisterous behavior, especially at mealtime," he says.

"I would like to see more of them. I think it's a good influence on the guys," he says. "I'm not saying they're ill-behaved... but anyway they are a little better behaved, I'm for it."

While the housemother duties focus on food preparation and service, the job also involves a wide range of complex chores ranging from hiring and firing housekeeping help to listening to the woes of lovesick college freshmen. The variety of tasks involved prompted the University of Missouri to establish a school for housemothers 10 years ago, a school that Angel and Delta Upsilon housemother Frances Bishop have attended.

The weeklong seminar has attracted about 1,000 housemothers over the past decade, according to Cathy Scroggs, assistant director of residential life at the University of Missouri.

The house director seminar includes courses on management techniques, human sexuality, alcohol and drug abuse, crime prevention, personal safety and a number of other topics that relate to the job. Over the years the content of the courses has shifted to keep up with the changing interests of college students, Ms. Scroggs says.

"Ten years ago when you were talking about drugs, you talked about marijuana. Now we're talking about hallucinogens, cocaine, a little marijuana and a lot of alcohol," Ms. Scroggs says.

Sometimes the discussions are eye-openers. "It was the first time I ever smelled marijuana," Mrs. Bishop says of the discussion on drug abuse. "If I had smelled it before, I didn't know."

Although she enjoyed attending the Missouri school for house directors, Mrs. Bishop thinks good housemothering basically is born of good mothering. "I really feel that anyone who has been a homemaker and a mother could be a housemother," she says.

You just need to think in terms of feeding 40 instead of four, Mrs. Bishop says. You need to be able to put up with the domestic, scholastic and emotional ruckus of 18-year-old males. And you need to be broad-minded.

"They're very open with me. Sometimes I think it's for shock purposes to see just how far they can go," says Mrs. Bishop, who, like Mrs. Angel, has two grown daughters.

Oct. 30, 1986

In the year ahead, peculiar circumstances will create opportunities for you in ways that may be hidden from others. Be alert for unusual possibilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things will have a way of working out to your ultimate advantage today, so don't be upset if it looks like the other guy is going to get all the goodies. Try to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions will improve today in an area where you previously have met rejection. Your secret ambition can be fulfilled.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you discuss your intentions prematurely today, you could weaken your position. You can achieve your objectives by not calling too much attention to yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Strive to be forthright with others today. Your frankness will gain you their allegiance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Material benefits could come your way today through unusual sources. An old, reliable friend will help make this possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) After you have carefully evaluated an important matter, don't spend additional time deliberating today. It's action that begets success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to rectify old mistakes and get your assignments back on track. You can make up for lost time now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You and a business contact with whom you are friendly socially can be of great assistance to one another. Get together today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you schedule your time wisely today, you'll be able to take care of all of your duties and have ample time for pleasure as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make yourself available today if someone you love needs your guidance. You have the ability to manage something this person can't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your reasoning powers are exceptionally keen today, especially in situations where you are going after something valuable. Put your ideas to work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Influences that affect your financial well-being are favorable today. Make the most of deals that promise a profit.

SAMPLE OUR FARE AT THE FALL FOOD FAIR!

The Food Emporium is celebrating our Fall Food Fair with all kinds of great things going on inside our store!

There are free balloons for the kids. We're drawing names and giving away $50 worth of groceries every day of our Fair. And we are holding a great Tasting Fair just to introduce you to some of our great products!

You might sample a bit of tortilla from our Tortilleria or perhaps a bit of fresh pineapple from the Produce Department. For the baked goods and sweet roll lovers, you'll enjoy a tasty tidbit from our in-store Bakery. The Tasting Fair is taking place in almost all our departments and you'll want to try a little of everything our sample booths have to offer. Come in and enjoy our Fall Food Fair Tasting Fair!

REGISTER FOR PRIZES, TOO!

The Food Emporium is giving away some super prizes during the Fall Food Fair. The Grand Prize is a great mini-vacation for two to fabulous Las Vegas! This includes a three-day, two night stay in the Fun Capital of the West.

We are also giving away two Panasonic Color TVs, so be sure and fill the official entry form you'll find at the Food Emporium and drop it off in the entry box while you are shopping with us.

WEEKENDER SPECIAL!

Be sure to plan to come out to the Food Emporium this weekend! This Saturday and Sunday, our Dog and Coke cart will be in the parking lot offering a steaming hot hot dog and a Coke for just a quarter. And for the sausage lovers, there will be a Bratwurst, made from our own Smokehouse, and Coke for just 50¢! It's a real taste treat and it's happening this weekend!

No matter when you drop by the Food Emporium, it's sure to be a treat during our Fall Food Fair! There are great prizes, tasty snacks and samples and Fall Food Fair specials throughout our store. Shop our Fall Food Fair today and harvest the values!

THERE'S NEVER BEEN ANYTHING LIKE IT!

Going to college via television convenient for busy adults

By DEBORAH SCHMOOK
The Odessa American

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Cindy Patton decided to go to college this fall — in front of the television in her home.

"It's my first semester back after more than 10 years," said the mother of three.

Ms. Patton is one of 66 students taking telecourses through Odessa College this semester — 40 students are taking government, 14 are taking biology and 12 are enrolled in marketing.

Clayton Alred, the college's telecourse coordinator, said most of the students are from Odessa, with six enrolled from area towns including Crane, Andrews, Monahans and Midland.

Lessons produced in California are aired on KOCV-TV and picked up by cable companies for the outlying areas, Alred said.

Ms. Patton said the tapes are repeated several times per week, which allows students to double-check their notes.

Spring telecourses will be Introduction to Management, Introduction to Psychology and State and Federal Government II, Alred said.

But the participants don't spend all their time in front of the television. Ms. Patton said they come to the college for review sessions and take examinations about every three weeks.

She said she adheres to the broadcast times for her government class.

"Some people are using the VCR, but my VCR isn't working properly," she said. "I find it better this way and am more motivated to get the reading done."

But if Ms. Patton misses a lesson on television, she has the opportunity to review the tape at Odessa College's Learning Resources Center. The tapes at the center also allow students to stop them or pause them at various points.

"Yes, I'd definitely do it again. It's fit in real well," she said.

Not having to dress up to go to class is another benefit, said Ms. Patton, who also takes a history course at Odessa College while working toward a teaching degree.

Shirley Hill of Monahans, who is enrolled in the biology telecourse, receives her lessons via videocassettes from the Odessa College library, instead of on cable television that is not available where she lives.

Each cassette sent has 12 lessons, or four weeks worth, she said.

"I have a family and a job and I'm taking three courses. This way I don't have to drive to Odessa every week for the class. I go every three weeks to take the test," she said.

"I think it's a wonderful program," said Ms. Hill, who is working toward a teaching degree. "I never gave up my dream of getting a college education."

Mid-management instructor Clinton Forbes leads the review sessions and administers tests for the marketing course. He said telecourse classes are more demanding for professors than regular classes.

CORNMEAL HERB bread is delicious plain or toasted.

Bread has garden flavor

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Whole wheat flour, cornmeal and herbs give this bread real country flavor. Bake a loaf to serve with homemade vegetable-beef soup.

CORNMEAL HERB BREAD

- 1½ to 1¾ cups all-purpose flour
 - 1 package active dry yeast
 - ½ cup hot water (120 degrees)
 - One 5-ounce can evaporated milk
 - ¼ cup honey
 - ¼ cup cooking oil
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 beaten egg
 - 1½ cups whole wheat flour
 - ¾ cup cornmeal
 - ½ teaspoon dried sage, crushed
 - ½ teaspoon dried basil, crushed
 - ¼ teaspoon dried celery seed
 - ¼ teaspoon dried dillweed
 - 1 beaten egg yolk
 - 2 teaspoons sesame seed
- In a large mixer bowl combine 1½ cups of the all-purpose flour and the yeast. In a bowl combine water, evaporated milk, honey, oil and salt; stir until salt is dissolved. Add to flour mixture; add egg. Beat with electric mixer on low speed 30 seconds, scraping bowl constantly. Beat on high speed 3 minutes. Stir in whole wheat flour, cornmeal, sage, basil, celery seed, dillweed and as much all-purpose flour as you can mix in with a spoon. On lightly floured surface knead in enough remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough (8 to 10 minutes). Shape into a ball; place in greased bowl. Cover; let rise until double (about 1½ hours).

Punch down; shape into a ball. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Shape into loaf; place in greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Let rise until double. Brush dough with mixture of egg yolk and 1 tablespoon water; sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in a 375-degree oven for about 30 minutes; cover with foil after 20 minutes. Makes 1 loaf (12 servings).

15-ton chili pie takes world record

ODESSA — An old Southwestern favorite set a new world record Oct. 17 when the Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang created and served the world's largest corn chip chili pie.

A hush fell over the crowd as Ray Hyde, a representative from the Guinness Book of World Records, weighed a one-cubic-foot sample of the 20-foot by 4-foot by 3-foot pie and went to work on his calculator. Moments later, the gang let out a victorious whoop as Hyde read the total weight—31,675 pounds, a new world's record in the "meat pie" category. The previous record had been 22,875 pounds. Hyde did, however, caution that the record is unofficial until the entry and documentation are cleared by the Guinness Book staff in England. That process usually takes six to eight weeks, Hyde said.

The Chuck Wagon Gang, a non-profit catering group made up of Odessa Chamber of Commerce members, began browning 5,000 pounds of beef with 500 pounds of onion for the pie at 1:30 a.m. that day, using sterilized rakes for stirring. Several hours later, 225 gallons of chopped canned tomatoes, water, 200 pounds of chili seasoning and other secret ingredients were added. The huge pot simmered through the afternoon.

The chili was ready at 4 p.m. To create the pie, the Gang added 1,000 pounds of corn chips and 1,000 pounds of cheddar cheese, just before serving it to about 10,000 attendees of the Permian Basin Oil Show. Proceeds will be donated to the Odessa Youth Shelter for abused children.

The idea to create the world's largest corn chip chili pie was conceived several months ago. The Chuck Wagon Gang caters huge barbecue and chili "feeds" all over the world. Members don't get paid. In fact, many pay their own expenses for the out-of-town feeds. The Gang's purpose is to build good will for Odessa worldwide. So when they began planning a feed for the Oil Show crowd, they looked for something that would draw positive attention to the city.

"Texans always like to think big," said Steve Poyner, Chuck Wagon Gang "boss." "First we were going to make the world's largest pot of chili. Then someone suggested that corn chip chili pie would be more unique. And what could be more Texan? Most of us grew up on corn chip chili pie." Corn chip chili pie—chili, layered with corn chips, cheese and onion—has been served in homes, school cafeterias, driveways and county fairs in the Southwest for more than 50 years.

By evening, the crowd began to thin and the gang members, many of whom had been up all night, relaxed and enjoyed the thrill of victory. But not for long. Later in the evening, a shipment of beef arrived for a barbecue the next day, in which the gang will feed hundreds more.

"You've got to love it," said Bob Howard, chief organizer of the giant corn chip chili pie project. "And we all do. We have a great time and contribute to many worthy causes. That makes it all worthwhile."

Conference set for children's writers

AMARILLO — The Society of Children's Book Writers is to present "Celebrate Children's Books," a conference on writing for children and teenagers, Nov. 15, at the Fifth Season Inn-West in Amarillo.

Joan Hewett, author of a current Texas Bluebonnet Award nominee, When You Fight The Tiger, will speak on writing nonfiction for children, and how to sell a book before you write it.

Award winning children's book illustrator Merle Peek will present a slide show of his illustrations, called "Pictures Tell Stories, Too." He will speak on how to illustrate children's books, and will review art portfolios brought in by conference participants.

Linda Zuckerman, executive editor of Harper Junior Books-West Coast, will discuss the editor's point of view, and how a book manuscript is accepted for publication.

Dian Curtis Regan, regional advisor of SCBW, author of two young adult novels, and Byline magazine columnist, will speak on writing for children's magazines.

Cost is $32 for members of SCBW, and $38 for nonmembers, luncheon included. Registration deadline is Nov. 13. Mail to Conference Director, Box 19254, Amarillo, 79114. For more information, call (806) 355-3241.

Alzheimer's workshop planned

AMARILLO — A care skills and support workshop for families affected by Alzheimer's Disease is set for Nov. 8 from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Texas Tech University Health Science Center, 1400 Wallace Blvd.

Sponsor of the workshop is the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association Inc. Panhandle Chapter.

The five sessions include cover the topics of nature and progression of the disease, psychosocial impact on family and patient, community resources and support groups, legal concerns for AD patients and families and home health care and home safety.

Advance registration fee is $7 per person which includes lunch. Registration at the door is $10 per person. For additional information call the Alzheimer's Office at (806) 372-8693.

Friend feels tricked by AIDS victim

DEAR ABBY: I went to visit a good friend who said he had leukemia. After I got there and spent an hour or so talking to him, he broke down and told me that he had AIDS! Do you think that was fair? Don't you think he should have told me he had AIDS before I went to visit him so I could decide whether I wanted to go or not?

Even though we don't know where it comes from or how contagious it is, they say, "Be cautious." There is a lot of confusion about this disease so I hope you answer this in your column. If you do, please don't mention my name.

NO NAME IN NEW YORK

DEAR NO NAME: There is no conclusive evidence that AIDS can be transmitted any way other than through: (1) Sharing a contaminated needle with an infected person. (2) Intimate sexual contact. (3) Being born of a parent with AIDS. (The risk of getting AIDS from a blood transfusion is no longer a threat since all blood is tested for the AIDS virus before it is used in a transfusion.)

Dear Abby

People with AIDS should tell prospective visitors the truth about their illness, even though it's not possible for a casual visitor to contract it.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing an article from your column that made a big difference in my life. I have carried it in my wallet for years and it helped me so much. I'm sure you can help many more if you run it again.

ST. PETERSBURG FLAN

DEAR FLAN: You get your wish. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a wealthy widow who picks up the tab for an escort 20 years her junior who couldn't possibly afford to take her to the places she's accustomed to going? In his line of work he could never treat her on his salary. There can't possibly be any romance in this combination, but he is attractive, flatters her, dances with her, and she seems to enjoy this setup while he is taking her for all she's worth. Meanwhile all her friends are laughing at her behind her back. It's really pitiful.

Why can't some women realize there is more dignity in sitting home than buying an escort?

ON THE SIDELINES

DEAR ON: I take it you are sitting home. Perhaps this woman also sat home long enough to have concluded that she didn't like it.

All that is necessary for a successful relationship is that two people "need" each other. She needs him. And he needs her. And as long as they aren't hurting anybody, who am I to judge them? And who are you?

Hospice seminar set here Nov. 6

"The Hospice Approach to Living With Dying" workshop, sponsored by Clarendon College-Pampa Center, First Christian Church and St. Anthony's Hospice, is to be presented in Pampa, Nov. 6, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at First Christian Church, 18th and Nelson.

Instructor for the course is Hazel Barthel, assistant director of St. Anthony's Hospice and Life Enrichment Center. Though designed for potential hospice volunteers, the workshop is open to anyone who is interested. Continuing education credit from Clarendon College - Pampa Center is available to those who complete the seven-hour workshop.

By the end of the workshop, participants should have the basic skills needed in understanding and working with dying patients and their families and be able to identify their own feelings toward death.

Participants are asked to pre-register at Clarendon College - Pampa Center by Oct. 31. Fees are $15 per person and $20 per couple. Registration forms are available at the local college. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m., Nov. 6. Two films, "A Journey of Growth" and "On Dying Part I-B - Sally" are to be presented in the morning session. An overview of the course, discussions, and a presentation of hospice concepts and philosophy will also be given.

During luncheon a questionnaire, "Perspectives on Dying" will be filled out by participants followed by small group exercises.

In the afternoon sessions, participants will learn of the signs and symptoms of approaching death and the role of family and volunteers. Next part will concern grief and bereavement, followed by a break and then presentation of the video "As Long As There Is Life." A review and evaluation concludes the workshop.

"This (workshop) will be a step further toward the ultimate goal of establishing a Hospice Satellite unit in Pampa," said Larry Gilbert, director of Clarendon College - Pampa Center.

For more information, contact Larry Gilbert, 665-8801; Shirley Winborne, 669-3225 or Joyce Cockrell, 665-1583.

FROM THE NOTEPAD: Thanks for asking. DR. JAMES CORNETTE, past president of West Texas State, is recovering well from a heart attack suffered Sept. 4. He is undergoing therapy and hopes to be dismissed from the hospital within a couple of weeks. Just an opinion, but there's no more beautiful football facility in the nation than Yale Bowl. With 70,896 seats (all at one level, no upper deck) the beautiful and historic facility is 72 years old and Saturday's game with Dartmouth will be the 464th college game played there since the inaugural 1914 Yale-Harvard contest. With a dozen Texans already on his Iowa Hawkeye team, Coach HAYDEN FRY says he is going to increase the recruiting emphasis in his home Lone Star State, adding "five or six" more Texas athletes next fall.

Ringling Brothers, and have multiple units?). Speaking of great music, a note to the board of the Community Concert Association. Big Bands have always been the best ticket seller, and the DICK JURGENS Band ("Elmer's Tune", "Careless", "Cecelia", "One Dozen Roses", "Ragtime Cowboy Joe", etc.) has a 16-piece unit playing again. "The band is doing super. It's most exciting playing all of Dick's arrangements," DON RING, who now fronts the group, tells me. "Everybody wants to get into the act: JOHN McENROE, as a guitarist, has recorded an album in Germany with an American group called Highly Strung. And VITAS GERU-LAITIS, an accomplished classical pianist and jazz guitarist, rejected a $75,000 a week offer if he would form a rock group and perform at a resort in the Catskills. It will be some months before this search (for an athletic director) is underway and the position is filled." President JAMES E. HALLIGAN of New Mexico State tells me. And those three friends of mine who have applied for the post can sweat longer. Hey, Larry King, Astros owner JOHN McMULLEN says: "We had an excellent season. This is a team we can build on here. It's hard to believe, but though he retired in 1945, great Green Bay Packer end DON HUTSON still holds six team records. WTSU must have a phobia about talking to the NCAA. I called them and asked where I could find JAMES JACKSON, NCAA Director of Statistics JIM VAN VALKENBURG told me. "They wouldn't tell me and said to call you." The former Missouri Valley Conference leading scorer is a senior at Alabama, and Jim wants to give him special attention in a future NCAA publication. Football is tough for girls. Three New Jersey high school male footballers were suspended for abusing the team's only female player by throwing footballs and tackling dummies at her during practice. ESPN has contracted for a record 11 regular-season MVC basketball telecasts, the tournament championship game, plus CBS and NBC will each carry one Valley contest. Boston once had a NL team called the Bees. It could have been a forerunner of today's championship team, what with Boggs, Barrett, Buckner, Baylor and Boyd. One vote here against the use of replays. Errors by players, managers, coaches, as well as officials, are all part of the mystique of any sports event. Former Harvester ED DUDLEY is president of the newly formed Amarillo Area Texas A&M Club. Ex-Aggies call Ed at 378-8000 for more info about the monthly meetings. Canyon News sports editor JOE WYATT says: "I've always believed that a coach ought to carry the players off the field, one by one, after a really big win—not the other way around."

The newly formed Texas High School Coaches Wives Association (325 charter members) has entered the political arena with their husbands. SUSAN (Mrs. Coach Jimmie) KEELING writes all coaches wives, saying: "...the important thing for us is to do something to elect a new Governor!" And she lists seven suggestions for the organization's membership to support "our husbands" in electing Bill Clements. The Little Harvester, PHS paper, reports that only two PHS girls are willing to work hard enough to compete in cross-country. 11 boys. Denver Bronco coach DAN REEVES played both baseball and football at South Carolina, earning the nickname "Home Run Reeves". "I didn't care too much for that," says Reeves. "It's kind of embarrassing if you're a pitcher." Former TCU all-American JACK SPIKES has been sentenced to four years in prison for defrauding a bank. In his own quiet way, isn't BILLY "Bratwurst" BUCKNER baseball's biggest hot dog? "I wish somebody would walk in and buy this store," said former Pampa Oiler manager-first baseman VIRGIL RICHARDSON, owner of Richardson's Men's Wear in Fairbury, Neb. Another ex-Oiler, FRANNIE RICE, works for the City of Fairbury. What are the odds against two players on a 15-man NBA roster being born on the same day, January 1? Forward MIKE MITCHELL and guard JEFF TAYLOR (Texas Tech) of the San Antonio Spurs are both New Year's Day babies. And if the stork had flown a bit slower, forward TYRONE CORBIN (Dec. 31) could have made it a threesome. Teammate KEVIN DUCKWORTH was born April 1, but at 6-11 he was no April fool's trick. They moved up the start of the recent Texas Tech-Rice game for a Beach Boys concert which followed. Then the musicians grabbed a plane and flew to El Paso to perform a second show after the UTEP-San Diego game at the Sun Bowl (or are they like the Ink Spots, Globetrotters and

Lanier named NL's top manager

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—Hal Lanier, who led a Houston team picked as a preseason also-ran and turned it into National League Western Division champions, was named today as Manager of the Year by The Associated Press. Lanier, who was named Astros manager in the off-season after serving as a coach on St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog's staff for five years, received 53 votes in easily outdistancing Boston's John McNamara in the nationwide voting by sportswriters and broadcasters. McNamara, whose Red Sox lost to the New York Mets in the seventh game of the World Series Monday night, received 14 votes. Texas Manager Bobby Valentine, a rookie like Lanier, was third with 12 votes followed by Davey Johnson of the Mets with 10 votes. New York Yankees Manager Lou Piniella, Pat Corrales of the Cleveland Indians and Gene Mauch of the California Angels each received one vote. Herzog won the award last year and his aggressive style of baseball was reflected in Lanier's 1986 Astros, who lost to the Mets in six games in the NL playoffs. "Whitey taught me how to run a pitching staff and I think that is a major part of managing," Lanier, who was the Cardinals' third-base coach in 1985, said. "I think I added to that a knowledge of how to recognize the talent we had and what we could do and couldn't do." Lanier pulled the right strings with a pitching staff composed of Mike Scott, the major-league leader in strikeouts and earned run average, Nolan Ryan, baseball's all-time strikeout king, and left-hander Bob Knepper.

Lanier also transformed the Astros from a one-base-at-a-time attack to an aggressive running team in 1986. The Astros almost doubled their stolen bases from from 1985 stealing 163 compared to 96 the year before. That was a key to the Astros' charge to their first divisional crown since 1980, when former Astros Manager Bill Virdon was named manager of the year. "I knew we had more speed on the team than had been used," Lanier said. "And I feel that the players were ready for a change to the brand of baseball we wanted them to play." The Astros battled the Mets before falling in Game 6 which lasted 16 innings. "We had a great playoff, I don't think you could ask for much more excitement in the six games," Lanier said. "I think we're the same type of club as the Mets. "In that last game we had the winning run on second base when the game ended. The Mets have done the same thing all year. "They never gave up until the last man was out and neither did we."

Bock's score Baseball karma bad in Boston

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Are doors creaking in Kenmore Square? Do things go bump in the night on the Charles River? Is Faneuil Hall really haunted? Clearly, the baseball karma is bad in Boston. If the rest of the town is free of evil spirits, Fenway Park is not. Consider the plight of the Red Sox, seventh-game losers in the World Series once more. That's four times now—1946, 1967, 1975 and 1986—that Boston has reached the brink of Series success, and then dropped into the chasm of failure. The moments are etched indelibly in Red Sox fans' memories. — Enos Slaughter, circling the bases, running through a stop sign at third base, to score the winning run for St. Louis in the seventh game in 1946. — Jim Lonborg, coming back on two days' rest, unable to coax one more victory from a worn-out arm and losing Game 7 to St. Louis in 1967. — Joe Morgan's broken-bat single chasing home Cincinnati's winning run in the ninth inning of the final game in 1975. — And now Calvin Schiraldi, ace of the Boston bullpen, victimized in consecutive games by the New York Mets to kill the Sox in 1986. And that litany doesn't include the pennant playoff heartbreaks inflicted by Lou Boudreau and the Cleveland Indians in 1948 and Bucky Dent and the New York Yankees in 1978.

Is there any end to this aggravation? The last time Boston won the World Series was 1918. You'd have to be about 75 years old today to remember that team and the ace of its pitching staff, a stylish left-hander named Babe Ruth.

Two years later, Red Sox owner Harry Frazee, seeking capital to invest in a production of "No, No, Nanette," sold Ruth to the New York Yankees. Some one should have told him, "No, No, Harry." Ruth, of course, went on to become a baseball legend. "No, No, Nanette," also prospered. The Red Sox, however, did not. It was as if Frazee had angered the baseball gods by auctioning off a man who would become one of the most revered players in the game. And Boston, it seems, is still paying the price for the misdemeanor.

The fates really put the screws to Red Sox fans this time. They baited the trap in California, making it seem that the Angels, not Boston would be this year's victims. One strike from elimination, the Red Sox had come back to survive the playoffs and reach the World Series. Take that, fate.

Then there were two straight World Series victories on the road. Even after two distressing losses at home, the Red Sox recovered to win the pivotal fifth game at Fenway.

Oh boy, they must have thought, this is our year. Oh yeah? Game 6 will live on in Boston's collective psyche for a long time to come. Two runs ahead, one strike from the clinching victory and the Red Sox lost. Game 7 wasn't much better. Three runs ahead and again they lost. Is there a conspiracy here? Will history never let up on this team? "We didn't even think about that," said pitcher Bruce Hurst, who won two games against the Mets and had them shut out on one hit for five innings in Game 7. "All this other stuff about the years gone by doesn't matter."

"This team deserved better," reliever Bob Stanley said. "We deserved to win but we didn't." How come? The Celtics win. The Bruins win. Why not the Red Sox? If you believe in the supernatural, perhaps there is some explanation for what happened to this team. After all, one of New England's most fervent Red Sox rooters is horror writer Stephen King. How appropriate.

Lady Harvesters surprised by Borger

Borger came back to defeat Pampa, 15-3, 11-15, 15-17 Tuesday night to end a 9-game winning streak for the Lady Harvesters' volleyball team. Despite the loss Pampa can still place second in the District 1-4A standings and qualify for the playoffs if first-place Leveland beats Dumas Saturday. "It was a very heartbreaking loss. It eliminated our chances of coming in first in district," said Pampa coach Phil Hall. Pampa had few problems winning the first game, but then Borger rallied to win the last two games during Parents Night activities at McNeely Fieldhouse. "We did everything we were supposed to do the first game, but we lost our emotions and allowed a large Borger crowd to help turn the momentum around on us the second game," Hall said. "During the third game, we got the crowd behind us again and we thought we were going to pull off the victory." The Lady Harvesters are now 6-3 in district play and will close the regular season Saturday at Lubbock against Estacado in a duel match. "The girls took the loss very hard, but I'll tell them later that it's better to remember what losing feels like now than to feel it again in the playoffs," Hall said. Jackie Osby, Melinda Jackson and Lisa Lindsey were the outstanding players for Pampa, Hall said. "Jackie and Melinda gave 110 percent at all times. Lisa played a very smart game as a setter."

Lefors' Kerbo is top player

The Amarillo Daily News honored Kirk Kerbo of Lefors as high school player of the week in six-man football. Kerbo did a little bit of everything. He rushed for 65 yards and scored two touchdowns as Lefors defeated Higgins, 20-14, last week. He completed 6 of 10 passes for 106 yards and a 41-yard touchdown, punted twice for a 50-yard average and had two quarterback sacks. Two of Kerbo's teammates, Kevin Howe and Richard Hernandez, made the honorable mention list. Howe caught one of Kerbo's TD passes and Hernandez caught three passes for 46 yards. Lefors coach Brent Fountain said Kerbo was in on most of the tackles from his defensive end position. Four Miami players also made honorable mention in the six-man ranks. They were Brett Byrum, Shane Bridwell, John Locke and Jeff Bagg. The Warriors lost to Harroid 40-32.

Overall, this was the best team effort we'd had all year. "Hopefully, we're peaking now and we can keep on winning," said Pampa coach Dick Dunham.

Happy fans greet Mets

By MARJORIE ANDERS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Echoes of the Mets ticker-tape procession up Broadway had scarcely faded before the world champions focused their hopes on the future — a repeat performance in 1987.

Left fielder Mookie Wilson captured the spirit of both the team and the town Tuesday when he said: "1986, year of the Mets. 1987, year of the Mets. 1988, year of the Mets."

"It was so much fun I think we ought to try to do it again next year at the same time," echoed Mets Manager Davey Johnson.

The Mets won Game 7 of the World Series Monday night in a come-from-behind 8-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox at Shea Stadium.

"It was wonderful but we expect you to do it again next year," Gov. Mario M. Cuomo told the team.

An estimated 2.2 million people greeted the Mets as they took their one-mile victory lap amidst a blizzard of paper.

People dangled from trees, perched precariously on ledges, threw paper out of windows and cheered from rooftops as the Mets passed by in convertibles accompanied by wives, girlfriends and children.

"New York City, international capital, today it's a small town brought together by the Mets," Mayor Edward I. Koch said.

Many children played hooky Tuesday and stood with men and women in business suits under the sunny skies.

"I told my principal that I was leaving and he said 'Good luck,'" Marc Lechner, a high school junior from Flushing, said.

Absentee figures were unavailable, according to Joe Mancini, a spokesman for the Board of Education. "We should have taken attendance at City Hall."

"I just walked out of the office," Victor Pagano, who works at Greentree Securities, said. "My manager's right behind us."

The road from Battery Park north to City Hall was ankle deep in debris even before the first marching band stepped off playing "New York, New York."

Two Sanitation Department snowplows cleared a path before the procession began and a brigade of street sweepers brought up the rear but there was no estimate of how much trash was collected.

Although many modern office towers have windows that don't open and in some older buildings, windows were locked for safety reasons, there was no shortage of confetti. However, very little of the paper flying was actual ticker tape, since computers have replaced financial tickers in most Manhattan offices.

Many parade goers improvised, using newspapers and pitching rolls of toilet paper.

The Police Department deployed 2,500 officers to control the crowd and reported only eight arrests.

Police Officer Alfonse Cruz injured his elbow when the crowd surged against a line of officers, who had linked arms to hold the fans back. "They just broke the barrier," he said. "I never saw anything like that before."

But in general, police said, the celebration was peaceful and orderly.

Virtually all of New York's leading politicians turned out, but at a ceremony on the steps of City Hall, they were booed by anxious fans eager to hear from the team. Koch acceded to their wishes, cutting short the speech-making.

President Ronald Reagan and Sen. Mack Mattingly, R-Ga., wave to a crowd of supporters at a rally for Mattingly Tuesday in Columbus, Ga.

Reagan embarks on week-long Republican rescue mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan embarks today on a week-long rescue mission for Republicans in some of the nation's tightest Senate races and tries to help the GOP win back a House seat it claims the Democrats stole two years ago.

Opening a seven-state drive that will run up to Tuesday's election, Reagan was heading for Evansville in southwest Indiana to help Republican challenger Richard McIntyre in his grudge match against Democratic Rep. Frank McCloskey.

It is the only House contest in which Reagan is making an appearance.

The president also planned to campaign today in South Dakota for Sen. James Abdnor, who is in a dead-heat contest with Democratic Rep. Thomas Daschle.

From there, Reagan goes to Colorado Springs, Colo., for an appearance Thursday for Rep. Ken Kramer, who is battling Democratic Rep. Tim Wirth for the Senate seat being vacated by Democrat Gary Hart.

Other stops are scheduled in Nevada, Washington, Idaho and California before Election Day as Reagan struggles to help Republicans keep control of the Senate for the final two years of his administration.

White House strategists hope the president's popularity can provide the difference in the exceptionally close contests.

In Indiana, McIntyre and McCloskey split the vote in 1982. GOP state officials in Indiana certified McIntyre the winner by a 34-vote margin, but the Democratic-ruled House conducted its own recount and found McCloskey the winner by four votes.

Republicans accused Democrats of stealing the election and walked out of the House in protest.

The biggest issue in this year's rematch, however, is not the 1984 election but charges and countercharges about drugs. McIntyre has accused McCloskey of condoning use of illegal drugs while he was mayor of Bloomington in the 1970s.

McCloskey has denied the charge but acknowledged he tried marijuana twice in 1972 during his first year as mayor. He accused McIntyre of slander.

Mitchell E. Daniels Jr., Reagan's assistant for political affairs, said the congressional race is "razor close," while Democrats claim there has been a surge for McCloskey in recent polls.

The president has made the battle for control of the Senate his top political priority this year, making 30 trips on behalf of Senate candidates since January — 22 of them since Sept. 1. Republicans now have a 53-47 majority in the Senate.

On a campaign swing through Georgia, Alabama and North Carolina on Tuesday, Reagan refused to predict whether the GOP would maintain a majority.

"I'm too superstitious to talk about that," Reagan said.

Portraying Republicans as the architects of economic prosperity, Reagan urged voters to re-elect the "cleanup crew" of Republican senators elected in the Reagan landslide in 1980.

He said the alternative was "the Democratic leaders who in 1980 weakened our nation and nearly brought our economy to its knees, who raised your taxes and have announced their plans to do so again, who oppose our efforts to build a defense to protect us from attack by nuclear ballistic missiles."

Names in the News

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Jean-Michel Cousteau, a lifetime ocean explorer and the oldest son of adventurer Jacques Yves Cousteau, says more progress is needed toward cleaning up the world's oceans and rivers.

"The real issue is, 'Are we destroying ourselves?'" the 49-year-old adventurer said Tuesday night in a speech on "Archaeology and the Sea" as part of a Florida State University Distinguished Lecture Series.

Cousteau said, though, that some progress has been made on environmental issues.

"We have managed to outvote the Japanese and Russians on the whaling issue," he said.

"We can look toward the bright days on whaling issues. I think the Great Whales are coming back as a result of this."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sean Penn faces a Dec. 3 trial after his attorney entered an innocent plea for him to misdemeanor battery charges stemming from an altercation with a songwriter over Penn's rock star wife, Madonna.

Penn, 25, a star of "The Falcon and the Snowman" and other films, is accused of pushing songwriter David Wolinski off a chair in Helena's nightclub April 12, then kicking him. Wolinski, 37, told police Penn accused him of trying to kiss Madonna. The plea was entered Tuesday.
