DPS seizes more drugs

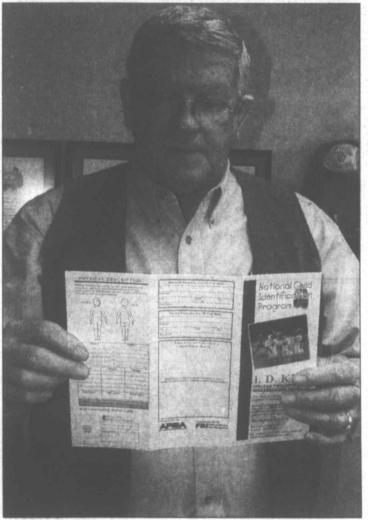

Texas Department of Public Safety arrested four people in three separate traffic stops Saturday along Interstate 40. According to a report issued by DPS, the total drugs netted were $638,400 worth of cocaine and $22,325 worth of mariiuana.

The first seizure occurred at 10:05 a.m. near Groom when troopers stopped a 2005 Jeep Liberty traveling eastbound for a traffic violation.

After the troopers were given consent to search the vehicle, they found 11,400 grams of cocaine in a hidden compartment built under the rear cargo area of the vehicle. The cocaine was in 11 bundles wrapped in black electrical tape. The estimated value of the cocaine is $638,400.

Epifanio Molina Jr., 24, of Ariz., and Phoenix, Teodololugo Aceviz, 37, of Long Beach, Calif., were arrested and booked into the Carson County Jail in Panhandle on drug related Investigators charges.

Child identification kits now available for distribution

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

Child identification kits are being provided free of charge for all Texas children ages kindergarten through 6th grade, with the kits to be distributed through the public school system and sheriff's offices.

Students enrolled in grades K-6 in the public school system will receive ID kits through their superintendent's offices, according to a press release by the Sheriffs' Association of Texas.

Kits for children who do not attend public school or fall outside the K-6th grade age range will be available on a first-come, first-served basis at sheriff's offices across the state, including Gray County.

"They can come and get one, and if they can't come by here, they can give us a call and we'll deliver the kits," said Sheriff Don

Copeland. "We've got 600 kits available here."

Each kit contains an inkless fingerprinting card, DNA swab and preservation envelope, and a wallet card. All information, including the fingerprinting and swab, may be completed by a parent or guardian and stored at home. In the event of an emergency, the ID kit can be handed over to authorities to help locate a missing child.

The ID program will reach more than 2 million Texas children, according to the press release, which is the fourth largest ID kit distribution in U.S. history.

Sponsors of the ID program are the Sheriffs' Association of Texas, the American Football Coaches Association, the Texas Association of School Administrators, the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Child Identification Program, and the office of Gov. Rick Perry.

Pampa schools receive fourth AED device

By KERRI SMITH Staff Writer

The Pampa Independent School District received a potential gift of life in January.

Pampa was one of 287 school districts and education entities selected to receive an automated external defibrillator from the Texas Association of School Boards Risk Management Fund.

This device can be used to restore normal heart rhythm in individuals experiencing cardiac arrest. The AED automatically analyzes the person's condition and advises whether or not a shock is needed. This AED will be added to the three that Pampa schools has owned since 2002.

Pampa Athletic Director Stuart Smith said it is reassuring to have these available to the athletic staff if a need would ever arise.

"We've never had to use the AED on a student or staff member and hopefully we never will," Smith said. "We have one at the junior high, one at the high school, one in McNeely Field house and Coach Kristin Tucker carries one with her to all of the home events. If Coach Tucker is not available, then one of the student athletic trainers takes the AED to practice or the game."

Smith said all the coaches and student trainers are trained how to use the device as well as being certified in CPR and first aid by the American Red Cross. According to Smith, the school district received an AED training device with the original three devices and that is what they use for training.

There are currently five student athletic trainers at the high school. Smith started this program 15 years ago. Students who want to learn about sports medicine, first aid, injuries and rehabilitation begin taking classes their freshman year in high school.

The students take Athletic Training I and II and then progress to Sports Medicine I and II. Tucker teaches all of these classes. Smith said this program keeps the students

"Not only do the students have the classes to take, they also have to attend all of the sporting events which adds up to a lot of hours," Smith said. "All five of them attend the football games because of the shear number of possible injuries. Then, they divide up to attend the other events for basketball, baseball, softball, wrestling and soccer."

Along with the AED, the coaches and student athletic trainers also carry a first-aid kit which has supplies for cuts and bruises as well as splints for fractures.

According to a report bers obtain at least one AED issued by the Texas School Association of Boards, the University Interscholastic League recently mandated that all 1,300 Texas public high schools that are UIL mem-for their campuses and athletic events beginning in the 2007-2008 school year. This followed several deaths and near-deaths by teenage athletes in Texas.

"Medical emergencies involving students, staff and visitors could happen at any time on school campuses and at related activities," said Ed Thonpson, Texas

Bush sends Congress $2.9 trillion plan

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush today unveiled a $2.9 trillion spending plan that devotes billions more to fighting the war in Iraq but pinches pennies on programs promised to voters by Democrats now running Congress. Democrats widely attacked the plan and even a prominent Republican conceded it faced bleak prospects.

Bush's spending plan would make his first-term tax cuts permanent, at a cost of $1.6 trillion over 10 years. He is seeking $78 billion in savings in the government's big health care programs - Medicare and Medicaid - over the next five years, in part by increasing premiums for higher-income Medicare recipients. Release of the budget in four massive volumes kicks off months of debate in which Democrats, now in control of both the House and Senate for the first time in Bush's presidency, made clear that they have significantly different views on spending and taxes. 'The president's budget is filled with debt and deception, disconnected from reality and continues to move America in the wrong direction," said Senate Budget Committee Chairman Kent Conrad, D-N.D.

House Budget Committee Chairman John Spratt, D-S.C., said, "I doubt that Democrats will support this budget, Republicans rally around it either."

Sen. Judd Gregg of New Hampshire, the top Republican on the Senate Budget Committee, agreed with the bleak assessment of Bush's prospects of getting Congress to approve his budget as proposed.

"Unfortunately, I don't think it has got a whole lot of legs," Gregg said, contending there is a wide gulf between the two parties. "The White House is afraid of taxes and the Democrats are afraid of controlling spending," Gregg

The president insisted that he had made the right choices to keep the nation secure from terrorist threats and the economy growing.

"I strongly believe Congress needs to listen to a budget which says no tax increase and a budget, because of fiscal discipline, that can be balanced in five years," Bush told reporters after meeting with his Cabinet.

Just as Iraq has come to dominate Bush's presidency, military spending was a major element in the president's new spending request. Bush was seeking a Pentagon budget of $624.6 billion for 2008, more than one-fifth of the total budget, up from $600.3 billion in

For the first time, the Pentagon included details for the upcoming budget year on how much the Iraq war would cost — an estimated $141.7 billion for fighting in Iraq and and frankly, I will be surprised if Afghanistan, as well as the cost of repairing and replacing equipment lost in combat.

But White House spokesman Tony Fratto cautioned that the 2008 projection was likely to change. "We're not saying the number for '08 is the final

The Bush budget includes just $50 billion for the Iraq and Afghanistan wars in 2009 and no money after that year. But the president rejected the suggestion that the administration was setting a timetable for troop withdrawal.

"There will be no timetable set," Bush told reporters. He said that would send the wrong signal to the enemy, the struggling Iraq democracy and the troops.

Bush projected a deficit in the current year of $244 billion, just slightly lower than last year's $248 billion imbalance. For 2008, the budget year that begins next Oct. 1, Bush sees another slight decline in the deficit to $239 billion. He sees that decline continuing over the next three years until the budget records a surplus of $61 billion in 2012, three years after Bush has left office.

Democrats, however, challenged those projections, contending that Bush only achieves a surplus by leaving out the billions of dollars Congress is expected to spend to keep the alternative minimum tax from ensnaring millions of middle-class taxpayers. His budget includes an AMT fix for just

Turner to pay $2 million for ad blunder

Turner Broadcasting Systems and a marketing company have agreed to pay $2 million compensation and apologize for their advertising campaign that caused a widespread terrorism scare, the attorney general said today.

The agreement with several state and local agencies resolves any potential civil or criminal claims against Turner and Interference Inc., said Attorney General Martha Coakley.

Authorities feared bombs had been planted when they found more than three dozen blinking electronic signs with a boxy cartoon character giving an obscene hand gesture Wednesday in Boston, Cambridge and Somerville.

The signs, part of a publicity campaign for Cartoon Network's "Aqua Teen Hunger Force," also appeared in and Interference." nine other big U.S. cities in recent weeks, but created little interest.

But in Boston, bomb squads responded to reports of the devices in a subway station, on bridges and elsewhere.

As part of the settlement, $1 million will be used to reimburse the agencies and $1 million will be used to fund homeland security and other programs. Turner Broadcasting, a division of Time Warner Inc., and Interference Inc. also will issue a public statement accepting full responsibility and apologizing for the incident.

"Last week's events caused a major disruption in the greater Boston area on many levels - crippling public transportation, causing serious traffic problems, negatively affecting local businesses and perhaps most significantly, costing Boston and surrounding communities thousands of dollars," Coakley said.

"We are fortunate that no one was injured," Coakley said. "We hope that this painful lesson will not be lived or learned again either by the communities involved or ... Turner Broadcasting

Turner issued a statement again taking responsibility for the "unconventional marketing tactic" and apologizing for hardships it caused for residents.

"We understand now that in today's post-Sept. 11 environment, it was reasonable and appropriate for citizens and law enforcement officials to take any perceived threat posed by our light boards very seriously and to respond as they did," the statement said.

The company said it was reviewing its policies concerning local marketing efforts and strategies to ensure that they are not disruptive or perceived as threatening.

Authorities say two men were paid to hang the signs around the city. Peter Berdovsky, 27, and Sean Stevens, 28, have pleaded not guilty to placing a hoax device and disorderly conduct.

Coakley said prosecutors were in discussions with the men's attorneys to resolve the charges before a trial.

Coakley said she did not know how the two companies would divide responsibility for the payment, which was being wired to the attorney general Monday.

MBTA General Manager Daniel Grabauskas and MBTA Police Chief Joseph Carter said the money would be put to good use.

"We will develop a list of meaningful and effective homeland security and customer safety programs that will have an enduring effect on our customers," Carter said.

Restrictions in place after high-rise crash

WASHINGTON (AP) -Flight restrictions imposed around Manhattan after New York Yankee pitcher Cory Lidle crashed his singleengine plane into an apartment tower will be made permanent, new government documents show.

This was revealed as the National Transportation Safety Board released papers Monday detailing its investigation of the Oct. 11 crash that killed Lidle and his flight instructor. Included in the papers are toxicology reports showing that neither Lidle nor instructor Tyler Stanger had drugs or alcohol in their systems. The NTSB also found the airplane's global positioning device and cockpit display unit were too badly damaged by the fiery crash to reveal any information about the flight.

Lidle owned the Cirrus SR-20 plane, and had taken it for a midday trip past the Statue of Liberty and north up the East River. Lidle apparently ran into trouble as he attempted to turn the plane around and head back south.

After the accident, the Federal Aviation Administration temporarily ordered small, fixed wing planes not to fly over the river, which runs along Manhattan's East Side.

Women without husbands, give bachelors a break

All right, ladies, the gig is up. It's time for all of us to get married, including you.

I refer to The New York Times' recent report. After sorting through U.S. Census data, The Times determined that for the first time in American history the majority of women, 51 percent. are living without a husband.

The story tore through the media like a lightning bolt. A slew of "I am woman, hear me roar" stories hit the airwaves. The storyline was clear: Women are finally free and independent now, and the last thing they need is some sloppy spouse who leaves his socks lying all complementarity - a man over the house.

Well, nuts to that. Look, ladies, deciding not to marry for your own well-being is one thing, but it is we you're out, too. Take dust. Because Your decision is killing single men – literally.

Single men partake in more risky behavior than married men. We eat badly, smoke more, and avoid doctors' offices. We die younger. And we're far more likely to wake up in a pile of crumpled newspapers still clutching the tequila bottle we it's not like began sipping from two days before.

The reason why is not complicated. We are social animals. Men and women are very different creatures, but we were made for each other. The Catholics call it and woman, in union and harmony, round each other

Men need to be rounded

not marrying in the process. our brains take in less sensory detail than a woman's, we don't notice dust the way women do. Thus, married men tend to live in orderly, dust-free homes, whereas single men, says P.J. O'Rourke, clean up their place about once every girl-being able to sleep on either side of the bed.

Oh, just admit it, ladies. You need us, too. Sleeping next to a burping, snoring lug of a husband may not be the stuff dreams are made of, but it sure beats sleeping alone. And when you hear prowler rattling the door knob in the middle of the night, whom do you send to investigate? Your cat?

I know The Times is eager for a more progressive society to take hold - one in which the stodgy traditional marriage is kicked to the might opt to keep her own wayside - but the fact is years from now. There will place. Another said she likes marriage, imperfect though it is, is good for us.

Married people are happier, says the Pew Research Center. They enjoy life more - they enjoy sex more, too. Children raised by married couples fare better. Society fares better. Successful civilizations are built on the stability that traditional marriage brings.

But despite these simple and obvious truths, we keep trying to reinvent our nature. We keep trying to prove there are better ways to fulfill our simple needs – keep trying to leave every option open, so that we can be "free" and "independent" forever.

And we end up alone.

... IT LOOKS LIKE SOME

I can't imagine what old folks homes will be like 40

be an unprecedented number of elderly single people living alone. No children or grandchildren will visit them no spouse will care for them. I wonder if The Times will do a front-page piece on that trend, too.

All I know is that my life would certainly be better if I woke every morning in a full home in which my children are laughing and my wife is smiling, rather than the way I often wake now - with a throbbing noggin' because my single friends and I overenjoyed our freedom and independence at the pub the night before.

Like I said, it's time for all of us to get married.

In 1887, Verdi's opera "Otello" premiered at La Scala.

In 1897, the Indiana House Representatives passed, 67-0, a measure redefining the method for determining the area of a circle, which included altering the value of pi. (The bill died in the Indiana Senate.)

In 1917, Congress passed, over President Wilson's veto, an immigration act severely curtailing the influx of Asians.

In 1917, Mexico's constitution was adopted. In 1940, Glenn Miller and his orchestra recorded "Tuxedo Junction" for RCA Victor's "Bluebird" label. In 1967, "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" premiered on CBS TV.

In 1973, services were held at Arlington National Cemetery for Army Lt. Col. William B. Nolde, the last American combat casualty before the Vietnam cease-fire.

In 1994, white separatist Byron De La Beckwith was convicted in Jackson, Miss., of murdering civil rights leader Medgar Evers in 1963, and was immediately sentenced to life in prison. (Beckwith died Jan. 21, 2001 at age 80.)

Ten years ago: Switzerland's "Big Three" banking giants announced they would create a $71 million fund for Holocaust victims and their families. Investment bank Morgan Stanley announced a $10 billion merger with Dean Witter. U.S. Ambassador Pamela Harriman died in Paris at age 76.

Five years ago: A federal grand jury in Alexandria, Va., indicted John Walker Lindh on 10 charges, alleging he was trained by Osama bin Laden's network and then conspired with the Taliban to kill Americans. (Lindh later pleaded guilty to lesser offenses and was sentenced to 20 years in federal prison.)

It wasn't disarming Iraq of weapons of mass destruction; they didn't exist. It wasn't bringing democracy to Iraq; we've been there four years, and the Iraqi government is still not independent. It wasn't to punish lrag for the attack on the World Trade Center; Iraq had no part in it. Well, you know all of that, so what was the real purpose?

May I suggest it was to destroy the unity of Iraq and to fragment it into warring factions, one of which can be bribed to sign over Iraqi oil to multinational corpora-

America, under its present regime, is a colonizer in cahoots with Israel. Modern colonizers work by fragmenting and weakening the opposition. Iraq, once a strong state, is now a weak mess. The next targets for weapons of mass destruction. Syria has been falsely accused of failing to cooperate in the war on terror. Iran has been falsely accused of seeking nuclear weapons and of fomenting strife in Iraq. Lebanon's majority is falsely accused of seeking to destabilize the country.

What was the real purpose fragmentation are Iran, Syria publicly proclaiming a and Lebanon - which, thanks to the activity of the Israelis, has a head start.

False accusations are usually a prelude to an attack, but in the meantime, while desire for unity, the U.S. and Israel are covertly inflaming divisions.

You might recall that the Israeli prime minister, Ehud Olmert, praised the war against Iraq as a success. Of course was, if the objective was destroy the unity Iraq and to instigate a civil war. Israelis were talking about destroying Iraq and Iran by fragmentation as long ago as the early 1980s. They had thought the Iraq-Iran War would destroy both countries, but when they saw people on both sides uniting behind their respective governments, they devised a plan to prolong the war as long as possible. The Israelis helped arm the Iranians. The U.S. helped the Iraqis.

The history of modern times has been ugly and immoral, and it is still ugly and immoral. It does truly seem, as Oswald Spengler predicted in his book "The Decline of the West," that our world is evolving from what he called the Age of Money to the Age of Caesars. True freedom, except when measured by the false yardstick of elections, is shrinking. It's no accident that George Bush includes the freely elected government of Iran as part of his "axis of evil" while counting the dictatorships in Jordan, Egypt and the Gulf States as "allies." Where was his love for democracy when Hamas won the elections in Palestine? And then there is always an economic factor. There isn't any war of civ-

After successfully completing an early legislative blitz, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi announced that energy independence and global warming would be the next priorities on the Democratic agenda. She proposed creating a new committee to hold hearings to increase public awareness of the dangers of climate change, a move that Dingell and several other newly installed committee chairs took as an attempt to bypass their authority.

Year gets off to a good start economically

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. service sector expanded at a faster rate in January than in the previous month, a trade group said today, signaling a strong start to economic growth this year.

The Institute for Supply Management, which is based in Tempe, Ariz., said its index of business activity in the service sector advanced to 59.0 in January from 56.7 in December. Wall Street analysts had expected a reading of 57 for the latest month.

A reading above 50 indicates expansion, while one below that indicates contrac-

January marked the 46th consecutive month of business activity increase, the trade group said.

The service industries represent about 80 percent of the nation's economic activity, and economists are lookdriver of growth in 2007 as the manufacturing sector struggles with weakness in the automotive and housing industries.

There was little discernible reaction in the market, where shares drifted lower in morning trading. At midmorning, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 13.54, or 0.1 percent, at 12,639.95. The Standard & Poor's 500 index was down 3.85, or 0.3 percent, to 1,444.54 while the Nasdaq composite index fell 7.71, or 0.3 percent, to 2,468.17.

Anthony Nieves, chairman of the group's non-manufacturing business survey committee, noted that new orders and employment increased at slower rates in January than the previous month and that the price index also eased.

Still, he added, "The overall indication in January is continued economic growth covered by the ISM report in the non-manufacturing sector at a faster pace than in December."

The new orders index ing for the sector to be a weakened slightly to 55.4 in January from 55.6 in December, while the backlog of orders strengthened to 49.0 from 48.0 the previous

Prices increased at a slower rate, with the prices index registering 55.2 in January, from 59.7 in down

Some of the respondents told the trade group that "costs are starting to come down -- especially petroleum-related costs," the study said.

The services employment index, meanwhile, moved down to 51.7 in January from 53.2 in December.

Seven industries reported growth: utilities; transportation and warehousing; professional, scientific and technical services; information; finance and insurance; health care and social assistance; and miscellaneous services.

Seven reported decreased activity: arts, entertainment and recreation; accommodation and food services; management of companies and support services; educational services; public administration; retail trade; and construction.

The others unchanged.

voting against Pelosi's plan for a new committee. It would be unfortunate if turf battles between House Democrats stymied efforts to craft a consensus on how to slow or reverse global warming. Ever since the United States opted out of the Kyoto Accords, it has watched from the sidelines as the international community grappled with the problem. Since America is the largest producer of greenhouse gas discharges on the globe, its leadership is essential to finding a solution while there is still time to minimize rising temperatures and sea levels.

At a recent auto show in the nation's capital, Dingell and Pelosi staged a symbolic photo-op designed to show they can work together. As reported by the Washington Post, they strolled to a display of hybrid vehicles, making nice with each other, saying little of consequence, oohing and ahhing over the low consumption, high mileage cars. Both then exited the arena and were driven off in gas-guzzling Chevy Suburbans.

If and when congressional Democrats turn up the heat on global warming, they should have their symbols and their leadership in much better order so that they serve the public inter-to peddle. There is, however, a war for energy. Regardless of the price at the pump or the temporary status of oil inventories, the truth is that the supply of oil is shrinking as the world demand for it rises. The insiders in the oil industry know this, but, of course, they aren't going to tell you. The elites of this world consider us peasants and make sure we know a lot about Paris Hilton and Rosie O'Donnell. That, the elite think, is our level of intelligence.

The shortage of oil could be met by cooperation among the nations, but unfortunately, the U.S. is choosing to rely on force and subversion. It's a bad choice, not only morally, but strategically. In the long run, we can't sustain our military power.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am writing on behalf of my friends at work. We have a co-worker, "Madge," who had a stillborn baby last year. It was tragic. Our problem is, she keeps a photo of the deceased infant with its little eyes sewn shut on her desk in plain view, so that if we must interact with her (we have an open cubicle layout) we have to see it. Is this appropriate? Ninety percent of the employees here are women. Most are appalled. Others say, "Well, it's all she has." Madge is expecting again, and we are rooting for her and the baby. However, in addition to all this, she is mean and gossipy. Madge tells everyone what to do and how to do it -- which is not in her job description. I hope that when the baby arrives she will soften and not be so bitter. But, Abby, how on earth do we blow off that photo? -- APPALLED IN THE MID-WEST

DEAR APPALLED: While a person's desktop is usually private territory, I agree that the photograph you describe is inappropriate in an office environment. Because Madge feels the need to keep the picture of her stillborn baby close, it should be kept in her purse with other family photos, or in her desk drawer. How very sad that poor woman must be. The person who should deal with this delicate problem is the boss or the supervisor.

DEAR ABBY: How do I overcome my insecurity issues? I have been insecure all my life. I have always felt fat, ugly, unacceptable and worthless (among other things). A couple of years ago, I appeared on a popular reality makeover television show. I thought it would solve everything, but inside I am still all messed up. How do I get past all my past hurts and move on to a healthy, less stressful life? — STILL HURTING IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR STILL HURTING: When people feel fat, ugly, unacceptable and worthless (among other things), it often goes back to the way they were brought up -- and lack of support from their parents. You can heal what is hurting you, but you must recognize that, unlike plastic surgery, there are no "quick fixes" for what ails you. You will find the answers you are seeking by consulting a licensed, experienced psychotherapist. I hope you will ask your physician for a referral as soon as you finish this letter. You have a right to be happy, so please don't put it off.

DEAR ABBY: I feel like I have struck gold. Please tell your female readers, if they are over 40 and looking for a man, to head to their local diner for breakfast. Last week I found myself to be one of only two women (and she was with her husband) out of 15 people eating breakfast. Apparently, men meet weekly for breakfast. I'm sure if women made a habit of going to the restaurant, the waitresses would get to know them and would be thrilled to introduce them to some of the single men who come in. We men love to play Cupid. Also, be sure to sit at the counter. It's easier to approach someone sitting at the counter than someone sitting in a booth. -- EAT-ING SINGLE BUT NOT ALONE IN OHIO

DEAR EATING SINGLE: I am frequently asked by members of both sexes where to meet someone eligible. You have offered a good suggestion, and although romance is not usually on the menu in such establishments, with Valentine's Day approaching, I am pleased to pass this along.

JV girls suffer tough loss to Hereford Friday

By JORDAN REAGAN Sports Editor

Friday night, the Pampa JV girls took on Hereford in what became a dangerously close match.

Trisha Moore led the girls with 13 points, followed by Layce Beasley and Destiny Fitzer with 10 and Jessica Miner with 8.

The Pampa girls played a tough game all the way through, but fell short in the end with a 47-43 loss to Hereford.

"The girls played much better this time than they did the first time," coach Janyth Bowers said, "I was extremely proud of the girls and how they played all the way to the end of the game. We were in it until the last

Freshman girls keep Hereford down to 16 in blowout victory

By JORDAN REAGAN Sports Editor

The freshman girls continued doing what they do best on Saturday morning as they defeated Hereford with a staggering 51-16 victory.

Sam Pearson led the team with 20 points and 8 steals, and sank 3 3-pointers against Hereford.

Other contributors were Shelbie Watson with 16 points, 6 steals, 4 rebounds and 4 assists, as Brooklyn Barker and Hayley Smith pulled down 4 rebounds or less in 13 out of 19 games each.

The girls kept Hereford down to 4 points in the first quarter, and only 2 in the seond, taking them into halftime with a 27-6 lead, a commanding advantage which and Destry Hand, will join they kept ahold of through the softball team on Tuesday the second half.

The last game of the season for the freshman girls is at 6 p.m. tonight at Randall.

Including Saturday's victory, the freshman girls have held opponents to 30 points this season, and have improved to a 17-2 overall record.

> We knew it would be a nasty game. As a defensive player, you love it. That's why we played."

 Gary Brackett Indianapolis Colts Linebacker

For Dungy, it was a night to embrace.

He talked about how special it was to watch those final 15 seconds tick off, the thoughts racing through his mind and even a phone call that surprised Super Bowl

MVP Peyton Manning.

"I was talking to a friend Goodell said. Dungy's first Super Bowl onship ring. But it sure on the phone, and Tony said celebration gave him a few sounded as if Dungy was 'You better take this call,' " "I said Manning said. 'Why?' and he said 'Take this call.' So I hung up on my friend and it was the president congratulating us and inviting us to the White House.

Dungy knew it was coming after White House officials called earlier in the week to make sure they had the right cell phone number.

Not everything went so smoothly.

The weather was the worst in Super Bowl history, with steady rain from start to finish, and it suited Dungy and his Colts just fine. When the slick ball forced them to rein in their potent passing game, their defense and running game assumed a championship-caliber share of the NFL commissioner Roger Goodell didn't seem to mind,

"Including the rain, it was a great game, and the elements are part of the game,"

Dungy and Manning also showed they could win the big game, shaking labels they've been saddled with for years. Dungy made the breakthrough in his 11th season as a head coach and his fifth with the Colts, until now perennial title contenders and late-season disappointments.

Manning, meanwhile, strengthened his standing among the game's great quarterbacks by winning his first Super Bowl title.

"It has been hard to watch these other teams hoist that trophy," said Manning, who threw for 247 yards and a touchdown. "That's a hard pill to swallow. You have to learn from it and realize how badly you want to be up there.'

Manning's younger brother Eli has yet to come close to a title in three seasons with the New York Giants. Their father, Archie, was a star NFL quarterback for 14 years who never reached the to win a Super Bowl, that is just wrong," Dungy said. "This guy is a Hall of Fame player and one of the greatest ever."

Manning had plenty of help as the Colts (16-4) earned their first title since the 1970 season, when they played in Baltimore.

Dominic Rhodes ran for 113 yards and Joseph Addai added 77 to Indianapolis control the ball for 38 minutes. The defense, often the culprit when past title bids came up short, recovered two fumbles and intercepted Rex Grossman twice in the fourth quarter, with Kelvin Hayden's 56yard interception return sealing the win.

It was the kind of performance needed to win the first rainy Super Bowl. Gusty wind made the conditions even more challenging, and the halftime show had a finale all too fitting Prince's "Purple Rain."

"We knew it would be a nasty game," Colts line-"If people think he needed backer Gary Brackett said. "As a defensive player, you love it. That's the way we played."

Manning threw an early interception but otherwise handled the ball flawlessly. Twice he slipped on the slick grass as he threw and fell but still managed to complete the pass.

Grossman, by contrast, fumbled two snaps and forced throws trying to rally his team. He can look forward to an offseason of debate in Chicago as to whether he's the Bears' quarterback of the future.

"My confidence never wavered," he said. "We missed some crucial plays, and that's the difference in the Super Bowl."

The Bears started fast when speedy rookie Devin Hester became the first player to return the opening kickoff for a touchdown. Burned by the 92-yard score, Dungy ordered squibbed kickoffs the rest of the game.

Florida State gets first win

Each of the Seminoles' previous 15 trips to Duke's famous home court ended with disappointment, with the Blue Devils' margins of victory both huge (100-58 in 2001) and tiny (97-96 in overtime last season).

Al Thornton wasn't about to fall short in his final game in front of those notoriously noisy Cameron Crazies. The senior scored 21 points and helped the Seminoles stop No. 8 Duke cold in the final minute to seal a 68-67 victory on Sunday.

"It's something that has never been done — 15 times we've gotten beat up here," Thornton said. "We've been able to get them a couple of times at home, but it feels good to come up here" and Toney Douglas added 15 points and Uche Echefu had 12 for the Seminoles (17-6, Atlantic Coast Conference), who overcame a 17-point deficit to win their third straight and avenge a tough loss here last year.

"Duke has set a benchmark, and they set the bar awful high," Florida State coach Leonard Hamilton said. "All the teams, especially the ones that are trying to become programs of significance or programs that are competitive year in and year out in the ACC, Duke has set a standard that most of us are being judged by.

"So to get a win here against a very good Duke team that's nationally ranked does a lot for your players' confidence and the morale of your program. But in order for this to be meaningful, we need to continue winning games."

Duke had two late chances David McClure rebounded Douglas' miss with about 30 seconds left. The Blue Devils brought it downcourt and called timeout with 7.7 seconds left to set up their final play. DeMarcus Nelson inbounded the ball to Greg Paulus, who then missed a layup.

"We had to make them make tough shots, even though they had some pointblank looks they kind of missed," Thornton said. "Overall, we had to make them make some tough shots."

A jump ball was called on the rebound, and the possession arrow pointed toward Duke. Josh McRoberts took the inbounds pass in the lane with about 2 seconds left, and his floater rimmed out. Nelson's putback attempt bounced off the rim as time expired.

"Josh is usually the main read on that, and I trust Josh with the game on the line," Paulus said.

Paulus finished with a career-high 23 points for Duke (18-5, 5-4), which has lost two straight in the final seconds and now must beat rival North Carolina on Wednesday to avoid its first three-game losing streak since 1999 — when the Blue Devils lost their last game of the 1998-99 season and dropped their first two in 1999-00.

CLEVELAND (AP) — From the opening tip to the final horn, the Detroit Pistons controlled the crowd, tempo — and the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Chauncey Billups scored 18 points, Chris Webber and Rasheed Wallace had 15 apiece and the confident Pistons dominated Cleveland with offensive efficiency and defensive intensity in a 90-78 win Sunday.

The Pistons took control early, quieting a crowd of more than 20,000 fans who had hoped to kick off their Super Bowl festivities by witnessing a Cavs victory. The visitors from Michigan had other plans.

"They're always going to be at the top of the Central right now," said LeBron James, who had to work for every one of his 21 points. 'We've got to find a way to despise that and get on a level that Detroit is on."

Billups added 10 assists, Wallace 13 rebounds and the Central Division-leading Pistons had six players score in double figures. Detroit has won five straight regularseason games over the Cavaliers, who pushed the Pistons to seven games in last year's playoffs.

And with their third win in a row, the Pistons also winning record away from home.

"We expect to win," Billups said.

"They always have a workmanlike attitude about three and never got closer than seven points in the final 12 minutes. Whenever Cleveland had a defensive breakdown, the Pistons hit an open jumper. "You make a mistake, they know how to exploit it," James said. "We didn't make too many mistakes, but as soon as you make one, they make you pay for it."

This Pistons' squad is very improved to 15-9 in road similar to the one which beat games, the only team in the Cleveland in last year's play-Eastern Conference to have a offs with one big addition: Webber, who signed with the club as a free agent on Jan. 16 and was facing the Cavs for the first time with his hometown team. Webber's presence — the and the next we score 70."

Pistons ran their offense through him in the first half - is bad news for the Cavaliers, who don't appear ready to dethrone their northern neighbors. Webber scored 13 points in the first half on 6-of-7 shooting.

"It feels good to be on a good team," he said. "At any moment any guy we have can start carrying the load."

James feels the Pistons are even better with Webber than they were with Ben Wallace, who signed with Chicago as a free agent.

"When Ben Wallace was there, you could kind of relax on the offensive end when he was on the floor," James said. "But now they have five guys that can easily score 20 points. They are a much better team with him (Webber)."

James was only 9-of-22 from the field. He had a few tough layups roll out and was constantly harassed by Tayshaun Prince and his teammates, who helped chase James everywhere he went on the floor.

"We try to trap him, get the ball out of his hands so the other guys got to make plays," Prince said. "When he does have the ball, everyone behind me is in a zonetype atmosphere."

Larry Hughes added 14 Zydrunas points and Ilgauskas had 12 with 11 rebounds for Cleveland, which went just 4-of-17 on 3-pointers.

"I'm at a loss of words right now offensively, I don't know," James said. "We score 100 points one night

Doritos, Chevy feature Super Bowl spots made by or dreamed up by amateurs and high-end computer graphics, there was a new entry this year in the annual showdown of advertisers in the Super Bowl: amateurs. Starting in the first quarter, a goofy spot for Doritos showing a hapless driver distracted by a pretty woman passing by marked the first time a purely amateur-created ad aired during the Super Bowl. Frito-Lay, the PepsiCo Inc. division that makes Doritos, ran an online competition to pick the winning spot.

Katie Crabb, a freshman at the University of Wisconsin at Stevens Point, was the winner of a separate contest by General Motors Corp. and had her idea for an ad made into reality by Chevrolet's marketing division.

Despite being made by a newcomer, that ad was true to the tradition of using oddball humor in Super Bowl ads, showing a number of men stripping off their shirts.

Sight gags were back, including one from Bud Light early in the game showing a rather unusual tactic for winning at rockpaper-scissors — throwing an actual rock at the head of your opponent. The gag wasn't completely new, howev-

NEW YORK (AP) — er, since last year Sprint Along with the trademark Nextel Corp. featured a Clydesdales, talking animals phone with a "crime deterrent" — which turned out to be throwing the phone at someone's head. FedEx Corp. combined a sight gag with another trademark of big ticket Super Bowl spots, fancy computer graphics, with an otherworldy ad showing an office worker drifting off into space from the world's first office on the moon, only to be clobbered by a passing meteor.

A lot is riding on the ads, and not just because CBS Corp. is charging as much as $2.6 million for a 30-second spot during the game. With some 90 million people watching, it's the mostviewed program all year on television and the ads are subject to intense scrutiny, both by amateurs and the marketing industry.

Coca-Cola Co. was back in the game after a long absence, taking on its rival Pepsi with a number of creative ads, including an homage to Black History Month with an understated ad showing the changing shapes of Coke bottles over time as milestones in black history appeared alongside. That ad referred indirectly to the fact that, for the first time, both coaches in the game are black, and at least one other spot also highlighted Black History Month.

Some of the uses of humor didn't resonate well with experts. Stephen Greyser, a professor at Harvard Business School specializing in communications and the business of sports, said the rock-throwing spot by Anheuser-Busch Cos.' Bud Light was "attention-getting" but also "had a nasty character to it."

Bud Light, which often swings for the fences with wacky jabs at humor, scored better with Greyser with a different spot showing an auctioneer saying wedding vows at hyper-fast speed. Greyser said that spot had a much broader appeal.

The job-search company CareerBuilder ditched its longtime office-monkey pitchmen of years past in favor of a jungle combat scene among office workers, where office supplies become weapons. Think of "Dilbert" meets "Lord of the Flies."

Tim Calkins, a marketing professor at the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University who runs a panel of students to rate the ads, called this year's batch a "mixed bag," saying advertisers were "being safe," with no one "pushing the edge of either creativity or taste.'

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Feb.

You'll discover the power of positive thinking this year. Though you are a strong and assertive sign, learning to understand where others are coming from might be more important than you realize. Your ability to empathize and understand makes you a winner. Others feel that they can trust you. As a result, those in your immediate circle will open up even more. Travel also could play a significant role. If you are single, you could meet someone quite exotic and different this year. If you choose to get to know this person, relating could be an eye-opening experience. If you are attached, your relationship will benefit from your laid-back and positive outlook. Not everything needs to be your way. LIBRA remains the key to clear and open thinking.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Others come toward you. You might feel as if you don't have many options. In some manner, others might be dictating their terms. Understand that you can only control yourself, not them. You might need to distance yourself rather than confront them. Tonight: Let others do their thing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  What you set out to accomplish might be more difficult than you initially anticipated. Distractions occur naturally. A friendship might be playing a bigger role in plans than you'd anticipated. Go with the flow rather than become aggravated. Tonight: Get some errands done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Your playfulness might not be as appreciated as you'd like. Still, you'll have a good time as you unleash your creativity. Others might not need to be on board right now. A covert offer heads in your direction. Tonight: Let it all hang CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ If you can work from home or stay close to where you feel comfortable, all the better. An undercurrent of discomfort marks your actions, conversations and plans. The unexpected plays a role as well. Tonight: Home is your castle. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 You will speak your mind, but you might not like the end result. Is it you or is it them? You might question the results you are getting. Although what you say might be perfectly OK, others could be a touch reactive. Tonight: Catch p on a friend's news.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Suddenly, you note a possessive streak emerge. You might want to reconsider a decision about your finances. New facts come to light that might not be totally compatible with past opinions and decisions. Tonight: Don't fret; just act.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  The Moon highlights you. You might be full of energy and good will. The issue easily might be those around you, who could feel a touch askew. Whether you decide to indulge them or not is your call. Make yourself priority number one right now. Tonight: What would put a smile on your face? SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 Take your time and don't commit to anything that doesn't feel right. In fact, stepping back and reconsidering your options just might be perfect. A loved one or a child has excellent intentions, even if his or her actions are a flub-up. Tonight: Take some personal time. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Keep your eye on the big picture, and you won't experience a problem. Distractions and mini-hassles could surround you. As well-intended as you are, pleasing a family member might be impossible right now. Tonight: Head out. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  Others, as always, look to you for advice and change. You might want to approach a situation differently, and hit some flak. As nicely as you state your case, others seem impervious to your suggestion. Tonight: Do your thing. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★ Events will encourage you to take the high road. That outlook might be the only one you feel comfortable with. Use special care with your finances, as others want and ask for a lot. Learn the word "no." Everyone needs boundaries you included. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 A partner wants to make the call. Know that you cannot make a difference here, so you might as well go along for the ride. Your gentle attitude could make this relationship work. Letting someone discover the end results of his or her actions could be important.

BORN TODAY Baseball player Babe Ruth (1895), news anchorman Tom Brokaw (1940), singer Bob Marley (1945)

Tonight: Opt for togetherness.

Arrest made in death of elevator shaft fall

By MARCUS FRANKLIN Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A man died after falling down an elevator shaft during a dispute at a posh Manhattan nightclub once featured on the popular television show "Sex and the City," police said.

Police arrested Granville Adams, 43, late Saturday and charged him with criminally negligent homicide in the death of Orlando Valle, 35. Adams was arraigned Sunday and did not enter a plea. He was freed on $5,000 bail, pros-

Investigators said the two men fought early Saturday morning at BED New York, a club in the Chelsea neighborhood known for providing beds for its lounging patrons.

Adams pushed Valle against sixthfloor elevator doors, which opened, causing Valle to fall into the shaft, police said.

Valle plummeted four floors before landing on top of the elevator car at the second floor of the converted warehouse space, police said. Valle, of the Bronx, was taken to a nearby hospital where he was pronounced dead.

A message left at a Brooklyn telephone number listed for Adams was not returned Sunday.

According to Valle's younger sister, Luz, relatives and friends who had been at the club said he had been trying to intervene in a dispute and make peace, but instead became involved himself.

Valle, of the Bronx, was a married father. He was at the club to celebrate his birthday, said his father, Felipe

Mail delivered 8 years late

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — The Great Falls Tribune has some old mail to get through.

More than 400 pieces of mail addressed to the newspaper have been delivered eight years late. The 435 pieces that were to have been delivered on Jan. 16, 1999, reached the newspaper Thursday. Included were checks for Tribune subscrip-

"This was truly a case of the check was in the mail," said Tribune Publisher Jim Strauss, who accepted the mail delivered by Postmaster Jeanne Downey and Jacque Stingley, a customer service representative for the U.S. Postal Service.

"We are truly sorry," Stingley said. "I'm sure people have been wondering where their mail went."

Brother questions runway lighting er of a prominent Pennsylvania attorney who was among three people killed in a small plane crash questioned whether insufficient runway lighting contributed to the accident.

Peter J. Karoly, 53, of Bethlehem and his wife, Lauren Angstadt, 54, died Friday night along with the pilot of the single engine plane, said Karoly's brother, lawyer John Karoly Jr. of Allentown, Pa.

Levee study shows risks in Califorina

(AP) — Leaving the congestion and sky-high housing prices of the San Francisco Bay area for a quiet retirement near the state capital seemed like a no-lose idea to Achilles Melendres.

So he bought a two-story home in a rapidly growing neighborhood north of downtown Sacramento last year. He's now wondering if he made the right decision.

Last month, the Federal Emergency Management Agency withdrew its certification for the levees that are designed to keep the Sacramento River within its banks as it winds past the sprawling neighborhood Melendres calls home.

The levees are weaker than expected, leaving thousands of homeowners at risk of a catastrophic flood that could submerge a vast swath of former farmland in 20 feet of water.

"The reason I left the Bay area is because of the earthquake insurance. Now I've traded it for another problem," said Melendres, 59.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. California began an intensive review of its flooding risk after the devastation wrought along the Gulf Coast in 2005 by hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

A report released this past week by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers found that 27 states and the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico have substandard levees. The assessment identified 122 poorly maintained levees. California, the country's most populous state, had nearly a quarter of the problem levees — 37 segments. Washington state followed with 19 suspect levees.

Many of California's levees were built decades ago by farmers and are riddled with rodent holes and weakened by overgrowth. In most cases, the local water and farming districts that are supposed to maintain them have little if any money to make repairs.

The threat of flooding is greatest in Sacramento. which sits at the confluence of the Sacramento and American rivers.
