County defers action on election administrator

By MARILYN POWERS Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners once again deferred action on creating the position of election administrator after discussing the issue at their 9 a.m. meeting today in the secondfloor courtroom of the county courthouse, 205 N. Russell.

The question of whether to create such a position was first raised at commissioners' July 2 meeting, when County Clerk Susan Winborne $51,770.46, Winborne said at the presented a tentative proposal for how the office would be funded.

The county has the option of hiring an elections administrator who would be paid exclusively by the county to handle county elections, entering into an agreement with one or more of the other governing bodies in the county to fund a joint election administrator, or continuing the addition to their current work load, with the possibility of adding a staff to participate. member to that office.

Estimated annual cost of having an elections administrator is July 2 meeting, including salary, benefits, training and office supplies. The county would also provide office space, equipment storage and administration.

Gray County would pay 50 percent of that total, with the City of Pampa and Pampa Independent School District paying 20 percent each and current practice of having county the remaining amount to be divided clerk staff handle the elections in among the other school districts and cities within the county that choose

> Each of the school districts and cities would pay a 10 percent administrative fee in addition to the cost of their elections if an elections administrator is chosen but is funded solely by the county. If a joint administrator is chosen, the 10 percent would not be charged.

Taxing entities within the county

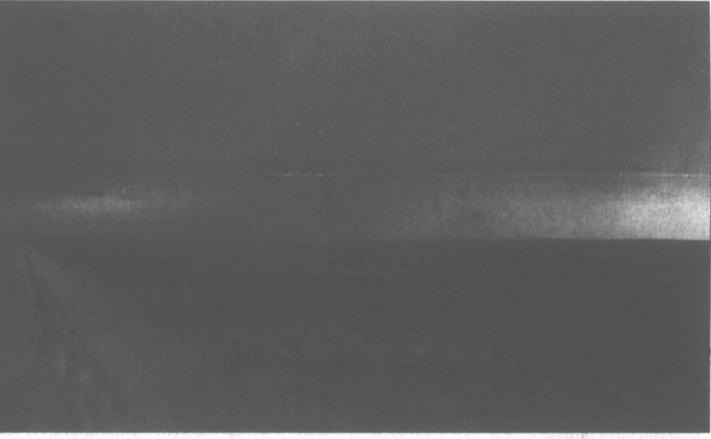

If a joint administrator is chosen, met July 9 at the courthouse to discuss the topic. One issue raised at that meeting was that if a joint administrator were to be hired, some entities, such as school districts, would have to pay a share of the cost each year, even though they did not hold elections every year. Another issue was that some entities are on very tight budgets.

The only taxing entity which did not have a representative at the July 9 meeting was Grandview/Hopkins Independent School District, Winborne said.

"All the entities are very interest-

City to meet to discuss clean tanks

By DAVID BOWSER Staff Writer

Clean water tanks is the only item on the agenda for a special Pampa Commission meeting Tuesday.

City commissioners will consider awarding a bid for the cleaning and inspection of water tanks.

The city staff opened the bids July 10, according the Donny Hooper. Underwater Services was the only bidder.

Hooper said the company has done work for Pampa in the past and provided excellent services.

They bid $24,290 to clean and inspect the tanks.

The special commission meeting will be at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in the city commission chambers at Pampa City Hall.

AF revamps boot camp

VORTEX SPRAY ON BEDLINERS

By MICHELLE ROBERTS Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Even in the air conditioned indoors, sweat is beading on trainee Kristen Block's forehead as she concedes that after four weeks of running, carrying a rifle and learning to defend herself in a fight, Air Force boot camp is not exactly what she and other recruits expected.

"A lot of people aren't prepared for the physical aspects," says the 20-yearold from Hiawatha, Kansas. "A lot of people thought it was going to be a mental thing.

Until recently, they would have been mostly right. Air Force boot camp used to open in a classroom with Air Force history and doctrine. Little emphasis was put on how to handle or clean an M-16 rifle. Recruits were forced to fold T-shirts into perfect 6-inch squares.

But with an Army and by repeated and longer deployments to Iraq and Afghanistan, the Air Force finds it can no longer rely on infrastructure being in place or security support coming from the other service branches when deployed. So, the 33,000 recruits who pass through Lackland Air Force Base each year are going through a boot camp that has and is being radically overhauled.

By late next year, Air Force boot camp will go from 6 1/2 weeks to 8 1/2 weeks, similar to the Army and Navy — and the longest Air Force boot camp program since the early years of the Vietnam War. The first class to face the extended boot camp should start in October 2008.

"It's night and day from when I came in," said Tech. Sgt. Magdalena Cortez, a 17-year Air Force veteran who teaches ground combat training to recruits. "These are the biggest changes in Marine Corps stretched thin the Air Force's history.'

Bush to call for international Mideast peace conference

Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice would lead the peace conference, which would include repre-

"neighbors in the region," said a senior administration President Mahmoud Abbas, official who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

> Bush planned to speak this afternoon at the White House about the peace conference and U.S. financial and diplomatic support for West Bank after the Islamic and his Fatah faction and militant group Hamas gained authority over Gaza in June.

Bush will portray this as "a moment of choice" between two paths for the Palestinian people — one represented by the moderate that of Hamas. The official spoke anonymously because the president had not yet given his speech. The fall conference Palestinian and among Israeli officials and other countries in the region would be a way to prod the peace process. It would be one of the few times that Israelis and Arab leaders have met jointly to work out their differences.

Bush will also call for Israel to remove authorized outposts in Palestinian territory and end settlement expansion, the official said. And he will urge Israel to continue releasing tax revenues to the Palestinian authority.

White House spokesman Tony Snow said Bush would talk about "helping the forces of moderation" in the Middle East and attempt to get "people on both sides to step up and start working, to energize the peace process."

Bush will outline U.S financial support for the Abbas government, including $190 million in mostly already-approved direct aid to the Palestinians. He will await recommendations from former British Prime Minister Tony Blair before deciding whether asking Congress for more, the sen-

"Everyone agreed they'd like the county to hire an election administrator and be in total control of that individual, and each entity contract with us for the years they have elections."

Precinct 2 Commissioner Gary Willoughby, who attended the July 9 meeting, agreed that the trend was to lean away from a joint administrator. "My concern is that everyone who wants to participate, and holds an election, pay their share," said Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright. "This is like car insurance," said

Another agenda item which drew no action by commissioners was the retirement of Pampa/Gray County Emergency Management Coordinator Ken Hall next month.

A joint resolution by the county and the City of Pampa in 1983 created the position, which is funded by the state, Peet said. Peet and Pampa Mayor Lonny Robbins are jointly responsible for selecting Hall's successor. A $10 vehicle registration fee col-addressed commissioners concerning the fire protection contract between the city and the county, which expires in September.

Horst had directed a letter to Peet and commissioners asking consideration for a proposal to increase the county's annual subsidy for fire coverage by Pampa Fire Department.

"After careful thought and consideration, we believe the best source for determining the fair amount for subsidization would be property value," Horst said in the letter. "The property value in our county response area is over 36 percent of the amount inside the city limits. The current subsidy to the city is only seven percent of the total fire protection budget. With property values as they are, the city is asking that the commissioners court allot an additional $30,000 to the subsidy."

No action was taken on the topic, which was not an agenda item.

Gore's campaign of fear is an overreaction to climate change. They point to the fact that according to the United Nation's study on global warming the temperature of the Earth rose just 0.7 degrees Celsius in the last 100 years.

But he says that it is wrong to destroy our planet and ruin the prospects of every generation that follows ours. Is Mr. Gore's assessment an overreaction and what is the economic cost?

Any energy plan must be realistic in that it must encourage diversity in energy sources. Alternative energy sources have become the darling of politicians in Washington, but much of their success depends on government subsidies or mandates from government that renewable energy is used to Simply put, ethanol, wind and other exotics must have very high energy prices and government subsidies or mandates to survive even in today's economic climate. Even if renewable energy usage tripled each year for the next 25 years, fossil fuels (coal, crude oil and natural gas) would still generate 80 percent of the global energy demand.

Assuming that energy prices remain at or above current levels, renewable energy will continue to grow and more private investment will come into the development of wind, solar, and others. Energy Information Administration estimates that $7 billion in private equity was invested in renewable energy technology in 2006, which is double the investment rate in Punishing the oil industry through additional taxes to finance research and development of renewable energy is not the answer. Restricting petroleum supplies through additional taxes will cause more pressure on higher prices.

Congress and Americans from coast to coast should not shut petroleum out of the debate on energy policy and it must take into consideration the economic impact of their decisions. What is the economic pain of reaching Mr. Gore's goals? Government must seek broad and equitable treatment of all economic sectors.

Congress should seek a climate change strategy that is fair and balanced and cost effective.

Is it too early to know if the "sky is falling (or melting)"? Some believe so while others disagree. We do know that climate change happens continuously and looking at it in 100-year increments only gives scientists a small picture when looking through it through geological time (millions of years) would give scientists a more comprehensive view.

True rule of law a hard sale in America

I was not surprised that President George Bush commuted Lewis "Scooter" Libby's prison sentence. It's what you'd expect from a corrupt politician who appears to care not a rat's toenail for justice, truth or principles.

Libby lied under oath before a grand jury, and he lied to the FBI. That's perjury and obstruction of justice. He was tried, convicted by a jury of his peers and sentenced in accordance with Justice Department guidelines. Bush's claim that the sentence was "too severe" is just another Bush lie. He knows it was not too severe because he's been the stingiest president ever when it comes to pardons and commutations.

Why the commutation and not a pardon? Because as long as Libby stands as a convicted felon with his conviction on appeal, he can claim the Fifth Amendment if Congress decides to question him. There are a lot of people who don't want Libby to tell the truth, starting with Vice President Dick Cheney, President Bush and even former President Bill Clinton. Furthermore, by not ruling out a full pardon,

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas: July 8

Houston Chronicle on progress in Iraq:

U.S. troop strength in Iraq only recently reached the level envisioned by President Bush's surge strategy, so it is too early to judge its chance of success. However, if this weekend's wave of violence is a prelude to progress, Americans must shudder to think what impending failure would look like.

Over the weekend, suicide bombers and other insurgents killed 220 Iraqis. The attacks demonstrated the inability of U.S. and Iraqi soldiers to ensure widespread, uniform security and the insurgents' ability to seek out vulnerable targets in unsecured areas.

The weekend attacks corresponded to a prediction by the U.S. commander in Iraq, David Petraeus. He said Sunni insurgents would try to "pull off a variety of sensational attacks and grab the headlines to create a mini-Tet." While the Viet Cong's Tet offensive in 1968 failed militarily, it succeeded in its goal of persuading many Americans that the war in Vietnam was unwinnable.

Petraeus notes accurately that political and military progress in Iraq must accompany and will bolster one another. However, the apparent paralysis of the Iraqi government, combined with the surge in violent attacks, is having the opposite effect.

Several prominent Republican senators have called for a change of strategy one leading to the withdrawal or repositioning of U.S. troops in Iraq. U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates canceled his departure on a tour of four Latin American nations and will remain in Washington to meet on Iraq.

One of the bright spots in Iraq, the relative calm of Iraqi Kurdistan, is endangered by Turkish threats to attack radical Kurdish rebels who take refuge in Iraq after attacks in Turkey.

Voicing frustration at the inability of Iraqi forces to secure areas temporarily pacified by U.S. troops, several Iraqi politicians called on the civilian populace to arm itself in self-defense. Without widespread security maintained by Iraq forces, this sounds like a prescription for continued civil conflict and another reason to doubt whether the surge in U.S. troops will pay lasting

More rain—don't complain!
In case any of you reading this have recently moved to Pampa (and to Texas), let me be the first to tell you we never complain about too much rain in Texas. Mainly because we have seen too many years when it only rains a few times during the year, which usually results in lean crops, brown lawns, and dust storms. We do hope the wheat farmers can get into their fields to harvest one of the best wheat crops in years—particularly with the price being more than five dollars per bushel. And, before I get off the subject of weather, how about these unbelievable cooler temperatures we are experiencing.

Your Chamber committees have been very active lately completing plans for the upcoming events. The Tri-State Seniors Golf Tournament begins Thursday, July 26th. A reception will be held that Thursday night in the M.K. Brown room in the Chamber building. The Tournament concludes on the 29th. The Retail Committee has been brainstorming different ideas for improving Pampa's retail sales and service. One suggested initiative would be to offer training sessions conducted by professional trainers for subjects such as effective telephone answering skills and/or customer service techniques and skills-plus other possible relevant subjects. The committee members felt that not only would our retail businesses benefit—but also Pampa shoppers and the young people receiving most of the training. We will be following up with our local merchants regarding their input and support of such training. Please feel free to let me know your feelings about such an endeavor.

This approaching Thursday evening you will be seeing a lot of officials from all of the 26 counties in the Panhandle. The City of Pampa is hosting the quarterly meeting of the Panhandle Regional Texas Municipal League and mayors, city managers and other town and city officials will be in Pampa that evening. Please join us in welcoming them.

Remember too, to keep gathering your items for the City Wide Garage Sale on Saturday, Aug. 11. It looks like this will be a fun day for all.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My friend "Nora" was very shaken by something that happened to her recently. While her six grandchildren were visiting, the oldest boy (age 13) shouted, "Let's take her down!" and all six of the children attacked her, knocking her to the ground, then groping and hitting her. Nora is 73 and only 5 foot 2. Her oldest grandchild is 5 foot 7 and weighs 140 pounds. All of the grandchildren are large for their ages. The youngest, who is 7, weighs well over 70 pounds. My question is, what can elderly people do to protect themselves? Nora felt helpless. She took the beating because she was afraid if she fought back, she'd be turned in for child abuse. I told her I'd have whacked that 13-year-old monster so hard he'd think twice about ever pulling a stunt like that again. Now she's afraid of her grandkids because, even though their parents eventually pulled them off her, they did nothing to punish the children for their aggressive behavior. Is there anything older people can do to defend themselves against delinquents? - SHOCKED IN TOPEKA

DEAR SHOCKED: Are you talking about delinquent children or delinquent parents? Nora's grandchildren were obviously never taught by their parents the importance of behaving respectfully around adults, particularly elderly adults who can be fragile. They could have caused their grandmother serious harm. That the behavior went unpunished is extremely disturbing because if parents don't bother to teach their children right from wrong, their misbehavior could escalate. While the incident you described might be considered "fun and games" when it occurs between children, when it happens with an adult it becomes assault and battery. In Nora's case, it could be considered elder abuse. There are two ways to protect oneself from "delinquents" of any age who act like this. The first is to avoid people who do not understand boundaries because their lack of judgment could sooner or later cause great bodily harm. The second is to notify the police and seek immediate medical

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell people you just don't like them and don't want to be friends anymore? My husband, daughter and I are "friends" with a family we became acquainted with when our daughter was in first grade. That was three years ago. This family is annoying and loud, and we can't seem to distance ourselves from them. They constantly call for playdates and dinner dates. The kids get along well, but my husband and I do not like this couple and prefer not to spend our social time with them. How do we distance ourselves without offending them? - STUCK IN SAN ANTONIO

DEAR STUCK: Since when did an invitation to get together become a command performance? You are under no obligation to accept every invitation that is offered to you. The kindest way to extricate yourselves would be to simply not be available every time they want to get together. Cultivate other friendships for yourselves and your daughter. P.S. I am not advising you to necessarily end the friendship between the children. But when you arrange time for them to get together, make it a time when they are dropped off at each other's homes.

Phillies become the first professional team to 10,000 losses

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Never known as lovable losers, cursed, or even affectionately as bums, the Philadelphia Phillies have long held a more pitiable title: The losingest team in sports.

From the Baker Bowl to Shibe Park/Connie Mack Stadium to the Vet and Citizens Bank Park, futility has tailed them like the sound of boos, that echo throughout Philly for the disheartenment of every September collapse, every last-place finish, every near Bad starting pitching, brutal relief, hardly any hitting, it was all in there in Sunday's milestone loss. Albert Pujols hit two of the St. Louis Cardinals' six homers in a 10-2 rout.

"I don't really care about it," Phillies manager Charlie Manuel said. "We haven't been really talking about it. Our players haven't been talking about it."

Maybe there wasn't much chatter in the clubhouse, but the fans jumped all over the ugly number. They started Web sites that counted down No team has lost quite like to 10,000, blogged about the the Phillies. Now, make it memorable defeats and unimaginable number. By the ninth inning, fans in the sellout crowd of 44,872 thumbed their noses at the dubious mark, standing and applauding. Camera flashes went off all around the park, trying to record the final pitch as NL MVP Ryan Howard struck out to end the game.

Cardinals manager Tony La Russa made sure to snag the ball and said he would auction it off for charity. "That ball is history," he said. "It's nothing to be ashamed about." Maybe not. But only one

World Series championship (1980) in 125 years has long brought that feeling to the fans in a city way too familiar with losing. The Phillies have had few moments to celebrate. The franchise, born in 1883 as the Philadelphia Quakers and briefly called the Blue Jays in the mid-1940s, fell to 8,810-10,000.

Next on the losing list: the Braves, with 9,681 defeats. It took them stints in three cities (Boston, Milwaukee and Atlanta) to reach that total. Not even those lovable losers, the Chicago Cubs, come close at 9,425.

All that mattered to the Phillies was winning the series, 2-1.

They haven't lost 100 games since 1961, and they won the NL East three straight years from 1976-78 behind Mike Schmidt, Steve Carlton and Larry Bowa. Philadelphia lost the World Series in 1983 and 1993, though it hasn't returned to the playoffs since Joe Carter's homer won the 1993 World Series for Toronto.

The situation became ugly enough for team owner Joe Gibbs to take a last-minute detour from a planned vacation and come to the track on Saturday to gather Stewart and Hamlin for a hastily arranged meeting.

Byrd rallies to win Deere

SILVIS, Ill. (AP) — Jonathan Byrd could see it all again. There was the look in Vijay Singh's eyes as he stepped to the first tee, the aggression that took him to a victory in the John Deere Classic four years earlier.

Byrd did all he could to reproduce it Sunday.

He birdied three of the final five holes and shot a 5under 66 Sunday to win the Deere Classic and qualify for the British Open, and afterward, he thought back to that pairing with Singh.

"When he came out on that first hole with that complete mind-set, 'I'm going to win this golf tournament. I'm going to play aggressive. I'm going to fire at every flag and just play aggressive," said Byrd, who was in the final group with Singh in

This time, it was Byrd's turn.

He earned his third PGA Tour victory, finishing at 18under 266 - one stroke ahead of Tim Clark (68). Third-round leader Nathan Green (71) and Troy Matteson (66) tied for third, three strokes back.

No need to make new signs: Pak wins Farr for 5th time

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) Each year the city of Sylvania renames its main drag after the golfer who wins the Jamie Farr Owens

Corning Classic. Imagine how much money Se Ri Pak has saved taxpayers who haven't had to pay for new street signs.

Pak overcame a brief three-shot deficit after Morgan Pressel's ace on the No. 6, I felt like, 'OK. ... It's sixth hole and went on to tie an LPGA record with her fifth victory in the Farr on Sunday.

"Wow. First of all, winning is always great. That's perfect," she said. "The second thing is, whenever you make history, that's pretty special."

the Farr in 1998, 1999, 2001 $195,000 winner's check. point," Pak said.

Wright, who won the Sea Island Open in 1957-58, '60, '62-'63, and Annika Sorenstam, who has won both the Samsung World Championship and Mizuno Classic tournaments five times each.

Pak traced her victory to Pressel's ace.

"When she got the ace on changing totally her way," she said. "As soon as she made ace, it woke me up right away. I just don't want to give up at all. I wanted to win this event so badly."

The 29-year-old Pak has 24 career victories. She followed rounds of 63, 68 and 69 with a 67 to finish at 17-Pak, who previously won under 267 and collect the and 2003, matched Mickey Pressel closed with a 69 and was three shots back at 270.

"That's pretty cool," the 19-year-old Pressel said about Pak's domination in the Farr. "She's a tremendous player and it was great to watch her battle it out and hang in there today and pull it out. There's a reason why she's in the Hall of Fame."

Pak and Pressel dueled all day with Pak pulling even with birdies at Nos. 8 and 9 and then breaking the tie at the par-4 15th, almost holing an iron approach which ended up 2 feet from the cup. After Pressel's long putt from the back fringe came up a foot short, Pak rammed in the birdie to go ahead by a stroke with three holes left.

"That's maybe the turning

Pressel's approach shot at the 17th stopped 2 feet away. But Pak rolled in a 6-footer for birdie before Pressel tapped in.

At the 18th — the second of back-to-back par-5 closing holes at \Highland Meadows Golf Club — Pak created a roar from the large gallery when she came within inches of holing her approach. Her tap-in birdie putt clinched the victory.

Carri Wood had the best finish of her career, shooting a closing 69 to share third place with Wendy Ward (68), Laura Diaz (69) and Laura Davies (69). Wood had never been better than a tie for 12th in her previous 10 years and 152 LPGA starts.

After her ace, Pressel was even par the rest of the way while Pak was 6 under.

Pressel, who started the day two shots back of Pak, needed just four holes to take the lead. She overcame Pak at No. 4 when she rolled in a downhill 12-footer for birdie while Pak failed to get up and down from the left greenside bunker.

Pressel stepped to the tee first at the sixth. She pulled out a 7 iron and hit it to the front right edge of the green. "Get up! Get up!" she yelled at the ball. It did.

The ball kicked off a large mound just off the green, took a sharp left turn and disappeared into the cup. Pressel didn't pump her fist or jump for joy, but smiled and looked for somebody to celebrate with. The first person she met was her playing partner, Pak, and the two hugged. Then Pressel embraced her caddie, Jon Yarbrough.

A large gallery roared at the tee and the volume rose as she walked onto the green. She plucked the ball out of the cup, smiled, and acknowledged the cheers.

Pressel thought maybe it was her day.

"I thought, 'Well, that's a nice time to get a lucky bounce," she said while holding her 5-year-old cousin on her lap. "I tried to keep hanging in there."

Pak had every reason to be shaken, facing an 18-foot birdie putt. But she drilled it in the middle of the cup to trail by two strokes. It was a sign that she wouldn't back down.

Pampa ahead 4-2.

Seminole put runners on the corners and the winning run was at the plate with one out when he grounded into the glove of Pampa shortsop Cade Engle who was waiting to turn a game saving double play by stepping on 2nd and throwing to 1st to get both runners.

Hunt started for Pampa and got the win pitching the first two innings, he did not give up any runs, he walked one, no hits and two strike

Martindale pitched the third and fourth, he did not allow any runs, he walked one, gave up no hits and struck out four.

Byrd

Byrd didn't like what he saw when he glanced at the leaderboard on his way to the 14th hole, and things weren't looking much better for him when his tee shot sailed wide right.

fortunes Then, his changed.

He birdied that hole, sinking a 16-foot putt that "kept me in the golf tournament," added two more birdies on 16 and 17.

Byrd had missed four straight cuts and didn't bother to bring his passport, so he had to go home to Georgia before heading to Scotland.

"I haven't been playing well, and, I don't know, maybe I thought that would be a jinx or something," he Byrd, who won the 2002 Buick Challenge and 2004 B,C. Open, moved into a tie with Clark with a birdie on 17. Clark found a bunker short of the green on 17 and sent a 6-foot putt for par wide left for a bogey that put him at 17 under and in second place.

"On 17, I had a go at the green, and that's really the only shot of the day I mishit," Clark said. "I fully expected to be able to get it up to the green-side bunker, and instead, it plugged in the lip of the bunker 20 yards short of the green. And from there, I just had no play."

Byrd finished with a par on 18, meaning Clark needed a birdie to force a playoff. Instead, Byrd watched as Clark's approach on the par-4 hole settled on the left edge of the green — just under 71

feet from the cup. His long putt for birdie rolled wide left, giving Byrd the victory.

"Right when he hit it, the announcer said he thought it was a little bit left," said Byrd, who finished a few minutes earlier. "I had kind of hit that putt for more the middle of the green, and I knew it wasn't going to come back to the right.'

It didn't, and that secured the 29-year-old Byrd's third win — the most by an active American-born player under 30. Charles Howell III has two victories.

Early on, Clark appeared poised to earn his first tour victory.

He took several cortisone shots for neck pain two weeks ago and had said he might skip the British Open even if he qualified at the Deere because he was worried the pain would flare up on the long flight. On Sunday, he said he would have gone but that became a non-issue late in the day.

Clark made a name for himself when he finished two strokes behind Phil Mickelson at the Masters last year. And the South African made another push for the green jacket this year when he was tied for the lead through 36 holes before tying for 13th.

That prize ultimately went to Zach Johnson, who missed the cut at the Deere.

Green was in good position to earn his first tour victory and become the third Australian in four years to take the Deere Classic, but he could not maintain the lead he built the previous two days.

"I just felt terrible with my swing and managed to recover a little bit at the end, but it was a struggle all day," Green said.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, July

You make a difference this year. Your smile, words and thoughtfulness draw many closer, and often attract new people as well. You will be the ever-social Moon Child. Your bright ideas and personality will not go unnoticed. Changing your life to allow in better becomes a lot easier than in the past. If you are single, by this time next year, you'll wave goodbye to your present status — that is, if you so desire. If you are attached, you move into a dynamic, more creative period in which adorable. VIRGO wants to understand.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Your ability to help others when they might not be able to help themselves emerges. Though you might not always have the right solutions, you can help support people as they seek them out. Communication adds to a sense of wellbeing. Tonight: In the whirlwind of life. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* You might have the best intentions, and perhaps so does someone else. It takes generosity of spirit to have them merge. You might not be sure of what is going on, but a pointed question or two will help. Tonight: Let more affection in. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Investigate an investment that thrills you to death. Before laying out the cash, you will need to have as many facts as possible. Your security might be more important than you realize.

Understanding comes from experience. Tonight: Settle in CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Don't stand back or shut yourself out of a conversation. Sharing will become easier and easier if you simply express one feeling at a time. Someone really would like to hear from you. This person cares. Tonight: Out and about. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ Experiment a little, but not to the point of causing yourself trouble. If you want to play the gambler, go buy a lottery ticket rather than break the bank at the romance returns. Your sweetie is casino. A conservative streak at this point might make you much happier. Tonight:

Buy that new item. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

* ★ The Moon smiles on you, and as a result, you smile on everyone else. This type of exchange warms the cockles of your heart. Realize you might have a lot to learn from a friend. Listen more often to this person's sharing. Tonight:

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★ Knowing when to back off could be instrumental, if not important. You might be overly sensitive and tuned in to others. You might believe a person means this or that, but he or she is not even thinking like that. Tonight: A muchneeded timeout.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* Sometimes you cannot believe how situations fall into place. Right now you might feel as if you have a touch of magic on your team. Gather as much information as possible as you start looking at different possibilities. Tonight: Go for what you really want. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Don't be surprised if you are feeling an abnormal amount of tension. Someone has great expectations, and you might wonder if you can meet them. Of course you can. Use a partner's feedback to land what you want. Tonight: Count on being in demand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * You might want to rethink a situation and get more information. You might not be exactly sure what is appropriate. A partner certainly lets you know what he or she thinks. Listen, even if you disagree. Tonight: Let your mind wander. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

* Work with one specific person, and you will stay on top of your game. Understand that others want and need your total focus. Laugh and relax with a special person who is part of your life. Good moods are contagious. Tonight: Work as a team. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 You like what goes on and understand a lot more than you realize. Examine what works and listen to the many people in your life. Lighten up and enjoy the moment. Nothing can replace enjoying those in your life. Tonight: Sort through suggestions.

Twins earn four-game sweep of reeling A's

By The Associated Press The Minnesota Twins are finding their form from last season when they made an unlikely playoff run. Second-half success for the Oakland A's, meanwhile, has yet to be found.

Joe Mauer singled home the winning run in the ninth inning after Justin Morneau hit a tying homer in the eighth, and the Twins completed a four-game sweep of the slumping Athletics with a 4-3 victory Sunday.

"It's kind of feelings of last year at this time," Minnesota third baseman Nick Punto said. "Guys were coming up with big hits with a guy on base, and I kind of see signs of last year. Hopefully we can get on some kind of roll like we did last year."

Eric Chavez homered for the A's, who have lost seven in a row — their longest skid since also dropping seven straight in late May last season. They have scored three runs or fewer in 10 consecutive games, matching a team record set in September 1978.

In other AL games on Sunday, it was: Cleveland 5, Kansas City 3; day.

Baltimore 5, Chicago 3; New York 7. Tampa Bay 6; Toronto 2, Boston 1; Minnesota 4, Oakland 3; Texas 5, Los Angeles 4 in 11 innings; and Detroit 11, Seattle 7. Luis Castillo led off the ninth with a triple against reliever Joe Kennedy (2-8) and trotted home on Mauer's third hit of the game, which bounced through a drawn-in infield. Castillo, who normally rests his aching legs on day games after night games, dashed around the bases to set up the winning run.

Morneau tied the score at 3 with his 25th home run, a shot into the right-field upper deck off reliever Santiago Casilla. Minnesota earned its fifth series sweep this season and first four-game sweep since taking four in a row against Kansas City from Aug. 3-6, 2006.

The Twins hope to show the rest of the AL that they're capable of turning it on the way they did last season. Minnesota won 71 of its final 104 games in 2006 and captured the AL Central crown on the season's final

Plains to get drought dollars, but some say rain levels are normal

By NATE JENKINS Associated Press Writer

ORLEANS, Neb. (AP) — As the federal government prepares to send hundreds of millions of dollars to farmers in Plains states deemed to have suffered from an ongoing drought, critics say the region is not as dry as some claim.

Kansas farmers and ranchers could get $121 million of the $3 billion in disaster aid available for losses in 2005, 2006 and this year, according to an analysis by professors at Kansas State University and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. In Nebraska, they could receive around $73 million.

"The more they cry wolf, the government listens and gives them payments," said Ernie Kuhl, who has been Harlan County's official weather observer for the National Weather Service for 28 years. "It's been dry, but it's not really been a drought."

Kuhl — who records precipitation in his backyard Nebraska-Lincoln.

rain gauge and sends the information to be recorded by weather service officials — is adamant there has been no drought in the county despite it being labeled a "disaster area" in recent Kuhl said normal precipitation for Harlan County is about 24 inches a year. In 2005, it received more than 25 inches: in 2006, more than 27, according to his records.

Standardized The Precipitation Index backs that up. Nebraska and Kansas received normal precipitation in 2005, and with the exception of one region in each state that was moderately dry, they got normal precipitation the following year, according to the index, which measures deviations from a precipitation baseline using historical data.

Information used for the index comes from the National Climatic Data Center and is mapped by the National Drought Mitigation Center at the University of

Los Angeles cardinal issues apology to clergy abuse victims

By GILLIAN FLACCUS Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a whirlwind weekend, the negotiations that produced a landmark $660 million settlement between the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles and more than 500 alleged victims of clergy abuse are heading toward a conclusion.

Attorneys from both sides, as well as Cardinal Roger Mahony, are expected in court today to enter a formal settlement agreement with Judge Haley Fromholtz. The deal marks the end of more than five the largest payout by any diocese since the clergy abuse scandal emerged in Boston in 2002.

Mahony, leader of the nation's largest archdiocese, apologized Sunday to the hundreds of clergy sex abuse victims who will receive a share of the settlement.

"There really is no way to go back and give them that innocence that was taken from them. The one thing I wish I could give the victims ... I cannot," he said.

"Once again, I apologize to anyne who has been offended, who years of negotiations and is by far has been abused. It should not have happened and should not ever happen again."

> Mahony said he has met with dozens of victims of clergy abuse in the past 14 months and those meetings helped him understand the importance of a quick resolution to what he called a "terrible sin and crime."

> The cardinal said the settlement will not have an impact on the archdiocese's core ministry, but said the church will have to sell buildings, use some of its invested the archdiocese will not sell any parish properties or parish schools.

"We gather today because this long journey has now come to an end and a new chapter of that journey is beginning," Mahony told

The settlement also calls for the release of priests' confidential personnel files after review by a judge.

"I think for those of us who have been involved in this for more than five years, it's a huge relief," said Michael Hennigan, archdiocese attorney. "But it's a disappointment, too, that we didn't ge much earlier than this."

Parishioners reacted with a mix of disappointment and relief.

Vivian Viscarra, 50, who attends Mass at the Cathedral of Our Lady of the Angels three times a month, said the victims deserve the payout even though it could hurt the church's ability to deliver important services. The amount would average a little more than $1.3 million per plaintiff, although individual payouts will vary according to the severity and duration of the abuse.

Lady Bird laid to rest next to LBJ

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer

STONEWALL, Texas (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson's role as the dedicated wife of a president and a tenacious crusader for the environment were only part of her life.

To her grandchildren, she was someone who had the gift of making them all feel special.

On Sunday, they and other family members and friends said one last goodbye to the former first lady as she was laid to rest in an oak-shaded family cemetery near the banks of the Pedernales River on the LBJ Ranch.

Her flower-topped casket was placed next to the grave of her husband, the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, who died in 1973.

Lady Bird Johnson enjoyed taking her grandchildren on hiking and camping trips or visiting with them riding around the ranch or simply playing cards, said grandson Lyndon Nugent.

"You were a great friend to us all," he said, to his grandmother. "Take care, dear friend."

His mother, Luci Baines Johnson, reminded her children for more than three decades that it was important to spend as much time as possible with their grandmother, whom they called "Nini," because "she might not be here tomorrow," Nugent said.

"Sadly, tomorrow has arrived," he said.

Johnson died Wednesday at age 94 of natural causes. In weekend memorial ceremonies, she has been remembered as a devoted wife, an astute businesswoman and a tireless worker for the preservation of wildflowers and native

"I'm not sure why she was so preoccupied with this, but she always seemed to be wondering if she had done enough for the world, regardless of her own condition," Nugent said.

Toward the end of her life, she gradually lost some of her vision and suffered a stroke that left her with difficulty speaking. But she still managed to enjoy the Texas wildflowers each spring and make some public appear-

Locusts whistled and crickets chirped in the searing Texas heat as the Sunday service was held in the Johnson family cemetery, where the late president and more than 30 other extended family members are buried.

Johnson was president from 1963-69. Once he left office, he and Lady Bird Johnson retired to the ranch and Lady Bird Johnson's casket was carried to the grave site by military body bearers. Along with Nugent's remembrance, prayers and the singing of "Amazing Grace" completed the brief service. As they departed, daughters Luci Baines Johnson and Lynda Johnson Robb smiled and greeted a few of the about 300 people attending the Earlier, thousands of admirers, many clutching bundles of wildflowers and American flags, lined streets in Austin and roads in the Hill Country as the former first lady's body was brought from the state capital to the LBJ Ranch, about 70 miles west of Austin.

Members of the crowd applauded and cheered as the procession passed through downtown Austin, and a few women blew kisses. Motorcycle police officers escorted the navy blue hearse that displayed a cluster of little orange wildflowers on top. Johnson family members followed in two limousines and waved to the crowd.

"It's the passing of an era," said Sarah Macias, 48, who works for the Austin parks department and came to watch with her husband and a co-work-

Retiree Kate Hill handed out sunflowers from her garden to people waiting for the procession in downtown Austin. Hill said Johnson's work inspired her to convert her grassy lawn into an expanse of wildflowers and other native plants, and she wanted to thank the former first lady for the beau-

Along the cortege's Hill Country route, well-wishers waited in lawn chairs and set up greeting signs.

One sign atop a tractor on a rural stretch of roach read "Thank You Lady Bird." Another said, "God Bless a Great Woman.' In Johnson City, President Johnson's boyhood home, a main street was lined with little Texas and American flags stuck in gravel-filled flower pots. The procession and burial capped three days of ceremonies that started Friday with private family prayer services then a public visitation at the LBJ Library and Museum. On Saturday, she was eulogized in a two-hour funeral service attended by former Presidents Bill Clinton and Jimmy Carter, first lady Laura Bush and former first ladies Rosalynn Carter, Nancy Reagan, Barbara Bush and Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton.
