Education foundation give PISD more support

Staff Writer Pampa Independent School District now has another way for residents and businesses to support education in Pampa with the formation of the Pampa Education Foundation, a non-profit organization with 501(c)3 status.

By KERRI SMITH

The foundation was created to support and enhance all students in the Pampa educational system. The organization is run by a board of directors, which consists of a crosssection of residents who are dedicatexcellence in Pampa's public schools. The mission statement reads, "Our mission is to create and sustain a coalition of businesses and citizens programs and initiatives that enrich educational opportunities for Pampa ISD students and staff." According to Vice President of Community Relations Jay Johnson, the foundation has goals to accomto support funding for innovative

"First, we want to encourage acaed to education and share a vision for demic excellence in Pampa's schools," Johnson said. "We want to provide financial resources for programs and initiatives that align with the PISD strategic plan. We want to strive to promote community awareness in education and the foundation and ensure the perpetuity of the foundation with an endowment

> Johnson said the long term plan is to create a permanent fund that will yield annual revenues for PISD students. The goal for the first year is $100,000 with a minimum 15 percent invested back into Pampa's schools and students. Goal number two is to have a permanent fund of $500,000 by the fifth year and the third goal is to have $1 million by the 10th year.

The foundation has a pamphlet that gives examples of the type and scope of projects that might be underwritten. A few examples are science equipment, maps, orchestra instruments, books and other resource materials, fine arts sponsor-

Impromptu animal show educational for students

By KERRI SMITH Staff Writer

The students at Austin Elementary were treated to an assembly packed with educational information about animals, magic tricks and a lot of comedy recently which was performed by Greg Carter, a former student at Austin.

Carter's parents had not seen him perform in front of a school audience. Since he was passing through town Carter called Austin Elementary administrators to see if they would be interested in having a free performance. Principal Beverly Owen quickly took him up on his offer.

Carter graduated from PHS in 1981. He is the son of Dr. Jay and Sarah

Texas A&M offering master's degree program for ranchers

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) Once upon a time, in the Wild West, all it took to raise cattle was land, grass and cowboys who knew how to rope the critters. Now, it may take an MBA.

Texas A&M-Kingsville's Ranch Institute for Management is offering what university officials call the first ever master's degree program for ranchers - sort of a Harvard Business School for cowboys. In addition to graduate-level business courses, students are schooled in rangeland specialties, including animal nutrition and wildlife management.

During a Friday noon session over brown bag lunches, a laptop computer beams a long list of letters and numbers. It's an equation, Les Nunn tells his colleagues in cowboy hats, for getting the most beef out of your pastures' grass. Nunn's Power Point presentation, "Searching for the Economic Optimum Stocking Ratio," follows another student's profit loss analysis of a government incentive program for land conservation and another's stab at formulas for sharing land between hunting lessees and livestock.

It's an exclusive club, coming with the promise of a job after graduation. The first graduating class had two students; the current class has four, with seven students enrolled in the program this year. Twenty students applied for a slot.

The program signals a new era for the occupation. In the past, those aspiring to careers in ranch management might have pursued degrees in animal science or agriculture and rounded out their resumes with on the job training. Today's ranchers also need business and wildlife management skills.

"You can't just be an animal nutritionist and horse person and manage a ranch any more," said Barry Dunn, PhD, a former South Dakota rancher who heads the program.

"The market for most of ranching's history has been a commodities market," he said. "But now the markets are moving into specialized (fields) - whether its hunting or specialized beef production, like Nolan Ryan beef. All of that just adds more and more sophistication."

The King Ranch, which endowed the institute and allows students to do fieldwork on its grounds, epitomizes the kind of modern ranch the school wants its students to be able to manage.

At 825,000 acres, it is the largest ranch in the United States, so vast it appears as a dark spot from outer space, sounspoiled it has more species of birds than the Florida Everglades. It includes a small school district for its employees' children. It originated several cattle strains and is considered the birthplace of American ranching.

Alexander from Pampa. He attended college and received a degree in wildlife biology and worked with animals.

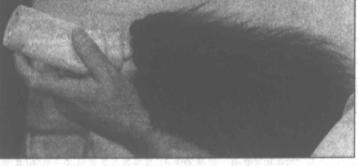

Seven years ago, Carter decided he wanted to put a program together to perform in front of an audience using some of the animals he loved. That is how the "Amazing Urban Safari with Safari Greg" began.

Carter and his family live in Nashville, Tenn., and he started taking his act around that area first. He had great success with the program and was voted Middle Tennessee's Best Entertainer by Parent Magazine for six years in a row, Nashville's #1 Family Entertainer for the last five years and Best Children's Entertainer in the Southeast for the past two years. With these awards, he decided to take his show on the road.

He is currently in the middle of a tour for schools, libraries and fairs. Over the next few months, he will travel to many states, including Texas. California, Washington, Oregon, Colorado and Oklahoma. He performs an average of 300-400 shows a year, and since 1999 he has performed more than 1,800 times.

Currently, Carter travels with a monitor lizard, a baby porcupine, a ferret, a corn snake, a cayman (a type of drocodile) and an albino python that is about 12 feet

"The way I got Banana Bill, the python, is an interesting story," Carter said. "I received a call from a hotel in Nashville seven years ago saying they needed my help datching a snake that was in one of the hotel rooms. When I got there, a guy was standing out in the hall in his boxer shorts and the girl looked pretty dazed. I asked them what happened. The man said he got up to go to the bathroom and tripped over something. When he turned the light on, he saw this huge yellow and white snake. The girl said he ran to the door yelling 'snake, snake' and left her lying there in bed.

"When I entered the room, I found this albino python that was approximately 16 feet long. We got it out of the room and into a truck. It was tame so I knew it had been someone's pet. Then, I went back into the room to see where the snake had got in. There was a hole in the bottom of the bed platform. When we picked up the mattress, we found a snakeskin that the python had shed, but couldn't see any place where the snake could have gotten in. "After talking to one of the desk clerks, we figured out how this ordeal unfolded. About a month before, a man that was staying in that room asked if they knew of a place to keep a snake for a while. The clerks told him no so apparently he'd made the hole in the bed platform and put the snake in there. So, the snake had been under that bed for at least a month. He'd probably come out looking for food and water." That python was Banana Bill's mother. He took the snake and bred it. She had 32 eggs and Carter and some colleagues hatched 19 of them. He kept two of the baby pythons. Banana Bill was one of those and he's had that large snake for about 7 years. Carter uses these animals to teach the children about predators, mammals, reptiles, warm blooded and cold blooded, habitat and other interesting facts about the animals they can see in front of the auditorium. He mixes in some magic tricks and uses a lot of humor throughout the program.

When asked which of his animals is his favorite, he said he likes them all but he is partial to a few. "I'm really getting attached to this baby porcupine," Carter said. "I feed her with a baby bottle and if you know how to hold them and handle them, you do not get pricked from the quills. I also like an animal that I did not bring this time, which is a fennec fox. This fox only weighs about two and a half pounds when fully grown. They are so cute because they are tiny but they have these huge pointed ears."

Carter said he loves doing this because he gets to be around kids and is able to own some of the animals that he loves. It is the perfect situation for him because he can educate children while allowing them to have fun while learning. And these kids get to see animals that they have probably never seen except in a book or on television.

While he was in town, Carter and his daughter went to the Pampa High School football game. He said he enjoyed going because he has not been to a PHS event for more than 20 years and it felt nice to be back in Pampa.

ships, emergency kits for classrooms, field trip funds and materials and speakers for bullying prevention.

When asked if the Pampa Education Foundation will apply for and compete against other local nonprofits for grant money, Johnson answered this way.

"We are in the process of applying for four or five grants and a few of those are from area foundations," Johnson said. "We do not feel like we are competing with other organizations that are just as worthy of receiving funds as we are. From what I've heard in the past from committee members on some of those foundations, some years they away than they have qualified candidates. He told me they are always looking for more qualified candidates to apply. We do not feel like we are in competition with these other non-profits, but are working together to better the community." The Pampa Education have more money to give

Foundation will provide private support to Pampa's public schools. It is independent of the school district, but they will review their actions with the school board to eliminate overlap and to be in accord with common goals. School board members cannot be active members of the committee, but Superintendent Barry Haenisch and school board members McVay and Dana Terry are ex-officio members.

Dona Cornutt recently made the first gift of $1,000 to the newly formed foundation. Orbin Lesley of Miami State Bank made a contribution on behalf of the bank and Johnson also made a contribution of $1,200 to have brochures about the new foundation printed.

Current officers who are serving with Johnson are Bob Ericson, president; Glennette Goode, vice president of development; David Hampton, vice president of programs/allocations; Jane Jacobs, secretary; and Orbin Lesley, treasurer. There are 11 other members on the committee.

For information about the foundation or to make a donation, contact any of the officers or send donations to Education Pampa Foundation, P.O. Box 1045, Pampa, Texas 79066.

Czesnowski, 22, are both in the Army and are stationed at different locations in Iraq. They had not seen each other for two years, but recently were able to get together thanks to their commanding officers and chaplains.

"They were communicating by phone, but they wanted to get together in person," mom Dolores Czesnowski said. "It was really great that they were able to see one another and visit and take a picture."

Joseph has been in Iraq for about 15 months and this is his second tour. Jesse, who enlisted while in high school, went to Iraq about three months ago.

"Both of them wanted to go over to Iraq and support their fellow soldiers," Dolores said. "Everyone in the community has been very supportive with their prayers and words of encouragement. So many people have sent them cards or packages. It has been wonderful and made this easier to go through.'

Dolores said she talks to Joseph quite a bit via e-mail and phone, but she only talks to Jesse on the phone about once a month. Joseph is married to Stephanie Jackson of Arvada, Colo., and Jesse is married to Keelei Braswell of Pampa.

I am not one of those people. I have always had a hard time going to sleep, and once there, sometimes do not rest well. It is just the way it has been since I can remember.

There were nights in my teen years where I would sit up all night reading Tarzan novels. I could nod off at about 4 or 5 a.m. and wake up at 6:30 a.m. I would be groggy, but alert.

The closest I came to involuntarily falling asleep was about a year ago when I began bringing turkey sandwiches to work for lunch. On the way home about 3 p.m. on Highway 60, I would find White Deer and Panhandle.

A switch to roast beef fixed that problem.

So I get four to six hours of sleep, get up and go about my business. I was always taught to deal with the hand you were dealt, take responsibility for your actions, and if you could not change something Proposition 12 is the Texas constitutional amendment that was created to put the reins on healthcare lawsuit abuse in the state. The amendment went into effect on Sept. 13, 2003.

On the 4th anniversary of Proposition 12, the group said that healthcare for Texans has expanded dramatically and there are now more physicians in Texas treating Texans.

Bill Summers, president and founder of CALA in the Rio Grande Valley, said Proposition 12 is improving healthcare for Texans by keeping doctors in examining rooms and out of the courts.

"Rampant litigation forced highly qualified doctors to close their doors and left many Texas communities without the physicians and specialists they needed," he said. "Prop 12 was a shot in the arm of common sense that our court system - and health care system - needed."

The proposition not only brought new doctors to the state, it ensured that patients who have issues can receive justice without having to wait behind a queue of questionable lawsuits, according to Kirsten Voinis, spokeswoman for CALA of Central Texas.

"At the same time, reforms are balancing justice with our need to continue pursuing medical innovations and treatments that can benefit millions," she said.

I think we can see the difference here in Pampa with the influx of new doctors to the medical community.

 Cohabiting women do less housework than married

 Cohabiting men do less housework than cohabiting And married men, the sexist Neanderthal oppressors, do less housework than EVERYBODY. Shannon Davis, an assistant professor of sociology at George Mason and the study's lead author, summed up her findings:

"Beliefs about this egalitarian notion of women and men sharing equal responsibility for paid work and household tasks matter differently for cohabiting men than it does for married men."

Men may not be the sharpest knives in the gender-identity drawer, but the cohabiting ones are smart enough to figure one thing out: If they pretend to have an egalitarian view toward housework, they're going to get a lot more of the goodies of marriage.

But men hate housework. We're not good at it. We don't care if food is rotting in the refrigerator or a spider's nest has formed behind the dresser. We only care if women care. That is why, Take listening. One brainimaging study shows that men listen with only one side of the brain, whereas women use both. Women wouldn't believe how many other things we use only half a brain to do.

Another brain study shows that women can listen to two separate conversations, whereas men can barely follow one (particularly if it involves feelings or the spring sale at Bed Bath & Beyond).

The male brain doesn't pick up as many sensory cues as a woman's. When a man walks into his home, his senses don't gather what a

The Idle American: All pomposity aside

"Pomp" was abundant at Texas Baptist University's fall convocation the other day. But "circumstances" were such that stiff formality was avoided.

Oh, the principals had on long black robes, tasseled mortarboards and colorful hoods, but young folks were predominant. And helping the assemblage "stay loose" were the nine grandchildren of Dr. and Mrs. Bob Riley.

The grandkids had a vague awareness that Dr. Riley was being honored for 15 years of service in the presidency. But sometimes a woman's will. A man is less likely to notice dust which, apparently, consists of fine, dry particles that settle on furniture.

The male mind doesn't care as much about the inside of the house as the outside. Our noggins are wired for larger spaces, such as the garage, the driveway, the yard.

Sure, some men are neat freaks and homebodies and some women are sloppy and couldn't care less about the inside of their homes. But where biology is concerned, the male and female brains are DIFFERENT.

But the housework study isn't so interested in biological truths. It is more interested in one of its key findings - that the institution of marriage appears to change the division of household labor.

In married relationships, even if an egalitarian viewpoint is present, men still report doing less housework than their wives, says Davis. "Marriage as an institution seems to have a tradition-alizing effect on couples - even couples who see men and women as equal," she says.

In other words, marriage itself is the reason women are forced to pick up stinky socks and wipe up the slop in the kitchen after dinner.

Marriage itself is some kind of gender factory that indoctrinates kids into believing that Mommy is supposed to do all the dirty work, while Daddy sits on the couch watching football and sucking down beer.

Gurian doesn't agree. He said if the study had compared couples with kids who have cohabitated for 10 years against couples with kids who have been married for 10 years, there likely wouldn't be much difference.

The housework gender gap has more to do with biology than marriage. Still, men should work harder at housework.

At the very least, we could pretend to notice dust every once in a while.

board matches his hat in blackness. That's about as far as the comparison goes!

And the $20 bills I could give students would be handy only in Monopoly games.

A sports star at Wheeler High School, the ETBU chief now may well be his teams' number one fan. He and his wife regularly attend games. Students see him often in the exercise facility, where they "ask questions they've been meaning to ask." That's fine by him; remember, students matter most.

I complimented Dr. Riley on his exercise

But, I get my exercise serving as pallbearer for my friends who exercise. ...

That the Rileys are revered and loved throughout the community was not lost on a hundred or so colleagues, friends and board members who pitched in for gifts.

The couple, married for 40 years, was given a handsome plaque and a set of beautiful matching luggage.

The luggage fits perfectly under cruise ship beds. They'll use it on a 15-day cruise of the Hawaiian Islands, all expenses paid. ...

The visit to Marshall - on my 70th birthday - was a tonic. How pleasant it was to again be in the midst of collegians.

E-mails, calls and cards inundated this special day. Granted, much of the deluge was orchestrated by our daughters.

My wife and I – like the Rileys – have three daughters. And we still can't do a thing with 'em. ...

One theme prevailed in the birthday greetings. "Remember, 70 is just a number," many friends said.

I know. I know. But so is 12 midnight. In my youth, it was a magical hour. Now, more food or liquid until medical tests are completed the next day. ...

I am comforted by a highway sign at a retirement community in Arizona. It reminds that "mid-life begins at 70."

So, I enter my eighth decade with my head held high, mostly because I'll never get used to my trifocals.

Along the way, I hope my eyesight is keen enough to notice 7-year-olds in convocation audiences. Maybe there'll be other youngsters determined to use the time constructively, even if it's like, uh, pulling teeth. ...

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 30-year-old man, married a little over three years, and I'm in serious financial trouble. I was laid off from my well-paying job almost two years ago, and I have been struggling to keep my head above water ever since. I found a job six months later, but had to take a substantial pay cut. In order to make up the difference, I got a part-time job in the evenings, which means I work roughly 15 hours a day. The problem is, my wife gets very upset that I'm not home when the dogs act crazy, the toilet backs up, etc. I try to be sensitive to her needs, but she doesn't even try to understand mine. When I get home it's usually 9:30, and I am dog tired. If my wife is still awake, she'll dump on me about all the problems she had that night with the house and/or the pets. Then I get blamed because I wasn't home to help. I have tried to stress that the second job is necessary, and that's when the fireworks begin. She says I need to find a better first job that pays more, but I don't have time to search for one. When I do have free time, I'm catching up on all the stuff I couldn't do during the week. I have suggested that we tighten our belts (disconnect the cable TV, cancel the Internet, start shopping at discount retail centers), but all she gives me are excuses. She says that since she's home all alone in the evenings, we "need" the cable TV. We also "need" the Internet so she can find materials for her classroom lesson plans (something she hardly does). And she refuses to shop at the discount stores. I'm at my wit's end and ready to leave the marriage. She can't or won't realize that I'm doing all I can to keep our cars, home, etc. Talking doesn't help. It only leads to more arguments. I seriously need some advice. - WORN-OUT WORKER IN HOUSTON

DEAR WORN OUT: You and your wife are in two different worlds right now. You are living in a virtual war zone, and she is living in a state of denial. If your marriage is going to survive this rough patch, she needs to do some growing up -- and fast -- before you crack under the stress. Cable TV and the Internet are luxuries she can forgo in the near term, shopping at discount retail centers is something the majority of the population does right now, and she should dump her frustrations on her girlfriends rather than on you. And if your wife can't make those changes, if only to decrease your stress level for a while, then perhaps it would be better if you took a break from each other until she grows up.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. My husband refuses to lock the doors at night. I lock them, and he goes and unlocks all of them and threatens he will take off all the locks. I don't sleep at night anymore. — DONNA IN MENTOR, OHIO

DEAR DONNA: The first question that comes to mind is, is your husband in his right mind? If he isn't losing it, then could he be playing cruel mind games with you? I am assuming that Mentor, Ohio, has a police department. If I am right, it must be there for a reason. I recommend that you ask the police about the threat level in your community, then enlist their help in making your husband face reality. You deserve to feel safe in your own bed.

TTU's autism center developing statewide guide

LUBBOCK — The Burkhart Center for Autism Education and Research at Texas Tech University has received a $100,000 grant from the Texas Department of Aging and Disability Services to develop and create an online statewide resource directory for people with Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD). The Burkhart Center currently is housed in the College of Education.

According to Robin Lock, co-director of the center, Texas Tech was the only university in the state willing to take on the immense project.

"Families seeking information about best-practice interventions and services for individuals with ASD often face enormous obstacles in finding appropriate service delivery," Lock said. "An up-to-date, statewide directory of these interventions and services does not exist and families find them themselves stymied in locating appropriate services for their child. This confusion adds tremendous stress to their lives."

Luncheon speaker

Autism is a complex developmental disability that affects an individual in the areas of social interaction and communication. Autism affects each individual differently and to varying degrees of severity. As many as 1.5 million Americans are thought to have autism.

Lock emphasized that the center is working in conjunction with the Neuropsychiatry Department at TTU's Health Sciences Center to research what families need, the existing services available, and to produce a reliable, accessible directory to locate high quality, research-based interventions for individuals with ASD.

To gauge needs statewide, Lock's team is sending out an electronic survey to service providers, families, Regional Service Centers and other interested groups. The survey will be available both in English and Spanish. Lock expects the resulting resource directory Web site to be complete by January 2008.

The center opened in October of 2005, with the goal to build a knowledge and skill base for parents, students and faculty working with students with autism and disseminate that knowledge and skills to parents and educators.

Those interested in taking part in the survey should contact the Burkhart Center for Autism Education and Research, (806) 742-1998, ext. 458.

More women to qualify for Medicaid breast cancer treatment

AUSTIN — More Texas women will be eligible for breast and cervical cancer treatment through Medicaid under a new law taking effect Sept. 1.

The Texas Legislature authorized the Health and Human Services Commission to expand eligibility for the special Medicaid program and approved $19.7 million in state funds to provide treatment to 1,200 more women each year.

In addition to screening and diagnostic services, women who are diagnosed with one of the cancers through the program will receive full Medicaid benefits for the duration of their treatment.

The Breast and Cervical Cancer Program is open to uninsured women under 65 who are U.S. citizens or qualified immigrants. They also must be otherwise ineligible for Medicaid and have an individual income up to 200 percent of the federal proverty level, or $41,300 for a family of four.

The initial screening must be done by approved doctors and clinics, but the new guidelines mean many more screeners can participate. Under the new guidelines, a woman screened by any doctor or clinic approved for the program by the Texas Department of State Health Services may qualify for Medicaid-funded treatment. Before this expansion, the program was limited only to women who were screened in clinics funded by the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The Texas Breast and Cervical Cancer Program provided treatment services for 1,227 women in fiscal year 2007. Nearly 195,000 women in Texas have received free screenings for breast and cervical cancer since 1991 through the state program. To find a breast and cervical cancer screening site that takes part in the state program, call 2-1-1 or visit www.dshs.state.tx.us/bcccs.

It was a perfect comeback story and a movie script ending - for Borger.

Predicted to lose by nearly everyone in the area, the winless Bulldogs came back from a 28 point deficit in the fourth quarter to defeat the Harvesters 36-35.

Pampa quickly lost its comfortable lead, three quarters in the making, as Borger brought down the game with three onside kick recoveries and four touchdowns.

Things started out sweet for the Harvesters when senior running back Shavious Kelley made a 71-yard run in the third play of the game for Pampa's first touchdown.

The extra point by Colby Copeland was good to put Pampa up on the board 7-0.

Just over five minutes later, a 44-yard pass from junior quarterback Casey Trimble to junior receiver Heath Skinner and an extra point put Pampa further ahead at 14-0.

In Borger's drive that followed the kickoff, Pampa's defense forced a punt deep in Bulldog territory, which was returned 25 yards by Kelley to the Borger 36.

The drive was unsuccessful, but Pampa was given another chance to score just seconds into the second quarter as a deep pass to junior receiver Sergio Salazar helped bring the Harvesters to the 5-yard line.

The Harvesters were unable to score a touchdown in three plays, but kicked a field goal from where they were to improve their lead

With a minute remaining in the half, Pampa recovered a fumble by Borger, but did not bring it in far enough, and the score stood to be 17-0 at halftime.

The Harvesters were still on fire defensively going into the second half as two consecutive sacks by Adam Estrada and Ryne Malone forced a punt from the Bulldog 29.

The drive led to another Pampa touchdown as Trimble made a 69 yard run to put Pampa further ahead, 23-0.

Minutes later, Borger quarterback Trent Kirklin ran the ball 16 yards for the Bulldogs' first touchdown.

The extra point by senior kicker Von Haney was good to put Borger on the board at

Players risking more than a game or two by taking chances with health

By NANCY ARMOUR AP Sports Columnist

Time away from the game has given Wayne Chrebet some perspective.

Those times he got up, shook off the hard hits and went right back to the game, that wasn't courage. Those games where he barely remembered his name, let alone where he was, that wasn't toughness.

It was stupidity.

Like so many players before him and still more after him, the former New York Jets receiver endangered his health and well-what NFL players do. Unless it's broken or torn — and even then, there are plenty of exceptions — you get back out there.

But as we're learning now, the price is far too steep.

Former players suffering memory loss, possibly triggered by multiple concussions. Autopsies that show evidence of brain damage in Andre Waters and three Pittsburgh Steelers offensive linemen, again maybe the result of a career of vicious hits. Players in their 40s and 50s looking two decades older, hobbled by arthritic being because that's just hips and knees and God knows what else.

Yes, the NFL has changed the rules. But that means little unless the play-at-allcosts culture changes, too. And from what we've seen so far this season, there's still a long way to go.

Jon Kitna got dinged so badly in the second quarter Sunday he "barely" knew where he was, and the Detroit Lions quarterback said it was the worst his head has ever hurt. Yet a quarter later, he'd been cleared to

Of course, Kitna returned in the fourth quarter, and the Lions won.

Jacksonville defensive tackle John Henderson went back into last weekend's game after suffering a "blow to the head," then had to be helped off the field with what the team said were heat-related issues. He hasn't practiced since.

Miami Dolphins linebacker Zach Thomas will miss only the 14th game of his 12-year career Sunday because of a concussion. The seven-time Pro Bowler played every snap last week-

TV commentators were incredulous that the New York Giants would even think of sitting Eli Manning last week. Never mind that Manning had a bruised shoulder which, considering, he's a quarterback, is kind of a big deal.

But the Giants were playing the Packers, and Brett Favre never takes a day off. He's played with a broken thumb, a gimpy ankle, a bad knee. He even played the day after his father died. If Favre, who is closing in on the overall NFL record for consecutive starts, can continually gut it out, so, the commentators said, should Manning.

And on and on it goes. "The truth is that we are going to lie. I lied about it,"

Chrebet, whose career was cut short by multiple concussions, said earlier this week. "Everybody has lied about it, whether it's your head, knee or any kind of injury. You have to take it out of the players' hands."

Football is a violent game, and part of its appeal for fans and players alike is the vicious hits and bonecrunching tackles. Aside from maybe rugby, it's the closest we have to the gladiator contests of ancient times.

So, yes, there are going to be injuries, some of them gruesome. But accepting a risk is one thing. Openly courting it is quite another.

"In a lot of cases, the player wants to play," Dolphins coach Cam Cameron said. "Sometimes you've just got to take a deep breath, and sometimes it's tough. You know what it means to lose a player like Zach Thomas. But there is a lot bigger picture out there that you are accountable to."

The NFL can talk all it wants about how it's protecting its players — we'll leave the discussion about why it took so long for another day and institute new guidelines to keep woozy players off the field. The reality is players are expected to play hurt, and until somebody stops them, they'll continue to try.

This, after all, is their livelihood. NFL careers are generally short-lived, and extended periods in the training room isn't the way to impress a coach or move up the depth chart. They're also elite athletes in their 20s and 30s, too young and too strong to question their invincibility. No, if players are ever going to make their health a priority, they'll have to see the NFL do it first. In Kitna or Henderson's cases, for example, what would have been the harm in keeping them out the rest of the day? A concussion, remember, is just the medical term for what happens when the brain slams into the skull. Is it really possible to be too careful?

No one is suggesting the NFL become flag football. Or that players go on the injured list at the sight of a hangnail. But serious injuries should be treated as such, and when there's any doubt, err on the side of caution.

The NFL will still be thriving and healthy years from now. It would be nice if the same could be said of its former players.

Bye-bye Barry: Giants tells Bonds he won't be back in '08

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) The San Francisco Giants saw no reason to let their decision about whether to bring back Barry Bonds in 2008 drag on all offseason.

After all the home run records, memorable moments and controversy over steroids that marked Bonds' 15-year tenure in San Francisco, it was finally time to say bye-bye Barry.

Giants owner Peter Magowan informed Bonds of the decision during a 90minute meeting Thursday night, telling him the team was ready to go in a new direction after three straight losing seasons.

"It's always difficult to say goodbye," Magowan said Friday. "It's an emotional time for me. We've been through a lot together these 15 years. A lot of good things have happened.

Unfortunately a lot of bad things have happened. But there comes a time when you have to go in a different direction.

On his Web site, Bonds said he was saddened, but respected, the decision. He also said he wasn't ready to retire and would like to bring his all-time home run record to another city.

"There is more baseball in me and I plan on continuing my career. My quest for a World Series ring continues," he said.

The 43-year-old Bonds did not join Magowan and general manager Brian Sabean at the news conference. Asked after if he had anything to add, Bonds said, "I already made my statement."

Bonds had always said he wanted to finish his career in the comfort of his hometown, where his father, Bobby, played alongside his godfather, Willie Mays, and the fans have cheered him even after he became the lightning rod for the steroids debate in baseball.

Bonds talked with Giants Hall of Famer Willie McCovey and took batting Cincinnati.

was out of the lineup again. Manager Bruce Bochy said he thought Bonds could pinch-hit this weekend.

Magowan said he and: Sabean recently decided: about Bonds' future. Last year, the debate over whether to bring Bonds back dragged on all the way until January when he finally signed the contract that will pay him $19.3 million this year.

"The fact that we failed doesn't mean that Barry failed the Giants in some fashion," Magowan said, "He did all that we could have reasonably expected or anticipated he could do when we signed him."

Why humans enjoy music so much thy new book on why human beings make and enjoy music is striking a responsive chord with readers across the nation. The book, "This Is Your Brain On Music" (Plume), by Daniel J. Levitin, explores the connection between music - its performances, its composition, how we listen to it, why we enjoy - and the human brain.

Drawing on the latest research and on musical examples ranging from Mozart, Ella Fitzgerald and U2 to Schoenberg, Metallica and "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," Levitin reveals how composers exploit the way our brains make sense of the world. Levitin also lets read-

Taking on prominent thinkers who argue that music is nothing more than an evolutionary accident, Levitin argues that music is fundamental to our species, perhaps even more so than language.

"This Is Your Brain On Music" is an ear - opening, mind - blowing investigation into an obsession at the center of human nature.

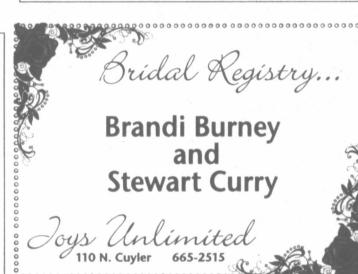

In his review of the book, Oliver Sacks, M.D., called it "endlessly stimulating."

Survey: Gen-X'ers ahead when it comes to retirement savings

Generation X'ers, according to a survey by Edward Jones financial firm, are ahead of other generations when it comes to saving for retirement.

The study shows that each generation has begun to save at a younger age. Sixty-eight percent of the work force between the ages of 25-34 say they have already started saving for their retirement, yet only 34 percent of those over 65 say they began saving before they were 34.

"It's encouraging that younger generations are beginning to save earlier," said Duane Harp, a local Edward Jones representative who has an office in the Hughes Building. "No doubt this is partly due to a growing recognition that company pensions are becoming a thing of the past and the long-term solvency of Social Security is still in question." Despite each generation starting to save earlier than the previous one, 69 percent of the youngest respondents (18-24) say they haven't yet

The bookstore will open the doors to its newly remodeled facility to host the come-and-go event. Santa Claus will be on hand with plenty of holiday refreshments and Christmas-themed games to mark the first opportunity for the public to see and purchase the new ornament. Everyone is invited.

The 2007 ornament depicts the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum and is the eighth ornament in the University's 11-ornament Centennial Countdown Series. The museum was a 12,500-square-foot building when it first opened its doors in 1933. It began as the dream of a handful of University faculty members and today houses more than three million artifacts as the largest history museum in Texas. Museum visitors tour 22 different galleries in subject areas ranging from art and archeology to transportation and textiles.

The ornament, beautifully finished in 24-karat gold, portrays a portion of the museum's original structure. It is finely etched to illustrate the decorative stonework and carvings of western themes, Panhandle fauna and the more than 100 cattle brands that surround its entrance. The three-dimensional ornament is elegantly present-began with an Old Main ornament in 2000. A Buffalo ornament followed in 2001, and the First United Bank Center came in 2002. The Buffalo Courts Alumni Center ornament was introduced in 2003, and "Bucky" and Buffalo Athletics came in 2004. The 2005 ornament depicted the Sybil B. Harrington Fine Arts Complex, and the 2006 ornament was the J. A. Hill Memorial Chapel. A new ornament will be introduced every year, with the final ornament released as part of the University's centennial celebration in 2010.

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum Ornament is priced at $12.95. Earlier ornaments are available for $14.95 each. Proceeds benefit campus beautification projects. Collectors and WTAMU friends may mail orders to Bookstore, WTAMU Box 60937, Canyon, Texas 79016-0001, call 806-651-2744, fax 806-651-2752 or stop by the University Bookstore, located in the Jack B. WTAMU to Host Oral History Workshop

CANYON - Those interested in the history and stories of Route 66 will learn even more at an Oral History Workshop with Dr. David Dunaway from 3-5 p.m. Friday, Sept.

The WTAMU Department of Communication is hosting the workshop in the Sybil B. Harrington Fine Arts Complex, Room 185 for anyone interested in learning how to run and launch a Route 66 oral history project. Dunaway, author, editor and professor of English at the University of New Mexico (UNM), is leading the workshop in conjunction with the National Park Service's Route 66 Corridor Preservation Program.

The program works with community historians to find, document and collect oral histories along the historic Route 66.

The workshop will train local students and citizens on how to collect these oral histories and then continue with taping sessions at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 29 at the Craig Retirement Center in Amarillo. WTAMU's Jo Randel Center for the Preservation of Panhandle Heritage is co-sponsoring the event.

Dunaway earned his Ph.D. in American studies from the University of California-Berkeley. He has taught in Denmark, England, Colombia, Kenya and at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and UNM. He has more than 20 years experience in oral history and was the executive producer of the national radio series Writing the Southwest.

started making provisions for retirement. The survey also shows that a higher education is highly correlated with retirement planning.

Eighty-five percent of college graduates have begun to save for retirement, while only 62 percent of people with a GED have put money aside.

The survey also found that the higher the household income, the more likely respondents will have started saving for retirement. Eightythree percent of workers with annual household incomes over $50,000 have started to save for retirement, compared with only 39 percent of those with incomes under $50,000.

The savings habits of people with children also impact the age they start putting money away for retirement. Of those respondents under the age of 34, 63 percent of those with children had already started saving for retirement, compared with only 46 percent of those without children.

The cost of retirement depends on where you live, your health, desired lifestyle and financial assets, and with so many variables, the best strategy is to start saving early," Harp said. "Gen-X'ers are clearly learning from their parents mistakes and are facing the future now, rather than making plans at the last minute."

WTAMU Set for Graduate and Professional School Fair

CANYON — West Texas A&M University is making the search for information about advanced degrees easier with a Graduate and Professional School Fair from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 1 in the Jack B. Kelley Student Center Commons

The annual event streamlines the search and gives students an opportunity to meet school representatives and review the options available at graduate and professional schools. Representatives from graduate programs as well as professional schools in law, medicine, pharmacy, allied health and business will be available to visit, distribute information and answer questions.

The fair is open to anyone interested in finding out more about graduate school. Graduate school representatives from numerous universities are scheduled to attend. Professional schools represented at the fair include Universidad Autonoma de Guadalajara, University of North Texas Toulouse School Graduate Studies, Texas Chiropractic College, Ross University School of Medicine and School of Veterinary Medicine, Texas Tech School of Pharmacy, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center and considering "Anyone graduate school is encouraged to stop by and visit onewith on-one these recruiters," Kim Muller, assistant director of career and counseling services, said. "It's a once-a-year chance to come and find what options are available."

For more information, call WTAMU's career and counseling services at 806-651-2345.

Homecoming 2007: Mix of New and Traditional Events

CANYON — West Texas A&M University will celebrate Homecoming this year like never before - starting with a grand pep rally in Amarillo and culminating in a rollicking concert and dance featuring Cross Canadian Ragweed.

Those bookend events are Oct. 9 and Oct. 13, but there is no real letdown in between; the community also will be treated to a festive dedication of the University's new Pedestrian Mall, a visit and lecture by former WTAMU President Max Sherman, and a classic football game pitting WTAMU against arch-rival Eastern New Mexico University.

This year's Homecoming theme is "Discover the Buff in You," WTAMU's new identity system designed to "brand" the University, and all the traditional events are on tap: the golf tournament, parade, alumni reunions, bonfire, etc. However, University officials decided to kick-start the celebration with something new - a pep rally from 5:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 9 at the Amarillo Civic Center, Heritage Room.

"We're inviting the entire Texas Panhandle to Amarillo to help share in the celebration," Pam Thomas, chair of the Texas Tech School of the Homecoming Committee, said. "So many people want to get involved in our Homecoming festivities that we've decided to expand our scope, to make a pep rally more accessible to our alumni and friends who can't make it to the campus. It's going to be a great event with something for every-

The rally kicks off with a brief concert by the WTAMU band on the lawn at the Potter County Courthouse around 5 p.m. The band will march to the Civic Center, where free burgers and brats will be served to one and all. WTAMU cheerleaders will be on hand, and head football coach Don Carthel will bring some of his team to the event after they finish prac-

As Homecoming week progresses, Max Sherman, fifth president of West Texas A&M University (1977-1982) returns to campus for a nostalgic lecture and booksigning event at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 10 at Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum. The lecture, "An Evening of Reflections with Max Sherman," is free and open to the public. Following the lecture, he will sign copies of the book he recently edited, Barbara Jordan: Speaking the Truth with Eloquent Thunder, a new volume of the late U.S. Congresswoman's important speeches.

Thursday, Oct. 11 will be memorable, too. The festivities begin at 11:30 a.m. with the United Way Cook-off on the Canyon square, where $10 buys all you can eat.

Dedication and celebration of the Pedestrian Mall ensues - 4:30-6:30 p.m. - on the spacious, tree-lined concourse north of Old Main, where a 37,000-pound sculpture by New Mexico artist Doug Scott is the centerpiece.

"We're excited because

Mr. Scott will be on hand at the dedication to say a few words and visit with everyone," Thomas said. "And he has also agreed to serve as marshal Homecoming Parade.'

Among the many Friday events are the annual golf tournament at Ross Rogers Golf Complex in Amarillo (call 806-651-2345 to enter); alumni reunions, including a reunion of the University's School: Demonstration Pigskin Revue; and the bon-

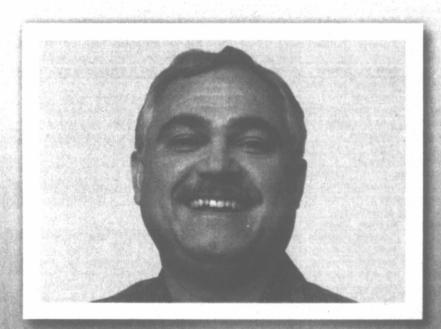

On Saturday, Oct. 13, thousands are expected to line Fourth Avenue for Canyon's Fair on the Square the Homecoming Parade, which starts at 11 a.m. A butcher-paper barbecue will be served by the Department of Agricultural Sciences from 3-5 p.m. in the southeast parking lot at Memorial Kimbrough Stadium, and it's just $5 to

The football game starts at 6 p.m., and the Wagon Wheel trophy that WTAMU and ENMU vie for each year will be up for grabs again.

The concert and dance there won't be any chairs on the floor - is slated to begin at 10 p.m., putting a loud and upbeat punctuation on Homecoming 2007. Cost is $25 (call 806-651-1414 for tickets).

'We are truly thrilled about all we have to offer at this year's Homecoming celebration," Thomas said. "We want everyone to come and discover the new look of our campus, to experience the downtown fair, the parade, the game, the concert everything. It's great family fun and entertainment, and it's just around the corner."

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Sept. 24, 2007:

Learn to jump into situations this year. You will create more of what you want. Often you could be heavy or overly serious. Know when to pull back and handle situations on your own. Often you might be lonely or isolated because you feel problems and responsibilities all fall on your shoulders. If you are single, you might find this status difficult and need to learn how to relax and relate to others. This birthday year presents someone with whom you are compatible. This relationship could evolve into a major life bond. If you are attached, your bond becomes heavier but more committed. You often might be juggling concerns back and forth. PISCES draws you out.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You might find it best to pull out of a situation and rest on your laurels. Consider the fact that you need not worry about this and that so much. You could decide to head in a new direction, but hold off for now. More information will be forthcoming. Tonight: All smiles. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★ Emphasize what can be done as opposed to what isn't feasible. With this attitude, you will grow by leaps and bounds, and others will appreciate your positive feedback. Work with associates as if they were pals. Tonight: A must

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  You actually might be too selfcentered for your own tastes. In fact, you could be downright serious and hard. Let SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) go of any rigidity. Ultimately, opportunity will strike those who are more open. Tonight: Happy to be at home. CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Speak your mind, and others will listen. But try to curb the heavy language, and your message will be better received. Understanding limits is important, far more than you realize. Tonight: Remember that book you have wanted to read? The time is now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Be careful with your finances. They could tumble every which way. How you decide to look at them and your impressions are very important. Listen and laugh. Enjoy. How you see someone could change radically. Tonight: Gather your bills.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * You might not intend to push others away, but you do so most effectively through an overly serious attitude or a closed-off type of conversation. Warm up moments rather than put a chill in the air. Tonight: Tell it like it is. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Know when to back off and say enough. Realize what your attitude can cause or suggest. Perhaps a little transformation could go far, not only for you but also for others. You might become more popular and appreciated. Tonight: Some time off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* You know what you want Listen to what is being said and what needs to happen. You have drive and organization. Follow through knowing what you can do and accomplish. Tonight: Spend time with a friend or several pals.

 You might feel as if the woes of the world have just dropped on your shoulders. Check it out; the odds are that you will discover how you feel might have very little to do with what is reality. What a relief. Tonight: Handle your responsibilities with a smile.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Your ability to move forward and find answers when no one else can emerges. You might like what is happening and enjoy being part of breaking into new thought patterns and ideas. Today you see what others don't. Tonight: Take AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Your significant other or a key associate might start raining on your parade. You can rebel, you can scream, but it won't make any difference. Listen to others and understand what is going on. Tonight: Work with a dower person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Allow others to run with the ball. You really don't want the responsibility. Recognize that your significant other could be very serious. Investigate with an eye to making an agreement. Pressure will build if you avoid an issue. Tonight: Go along with others' plans.

RRC posts production stats

AUSTIN — The most recent Texas average rig count posted by the Texas Railroad Commission was 830, representing about 46 percent of all active land rigs in the United States. In the last 12 months, total Texas reported production was 340 million barrels of oil and 6.2 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Texas natural gas production represents approximately 29 percent of total U.S. natural gas demand.

The commission's estimated final production for June 2007 is 27,769,506 barrels of crude oil and 482,458,630 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas well gas.

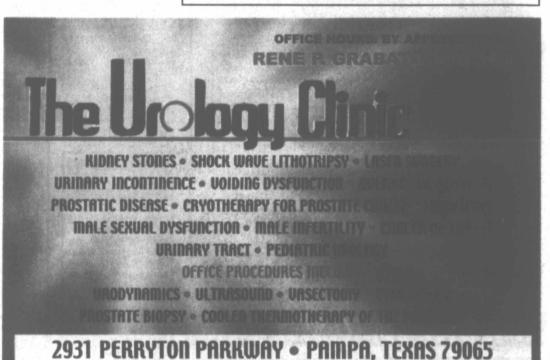

The commission derives final production numbers by multiplying the preliminary June 2007 production totals of 26,175,423 barrels of crude oil and 420,186,927 Mcf of gas well gas by a production adjustment factor of 1.0609 for crude oil and 1.1482 for gas well gas. (These production totals do not include casinghead gas or condensate.)

Texas natural gas storage reported by the commission for July 2007 is 363,914,678 Mcf compared to 382,560,161 Mcf in July 2006. The August 2007 gas storage estimate is 351,363,043 Mcf.

The Texas Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division set initial September 2007 natural gas production allowables for prorated fields in the state to meet market demand of 17,939,070 Mcf (thousand cubic

In setting the initial September 2007 allowables, the commission used historical production figures from previous months, producers' demand forecasts for the coming month, and adjusted the figures based on well capability. These initial allowables will be adjusted after actual production for September 2007 is reported.
