Bike riders from Belgium spend night in Pampa By KERRI SMITH Managing Editor

Pampa had some special visitors Friday evening, but most people were not aware of their presence. Adrien and Carl-Eric Alexis, brothers Belgium, from stopped to spend the night at the Pampa fire station with the firefighters. They are riding bicycles across the United States and are in the middle of their trip, which started in Los Angeles, California and will end in Montreal, Canada.

Adrien, 26, and Carl-Eric, 30, who are both single, left their home in Belgium on July 8, 2007, on this whirlwind trip. So far, they have ridden their bikes approximately 8,000 miles and Don't Be Misled Purchasing a casket from a casket store, cemetery, retail chain or on the Internet may or may not save you money. These entities are selling caskets to make money, not lose it. Remember, funeral homes are generally very competitive with their casket prices. Also, be aware that delivery constraint could affect the timing of the funeral service. When choosing a casket on a preneed basis, first ask your funeral director who knows the casket industry best. Then, make you decision as an informed consumer.

Mr. Hollar's overall architecture practice spanned more than five decades and included the design and construction of churches, schools, businesses, residences and public buildings in the Pampa area, North Texas and Southwest Oklahoma. He was also a landscape designer and environmentalist, and he spoke and wrote extensively on architecture and design during his career.

Mr. Hollar was born on Nov. 4, 1928, in Lubbock to I.D. and Jewel Creighton Hollar. Mr. Hollar grew up in Vernon and graduated from Vernon High School in 1946. He attended Texas A&M University, where he served in the Corps of Cadets and in the Texas Aggie Band, and he was drum major of the Texas Aggie Band in 1949-50.

He received his Bachelor

New war monuments done by American

FAIRHOPE, Ala. (AP) - Sculptor Stephen Spears is turning history into bronze with the first monument to the Navy's D-Day heroes at Normandy and a statue of a World War I doughboy at the site of a landmark American victory in Cantigny, France.

His three bronze figures of a Navy captain and two sailors will be installed on a bluff overlooking Utah Beach to remember the naval service's role in World War II's pivotal amphibious invasion, adding a new visual element to the landscape at the historic site.

"All the monuments at Normandy are stone pillars, obelisks or plaques," said retired Navy Capt. Greg Streeter of Jacksonville, Fla., chairman of the Navy D-Day Monument Project. "What we like most about our monument is that it is composed of representations of human figures that represent the officers and enlisted men that participated in the naval aspects of the Normandy invasion."

Mike Conley, a spokesman for the American Battle Monuments Commission, which approved the Navy monument, said there are three human sculptures in the Normandy cemetery, but Spears' work will be the first with human figures on Utah Beach.

At Cantigny, Spears' bronze doughboy will illustrate American's vital, yet lesser-noted role in WWI, said Benoit De Weirdt, mayor of the French city.

"We mostly know the Americans for the D-Day invasion. As far as World War I goes, (the French) know much less about it," De Weirdt said.

He hopes that will change. The Americans "were the ones who put a final endpoint to the war," he said. "Also, Cantigny is the first battle the Americans won on European soil ... It's a point of reference."

The monuments will be unveiled in separate ceremonies later this year.

Spears' "Cantigny Doughboy" bronze was commis-sioned by the Cantigny First Division Foundation in Wheaton, Ill. Foundation executive director Dr. Paul H. Herbert said the French government has endorsed the $111,000 monument that will be unveiled May 28.

Streeter said Spears' D-Day work will be dedicated Sept. 27 above Utah Beach in Normandy.

Spears said he hopes the three 8-feet-tall figures - all on a pentagonal base - will stir emotions among viewers about the largest amphibious assault in history.

"I have a great deal of pride in doing them. I've done art all my life," said Spears, 51, the son of an Air Force colonel.

He was born in Columbus, Ohio, but now lives in Fairhope, an oak-shaded arts and boating enclave on the shores of Mobile Bay. He commutes to a foundry and his studio in Loveland, Colo., to cast his bronze creations.

Spears said the Navy monument, nearing completion, will list all U.S. Navy ships that participated in the D-Day invasion of Normandy on June 6, 1944. Some 1,068 sailors were killed and eight warships sunk. Hundreds of ships and thousands of men were involved in transporting Allied forces from England to Normandy.

The Navy provided shore bombardment to protect troops going ashore, conducted minesweeping and anti-submarine patrols, among other duties.

"I did all the research and making that list of vessels is part of the fun of doing these," Spears said. "In military monuments, details are very important."

Police release photos of university suspects

(AP) — Detectives are searching for a man videotaped using the ATM card of the University of North Carolina student body president who was shot to death and dumped on a city street, police said Saturday.

Chapel Hill Police Chief Brian Curran released two surveillance photos of the suspect taken at an ATM machine in Chapel Hill, but declined to say when the photos were taken. Police also released a photo of a baseball cap the suspect CHAPEL HILL, N.C. appears to be wearing in both of the surveillance pictures.

> "This is our biggest break so far in this case," Curran said.

> Eve Carson, 22, was found Wednesday morning on a street not far from campus. She had been shot several times, including once in the right temple, and her body was found lying in the street.

> Her truck was discovered Thursday, hours after police identified Carson as the shooting victim.

Belgium

"We left Belgium riding out bikes, so we want to end our journey by riding our bikes back into Belgium," Carl-Eric said.

So far, the duo explained they have ridden their bikes through France, Spain, Morocco, Buenos Aries, Argentina, Bolivia, Peru and then into the U.S. They started in the U.S. in Los Angeles, California and rode up the coast of California to San Francisco, see <sup>5</sup> Yosemite, Death Valley and <sup>2</sup> the Grand Canyon.

especially wanted to tour the U.S. because all they knew of this country was what they see on TV.

"People in Belgium only know the U.S. from what they see on television, which is mainly the war in Iraq," Carl-Eric said. "We've been told by some that the landscapes in your country were very pretty, but we never see that stuff on TV. We've heard about the national parks and the Grand Canyon and we decided we wanted to see it for ourselves."

One thing they were also told by friends was how people in other countries, especially developed countries, are not friendly are would not welcome them into their culture.

eled we've been welcomed during the trip, they only had and invited in to places," Adrien said. "The only place that was not very friendly and helpful was Spain. We really enjoy staying with the firefighters in the U.S. because they are all very hospitable and are always friendly. This was the best surprise from our trip, the friendly and helpful firemen." They explained they never worry about where they are going to spend their next night, they just usually seem to find a place. They try to find fire stations or churches and if they can not find those, they look for parks where they can pitch their tent or they find a cheap motel where they can weight in that four days, sleep in a bed and take showers.

9-12 to show them other environments, cultures, history and geography. We want to show these kids in our country to be open minded about other people from other countries. We have a Web site that we post messages and pictures from our trip and we also send the students e-mail about our experiences.

"Once we get back home to Belgium, we'll go back into the classroom and see these students again. We are amazed because so far we've received 12,000 hits on our Web site, which is www.terresenvue.org. We never thought that many people would visit our Web site.

They said they have not "Everywhere we've trav- been bothered by animals a few problems with aggressive dogs in Morocco.

weather can change here in the U.S. They have run into quite a bit of cold weather and hope that as they travel up north the weather starts to get warmer.

"We have to be out of the U.S. by April 18 when our VISA's run out," Adrien said. "So, we can't just sit around and lounge very long, we have to get going.'

The brothers said they speak mainly French, but Belgium has three official languages: French, Dutch and German. They spoke very good English during the interview, which they said was their first one in the United States. They said they studied English for about a month prior to the trip to make sure they could communicate effectively while traveling. "We would just like to say thanks to everyone, especially the firemen, in the U.S. that have been so nice to us," Carl-Eric said. "We want to let the kids back in Belgium know just how friendly and beautiful the U.S. is so maybe they will travel there one day."

After leaving Death ' Valley, we rode into Las ' Vegas," Adrien said. "That <sup>1</sup> was a very interesting place <sup>2</sup> because everything is supersized. Nothing is small in ' Las Vegas. I think everyone 's should visit Las Vegas once ' in their lifetime."

When asked what their <sup>b</sup> favorite part of Las Vegas was, they both blurted out with a smile, "the big buffets." They said they have never seen so much food and that was one place they really ate a lot. They said that most of the time while traveling, they eat light so they would be too full to ride their bikes. They eat mainly bread, cheese and bananas. <sup>t</sup> They drink mainly water because it is good for them and it is the cheapest thing to 71 drink.

They said the main reason they wanted to make this trip was to see the difference in different countries. They

"Before we left Belgium, we went to schools and met school kids and teachers,"

"We've seen many beautiful animals while on this trip," Adrien said. "We've seen whales, sea lions and bald eagles. While we were in Death Valley we heard coyotes. When we were in Africa, we did see huge cockroaches though. We stayed in a really cheap motel and there were lots of cockroaches in there."

The only time they've been sick along the trip was when they both got food poisoning in Morocco. They said they both were very sick and stayed in bed for four days.

"We both lost a lot of about five kilos," Carl-Eric said. "It was hard to ride after that because we were very weak.'

The only problems Carl-Eric said. "This trip is a they've had with weather on school project for kids ages the trip is how quickly the

The perfect job doesn't always come with perfect hours

This is a hard column for me to write because it will be one of my last for The Pampa News. I've made the decision to take another job that doesn't require as many work hours so I can spend more time with my family, especially my son Kooper who will turn five at the end of this month.

I've loved this job here at the newspaper and many of my friends said they thought I'd finally found "my niche" because it really suited me and made me happy. I love interacting with people, I love to be "newsy or nosey" and I love to write so it seemed to be the perfect job for me, except for one thing...the long hours.

The first year I worked here just as a reporter and that didn't require quite as many hours, but did require some night and weekend work. Since I've been managing editor and reporter, I've been working 50-60 hours a week and my son keeps asking my husband, Rodger, where momma is and why she has to work so much. That just kills me and I don't think it's fair to my family to be away from them that much.

We only have one child and can not have any more children so I know I have to enjoy and cherish every moment I have with Kooper. He's about to turn five years old and I don't want to miss one minute of his childhood because I can never get this time back. I also want to spend more time with Rodger because for 12 years I decided to leave this job I when he was in the Navy, we hardly saw each other. We moved to Pampa just for that reason and I feel I'm not fulfilling my part of the bargain.

We just signed Kooper up 0 r

Optimist T-Kerri ball and I don't want Smith to have to Managing miss any Editor games or practices because of work. My final decision to leave this job came not long ago when I got home at 8 p.m. and Kooper said, "Mama, you are finally home. I'm glad you're home because I've missed you." That was the final straw and love.

I've accepted a position for the City of Pampa, working as a records clerk at the Pampa Police Department. I only have to work 8 a.m. to 5 Monday through p.m.

things that is great is I'll get nine paid holidays.

I didn't think about it when I started working at the newspaper that media people don't get many holidays off. The only days we actually to take off are cover as much of Pampa as get Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. We have to work the day after Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve, New Year's Eve and Day, Memorial Day, Labor Day, and the Fourth of July. So, that's more time away from family.

I've really worked hard while I've been here at the paper to make it a better paper that has more local stories in it, but it's hard when I'm the only full-time reporter, and managing editor, and Marilyn and David are both part-time reporters. We do what we can, but it's difficult to be everywhere all the time. Hopefully, the paper will find a great replacement for me who can dedicate the time needed to possible.

Please keep sending in your stories, write-ups and photos. You don't realize just how much we depend on the community to help us out. If you have a story idea or heard something that you aren't sure if we are aware of, please call and let us, or them now, know. Many times we don't hear all of the stuff that goes on and are unaware of neat things happening.

I just want to thank everyone for accepting me into your lives with open arms and friendly faces. The firefighters, police officers and sheriff's deputies have been great because they let me approach fires, wrecks and

Frogs raise red flags on environmental hazards

By JEANNIE KEVER Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) -Frogs used to be slimy green things boys carted around in their pockets. Now they're environmental fortunetellers, slightly mysterious creatures that tell us when we're headed for trouble.

And it's their year.

The Year of the Frog is an international campaign to remind people that frogs and other amphibians are in serious trouble. As many as half of amphibian species are in danger of disappearing.

"If this is allowed to continue, it will represent the largest mass extinction since the dinosaurs," says Jeff Corwin, an Emmy-winning television personality and host of several popular wildlife series.

Corwin has joined naturalists Sir David Attenborough and Jean-Michel Cousteau to promote the cause.

In Panama, where the legendary golden frog has all but disappeared from the wild, 'a major campaign began on Leap Day.

Here in Texas, the less glamorous but biologically significant Houston toad may benefit from the attention, too.

"A world without the Houston toad ... is not a world we can physically live in," says Paul Crump, a reptile and amphibian keeper at the Houston Zoo who works with the small brown toads.

He's not exaggerating. Amphibians, most of whom breathe through their skin, are vulnerable to virtually all the modern environmental ills: Pollution. Deforestation. Pesticides. A deadly fungus known as chytrid.

"It's not just amphibians that are crashing," Crump says. "We're all crashing. Birds. Fish. Mammals, But the amphibians are the first to go. They serve as a smack in the face for us. It may be too late for these guys, but it's not too late for all of us."

Frogs and other amphibians are "jump" species, a link between water- and land-dwellers. They also hold a pivotal spot on the food chain, eating mosquitoes, other insects and rodents, while being eaten by snakes, birds and mammals.

More vulnerable to environmental changes than most other species, they serve as an early-warning system of sorts, dying off before other groups are affected.

Golden frogs already were struggling because of pollution, habitat loss and overcollection for the pet trade when chytrid, an invisible but lethal fungus, crept into Panama in 2006.

The population plummeted.

The Houston Zoo, among a handful of U.S. zoos to successfully breed golden frogs in captivity, stepped in to help the frog on its home turf, building the El Valle

"I've been celebrating the Year of the Frog for almost 10 years," says biologist Edgardo Griffith, director of

About 250 animals, representing 40 species, have been collected; seven species, including the golden frog, have begun to breed in the past year, Griffith says.

Griffith says he's not sure how many will make it to adulthood.

His work will contribute to knowledge about the basic science of amphibians, says Joe Mendelson, curator of herpetology at Zoo Atlanta. Mendelson has followed the impact of chytrid in Central and South America for years, but he said there is still much to learn.

"There's been an explosion of academic research on the fungus," he says. "But it's the typical academic approach. You learn a little bit here and a little bit there. ... That's still not practical and applicable. We're still not able to do anything about it."

almost everywhere in the world but is more lethal in some regions - including America and Central Australia - than others. It attacks keratin in the dermal tissue of amphibians, suffocating them. Animals can be treated if they are caught in time, but the fungus can't be stopped in the wild.

The conservation center hopes to open a public viewing area in El Valle later this year, according to Bill Konstant, director of science and conservation for the Houston Zoo. It also plans to establish a satellite colony at Summit Zoo in Panama City, allowing more people to see the frogs that once thrived in the wild.

A native in need

The mythology of the golden frog permeates everyday life in Panama, with its image on lottery tickets, jewelry, artwork and T-shirts.

The Houston toad is decidedly less charismatic.

Brown and dry, it looks pretty much like the Gulf Coast toad that may be living in your backyard.

The Houston toad once ranged from east of Houston to Bastrop but hasn't been seen in Houston since 1976. The only remaining colony large enough to sustain itself is in Bastrop County, protected in Bastrop State Park and on private land whose owners have agreed to help.

The toads are also found in a few other counties but in groups too small to be assured of survival.

That may not seem like a big deal. After all, the Houston toad is no beauty. But Michael Forstner, a biologist at Texas State University, says it matters.

"It's a Texas native, and there aren't that many of them," Forstner says. "The toad is a unique piece of Texas, shaped by forces in Texas."

He first learned about the leagues Stan Mays and Joe

Houston toad during his Flanagan collected half of graduate studies at Texas three egg strands in Bastrop. A&M University, and he (Egg mortality is high, so says Bastrop County still taking half a strand isn't boasted healthy numbers as thought to affect the number that hatch in the wild.)

Just more than 1,000 of the hatched toads were released into the ponds where the eggs had been collected; Crump says all had one toe cropped so they can be identified in the future.

An additional 272 toads remain at the Houston Zoo, safeguarded in a building beyond the public exhibition area, to ensure the species doesn't disappear if it goes extinct in the wild. (With the exception of one female toad found injured and brought into captivity for medical care, all Houston toads in captivity come from the eggs collected last spring, Forstner says.)

Crump says there are plans to put the toads on public display here, as well as at zoos in San Antonio, Dallas and Fort Worth.

He believes people will care - and conservation efforts will be more effective - if they can see the toad.

Give frogs a chance

But even if more people cared, survival is not assured.

"For the next couple of years, the Houston toad is at a critical point," Forstner says.

In the meantime, Crump and his colleagues plan to capture more egg strands this spring – ideally they will find some outside of Bastrop County and be able to release newly hatched toads in their home counties, boosting colonies there.

The first Houston toad of the season was spotted in Bastrop County on Feb. 4. It wasn't one of the hatchlings from the Houston Zoo, and Forstner says it may take a year or more to determine if the experiment worked.

If it does, he says, "I think the toad's got a real chance. It's not like the whooping crane. It doesn't require millions of acres.

"We have a chance."

Farm Credit lenders return 55 percent of earnings to customers

AUSTIN - Twenty Farm once again provided excel-Credit lending cooperatives in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico and Texas declared $133.7 million, or more than half of their 2007 earnings, in patronage to their customers farmers, ranchers, agribusiness firms, rural homeowners and other rural landowners.

The same borrowerowned lending institutions declared $124.8 million in patronage distributions for 2006 and $56.4 million for 2005.

The record patronage distribution highlighted the strong,2007 year-end financial results for the Tenth Farm Credit District, which is composed of the 20 rural lenders and the Austinbased Farm Credit Bank of Texas (FCBT).

Tenth District net income totaled $242.5 million in 2007, compared with $240.1 million in 2006. Net interest income increased to $432.4 million in 2007 from $386.2 million the previous year, due largely to an increase in average interest-earning assets and, to a lesser extent, the higher interest-rate environment in 2007.

Gross loans totaled $15.11 billion at Dec. 31, 2007, a 17 percent increase from the $12.91 billion loan volume reported at year-end 2006. At the same time, the credit quality of the district's portfolio remained strong, with 98.8 percent of the loan volume considered acceptable at year end.

"While we enjoyed tremendous growth and solid earnings last year, we are particularly proud that our lending associations lent value to their stockholders in the form of patronage," said Larry Doyle, FCBT chief executive officer.

"Patronage reduces our customers' cost of borrowing. It is the cornerstone of the cooperative business model, and it's what distinguishes Farm Credit from other lenders."

The Farm Credit Bank of Texas, which is the funding bank for the 20 local financing cooperatives, also nationwide Farm Credit reported strong year-end results. FCBT net income of $74 million for 2007 was up 13.9 percent from the $65 million reported for 2006. The bank's loan portfolio at Dec. 31, 2007, totaled $10.87 billion, reflecting an 8.1 percent increase from the $10.06 billion balance a year earlier.

At year-end 2007, Tenth District assets totaled $18 billion, while Farm Credit Bank of Texas assets totaled $13.52 billion.

The district is part of the System, the nation's oldest and largest source of loans for agriculture, agribusiness, rural real estate and country homes. The System reported combined net income of $2.7 billion at Dec. 31, 2007, an increase of approximately 12.5 percent from the $2.4 billion in net income the previous year.

Low-income families should dig for bigger tax refunds

By KATHLEEN PHILLIPS Extension News

COLLEGE STATION -A check for almost $5,000 could be coming to certain low- income families this tax season, but many eligible people may never realize this opportunity, financial experts say.

"People who didn't earn enough to owe any taxes may choose not to file," said Dr. Joyce Cavanagh, Texas AgriLife Extension Service family economics specialist. "But if these people file anyway, they may be eligible for an Earned Income Tax Credit of up to $4,716."

Likewise, some people just scratch the surface of a tax return when doing their own calculations, not realizing that higher refunds are possible for those who dig deep into the oft-confusing tax code, she said.

The Earned Income Tax Credit was created by Congress in 1975 to help reduce poverty, and currently is available for households with incomes up to $38,000, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Cavanagh said in Texas last tax year, about $4.8 billion in Earned Income Tax Credit went to more than 2 million families. The total nationwide was more than $40 billion.

"Still, there are about 15 percent of the eligible families who don't receive this credit because they don't file a tax return," she said. "For a lot of them, the tax system is intimidating, and people just don't know how to figure it out."

But free help is available many communities in ing deadline, according to Nancy Granovsky, AgriLife Extension family economist and financial planner. She noted programs such as VITA, the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance - and AARP Tax-Aide programs, both of which use trained, certified tax preparers to help people file.

"These free programs can help put significant incomes back into the household," Granovsky said. "They are worthy efforts that put money back into pockets and help state and national economies."

In addition to preparing a tax return, volunteers may be able to help most people by filing electronically - a method both Granovsky and Cavanagh recommend.

"People who are expecting a big refund may rush to file through April 15 - the tax fil-ing deadline, according to money," Cavanagh said. "By filing electronically through these volunteer programs, a person with a checking or savings account can have the refund deposited directly into their bank account and have it in less than two weeks."

Granovsky cautioned that some businesses offering advances on refunds are actually making loans with high interest rates. It may make more sense to simply wait for money to be put into one's bank account and not be faced with owing interest or paying fees, she explained.

She said splitting one's refund - spending part and saving the rest - could be a big boost for personal finances.

FREE PRESENTATION Broadcast to focus on financial fraud

Edward Jones will host a free nationwide satellite broadcast at 10:30 a.m., 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. March 11. The firm has three locations in Pampa. The title of the program will be "Plan, Protect, Prevent: Don't be a Victim of Financial Fraud."

According to a news release from the firm, financial fraud is not only a top consumer complaint, but also results in billions of lost dollars each year. Furthermore, the release said, elder fraud is on the rise, citing a 2006 North American Securities Administrators Association survey which reported seniors accounted for 28 percent of all investor complaints to state securities regulators.

Unfortunately, it's nearly impossible to differentiate between heat tolerance and heat avoidance simply by examining the quantity and quality of final crop yields. Heat avoidance refers to characteristics that enable a plant to withstand the heat with similar, but less reliable, results - for example, by shifting the bulk of metabolic activity to cooler, evening periods. At the U.S. Arid-Land

Agricultural Research Center in Maricopa, Ariz.,

ARS scientists are investigating the process known as "dark respiration." This research could make it easier to differentiate between heat-tolerant and heatavoidant plants. Dark respiration is a continuous process in which mitochondria within a plant's cells oxidize carbohydrates to create energy. Cotton plants make more starch during the day than they require for growth. The excess starch is stored in plant cells' chloroplasts, photosynthesis occurs. At night, that starch is broken down via respiration and other metabolic processes and used to support new growth, such as

With an attempt to save energy nationally, Congress has extended the period of Daylight Saving Time here in the US by an entire month. The adjustment is part of the Energy Policy Act signed by President Bush in 2005. The act declared the daylight-saving time will start the second Sunday in March instead of the first Sunday in April. And instead of ending on the last Sunday in October, the period now will end the first Sunday in November.

Though the time difference isn't all that radical, some are wondering if the time change could cause headaches for users of computers and other hightech devices.

While most computers, cell phones, personal digital assistants, operating systems and software applications adjust time automatically, some computer experts worry some systems may not react to the time change. A lot depends on several factors - the vintage and version of your hardware, software and the device you are using.

Since the energy act was passed in 2005, there was enough time so most companies and venders have taken care of this issue. Home computer users can manually change their computer's time display whenever necessary.

The United States first began daylight savings time during World War I. Now, 50 states and about 70 countries take part in the time change.

Grain marketing

By ROXANA HEGEMAN Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - Record-high grain prices are fueling a rural economic boom in farm states such as Kansas.

Farm equipment dealers have a backlog of several months in orders for new machinery. Cropland rents are rising, along with agricultural land prices. And with spring planting just weeks away, farmers are watching the volatile commodities markets as they decide which crops to grow in the coming season.

While their city neighbors are struggling with foreclosures and fears of a recession, a lot more money is circulating in rural Kansas today, said Jere White, executive director of the Kansas Corn Growers Association.

"They are kind of riding the wave, running counter to the rest of the economy," Terry Kastens, a part-time agricultural economy professor at Kansas State University, said of his fellow farmers.

White said that after several lean years in Kansas agriculture, many farmers are using money they're making from their grain to upgrade, not just on their farms, but in their homes and elsewhere.

Kansas receiving a good price for virtually any grain they grow, the impact it has on rural communities has to be substantial," he said. "That filters its way to people who sell cars and tires and shoes and clothing and everything else."

Perhaps one of the most telling barometers of the farm economy is the rising numbers of orders for new farm machinery. Kastens, who farms in northwest

Kansas near Atwood, bought a new planter in August so he'd have it for spring planting.

New combine sales were up 15.4 percent nationwide in 2007, sales of four-wheel-drive tractors were up 22.7 percent and sales of large-scale, two-wheel-drive tractors were up 25.7 percent, Kastens said.

Although equipment prices haven't increased much more than 10 percent, farmers are buying a lot more "bells and whistles" for their machinery, which is pushing up the cost of equipment as much as 20 percent, Kastens said.

But input costs - items such as fertilizer, herbicide and seed prices - are also soaring, something farmers will take into consideration when deciding what and how much to plant.

"Corn is very expensive to plant," said Mike Woolverton, grain marketing economist at Kansas State University. "It takes a lot of fertilizer and seed costs are high.'

Still, Kastens said, grain prices are "plenty high" to cover the increased costs.

"Another big plus for farmers today is that despite the fact there is a lot of borrowing - all input costs have risen - interest rates have been pretty low," he said. "Government officials lowered the interest rates, which is another nice, positive thing.'

Corn is the first spring crop planted "If you can envision tens of thousands of farmers in in Kansas. With input costs so high, farmers are now making almost irreversible planting decisions as they buy fertilizer and seed.

The Agriculture Department plans to issue on March 31 its report on what farmers are planning to plant.

Soybeans and wheat may seem like a better option than corn when looking at relative prices, but the selling price of corn today makes it a profitable crop.

Percy - now with the ARS Southern Plains Agricultural Research Center in College Station, Texas - selected three upland and three pima cotton cultivars, choosing a mix of heat-tolerant and heatsusceptible plants. They have been monitoring the cultivars' rates of dark respiration and photosynthesis throughout the day.

Percy and Crafts-Brandner have already made some significant observations. For example, the cultivars with the greatest heat tolerance generally have lower rates of dark respiration and more efficient use of carbohydrates. If ongoing studies support these observations, the scientists may be able to use these traits to improve the cotton breeding program.

Marion Jones enters prison for 6 month sentence

DALLAS (AP) — Former Olympic track star Marion Jones began her sixmonth sentence in federal prison Friday, punishment for lying to investigators about using performance-enhancing drugs and her role in a check-fraud scam.

Jones turned herself in before noon Friday at Federal Medical Center Carswell, located on the Naval Air Station, Joint Reserve Base in Fort Worth, Bureau of Prison spokeswoman Traci Billingsley said.

Under the terms of her sentencing, she had until Tuesday to surrender to prison officials.

Although the prison specializes in medical and mental health services, it also has inmates who do not require such care. Billingsley said she could not comment on whether Jones was receiving specialized care.

Jones won three gold and two bronze medals at the 2000 Sydney Olympics, becoming perhaps the most famous and marketable female athlete in the world.

After frequently denying ever having used performance-enhancing drugs, Jones admitted she had lied to federal investigators in November 2003. Jones also admitted lying about her knowledge of the involvement of Tim Montgomery, the father of her older son, in a scheme to cash millions of dollars worth of stolen or forged checks.

Jones was sentenced in January.

No. 99 Roush Fenway Racing team had intentionally taken the cover off the car's oil tank to gain an aerodynamic advantage.

"He's a real nice guy," Roush said of White, a former Roush employee. "I respect him, but he's also a great racer and would seek any advantage he might think he had an opportunity for."

The 99 car failed postrace inspection last Sunday at Las Vegas Motor Speedway after NASCAR inspectors found there was no cover on the oil tank. Roush Fenway Racing said the cover came off when a bolt failed during the race, possibly due to vibration.

White had a hard time believing that could happen.

"I guarantee you the cover bolts didn't fall out, because if they fall, the engine leaks and you can't run," he said in a story published Friday in USA Today. "If you want something to fall off, you fix it so it can."

White, general manager of Toyota Racing Development, backed off slightly Friday from his published accusations.

"Safety is paramount in NASCAR," he told The Associated Press.

Pampa Special Olympic basketball team travels to tournament

By KATHERINE FLANARY Sports Editor

The Pampa Special Olympic basketball team traveled to Amarillo on February 29 for the regional basketball tournament.

The tournament started with an Opening Ceremony. During the Opening Ceremony, Randy Swires received the Toby Killough award for Outstanding Athlete. The award is based on attitude, performance and character.

Two of the Pampa Special Olympic Athletes played in the Media Game. Those athletes were Eric Knot of the Golden Warriors and Shawn King of the Storms.

After the Media Game, the Pampa Special Olympis went to Braums for snaks and then headed to the Drury Hotel.

March 1, teams headed to Amarillo High Activity Center at 8 a.m. for classifications.

After the classifications, the Storms and Golden Warriors went to different gyms for games.

The Golden Warrors plyed two games on Saturday and one game on Sunday. The teams they played include the Amarillo Mavericks, Canyon and TPMHMR2. They won two out of three games and received a silver medal.

The Storms played Hereford Hearty Herd, winning that game. They lost their second game to ADVO Blue. They won a silver medal.

The Team Skills are made up into two teams. The Go-Getters won the Gold Saturday, while the Bouncing Stars won the Silver.

In order to score points, these teams have to make perfect passes, catches and goals. A perfect score is 60 per round.

At the end of the tournament on Sunday, the Special Olympics stopped at Golden Corral for lunch. They left Amarillo after that, arriving back in Pampa around 3 p.m.

This tournament is the end of the Pampa Special Olympics basketball season. Track seasno will be starting March 24 at the Harvester track field.

The Mavs went into Friday night's action just two games ahead of the Denver Nuggets for the dreaded ninth spot, the one that comes with lottery balls instead of a shot at the title.

DALLAS (AP) — Trading for Jason

Kidd was supposed to make the Dallas

Mavericks championship contenders.

- after trading for Kidd - would really be a crusher for Mark Cuban's club.

As bad as it seems, there is a plausible explanation for the struggles.

Every loss since Kidd arrived has been to a team ahead of the Mavs in the West. That included three road games against division leaders in a five-day span, a run that would be brutal even for an established club, much less one that's breaking in a new floor leader.

As cruel as the schedule was the last few weeks, payback is coming. Quickly.

Eight of Dallas' next nine games are at home. The only exception is a visit to Miami, which has the league's worst record.

The biggest comfort for the Mavericks is that they won't face a team with a winning record until March 18. So if they are going to turn into the kind of team they were expecting to become, this is the time to start. "We have to have a big performance to snap out of this thing," guard Jason Terry said. "Everyone has to look at themselves and see what each individual can do better within the team concept. We have to get rolling.'

Coach Avery Johnson is eager to make the most of this schedule lull. Dallas also has at least one day between every game until March 30-31, giving him plenty of opportunities for practices, film sessions and any other type of bonding he might want to try

Emotional Brett Favre leaves football for good

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - Once again, Brett Favre tried to reach down deep for whatever it was that allowed him to put aside the pain and find his rightful place under center in 275 straight games for the Green Bay Packers.

It wasn't there any more.

ments, it was our accomplishments."

Favre is the NFL's only three-time MVP, and leads the league with 442 touchdown passes, 61,655 yards passing and 160 career victories.

He started

253 consecutive regular-season games, more than any other quarterback in history. Including the playoffs, his streak stands at 275.

Favre also holds the more dubious mark of 288 interceptions - an indication of the wild streak that only made him more human to the fans who adored him.

The same was true of Favre's highly publicized struggles with an addiction to prescription painkillers, his support of his wife through a battle with breast cancer, and a memorable Monday night game against Oakland after he lost his father.

Favre said his regular-guy persona helped him build a bond with fans.

"I think people say, 'You know what? Death does happen to Brett Favre, and Deanna Favre. Cancer does happen to them,"' Favre said. "It's not all about making a lot of money and being on TV all the time. There's more to it than that."

Favre's exit comes after a remarkable resurgence last season, but his final pass was one to forget: An interception in overtime of the NFC championship game against the New York Giants, a mistake that set up the field goal that sent the Packers home instead of to the Super Bowl.

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I recently visited our daughter and two beautiful grandchildren, "Mary" (age 17) and "Patrick" (age 15). Mary has a boyfriend I'll call "Brandon" who is all she has talked about since we arrived. She's quite smitten. One night I was having trouble falling asleep and decided to go downstairs for a glass of wine. As I descended the stairs, I noticed Patrick and Brandon locked in a passionate embrace on the couch. They never noticed me, and I quietly returned upstairs. The boys' lovemaking did not help my insomnia. I haven't mentioned what I saw to anybody. I am not bothered by the gay aspect of the encounter I witnessed. However, my paternal instincts make me want to protect Mary from being hurt. I don't believe in meddling, but I'm not sure keeping silent is right, either. Any advice? -- SURPRISED GRANDPOP IN PHILLY

DEAR GRANDPOP: I assume that Patrick has not yet come out to the family about his sexual orientation. If that's the case, then I don't recommend you out him by telling his sister what you saw. I do, however, think you should discuss it with Patrick, because he should be the one to tell Mary she shouldn't pin her hopes on Brandon, as he's not the person he may pretend to be.

DEAR ABBY: My twin sister and I are close, but sometimes we like to do things apart from each other. Other kids don't seem to understand why we're not together 100 percent of the time, even though we're together probably 90 percent of the time. When we're not together, we are invariably asked, "Where's your sister?" or "Did you two have a fight?" We're tired of having to explain that nothing is wrong and that we've just chosen to do something different at a particular time. We share a room and sleep in a double bed, so we are always very close at home. But once in a while, we like to get out and do something apart, and we don't see why others should question it. How do we put an end to these questions and comments? -- NOT SIAMESE IN MEDFORD, ORE.

DEAR NOT SIAMESE: The reason you are asked those questions is because you and your sister are together 90 percent of the time. People tend to question anything that is unusual, and seeing you apart is unusual. There is no way to put an end to the questions, but you can keep your sense of humor and respond honestly by saying, "We're not joined at the hip. We felt like doing something different today."

Billie Leverett was recently named Resident of the Month for Coronado Healthcare. On this day, she played a few games of bingo with fellow residents. Leverett grew up in Childress, married and had three children, Nick Leverett, who lives in Plano; Judi Edwards from Pampa; and Barry Leverett from Colorado Springs. She lived in Amarillo for 25 years where she was a beautician until her children finished school. She was a sorority housemother for Alpha Chi Omega at the University of Georgia until she retired in 1994. She moved to Pampa in 1995 and has been a resident of Coronado Healthcare since 1999. Leverett was active in the First Christian Church of Amarillo and Athens. She is an accomplished artist specializing in oils. She enjoys her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She is active in senior fitness, senior basketball, Memory Lane, arts and crafts, bingo and parties at Coronado Heathcare Center.

Airman found dead at Sheppard AFB

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) -A student airman was found stabbed to death Friday morning in base lodging at Sheppard Air Force Base, officials said.

After being found unresponsive in the hotel-type room just before 9 a.m., she was taken to a hospital in Wichita Falls, where she was pronounced dead, said base spokesman George Woodward.

Her name, age and hometown were not immediately released.

ing, but no one was in custody Friday afternoon, Woodward said, declining to say whether any suspects had been identified.

Because the woman was assigned to Sheppard temporarily, she was staying alone in a base hotel and not in a dorm, Woodward said.

Sheppard, the largest technical training operation in the Air Force, has about 5,000 students on base at any given time, most arriving there

Air Force officials are investigat- after completing basic training at another base.

The woman who was killed had not basic training, arrived from Woodward said.

About 13,000 people live and work at Sheppard permanently, including active-duty military personnel and their families, as well as civilians and contractors.

Sheppard and its units trained about 77,000 airman last year.

Okla. jury recommends death

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A jury recommended the death penalty Friday for a man convicted of luring a 10year-old girl into his apartment, killing her and mutilating her body.

Jurors deliberated for nearly 8 1/2 hours before recommending that Kevin Underwood be put to death for killing Jamie Rose Bolin in April 2006. They could have recommended a sentenced of life in prison, either with or without the possibility of parole.

Underwood, 28, was convicted last week of firstdegree murder. His attorneys have not disputed that he killed Jamie, but they argued that he suffered from a host of mental illnesses and was overcome by deviant sexual urges.

Judge orders negotiations before border fence property seizure

(AP) - A federal judge has ruled that the government must first try to negotiate a price with a South Texas landowner before seizing her property for the border fence.

The ruling by U.S. fencing built by December.

Under the ruling, the BROWNSVILLE, Texas of bargaining with landowner Eloisa Tamez or conduct "good faith" negotiations with her by March 21.

"Dr. Tamez correctly asserts that negotiations are a prerequisite to the exercise of power of eminent

Police find body packed in ice

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) -Police discovered the body of a woman packed in a large container with dry ice in a hotel room as they were serving a search warrant in a cocaine investigation, authorities said Friday.

Detectives found the fully clothed and "well preserved" body late Thursday after arresting a guest at the Fairmont Newport. Beach for investigation of selling and possessing cocaine on the hotel grounds, police Sgt. Evan Sailor said.

When they searched Stephen David Royds' room, they found the body inside a

Rubbermaid container filled with dry ice, he said

"It's definitely weird," Sailor said.

An autopsy of the body was "inconclusive" because there was no sign of trauma, and her death did not appear to be a homicide, said Dan Akin, an Orange County supervising deputy coroner.

Police identified the woman as 33-yearold Monique Trepp. It wasn't clear how long she had been dead, Sailor said.

Police were investigating whether Royds was involved in the death. He was held on $30,000 bail.

NOTICE

You often step up to the plate when others won't. It is difficult for you to say when you've had enough, as you don't like conflict or to hurt others' feelings. Follow your instincts when relating to the many odd and sometimes powerful people in your daily life. Communication excels this year. You'll also grow through education and/or a friendship with someone who thinks differently from you. You light up another's life just with your demeanor. You also learn to detach and not get quite so involved. If you are single, you will meet people with ease. Choosing the right person could take some dating. Look to the person you admire. #### AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, March 10, 2008

You often step up to the plate when others won't. It is difficult for you to say when you've had enough, as you don't like conflict or to hurt others' feelings. Follow your instincts when relating to the many odd and sometimes powerful people in your daily life. Communication excels this year. You'll also grow through education and/or a friendship with someone who thinks differently from you. You light up another's life just with your demeanor. You also learn to detach and not get quite so involved. If you are single, you will meet people with ease. Choosing the right person could take some dating. Look to the person you admiré. If you are attached, consider a second honeymoon. TAURUS understands you.

White killer whale seen

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - The white killer whale spotted in Alaska's Aleutian Islands sent researchers and the ship's crew scrambling for their cameras.

The nearly mythic creature was real after all.

"I had heard about this whale, but we had never been able to find it," said Holly Fearnbach, a research biologist with the National Marine Mammal Laboratory in Seattle who photographed the rarity. "It was quite neat to find it."

The whale was spotted last month while scientists aboard the Oscar Dyson, a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration research ship, were conducting an acoustic survey of pollock near Steller sea lion haulout sites.

It had been spotted once in the Aleutians years ago but had eluded researchers since, even though they had seen many of the more classic black and white whales over the years. Fearnbach said the white whale stood out.

"When you first looked at it, it was very white," she said Thursday.

Further observation showed that while the whale's saddle area was white, other parts of its body had a subtle yellowish or brownish color.

It likely is not a true albino given the coloration, said John Durban, a research biologist at NOAA's Alaska Fisheries Science Center in Seattle. That's probably a good thing — true albinos usually don't live long and can have health problems.

Cradle call

Laci Hernandez and Margo Mendoza dressed up recently as the "Pink Ladies" for "Rockin' around the TAKS" day at Pampa Junior High School. The event encouraged students to dress in the style of the 1950s.

Durban said white killer whales have been spotted elsewhere in the area twice before: in 1993 in the northern Bering Sea around St. Lawrence Island and in 2001 near Adak in the central Aleutians. There have also been sightings along the Russian coast.

While Alaska researchers have documented thousands of black and white killer whales in the Bering Sea and the Aleutians during summer surveys, this was something new and exciting, Durban said.
