Ready for adoption - Pampa's Highland Park 1 is one of six city parks that need some beautification attention. With the "Great Pampa Trash-Off" coming up soon, a call has been issued for folks to "adopt" the parks.

Great Pampa Trash-Off set for April 5

by Julie Thompson
The Pampa News

Keep Pampa Beautiful, in association with the Adopt-A-Highway program, will hold the Great Pampa Trash-Off on Saturday, April 5 at 9 a.m. A call is being issued for volunteers to help clean up a two mile stretch of West Highway 60 between Cabot Corporation and Celanese Chemical Company as well as local parks and other areas.

"We're really encouraging everyone to come out and help," Director Melodie Dosch said. "If we have enough people, we're also going to try to get the field on the north side of Wal-Mart."

There will also be a meeting open to the public on April 3 at 6:30 the Chamber of Commerce building with the Board of Adoptees. There are currently six unadopted parks: Hollywood Park, Red Deer Park, Highland 1, Memorial Park, Prairie Village and Yeager. Dosch said that a few current adoptees may decide not to renew their contracts as well. The process of adopting a park is relatively simple.

"A potential adoptee would come in and meet with me or another board member and we'd discuss the responsibilities involved, then we'd sign a contract,"

Dosch said. "It's really just an agreement to keep up and help beautify your park."

Once a park is adopted, the adoptee will get a sign with their name on it in the park they have chosen. The goal is to relieve the park department of the up-keep and enable them to do other things.

"They have lots of maintenance to do," Dosch said. "Right now they're replacing park benches and signs to battle graffiti. There's so

Teens should 'expect respect'

Tralee Crisis Center will sponsor the second annual "Expect Respect Day" on Thursday, April 10 in honor of Sexual Assault Awareness Month. Expect Respect Day encourage parents, grandparents or guardians to take their teens between 13 and 16 on a "date."

Fathers should take daughters and mothers should take sons to teach them what to expect our of dating.

Children of parents participating in this event will receive an invitation and two wrist bands. The wrist bands will give participants discounts at the following local businesses: Dyer's Bar-B-Que, Texas Rose Steakhouse, Dixie Café and Amber's Mexican Restaurant. "Expect Respect T-Shirts" are also available at Holmes Sporting Goods.

To participate in the day-long event or for more details, call Tralee Crisis Center at 669-1131.

White and Rhett Rollins stopped a vehicle at the 500 block of East Crawford, said GCSO Lt. Joe B. Hoard.

"The inspection sticker appeared suspicious," Hoard said. "The deputies had the driver get out so they could look at it from inside the vehicle."

As the driver got out of the vehicle, he reached underneath him, Hoard said.

"They made him show his hands, and he handed Deputy White an object and said, 'Here it is.' He told them it was crack cocaine," Hoard said.

Franklin Don Bliss, 53, of Pampa was arrested and booked into Gray County Jail for possession of one or more grams but less than four grams of a controlled substance. He was also found to be wanted on a capias pro fine for no valid driver's license, according to jail records.

The new benches will hold special chemicals that enable the graffiti to be wiped off instead of having to be painted over. The city currently has paint available so that volunteers can paint over graffiti on other surfaces. Brick still proves a problem, however, because it requires a sand blaster.

Volunteers and potential adoptees may contact Dosch and other board members at Keep Pampa Beautiful, 806-665-2514. Donations, contributions and equipment are welcome.

Mascots are effective sales tools

One of the most effective ways for companies to get our attention and interest is a catchy slogan or mascot.

Current pitchmen (or pitch creatures) that come to mind are the AFLAC duck and the Geico gecko and cavemen. Where do they get these ideas? It's a fairly easy jump from the name Geico to the gecko, but what about cavemen and the Aflac duck? The cavemen even wound up with their own television series, which, according to online sources, was not well-received.

The Aflac duck has a voice which belongs to a comedian some will recognize: Gilbert Gottfried, that squinty-eyed, grinning wisecracker. The idea of using a duck as the corporate spokesperson, or spokesperson, came about as a member of the advertising agency which came up with the idea was muttering the corporate name and realized how much it sounded like the quack of a duck.

More venerable product characters include Tony the Tiger, featured on Kellogg's sugar frosted flakes cereal boxes and advertisements. Tony won out in a 1952 contest to find a mascot for the cereal. Runners-up were Katy the Kangaroo, Elmo the Elephant and Newt the Gnu.

Not quite as venerable is Poppin' Fresh, the Pillsbury

Doughboy, who was created in 1965. Coincidentally, the original doughboys were American infantrymen serving in World War I. The term might even have been used as far back as the Mexican-American War of 1846-1848.

There are several theories for the origin of the "doughboy" nickname for infantrymen, ranging from the dumpling-shaped buttons on their coats to the dough-faced appearance they gained from marching through dry, dusty terrain.

A human mascot who dates back to 1921 is Betty Crocker, who represents General Mills. She actually came into being as a spokeswoman for the Washburn Crosby Company, one of six milling companies that merged into General Mills.

Betty Crocker's last name came from William Crocker, a company executive, and the name Betty was chosen because it was considered to be warm and friendly. Her signature was that of a company secretary who won a contest among female employees.

Crocker, never a real human being, began her "career" by answering the thousands of questions concerning baking which the company received each year. She has had a long and successful career, because she is still a representative for General Mills today.

Buster Brown, a little boy in a sailor suit accompanied by his dog Tige, may be remembered as the mascot for Brown Shoe Company. But Buster and Tige started out as characters in one of America's earliest cartoon strips. The shoe company bought the rights to the characters, and Buster Brown shoes debuted at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair.

Another icon with a long history and a connection to the World's Fair is Sailor Jack and his dog, Bingo. They were created as mascots for Cracker Jack caramel-coated popcorn and peanuts.

Cracker Jack was first mass-produced and sold to the public at the 1893 Chicago World's Fair. Sailor Jack and Bingo became mascots for the snack in 1918.

Other enduring mascots are the Morton Salt umbrella girl, who dates back to 1914, and the Coppertone girl with her dog, a creation which

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, March 25, the 85th day of 2008. There are 281 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 25, 1965, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. led 25,000 marchers to the state capitol in Montgomery, Ala., to protest the denial of voting rights to blacks.

On this date:

In 1634, English colonists sent by Lord Baltimore arrived in present-day Maryland.

In 1865, during the Civil War, Confederate forces attacked Fort Stedman in Virginia, but were forced to withdraw by counterattacking Union troops.

In 1894, Jacob S. Coxey began leading an "army" of unemployed from Massillon, Ohio, to Washington to demand help from the federal government.

In 1908, movie director David Lean ("Brief Encounter," "The Bridge on the River Kwai," "Lawrence of Arabia," "Doctor Zhivago") was born in Croydon, England.

In 1918, French composer

'Uninterpreted truth is as useless as buried gold.'

— Lytton Strachey
English biographer
(1880-1932)

Claude Debussy died in Paris.

In 1911, 146 people, mostly female immigrants, were killed when fire broke out at the Triangle Shirtwaist Co. in New York.

In 1947, a coal mine explosion in Centralia, Ill., claimed 111 lives.

In 1975, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia was shot to death by a nephew with a history of mental illness. (The nephew was beheaded in June 1975.)

In 1988, in New York City's so-called "Preppie Killer" case, Robert Chambers Jr. pleaded guilty to first-degree manslaughter in the death of 18-year-old Jennifer Levin. (Chambers received a sentence of 5 to 15 years in prison; he was released in February 2003.)

In 1990, 87 people, most of them Honduran and Dominican immigrants, were killed when fire raced through an illegal social club in New York City.

Ten years ago: Shaken by horror stories from the worst genocide since World War II, President Clinton grimly acknowledged during his Africa tour that "we did not act quickly enough" to stop the slaughter of up to a million Rwandans four years earlier. The FCC netted $578.6 million at auction for licenses for new wireless technology.

Five years ago: The Senate voted to slash President Bush's proposed $726 billion tax-cutting package in half, handing the president a defeat on the foundation of his plan to awaken the nation's slumbering economy. Former Waterbury, Conn., mayor Philip Giordano was convicted by a federal jury of violating the civil rights of two preteen girls by sexually abusing them. (Giordano was later sentenced to 37 years in federal prison.)

Muslim community not stopping terrorism

All of us should give some serious thought to some of the ideas contained in an article circulating in the blogosphere titled "Why a Peaceful Majority is Irrelevant." So often our political leaders, "experts" and talking heads tell us that Islam is a peaceful religion and most Muslims are not out to destroy the West. We're told it's only that 1 percent, out of 1.2 billion Muslims, who are fanatical jihadists who believe America is the Great Satan, cause of all evil, and should be attacked and destroyed. In terms of national policy, it's irrelevant whether Islam is a peaceful religion and most Muslims are peaceful.

Think back to the 1930s when the Japanese murdered an estimated 3 million to 10 million people in China, Indonesia, Korea, Philippines and Indochina; and on Dec. 7, 1941, when they attacked Pearl Harbor, killing over 2,400 Americans. I'm betting that most of Japan's at-the-time 60 million population were peace-loving people and would have wanted nothing to do with the brutal slaughter in China and the attack on the U.S.

In formulating our response to the attack, should President Roosevelt have taken into account the fact that most Japanese are peace-loving people ruled by fanatics? Should our military have gone after the Japanese pilots and their naval armada? I'd also wager that most Germans were peace-loving people and not part of the Nazi sadists wanting to wage war on their neighbors and exterminate the Jews. Again, should Roosevelt and Churchill have taken that into account in their response to German militarism? My answer is no and thank God it was their answer as well. Whether most Germans, Italians or Japanese were peace-loving or not was entirely irrelevant in formulating the Allied response to their militarism. Horrible acts can be committed in countries where most of the people are peace-loving and simply want to be left alone to attend to their affairs. I imagine that described most of the people in the former Soviet Union; however, that did not stop the killing of an estimated 62 million people between 1917 and 1987. The same can be said of the Chinese people, but it didn't stop the killing of 35 million of their countrymen during Mao Zedong's reign. Whether most people of a country are peace-loving or not is not nearly as important as who's calling the shots.

At this particular time, fanatical jihadists are calling the terrorism shots in many Muslim countries. Their success in committing terrorist acts is in no small part the result of the actions by the millions of peace-loving fellow Muslims. First, there is not enough condemnation of their terrorist acts by the Muslim community. More important is the direct or indirect assistance terrorists

Austin American-Statesman on credit reforms:

A presidential working group led by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Paulson on Thursday proposed reforms regarding home mortgages and their use in securities. That would have been even more valuable had they had been adopted, say, five years ago, before the subprime mess starting eating like acid at the American economy. Well, live and learn - and hope we don't go broke before we learn.

The fundamental problem is that mortgage lenders got careless about qualifying borrowers with poor or overextended credit. The mortgages of those borrowers were included in securities sold to investors, and the rating agencies got careless about estimating just how risky those securities were.

And the securities themselves got so complex that when it became apparent that a lot of subprime mortgages were in trouble financially, the market for them suddenly shrank. With few buyers, the mortgage-backed securities worth fell, forcing banks to write off billions of dollars in assets.

Compounding the problem, some banks had held these securities in a way that had not been reflected on their balance sheets, thus understating just how much exposure to risk these banks faced. In a world of doubt, lenders don't lend, drying up the lifeblood - credit - for a lot of businesses.

Just this week, the Federal Reserve tried to help by offering to loan up to $200 billion to banks and taking as collateral the mortgage-backed securities for which there is little or no market. The hope is that the Fed's willingness to take those securities will make others willing to accept them as well.

While the Federal Reserve is engaged in damage control and the economy is sputtering, Congress is looking at reforms to make sure this doesn't happen again, and even the generally anti-government regulation administration of President Bush is admitting that the American economy

Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency, 916 N. Crest Road, has its heart in Pampa, but strives to provide quality in-home health care to the entire locality. The agency is symbolic of the care of a shepherd's staff (crook) guiding those in his care to a better path and safety. So are the goals of the Shepard's staff in assisting our clients to a healthier life.

Owners Ernie and Suzie Wilkinson, both Pampa natives, have been in business for 19 years. They are members and ministers of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Pampa.

Suzie and Ernie have a BA in business and a Masters in Health Management. They both have extensive background and training in federal and state regulations, and have served on many state and national boards and committees representing Home Health.

"Our nurses are board certified in home health, pediatrics and wound care," Suzie said.

The agency currently employs 75 skilled workers including licensed RNs and LVNs, a Licensed Physical Therapist, a Physical Therapy Assistant, and a number of Texas Certified Home Health Aides.

Michael Kirkpatrick acts as administrator and director of nursing. Teresa Henson is office operations manager. Both have been with Shepard's Crook since its inception.

Shepard's Crook currently serves all counties in the Texas Panhandle and has offices in Pampa, Amarillo, Borger, Clarendon and Shamrock.

Dedicated to meeting the needs of their individual clients, the Wilkinsons believe a successful business should give back to the community.

Don't trust your in-home health care to just any agency. Give Shepard's Crook a try. The number for the Pampa office is 806-665-0356.

receive through the silence of their fellow Muslims.

There is no way terrorists can carry on their operations, obtain explosive materials, run terrorist training camps, raise money without the knowledge of other Muslims, whether they're government officials, bankers, family members, friends or neighbors. Because those millions of peace-loving Muslims do not speak out and expose terrorists and don't more fully cooperate with domestic and international authorities trying to stop terrorists, they become enemies of the West just as the peace-loving people in Germany, Italy and Japan became enemies of the Allied powers during World War II.

Like them, Muslims should be prepared to suffer the full might of the West in its efforts to fight terrorism. I'm hoping that the millions of peaceful Muslims take the proper action to avoid such an outcome. I'm not that optimistic. We're involved in a clash with a culture that has little regard for the Western values that hold the sanctity of human life and liberty dear.

Stocks decline after consumer confidence reading

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street retreated Tuesday after a disappointing reading on consumer sentiment punctured some of the optimism of the past two sessions.

The market was reminded of the economy's ongoing problems when the Conference Board, a business-backed research group, said its Consumer Confidence Index plunged to 64.5 in March from a revised 76.4 in February. The reading — a five-year low — was far below the 73.0 expected by analysts surveyed by Thomson/IFR.

Stocks also fell after a report on the housing sector showed a further pullback in home prices. The Standard & Poor's/Case-Shiller index shows U.S. home prices declined 11.4 percent in January from a year earlier.

Tight credit markets, rising prices and declining housing prices have consumers worrying about a recession. And, the stock market is in turn worrying that consumers will cut back their spending and further weaken the economy.

"We've had two pieces of bad economic news and that was enough to turn the market lower," said Peter Cardillo, chief market economist at New York-based brokerage house Avalon Partners. "What is troubling is that consumer confidence took a plunge, and I think we're going to see consumer spending weaken as we go forward."

In addition, he said some profit-taking was to be expected on Wall Street after a two-day rally sent the Dow Jones industrial average up nearly 450 points. Stocks had charged higher in the days following the Federal Reserve's decision to aid investment banks and orchestrate a buyout deal for a near-collapsed Bear Stearns Cos.

In late morning trading, the Dow fell 74.82, or 0.60 percent, to 12,473.82.

Broader indexes also fell. The Standard & Poor's 500 index dropped 7.11, or 0.53 percent, to 1,342.77; and the Nasdaq fell 0.79, or 0.03 percent, to 2,325.96.

Bond prices rose. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note fell to 3.48 percent from 3.55 percent late Monday. The dollar was mixed against other major currencies, while gold prices rose.

Concerns about consumer sentiment also drove down the price of oil, which in recent days remained over $100 a barrel. Light, sweet crude $1.19 to $99.67 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Group on Financial Markets would: Set national standards for licensing mortgage brokers; stiffen requirements for firms that rate credit to disclose any potential conflicts of interest; and make those who sell securities backed by mortgages tell potential buyers whether they went "shopping" to get the credit rating given their securities.

It's not just Wall Street, bankers and mortgage brokers who got too complacent - so did government regulators: "Supervisory authorities did not insist on appropriate disclosures of firms' potential exposure to off-balance sheet vehicles," Paulson said Thursday.

So government supervisors of banks would be expected to study a banks treatment of risk much more strictly. And the working group said regulators should reduce their reliance on private rating firms.

Most of the reforms, Paulson said, can be adopted without congressional action, though Congress likely will consider even tougher measures. At the least, those proposed by the president's working group sound like a good start toward restoring confidence in a market that isn't so much free as it is broke and threatening to take down the rest of us with it. This Week: Comparison Shopping

Puzzle answers, games, opinion polls and much more at: www.kidscoop.com

Let's Get the Best Deal! I'm your host, Monty Markup!

Your job is to look at the three different products and the three different ways to buy those products. Then decide which is the BEST deal!

The contestant who saves the most money wins! Remember, you're looking for the best value, not just the lowest price!

Let's hear it for today's lucky contestants... Sandy Sawback and Carl Coinop!

ROUND 1: What's the best orange juice deal?

64 ounce bottle of juice for $3.50
16 ounce can of frozen juice for $1.25
8 ounce juice box for 75¢

I know, I know! The box of juice is cheapest!

Hmm... I can get more servings of juice and save more money with one of the larger sizes!

Your Answer:

ROUND 2: What's the best jeans deal?

Fancy Schmanzy Designer Jeans for $89
Generic Jeans for $29
Thrift store used jeans for $5

The Fancy Schmanzy jeans! Everyone is wearing those. I would be so cool!

Jeans are jeans! Why pay so much just for the label?

Your Answer:

ROUND 3: What's the best paper deal?

50 sheets for $1.80
100 sheets for $2.00
500 sheets for $3.00

If I buy the cheapest juice and paper, I can save money for the Fancy Schmanzy Jeans.

No brainer! I know what the best deal is!

Your Answer:

Extra! Extra! Newspaper Search for the Best Deal!

Your newspaper is a really great place to start shopping for good deals. Read the ads and compare the prices before you go to the store.

Find a product that is advertised in the newspaper. List the different prices that you can pay.

Which do you think is the best price? Why?

In your opinion, which is the best value for your money in each of these buying decisions?

Standards Link: Math/Number Sense: Compare value using division.

FROM THE LESSON LIBRARY

Ad Categories

Chart the ad categories (automotive products, food, beauty products, etc.) in each section of the newspaper. Are some categories found mostly in one section? How do you explain your findings?

Standards Link: Math/Data Analysis: Display results using a bar graph or chart.

Write On! Shopping Math

Write a math problem that describes a real shopping situation. Example: At a garage sale, Tina bought a book for $3.98 and a puzzle for $1.99. How much did she spend?

Standards Link: Grammar: Identify and use parts of speech correctly: Nouns, adjectives and verbs.

Kid Scoop Together: Fill In The Blanks

Ask a friend to give you each type of word. Fill in the blanks and read the story aloud for some silly fun.

Yellow moon

The Paschal full-moon rises over the Texas Panhandle. The first full-moon after the Spring Equinox, it is important in determining when Easter falls. Easter is the first Sunday after the Paschal moon. The Spring Equinox was Thursday, March 20. The Paschal moon was Friday, March 21. Sunday, March 23, was Easter. It is the earliest date for Easter this century.
