WHEN MARVIN JONES CLOSED SLUICE GATE OF M'CLELLAN DAM

A milestone in the progress of construction at Gray County's McClellan Lake dam was reached this week when United States Congressman Marvin Jones, of Amarillo, turned the crank that closed the sluice gate at the bottom of the 53-foot control tower to make it possible to hold the water and form the new lake. Mr. Jones is shown, bottom right, turning the crank that dropped the door to the gate, bottom left. Among those witnessing the event were the eight persons shown in the top photo, left to right: Garnet Reeves, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce; Earl Lee

Bradshaw, project manager; Ivy Duncan of Pampa, one of the very first persons to conceive and push the idea for a Gray County lake; James C. Foster, BAE regional director; Congressman Marvin Jones, Amarillo; C. H. Walker, Pampa, chairman of the Gray County lake committee; Tex

Pershing Calls World Situation 'Menacing'

FDR To Decide New Policies In Few Weeks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt, back at his White House desk, appeared ready today to survey his administration program in the light of the Democratic election reverses.

Afternoon appointments with the cabinet and Rep. Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, House floor leader, gave him an opportunity to discuss policies in general and the 1938 congressional situation in particular.

The President and his advisors will have to decide within a few weeks whether to try to push through a heavy legislative program despite re-elected Democratic ranks or to confine the session largely to smoothing out New Deal laws now on the books.

Mr. Roosevelt returned last night from Hyde Park, N. Y., to find that even the final returns in two close Senate races offered the administration but a modicum of cheer.

Although Senators Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana and Guy Gillette of Iowa apparently had bested Republican opposition, both men have been allied with the independent Democrats often critical of New Deal proposals.

Peace Circulars, Dropped By Germans, Displayed In Pampa

Yet, 20 years ago, circulars were dropped from German planes over the American lines, declaring "The German people offers its hand for peace" told of the popular German government asking for an armistice, and asking, "Who is to blame if thousands of brave soldiers needlessly shed blood and die?"

The new government, the circular states, has done six things: appealed to President Wilson, has recognized the principles which President Wilson proclaims as the basis of a lasting peace, is ready for an honest understanding with France concerning Alsace and Lorraine.

The program will include Russian, Finnish, Italian, English songs; also three negro spirituals, three songs by Victor Herbert and three modern American songs.

Sergeant Exasperated The rumor spread, as army rumors do (even though no word had yet been received about the false armistice report of a few days previous). No one took it seriously but, finally, an exasperated first sergeant, who thought soldiers should know better than to believe fairy tales, decided to find out.

At regimental headquarters he found a group of nervous officers. The regimental commander, an unlighted, frayed cigar clamped between his teeth, strode back and forth.

A motorcycle roared up. A dispatch rider, nearly tumbling to the ground in his excitement, rushed in. At just 9:04 a. m. he handed the colonel that fateful armistice order. The first sergeant raced back to his men with the news.

Two Hours To Go And then began two hours of mental torture. For the armistice was to be effective at 11 a. m., and the order was to continue operations until that hour. Men bit their fingernails, stared off into space, wondering, wondering.

"Will I be alive at 11 o'clock?" was the question each asked himself. Shells screamed across No-Man's Land. At 10 o'clock, a young captain, up from the ranks, went into sternerly, a German bullet in his brain. Ambulances raced back and forth. The hands on wrist watches seemed glued. Would 11 o'clock never come?

Ten o'clock, ten-thirty. Things began to quiet down. Maybe, men thought, that official order really meant what it said.

Then came 10:49 and all hell broke loose. Both sides, it seemed, wanted to fire just one more shot. The earth trembled under the concussion.

Germans Also Celebrated At 11 o'clock someone, somewhere, seemingly pushed a button. Came utter silence. No words. No movement. Men turned to granite. One minute, two, three, and then...

"Gosh, I guess it's really over," came from a one-time boss cow-puncher, who didn't care who saw him cry. Over there a man drew patterns in the mud with the toe of his hob-nailed boot. Some laughed and some shouted, but voices were not natural.

That night, back in abandoned German huts, came the "celebration." Brand new candles were placed in the windows. And the rags that had covered window lights for many long months, were ripped down.

Outside, like children gazing at a Christmas tree, the men gathered. It was good just to look at those beams and know someone wouldn't yell: "Cover up those lights, you idiots, do you want to get bombed?"

That was a celebration.

PERSHING (Continued From Page one) peacefully with hundreds of thousands of person jammed around the Arch of Triumph to see President Albert Lebrun lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Troops then paraded down the Champs Elysees for more than an hour. Frontier Edouard Daladier left in a motor car to shouts of "long live Daladier" after reviewing the troops.

Twenty years after the World War, nations are racing for arms supremacy at a cost of $14,000,000,000 a year. Even the United States, a leader in disarmament, is striving for the most powerful navy in history and a vast air force.

Twenty years after the World War, the League of Nations which was to have guaranteed the peace of November 11, 1918, is reduced to impotency.

Germany is becoming increasingly strong in Central and Southeastern European diplomacy and economics.

Japan is invading China, civil war divides Spain. The treaty of Versailles has been torn up.

Germany remembered her 2,000,000 war dead but there was no anniversary of the day Germany acknowledged defeat.

Jews Persecuted It was cleaning-up day for Jews after violence yesterday to avenge the slaying of Ernst Vom Rath, secretary of the German Embassy in Paris, by a young Polish Jew, Mikolaj Golez, who was shot to death in the smashing of Jewish store windows, plundering, and burning of synagogues in a dozen cities.

Nazis predicted a restoration of the ghetto for Jews under restrictive decrees which, they were confident, would mark the final liquidation of the Jewish issue in Germany.

The Turkish national embassy elected a new president of Turkey, General Ismet Inönü. He succeeded Kemal Ataturk, founder of modern Turkey, who died yesterday. Inönü, an able soldier and diplomat, long had been Ataturk's right hand man in forging the westernized new Turkey.

Methodists To End Year Sunday

Sunday will mark the end of the conference year for Methodists, and also the end of Rev. W. M. Pearce's first year as pastor of the First Methodist church in Pampa.

Two special events have been planned for Sunday's services at the church. At the morning hour, the congregation will observe the straining of the Lord's supper. In the evening, there will be a special sermon, and the A Cappella choir will sing.

During the past year, more than 200 persons have been received into the Methodist church here. Of these 200 persons, 75 were by vows. A new parsonage has been constructed and more than $15,000 raised for all purposes.

Next week, Rev. Pearce will leave for the church's annual conference at Memphis, to be held Wednesday and Thursday, over which Bishop Jan Lee Holt of St. Louis will preside.

The President's reaction to the sizeable turnover necessarily will be reflected during the next few months but not in any political statements but also in his legislative proposals.

Few if any informed persons in Washington believed he would change his objectives, but some suggested he might revise his procedure to obtain greater congressional support.

He expressed the opinion the stock market rise the day after election indicated that business generally has "renewed confidence in Congress."

Senator Connally, Democrat, Tex., another who has opposed some administration measures, said he believed Republican gains would tend to eliminate much of the friction among Democrats.

Connally said he hoped that controversy over the reorganization bill, expected to be revived in the next session, could be avoided by a compromise which would give Congress the power to approve or reject any changes in federal bureaus.

Secretary Wallace invited new legislators of all parties to confer with him on the farm problem, although he added his belief that the present legislation "furnished the best framework for an enduring agricultural program."

Largest Crowd Of Season Expected At Game

Both Graham And Webster Will Start

Coach Weldon Chapman and his Lubbock Westerners arrived here yesterday afternoon for their crucial game with the Pampa Harvesters this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Harvester field with the exception of big Jumbo Webster, the Westerners were in pretty fair condition, Coach Chapman reported.

The big plunging, passing, punting and side-stepping fullback has been favoring a side injury for some time. He played only a few minutes against Lamess last week which was long enough to lead a two-touchdown march for a 14 to 0 win.

The Harvesters also will be in fair condition, as far as regulars are concerned, only Glen Nichols is absent. Nichols was in an operation. Carl Ripple, reserve guard, and Herbert Maynard, reserve center, will be unable to play. Ripple is still limping after being clipped in the Amarillo game while Maynard is just out of the hospital following an operation.

Game time will be preceded by a flag raising ceremony conducted by veterans organizations of the city and the high school band.

The largest crowd of the season is expected. Advance sale of reserve seats far exceeded quantity and 500 additional seats were made available yesterday. Bleacher seats to accommodate several hundred fans were erected at the south end of the field.

Lubbock fans came to Pampa this morning by special train and are expected to arrive by train time. Courtesy cars were made available.

Claude Takes Guerillas 39-0

After being held 13 to 0 during the first half, the Claude Mustangs hit their stride to swamp the Pampa Guerillas 39 to 0 in a game played at Claude Thursday afternoon.

The Mustangs didn't expect such potent strength in the Guerillas and were held on almost even terms for the first two quarters. In the second half of the Class B Mustangs broke loose to score with spectacular passes and runs.

Several Guerilla threats were stopped deep in pay territory as the Class B outfit rose up to show its superior knowledge of the game. Weight, as well as experience, was on the side of the Mustangs who played hand-up football.

Starting lineup: Claude—ends, Hagerson and Wilson; backs, Jones and Tims; guards, Jim Jones and Bagwell; center Smotherman; backs, Kight, Ben Wilson, Joe Wilson and Tyler.

Pampa—Ends, Termin and Mullins; tackles, Carr and Phillips; guards, Boyd and Odell; center, Terrell; backs, Giles, Fowler, Isbell, and Winchester.

Peepees Win 7-6 Over M'Lean Club

Little Richard Stephens crashed through the line and raced 15 yards for a touchdown to put the Pampa Junior High Peepees ahead of the M'Lean Juniors here yesterday afternoon. Then the same youngster roared over for the extra point which was to be the margin of victory. McLean scoring later in the game but not adding the extra point as the Peepees won 7 to 6.

A long pass to the 3-yard line from where a powerhouse drive put the ball across counted for the McLean touchdown.

The Peepee touchdown was made possible by some sensational passing by Hillary Eldridge who completed eight of the nine passes he threw to Suttle and Bowerman, ends, during the game. Grossman played a stellar game in the Peepee line which functioned better than in any previous game.

The Peepees are coached by C. P. McWright.

Rice And SMU To Risk Clean Grid Records

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT, Associated Press Sports Writer.

By accident, the heirs of runaway Texas Christian, both Rice Institute and Southern Methodist risk clean Southwest conference records tomorrow against a couple of dangerous characters—teams mathematically out of contention.

The pressure was off and the gamble was on for Arkansas as it rolled into Dallas to meet the Methodists, while Texas A. and M. braced on its Kyle field at College Station to greet Rice.

Shaken from the titular fight last week by Southern Methodist's last-minute field goal triumph, the Texas Aggies, a good club with a bad record, appeared in just the right spot to spill Rice's wrecked title defenders.

No one team deserves such misfortune as has piled up on Rice, but it had one more setback on the eve of the Aggie game. Sophomore Billy Cline, just about the only left halfback not on crutches, came down with influenza. He joined Ernie Linn, Earl Glasco, Jack Vestal, Capt. Jess Hines and Bert Selman on the definitely retired list.

Cline had been doing the passing. Also, Ollie Cordill and Scat Sullivan were in only fair condition and Jake Schuible, the 60-minute fullback, was bruised.

The Aggies, gunning for a Rice Owl that tied them under netting circumstances last year, get a touchdown nod here.

Erratic to date, Southern Methodist revealed a stout line in its scrap with the Aggies, bottling Dick Todd and Jarrin' John Kimbrough, heralded Cadet runners. Its pass defense leaked a trifle, however, and that is fatal against Arkansas.

Parsons Also Passers. The Methodists have two real passers themselves in Sophomores Ray Malloy and Johnny Clement and Arkansas will be without Kay Eakin, its fine triple-threat, out with a broken collarbone. Tough to figure, but S. M. U. should edge past the Porkers.

Tex Watkins To Wrestle Stratton Monday Night

Promoter Cliff B. Chambers, who gives Pampa and this section of the Panhandle wrestling, has decided to put Sailor Tex Watkins, rough and tough ex-gob, on the spot Monday night. He has signed the sailor to meet Walter Stratton, strong arm boy from Dayton, Ohio, in the main event.

For a semi-final he has scheduled Solder Thomas, returning after an absence of many months, and Blacksmith Pedigo in what should be a fast and furious scientific battle.

Opening hostilities at 8 o'clock sharp will be Sheik Marallah and Scott Williams in a battle in which anything may happen. Marallah is a roughster. Until last Monday night Williams had been a mighty sweet scientific mauler but on that occasion he went tough and stayed the distance with the tough Watkins.

In matching Watkins and Stratton, Chambers was looking into the future. He expects Joe Banaski, sensational Oklahoman, to return a week from Monday night when he plans to feed him the winner of the Watkins-Stratton battle. Banaski will be in El Paso this Monday night.

Watkins has returned to this section more cocky than ever before. "Fluh, feeding me these strong guys is an insult," remarked Cob Watkins. "I'll send this Stratton the way of all upstarts."

But Mr. Watkins will have his hands full because Stratton, besides having phenomenal strength, knows all about wrestling and it is rumored that he can get mighty mean.

Erratic to date, Southern Methodist revealed a stout line in its scrap with the Aggies, bottling Dick Todd and Jarrin' John Kimbrough, heralded Cadet runners. Its pass defense leaked a trifle, however, and that is fatal against Arkansas.

Highway Crash Armistice Asked

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—A permanent armistice on street and highway crashes was urged today by Homer Garrison Jr., Texas Public Safety director.

Forecasting of increased vigilance by state patrolmen against reckless and drunken driving, Garrison ordered closing of driver's license stations Nov. 11 and 24 so that 75 officers assigned to them will be available for patrol duty.

"They will work overtime during the two holiday periods to curb menaces who are destroying innocent people," he said.

New one-piece telephones are being manufactured in mass production in India to replace the old two-piece office models.

Taft, Clark May Seek Presidency

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Talk of two possible presidential candidates as a result of Tuesday's elections created a coincidence to tickle the memory of old timers.

The potential 1940 candidates are the new Republican Senator from Ohio, Robert A. Taft, and Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Democrat, Mo., who won re-election easily.

Twenty-six years ago, as youths, they watched their fathers strive for the presidency. President William Howard Taft was the Republican nominee for re-election, and Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, was a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Clark lost the nomination to Woodrow Wilson after a convention deadlock, and Wilson beat Taft.

The strong arm of coincidence added another touch. Beaten on the comeback trail for governor of Nebraska Tuesday was Charles W. Bryan, who helped his brother, William Jennings Bryan, switch the 1912 Democratic convention from Champ Clark to Wilson.

Mussolini Names U. S. Ambassador

ROME, Nov. 11 (AP)—The appointment of Prince Ascanio Colonna as ambassador to the United States was officially announced today.

The prince, who has been representing Italy on the international commission for the control of Egyptian loans, has been a distinguished diplomat for 30 of his 55 years.

His career includes service in Constantinople (now Istanbul), London, Paris, Stockholm, and Budapest.

His family was one of the two most powerful Roman families in the middle ages and has held noble rank 1,000 years.

Austin Turkey Market Price Up 2 Cents Today

Gridiron Deaths Show Decrease

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 11 (AP)—The number of deaths among high school, college, sandlot and athletic club football players for the first half of the season shows a decrease for the second straight year.

Preliminary figures compiled by Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of Purdue University, who keeps an annual record for the American Football Association and the N. C. A. A., today showed 14 deaths directly attributable to football up until Nov. 7, compared with 16 for the same period last year.

Of the 14 fatalities, only one was reported from the colleges, seven from high schools, two from athletic clubs and four from sandlots.

Cuban Leader To Be Given Welcome

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—A reception equalling any ever accorded a visiting field marshal was arranged today for Colonel Fulgencio Batista, Cuban army chief.

Tea at the White House with President Roosevelt tomorrow will be the high spot of the three-day visit for the dynamic, swarthy visitor who only five years ago was Sergeant Batista, an obscure non-commissioned officer, in the Cuban army.

County Clerks Tardy In Reporting On Elections

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—Additional evidence was given today that the majority of Texas county clerks still ignore laws designed to speed up the reporting of unofficial election returns to the secretary of state's office.

Mrs. Clara May Leutyler of the Secretary of State's office said only about 50 of the 254 clerks phoned in returns Tuesday night. Thus far, reports have been received from about 90 counties.

Nazis Not Weeping For Jews, Writes Goebbels

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, in a short account today of the destruction of Jewish stores and synagogues said "we shed not a single tear for them."

"They (the synagogues) stood in the way long enough," the paper continued. "We can use the space made free more usefully than as Jewish fortresses."

Crisis Precautions Cost $1.12 A Head

LONDON (AP)—Fifteen of London's borough councils have worked out the approximate cost of the air raid precautions taken during the recent crisis. The total was $2,650,000.

The cost per head of the population to be protected works out as approximately $1.12.

Writer Tells How Germans Ruined Stores

BERLIN (Associated Press)—In a tour of Berlin, Nov. 11—In a tour of Berlin this afternoon this correspondent saw Jewish stores and synagogues hammered into ruin. In 12 hours of anti-Jewish violence, marked by a fury Germany has not seen since Adolf Hitler came to power in 1933, many buildings were destroyed. The rioting reached a high point at the center of Berlin, where, at noon, thousands gathered in the streets to watch gangs pound to bits dozens of stores. This correspondent saw dozens of men and women rush into a toy shop in the Arcade between Unter Den Linden and Freiderichstrasse and scoop up what they could get. They went after gangs of youths smashed the plate glass windows. Inside, counters, partitions and everything breakable or loose was thrown to the floor and smashed. At the corner of Jaegerstrasse and Freiderichstrasse, a second story pawn shop came in for vengeance. Youths with lead pipes broke windows, threw fur coats from the pawn shop's racks down onto the heads of several thousands watching in the street below.

Magie Stars Sm. had Around another corner in the center of the city a tailor shop was looted. In the doorway, a tailor's dummy with a hat on its head hung with a rope around its neck. Further down Freiderichstrasse a noisome crowd smashed the mystery around the city's best known black magic store.

Here, as elsewhere, the crowd used iron pipes, sticks and whatever implements were available. The mobs worked throughout the day in various sections of the city, seeming according to plan. The swank Kurtuerstandamm quarter which suffered earlier in the morning was revisited by gangs who went inside shops and completed the demolition.

This correspondent started out at daybreak with the milkman. On the tour, the first damage seen was the destruction by fire of the wealthy synagogue in Fasanenstrasse, near the zoo railway station. Clouds of smoke rose from three domes of the stone building. The interior was a furnace, with the tile roof about to collapse as the fire ate at the rafters. Worship benches, and other inflammable materials had been piled in the center.

During the morning this smoking synagogue could be seen by passengers on international trains arriving from the west.

Near Alexander Square some 20 workers were helping themselves at a shoe store. When this correspondent got there they were sitting on the curb, laughing and trying on pair after pair in a hunt for fits.

Those Stingless Bees Have All Died

LONDON (AP)—The stingless bees presented to the Zoological Gardens by the Southern Rhodesian Government are all dead.

It is believed the cold weather killed them. The first stingless bees ever brought to Europe alive travelled 8,000 miles by air in part of a tree trunk that was their natural home.

Blond Beauty From Italy

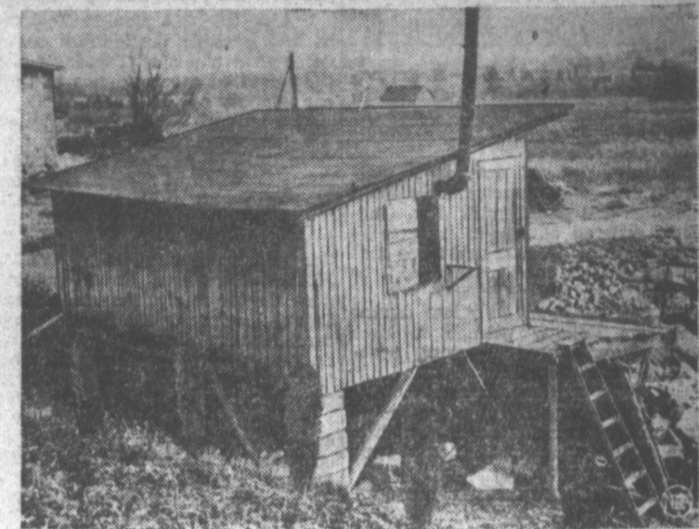

Rare as the old coins of Caesar is blond beauty in Italy. Isabella Miranda was a typist in Milan until a beauty contest started her to Hollywood. There for a year she has worked patiently perfecting her English. Now she is ready to star in "Hotel Imperial," in which she plays the part of a slavey. Honey-colored hair tops her luscious pink and white complexion.

CHILD BRIDE HONEYMOONS IN CHICKEN COOP

Thirteen-year-old high school freshman Frances Erb (left) joined the growing list of child brides when she eloped to Elkton, Md., with Robert Souder, 21, of Souderton, Pa. She was taken by her husband to a chicken coop "honeymoon cottage" (right) after their marriage.

Roosevelt Not Repudiated, Says Secretary Ickes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Secretary Ickes said today he saw a real possibility that the Democratic Party might draft President Roosevelt for a third term.

This possibility, he told his press conference, arose from what he called the confused issues of Tuesday's elections in which Republicans reduced Democratic majorities in Congress and won important state elections.

"Many Republicans," Ickes said, "outpromised the Democrats on liberal policies. How many Republicans, for instance, favored the Townsend plan?"

"People didn't swing Conservative in the election—it was the reaching out for economic security and in doing it voters frequently followed false gods."

"Liberal sentiment is as strong as ever if not even stronger. If President Roosevelt had run for re-election on Tuesday he would have been victorious."

"Despite all the newspapers say," he added, "you can't find any pattern to show repudiation of President Roosevelt's liberal policies. There were too many cross currents involving economic, religious and racial issues."

"Many candidates asked the electorate what the other fellow had promised and then offered to double it."

U. S. Will Not Be Invited To Parley For Arabs, Jews

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Britain's colonial secretary today refused to accept a suggestion that the United States be invited to attend the proposed conference between Arab and Jewish leaders over the future of Palestine.

Malcolm MacDonald, secretary for colonies and for dominions, said in the House of Commons that the British government was in communication with Egypt, Iraq, Syria, Yemen and Transjordan—Palestine's Arab-inhabited neighbors—about the conference.

"But when Major Harry Lewis Nathan, opposition Laborite, pointed out that the United States had a contractual interest in Palestine and asked if this was not grounds for inviting the United States, MacDonald disagreed."

"If we should start on that it would be very difficult to know where to draw the line," said the colonial secretary.

September Car Sales Gain 8.7 Over August

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—Sales of new automobiles in September increased 8.7 per cent over those of the preceding month, but slumped 40.1 per cent under sales in September, 1937, the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas reported today.

They will return to Canada before beginning their homeward voyage.

Quintuplets Feel Fine Soon After Operations

CALLANDER, Ont., Nov. 11—(Canadian Press)—The Dionne quintuplets felt so well just 24 hours after their tonsils and adenoids were removed that their nurses had to prevent them from getting out of their beds and romping in the nursery as usual.

Dr. Allan R. Dafoe said the children were in excellent condition.

Tom Mooney Will Wait Before He Shouts For Joy

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Nov. 11 (AP)—Broadly smiling, Tom Mooney went about his person routine as a hospital orderly today with new hope of freedom through a pardon by California's Democratic Governor-Elect, Culbert L. Olson.

But he has hoped many times before, in the 22 years he has been in prison after conviction of the 1916 preparedness day bombing outrage in San Francisco.

The gray-haired, gray-garbed prisoner said he thought he would wait until he saw the prison gates actually shut behind him before doing any "shouting for joy."

Japs Must Borrow, Says British Tycoon

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—Sir Victor Sassoon, British financier who has been called "the man who owns half of Shanghai," said today that the Japanese, needing capital, would have to make terms with the United States and Great Britain if they were to carry on.

"The Japanese are like a man starting business without capital," said Sir Victor.

"They poured millions into Manchukuo and got nothing. They will not get American and British capital unless we are assured of a square deal."

History On A Lamp Post

Administrative officers of River Rouge, Mich., are writing history in letters six inches high. For six inches is the height of the letters on the new street signs which are being installed on street corners in the suburb adjacent to Detroit.

Tradition in most American cities—and it holds true here in Pampa, where it's even difficult for a native to find his way around—has always demanded that street signs be as inconspicuous as possible and that they be tucked away in leafy bowers where it would be impossible for an individual of less than 20 years' residence in the neighborhood to find them.

While the background of the tradition is lost to history it probably dates back to the earliest cities on the new continent when concealing the street signs was a necessity to prevent the Indians from stealing them. As the Indian gradually disappeared from the scene, college boys came to fill their places as a menace to street signs.

So while honest burghers away from their own domicile have wandered in deepest gloom, asking their way of other wayfarers equally bewildered, street signs have blushed unnoticed and unseen in their places of concealment. River Rouge has broken with a fine old custom of America and news of a raid by Indians would be no surprise.

Community Spirit

Sport, a brown and white beagle hound, who got lost and fell in a rocky cavern near his home at Spelter Mountain in the northern Alleghenys of West Virginia, has been well described as a community dog.

He disappeared two weeks ago and his friendly yelp was not missed for a day for Sport was a dog of the trail and he would frequently go hunting alone if none of the 350 residents of Spelter elected to take him hunting.

Howard Walls, his 19-year-old master, finally found the dog caught in a rocky cavern and returning to Spelter spread the word that some 10 ton of rock would have to be moved to free the little fellow. That's a lot of rock for one beagle hound even in West Virginia.

Mrs. Ethel Burton, who had raised Sport from a pup, volunteered to buy dynamite with her savings and the whole community went to work. Grimy men, worried women and silent children scrambled over the rocky pathway together to lend a hand in Sport's rescue.

Sport had planted real community spirit in what had been a few hundred individuals living together in a mountain village.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER Pampa News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—At the time the utilities industry seems to be just edging out of the woods after three years of executive punishment, it may be enlightening to point to another industry which, wise about courting public favor, has spent the last three years with very little public spanking. It is the liquor industry.

The present alcohol control act was passed in 1936—the same year as the public utility holding company act. In only a few cases has it been carried into court. Of some 3,000 violations, only two or three hundred ever got publicity. In no instance did the fanfare over a liquor administration case compare with the excitement stirred up over the utilities "death sentence" litigation.

HAS OWN WHIPPING POST

The alcohol control law provides its own whipping post for recalcitrant liquor interests but with rare exceptions the whipping is administered in private.

The alcohol administration, itself educated by an effort to operate under the NIRA codes, largely wrote its own bill and it was passed by congress with little change. Part of it was modeled after earlier income tax procedure followed by the treasury.

Under the system, most violations of liquor control regulations may be quietly compromised between the government and the offending operator, in the same way as certain income tax delinquencies. It saves embarrassment to the industry and to the individual liquor operator, and gives the administration a tool for control with which it seems well satisfied.

Suppose Joe Doakes is a representative in Indiana and Illinois for the Spivis Hot-Mix Cocktail company. He is introducing a new line of liquor and finds the going tough. So he suggests to a few wholesalers that he will pay their salesmen $1 a case bonus to push hot-mix cocktails.

Sales speed up. As usual, however, some other company learns what is going on and complains to the administration. Bonuses are illegal. The administration hauls the Hot-Mix company on the carpet.

THERE'S A RECKONING

If the Hot-Mix company can demonstrate that Joe Doakes paid the illegal bonus without any authority from the head office, the penalty may be light. It usually isn't levied as a flat fine. The company is advised by letter that due to the non-willful nature of its violation the administration will accept a compromise. It points out that another company in a similar fix squared itself by paying $250 into the treasury.

Not all get off that easy. Where the company willfully violates the law by an illegal plan of advertising, or faking labels, or like evils, it is pretty

BY THEIR PROMOTERS YE SHALL KNOW THEM

In Roosevelt's speech Friday night, he made one statement that is absolutely true. He said, in talking about the supporters of candidates and how you should judge them, "By their promoters ye shall know them."

And we shall know Roosevelt by the promoters who support him. We shall know him by John Lewis, by Harry Bridges, by Madam Perkins, by Harry Hopkins, by Governor Murphy of Michigan. These men are all opposed to the free enterprise system. These men never created jobs. These men never hire labor and pay them more than anyone else will pay them and sell their product to benefit their customers. These men destroy. These men sell envy, hate and covetness—exactly what Roosevelt does.

Roosevelt never employed labor and paid it more than it could get working for any other private citizen. Roosevelt never created a service and lowered the cost of living to the people by selling it for less than other firms sold it. Roosevelt believes we can have more by regimentation, by the state eliminating the right of an individual to work for the private employer who will pay him most. Roosevelt wants the state, through his appointees, to be able to tell every individual where he shall work and for what price. He is a Tory and a reactionary of the worst type. Yet, he claims to be a liberal. Liberty means exactly what it says—the right to make decisions without interference from the state or coercion from others.

JAPAN'S POWER

As we remember the prediction made by Oswald Spengler, the great German historian, in his book, "The Hour of Decision," printed in 1922, in which he said he did not know whether the yellow, white or black race would predominate, a statement made by Benjamin De Casseres, on the Japanese situation is indicative that Spengler had great foresight.

De Casseres says: "The spotlight in the East turns to Canton and the British Island possession of Hongkong."

"Canton is only 80 miles from Hongkong, less than the distance between New York and Philadelphia. Nearly all the export trade of Canton is cleared through Hongkong, one of the five great commercial ports of the world."

"It is said that Japan moved into the Hongkong-Canton sector because she is convinced England will not fight."

"Czechoslovakia is not Hongkong. The latter is the key to the British empire."

"If Japan steps on Hongkong, we shall see that which no Chamberlain or Daladier can stave off—a world war."

If Japan steps on Hongkong and brings about a conflict with England and France, something very serious has been started.

Few people realize the power that Japan has gained in the last six weeks.

The Nation's Press

BUSINESS AND THE PUBLIC (New York Herald-Tribune)

The pendulum of public sentiment, which swung sharply against the business man during the depression of the early '30s, has recently been swinging in the other direction, according to Dr. George Gallup, writing in the magazine "Banking" for November.

The change began to manifest itself markedly, Dr. Gallup laments, when the sit-down strikes began last year. This new weapon of labor, he finds, proved to be extremely unpopular with the masses, and induced an immediate reaction against the militant type of labor union, fostered by labor-minded political reformers. Back in 1933, Dr. Gallup points out, the watchword of politics was "regulation of business." Today he discerns "a growing sentiment for removing many of the restrictions on business." Indeed, one of the principal responses of the public recently whenever it has been polled on what should be done to expedite recovery, has been: "Let business alone, cut out government interference."

There is little doubt that the overzealous methods of John L. Lewis and his unions, which were ultimately to aggravate seriously what might otherwise have been merely a normal business recession, alienated public sympathy on a large scale. But obviously this was, at most, but one of a large number of influences which have been at work, before and since, making for a reorientation of public opinion. Certainly, the beginning of the change goes back at least as far as the invalidation of the N. R. A. in 1935. The country, it will be recalled, had been warned, day in and day out, by Washington that if the N. R. A. were abandoned the national economy would collapse. Accordingly, there was much head shaking when the Supreme Court declared the Blue Eagle unconstitutional. It came as a mild shock to many—though not to business men—that, instead of marking the beginning of a fresh relapse, the removal of the restrictions of the N. R. A. was the signal for the first genuine economic recovery since 1929.

In the three years since the invalidation of the national recovery act the public has learned many other lessons which must have tended to moderate its hostility toward business and to increase its distrust of politicians. Those that come most readily to mind have been: The repeated broken promises of Washington; The administration's abject failure despite the squandering of billions of dollars, to make any serious impression on the country's two principal economic problems, agriculture and industrial employment, the flagrant "tammanyizing" of national politics (as witnessed in the recent "purge" campaign of the President), and, finally, the persistent and high-handed efforts of the New Deal government to extend its political, judicial and economic powers beyond the confines established by the Constitution and by American tradition.

There is no doubt that many of the business and financial reforms enacted in the last five years were long overdue. But it is not surprising that the public, in the light of its experience of the last five years, has come to appreciate that reforming business is one thing and emasculating it quite another.

likely to be publicly cited. Very few lose permits but two score or more have been suspended. A suspension of 90 days might put an operator out of business.

The amount of the fine is never published. One $10,000 fine was collected in 1936, and a few $5,000 fines have been taken since. Collections for 1937 fiscal years were $14,525 and climbed to $44,316 for the 1938 fiscal year ending last July.

Lately the number of "compromise penalties" has decreased but the few levied have become stiffer. The administration explains simply that in the early months of the act a period of education was allowed. During the past year or so it has been getting harder and harder.

ARMISTICE DAY — AND LOST IN A CAVE

Around Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It has happened at last. The stage has taken a trick from the screen. And a very clever trick it is.

Nothing like "Soliloquy" has ever happened before in the theater. This is strange, because the facilities for such a play have been at hand for some years now. A chap named Victor Victor (or Victor twice, if you prefer) saw those facilities lying around and he wrote a play. So a lot of people are thinking, "Now, why didn't I think of that?"

"Soliloquy" represents a wedding of stage and talking screen. It's all acted, there before your very eyes, by a cast of 40 people, headed by John Beal (also of the movies) and John Beal's wife, Helen Craig (who since opening night here has had plenty of movie offers). But it's acted also by a regular movie sound truck, which supplies the hero's unspoken thoughts.

You'll think, at once, of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," in which all the characters' thoughts and feelings are written out in a book—what the show lasted night on to five hours. "Soliloquy" is different. Only one character thinks aloud (courtesy of the sound track). He keeps right on doing what he's doing while he's thinking, too. He does not pause and stare off into space disconcertingly, as they did in "Strange Interlude" while thinking out loud.

The result is highly interesting. When "Soliloquy" opens on Broadway, about two months hence, you'll learn from the Broadway reviews whether it's a good play by Broadway standards. We in Hollywood may be swayed a little in judgment by our interest in its method of presentation. We all liked it—but then we see so many movies. . . .

John Beal spent two days recording the character's "thoughts" on film, accurately timed to be audible only at the proper cues.

You'd think the possibilities of error, during a performance, would be appalling. If any player missed a cue, or blew a line, or made too much haste through a scene, the whole production might be thrown out of order. But they've guarded against that, first with letter-perfect rehearsals, more importantly with technical precautions.

The sound projector is above the rear of the stage, and below, constantly in attendance, sits a sound technician, script in hand. It's up to him to make the thoughts "walk" or "hurry" as the actual playing requires.

Beal's understudy has a voice like Beal's. Gwynlyn Ford stands by the technician—with more opportunities than the usual understudy. When "Soliloquy" opened in San Francisco, one of those terrifying first-night catastrophes struck. The sound track went "dead." But the audience didn't know it. The sound technician keeps a microphone handy, and Ford spoke Beal's "thoughts" directly into the mike through three scenes until the film was working again.

On Armistice day a columnist is supposed to write something about the war. . . . So today we want to tell you why Frank Culbertson never enjoys any Armistice day. This one has known Frank a long time as days go, but the other night at the high school play, "The Enemy," the tragic story of the war, was the first time Frank ever mentioned 1917 and 1918. It was the end of the second act of the play. The insane, shell-shocked soldier had just described the horrible death of his friend in the trenches. Frank went outside and smoked a cigaret. "How do you like the play?" this one asked him. "I don't think the World War veterans will like it—not that the play isn't good. It is; it's too good—but it will remind me of the war. I was there of too much. Especially this time of the year. You know Armistice day is Friday. Then we asked him where he was Nov. 11, 1918, and his eyes stared vacantly ahead for a moment before he spoke. He was with his regiment, on the Western Front. When news of the Armistice came he was dully happy. In the days just before the Armistice nearly all of his best friends were killed. Not all at once, but one at a time. They were the boys he trained with; he called across the ocean with; and went into the trenches with; they were more like brothers to him, and they were shot down in the days just before the Armistice. So you see Frank Culbertson has a good reason to be sad today, with the memory of those friends forever with him.

Yesteryear in The News

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY. Showing unexpected strength, the Panhandle Boy Scout troop came to the front and won the Adobe Walls council field day.

Playing their poorest brand of football of the season at a time when only their smashing offensive could have won, the Pampa Harvesters saw their ship of district championship hope sunk by the Perryton Rangers 17 to 7.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY. Although the annual Red Cross roll call was in reality just getting well under way, workers reported that more than 150 Pampans became members of the organization in one day.

Tickets for the proposed special train to Lubbock when the Harvesters were to meet the Lubbock Westerners were placed on sale at the office of the Board of City Development.

Methodists Have Hardened Arteries Declares Bishop

ATLANTA CITY, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—The world would be better off, says Bishop Charles Wesley Flint of Atlanta, "if a hurricane or earthquake could destroy all of our churches once a century."

"It would be a good thing to break up all the organizations in the local church—with the possible exception of the Ladies Aid—and start from scratch," he told the Methodist Episcopal Board of Bishops last night. "Religious denominations, political parties and governments all get hardening of the arteries."

How's Your Health?

By IAGO GILDSTON, M.D.

ELECTRICAL SHOCK. With the ever increasing use of electricity, the problem of electrical injuries likewise grows.

It is therefore desirable that we should understand the hazard of electrical shock and to know the importance of the proper first aid treatment to be administered following the break of contact between the sufferer and the electrical current.

Electrical injuries are essentially of two kinds, namely, burns and shock. Electrical burns are treated much like burns due to other heat sources. The individual who has suffered a burn requires immediate medical attention. The extent and severity of the injury cannot always be recognized from external evidences and we must guard against the danger of severe collapse.

As to electrical shock, a current of as little as 25 volts may produce fatal shock, provided the contact is good and the duration long enough.

Electric current passing through the animal body disrupts the rhythmic workings of the heart and lungs. The disruption results from disturbances caused by the electrical current in the central nervous system.

Because of the interference with circulation and respiration, the nervous system and other vital portions of the body suffer from a lack of oxygen. Death results from what is aptly called "internal suffocation." Such internal suffocation, however, can be overcome in a large number of instances by artificial respiration.

It is reported by one authority that in 479 cases of severe electrical shock 323 were successful resuscitated by the application of artificial respiration within a short time after the accident.

The paralysis of the vital centers induced by the electric current is not invariably permanent. If oxygen is supplied to these centers there is every probability of recovery. Artificial respiration must at times be carried on if necessary for as long as 8 to 12 hours. It should also be mentioned that legal electrocution must be differentiated from accidental contacts with electrical currents. In legal electrocution, because of the perfected contact and the intensity of the current, death results almost instantaneously.

Tex's Topics

By Tex DeWeese

Although endless columns have been written about the real and imaginary evils of "overemphasis" in college football, it took this queer, tragic case of the Dartmouth college hall-back to present the problem in its true light.

In this case, as you may recall, an intensely religious young student found it hard to square his career as a football star with his conscience. He dropped out of football, returned to it when a fuss was raised, then tried to end his dilemma by leaving college altogether and taking refuge with members of a religious cult. This act simply focused national publicity upon him, and made it all the harder for him to get the peace and quiet he seemed to be needing.

And his case is significant because it is not one that reflects discredit on the college authorities. Dartmouth is one of our most respected colleges. Its record in regard to "overemphasis" is certainly no worse than that of other schools in its class; on the whole, it is probably a good deal better. This lad was no bewildered young husky sent to college for the sake of his athletic talents; he was a sincere, intelligent student who became a member of the team simply because he enjoyed the game.

But somewhere along the line something worked a profound injustice. It was a very bad effect on the boy's whole life—wasn't anybody's fault. There isn't any villain in the piece. This lad simply got caught in the machinery of intercollegiate football and it did things to him. And that is where football as an institution is certainly to be answered for. As a game, it is a fine sport; collegiate rivalries are wholesome and stimulating; the game can well be a valuable feature of college life. But when the institution of football takes a bewildered boy, lifts him up so simply and without a fuss, as would have been the case if he had decided, say, to cut out bridge or poker.

Now the point of it all is that the resulting hullabaloo—which can so easily have a very bad effect on the boy's whole life—wasn't anybody's fault. There isn't any villain in the piece. This lad simply got caught in the machinery of intercollegiate football and it did things to him.

And that is where football as an institution is certainly to be answered for. But when the institution of football takes a bewildered boy, lifts him up so simply and without a fuss, as would have been the case if he had decided, say, to cut out bridge or poker.

It isn't fair to put young men under that kind of pressure. A lad who goes to school to prepare himself for life deserves a better break. When a game disrupts his whole preparation, the game has something to answer for.

How to Pay for War?

By ERNEST MINOR PATTERSON President, American Academy of Political and Social Science

Very few people take seriously the pronouncements from the British and German governments that they will settle future disputes by peaceful means. Nor is much attention being paid to proposals for more conference high up into the government. Instead we face a more intense effort in all countries for larger armies, navies and air forces.

This is evident even in the United States in spite of our isolation. Added appropriations for military purposes are being agitated and probably will be granted by Congress. Regardless of the amount swelled by these extra amounts as a few other items may be reduced, but the net result will probably be larger expenditures.

How shall this be financed? There will be the usual debate between those who favor "spreading the burden" between the present and the future by issuing bonds to be paid off later, and those who advocate a "pay-as-you-go" policy. Unfortunately the real issue is apt to be obscured by the slogan "Regardless of the decision reached we should understand the issue."

Viewed in one way we must pay the cost of armament by of anything else as we go along, assuming, of course, what is really the case, that the financing will be done entirely or nearly so within the United States. The government will need funds and will get them from its citizens, either through taxes or through bond issues. Any given citizen, e.g. John Doe, may furnish, say, $5,000. This is a deduction from his current income no matter whether he receives in exchange a tax receipt or a bond for $5,000 in either case he has $5,000 less. The same is true of all who contribute. We are not paying as we go.

If, instead of talking in monetary terms, we look at the materials and the labor involved, we find the same situation. They are a part of the current flow of goods and services that might otherwise be devoted to housing construction, to clothing, to amusements or to some other kind of spending or investment. Instead they are devoted to armaments. Again it will be observed that we cannot avoid paying as we go. The use of bond issues instead of taxes cannot do the impossible.

Bond issues merely mean that the government invites its citizens to give it paper rather than another promise to repay at a later date with interest in the meantime instead of tax receipts. Regardless of the amount swelled by these extra amounts as a few other items may be reduced, but the net result will probably be larger expenditures. How shall this be financed? There will be the usual debate between those who favor "spreading the burden" between the present and the future by issuing bonds to be paid off later, and those who advocate a "pay-as-you-go" policy. Unfortunately the real issue is apt to be obscured by the slogan "Regardless of the decision reached we should understand the issue."

Oil Production In 1937 Sets Record

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Bureau of Mines reported today that 1937 crude petroleum production set an all-time record of 1,279,160 barrels.

This was 179,473,000 or 16 per cent in excess of the previous record attained in 1936. Natural gasoline production virtually kept pace with crude oil production, rising 15 per cent to a total of 49,177,000 barrels.

Although Benzol production declined rapidly in the last quarter because of shutdowns in steel mills, the total for the year rose to 2,780,000 barrels from 2,502,000 in 1936.

SERIAL STORY LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE

CAST OF CHARACTERS JUDY A L C O T T - admiral's daughter, choice between two navy suitors...

You've just gotten in. You want to be with him. You feel as though he could have managed to stay with you. But I know better. In the Navy, no one counts. It's only duty—why, I've known men whose wives were in the hospitals, having babies—

CHAPTER V

She got into her car, and drove to the Coronado Hotel. She asked at the desk for Miss Hastings, and was told that her suite was on the fifth floor.

IT HADN'T been a matter of national emergency that night the Enterprise steamed out to sea, either. Just a routine flight. But Bill Bell had gone, and Diane had not whimpered. Judy's fingers closed up, and she said, "But it's duty. They were ordered to sea—no one has the choice of staying, do you see?"

The door was flung open. Marvel in gold satin pajamas, her red hair a fiery glory of curls, stood there. Her face was cold, unfriendly. Behind her, Judy saw a hotel maid folding a black cloud of tulle. An evening dress. There was an open steamer trunk, with a drawer pulled out, and clothes on the hangers.

Marvel said, "I understand well enough! Surely it's not a matter of life and death—not a matter of national emergency." Judy leaped to her feet. Her face was stinging with color, "I'm sorry I haven't succeeded in explaining to you," she said. "I'll go."

"Dwight telephoned me," Judy said, walking to a soft chair and sitting down. Marvel moved across the room, took the bench before the vanity table. Her reflection in the mirror made two redhaired, cold-faced girls whom Judy had to face.

Marvel's eyes were on Judy's face with a queer, steady scrutiny. Judy could feel the blood coming up in her cheeks. "Just what business is this of yours, anyway?" Marvel asked with deliberate rudeness.

Traffic Death Toll Battered By Red Cross

Pointing out that less than 50 years ago, the locomotive, canal boat, bicycle, and horses were common transportation carriers...

and permanent injuries taking such an enormous toll on the nation's thoroughfares. Rev. Boshen added that the teaching of first aid and the establishment of these emergency first aid stations along highways, was made possible by the annual memberships of millions of Americans who join the Red Cross each year between Armistice day and Thanksgiving...

Two decades ago highway accidents were mostly confined to runaway teams of horses. Rev. Boshen said, "but during the past year 39,500 persons lost their lives in highway accidents, while 1,360,000 persons were injured in collisions, over-turnings, and other unexpected happenings on national highways."

Both the personnel manning the fixed highway stations and those operating mobile units have received thorough training in all phases of first aid practices. Rev. Boshen said, "Regular and rigid inspection of stations are being constantly made, and those not maintaining high standards of equipment are being withdrawn. But we are being consoled, by the reports of accidents treated at these stations, that they are meeting a pressing need in all places where they have been established."

Rev. Boshen also pointed out that during the past year 296,028 certificates were issued to persons who have completed courses in first aid under qualified Red Cross instructors, and at the same time he said that since 1910, when the Red Cross first began teaching first aid, 1,725,466 certificates have been issued to persons completing the course and successfully passing rigid examinations.

The local chairman quoted Dr. Charles L. Seudder, a member of the committee on fractures of the American College of Surgeons, who said, "Our committee would cooperate with Red Cross chapters in training groups in fixed traction splinting methods and in establishing emergency highway stations everywhere possible."

"It is such cooperation from responsible agencies," Rev. Boshen said, "that is making it possible to cut the number of accident deaths."

Future Business Horizon Bright, Claims Roper

HOUSTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Business leaders should take their feet off the brake and put them on the accelerator, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said today as the nation's business advisory council went into its regular monthly meeting.

Optimistic over the outlook for business, the secretary said the council today would study the cotton and oil business, backbone of the rich Southwest's trade.

Facts collected by the Department of Commerce, supported by the studies of economists and business leaders, show the future business horizon to be more encouraging than it has been in months, the secretary said.

"The need now is for business leadership to shift from the brake to the accelerator," he said. "Greater progress for all can be translated into reality only in proportion to the amount of courage and foresight that is directed to existing opportunities."

"Significant of the soundness of our economic system is the success that resulted from the recent period of taking hold under difficulties that included foreign war tension."

A rebirth of "the courage and vision of the pioneers that prompted railroad building and the general development of our country" rather than timidity in the face of opportunity is needed by business today, the secretary said.

Approximately 70 national business leaders were present for the closed meeting.
