Local VFW planning Memorial Day service

By MARILYN POWERS
The Pampa News

A Memorial Day service will begin at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the Memorial Park adjacent to Freedom Museum USA, 600 N. Hobart.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1657 is hosting the event. A candlelight ceremony will honor the sacrifice and commitment of men and women who have fallen in defense of America.

"Without these brave Americans, no other holidays would be possible," said Kathleen Chaney of the VFW Ladies' Auxiliary.

Family members will have an opportunity to recognize their loved ones during the roll call of fallen soldiers.

"Last year, several people brought a photograph to share during this time," Chaney said.

The ceremony is free and open to the public. Those attending may bring lawn chairs to use.

"Active service men and women are urged to come and participate in this service and be recognized for their part in continuing to defend and honor what the United States represents to each of us and the world," Chaney said.

After rough start, triplets thriving at home with family

By JULIE ANN THOMPSON
The Pampa News

When expecting parents Ashley and Aaron Lindsey were told that Ashley's HCG levels were high, they prepared themselves for the possibility of twins. However, when the doctor scheduled their ultrasound, Ashley's pregnancy took an unexpected turn. Though Ashley had taken no fertility drugs, she was carrying triplets.

"All of the sudden the doctor said, 'Hey, what's that there?'" Aaron remembered with a laugh.

The Lindsey's immediately set about storing clothes and gathering information from friends, family and professionals and settled in for a difficult pregnancy.

"The first month is like being three months pregnant. It's more prenatal, more vitamins and ultrasounds every two weeks," Ashley said.

There were other complications. With triplets came the likelihood that the babies would arrive premature.

"We knew it was a risk that they'd be early," Ashley said.

In fact, the Lindsey girls, Serena Ruth, Hannah Grace and Savannah Skye, came 13 weeks early. Savannah's heart rate kept dropping while still in the womb and the doctor immediately scheduled an emergency C-section.

"It was pretty scary," Aaron said. "The survival rate for even one baby at that time was only 75 percent."

Serena came with a heart murmur, which Ashley also has. Savannah, however, was almost lost.

"They called us in the middle of the night and said we should get down to the hospital because it might be the last time we'd see Savannah," Ashley said.

Savannah was born with a stage two brain bleed. The couple said they must wait two years to find out if she'll have Cerebral Palsy ... but she survived. In all, the triplets spent three months in the hospital before they were allowed to come home.

"Hannah came home a week early, and I was okay with that," Ashley said. "Then when all three came home I didn't know what to do. I was getting 30 minutes of sleep between feedings."

Aaron works nights at United Supermarkets, leaving Ashley little time for rest.

"It's triple the work," Aaron said. "But when you love your kids you live for the chores. They sleep so much that feeding and changing times are chances to bond with them."

"I think it's fun," Ashley added.

To top things off, the Lindsey's also have an 11 month-old son, Dallas Aaron.

"He's doing really well. He gives his sisters lovin'," Aaron said. "We tell him they're his babies."

Luckily, the Lindseys have had plenty of help since the girls arrived. Prestige Autobody & Accessories and West Texas Landscape pitched in with 8,000 baby wipes, 3,000 diapers and an air conditioner. Their friends, family and even strangers have helped.

"We're trying to just take it one day at a time," Aaron said. "But all the help we've received has just been a blessing."

There will be a baby shower for the Lindseys at 6 p.m. June 2 at Calvary Baptist Church to which the public is invited. Selections are at Walmart and gifts can be dropped off at the church.

Idle American: Some facts about failure

Who'da thought it? Despite college graduation rates being lower than we'd like, over the long haul, a higher percentage of colleges than students have failed.

In Texas for every cornerstone at an institution still functioning, there are at least two gravestones marking others that failed.

Churches led the way in establishing colleges. There were a couple of dozen in operation before the publicly-supported Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas (now Texas A&M) and Alta Vista Agricultural College (now Prairie View A&M University) opened in 1876. (That's right - the Aggies didn't have any reason for big November bonfires until UT came along seven years later.)...

Someone said that church-related colleges were founded on the "four f's" - faith, friends, freshmen and funds. A few leaned far too heavily on faith, and despite gaining charters, either soon failed or were never opened.

Of 93 private colleges established between 1837 and 1900, only 22 were still in existence in 1992. Even these underwent mergers, changes of names/locations or mission revisions.

Weatherford College,

Don Newbury
Columnist

Texas' oldest continuously operating two-year school, had a curious beginning. ...

It opened as the Phoenix Masonic Lodge School.

The cornerstone, provided by the Granbury Masonic Lodge, was laid - belatedly - on July 5, 1869. The ceremony had been scheduled earlier, but on the 25-mile trek from Granbury, the Masons encountered a band of Indians. An unscheduled battle superseded the cornerstone placement.

Methodists bought the college in 1889, when Weatherford College was born. ...

Texas Christian University in Fort Worth has been in four locations including twice in Cowtown.

It was first a "private school seminary" operated for male and female students. It was founded by Addison and Randolph Clark, preacher brothers who were officers in the Confederacy during the Civil War. Their well-meaning father, proud of his sons, bought some land a few blocks away to expand the seminary. Unfortunately, "hell's half acre" - known for saloons, gambling halls and houses of prostitution - sprang up. About the same time, it was announced that the railroad was coming to Fort Worth. The Clarks, certain that the environment would corrupt their seminarians, pulled up stakes and moved to Thorp Spring in rural Hood County. It operated there for some 22 years - "five miles from any known sin."

When the school fell on hard times in 1896, it moved to Waco. A fire leveled the campus in 1910, when TCU was relocated to its current campus in Fort Worth. ...

Public institutions flourished after World War II, when enrollments started to skyrocket. Then, in the 1970's, two-year schools came of age. During much of this era, a new community college opened somewhere in the United States on the average of one per week. Before the end of the century, most Texas collegians of freshman and sophomore status were in two-year schools.

Among early critics of these schools was then Baylor President Abner McCall, a man never known to mince words. "If Pidcoke had a Chamber of Commerce, there'd be a junior college there," the late educator said. (Indeed, there were few rules at the time for establishing college districts. Pidcoke is a community about an hour's drive from Waco; and population there has stood at 30 for a long time.) ...

At one college a century or so ago, board members were determined to hire a strong, God-fearing leader for president.

During an interview, a board member asked what the candidate could tell them about the "widow's trick." The candidate responded, "I have no knowledge of such a trick."

He was ultimately hired, told later that he would NOT have been had he provided facts concerning the "widow's trick." Turns out it is a gambling term used in card games, and they didn't want a president who knew about such things. ...

Oh, there's a ton more interesting stuff about higher education institutions in Texas.

Most of them, I believe, are committed to goals admonished by Socrates, the philosopher who hoofed it around Greece saying important things some 400 years in advance of Christ's earthly arrival. "Whom do I call educated?" Socrates one day asked. "First, those who learn to manage well the circumstances they encounter day by day."

This remains a worthy goal. Society expects much from all levels of education - perhaps more than can be delivered. For public or private education to "work," some intangibles like civility, commitment, patience and values must prevail. Sometimes we have but a fingernail hold on such intangibles. ...

Texas Thoughts

By The Associated Press

A sample of editorial opinion around Texas:

■ May 15
The Dallas Morning News on housing aid:

President Bush says he wants Congress to aid homeowners who face foreclosure. But as House Democrats prepared to pass such a measure last week, Mr. Bush symbolically raised his veto pen.

We're weary of election year gamesmanship that places raw politics ahead of wise public policy. It's perplexing that Mr. Bush continues to send mixed signals about mortgage relief, supporting it in principle while also insisting that tax dollars shouldn't aid troubled lenders or homeowners. Likewise, we're just as displeased with congress-sional Democrats who are grandstanding as valiant defenders of Main Street against Wall Street.

Democrats in both houses are in a tug-of-war to see who can load up a measure with the most political goodies. And in the Senate, negotiators appear deadlocked on a plan.

While we'd prefer that lenders and borrowers work out their differences without putting taxpayer dollars on the line, there's far more at stake in this housing turmoil than the purity of free markets. One observer compared the crisis to a fire on a boat: You may not have started it, but you better step up and put it out before the boat sinks with you on it.

The House bill to allow the Federal Housing Administration to insure up to $300 billion in refinanced mortgages is sensible public policy especially given that the administration's voluntary program to encourage lenders and homeowners to work out new loan terms has fallen short of expectations.

Lenders are waiting to see what Congress and the president will do next before they take action. And while he's not endorsed the House plan, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Ben Bernanke has said expanding the FHA's authority to insure mortgages could prod lenders to work out new loan agreements with borrowers.

More Americans will face financial disaster and the housing crisis will deepen if this legislative impasse continues much longer. Congress and the president must get this right, and get it right now. URL: <http://www.dallas-news.com>

AgriPartner program a data resource

By KAY LEDBETTER
Extension News

AMARILLO — Ten years of gathering on-farm data through the Panhandle AgriPartner Program is complete, and the wealth of knowledge will take agriculture in this region into the future,

Texas AgriLife Extension Service leaders said.

The program was developed in 1998 by Dr. Bob Robinson of Canyon, then a regional AgriLife Extension director of agricultural and natural resources.

"It's been a great program," Robinson said, now assistant to the director of AgriLife Extension. "We've been able to acquire water data that no one else in the world has. This information will be very important for our area's future water planning."

The AgriPartner program utilized AgriLife Extension's infrastructure and partnered with private industry, universities, commodity groups and groundwater districts to provide information to growers during their crop production season, said Leon New, AgriLife Extension irrigation specialist in Amarillo.

Through the years, the data shows that the low-energy precision application center pivot and subsurface drip irrigation system efficiencies have continually increased crop production per inch of irrigation, New said.

Corn production averaged 342 pounds per inch of irrigation in 1998 and 708 pounds in 2007, with 507 pounds per inch averaged over the 10-year period, he said. Cotton averaged 69 pounds in 1998 and 235 pounds per inch in 2007, with 125 pounds per inch the 10-year average.

Ordie "Reggie" Jones, a 37-year career researcher with the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Agricultural Research Service, came out of retirement to coordinate the program, and five farm demonstration assistants were hired to collect the data from grower's fields.

"The whole program started as a method of transferring new technology to producers," Jones said. "We used demonstrations by progressive farmers to relay the latest improved cropping and irrigation practices."

A total of 650 on-farm field-size demonstrations on nine different irrigated and dryland crops were conducted over the 10-year period with about 450 producers on 71,000 acres in all Panhandle counties, he said.

"Producers learn from their neighbors," Jones said. "We would get innovative producers to conduct demonstrations and then the agents would host a turn-row meeting showing on the ground what can be done."

He said AgriPartners was doing cotton demonstrations in the North Panhandle when there was little cotton grown there.

"We showed cotton could be grown there," Jones said. "AgriPartners had a big hand in moving cotton north."

The demonstrations over the years concentrated on:

- Testing improved farming and irrigation practices, genetics and new technologies.

- Providing information on water use, crop development and growth to farmers and consultants.

- Studying, surveying and sampling for prevalent and potential pest problems (insects, diseases and weeds.)

- Gathering scientific information for use in the Texas High Plains

EvapoTranspiration weather station network and other agricultural modeling and prediction efforts.

Coordinated by AgriLife Extension specialists and county agents, the farm demonstration assistants visited the fields twice weekly to take measurements, Jones said.

The demonstration assistants recorded irrigation, rainfall and soil water using sensors installed at 1, 2 and 3 feet in the soil root zone. They also documented plant growth stage, insect presence, disease systems and other overall crop production potential and adversities, New said.

"That was the best outcome from the whole thing," he said.

"We determined the production per inch of water with those measurements (irrigation, rainfall and soil water). "What makes it unique is the measurement of soil water," New said. "Our people went into the field and got the data that really matters — we got the total water."

With the data, producers know they need 32 to 34 inches total water to grow corn here and about 24 inches for cotton, he said. Producers irrigate from April through September, but the systems cannot apply enough water to meet the crop needs during peak growth. So it is important to know how much soil water was banked the other six months of the year.

Some other special projects included sampling for wheat virus, determining how it was transmitted; bindweed mite distribution; corn smut and aflatoxin work; cotton seedling diseases; sampling greenbug insecticide resistance and the water district meter project, Jones said.

All the information generated through AgriPartners can be found on the Web at:

"The data and information on all crops provided to our producers has led to greater efficiency of production practices," Robinson said. "AgriLife Extension will be able to utilize this data as a foundation to build even more effective educational programs into the future."

The AgriPartner effort was supported by the Texas Wheat Producers Board, Texas Corn Producers Board, Texas Peanut Producers board, Texas Soybean Board, Cotton Inc., Texas Grain Sorghum Board, the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District, North Plains Groundwater District, High Plains Groundwater District, Collingsworth County Groundwater District, Warrick's Inc. and the Texas Water Development Board.

Ticket

The new Ticket to Work program rules:

- Include more beneficiaries under the Program. The population of individuals eligible for a Ticket is expanded to include beneficiaries who are expected to medically improve.

- Increase incentive payments for Employment Networks (ENs). The new rules modify the EN payment systems to create greater financial incentives for service providers to participate, which will improve beneficiary access to services and expand the pool of quality providers available to serve beneficiaries.

- Increase the value of the Ticket. The rules for Ticket assignment are changed to enable beneficiaries with disabilities to take advantage of a more effective combination of services from both State Vocational Rehabilitation agencies and ENs.

- Synergize efforts. The new rules promote better alignment of the Ticket to Work Program, the Work Incentives Planning and Assistance Program, the Protection and Advocacy for Beneficiaries of Social Security Program, and other Social Security work incentive initiatives.

"Thus far, the results of the Ticket to Work program have been less than everyone expected and clearly less than Congress intended," Commissioner Astrue said. "We need to monitor the results of today's regulation closely, but it is highly likely that Congress will need to revisit the statute in the next few years in order to achieve the goals that Congress intended."

In preparation for the new Ticket to Work program, Social Security is undertaking a major recruitment effort to increase the number of organizations functioning as ENs. Social Security also is initiating targeted outreach to promote the Program to more beneficiaries and to encourage their participation. In addition, Social Security is presenting at national and state conferences and bringing beneficiaries and ENs together at local Work Incentives Seminars (WISE events) throughout the country.

The Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999 established the Ticket to Work and Self-Sufficiency Program. The purpose of the Ticket to Work program is to expand the universe of service providers available to beneficiaries with disabilities who are seeking vocational rehabilitation, employment and related support services.

These service providers are available to assist beneficiaries in obtaining, regaining and maintaining self-supporting employment. Available in all 50 States and the US territories, the Ticket to Work program is an important component in a coordinated series of work incentives and initiatives that are designed to help overcome barriers to employment often experienced by beneficiaries with disabilities.

The final rule can be accessed through the Federal Register online at www.regulations.gov.

For general information about the Ticket to Work Program, visit Social Security's Web site. The Work S i t e : www.socialsecurity.gov/work.

Texas agriculture sets record

By BLAIR FANNIN
Extension News

COLLEGE STATION — Texas agricultural production for 2007 was a record $21.8 billion due to higher crop and livestock prices, according to a Texas AgriLife Extension Service report.

Add another $20.8 billion worth of purchased items, such as tires, fuel and other agribusiness supplies used to produce a crop, and the total economic impact to rural Texas tops $42.6 billion, said Dr. Carl Anderson, professor emeritus and AgriLife Extension economist.

"The economic impact to these rural communities is quite substantial, and even more so when you look at how much of an economic driver agriculture overall is to the state of Texas," said Anderson, who led the study.

The 2007 production mark topped the $16.9 billion recorded during the drought of 2006 and $18.4 billion recorded in 2005, Anderson said.

"Higher crop prices and strong livestock prices have contributed to a substantial increase in economic activities across the rural areas of Texas," Anderson said.

Increased demand for grain used in ethanol production pushed grain prices "up to the highest level in memory," Anderson said.

Crop values in 2007 totaled $10 billion — an increase of more than 50 percent from 2006, according to the annual AgriLife Extension survey of estimated agricultural production values for Texas counties.

"Crop yields, forage production and grazing conditions were excellent in 2007," Anderson said.

"Corn, grain sorghum, wheat and hay prices were up sharply, with cotton moderately higher."

The following are major crop values and those recording gains in excess of 100 percent for 2007:

- Wheat, $779 million — more than double in 2006.
- Corn, $1.1 billion.
- Sorghum, $818 billion.
- Hay production, $1.2 billion.

Values by commodity groups for 2007:

- Food grains totaled $889 million (an 87 percent increase).
- Feed crops totaled $3.3 billion (135 percent increase).
- All cotton (dryland, irrigated), $2.8 billion (a 51 percent increase).
- Oil crops totaled $206 million (59 percent gain).
- Vegetable crops totaled

$397 million (a 6 percent increase).

- Fruits and nuts totaled ($183 million (14 percent increase).

- Miscellaneous crops, $2.2 billion (11 percent increase).

- Nursery crops, $1.9 billion.

Meanwhile, livestock values increased 14 percent to $10 billion, matching 2007 crop values, Anderson said.

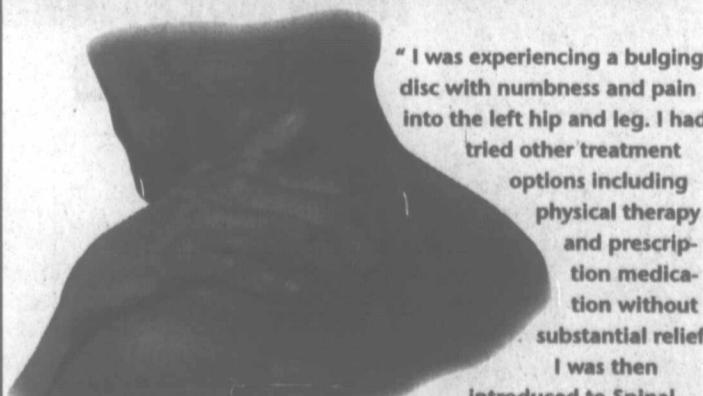

"The largest increase was 54 percent for $1.2 billion in milk sales," he said.

Poultry values rose 12 percent to $1.2 billion, while beef cattle totaled $7.1 billion (11 percent increase), according to the report.

Other meat animals (hogs, goats, sheep and other animals) rose to $375 million (2

Vijay K. Mohan, M.D.
 104 E. 30th • (806) 669-3303

Dear Patients,

After almost 30 years in Pampa, I have decided to limit my practice to office based procedures during certain days. I had to make this decision due to the fact that I will be joining the Amarillo V.A. Hospital as a General Surgeon starting July 2008.

I urge my patients who are desirous to obtain copies or request transfer of their records to contact the office as soon as possible at 669-3303.

I would like to use this opportunity to thank you for the trust and patronage over the years.

Sincerely,

percent increase) and livestock products of honey, mohair and wool declined 7 percent to $12.2 million.

Ag related activities (aquaculture, fishing, furs and pelts, horses, hunting leases, outdoor land-based recreation, timber, Christmas trees, and miscellaneous activities) advanced only 4 percent to $1.9 billion. Timber accounted for about 42 percent, hunting about 26 percent, horses around 18 percent, and other ag related about 14 percent.

Rural land as an investment continues to be a growing trend, Anderson said.

"Uses include weekend retreats, rural residences, outdoor recreation and part-time agricultural operations continue to be things we are seeing across the state," he said.

According to the first quarter 2008 survey of agricultural conditions by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, dryland crop values increased 20 percent from 2007 and irrigated land rose 15 percent and ranchland rose 11 percent, Anderson said.

"With increasing demand for food and fiber worldwide, agriculture is destined to play an even greater role in the future," Anderson said. "A large area of productive soils and excellent export and transportation facilities favor farming and ranching operations."

Wildlife management used to improve hunting income continued to expand over most rural areas of Texas.

"Land with quail, dove, turkey, pheasant, waterfowl, deer, wild hogs and nature trails for bird watching is in strong demand from non-farm owners," Anderson said.

Many ranchers have reduced or removed cows in favor of increasing the amount and quality of wildlife, he said.

West Texas A&M news & notes ...

Chase Tower Proposed Center approval by The Texas A&M University System Board of Site of WTAMU's Amarillo CANYON — Pending

Regents at its Friday, May 23 meeting in College Station, West Texas A&M University will have a new home away from home in downtown Amarillo. The proposed location is in Chase Tower, Amarillo's tallest building, at 600 S. Tyler. WTAMU will occupy the 10th and 11th floors.

Thirty-one selected upper-level and graduate classes will be conducted in the new facility beginning this fall.

"West Texas A&M University has had a long-standing relationship with Amarillo, but we are very excited to establish a more permanent and visible academic presence in the city,"

Dr. J. Patrick O'Brien, WTAMU president, said. "We want to play a major role in developing a better educated workforce and improved quality of life in the Amarillo community, and establishment of the WTAMU Amarillo Center is a major step in that direction."

West Texas A&M University will occupy the entire 10th and 11th floors of Chase Tower, approximately 20,500 square feet. Once renovated for WTAMU purposes, the facility will include nine high-tech classrooms, a computer lab, a student study and lounge area, four faculty offices, office space for a director and support staff, an executive office and conference room.

WTAMU's lease agreement is for five years, beginning Aug. 1. Renovation, utilities, security and parking are included in the rental rate.

The process of establishing an Amarillo Center started in May 2007 when the University contracted with MGT of America, Inc. to conduct a feasibility study. The firm examined occupational projections, student interests, and employer and community leader opinions and then identified strong potential employment demand.

Results, released at a media briefing at the Amarillo

Chamber of Commerce on Feb. 15, were overwhelmingly positive and suggested a downtown Amarillo location.

Next, University officials identified classes to be offered at the Amarillo Center in the fall. The majority are business and education courses; a complete listing is available by clicking on the Amarillo Center icon at www.wtamu.edu.

An advisory council has also been formed to provide recommendations for future directions involving the Amarillo Center. Members are:

— Eddie Bradley, owner of Auto Inc.

— Buzz David, president and CEO of Amarillo Economic Development Corporation

— Steve Jones, president of Amarillo College

— Bill Lardie, president of Anderson Merchandisers

— Frank Lopez, CEO/managing director of Northwest Texas Hospital

— Debra McCartt, mayor of Amarillo

— Alice O'Brien, 2008 Amarillo Woman of the Year and civic leader

— Gary Pitner, executive director of Panhandle Regional Planning Commission

— Rodney Ruthart, vice president of First United Bank

— Rod Schroder, superintendent of Amarillo Independent School District

— Eddie Scott, president of WTAMU Foundation and real estate developer

— Richard Ware, president of Amarillo National Bank

— Roger Williams, executive director and site leader of Bell Helicopter

— Ross Wilson, president and CEO of Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

Individuals interested in attending classes at the Amarillo Center may apply and register online at www.wtamu.edu.

Fall semester classes start Aug. 25.

"We've had a service-related presence in Amarillo for many years, and we're very excited to add a strong academic presence to the mix," Gary Barnes, vice president for business and finance, said. "It's good for West Texas A&M University and it's good for the greater Amarillo area."

Other physical locations operated by WTAMU in Amarillo are WTAMU Enterprise Center on N. Western St., Health Partners Clinic on S. Washington St., Small Business Development Center on S. Taylor St. and West Texas Family and Community Services office at the Tyler Street Resource Center on S. Tyler St. The University also manages approximately 12,000 acres of land about 10 miles north of the city, the Cross Bar Cooperative Management Area, for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

The fall offering of classes will not be an "opening," as much as a "resurrection"; West Texas A&M operated an Amarillo Center in a former home on Harrison Street from 1942-1961.

West Texas A&M's main campus, founded in 1910, is located in Canyon, 15 miles south of Amarillo. The University offers 60 undergraduate, 43 masters' and one Ph.D. (in agriculture) degree programs. According to final 2007 records, 7,502 students were enrolled at West Texas A&M University in the fall semester.

University officials are planning a ribbon cutting at the new center in August. The date has not yet been determined.

a significant boost from the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board (THECB).

The THECB has granted WTAMU authority to begin planning comprehensive undergraduate degrees programs in civil, electrical and environmental engineering.

WTAMU already offers a baccalaureate degree in mechanical engineering, a program that was launched at the University in 2003 and accredited in 2006 by ABET, the recognized accreditor for college and university programs in applied science, computing, engineering and technology.

Prior to implementation of the mechanical engineering program at WTAMU, Amarillo was the largest city in Texas that did not have a bachelor's degree in engineering offered within a 40-mile radius. The University filled that void with substantial support from the area business community and will plan programs in civil, electrical and environmental engineering with similar support.

"We are fortunate to have substantial community support for instituting additional engineering programs," Dr. James R. Clark, dean of the College of Agriculture, Science and Engineering, said. "The expertise of area engineers and the firms that employ engineers is invaluable as we plan curricula relevant to our area's needs."

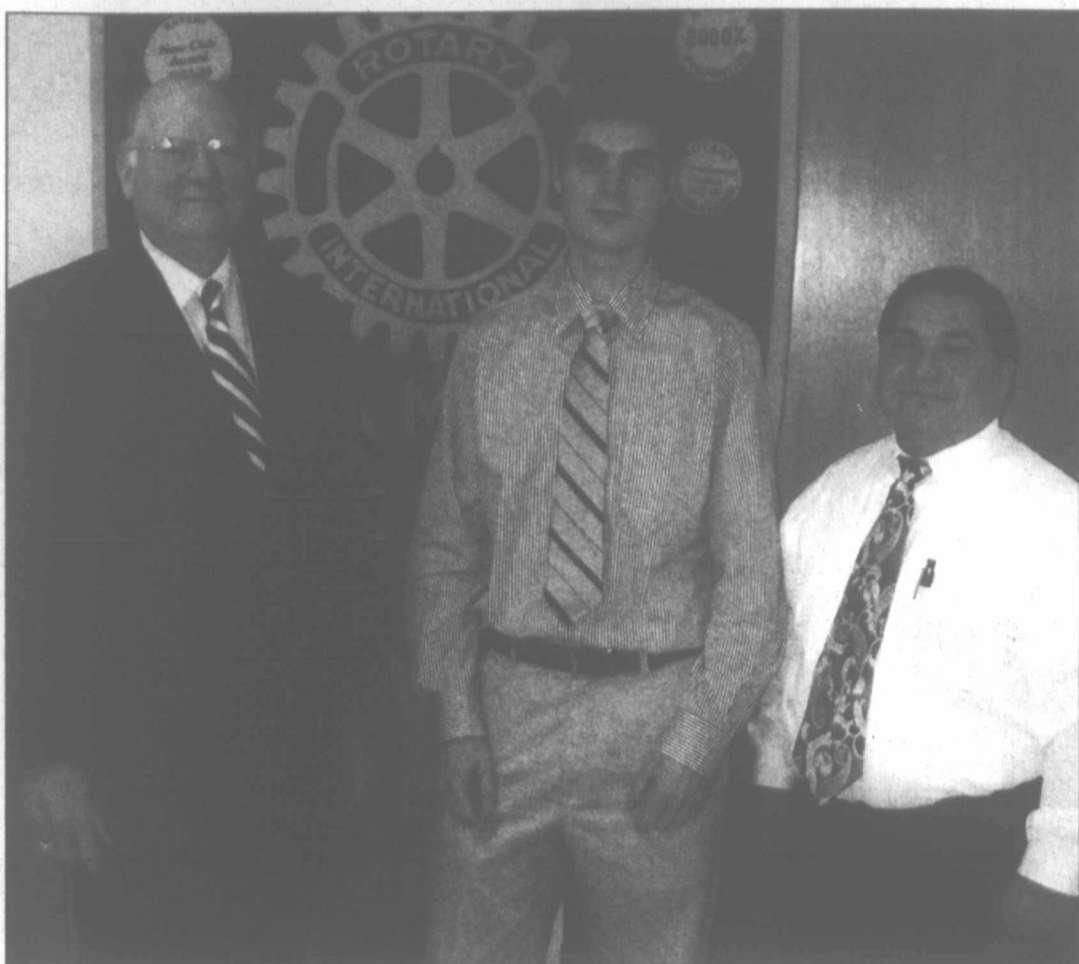

"It is clear that producing more engineers in additional areas of expertise is vital to our regional needs, and that is what we hope to accomplish at West Texas A&M."

Each of the new programs must be planned and authorized separately — usually a process requiring 12 to 14 months per program — and the University first will address civil engineering, Clark said. Each proposal must be presented separately to The Texas A&M University System Board of Regents for its approval and, ultimately, to THECB for final authorization.

Since it was launched at WTAMU, the mechanical engineering program has enjoyed rapid growth in enrollment, faculty research and internship opportunities. The curriculum features a broad-based mechanical engineering education with electives that enable students to focus in a variety of specialties. WTAMU students taking the Fundamentals of Engineering examination have a first-time pass rate of more than 90 percent, which is higher than the national average.

"This is exciting news. Receiving authority to plan these additional degrees, I believe, validates the success of our initial program in mechanical engineering as well as our commitment to the economic development of this region," Dr. Freddie Davis, head of the Department of Engineering and Computer Science, said. "We are pleased to be moving forward in the pursuit of additional programs."

If WTAMU's proposal for a program in civil engineering is approved by the Board of Regents and the THECB, it would probably be offered for the first time in 2010, Davis said. Environmental engineering would be the next program to be addressed, followed by electrical engineering.

Earthquake mutes protests of Beijing Olympics

BEIJING (AP) — China's deadly earthquake may have saved the Beijing Olympics.

Just a few weeks ago, International Olympic Committee President Jacques Rogge described the games as "in crisis." They were being battered by pro-Tibet protests, health concerns about Beijing's noxious pollution, and calls for boycotts tied to China's support for Sudan.

The May 12 earthquake changed everything.

"I'm sorry to say it, but this has turned things around," said Gerhard Heiberg, a member of the IOC's executive board member and its marketing director.

After the tragedy in Sichuan province, the games are now riding a wave of goodwill — a feeling that the government's propaganda machine had failed for months to generate.

Of course, 11 weeks remain before the Olympics begin on Aug. 8, and another unexpected event could change everything. Politics still loom, and some athletes are still expected to use the games to speak out on political issues like Darfur and Tibet.

"What the earthquake has done ... it has essentially pushed the coverage of the preparations for the Olympics to the margins, temporarily," said Phelim Kine, Hong-Kong based Asia researcher for Human Rights Watch. "But that coverage and focus will quickly return in the days and weeks ahead."

"The media will move on from this immediate focus on the humanitarian tragedy in Sichuan, and there will be space for other stories and other coverage," he said.

At a track and field event that opened Thursday at the 91,000-seat National Stadium — the games' centerpiece known as the "Bird's Nest" — donation boxes for quake victims dotted the venue, and people were using them.

Activist groups grudgingly acknowledge that China's state-controlled media — by allowing uncharacteristic openness in 24-hour earthquake coverage — have shaped the news agenda and gained sympathy for a catastrophe that has killed more than 55,000 people. Instead of criticism, China is receiving wide-ranging praise for its quick earthquake response.

Known for its secrecy, the government has let earthquake coverage flow more freely, with less censorship in an era of quick-moving text messages and the Internet.

State-controlled China Central Television has produced nonstop coverage of the disaster. The government initially allowed more aggressive news reporting, most dealing with the government's rapid response, heroic rescues and grieving.

"Maybe the Chinese government hasn't had time to think about it, but later it may come to realize that, compared with the state-controlled media, the words from the ordinary people at the grass roots are more convincing and influential," said Luo Qing, who teaches at Beijing's Communication University of China.

Hoping to carry the momentum into August, the government has sent high-profile former Olympic gold medalists Gao Ming (diving), Yang Yang (speedskating) and Deng Yaping (table tennis) into Sichuan province to boost the morale for thousands of orphaned children surviving in tents.

Trained in China's high-powered sports schools, the superstars have also shown formidable psychological skill, visiting the injured in field hospitals, or leading pep rallies for those displaced people taking shelter in tented camps.

"We really don't see that we have been outmaneuvered by the government," said Matt Whitticase, a spokesman for the Free Tibet Campaign. "Obviously, the earthquake has been awful, an act of God that no one could have predicted."

Other Olympics have been run principally by the host city. The Beijing Olympics are directed by China's communist government, and they've been designed to be colossal — a statement about the country's rising economic power.

IOC officials met this week in Beijing and entertained ideas about some kind earthquake commemoration during the opening ceremony. Athletes and citizens seem to favor it. One such commemoration took place at the 2002 Salt Lake City Olympics when the flag from the World Trade Center was displayed.

"The protocol for an IOC ceremony is very strict and formal, and it has to be," said Kevan Gosper, a senior IOC member and vice chairman of the IOC coordination commission, which works with the Beijing organizers. "On such an issue that has affected a host country, I believe that the president of the IOC would have a very open mind and listen to the advice coming from Beijing organizers."

He said an eventual tribute would have to be agreed to by the IOC and local organizers.

Gosper said China's earthquake disaster may be recognized during the opening ceremony, but he cautioned that the IOC "in principle tried to avoid ceremonial events referring to tragedies around the world." He said there were too many, and some group always feels left out.

Beijing organizers have declined to talk openly about specific changes they might make to the Olympics. Several top organizing officials declined interviews on the subject, but newspaper editorials and bloggers have been suggesting that a commemoration for the dead would help set the tone for the 17-day games. Some have even suggested that a quake survivor should light the Olympic cauldron on Aug. 8.

"I think it would be great if there were some program about the earthquake during the opening ceremony," said Mo Yingbin, a speaking on the street in central Shanghai.

Rangers broadcaster Grieve having surgery

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers television analyst Tom Grieve, who was also a player and general manager in the organization, will undergo prostate surgery next month.

Grieve will broadcast the team's games through June 8, a day before his scheduled surgery. He expects to be out of the booth for two to three weeks after surgery.

"Many men my age find themselves in this situation," said Grieve, 60. "I am told the odds for a complete recovery are very good. I have complete confidence in my doctors, and have every expectation of being back in the booth two to three weeks after surgery. While I'm out, I'll be watching every inning of every game."

Grieve has served as the TV analyst on Rangers broadcasts for 14 years. He was the team's general manager from 1984-94.

As a player, Grieve was picked in the first round of the 1966 draft by the Washington Senators. He made his major league debut with the Senators in 1970, and was with the franchise when it moved to Texas in 1972. He played with the Rangers through 1977.

While Grieve is out, radio analyst Victor Rojas will move into the TV booth with Josh Lewin. Former major league pitcher Steve Busby, who does pregame and postgame work for the team's TV broadcasts, will join Eric Nadel in the radio booth.

Minor league player traded for 10 bats

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Even though small independent baseball leagues notoriously try to draw fans with promotions like "vasectomy night" and "midget wrestling," these two teams had good reason to swap a right-handed pitcher for 10 bats.

The Calgary Vipers of the Golden Baseball League couldn't get newly signed pitcher John Odom into Canada for immigration reasons. And the Laredo Broncos of the United League were willing to take a cheap gamble on a pitcher.

Oh, and the Vipers really, really wanted some new bats. And so Odom, about a month after being acquired by a Canadian team, found himself Tuesday on the roster of a team on the Mexican border. All for the price of 10 Prairie Sticks Maple Bats, double-dipped black 34-inch C243 style.

"They just wanted some bats, good bats — maple bats," Broncos General Manager Jose Melendez said Friday. According to the Prairie Sticks Web site, their maple bats retail for $69 a piece, discounted to $65.50 for purchases of six to 11 bats.

The Vipers had signed Odom, but it seems Odom had a "minor," but unspecified, criminal record that he did not reveal to immigration officials before they scanned his passport, Vipers President Peter Young said.

Calgary found the Broncos were willing to take Odom, but the Vipers weren't interested in any of the Laredo players. Plus, it would have cost Calgary $1,000 to fly any new player in from Laredo. Laredo offered cash, but Young said that was "an insult."

The bat trade wasn't the first time Calgary tried some creative deal-making. The Vipers once tried to acquire a pitcher for 1,500 blue seats when they were renovating their field, Young said.

As for Odom — who did not immediately return a call for comment — he's scheduled to be activated Monday. And he'll get his first start Wednesday, Melendez said.

"It will be interesting to see what 10 bats gets us," he said.

'Pacman' Jones paying Las Vegas gambling debt

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Adam "Pacman" Jones intends to pay a $20,000 gambling debt to a Las Vegas casino to settle a criminal complaint alleging the suspended NFL player wrote three bad checks.

"We'll pay the bill today and there's not going to be a warrant," lawyer Manny Arora told The Associated Press by phone. "We're going to send a check today."

Court documents filed Friday in Las Vegas Justice Court show Clark County District Attorney David Roger is seeking a felony arrest warrant for the 24-year-old player unless he pays a bill totaling $24,675. The extra $4,675, which Arora says his client will pay, is for the district attorney's processing fees and penalties.

A clerk for Las Vegas Justice of the Peace Joe M. Bonaventure said the warrant would be offered for the judge's signature Wednesday.

Arora acknowledged that Jones owes the money cited in a criminal complaint, but said he had been quietly trying to arrange payment.

"We were talking to the DA and trying to work out an arrangement," Arora said. "It's a debt that's out there. We're going to pay it."

The complaint alleges Jones wrote two bad checks for $5,000 and one for $10,000 last Sept. 3 at Caesars Palace. It was first reported by the Las Vegas Sun.

Gary Thompson, a spokesman for resort owner Harrah's Entertainment Inc.

declined comment, citing "standard practice in legal matters."

The NFL has no policy against players gambling in casinos, as long as they do not wager on NFL games. However, the league is scrutinizing the actions of Jones, who was indefinitely suspended last season by commissioner Roger Goodell. Jones recently was traded from the Tennessee Titans to the Dallas Cowboys.

"We're aware of it and we are looking into it," league spokesman Greg Aiello said Friday.

Arora said Jones, a star cornerback who has been arrested six times since being selected sixth in the 2005 NFL draft, has not been paid since his suspension in March 2007 and has been "moving assets around" to pay bills.

Jones had been scheduled for a base salary of $1.74 million in 2008 and had been under contract through 2009 before his suspension.

The trip to Caesars came while Jones was shadowed by felony coercion charges for his role in a strip club triple shooting that left a man paralyzed in Las Vegas in February 2007.

Jones pleaded no contest Dec. 6 to conspiracy to commit disorderly conduct in a deal that reduced two felony charges of coercion stemming from the strip club shooting. The coercion charges each carried a possible sentence of one to six years in prison.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Robby," and I are having an argument about my teenage diary. About seven years ago, I discovered that Robby had been keeping a lot of photos and letters from his exes in boxes. I wanted him to throw them out and have continued to press the subject. His excuse has been that he "doesn't have time." Last week when I brought it up, Robby went into our bedroom, took out my old diary and said it was the same thing as the box of letters. He insisted I should throw it out because it contains entries about exes and sexual experiences. I don't think it's the same thing. Robby took it anyway. I am heartsick that I no longer have my diary. I don't know how to make Robby understand that the book is a part of me. I don't keep it to read about my exes. I keep it for the information about family members, friends and the thoughts I recorded as a teenager. Abby, I kept that diary from my freshman year of high school until the first weeks I started dating Robby. What can I do? -- SENTIMENTAL IN SAN ANTONIO

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: The first thing to do is recognize that your husband has a valid point. Next, offer to declare a truce on the subject of mementos of times gone by. Then ask him to return your diary. P.S. If Robby has already disposed of it, then his photos and letters should go, too. However, I have a hunch he is still holding onto it and is trying to teach you a lesson in fairness.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when someone is just plain rude? I'm talking about someone who cuts in front of you in line, or someone who says something nasty about you, not knowing that his voice carried to you? -- ADVOCATE FOR KINDNESS

DEAR KINDNESS ADVOCATE: When someone cuts in front of you in line, you have two choices: passively accept the situation, or speak up and tell the person firmly, but politely, that you were there first, and the line starts in the rear. If someone says something nasty about you within earshot, you have two choices: ignore the boor, or say, "I heard that!" I recommend the former.

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago, while we were sitting in church, my partner, "Roy," began chatting with someone seated next to him. At one point, the person reached out and patted the top of Roy's thigh. Later, Roy and I discussed whether this gesture could be considered flirting -- or was it like a pat on the back. A few days ago, I was shocked to see my own mother do the same thing to a married male friend. Is this an appropriate gesture, or does it depend on the level of friendship or location on the thigh? -- TAKEN ABACK IN BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR TAKEN ABACK: Some people are "touchers" and mean nothing more by it than establishing contact when they reach out. Others are lechers. Much depends upon who is doing the touching, and who is doing the interpreting.

Grilling tips

Heat up your cookout without breaking a sweat

(NAPSA) — Cooking for a weekend outing, everyday dining or even a seasonal party doesn't have to be difficult or time consuming. Make meals a breeze by heading to the backyard to fire up the grill. Cookout favorites such as chicken, steak and chops make a fast dish, especially when you pair them with a convenient and tasty side.

"It's easy to impress guests without a lot of fuss in the kitchen," says Rick Browne, grilling guru and host of the PBS show "Barbecue America." "Keep your pantry stocked with quick side dishes such as Bush's new Grillin' Beans. They cook in minutes and have bold flavors, thick rich sauces and extra ingredients, like bell peppers and onions, for an easy and delicious one-step side."

Make sure to have new herbs and spices on hand as well. Take time to clean out and replenish items on your spice rack and experiment with a few unique flavors. Offer guests a new recipe, such as Sweet and Savory Cider Chicken, which features a marinade and rub made with dried savory, paprika and dried yellow mustard, among other seasonings.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, May 25, 2008:

You are goal-driven, especially when the topic is family and long-term security. Examine what you need to do with others. Have you been fair in your communication and judgments? Your style of communicating is about to be updated, perhaps creating a different message. If you are single, you will meet people easily. Others see your wit and charm. 2009 could be important. If you are attached, talk and share more. Let go of prior judgments, for everyone's well-being. LEO loves to brainstorm.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Finally, you feel different, as if you have a new lease on life. You revise your thinking and let go of a prior heaviness. You could be conflicted as to which way to head on a personal matter. Follow your heart. Tonight: Say yes to friendship.

This Week: If you go into work, you will slam the door and want to be alone. Knowing this, should you go into work?

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

You feel as if you are in the thick of things. How could you not, as people seem to come to you for advice, help or even for relief from their responsibilities? You could get tired of this role in a few days. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

This Week: Tuesday, think "goals." You can make them happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Take off, whether it is for a blues jam session or meeting a friend at some exotic spot. You need to recharge your batteries, and you will in a different setting. Avoid a situation where you could get triggered. Tonight: Go for very different.

This Week: Don your responsibility outfit Tuesday. Clearly you must take charge.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, May 26, 2008:

Make the most of the opportunities that present themselves this year. Several options easily could be replays of past offers, but with time and insight you will understand just how valuable they might be. Travel, education and a new perspective open you up to many very special experiences. If you are single, very different people enter your life. You also see yourself differently as a result of feedback. If you are attached, let your partner choose your vacation this year, or perhaps work toward a special goal together. CAPRICORN can give you quite an education on different perspectives!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Relax on the unofficial first day of summer. Confusion surrounds plans; confirm what you think is going on. Also, don't be surprised when people turn up out of the blue. Old friends appear in the next few weeks, but plans easily could fall apart. Tonight: Surround yourself with friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Plans change at the last minute. You could be tossed into a tizzy or realize you are working with the inevitable. Double-check that you get the right change back. Verify that a bill is really yours in the next few weeks. Tonight: Obviously, you can control only yourself. Relax.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Your ruler goes retrograde. What you believed was a true vision might not be. Travel and communication might be

A partner assumes an even more dominant role than in the past. How you deal with an emotional relationship reflects who you are. Be careful: You could act out by overspending. That behavior might take the edge off. Tonight: Go with another's suggestion.

This Week: With new eyes, look at your life. Your choices could be very different.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Others could be challenging, but you are more sensitive than usual. You could become defensive out of the blue! A remark that someone makes could stick in your craw. Be smart and walk away from confrontation. Tonight: Out and about. Go for the lovable Lion.

This Week: A partner dominates. Be smart: Don't fight city hall.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Stay cool on the outside, even if you cannot calm down inside. You are dealing with unusual anger or frustration. Perhaps the way you have handled these difficult feelings isn't working. Slowly opt for another method. Try for better communication and feeling better. Tonight: Perhaps a chat.

This Week: Others challenge you. How you accept other points of view could determine a lot.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Whether invited or not, find your friends. Certainly don't even consider resting and being alone on this Sunday. What you decide to do could be contagious, as others cannot help but want to join you. Tonight: The more the merrier.

This Week: Others want your attention. Know that certain demands must be met first.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Your authority cannot be questioned. Whether bringing friends together or visiting with your pals, you seem to be the natural leader. Ask yourself if you might be tired of this role. If so, consider letting go more often. Tonight: Up late.

This Week: You might want to rethink a creative endeavor. If it doesn't feel right, readjust or end your involvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Double-check flights and meetings. Others mean well but might not be on the same page as you. Tonight: Where there is music.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Teamwork will get you far. Relax and loosen up when faced with challenges. Try not to team up with someone, even if you feel it is going to be OK. Socialize at a party, but don't let your fears take over. The lighter you are, the more easily your life will flow. Tonight: Observe rather than react.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Others dominate and add a level of confusion. The revolving door of people keeps moving all day. Try to stay even and relaxed no matter what occurs. Loosen up in your dealings with friends. Expect a blast from the past in the near future. Tonight: Celebrate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Even with the best of intentions, you could discover that others are like water — they seem to slip away. In the same context, people appear with the same smoothness. Take time to enjoy a child. Tonight: Relax with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

You are full of yourself. If you can relax and go with the flow, you will have no problems. Know that if someone is upset or misunderstands you, you might need to clarify. Know where you are coming from. Tonight: Happy close to home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Your words add music to someone else's thoughts. Visit with friends or just throw a Memorial Day get-together at your place. Stop and catch up on others' news. Walk away from the rat race. Make sure someone gets the gist of your thoughts. Tonight: Go with the moment.

Treat yourself to a day trip if possible. Some of you might visit with a friend who is a trip. It is important to let your mind wander. Visit new territory, where you will revive your ideas. Tonight: Follow the music.

This Week: If you can stay out of work and pretend that you are retired, all the better. At least work from home, if you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Make it your pleasure to work or relate on an individual level with a very special person. You might not always agree; try life from his or her perspective. You will learn a lot and feel more appreciated. Tonight: Go with a suggestion, but keep it a duo.

This Week: Speak your mind. Your words have an impact. Your gestures do too. Actions will count more than usual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Let someone in. This person wants to become a more important part of your life. Why are you resisting? Spend some time with this individual. Ask yourself if your pictures might be off. Look one more time. Tonight: Just don't be alone.

This Week: Ever playful, you might kick off the week by spending or playing. Careful.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

You might be content completing a project or playing a game of volleyball. Nurture others, but at the same time, do for yourself. You could be on overload. Let go of that feeling for a day. Tonight: A brisk walk after dinner.

This Week: Claim your power Tuesday. Now, life works better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Get together with friends or family. You, of all signs, make others feel at home. If someone starts acting weird, it might not be about you but more about him or her. A parent or older person is out of sorts. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Could it be you? Perhaps you need a day off to relax. Others feel touchy or moody. Remember, you can pull back. You will note that communication — especially with co-workers and those in your daily life — is out of sync. Tonight: Live it up!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

You get a glimpse of the fog that you create. Perhaps you are idealistic or confused. If a loved one or a friend falls off his or her pedestal, you have only yourself to blame, as you put this person there. Be realistic and open. Tonight: Where people are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

If your privacy is an issue, you might need to find an island, a very deserted island. Others seek you out left and right. Plans you might have arranged could be subject to dramatic swings. Dialogue rather than decide. Tonight: A must appearance.

Serving America's severely wounded servicemen/women

(NAPSA) — This year, the U.S. Army Wounded Warrior Program (AW2) is marking four years of committed service to severely wounded, injured and ill soldiers and their families. The program assists and advocates for the most severely wounded soldiers by providing individualized support, throughout their lifetimes, wherever they are located. AW2 is the only Army program that supports severely wounded soldiers from the time of injury for as long as they have a need.

Every AW2 soldier is assigned one of the 80 AW2 Advocates, located throughout the country. AW2 Advocates help soldiers and families in a variety of ways, including working with them to obtain full benefits, educational opportunities, and financial and career counseling, as well as helping those who want to stay in the Army to continue their service.

"AW2 is the only constant we have. The only constant we can count on," said Nelida Bagley, the mother of an AW2 soldier who suffers from a severe open-brain injury. "Our AW2 Advocate was there during the first 14-hour surgery, was there with resources, was there with a hug, was there with answers."

Originally known as the Disabled Soldier Support System, the program was established on April 30, 2004, as the Army responded to the needs of the most severely wounded, injured or ill soldiers from the Global War on Terrorism. The name of the program was changed in 2005, to the Army Wounded Warrior Program. Currently, there are more than 2,700 soldiers in the program.

Wounded soldiers and their families receive personalized care throughout their recovery and beyond, for as long as they have a need.

"The Army is fully committed to the care and support of its soldiers and families," said Colonel Jim Rice, director of the Army Wounded Warrior Program. "These soldiers have given their best to our country and now it's time for us to give back to them and their loved ones. AW2 will be with them for as long as it takes."

NEWSMAKERS

LUBBOCK — Maegan Patterson was recently accepted for membership into National Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma Honor Societies for First Year Students. An initiation ceremony was held at the Allen Theatre on the Texas Tech University campus.

Founded in the spring of 1924 at the University of Illinois, Alpha Lambda Delta is a national honor society for academic excellence among first-year students. Today, the society has 225 chapters around the nation.

Phi Eta Sigma was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923 to recognize and promote superior scholarship among freshmen men. PES has belonged to the Association of College Honor Societies since 1937.

Membership in Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma is prohibited to full-time freshmen four-year college or university students with a scholastic average of 3.5 or better.

Patterson has taken an oath to continue to "maintain high scholarship and to use my education for the benefit of my community, my nation and the world in which we live."

Members are challenged to make a "meaningful contribution to society."

Patterson carried a 4.0 grade point average and was named to the President's Honor List for both the fall and spring semester at TTU. She is the daughter of Anita and Richard Russell of Pampa, and Richard and Peggy Patterson of Odessa.
