Helping-Hand Case Baffles Psychiatrists

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—Psychiatrists attempted today to answer the riddles of the helping-hand death case in which a wife was charged with assisting her husband in contriving his own lethal gas chamber.

Baffled Westchester county authorities last night withdrew a tentative verdict of suicide in the automobile exhaust death of Eugene Y. Burckhalter, 47, chemical company executive, and Assistant District Attorney Elbert T. Gallagher said the case was "wide open" again.

An examination of Mrs. Burckhalter continued, two psychiatrists sought the facts of her life in search of an explanation for her conduct. What sort of woman, Dr. James J. Vasvasour of Amityville and Dr. William J. Doherty of Yonkers wanted to know, would give her husband a length of hose to pipe carbon monoxide into his car?

What sort of woman would watch him chink the cracks in the car, take a snapshot of him, hand him an egg, and then leave him contemplating death to go shopping—all of which Gallagher has said Mrs. Burckhalter admitted doing?

What sort of home was it in which the mother and father were divorced and remarried, and the two sons—one adopted—spoke bitterly of their dead father, while the negro maid, Betty Murdock, 48, said she "liked that man?"

Here's Best Route To Drive To Borger Battle Tomorrow

Members of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce today drove to Borger placing markers along the best route to the location of the Pampa-Borger football game tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

According to those who have driven over the several routes to Borger, now that work on the stretch between Pampa and Skellytown is under construction, the best way is to go to the first road, east of Kingsmill, turn across the tracks and follow the straight road northwest until reaching the White Deer-Skellytown road.

From there the road is open to Borger and the distance is only five miles farther than the straight road when it is open.

Red arrows with the word BORGER on them will be placed in clear sight where turns are necessary along the road.

Germany And France Sign New Treaty

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP)—A French-German agreement to submit all future disputes to consultation, rather than to threaten each other with war, was announced officially here today.

Announcement of the "war renunciation" pact came a few hours before the scheduled arrival of British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax for talks from which a virtual French-British military alliance was expected.

The French-German understanding, a development European statesmen have been awaiting as a possible cornerstone on which to build European peace and collaboration, complements a British-German anti-war accord signed at Munich Sept. 30 by Chancellor Hitler and Chamberlain.

The new accord goes farther, however, by recognizing formally the present French-German frontier, Hitler To Promise.

In other words, Hitler will promise again in writing that Germany lays no further claim to Alsace-Lorraine, provinces returned to France by Germany after the World War and over which the two countries have fought through their history.

18,000 Workers Occupy French Metal Factories

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP)—Eighteen thousand metal workers occupied factories around Valenciennes and Lille today in defiance of Premier Daladier's order against occupational strikes.

The strike was expected to force a shutdown test on the government's power to enforce new decree laws. Although Daladier had ordered all stay-in strikers ejected from plants, no effort was made at once to combat the new movement.

This strike was called both in protest against decrees increasing taxes and extending the work week beyond 40 hours and in sympathy with Call Arms Factory workers, whose first occupational strike Monday was broken.

The spreading unrest continued to exert pressure on the franc. The dollar was quoted at 38.35 in bank trading this morning, compared to the close yesterday 38.225.

Top O' Texas Farmers Thankful For Crops

"For These We Give Thanks
 That hunger no longer threatens a large farm population.
 That thousands of farmers are becoming rooted to their land, no longer migrating from farm to farm.
 That Americans are pioneering again, this time along the front of diversifications, changing one crop country into a stable farming community.
 That loans made not only on physical collateral, but on character of the individuals, are being liquidated rapidly on this Thanksgiving day.

Start out along the roads of the Great Plains, and see the new farm homes, guarded by their chicken yards, their gardens, their dairy and beef cattle, their sows and pigs.
 Listen to the farmers talk. They are hopeful, busy with plans for the coming year. They are solvent, or with a plan-in black and white for the retiring of indebtedness.
 Many have need to borrow money from the Farm Security Administration, but others needed only to have their debts adjusted, some assistance with planning their crops or irrigation for their lands.
 It's Thanksgiving time, and as colonists 371 years ago gave thanks for their first crops in a new country, so Southwestern farmers are grateful today for nature's beneficence, and a national approach to their problem.

Drouth and insects caused an almost complete crop failure on the Clarence Pyeatt farm in Hemphill county in '36. In fact, that year was only the last of several years of failure, but in '37 the Pyeatts leased new land and with a small loan began again.
 This year Mrs. Pyeatt has canned over 400 quarts of fruits and vegetables. She is especially successful with tomatoes, which she has made into a cash crop. Mrs. Pyeatt always starts her garden with a cold frame early in the spring.

In 1937, the wheat was hauled out. The cotton was hauled out, the maize was hauled out. That was the luck of Allen M. Williams.
 But the Williams are doing much better this Thanksgiving Day. With a pressure cooker bought from loan money, Mrs. Williams is doing the first canning she has ever done. She canned sufficient corn to last through the winter; also peas and potatoes that are too small to keep.

It is alertness that counts. The farm families of Gray, Hemphill, and Wheeler counties have demonstrated how to make better farms and homes with this alertness.

Mrs. William E. Tiddwell, who lives near Canadian, remodeled her chicken house using scrap iron and tin. She also planted a fall garden.
 Sale of vegetables has paid the living expenses of Mrs. Virgil Brook. Mrs. Ross J. Collie, who lives near Alanreed, started with six hens and ended with a cream separator, $22.50 in cash, adequate pork for the family's needs during the year, and a nice herd of swine.
 She sold the six hens for $5, purchasing two sows with the amount received from the sale. She raised ten pigs from the two sows, trading one sows for a cream separator, selling 3 for $22.50, and had five large hogs for meat.

Wheeler county leads with outstanding poultry projects not only in size of flocks but in sales of eggs. On several farms, large flocks of turkeys are found.
 Among Gray county families, cellars and dugouts represent cooperation on the wife's part to produce more than 75 per cent of their family living-at-home. One in particular has more than 800 quarts of fruits and vegetables on hand.

The Archie Crumptions in Dallas county have to take down the garden fence during the blowing season each year!
 For their garden plot at its beginning was nothing more than a series of sand hummocks. But the Crumptions persevered and last summer Mrs. Crumption canned more than 1,000 quarts of vegetables, the live-at-home food program for the Crumptions was practically assured.
 Surface irrigation was used. Sunflowers were planted to serve as a combination of "strip farming" to break the force of the wind, and as chicken feed. Nevertheless the garden fence had to come down each spring, or it will completely cover over with blowing dirt.
 An FSA loan brought a pressure cooker and a sealer to the family. The health of the family improved with the use of diet pamphlets provided by Miss Dora Davis, county home supervisor.

The home was improved with ingenious, inexpensive methods. Water was piped into the house for the sum of $5! The storage tank was made of gas barrels welded together. Second hand pipe was used to pipe the water. The sink was made from a discarded tractor gas tank. Mrs. Crumption and the children collected junk iron and sold it to secure enough money to buy two Comstock rugs. They built in cupboards, and revised an old cellar into a food storage place.

Another big problem was the family washing. Mr. Crumption moved a small building near the house to serve as a wash house. He bought a second hand washing machine, a gasoline motor and a covered wash boiler for $20. Of course it was necessary to do some repair work, but the machine worked fine.
 The first washing was the easiest Mrs. Crumption remembers. She had to sort the clothes, and he did the work, to demonstrate the machine.
 Later a shower bath was installed in the wash house, made from a suspended bucket with holes punched in the bottom, and an attached hose.

The problem was deep rooted over the entire country. In region 12 whose center is the "dustbowl" there was small reason to be hopeful in the middle of the Thirties. But the native integrity and pioneering spirit of the American farmer asserted itself. He needed only to lean against the wall of the Farm Security Administration, to catch his breath for a moment, figuratively speaking.

He is giving thanks today not for money alone—but for the live-at-home program he learned from the county supervisors; not for a better crop year—but for the acquisition of knowledge to outwit the bad crop years; not only relief of present peril—but a plan for the future.
 The farmers of the Plains won by their own persistence. Their loans were made on "character" much after the fashion of the old country banker. Their collateral was their personal possessions, the crops they might make. So the equity was small on the physical ledger. But it was large on the ledger of faith in the American farmer. The FSA gambled on his courage and adaptability, and won.
 "We took pretty short odds on that bet," says one supervisor.
 For, in this average county, payments are only 11 per cent delinquent on this Thanksgiving Day. There is good reason for each of these past due accounts—crop failure, illness and the like. More than $2,500 has been paid in excess of the principal by other farmers in the county who have been more successful.

It's America, on Thanksgiving Day.
 In Central Europe farmers are being driven from their land by bayonets. In Spain crops are forgotten in the two year-old battle across the peninsula. In China fields are devastated as armies march into the rich interior, and the Japanese farm boy is carrying a gun in a foreign country while his plow and pitchfork rust at home.
 It's America, on Thanksgiving Day.
 The crops are in. In hundreds of homes there is a "paid in full" receipt on loans that would not have been due for two or three years.
 The dust bowl is shrinking, says Co-ordinator Roy I. Kimmel. Nature has been kind in many portions of the area. Lakes and checks dams dot the plains.
 Winter is coming on—but the pantries are full of home canned foods. Stock are numerous and well-fed. New equipment crowds the barns.
 "For these we give thanks."

"For These We Give Thanks"

Winthrop, and the idea was born of her experience of the yearning of the average small town and farm resident, particularly the wives, for a gift package, especially one that comes to her as a surprise.
 Mrs. Folsom stated that she observed more gift packages are sent to the cities than to the country area; that it is common for the folks in the country to mail parcels of meat, fruit, cakes and cookies, or other foods to their relatives and friends in the towns and cities. Gift mailings to the country, on the other hand, are nowhere near in proportion.
 "The housewife on the rural route loves a package. For many years I've grown accustomed to the inquiry: 'Hastn't my package come yet?' or, 'I'm sending a package to you—and-so, they'll be so pleased.' To the woman on the farm, the expected package is a thrill, the surprise is a riot.
 "And so when I was thinking about what I could do in our little post office for the silver jubilee celebration of parcel post, that began when my husband was a young Postal employee under President Taft, I saw at our stamp window the happy face of a woman who had just handed to me for mailing a parcel post package. I thought how fine it would be, if a lot of our country folks would get more 'happiness packages' from town. I wrote to some friends in the city about it, and the first thing I know the idea had become part of the national parcel post celebration."
 Business establishments, in various cities have been quick to adopt the slogan, and are using it in their newspaper advertisements, window displays, posters, and other means of reaching the public.
 As a result of the inspiration of this little woman postmaster in a country village, it is anticipated that his Thanksgiving-to-Christmas sea-

Migrants—wandering up and down the roads of America—farmers uprooted from their lands—blown out, dried out, eaten out by insects. Sharecroppers who lost their places by discontents of cotton and grain prices. Wheat farmers beaten by dust and drouth. Corn farmers who lost the battle with army worms. Just a few years ago the sight pictured in the large oval was no stranger to the American scene. But on this Thanksgiving day such transformations as those in the surrounding pictures can be seen—brought about by the American people's belief that agriculture should be stabilized, given an lift over obstacles created by world wide depression, and wrong farming procedures at home.
 Looking forward to a fine future on this Thanksgiving day are the farmer-citizens, Riley E. Lee, to the left, and Oscar A. Smith, to the right. Lee, a Lynn county cotton farmer, has taken the first step toward a stabilized farm life with the acquisition of a five-year lease on a farm near Tahoka. He is a farm tenant looking forward to some day owning his own farm. And Mr. Smith now owns his farm in Randall county. He was one of the first farmers selected under the Bank-head-Jones Farm Tenant Act to buy his farm.

 In the right center panel is the Lee family. Mr. and Mrs. Riley E. Lee and their ten children, healthy, happy youngsters ranging from two to 18 years of age. Last Thanksgiving they were living in a two-room shack. Today they are in a four-room modern house, on a farm where they can make a living. Reading from left to right the children are: front row, Lillie Louise, Dwayne Franklin, Mary Evelyn, Reba Joe, Juanita, and Dixie Belle; back row, Shorty, Mr. Lee, Mrs. Lee who is calling Willie Beryl, Jack and Lois.
 To the extreme right is another sight for which to be thankful—the towering heavily grained heads waiting for harvest. The picture was taken on the Ropesville home-stead project.

Make Somebody Happy With A "Happiness Package" Urged

Announcement of a "happiness package" movement, launched this week as part of the national celebration of the silver jubilee of parcel post, was made today by Postmaster C. H. Walker.
 "Make somebody happy with a happiness package" is the slogan adopted by the local postal authorities, and while it is desired to stimulate as large a mailing of "happiness packages" as possible for Thanksgiving, the idea which originated with a woman postmaster in a country town is to be pushed all during the holiday season until Christmas. Postmaster Walker said.
 Chambers of commerce and local merchants in all cities are co-operating in this new movement, Washington advices to Postmaster Walker state.
 To a countrywoman in the little town of Winthrop, New York, almost on the Canadian line, goes credit for the "happiness package" slogan which has leaped into national attention and advertising space over night. She is Mrs. Ada J. Folsom, assistant postmaster.

An Orphan's Career

Johnny Davis at 14 has given up his first choice of a career. He's back in Jersey City today through the courtesy of the Travelers' Aid Society and the all too eager police of Pittsburgh. Johnny planned a career as an orphan.

He had parents, teachers and friends. But his report card made him a little uneasy, so after seeing the picture show, "Boy's Town," he unlimbered his thumb and started for Omaha to join the orphans there in the original of Boys' Town.

Like many another adventurer he talked too much. The first motorist, who carried him as far as Pittsburgh, told police there about it and Johnny was found and started home.

His trouble in school is to be adjusted and Johnny probably will get a large helping of what passes for fattened calf in Jersey City.

Under these circumstances Johnny should be saying, "Being an orphan is no career for a kid with parents."

Fiorello's Fun

Fiorello L. Guardia is at it again. His political philosophy does not allow for dictators of any kind. This explains why he is in a small jam with Mussolini and a nice big one with Hitler. But as mayor of America's largest city and as the political hero of many people the Little Flower doesn't worry much.

His latest exploit which leaves the nation chuckling is the appointment of three special police officers to guard against possible disturbances around the German consulate in New York. And those three men are Jews — Captain Kinkelstein, Lieutenant Licker, and Sergeant Goldstein. Today while Goering, Goebbels and Adolf are cursing the Semitic race three of the race protect their commercial agent in New York and the world has a good chuckle, with Fiorello joining in on the chorus.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Rodney Dutcher is dead—of a heart attack which occurred in his office. A veteran capital correspondent at 37, he had been chief of the NEA Service and Pampa News Washington Bureau since 1928. Mr. Dutcher had been a newspaper man since 16, when he started working in Worcester, Mass. Later he became associated with the United Press, when that organization started a night feature wire service. At Washington, he directed NEA's bureau during the terms of three presidents, and covered every important capital story during the last 10 years. His was the most widely published of all Washington columns.

This column was written a few hours before his death.

Pampa News Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Some of the 1938 lame ducks in Congress have discovered it's just as important to play to the folks back home as to the national gallery.

More often than not defeated members of Congress find their mistake was to become too engrossed in big-time affairs without keeping in touch with constituents. That's one reason the mortality rate among national figures is likely to be relatively high in a congressional election, while inconspicuous fellows never heard of outside Washington and their own balliwicks continue to roost comfortably because they know enough to keep one ear tuned to constituents. Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas, who was leader of the House liberal bloc, is a good example of a man who became a "statesman" too rapidly and over-estimated his political security in his San Antonio district.

Maverick was elected four years ago and turned out to be a hard-fighting leader. He came from an old American family and his progressivism wasn't tinged with the Minnesota and Wisconsin brands of "radicalism." He was just what the assortment of 50 or more House liberals had been looking for and they flocked behind him.

After that Maverick became a national figure, leaped into the fray on one national issue after another, made speeches over the country, wrote a book and was lionized by New Dealers in Washington.

Maverick got plenty of federal money for his district, but over-estimated his personal strength there. He went home last summer confident of re-nomination in the primaries, unaware that his wences were in despair.

The middle-class voters of San Antonio had decided Maverick was too radical, especially because he had become friendly with John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. That was what beat him in the primary and it was an especially sad lesson because his opponent's margin was only 485 votes. With a margin as small as that against him, it seemed obvious that a little more attention to the constituents would have saved his skin.

Maverick wasn't the only candidate to learn such a lesson. But he is now going out to build up his own fences, hoping to knock down those of his political foes by running for Mayor of San Antonio next May. The city is practically equivalent to Maverick's congressional district. Customarily the mayor decides who the congressman will be. Although Maverick beat the city machine in 1934 and 1936, it organized against him this year and licked him. Maverick hasn't anything to do except be in San Antonio between now and May, when the voters will tell him whether he has been able to wheedle them back by running as a

WILSON REJECTED THE TRUSTEE THEORY

As we see the present New Deal set itself up as being a trustee of the lives of the people of the United States, the reasoning of the last Democratic President before Roosevelt, should be interesting to show how the leadership of the Democratic Party has changed in the last few years.

Here are the opinions of Woodrow Wilson on how far the government should go in controlling the lives of individuals:

"Now I don't want a smug lot of experts to sit down behind closed doors in Washington and play providence to me. There is a providence to which I am perfectly willing to submit. But as for other men sitting up as providence over myself, I seriously object. I have never met a political savior in the flesh, and I never expect to meet one . . .

"I am one of those who absolutely reject the trustee theory, the guardianship theory. I have never found a man who knew how to take care of me and, reasoning from that point out, I conjecture that there isn't any man who knows how to take care of the people of the United States."

This philosophy of Wilson is substantiated by all history. Every time any government attempts to be guardian of all the people and prevent them from making mistakes, it eventually collapses. It eventually goes to the excesses of Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini.

We are on the road when we are beginning to produce farm products, as well as labor. We are gradually losing our liberty. How far will we have to go before people awaken, the important thing that will determine our standard of living and our happiness.

CONTROLLED PRESS VERSUS CONTROLLED MEDICINE

As we come to understand the laws that restrict people from practicing medicine, we are forced to compare the dangers connected with government regulation of medicine and those connected with freedom of the press.

It would seem that freedom of the press that sells covetousness, envy and hate and principles that will destroy the liberty of individuals is infinitely more serious than it would be to have free practice of medicine. It is true, of course, that quacks could do great injury to the unsuspecting public but the injury a quack can do by malfeasance in medical practice would be infinitely small compared with the damage that can result from unwise use of freedom of the press in selling such doctrines, as this is a land of plenty. In other words, the trafficking in drugs and medicine is much less dangerous than the trafficking in ideas. We all agree that freedom of the press is absolutely necessary but we have come pretty generally to believe, probably at the insistence of those who are benefited, that the public should be protected from unskilled medical practitioners.

When the control over medicine gets started, it goes so far that many of the rights of the individual are infringed upon by the arbitrary laws passed at the insistence of the medical profession under the pretense of protecting the public.

Possibly this government protection has led, step by step, to preserving those who have a tendency to drag down all the rest of society and that instead of this being a great benefit to society, it possibly is not nearly as much of a benefit as universally believed.

BOTH WAYS AT ONCE

(The Times Picayune, New Orleans)

The Republicans won back a good many seats in Congress and elected several governors, which obviously adds up into an off-year trend to Republicanism and, according to most views, a warning to New Deal Democrats that they must in some respects mend their ways.

But that doesn't tell us why a lot of people voted the way they voted, or what it means for the future. The South clung to tradition, New England returned to tradition and perhaps Michigan and Ohio had been dosed too heavily on outlaw strikes and Communist-tinged activities. But what meant the voters of Kansas and Iowa, if anything? The saying is that farm prices are too low. But the wheat and corn growers are certainly not worse off than the Southern cotton growers for the present, and not so bad off on future prospects. The Kansas and Iowa results are read as a swing toward conservatism, yet many of the Mid-Western Republican candidates advocated a domestic allotment and price-fixing program, an extremist policy which the New Deal does not accept. And the Republican farm majority in the Mid-West is now preparing in Washington to try to put over its program.

What is meant by the vote in California, where the labor organizations won their fight against strike-control laws; where the $10-a-week Thursday scheme was rejected—but where Sheridan Downey, Democrat and champion of the extreme pension scheme, was elected to the United States Senate? It will take a Californian to explain.

Nearer home, possibly, the explanations become easier. It would seem that a good many Orleanians are sufficiently opposed to extremism to express themselves that way at the polls. But we had one amendment to the state constitution, No. 23, which not even the most ebullient brain trust would like. It authorized any parish or ward to go into debt in order to go into the business of erecting publicly owned factories with few restraints of any kind. Ward after ward voted 20 or 31 for it almost as gaily as they adopted the more conservative amendments. Yet certain statesmen have said New Orleans was a conservative city, and certain dictators have said that our democracy was politically inefficient.

home town boy for a home town job. If elected he probably will decide Maverick should be San Antonio's next congressman.

IT'S STILL FRANKFURTER

Roosevelt will appoint him to the vacancy left by Dr. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard Law School continues to be the leading candidate for the Supreme Court and odds are five to one so that President Roosevelt will appoint him to the vacancy left by Justice Cardozo's death. Although some prominent Jews have sent word that the appointment might stir up smoldering anti-Semitism in the country, the Nazi persecutions have hardened Roosevelt's intention. It's also felt that at White House that Roosevelt will have one or two other Supreme Court appointments to make during his present term and that the next new justice after Frankfurter is likely to be Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, who meanwhile is expected to be placed in a cabinet job of equal importance post.

In his prospective appointments Roosevelt thus far shows no sign of leaning toward conservatism.

POSSIBLE CONGRESSIONAL DOUBLE FEATURE

HOLLYWOOD—This tale ought to have a moral and maybe it has. It's about the glamorous girl who was invited to the dinner party at Ronald Colman's house. She couldn't come to dinner, she said. Previous engagement. But she'd be happy to drop in later.

When she arrived the other guests were still in the dining room. "I'll wait in here," she said, moving into the adjoining bar. But host Colman wouldn't hear of it. Lovely little lady waiting in there all alone? No, she must join the party. At least have dessert and coffee. No dessert? Well, coffee then.

So she returned to the dining room, sat at the table and sipped her coffee. And all the while the other guests, attacked one of host Colman's more gaudy desserts. Pie, full of juicy berries, topped with whipped cream. The glamorous girl sipped her coffee.

Suddenly she stifled a sob, arose and left the room. Solicitous fellow-guests found her on a couch crying her heart out.

"The studio says I have to lose weight," she sobbed, "and I've had nothing but fruit juices for three days. When I saw that berry pie—I just couldn't stand it any longer!"

And she sobbed and sobbed, this glamorous girl who was to become famous sometime later—as Hedy Lamarr. . . . The secretary of the Stone Canyon Haunters' club—an informal organization of moppets which exists and operates only on Halloween—reports a sad disappointment in his annual tour of this Bel-Air section where several cinema lights reside.

A year ago the youngsters all of an age where movie fame means nothing, were delighted at the reception given them by a big carrot-topped gentleman who received them, chucking, and led them into his kitchen. There, after apples were dispensed with a free hand, the gentleman proceeded to entertain them with several numbs on an odd instrument he called a bazooka. The kids, the secretary reports, glowed all year with memories of this hospitality.

This Halloween they knocked again. That is, they tried to knock again. But the big carrot-topped gentleman with that odd horn was not about. Instead there was an impersonal watchman with no tolerance for Halloween haunts. The ghosts retreated.

I hope Bob Burns will be sorry when he hears about it. Of course it isn't reasonable to expect a bazooka-artist to keep on bazooking year after year, when he doubtless has other, more important things to do on Halloween. Still, it is sad. It is to weep, in fact—because the Stone Canyon Haunters' club doesn't understand that the world changes, that one Halloween is not necessarily like another, that Bob Burns is a star now with a heap of star-worries and other things to bother him.

If you happen to be that sort of idealistic adult who thinks that Boy Scouts are terribly earnest little boys who go around looking for good turns to do, please don't ask them either in public or in private what good turn they did yesterday or today—it's like asking you if you kissed your wife or slapped her face when you left her this morning, or it's like asking you how much you give to the church or to charity, or when you last prayed and what you said. It's the kind of a question that any modest boy would be embarrassed in answering. If they say they did a good turn let it go at that.

Boys who brag about the good turns they do are like the men who go around telling what big assets they are to the community. Boys are like men, usually, except they are better: they do a good turn when they can't escape it—just like men who give because it's their duty. . . . So, boys just don't go around hunting up old people and babies to help across the street. But for those persons who just can't rest until they know exactly what the good turns are, this one submits that a good turn in a boy or a man depends on what's in the mind when it is done, and therefore may or may not be a duty, but for the benefit of those curious persons who must know the details, here are some tasks done by a boy this one knows. The boy thought they were good turns and he wrote them down—who will say they are not? . . . I fit the fires in the cold house in the morning. . . . SWALLOWED OBJECTS. A noted specialist in diseases of the ear was in the habit of saying to all his patients that nothing but one's elbow should ever be poked into one's ear. In this way he tried to discourage people from probing the outer canal of the ear and causing thereby all sorts of damage.

In the same spirit it may be properly urged that nothing but a tooth brush and food should ever be put into one's mouth. Pins, safety pins, tacks, nails, coins, and the like objects, which even some "sensible people" are in the habit of placing in their mouths, certainly have not place there.

Particularly objectionable is the practice of some mothers of holding safety pins in their mouths while dressing young children. The child, in imitation of the mother, is likely to follow her practice and accidentally swallow the object.

The ordinary pin is the foreign body most often swallowed. Oddly enough, it usually passes along and out of the intestinal canal without any mishap.

The gastro-intestinal tract apparently tries to do its best even when fed the oddest of foreign objects. There is a case on record of a double-edged safety razor blade which made a successful journey through the alimentary canal.

According to the records of the Boston City Hospital, in 800 cases of swallowed foreign objects, perforation of the gastro-intestinal tract resulted in only one per cent of the cases.

Objects pointed at both ends are considerably more dangerous than those pointed at one end only. An open safety pin, if it makes its way point first, usually becomes lodged in the mucous membrane of the stomach or duodenum.

If the object becomes arrested, it may become necessary to remove it by operation.

Modern surgery has mastered the art of removing foreign objects from the body. There is a case on record in which an open safety pin became lodged in the stomach.

The surgeon operating upon the case located the open safety pin by feeling for it through the walls of the unopened stomach. By manipulation through the walls of the stomach, he succeeded in closing the pin. He then extracted it from the stomach through a tube.

Tex's Topics

By Tex DeWeese

A significant thing has happened in American life during the last few years. For the first time in many years, there has developed an issue of vast importance on which the American people have shown themselves to be in complete agreement—and have shown themselves also to be very much in earnest. . . . The newest Hitler pogrom simply turned America's collective stomach. The spontaneous, nation-wide chorus of indignation protests that poured forth was a revelation. Here, if nowhere else, was an issue on which all Americans thought and felt as one.

On the surface, perhaps, there is nothing so very remarkable about all of this. After all, no decent people can enjoy the sight of a bully torturing an utterly defenseless victim. A crime against humanity and against civilization, when it is as easy recognizable as the one just committed by the Nazis, certainly ought to draw protests. . . . Yet that simple stand for ordinary decency and humanity goes to the root of the whole matter.

For this whole fight against dictatorship, against tyranny, against repression and regimentation in all their forms and for liberty, democracy and freedom what is it, at bottom, but a fight for ordinary decency and humanity? . . . Those are the first casualties under any dictatorship. It is not decent and humane, for instance, to deny men the right to speak and think as they please, to persecute those whose race or religious convictions differ from yours, to arrest without warrant and imprison without trial, to substitute force for reason and to subject men to mental and emotional strait-jackets. Yet every dictatorship begins with precisely those acts, committing them under the plea that necessity compels them.

And the noise that the dictators make, the apparent successes that they have on, offer make us forget what their power is based on: a direct and simple offense against the most elementary principles of civilized conduct. So we actually get to the point where we can talk about the good things which this or that dictator has done for his people—overlooking the fact that his whole program is founded on a profound and unqualified wrong.

This new Hitler pogrom restores the whole picture to its proper focus. Here the real meaning of dictatorship—any dictatorship—is brought out into the open in such a way that no man can fail to see it for what it is. If we never realized it before, now we are compelled to realize that tyranny means a brutal and contemptuous denial of the most fundamental ideals of a decent and humane society.

That is why this spontaneous, nation-wide revulsion against the Nazi excesses is so significant. . . . It reveals that the American character simply cannot stomach the obsecities on which any dictatorship must be built. It shows that the ultimate defense of our freedom—something fundamental to the spirit of all of our people. This protest against the savagery of the Nazis is a reaffirmation of our faith in the American way of life.

Dies Committee To End Probe Dec. 16

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas, announced today the House committee on un-American activities would end its investigation Dec. 16 unless the 1939 Congress gives it a new lease on life. Plans to send subcommittees to the South and California have been abandoned, Dies said, because of a shortage of time and money. A subcommittee will go to Cleveland, however, for hearings Friday and Saturday on complaints of subversive activities in the public school system.

The committee was established for the duration of the present Congress, but Dies predicted the incoming House quickly would authorize funds to continue the inquiry. Hearings will be adjourned at the close of this week until Dec. 1, when another witness will be offered opportunity to deny any allegations made in previous testimony. Leaders of patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations have been invited to testify starting Dec. 2.

EDR Assails Georgia For PWA Dealings

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's arraignment of Georgia for seeking federal aid for public work without setting up legal enabling machinery caused somewhat of a stir in state official and political circles today. Coming from the chief executive's own "other home" in Georgia, at a press conference late yesterday, it overshadowed interest here in an announcement that Hugh R. Wilson, ambassador to Berlin, would arrive Sunday or Monday to report on German violence against Jews.

Some observers attempted to read politics in the presidential statement that Georgia was the only state in the union which had failed to cooperate with the federal government on public works and would not receive another red cent until it had set up enabling acts.

There was not the slightest hint of this in official circles, however, moreover, there were reports that Senator Walter F. George, conservative Democrat whom Mr. Roosevelt sought unsuccessfully to defeat, may come here for a chat during the President's two weeks stay.

Such a report went the rounds after the President told reporters yesterday he had made no appointments for conferences here except that for Ambassador Wilson, who is coming down from Washington after reporting at the state department. He said he may also see Speaker Bankhead and Majority Leader Rayburn of the House while here, but no definite appointments had been made.

Wife Of LeFors Principal Dies

McLEAN, Nov. 23.—Funeral services for Mrs. R. E. Paige of LeFors were held Tuesday at the McLean Methodist church. Mrs. Paige was the wife of R. E. Paige, principal of LeFors High school, and daughter of Mrs. M. D. Davis of McLean. She died Monday afternoon in a Pampa hospital after an illness of several months.

The deceased, the former Opal Davis, was born February 28, 1903. As a girl she lived with her parents in McLean and attended school here.

She is survived by her husband and two children, her parents, and two brothers, Marvin and Melvin—all of whom were at the funeral. Services were conducted by Rev. W. B. Swim, McLean pastor, and Rev. Lloyd Jones of LeFors.

Domestic Markets Favored At Meeting

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 23 (AP)—The West Texas Producers Congress went into its second session today with suggestions before it that emphasis be placed on domestic rather than foreign markets.

H. H. Williamson, state director of the extension service, made the suggestion last night at a banquet presided over by George Mahon, Representative to Congress from the 19th district. K. M. Renner of Texas Tech stressed the value of dairying to the West Texas farmer, and A. B. Tarwater, State Representative, mentioned the service rendered by co-operatives. A. A. Holmgren, AAA Administrator for Texas, described permanent accomplishments of the federal farm program.

Cotton was discussed at the morning session today, and D. A. Bantosen of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was on the afternoon program for a talk on freight rates. John McCarty of Amarillo and W. Holbrook of Plainview were to discuss water conservation issues. The meeting ends today.

Authority Refuses To Purchase Utility

AUSTIN, Nov. 23 (AP)—The Lower Colorado River Authority has declined to purchase for $7,396,016 properties of the Texas Power and Light Company in 16 Central Texas counties. Max Starcke, operations manager, said today. Starcke said the Authority had offered the corporation $4,000,000 but the offer had been rejected. He added the company's price was more than $2,000,000 above what the Authority considered the "fair value" of the property. Another reason the Authority decided against purchase of the company's equipment, Starcke said, was that it would preclude the Authority's cooperation with public agencies seeking to develop Texas rivers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)-Fairly clear hints are being given by administration officials that, however high they may rate the south as an economic problem, the region will have lead the way to its own improvement. SERIAL STORY LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOFF—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.

CHAPTER XV

"HAVEN'T you learned your lesson yet, you idiot?" she asked herself fiercely, after Dwight had gone.

She wished furiously that she could be done with it. It was over. Why did her heart still cling to his image, her blood still boil with this agony of wanting?

It was only half-past eight when Dwight left. Judy turned her thoughts over in her mind, and suddenly decided to drive over to Diane's.

SHE rang the bell. A light went on over the tiny porch. Diane with a towel around her shoulders opened the door and said, "I was washing my hair. What's the matter?"

"I've got to talk to you. Is Bill home?"
"No. He's on the Enterprise. Deviling aerology or something. They're going out in the morning, and he had until midnight. But—" She laughed. "The honeymoon is over when he doesn't take full advantage of every liberty."

Judy knew better than that. She knew that Diane respected Bill's anxiety about the weather, and she knew, too, that those extra hours of fellowship and work aboard the ship were actually necessary if Bill was to keep up his excellent record.

"Dwight Campbell came to the house tonight," she said. "What shall I do? He wants me to—"

"Don't tell me! Let me guess!" Diane towled her dark hair vigorously, and then let it fall back, a soft cloud of black. "He wants you to explain etiquette. The Navy's own Emily Post."

Judy was silent. Diane said, "I hope you sent him packing!"

"N-no. I didn't."
Diane picked up a comb. "Of all the dimwitted nincompoops I ever saw! You told him you would?"

"That's about it. And please—won't you help me?"

Diane said, "The Navy Ladies for the Rescue of Beached Vulgarians in Heat—Seas," she said.

"Or is that mixed?"
"I get the idea."

"What do you want me to do? Join you in lecturing?"

"Stop it, Diane. I—this is serious. I thought you—well—you could invite her to bridge, or something."

"At a twentieth of a point?"

Judy said, "Ellen Sharp and Magda Hamilton would come. They're sweet. And that Bostwick girl and—"

"Two tables," said Diane. "And I'd have to feed them. And that girl for Billy!"

BUT in the end, she consented. Yet the bridge party was a dismal failure. Marvel insisted on talking about her interior decorator and her new clothes and the housewarming that the other women were unasily aware was premature.

Magda Hamilton and Diane talked of their children. Marvel said, "I don't see how you keep it up! Always talking about babies! It seems to me that if they didn't have any teeth, it would be more remarkable than merely cutting them." She tried to make the remark sound light and humorous, but it fell flat. No one laughed.

At four o'clock she cried, "Mercy, I've got to run! I have a tea date downtown. You'll excuse me?"

They were delighted to see her go, Judy knew. And not once during the afternoon had the conversation turned to the subject Judy had hoped it would. That was odd, because usually politics of a naval description hogged much of the time. Who might be passed over? Was it true that this wife of that had pulled a boner at a reception. That sort of thing.

Jane Bostwick looked out of the window at where Marvel was manuevering her long, shining car out of the tangle of small, elderly crows. Jane said, "I suppose I'm jealous."

AND then the post-mortem began. Lieutenant Sharp's wife, a girl who had been a school-teacher in the east, and who had been shy and unsure of herself at first, said, "I feel sorry for her. But she's got it different from most brides. She thinks she's better than the Navy. I thought I wasn't good enough."

"I know one thing," said Magda Hamilton. "I could hardly keep myself from telling her not to order too much food for that housewarming. Nobody will come."

"Why not?" asked Judy quietly.

"She didn't call on the commandant's wife, she didn't even return Mrs. Lane's tea. And that's his skipper, remember! That awful toady, Gertrude Hatcher, won't come because she takes a slight to her superiors as a slight to herself. I can't. 'omony won't go. He says this girl is a vixen. The exec's wife told me in a roundabout way that she won't come. Who will be there?"

"I will," said Judy.

There was a shocked silence. Then Diane said sensibly, "No you won't, Judy. Not if—"

"I will," said Judy again. "She may not know much about the amenities, but she's Dwight Campbell's wife, and he's a friend of mine. He's a friend of all of you. Mrs. Lane is very fond of him. I'm sure she'll come, returned tea, none. Mother certainly has nothing against her, and if Daddy goes, everybody else will, too!"

That was true enough. The silence deepened. Judy plunged rashly. "Admiral Alcott will be there," she said. "I'll see to it!"

Salomey Goes West

ganda Minister Goebbels told 2,000 colleagues at Kroll opera house last night that the Nazis would persevere until the "Jewish problem" is solved—until the Hebrew is driven from German life.

Das Schwarz Korps, publication of the Black-Uniformed Elite Guard, predicted extermination of the Jews.

Both Goebbels and Das Schwarz Korps took note of British and United States sentiment, although there was no immediate reaction to the American note of yesterday asking assurances American citizens would not be affected by decrees ousting Jews from German industry.

Referring to criticism of the anti-Jewish drive by the British House of Commons, Goebbels said pointedly:

"If the English want to conclude a binding friendship with the German people, they should not make this friendship dependent on inner political German circumstances."

Establishment of a Jewish state outside Germany was the only way by which German Jews could be saved from otherwise inevitable extinction," said Das Schwarz Korps.

Jews Ordered To Pay Part Of Huge Fine

BERLIN, Nov. 23 (AP)—The German government ordered a levy of 20 percent of Jewish fortunes exceeding $2,000 today to pay the $400,000,000 fine imposed for the assassination of Ernst Vom Rath, Paris Embassy Secretary, by a Jewish boy.

The decree defining the means of collecting the fine in four installments was published in the official gazette as the German propaganda machine went into full swing with a warning no mercy would be accorded in writing "the last chapter of the Jewish question in Germany."

The levy is to be imposed on German Jews and those who live in Germany but are without citizenship in other countries. Foreign Jewish citizens are exempt.

The decree stipulates: "A contribution of one billion Reichsmarks ($40,000,000) will be collected from German Jews and those Jews without nationality in the form a tax levy on their fortune."

Foreign Jews Exempt "Foreign Jews are exempt from the levy."

"The levy will not be imposed if the entire fortune, after deduction of all liabilities, does not exceed 5,000 Reichsmarks ($2,000)."

Payments are to be made to the state treasury. Payments by insurance companies to Jews for damage done their shops and synagogues during the Nov. 10 violence, after Vom Rath's death, are to be turned over to the government.

These amounts will be accepted as partial payment of the levy. If the insurance payments exceed the 20 percent levy, however, the entire amount will be confiscated by the government."

Legion Film To Be Shown Friday

Although "Sons of the Legion" to be shown here Friday and Saturday at the LeNora Theater is a drama about American Legionnaires and the problems of their children, it is guaranteed to have a powerful appeal for every other member of the community as well.

For this reason, members of the local post of the American Legion have expressed a desire that every father and mother and son in Pampa attend this picture, which is sponsored by the Kerley-Crossman post. Proceeds from the film will be used to help pay the expense of the Community picnic held here last Labor day.

Christian Science Church To Conduct Thanks Services

A Thanksgiving Day service will be conducted at 11 o'clock Thursday morning at the local Christian Science church, 901 North Frost street.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and its branches in all countries will hold a special Thanksgiving service to which the public is cordially invited.

The Golden Text is: "Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the most High" (Psalms 50:14).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The children of the Lord thy God, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; that the Lord thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest" (Deut. 14:1, 29).

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The rich in spirit help the poor in one rich in spirit, all having the same Principle, or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother's need and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good" (page 518).

The Thanksgiving proclamation of President Franklin Roosevelt will be read and a solo, "Gratitude" by Pearl G. Curran is to be sung by Ken Bennett with Miss Jimma Searcy at the piano.

Winter was a long time getting here but when it did blow in it made up for lost time.

The coldest weather of the season moved across Texas today with freezing and sub-freezing temperatures spreading from the Panhandle and northern areas.

The thermometer fell below the 20-degree mark at Amarillo and it was the same at Lubbock but there was no report of livestock or crop damage.

Temperature at Dallas early today was 33 degrees.

Dr. J. L. Cline, weather bureau meteorologist at Dallas, forecast freezing weather nearly to the coast. He predicted slowly rising temperatures would come during the day but that it would remain cold through Thanksgiving.

Dr. Cline said the cold wave extended from the Canadian border to Texas.

pastor of the biggest Methodist church in Little Rock. The church had a debt of $135,000 when he went there, but he's cut it down to pocket-size now. When Gaston was pastor here the church paid off the building debt.

Dr. Foote was en route to Amarillo where tonight at Folk Street Methodist church he will deliver the Golden Anniversary sermon. Dr. Foote's first connection with a church was at the Folk Street church where he was assistant pastor. Many people from White Deer and Pampa plan to attend the services tonight.

Explains His Nose

The R. R. didn't see much change in Gaston. He still looks about 25. He has a few more wrinkles and as Frank Cuberson remarked, his nose is becoming more prominent. At that crack, Gaston said, "Well, when I was a kid all my nose froze off except what I could hold in both fists and that's why I haven't got as big a nose as I might have."

"I never heard you tell that joke before," said Art Teed. "It must be a new one."

"Gaston, I hope you're not telling the same jokes in Arkansas you told here," heckled Dick Hughes.

"Oh, I just dress 'em up and make Texas the goat where I used to make Arkansas the goat," said the minister.

Then Travis Lively came in.

Still a Liberal.

"Travis, have you got any rocks in your pockets? I'd like to have some to put in my shoes to make me feel at home!"

Dr. Foote told the R. R. that more than ever he still holds to the proposition that the chief function of a church should be social and economic. You could tell by talking to him that Gaston is getting more profound and higher in his thinking all the time.

A White Deer delegation was at the train to meet him when he arrived here.

It wasn't long before you could see that Dr. Foote can still inspire people and can tell stories—better than ever. And that, gentle readers, is the secret of his hold on his friends; he could inspire them more than anybody else ever did. He was doing it last night.

tures would come during the day but that it would remain cold through Thanksgiving.

Dr. Cline said the cold wave extended from the Canadian border to Texas.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 23 (AP)—Possibility of snow for Thanksgiving was predicted today by Newark Airport weather bureau as the Metropolitan area was blanketed so thick airport attendants reported "the birds are walking on it instead of flying."

A New Jersey railroad crossing crash, at least one traffic death and scores of auto accidents were attributed to the "peasopener" which caused cancellation of all flights at the airport since 7 p. m. last night and 6 a. m. today.

and is labeled by its supporters as a "determination to solve international differences by consulting rather than by warfare or threats of war."

French and German statesmen have been negotiating it since shortly after Premier Edouard Daladier returned from the Munich meeting, at which he, Chamberlain, Premier Mussolini and Hitler agreed on the partition of Czechoslovakia.

A number of thorny questions were expected to come up in the conference among the British statesmen and Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

It was said the matter of extending French-British military co-operation would be thoroughly examined.

While authorized circles termed the accord with Germany a distinctly bright development, informed quarters pointed out precautionary measures and the extension of collaboration with Great Britain could not be foregone.

To Renounce Claims

It was stated that the agreement would have two major points: 1—Official recognition by both nations of the French-German frontier, meaning that Germany renounces all claim to Alsace-Lorraine.

2—Agreement for consultation in case of difficulties between the two nations rather than a resort to war.

It was disclosed that yesterday's exchange of greetings at Bechtelsgaden between Reichsuehrer Hitler and Robert Coulonde, new French ambassador to Germany, marked the beginning of an understanding to be embodied in the new written accord. The diplomatic speeches contained the main points to be set forth in writing.

Despite the Franco-German understanding the conversations opening today between French statesmen and Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax were expected to draw Britain and France still closer together.

Informed quarters said the meeting, planned as a second step in European appeasement following the "Peace of Munich," would be devoted almost entirely to strengthening and coordinating the armies, navies and air forces of the two nations.

It was understood the alliance would be brought about through the re-drafting of the military agreement signed last April 29 in London.

The new accord would make instant military aid unconditional, whereas the present pact gives Britain the right to decide in case war resulted from a German attack on France's central European allies.

Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, were expected to arrive in Paris by train shortly before 6 p. m. (12 noon CST) and begin their talks with Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet immediately.

Dr. Fox To Talk To Youth Tonight

Last night Dr. Fox discussed "The Three Fatal Steps to the Fiery Furnace."

He began his message by saying: "If there be no hell, there is no heaven, if there be no devil there is no Christ." He spoke with great conviction upon the eternal destinies of the human soul. A large audience heard the scriptural reality of hell presented by the evangelist.

"I am here to speak tonight of the three fatal steps to the nother world, any one of which means hell. These are made with little effort and less thought. The writer of the Book of Hebrews asks 'How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?' Neglect means doom. To neglect to escape from the sin-stung sin-curse condition resting on every soul who has rejected Christ as savior is eternal condemnation.

"Go thy way for this time" voiced Felix when trembling under the presence of the Holy Spirit as the apostle Paul spoke with him. Felix was perhaps as mean a man as ever went unchanged, but God's spirit was striving with him and for the last time. The delay was the eternal condemnation that settled his destiny to the night of the nether world. Delay is doom!"

It is hoped that a large attendance of the youth of the city will attend the hour of worship tonight.

Laymen Of Central Baptist Have Meeting

Central Baptist Brotherhood met Monday evening with Homer Johnson, president, in charge.

H. G. Erics led in the singing of the opening song, "Throw Out the Life Line," which was followed by prayer led by E. G. Williams.

Ray Riley, assisted by members of his group gave the program for the evening. Talks were made by E. G. Williams, O. H. Gillstrap, and T. M. Gillham on B. T. U., in which it was stated that through the Baptist Training Union we are taught to study the Bible systematically and are helped to find our place in the service of the Lord. Young people and children are trained for the leaders of tomorrow. As a soldier is trained for the service of his country in the army so is the Christian worker trained for service to the Lord in the B. T. U., it was noted.

"It is so important for the young people because our young people of today are citizens of the future; future democracy depends upon principals of the church of God," it was pointed out.

Formerly the training union was for the young people only; now training is offered to the adults as well. It is essential that the adults avail themselves of this training because it is so doing they are qualified for leadership, something that is lacking in the churches. Churches have failed because of lack of leadership where no program of training was offered, a speaker added.

A male quartet composed of Woodrow Brister, D. L. Ciphers, O. H. Gillstrap, and Charles Barret closed the program with the song, "Farther Along."

Plainview Group To Rely On Judgment Of Marvin Jones

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 23 (AP)—The West Texas Producers Association is willing to help on the judgment of Congressman Marvin Jones concerning amendments to the farm bill and is desirous of the legislation getting a fair trial.

Ending its two-day session the association yesterday condemned those who "sow seeds of dissatisfaction among the farmers before the present farm bill is given a fair trial" and in a resolution urged the producer and the trade to realize their common problems and the necessity of working together toward solving the agricultural problems.

The association also passed resolutions favoring parity freight rate structures, development of farm co-operatives, soil and water conservation laws with administration in the hands of active farmers and opposed any attempt to repeal the gasoline tax refund to farmers.

Dies Described As 'Outstanding Zany' by Ickes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—Secretary Ickes called Rep. Dies, Democrat, Texas, the world's "outstanding zany" today and said hearings being held by Dies' committee on un-American activities were the most "outrageous that have ever been pulled off."

The cabinet officer gave his description of Dies at a press conference when asked for comment on testimony given before the committee yesterday by Alice Lee Jemison, Washington representative of the American Indian Federation, who charged Ickes and the Indian commission under him were influenced by Communists.

"The secretary declared there was 'no police judge in the United States' who would receive testimony in the manner accepted by Dies, chairman of the committee.

Commenting on the woman's testimony, the secretary said "she didn't say anything new. Those charges have been met and refuted time after time. Dies knew where to find her to put her on the stand but he doesn't seem to know where to find the refutation."

At one point in his comments, the secretary referred to testimony received by the committee as "garbage," and accused the chairman of hearing such testimony on the grounds of "patriotism."

During the press conference, Indian Commissioner John Collier told reporters the American Indian Federation had been soliciting $1 each from Indians in Oklahoma on the promise it would try to get legislation through Congress to pay them $3,000 each.

In response to a suggestion that to meet the claims the country would have to be given back to the Indians, Ickes remarked:

"Yes, and they would throw in Dies for good measure."
