McLEAN YOUTH DIES IN CRASH

Gene Wells, 17-year-old football player, was crushed to death in a collision of the pickup truck on which he was riding and a large seven-mile west of Shamrock on Highway 66 Sunday morning.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed Sunday but the services will be held some time this afternoon.

With Dale Wells, Gene was riding on the front bench of the light truck as a group of boys were returning to their homes in the Lela community six miles west of Shamrock.

Dale is suffering from shock severe bruises, back and possibly internal injuries. His condition was described as critical at the Shamrock hospital where the mother was taken by passing motorists. Gene died five minutes after he was taken to town.

FRANCO'S WARPLANES KILL EIGHT, WOUND 30

BARCELONA, July 4. (AP) Insurgent warplanes killed eight persons and wounded 30 today in a raid on Gava, southern suburb of Barcelona.

Five planes took part in the raid, a renewal of the insurgent air campaign against the Mediterranean coast of government Spain.

NEW CONFLICT URGED BY FDR

By ROBERT D. PRICE GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 4. (AP) A flickering flame crowning a monument dedicated by President Roosevelt, burned today on the hallowed hills of Gettysburg—an everlasting pledge of "eternal peace in a nation united."

The President turned for the first time to the address of Abraham Lincoln, the civil war president, who said 75 years ago that those who fought and perished on this ground "have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract."

Gas Flame Ignited On the slope below the tree-crowned hilltop the vast throng stood for hours yesterday to hear the reading of the Declaration of Independence.

Union Repulses Pickett's Great Charge; Confederate Invasion Seems Doomed

Headquarters Army of Northern Virginia, Chambersburg, Pa., July 3, 1863. (AP) In the greatest assault of this bloody war, the Army of Northern Virginia today failed to storm Cemetery Ridge, but its attacking column reached the heart of the Federal position and fell back to its original ground, where it stands ready tonight to receive and to repulse any counter-attack the Federal army may make.

Although the losses have been heavy, particularly in Pickett's division of Longstreet's corps, the moral of Lee's veterans is unshaken. They may not be able to continue their invasion of Pennsylvania, but they are confident that if they withdraw, it will be at time of their choice and in the direction they desire. If they are assailed they are confident that they can defeat Meade's army.

4,000 RODEO FANS APPLAUD BULLDOGGING

CANADIAN, July 4.—Four thousand spectators applauded the range skill of the southwest's cream contestants as man proved mightier than beast in the majority of events yesterday on the second day's competition in the 16th annual Anvil Park rodeo.

In only one division, the Brahma steer riding, were the athletes almost completely bottled in their attempt to govern the salty Bentler Brothers' stock. The final rodeo performance will be held this afternoon.

Outstanding individual honors went to the Ross brothers, Roy and Bruce, of Sayre, Okla., in the bulldozing division. Roy took the blue ribbon with a phenomenal throw of 6.14 seconds, three-fifths of a second faster than his time yesterday and a scant two-fifths of a second below the arena record of 6 seconds.

Hot? Well, Just Expect More Of It With the temperature doing a climb of nearly 30 degrees in five hours this forenoon, it began to appear that the Fourth of July would be a sizzler in the Panhandle this afternoon.

LEGION WILL PROVIDE FREE DISPLAY HERE

With a rodeo at Anvil Park near Canadian, a rodeo, softball game, parade, and polo game at McLean, and a fireworks exhibition and the second of two dances at the Southern club here, Pampa today were offered a full program of Fourth of July attractions.

The third and concluding program of the three-day sixteenth annual Anvil Park rodeo will be held today. In the rodeo contests yesterday Jimmy Olson of Pampa won third place in steer riding.

A jolly fat, mechanical device that opens and has the shape of a yellow-toned park meter, a dazzling sun hat, a pair of slippers, a silver fountain, and a bombardment of 30-foot-long are other parts of the system.

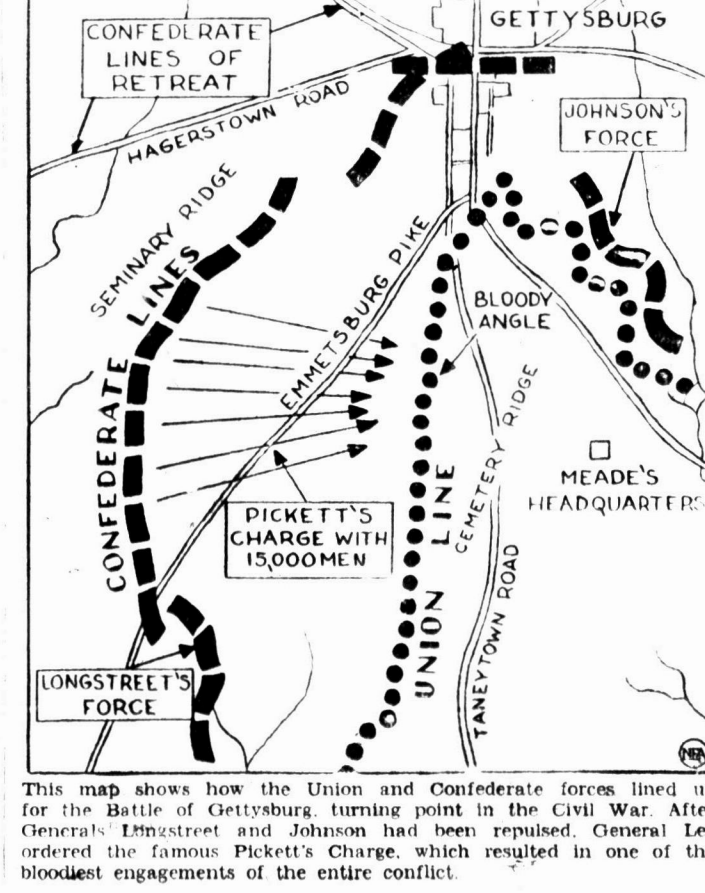

Admission to the fireworks exhibition is free to children and parents accompanying children will also be allowed to see the display.

their president sound the challenge for "another conflict... seeking to save for our common country opportunity and security for citizens in a free society."

The memorial was unveiled by A. G. G. Harris, 91, of McDonough, Ga., and George N. Lockwood, 91, of Los Angeles.

Seventy-five years ago they fought during Sherman's march to the sea. Harris with Humphreys' Confederate cavalry, Lockwood with the horsemen of the ninth Michigan regiment of the Union army.

After a handshake they stepped aside and the setting sun's rays, burning down on an electrical apparatus, ignited the gas flame in the bronze urn atop the memorial. (Clear Decision Final) Many of the 2,000 veterans who came here for this reunion saw the unveiling from seats beneath a breeze-rippled canopy.

Mr. Roosevelt hearkened back to Lincoln as he spoke of the great emancipator's understanding "that when a challenge to constituted government is thrown down, the people in self-defense must take it up; that the fight must be fought through to a decision so clear that it is accepted as being beyond recall."

But this present-day conflict, "as fundamental as Lincoln's," is being fought "not with glint of steel, but with appeals to reason and justice on a thousand fronts," the President said.

Governor Earle in introducing Mr. Roosevelt and turning over to him the deed for the land on which the monument stands, invoked the memories of Gettysburg as a challenge for peace today.

as always, was grave but calm.

Picket Leads the Charge At 1 p. m. two signal guns were fired by Miller's battery. Instantly the bombardment began. Orders were to fire by salvos, with the result that the simultaneous discharge of all the guns of a battery shook the earth. Teamsters three miles in the rear saw the windows were shaken. The American continent has never been rocked by such a fire.

Half an hour after the bombardment began, Confederates saw some movement among the Federal artillerymen in the "little clump of trees" on Cemetery Ridge that was the objective of the attack. Colonel Alexander thought this meant the eighteen Federal guns in the grove were withdrawing and he sent word to General Pickett, as directed by General Longstreet, to advance the troops over the ridge for the charge.

Pickett came riding out as if he were on parade. "Up men," he cried, "and to your posts! Don't forget today that you are from old Virginia!" Almost at the same instant General Johnston Pettigrew said to the nearest officer, "Now, Colonel, for the honor of the old North State, forward!"

Forty-seven regiments, about 15,000 men, soon were in the open. Nineteen of these were from Virginia, fourteen from North Carolina, seven from Alabama, four from Mississippi and three from Tennessee. These included not only the regiments that were to make the charge but those that were to support it. In the combined force were regiments from every state east of the Mississippi.

Dressing their line in the open, the column of attack went forward as if on parade. Never was there a more gallant sight than when the advance began. The extreme left was held by Mayo's brigade in a single line. To the right of Mayo were two lines and, on the extreme right, the plan was that Armistead should follow Kemper, and Wilcox, Armistead. Under a cloudless sky, every regimental flag was plainly visible through the scudding smoke. "It's All My Fault!"

The line went silently forward, part of it through the guns, and did not waver or waste a cartridge. As soon as it was within effective range, the Federal artillery opened on it from front and from flank. Still the formation was preserved until, at last, the whole force disappeared in the smoke and in the dust of exploding shell.

STATES DRAFT ANTI-SYPHILIS LEGISLATION

CHICAGO, July 4 (AP)—Three more states went on the eugenic standard today.

A fourth also modernized its marriage laws this year, but the change will not become effective until March 1, 1940.

The movement to bring statutes into line with the times made notable headway in the last legislative session, a survey showed.

"On the basis of even a cursory glance at marriage regulations," the council of state governments reported, "it would seem evident that a definite need exists for adequate standards of uniformity."

New York state, starting today, prohibits the marriage of persons with communicable syphilis. The new law requires prospective newlyweds to submit to a physician's examination and serological blood test.

In an effort to curtail "cocktail" marriages, New York enacted in 1937 a law requiring a 72-hour lapse between the issuance of a marriage certificate and the performance of the ceremony.

Other States Strict. A new statute in Rhode Island proves that before a marriage certificate is issued, both man and woman must be certified by a physician to be free from communicable venereal diseases and tuberculosis. If either person is found to have one of these diseases, treatment must be taken. If a couple is married outside the state and returns within six months to live in Rhode Island, examinations then must be made.

A second law stipulates an expectant mother must be examined by a physician for the presence of venereal diseases within 30 days after the first professional visit by a doctor giving pre-natal care.

The crusade against syphilis impelled New Jersey to require marriage license applicants to present a physician's certificate showing freedom from the disease in communicable form. Another Jersey law, effective next January 1, will compel expectant mothers to take syphilis tests.

In Kentucky, effective in 1940, both applicants for a marriage license must show they are free from venereal disease.

YOU ARE NOT HOT—IT'S ONLY YOUR 'HOT' MENTAL ATTITUDE

Officials of the city and county health offices have a batch of suggestions how to endure hot weather more comfortably.

To begin with, they say, a whole lot depends on the mental attitude. Folks who are always thinking and talking about the high temperature just naturally feel hotter than those who don't. Therefore, rule No. 1 on how to be happy though hot is to quit thinking of and looking at the thermometer.

Here are others: Seek cooling breezes, but avoid drafts when overheated and when walking some distance choose the shady side of the streets.

Wear clothing light in weight, light in color porous and loose on the body. Light-colored clothes reflect rays of the sun better than dark. While loose, porous garments allow the body to "breathe." Clothing should be changed as soon as possible after it becomes damp with perspiration for in that condition it is not only uncomfortable but it interferes with proper ventilation from the body surface.

Drink plenty of cool water (some authorities say a little salt added is beneficial to help replace in the tissues that are lost by excessive perspiration), but drink water slowly if it has been iced.

The diet should be balanced, but light, with emphasis laid on fresh vegetables, fruits, salads, and milk. There should be reduction in the amount of proteins (meat) eaten and a minimum of fats.

Bathe frequently, lay off of arguments, exercise in moderation, rest a while, if possible, in the hottest part of the day go on about your daily routine of business, and be cheerful.

FINEST MONUMENT OF ANCIENT EGYPT PUT TOGETHER IN CAIRO

CAIRO, July 4 (AP)—A gigantic jigsaw puzzle of bits of stone has been put together by two French egyptologists to recreate a 12th dynasty temple of Amon, relic of the art which flourished by the Nile, 3,500 years ago.

Experts say it is the finest monument of ancient Egypt in existence. Digging in the dust at Karnak, 400 miles south of Cairo, the scientists found broken blocks and fragments—some no bigger than a man's hand—which they used to rebuild the ancient temple.

The workers were Pierre Lacau, former director general of the Egyptian State Antiquities departments, and Henry Chevrier, director of works at Karnak.

They stumbled upon the jigsaw puzzle when they were working on the Pylon of Amenophis III in 1924 and found its foundations largely were decorated blocks from older monuments, which later rulers pulled down and used again.

By last winter 951 blocks from 11 different monuments were assembled. Blocks for two monuments virtually were complete.

Originally built to mark the first jubilee of King Senusert I, the reconstructed monument is mounted on a raised base approached from opposite sides by stairways which are flanked by low balustrades.

In the center of each stairway is a sloping passage for carrying the ent and statue of Amon—human-headed God of Thebes.

On the base stands 16 columns in groups of four, supporting architraves or lintels, and a flat roof.

Figures of Nile Gods. On the inner sides of the balustrades are listed every province or "Nome" of Egypt, their capitals and their Gods.

From this list—the oldest known—egyptologists orient the monument, since Nomes of lower Egypt would be on the north side and those of upper Egypt on the south.

Front and back bases have figures of Nile Gods bringing offerings. Above the Nomes list horizontal inscriptions record that the monument was erected to mark Senusert's jubilee. Above them are scenes of the king presenting offerings to the God Amen-Ra.

The faces of the rectangular columns show Monthu, ancient God of Thebes, presenting the king to Amen-Ra.

Most blocks which had supported the pylon for more than 3,000 years were broken. It took 28 days to extract the only intact column from the foundations.

Next year the archaeologists plan to restore an alabaster monument of the early 17th dynasty, built during the co-regency of Amenophis I and Tutmosis I.

MISS HAWKINS AND E. RILEY WED SATURDAY

Miss Inez Hawkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hawkins, became the bride of Elbert Riley in an impressive ring ceremony Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The nuptial vows were spoken in the parsonage of the First Baptist church with the Rev. C. Gordon Bayless officiating.

Members of the wedding party were Mrs. Paul Crossman, Miss Frieda Richards, P. M. Culbertson, and Pat Patterson.

The bride was attractively dressed in a navy blue net dress in white hand embroidery, with matching navy blue net gloves and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and baby breath.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was given in the home of P. M. Culbertson.

Mrs. Riley was a popular student of the Pampa high school where she was a leader of the Harvester pep squad. Mr. Riley is connected with the Culbertson-Smalling Chevrolet Company where he is employed as shop foreman. He was formerly a student of the West Texas State Christian College.

The couple will be at home at 608 East Kingsmill street.

HOUSEDRESSES PROMOTED FROM KITCHEN TO THE LIVING ROOM

By MARIAN YOUNG, NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—The newest house dresses are as fashion-right in the living room or on the porch as they are practical and comfortable in the kitchen. Except that they are as inexpensive and just as easy to wash and iron, this summer's frocks for the busy housewife to wear at her work have no relation to the voluminous wrap-around and plain white cover-all effects that distinguished (?) the houses dresses of yesterday.

For the young, slender woman, printed cotton, dirndl-type house dresses take the spotlight. Cut with low necklines, short sleeves and very full skirts, these are especially suitable for one who is active. In the first place, she does not have to wear a slip or a girle underneath such a full skirt. Secondly a dirndl is so easy to get into that anyone can slip on a clean one while walking from the kitchen to the front door to answer the bell.

There are wrap-around frocks which can be opened out flat for ironing, of course. But they are much more subtly cut these days. Indeed, they mold the figure as flatly as does a dinner dress, and their skirts are flared to make legs look more graceful.

One especially attractive wrap-around house dress of this type is of a dimity print—white background with clusters of bright little blossoms, finished at neckline, sleeves and pocket with rows of self-fabric ruffles. The skirt which flares slightly at the hem-line is simply cut so that it stays wrapped around once you get it on. It costs less than two dollars.

These days, the woman whose career is her home, buys clothes to wear while doing her daily chores as carefully as the business girl chooses street-dresses for the office. She may buy two or three frocks, but she makes sure that each

NEW MEMBERS OF ALPHA MU HEAR REVIEW

New members of the Alpha Mu chapter of the Delphian Society met Friday morning in the city club rooms to hear a review of the first four sessions of the year.

Mrs. W. A. Brining, leader of the program, discussed "The Aims and Methods of Orientation for Modern Times." Mrs. Bob Thompson spoke on "The Christian Commonwealth of Feudal Europe." Another topic, "The Losing Struggle of Country Against Town," was presented by Mrs. E. B. Tracey. The program was closed with the discussion of "The Golden Age of the Town and of the Fair" by Mrs. C. E. Cary.

The next meeting of the group will be in the home of Mrs. Bob Thompson at 9 o'clock on July 15. Mrs. N. E. Boggs will be the leader at this meeting.

Attending the session on Friday were Misses Fred Thompson, Frank McAfee, T. F. Morton, Ira Spearman, C. E. Cary, E. B. Tracey, Mrs. Bob Thompson, one new member, Mrs. Lee Harrah, and one guest, Miss Billie Rogers of Abilene.

FOX TERRIER GUARDS 'KIDNAPPED' KITTENS

PHILADELPHIA, July 4. (AP)—Nipped a tiny fox terrier, fealously guarded today three kittens she "kidnaped" from a nearby house.

She squeezed through her private swinging panel in a rear screen door last Sunday and stole the kittens while her master, Louis Abrams, was away.

Carrying them gently in her mouth she brought them home—one by one—and placed them in a living room chair.

There Abrams found her. And there she has remained since, scolding food and all visitors.

and every one is really becoming. She wouldn't think of wearing bed-room slippers or badly worn, broken down street shoes about the house.

Her every-day shoes probably are flat-heeled and a half size larger than those for street, but they are in good condition. They give her feet adequate support and they are not ugly.

If her budget is pretty limited, she doesn't wear very sheer, easily damaged stockings about the house, of course. But neither does she go around in old stockings that are full of rips, holes and holes.

Instead, she buys service weight silk or lisle hose which wear and wear and wear.

Furthermore, to protect her hair while sleeping or using the vacuum-cleaner, she wears a gayly printed handkerchief—not a dust cap!

Commandments for Selecting Vacation Wardrobe Named

By ADELAIDE KERR, AP Fashion Editor
Commandments for chic on vacations.

1. Remember to keep your baggage light.
2. Choose a travel suit, which is light in weight and neutral in color. Keep it free of light soiled accents which can't be changed.
3. Select play clothes which will dress you for the things you intend to do. (Swim suit and beach coat, slacks and shirt and three-piece play suit are the three sides of the summer sports clothes triangle.)
4. Build your wardrobe around one color scheme—not six.
5. Remember the charm and lingerie of white for both clothes and lingerie.
6. Do not forget that sports girdles are as necessary as evening girdles. (The new ones have detachable supporters.)
7. Consider the comfort of wash-

POPULAR PAIR MARRIES HERE ON SATURDAY

Miss Betty Hunter, daughter of Mrs. Lillie M. Hunter, and Dan Buzzard, son of Mrs. Myrtle Buzzard, were married in a simple ceremony Saturday evening at 10 o'clock at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. John O. Scott.

The bride was attractively dressed in a navy blue ensemble with white accessories and a corsage.

Attending the couple were Miss Joyce Mills and Don Taylor.

Mrs. Buzzard was graduated from Pampa High School in 1936 where she was a popular student. Mr. Buzzard also attended the local high school where he was a member of the Student Council and the debate team. He is employed at the Union Bakery.

The couple will be at home at 319 East Brown street.

Miscellaneous Shower Honors Bride Recently

A miscellaneous shower was given last week in the home of Mrs. E. M. Dunsworth honoring Mrs. Clytie Sullivan who is the former Miss Clytie Ford.

Games and contests were played and a box of gifts was presented to the bride.

Refreshments of iced punch and cookies were served to Misses E. T. Clark, Minnie Tice, L. L. Brewer, Claude Crain, Clayton Tague, J. H. Tucker, Orlis Burnett, C. Redd, N. Dunsworth, Leon Crane, Milton Ford, J. W. Cardo, M. E. Waldron, B. W. Ford, Addie Buzbee, W. T. Broxson, and the honoree.

For a Fluffy Omelet
A little medium white sauce added to the egg yolks when making an omelet will give a larger quantity and a more substantial dish. For a fluffy omelet, always beat egg yolks and white separately, fold yolks into the stiffly beaten whites and pour into a hot buttered pan. If you are not handy about turning an omelet, when the mixture is browned on the bottom, put the pan under a low broiler flame and cook until firm and brown on top.

able clothes for both day and evening wear.

8. Remember the usefulness of little wraps—bright boleros, embroidered jackets and brief angora sweaters which can top both sports frocks and evening dresses.

9. Choose evening clothes which are colorful, inexpensive and as uncrushable as possible.

10. Remember your face, to keep it serene.

New Plastics Make Closets Glisten Like Jewel Boxes

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES
Prepared by McCall's Magazine For Pampa News

Suppose there were a material that looked as crystal clear as glass, but was unbreakable and light as a feather. What would you like to make with it for the house? What wouldn't you?

Now there are just such new materials. One is colored crystal, amber, red, green or blue.

People who always have felt that something new was needed for the clothes closet, will welcome hangers made of this new material—not only good-looking, but actually designed for clothes. They have chromium or gold-plated hooks for skirts, trousers, etc. There are special shapes for dresses, some curved up at the ends for evening frocks. Others have cross-bars for trousers or skirts and lingerie holders with notches for shoulder straps.

Closet rods are made of the same material, and boxes of all sizes and shapes, including a new blanket box, are made of another transparent material. The possible color combinations can transform almost any closet into a jewel box. What could be cooler-looking than crystal and green for summer?

For new window treatments, curtain rods and rings come in transparent crystals and contrasting colors—several rings can be clipped together for tie-backs or festoons.

Rings are made for graceful supports for small table trays for cocktails or flower vase holders. The table top is a flat piece of opaque plastic, in a choice of shapes; the rings are clipped on as legs, which are easily detached so the tray can be stored flat when not in use. Separate rings may be fastened to a shelf for use as tie-holders.

The box material also comes in baskets of various shapes, which will hold water—and flowers; or they may be used for fruit centerpieces.

In Japan, telephones are bought, not rented. Prices range as high as $300.

MARKET CARDS WILL CONTROL COTTON SALES

WASHINGTON, July 4 (AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment administration announced today it will use marketing cards to regulate sale of this year's cotton crop under marketing quota provisions of the new crop control law.

Quotas were approved by more than 92 percent of the cotton growers voting in a referendum March 12. The new cotton marketing season will open next month.

Under the control program, AAA officials expect to hold production and marketings of 1938 grown cotton below 13,000,000 bales compared with about 18,750,000 bales produced last year. They estimate there is a surplus of about 13,000,000 bales of American cotton in domestic and world markets.

The cotton marketing quota of a farm will be the normal production, or the actual production, whichever is the greater, of the acreage allotment of that farm plus the amount of cotton from any previous crop which producers may have on hand. Acreage allotments were made early in the spring.

The quota for a farm that has overplanted its acreage allotment will be considered to be the normal production of the allotment until it is determined by the county AAA committee from ginning reports and other evidence that the actual production of the acreage allotment is in excess of normal, the AAA said.

If the actual production of the acreage allotment is found to be greater than normal, the county committee will increase the farm quota to the amount of the actual production of the acreage allotment.

Any cotton marketed by a producer in excess of his quota will be subject to a tax of two cents a pound. The buyer will be held subject to a tax of two cents a pound. The buyer will be held responsible for collection of the tax, which must be paid over to local AAA committees within 30 days after the sale. The committees in turn will pay the tax money into the federal treasury.

Officials said that two types of marketing quota cards will be used. One kind will go to producers who planted within their acreage allotments and another to those who overplanted. This will be done to help buyers keep a check on sales, officials explained.

On a farm planting within its acreage allotment, the producer will get a card indicating that he may sell without payment of any penalty all the cotton produced on that farm and any cotton on hand from a previous crop.

A producer receiving this type of card may also receive a certificate, as evidence that he holds the card, to be used in marketing cotton by telephone, telegraph, mail or other

CARSON HONORS FIRST SHERIFF AND CONSTABLE

(From the Panhandle Herald.)

The only two survivors of the first Carson County officers who were sworn in 50 years ago Wednesday, J. S. Wynne, sheriff, now of Pampa, and J. E. Southwood, constable, were guests of honor at a dinner at Panhandle Wednesday night. The present officials and a few persons from Panhandle and White Deer were present.

Producers on which farms the total production does not exceed 1,000 pounds of lint cotton will be exempt from the 2-cent penalty tax for excess sales.

All farmers will be required to show buyers their marketing cards or certificates at the time of sale. The quota regulations require ginners to keep a record of all cotton ginned and to submit a report of ginnings to county committees twice each month.

The regulations provide that the marketing quota of a farm or a producer's share of the quota can not be assigned or transferred to another farm.

Following the dinner, Sheriff T. B. Harris presented each of the old-time peace officers with certificates as honorary deputies.

Both of the men were among the 10 officers who were sworn in on June 29, 1888, when Carson County was first organized and separated from Donley County. Judge B. H. White, of Clarendon, came to Panhandle to officiate at the first swearing in of officers in the temporary court house in townsite company offices.

The early officers included O. H. Nelson, county judge; W. C. Bright, county and district clerk; J. S. Wynne, sheriff and tax collector; D. B. McKenzie, tax assessor; J. E. Southwood, constable; J. S. Kimsey, justice of the peace; J. H. Carter, commissioner of precinct 1; W. P. Snodgrass, commissioner of precinct 2; A. S. McKinney, commissioner of precinct 3, and W. S. Razzett, commissioner of precinct 4.

Judge Southwood, who has lived in this county 51 years, recalled coming here with the townsite company, Finch, Lord & Nelson, in April, 1887. He was engaged in the feed business here in early days, later served as county judge and for many years has been a prosperous farmer of the Plains.

Wynne was a cowboy on a ranch near Clarendon when he ventured into the northern counties of the Panhandle in 1886 as a guide for a surveying outfit headed by a Capt. Field. Reaching Tascosa, Wynne turned his duties over to another man and went back to Clarendon.

He was elected sheriff after coming to the county and was sworn in with the first officers. He later served as commissioner from the eastern part of the county.

"They couldn't get me to leave Carson County, so they surveyed me out," he recalled humorously. "The four sections of land which Wynne filed on were finally located in Gray County when a correction was made in the line between Carson and Gray."

A special tribute was paid to the pioneer officials by Curtis Douglas.

500 WIDOWERS AND WIDOWS ENJOY PARTY

NORTH COHACTON, N. Y., July 4 (AP)—It started as a joke—this widows' and widowers' party—but some 500 took it seriously and attended.

From the time the widows tossed out their slippers in the afternoon until a band played the last dance in the park pavilion, widows and widowers romped at nearby Loon lake.

The slipper tossing was a "get acquainted" stunt. Each widow took off one slipper and threw it on a

SAFETY RULES DEvised TO CUT 4TH ROAD TOLL

AUSTIN, July 4 (AP)—The gasty death toll of Fourth-of-July celebrations, with hazards heightened this year because of the double holiday, today prompted state police to devise these safety rules:

- (1) Start motor trips early
- (2) Stay off congested roads if possible, give proper signals at all times, be eternally vigilant and don't park on highways.
- (3) Avoid night driving and the fatal "twilight hour" or, if you must, keep your tail and headlights and dimmers in excellent working order.
- (4) Exert all possible caution in swimming and diving.
- (5) Don't use fireworks.

The department of public safety warned that, based on the law of averages, no fewer than 21 persons are sentenced to violent death on the week-end among them might be members of your family or you!

Wynne, sheriff and tax collector; D. B. McKenzie, tax assessor; J. E. Southwood, constable; J. S. Kimsey, justice of the peace; J. H. Carter, commissioner of precinct 1; W. P. Snodgrass, commissioner of precinct 2; A. S. McKinney, commissioner of precinct 3, and W. S. Razzett, commissioner of precinct 4.

County officials and visitors were introduced by W. W. Simmons, editor of the White Deer Review, who acted as toastmaster for the occasion.

Both of the old-timers recalled how early plans by the railroad would have made Panhandle the chief center of the Panhandle-Plains but alteration of plans resulted in the junction of the Port Worth & Denver and the Panhandle & Santa Fe railway at Amarillo.

When the town of Panhandle was in this infant stage the chief spots of attraction among the settlements of the vast plains region were old Mobeetie and old Clarendon, Wynne related.

Pittsburg In 2nd Place After Beating Cardinals

(By The Associated Press)

National League fans, already more than a little bewildered by the numerous unexpected happenings through the first half of their pennant race, probably are wondering if they haven't succumbed to vertigo when they see the Pittsburgh Pirates up there in second place.

It has become something of a senior circuit tradition that the Pirates look very good for a month or so and then collapse in mid-season. This year's Bucs, instead of collapsing, have begun to spurt.

Pittsburg trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals in both games of yesterday's doubleheader, 6-5, and 6-2. Before the day's largest National League crowd, 29,863, the grays had a record of five straight triumphs and 21 in their last 29 games—a drive that has carried them from fifth place to second.

The League-leading New York Giants, meanwhile, were splitting a bargain bill with the Boston Bees, winning 5-3 from their ex-nemesis, Jim Turner, then losing 2-0 to Lou Fette.

The New York Yankees took even an more important step when they whipped the Boston Bees, 9-3, for their eighth straight victory while Cleveland was breaking even with the Chicago White Sox. They thus gained a chance to capture the American League today if they win two more and the Indians lose twice.

The other major development yesterday came when Chicago's Cubs handed Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati his first defeat in ten starts, 4-3, and took over third place from the Reds.

It was Mace Brown, the guy who never starts a game, who pulled Pittsburgh through its 12-inning opener against the Cards. He relieved Jim Tobin in the eighth and gave up only two hits. Russ Bauers followed with the six-hitter and Arky Vaughan contributed a homer to the second victory.

The Brooklyn Dodgers rounded out the National League slate by winning their first doubleheader of the year. They beat the Phillies, 3-1, and 2-0, on the smart pitching of Vito Tamulis and Bill Posedel.

Bill Dickey drove in four runs, three with a homer, to pace the Yankees to their victory. Cleveland won the opener, 2-1, behind Johnny Allen's seven-hit flinging, then dropped another well-pitched game, 3-0, as Thornton Lee held the tribe to four blows.

The St. Louis Browns made it three straight over Detroit by winning a twin bill, 6-5 and 6-2. They had to score in the tenth, however, to take the opener. The Athletics and Washington both ended five-game losing streaks as Philadelphia won the opener, 3-0, on George Caster's four-hit flinging, and the Senators came back to win 14-2 on a similar job by Monte Weaver.

'THE GREAT LENGLEN,' FORMER WORLD'S TENNIS CHAMPION DIES

PARIS, July 4 (AP)—Dynamic Suzanne Lenglen died early today of an illness aggravated by her absorbing interest in tennis, the game she once ruled as world queen.

Doctors attributed her inability to throw off pernicious anemia to a general breakdown resulting from months of intensive work as head of a new government tennis school.

The 39-year-old French woman, who named herself "The Great Lenglen," lived for tennis almost to the moment of her death. Over the week-end, despite her weakness, she demanded newspapers and read the results of the Wimbledon tournament where she was supreme from 1919 to 1925, except in 1924 when she did not play.

It was there she kept Queen Mary waiting in 1926 after an audience was arranged, and then refused to play, declaring she was "indisposed."

Shortly after, she turned professional for an exhibition tour of the United States, Canada and Cuba. With money—estimated at $200,000—from the tour she retired to live quietly, playing tennis only for pleasure until she took over the government school.

Lenglen, who won her first championship at the age of 14 and the following year made a clean sweep of world titles for women's singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles, put all her energies into the school designed to turn promising young French players into world champions.

A little over two weeks ago doctors announced she had been ordered to take an extended rest. For the last few days, Lenglen admitted her only chance of recovery was her indomitable will. She grew steadily weaker over the week-end, and was unable to take any further blood transfusions to which doctors had resorted a week ago Wednesday.

FRED WOLCOTT WINS HURDLES AT NAU MEET

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 4 (AP)—Only a handful of the old reliables remained today on the national A. U. track and field championship list, following the golden jubilee meet in Buffalo's new $2,000,000 civic stadium, but they included the athletic world's "old man river" himself, Glenn Cunningham.

After capturing the classic 1500 meters or "metric mile" for the fourth straight year and the fifth time in six seasons, by only a one-foot margin over Wisconsin's Chuck Penske, Cunningham remarked: "It looks like, one by one, they're beginning to catch up with me. I don't know how much longer I'll be able to give 'em a run."

Cunningham looked a bit drawn at the end of one of his busiest campaigns—probably his greatest campaign, taking into account his indoor performances, including a world record 4:04.4 mile at Dartmouth.

His time for the metric mile, 3:52.2, on a new track with a gusty wind adding to difficulties, wasn't impressive. But the old master's staying powers were sufficient to turn back the brilliant bid of his youthful rival, Penske, with Archie San Romani and Louis Zamperini also beaten off.

For business as well as family reasons Cunningham declined an invitation to join the American forces this month for meets in England and Sweden, followed by a duel competition with Germany, Aug. 13-14, in the Olympic stadium at Berlin.

In Cunningham's place, for this assignment, will be Penske.

Doubleheaders To Be Played Today

(By The Associated Press)

As to today's fireworks, doubleheaders in all Texas league games with a struggle for berths in the first division.

Seven runs in the ninth inning enabled the Beaumont Exporters to knock the San Antonio Missions out of the first division last night to the tune of 11-2. Every man in the Beaumont starting lineup hit safely.

The Dallas Steers stepped into sixth position with a 11-2 victory over the Fort Worth Cats as Sal Gliatto marked up his twelfth victory.

The cellar-dwelling Shreveport Sports lost to the Houston Buffs, 7-2 as the latter took advantage of Shreveport errors. Two walks and two singles in the fifth sent Junie Barnes, losing pitcher, to the showers. Gick, who succeeded him, gave up two more unearned markers in the eighth.

Wiley Moore, Oklahoma City hurler, lost his first game for the Indians when he dropped a 10-inning contest to Tulsa, 2-1. Faulty support in the tenth started the Oilers' drive for the winning run.

Major Leagues To Play For Blood Wednesday

By GALE TALBOT

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP)—The annual mid-season battle between American Leagues Wednesday afternoon at Crosley Field in Cincinnati promises to bear slight resemblance to the original "dream game" played so light-heartedly six years ago.

What started as a frolic for charity has developed into something dead serious. There is talk that the contest might be abolished after the next season, and it probably will be if the National Leaguers don't start winning.

There will be hard playing on the field Wednesday. The two circuits are actively antagonistic these days. They fell out at their joint winter meeting over the type of baseball to be used, and they pulled still further apart the past spring over that scandalous magazine piece, "The New Minor League—The National."

The Nationals were, and still are, honestly consider themselves a stronger league from top to bottom. They largely blame the all-star game for having cast them in a poor light. Their only victory in the five games played was in 1936.

Originally, the nation's fans were supposed to select the two clubs, but that didn't work. The managers of the two teams quickly perceived that the customers were too sentimental. They were too prone to choose the illustrious old-timers who had lost the whip from their arms.

So the managers began slipping in some ringers. And the American League in particular jammed all the power it could find into its lineup.

Last year they dropped all pretense of having a "dream game," told the fans to mind their own business, and went at the thing in earnest. Joe McCarthy of the Americans and Bill Terry of the Nationals were permitted to pick their teams, more or less, after they had received recommendations from the seven other pilots in each circuit.

Joe and Bill have made their picks again, and each will field what he considers his strongest team on Wednesday. They are limited in their strategy only by the fact that a pitcher may not work more than three innings.

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP)—Don't be surprised if Bobby Feller doesn't get into the all-star game. . . . Unless the Nationals start knocking the stars off the other guys, and Joe McCarthy has to use him to stop it. . . . It doesn't make sense, but they keep talking about Jim Braddock coming back. . . . ## HAPPIEST BIRTHDAY

Among the millions of birthdays occurring each year here and there on the earth's face, there is one which is absolutely unique. It is the Fourth of July.

Unlike the proverbial actress, the United States is proud to give its right age. The more than one hundred and fifty years of existence it can boast have all been passed as a democracy, under one type of government and one Constitution. Only the government of England can boast a longer existence.

But the United States has enjoyed the liberty and justice that come only under democracy for over a century and a half now. Every additional birthday becomes a cause for greater rejoicing, for it helps to prove that freedom is the only enduring ideal in a changing world.

It is hard to realize that America has had so many birthdays. Democracy does not show its age. Today, when reactionary systems of all kinds are running wild over half the globe, this country of ours seems by contrast younger than ever for it has the vitality and the strength that goes with youth.

And the Fourth of July—the most important birthday in the world—should be our reminder that democracy is the only way of life that ensures happy birthdays for all of us who live and enjoy our freedom under it.

GOVERNMENT-OWNED PAPERS

Speaking in Toronto last week at a public gathering in Masonic Temple, Heywood Brown, president of the American Newspaper Guild advocated establishment of government-owned newspapers in large cities where control of "existing newspapers is in the hands of single interests."

"Integrity of the news is more important than any 'freedom of the press' catchword," he said. "We need a large number of newspapers if we are to have real freedom of the press."

We believe he delivered himself of his finest and most considered thought on this subject, and for that reason consider his statement interesting.

The truth seems to be that Mr. Brown is chafing sorely under the present system of government in the United States. With the record of the Communist and Fascist dictatorships and their government-controlled press in front of him, he calls for government-owned newspapers. With all of his newspaper experience he thinks that official newspapers would preserve the integrity of the news, that politicians are more worthy judges of the "truth" in any situation than a free editor under the present system.

Mr. Brown, personally, has been well-used by the press system he so glibly detests. He has made a large part of his reputation as a free writing dissenter, and his ideas have been freely printed. And yet he advocates government-owned newspapers! Free as he is, a politically-dictated press would crush him as quickly as it would any critic.

Millions of newspaper readers are ready to refute Mr. Brown's suggestion. Newspaper circulations at the present time are the highest in newspaper history. And no ward-heeler or politician wields a big stick to make people buy.

Perhaps that is Mr. Brown's ideal. A government-owned paper, printing government, approved news, and purchased by government coercion—Editor and Publisher.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

WASHINGTON—In spite of all these spy stories, the War and Navy buildings are not the most carefully watched buildings in Washington. Most guarded is the Federal Reserve building.

One afternoon, just to be hectic we walked through the Navy building down one corridor and into another, and then toward the Army's in addition. Not once were we stopped, or even eyed, so far as we could tell. But when we crossed Constitution avenue and entered the Federal Reserve building a guard stopped us in the first 20 feet.

Nothing gruff about the guards. They are pleasant enough young fellows, dressed in dark blue uniforms with a neck or two of light. "Can I help you?" said Guard Number One.

"I have an appointment." "With whom, please?" "So we told him. He passed us through and we went up to the second floor, heading for an office we had visited repeatedly before."

Guard Number Two "We were waiting confidently along when another guard nailed us. By that time we were a bit subdued by the magnificence of it all, for all of the buildings in Washington the Federal Reserve makes us feel most acutely the "grandeur that was Rome"—or was it Greece?

The guard guard snarled us in a little circular hallway from which passages led in several directions. "Are you looking for someone?" Guard Number Two asked us. He was taking no chances but plunked himself smack in front of us. We named our name as well as the name of the man we came to see. All these he telephoned some place or other, and then told us politely to wait five minutes in a side room.

Tex's Topics

Well, here it is—the glorious Fourth of July, when nine-tenths of the populace heads off on a picnic or something. The skipper of this space is going picnicking this afternoon after the paper has been put to bed. Tomorrow I'll probably be limping around with sore tendons and be complaining of chiggers.

There's something about a holiday in summer that causes people to go a bit off what is commonly known as an "even keel." Instead of staying at home and eating off a clean table and clean dishes, they much prefer to go out and fight off mosquitoes and rattlesnakes and juggle a piece of cake on which the ants are trying to play a game of tag.

True, we are an odd lot. I don't go much for poetry—being too low-brow. But a reader has contributed a piece, containing rhyming words, which doesn't exactly come under the heading of poetry. It has to do with the present day trend in fashions for the women, and it goes like this:

Half an inch, half an inch
Half an inch shorter—
Whether the dress is for Mother or daughter—
Briefly the dresses grow,
Puffier the ruffles flow,
More whisking glimpses show—
More than they oughter.

Watermelon time is here—and, for that matter, cantaloupe time is here. My time is your time, your time is my time—and there'll be a hot time in the old town tonight. The fellow must have strayed away from his keeper. The psychopathic ward is two coors west. That's what the Fourth of July does to me—blows me up. Some of the town's bigger and better fishermen are plotting a mountain angling trip around August first. Ah, but think of the rattlesnakes! If I go, it will be a non-sleeping expedition insofar as I'm concerned.

Here's a letter from my good friend, John McCarty, over at Amarillo, and he asks me if I'll accept part of the responsibility for the Will Rogers Memorial Celebration which is to be held in Amarillo next month. Editor McCarty is chairman of the committee, and he has a big task ahead. Pampa always has been willing to cooperate with movements of this sort, and I'm sure that Pampa will be in there pitching to make the Will Rogers Celebration the biggest thing of its kind ever held in the Southwest. However, there are a lot of good men here in Pampa who should be on that committee and I'm going to forward their names to Mr. McCarty. I'll do what I can to help, but after all, I'm just a boy in this Panhandle country.

I don't understand why so many people have been complaining of the heat for the past few days. This weather is the stuff. It's not too hot. I find that if I take off my coat and roll up my sleeves, I begin to get pretty hot, too—but, if I leave my coat on, buttoned up, it has the psychological effect of coolness, and because I have my coat on I just naturally feel that it must be cooler than if I take my coat off, which is an admission that it must be too hot. Screwy! Well, perhaps, but it works. Try it some time.

Presently the guard came for us with a "this way, please." We thought we would be allowed to take the next 10 steps to our goal without company, but that was a mistake. Guard Number Two produced a Negro attendant who showed us to the doorway down a marble lined hallway behind which was our man.

Wrestling champion, and the novelty is tremendous. Leavitt will grapple for a full reel—his biggest footage to date—with Joe E. Brown. And that, in a way, was what led him surely into the art of acting—and eventually, therefore, into Hollywood. For he took up wrestling even then, and now—

Dick Powell "Mr. Blondell," but Leavitt built his fame as "Mr. Dean." His wife, down Georgia way still is known as Dora Dean, and Frank (when he isn't Mr. Dean) as Man Mountain Dean.

This, he explains, was due to his wrestling tour of Germany. The name Leavitt—although his family had been Yanks for generations—was suspect in Hitler's Germany. He had to use Dean to get his mat license. As his wife was his manager anyway, that seemed the right name to use. He had met her in Miami, Fla., while traffic-copping. He had wrestled as well as been wounded during the war, and punctured a kidney in an early match thereafter. The job in traffic served during recuperation.

Doubled for Laughlin. Mrs. Dean piloted Frank through Germany and England, and it was in London that his talents as an actor—and his beard—were discovered simultaneously. Doubled for Charles Laughlin in a brief wrestling sequence for "Henry the Eighth." Frank couldn't keep his false beard on, so grew his own—and kept it. Whether that started it or not, his ring performances have caused certain sports observers to laud him as the greatest of all actors. But until how no studio has given more than passing recognition to his talents.

Leavitt may be prevented from capitalizing on his newly won film success. Stern duty calls. He's running for the Georgia legislature, and must hit himself back home to make speeches and kiss babies—these not too frightened. He denies that his spectacles are being used to read up on political matters. "What politician," he demands, "ever had to read anything?"

Meanwhile, among his cherished possessions is a tent-like full dress suit. A movie actor never knows when he'll need one, as he told David Loew, his producer, on arrival.

Even his best friends don't recognize Jack Cracker since he dropped those 40-odd pounds. He streamlined himself now to a shadowy 160.

People You Know

By ARCHER FULLINGIM.

The following bit of rhyme which propounds interesting theories about mocking birds, was contributed by an anonymous author:

Mocking-bird, why do you sing so late tonight, and always in dark of moon instead of light? Are your dreams so pleasant you can not sleep? Or do you listen for your young's first peep? Are you so modest you can not hear praise that you sing your song nights instead of days? Or is it criticism that you fear, and think late at night you can not sleep? For at night your own true notes are shaping while by day other birds you at spring. Do you stand night guard over nest and mate and compose your song to keep you awake? Whatever the reason in your lonely hours, you have helped me through many "grave yard" towers.

Thanks, Mister, for that verse—this one likes it and has had similar thoughts several times.

The Capital Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL.

AUSTIN, July 4 (AP)—The daughter of a woman killed in an automobile accident has written Gov. James V. Allred to praise a published article by him urging traffic safety and to suggest that all drivers in Texas carry liability insurance.

She said her mother, "like millions of others," was struck by an automobile driven by a person who "had no financial standing whatsoever."

"Would it not be a fine thing to add to the safety campaign some kind of protection for the families of the unfortunate victims?" she asked.

"In this state, we do not have compulsory liability for automobile drivers, and in the absence of this I believe every automobile driver should be urged to carry at least five hundred dollars in accident insurance to be paid to the family of any person who might be killed by an automobile driven by anyone, liability being admitted."

"Such a contract could be put in force for a premium of one dollar per year, and I really believe that the people of Texas would cooperate with a plan of this nature and, in so doing, would have a constant reminder of their responsibility to their fellow man."

The State Insurance Department said Massachusetts alone had compulsory liability insurance, but several require automobile drivers to give evidence of "financial responsibility" in lieu of carrying insurance.

Several years ago a bill to make liability insurance mandatory in Texas was introduced in the legislature, but made no headway.

Decision of the Railroad Commission to allow greater oil production in July than in June was not surprising to the industry, said operators attending the statewide production hearing here June 30.

In the first place, July and August are the months of greatest gasoline consumption, because they are the months when America goes traveling.

Texas oil fields was ordered weeks ago, it was forecast by some that the lid would be removed, at least partially, before the election of July 23, if conditions in any way justified it.

Two members of the Commission running for office are C. V. Terrell, chairman, and Ernest O. Thompson, candidates, respectively, for re-election and governor.

The Commission had a very difficult course to steer in connection with curbing the state's production, everyone familiar with its problems concedes.

It has had to move between the scylla of large production with a resulting possible break in the price structure and the charybdis of restricted output with oil field workers thrown out of employment and royalty owners reaping smaller profits.

Men out of work and making less money as a result of action by the Commission might not be in the frame of mind to vote for the commissioners. Therefore, the shot in arm of increased July production, Friends say the commissioners had to choose what they considered the lesser of two evils, the statewide closings two days in the week.

If they had let production go unrestrained, then the price structure possibly would have collapsed and more people would have been hurt and more votes alienated than there were as a result of the shutdowns.

There was considerable fun at the statewide hearing, despite the admitted seriousness of the questions to be considered.

One laugh came when Dewey Lawrence of Tyler, after commending the Commission for its handling of the situation remarked he represented 8,500 persons "over 21 years old."

Someone asked Lawrence, who, incidentally, is a former assistant attorney general, whether the voters to whom he referred had paid their poll taxes.

Len Smith, another member of the Commission, queried whether there were any women on the list.

"Yes," Lawrence replied, "lots of 'em," but I neglected to get their telephone numbers.

R. H. Foster of Fort Worth told a story to emphasize his contention the Commission should be careful how it increased the state's production.

He told of a small boy who was operated on for appendicitis and was getting along nicely. Then his mother remembered the lad's fondness for a cabbage and when a nurse was not looking slipped into the hospital and feed the child. A relapse followed.

Foster urged the Commission "not to give the oil industry any cabbage" and under "good work."

Reynold Buck, representing the Barnsdall Oil Company, was questioned by Commissioner Thompson. For a time it was not clear what Thompson was trying to draw from the witness. Finally Thompson turned to the audience and said:

ABILITY-TO-PAY-TAX THEORY A MOST DANGEROUS OPIATE

"Strong Should Help the Weak." It is conceded by those who now oppose the theory of taxation-in-proportion to ability to pay, that the strong should contribute to the social group in proportion to ability; that those social groups which best devise a way of using the aggregate talents of all their members are the groups that will survive. They contend, however, that taxing people in proportion to ability to pay, instead of bringing about this desirable and necessary condition, only makes it impossible for those with certain natural talents to use them to the benefit of the social group as a whole.

The Law of Natural Selection. The advocates of the ability to pay theory have overlooked one fundamental law which has never been violated with success. Inasmuch as nature decrees that, by the law of natural selection, groups of society and civilizations, as well as individuals, shall contribute for survival, it is essential that each individual contribute not directly to the government in proportion to ability to pay but to SOCIETY as a whole, if the society is to survive and prosper.

Each major organ of the human body—the heart, the brain the lungs etc.—must contribute to the whole body the function for which it was evolved, or it or the whole body cannot survive; just so, in a sound social body, every citizen must contribute to society the functions of his natural talents. It is his duty to perform so that both he and the social body, the nation, of which he is a part, will grow and survive in the natural selection of social groups.

Our Mistakes. But where we have made our mistake is in assuming the GOVERNMENT and SOCIETY as a whole are ONE and the SAME. And by this assumption, believing that when an individual contributed to the government in proportion to his ability, he was contributing to SOCIETY in proportion to ability. For this reason, we err in concluding that each individual should contribute to the GOVERNMENT in proportion to his ability; when, under the free enterprise system, government can supply, economically, only a fraction of the needs of SOCIETY. Through this error, we are violating the primary principle of the natural division of labor—the stewardship of talents.

How's Your Health?

By IAGO GALDSTON, M. D.

The original drug, protosol, from which the now widely applied sulphonamide was derived, was produced in Germany in 1932. Its medicinal effects were first generally disclosed in 1935, and during the last three years the drug, as well as several of its derivatives, has been extensively used in treating a number of conditions.

The publicity accorded these chemical compounds in the press has been enormous. The work of studying the curative and preventive values of protosol and its daughter drugs has been done at a feverish tempo. And yet an immense field for new and for further study remains.

Protosol has been a great stimulus to chemotherapy. For a long time it was believed that artificially produced chemical compounds were useless in treating diseases caused by bacterial agents. Their effectiveness it was thought was restricted to the protozoal organisms (those belonging to the animal kingdom). While the protozoal agents are the causes of some very destructive diseases—syphilis and malaria—the vast majority of infectious diseases are due to the organisms of the vegetable kingdom, the bacteria.

Protosol has been found effective against certain bacteria, and does not seem to have any effect on experimental syphilis.

Since the discovery of protosol, more than a thousand related compounds have been made synthetically by its discoverers, and many of these are now being tried out.

Similar work is being done in many of the world's chemical laboratories. It is hoped that some of these new compounds may prove effective against certain of the bacteria which are not affected by protosol, or by any of its available modifications.

One of the fascinations in chemotherapy is that even slight variations in chemical structure may profoundly alter the effectiveness of a compound against a given organism. The chemist is like a locksmith who, mainly by trial and error, must fit a key to a cylinder lock of many tumbler. The promise is great, and we may soon have new chemical compounds with which to overcome other bacterial infections.

While rice is a universal food to almost all classes of people in the Orient, oddly enough it is a semi-luxury to 150,000,000 poor people living north of the Yangtze Valley in China. Millet is the staple food in that locality and rice is eaten only on festive occasions.

Frivolity - A Symptom Of Basic Well-Being

By BRUCE CATTON

Every time hot weather comes on, and the American indulges himself in his incurable interest in all of the active and passive sports, someone is sure to complain that this simply proves how very frivolous, low-brow, and generally light-minded we all are.

A prize fight draws a million-dollar gate, two hot big league pennant races set whole cities half delirious, golf courses and bathing beaches do a hand-office business, swing music festivals draw enormous crowds, motorists set out on their annual heira to cool breezes and inspiring scenery—and someone is certain to pipe up that we are a heedless folk, fiddling while Rome burns.

Now it is quite true that dire events are taking shape in this world, and that a man seriously given to worry could sit down and find food for steady, uninterrupted pessimism for weeks on end.

Yet this very frivolity of ours is probably one of the most encouraging symptoms we could possibly display right now.

Obviously, a nation which can suspend all its other business for a couple of days to wonder which of two prize fighters will beat the other one is not a nation which is living under the shadow of immediate disaster. A city which can go haywire over its ball team is still enjoying pretty robust health. And a country which can send its citizens out to spend $4,000,000,000 on the vacation highways is a long way from collapse.

We have our troubles, they're big ones, and we're going to be a long time solving them.

But the basic fact, underneath them all, is that we are the luckiest people in the world today.

Our economic system is in bad shape—but it has more of the elements needed to restore it to complete health than any other system on earth.

We have much unrest and dissatisfaction among our people—but we have less than any other great nation, and we have a better chance to cure what we do have.

We face the danger of a world war—but if any action can stay out of that war, we can, and no nation can be as confident of ultimate victory if war should come in spite of everything.

We are hurt to remind ourselves of these things. They simply mean that although things are bad, they could be ever so much worse—and that they are probably going to get better faster than we sometimes suppose.

Yesterday Joe and the Weasel entered Kelly's cafe. They were there when Kelly opens up to admit the Weasel and Joe and Kelly.

CHAPTER XI

A BOLT slid and a key turned. The door opened a crack. An automatic held in a slim hand shot out. And the eyes of Cissy, coming around the door, peered cautiously into the night. Then, seeing that it was indeed the Weasel evidently holding dominion over two unknowns, she flung the door wide and stood arms akimbo, the gun still held in her right hand.

"So you've got tangled up with a red-head, have you?" she said to the Weasel.

The Weasel made a depreciatory gesture. "You don't understand, babe. Dis—dis is bizness." Then he told her of his trip.

"Well, that wins the hat," she said.

"Huh?"

"I said when they dealt out the brains, you drew a bust hand. Here you've got a red on this guy"—she gestured at Joe—"and you're going to cut him in fifty-fifty. Some snatcher you've turned out to be, Weasel."

The Weasel shifted uncomfortably. "Well, I give him me word."

Cissy laughed harshly. "He can have that. You give it to me all the time and it ain't worth a dime. Listen, stupid, I'm handling this from now on. And there'll be no cut for anybody but you and me."

"A what-can-I-do expression decorated the Weasel's face as he looked at Joe."

"Geez, pal," he said, "I'm sorry." Joe waved his hand. Never before had he dismissed half of a hundred thousand dollar ransom so airily.

"Skip it," he said. "You can't help it. You're in a spot. But I think your—girl friend might be a little more generous. What with the money you'll get out of this snatcher and the twenty grand you lifted from that bank, you—"

He was interrupted by a shrill squeal from Kelly, a squeal of pure wrath. He looked at her. She was advancing on the Weasel sinuously, like a kind of blond cobra.

"So?" she hissed. "Holding out on me, eh? What's all this about—twenty thousand and a bank?"

"I stuck up a bank," he broke down and confessed. Cissy's eyes narrowed. "Oh, you did, did you? And you wasn't going to tell me? All right, you big tramp. Hand over half of it and hand it quick!"

Shamefacedly the Weasel pulled out his ill-gotten gains and counted off ten $1000 bills.

"Geez," he said, "dat's a moll for you, ain't it? A hard-workin' guy like me don't get no place."

Cissy swooped up the money as she swoops the eagle upon the lamb.

"That's the way us Chicago girls do," she said complacently.

At that precise moment in the world's history the setup in the little kitchen was as follows: Kelly Archer sat on the table, her legs crossed; Mr. Joseph Herendeen Sandham was draped around a straight-backed chair and the chair was tilted back against the wall; Mr. Ed (Weasel) Weynowski stood discomfited in the middle of the floor clutching what remained of his loot and the blond Cissy was busily depositing ten thousand dollars in the top of her stocking. For the first time since the party had entered the house the Weasel and Cissy were slightly off guard. It was the psychological moment for the Assyrian to descend like the wolf on the fold. The Assyrian did.

There was a sudden crash of glass. A stentorian voice shouted: "Don't move, any of you. You're covered." At the same instant came a loud banging on the kitchen door.

Cissy made one dramatic attempt to give battle. She whirled like a tiger and, shooting from the hip, shot out the light. It was a futile gesture. Instantly the beam of a powerful electric torch lit up the room. The glare took Cissy between the eyes, blinding her momentarily.

"Drop that gun," rapped out the authoritative voice from the window.

Cissy dropped it. The banging on the door ended when one of the panels crashed in. A hand came through and turned the key from the inside. A second later the place was blue with police officers.

Ed the Weasel, standing stupidly in the middle of the floor, found himself seized and handcuffed expertly to the blond Cissy. The policemen hustled them into the living-room of the cottage. Kelly and Joe were escorted in rather than hustled. Lights went up.

"Not hurt, are you?" the officer in charge asked Kelly. "They treat you all right?"

"Perfect hosts," Kelly assured him. "I've had a lovely evening."

MOTHER GETS LETTERS FROM HER DEAD SON

LOS ANGELES, July 4 (AP)—Grandmother Julia Columbo, her health better at 78 than in any recent year, patiently waited today for the mailman to bring her a letter from her favorite son.

Now that doctors are restoring part of her sight, lifting the darkness from her small shut-in world, Grandmother Columbo dreams of the time when she can read her son's letters with her own eyes.

Unfailing, one letter arrives each week. They tell of new adventures, new successes. And sometimes they make Grandmother Columbo feel almost too excited and happy, for she has an invalid's heart.

The letters are Grandmother Columbo's life.

So long as she lives, she will never know they are a merciful fraud.

Four years ago—September 2, 1934—her son was killed.

He was Russ Columbo; handsome, black-haired band leader; romantic crooner of songs. When a bullet, accidentally discharged from an old pistol he was examining with a friend, took his life, his mother was too ill to be told.

Her family began a deception. They wrote letters in his name. They invented details of a career which took him abroad and prevented him, because of so much fame and fortune, from having time to return.

Each month, however, a genuine letter arrives for Mrs. Julia Columbo. It is from an insurance company. Russ had named his mother beneficiary of a $50,000 policy on his life. Without her knowing how and why, the company pays her $398 monthly, (an insurance agent disclosed today.

234,000 COLONIES OF BEES BUZZ IN TEXAS

LOCKHART, July 4 (AP)—Texas, if you didn't know, has 234,000 buzzing colonies of bees.

This information was given to delegates who today closed the two-day session of the Texas Beekeepers association. They were warned to aid in inspection of colonies to keep them free of disease.

Ivan P. Aten of D'Hanis was elected president; Howard Weaver of Navasota, vice-president; H. P. Parks of San Antonio, secretary-treasurer. Waxahachie was chosen for the 1939 meeting and all officers of the Women's Auxiliary were re-elected.
