The struggle between man and beast continues as the Dodge City, Kan., team tries to subdue this untamed horse Saturday. In this case, the horse won.

Auto thefts, burglaries keep police busy

Pampa police were kept busy over the weekend with auto thefts and burglary reports.

A total of five vehicles were stolen from various locations in Pampa from 3 a.m. to 5 a.m. Friday, police reported. All of the vehicles were later recovered, and juvenile suspects were taken into custody.

In one of the auto theft cases, Cpl. Jay Lewis located a white 1988 Chevrolet 5-10 pickup that reportedly had been stolen. Lewis attempted to stop the vehicle, but the driver evaded the officer. Lewis recovered the suspect and vehicle a short time later.

The police investigation, led by Pampa Police Detective Terry Young, continues. No further information was available as of presstime today.

Pampa police are investigating a reported burglary on Jupiter Street. The burglary was reported by the complainant, Patty Baggett, 608 Jupiter.

The burglary occurred on Friday or Saturday. Baggett stated that unknown persons entered her home and stole a blue denim purse valued at $60, one eel skin wallet valued at $40, and a Master Card credit card.

Police also are investigating a reported burglary of a motor vehicle. The burglary, reported by Perry Choate, 1112 Sierra, occurred in the driveway at his home address. The burglary occurred late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Apparently, an unknown person or persons allegedly entered the vehicle and stole six cassette tapes; numerous pens and pencils; one calculator; and one brown checkbook with Choate's name engraved on it.

In another incident, police are investigating an alleged burglary of a motor vehicle that was reported by Jeff Smyth, Monument, Colo. The incident reportedly occurred at the Northgate Inn late Friday night or early Saturday morning. A Canon Cam Corder valued at $560 was reportedly stolen from the vehicle.

Pampa police on Sunday reported their pursuit of a suspicious vehicle that refused to stop. The driver, a minor, and a passenger abandoned the vehicle after a brief pursuit. Both ran from the scene. After a brief pursuit on foot, the driver surrendered to police.

Police then discovered that the suspects were in possession of a stolen vehicle, taken from Skellytown, as well as two stolen motorcycles, one taken from Skellytown and one from Pampa.

The result of this incident culminated in the clearance of a burglary at D&M Motor Sports, the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and the theft of a motorcycle, police said.

The passenger also surrendered to police about three hours later. Both minors, age 14 each, were released to their families until such time as the case can be resolved through juvenile court proceedings. The driver of the vehicle, sustained a minor injury when he jumped from the moving vehicle.

Police also are investigating the reported burglary of a motor vehicle. The complainant is Linda Collins, 1141 Juniper. The burglary occurred either Thursday night or Friday morning.

Unknown persons entered the vehicle and removed six cassette tapes; one pair of Foster Grant sunglasses; one screwdriver; one pair of pliers; and one first-aid kit. The total value of the items stolen was estimated at $70.

The police investigation continues.

Clinton heading home from Korea visit

HONOLULU (AP) - The white sand beach and sparkling ocean beneath President Clinton's vacation suite are a world away from the rain-drenched sandbag bunkers he left behind only 18 hours earlier at the last frontier of the Cold War.

It's amazing how fast the picture changed: One frame had him standing on the Bridge of No Return in the tense Demilitarized Zone separating

North and South Korea; the next showed him splashing in the ocean with daughter Chelsea and her friends.

Both scenes happened Sunday - on a long day stretched gruelingly longer by a flight across the international dateline.

Clinton brought the memory of his DMZ visit to this vacation paradise.

"I walked out further than any American president ever had onto the Bridge of No Return, about 10 yards from the line separating South and North Korea," Clinton told thousands of well-wishers at a rally here.

"And with my binoculars I looked into the other side and I saw some young North Korean soldiers looking back at me and I thought to myself, 'I wish you could walk over this bridge and I hope it won't be long until you can, until we put down the threat of nuclear war and open up the hand of friendship.'"

Clinton's trip to the DMZ was intended to demonstrate that the United States isn't about to pull back from its military commitment in Asia and underscore demands that North Korea allow international inspectors to inspect all its nuclear sites.

It also was part of Clinton's efforts to mend relations with the military, strained somewhat by Pentagon spending cutbacks but more so by his avoidance of the draft during the Vietnam War and his plan to allow homosexuals to serve in the military.

As he approaches that decision on gays, Clinton is going out of his way to show the military - from the top brass to the front-line troops - that he is not aloof from them. It's a calculated courtship to give credibility to his role as commander in chief.

After visiting the DMZ, Clinton went to Camp Casey to address thousands of troops.

"It is a great privilege for me to be here on the frontier of freedom with the warriors of the 2nd Infantry Division," the president said.

He quickly told them that "I was in a more forward position (at the DMZ) than any president had been before."

And he won loud cheers by reminding them that "I ordered an attack on Baghdad" because of an alleged Iraqi assassination plot against former President Bush.

Arriving in Hawaii, Clinton immediately had breakfast with sailors at Pearl Harbor and then took a launch to the USS Arizona Memorial to pay his respects to those killed in Japan's sneak attack Dec. 7, 1941.

The final night of the Top O' Texas Rodeo started off with a bang and finished in spectacular action Saturday night as thousands of rodeo fans were entertained by some of the finest cowboys, cowgirls and clowns to enter the Pampa arena.

Floyd Sackett, president of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, declared this year's event a success.

"I think we had one of the better rodeos we've ever had," Sackett said. "Everything came out (well) and we're real pleased."

Part of the success Sackett was referring to had to do with the horses, calves, steers and bulls which were trucked in for the rodeo by rodeo producers Beutler & Gaylord Rodeo Co.

"Of course, Benny's stock, as always, is fantastic," Sackett said.

The other ingredient Sackett referred to in making the rodeo a success was the competitors in each event.

"We had some of the top cowboys and cowgirls and I believe I saw the best bull ride I ever saw Thursday night when Jim Sharp rode Jesse James."

The bull ride Sackett was referring to was made by a former National Finals Rodeo competitor and champion, Jim Sharp, of Stephenville. The bull, Jesse James, had only been ridden once before.

As Sharp mounted the beast Thursday, announcer Clem McSpadden let everyone know the reputation of the animal. He also informed everyone of the reputation of the man who had climbed the walls of the chute. It was a match made in heaven for a hellish event.

When it was ride over, Sharp had earned 90 points, which made him the winner. As for the bucking bovine, the light-brown outlaw had been beaten - but just barely.

As for the other events of the rodeo, they also featured some of the best competition the rodeo world has to offer.

In the steer-wrestling portion of the rodeo, Rick Bradley, a native of Burk Burnett, took top honors as he was able to overpower his steer Thursday night in a time of 4.6 seconds.

Sam Duvall, a Duvall, Okla., native, would have won the competition had it not been for a timing penalty he was assessed. His time without the penalty was a lighting 3.7 seconds.

In the next event of the rodeo, bareback bronc riding, Fort Worth native Jon Brockway won the event Friday night with a score of 78.

During Saturday night's performance, cowboy Jeff King challenged Brockway in a crowd-pleasing ride which earned him 76 points atop a bronco named Bullet Bob.

In the only event which featured a tie among its competitors, calf roping was one of the most hotly contested events of the three-day rodeo.

Roger Davis, an Elk City, Okla., native, and Bruce

Gibbs, an Olney native, split the first-place prize money as both cowboys posted times of 8.3 seconds.

Other competitors like K.C. Jones of Pueblo, Colo., and Randy McEntire of Sweetwater, Okla., were close behind the winners as they roped calves in 8.5 seconds and 8.9 seconds, respectively.

In the saddle bronc riding and barrel riding event, two other two events in the rodeo for the cowboys, the winner of each competition was decided Saturday night.

On a horse named Goodtimes, Cowboy Paul Peterson scored 79 points to win the saddle bronc riding event.

Competition in the saddle bronc riding was tough, like in many of the other events of the rodeo, as fellow cowboys Dan Etbauer of Goodwell, Okla., Shawn Badger of Burleson and Joe Belkham of Bedford all scored in the 70s Saturday night.

As for the barrel racing, Deb Mohon, a native of Gladewater, won the rodeo event as she posted a time of 16.77 seconds Saturday night.

Mohon, who is currently ranked fourth in the world in barrel racing, was a crowd pleaser as she sped around the barrels and down the length of the arena to win the competition.

In the final event of the evening, the Wrangler Bull Fights, all three rodeo clowns entered in the event posted great scores as the bull they drew tried their best to catch the clowns and leave their mark.

The most dramatic event of the competition occurred as Mike Johnson, one of the three clowns, got a little too close to the bull and caught himself on his horns falling to the ground.

The only damage seemed to be done was to Johnson's pride and the pair of suspenders which were ripped during the brief ordeal.

Fellow rodeo clown Greg Rumohr won the bull fights as he posted a score of 82 Saturday night to accompany his victories the two previous nights.

One of the ways Rumohr topped his competition was by daring maneuvers.

During Saturday's performance he exhibited one of those moves as he lined himself up in front of the bull, ran approximately 10 feet, leaped on to the side of the clown's barrel which had been knocked over and flew over the confused bull.

Prior to Saturday night's rodeo, Pampa lost in the Pony Express Race to the Amarillo team as they were able to out-manuever and out-speed the home team.

In the wild horse race, Pampa did much better as they were the only team to control, saddle and ride a wild horse the length of the arena. The best the Dodge City, Kan., team could only muster was getting a team member dragged down the arena by a horse which refused to be saddled.

While this year's rodeo might be over, Sackett said the organizers of next year's event will soon start planning that competition.

"We'll take a couple or three weeks off, maybe a month, and then we'll get our organization reorganized and start it going again. We've already contacted some of these people about coming back next year."

Rumohr scored 82 points Saturday, and took the three-night championship with the top overall average.

Flooding knocks out power in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Rising flood waters knocked out the water system in Des Moines and left thousands in the city without electricity as the out-of-control Mississippi and its tributaries swallowed more land across the Midwest.

Downtown Des Moines was closed for business today because of the weekend flooding by the Des Moines and Raccoon rivers. A water treatment plant serving about 250,000 people in the Des Moines area was forced to shut down Sunday when floodwaters rose past its 15-foot dikes.

City officials said it might take a month to restore water service. Water was trucked to distribution points in the meantime.

"It may be some time before we do some laundry," said Des Moines Mayor John "Pat" Dorrrian said today. "But we will have adequate drinking water."

Seven electric substations also were inundated, affecting up to 30,000 people before much utility service was restored. About 4,000 customers still lacked power this morning. Full restoration could take a week, officials said.

"I've never seen anything of this magnitude," said Gov. Terry Branstad, whose official residence also was without water or power. "The old-timers I've talked to say that they don't ever remember seeing anything of this magnitude."

Flooding along the Mississippi and other rivers has forced more than 30,000 people from their homes and caused 18 deaths since late last month. Officials estimate crop and property damage at more than $2 billion in South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

The White House extended federal disaster relief Sunday to 44 more counties in Missouri, bringing the total nationwide to 132. Vice President Al Gore planned to tour the waterlogged St. Louis area today.

Several hundred people in south St. Louis were asked Sunday to voluntarily leave their homes as another Mississippi tributary, the River Des Peres, continued to rise. The water was expected to soon reach a level that would flood basements and low-lying areas. Officials said utilities would be shut off tonight and police and the National Guard would begin patrolling the evacuated areas.

Forecasters predicted another two days of fairly heavy rain in the

Police Department issues June statistics report

The Uniformed Assistance Division of the Pampa Police Department responded to more calls and wrote more tickets in June than in May, according to statistics from the police department.

In all, they responded to a total of 2,235 calls for service with 1,335 of the calls going through the dispatchers office and 900 call being initiated by the officers.

That is an increase of 334 from May's total of 1,901 calls.

In 282 calls, approximately 13 percent of the total, a report was filed.

As for accidents, they decreased. In May, 42 accidents were reported by the police department. That is five more than in June when 37 were reported.

Among people arrested, the only decrease came in misdemeanor arrests. All other arrests the police department keeps records of, driving while intoxicated arrests, traffic arrests and felony arrests increased.

Three people were arrested for driving while intoxicated, 44 people were arrested for misdemeanor offenses, three people were arrested for traffic related offenses and 10 people were arrested on charges of felony offenses.

As for tickets issued, the Uniform Assistance Division issued more than 180 tickets in June. Fifty-eight tickets were issued for non-moving violations and 125 tickets were issued for moving violations.

In the previous month, the police department reported 151 tickets issued to drivers in Pampa.

For June, more than 12,700 miles were driven in patrol units in and around the city.

Anti-abortion protests stay peaceful in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Anti-abortion protests in Dallas have mirrored most of those around the country: Peaceful demonstrations, sign waving, prayers.

Operation Rescue's "Cities of Refuge" campaign began Friday night in Dallas-Fort Worth. Other areas targeted across the country include Philadelphia; Cleveland; San Jose, Calif.; Jackson, Miss.; and Melbourne, Fla. (See related story, Page 10.)

Dallas' protests have been quiet by Operation Rescue's standards. Last spring, police made more than 600 arrests during demonstrations in Buffalo, N.Y. Police in Wichita, Kan., arrested more than 2,700 people during a 46-day clinic blockade in 1991.

No arrests had been made as of late Sunday.

About 150 anti-abortion protesters demonstrated outside four women's clinics Saturday. At one clinic, police took the names of people who were blocking the doorway, giving verbal warnings that are good for 60 days.

Police Capt. Doug Kowalski said the department prefers to seek cooperation before taking formal enforcement action.

Fifty demonstrators turned their focus toward individual doctors Sunday, spreading their message through two neighborhoods.

The police department's presence was heavy, with officers on foot and on horseback monitoring the events. Police cars also lined the street where protesters walked back and forth, carrying signs with pictures of aborted fetuses.

So far, police officers have been in place before protesters arrive. The tactic calms the neighbors and ensures that protesters don't overstep their limits, Kowalski said.

"We've been able to anticipate most of their movements," Kowalski said Sunday.

On Sunday, the group visited Highland Park United Methodist Church, Dr. Norman Tompkins' place of worship. Tompkins, who occasionally has performed abortion as part of his medical practice, is a frequent target of anti-abortion protests. He did not attend Sunday's service.

The group went next to the street of Dr. Harvey Johnson. Led by Flip Benham, leader of Operation Rescue's local chapter, the protesters scattered along Johnson's North Dallas street before moving on to Tompkins' neighborhood.

Tompkins' North Dallas home was the site of further protests. An injunction forbids demonstrators from picketing within 300 feet of Tompkins' home and his street was closed to traffic Sunday for a block party.

So the group spread out along nearby streets, carrying signs and wooden crosses.

Rick Blinn, a spokesman for Dallas-Fort Worth Operation Rescue, said the group targeting Tompkins used to be just a dozen or so devoted people. Now 50 or more abortion opponents were telling Tompkins' neighbors that "he makes his money killing children."

Additional protests are planned for the week, both at doctors' homes and clinics.

While Benham had predicted that hundreds of anti-abortion protesters would turn out for the demonstrations, the group has been more modest in size. About 150 people demonstrated Saturday, and the group was decidedly smaller Sunday.

Blinn still felt satisfied with the first days of the 10-day campaign. "It's great," he said.

Road closed to Waco cult compound

By JAIME ARON
Associated Press Writer

WACO, Texas (AP) — McLennan County commissioners have decided to block off what some might call the road to ruin.

Officially, county authorities say that the road leading to the Branch Davidian sect's burned out home needs repair. But presumably the shutdown will also deter gawkers drawn from across the continent to the site made famous by David Koresh's standoff federal authorities.

Curious onlookers have gazed at the cult's 77 acres since Feb. 28, when federal agents raided the compound while trying to serve search warrants and arrest Koresh. A gun-battle erupted, killing six Davidians and four agents.

Last week county commissioners voted to put up locked gates at the north and south ends of Double E Ranch Road. Starting today, it will remain barred through Aug. 23, with only a few people holding keys.

"I think it's a good idea to keep people off the place," said Koresh's mother, Bonnie Haldeman.

Mrs. Haldeman, who used to live at the compound and visited the wasteland as recently as last weekend, is among those who believe commissioners are trying to fix more problems than just a bumpy road.

"That road's in the same shape it's always been in," she said. "I couldn't tell that anything has made it worse."

People have flocked to this out-of-the-way prairie 10 miles east of Waco since the compound burned down April 19, ending a 51-day standoff with federal authorities.

Koresh and as many as 85 followers died in or just before the blaze.

Though a tragedy, entrepreneurs zeroed in on a chance to make a quick buck. Within a week, "T-Shirt Hill" was set up more than five miles from the compound with everything from T-shirts and hats to cassette recordings of Koresh's music on sale there.

Business thrived throughout the deadlock and sales have continued to soar despite the ordeal's ending being even more disastrous than its beginning.

"It ain't gonna die down," said vendor Randy Lechler, adding that he'll be in Waco for several years. "This is going to be a historical marker. It's sad, but that's the way people are."

Lechler said about 300 people visit the site on weekdays and about 750 come on Saturdays and Sundays. The July Fourth weekend drew 2,500 over three days, he said.

One daily visitor is Bryce Rawlinson of nearby Bell Mead. The 66-year-old retiree said he hangs out at Mount Carmel just to show people around and to share his memories from the days when Lois Roden led the cult.

"They come from all walks of life," he said. "You wouldn't believe where they all come from. Some people last week were here from British Columbia. They came all the way here just to see this place."

Some, however, are disappointed by what they see. The three-story building that became instantly recognizable through television and newspaper pictures is just a memory bound by a fence. Clinging to the barbed wire are wreaths laid by mourners, surrounded by warning signs reminding that the area is quarantined.

Dusty pathways have been carved into the dried-out ground along the wire walls. Following Rawlinson around the trail provides unique insight into the past.

He pointed out an abandoned house that was one of many that lined the horseshoe-shaped road before Koresh scraped the shacks and replaced them with the three-story wooden building that so quickly incinerated.

All that's left inside the little house now are rusty nails, broken equipment, old soda cans and other junk. A friend recently put up some plywood to try keeping out souvenir hunters, but it's not doing the job.

The next stop is a bigger house, just as worn down, nestled in a far corner of the 77 acres.

Rawlinson says he has fond memories of this area. He points out the barn and pen where he bought goats from the cult, adding that the house also served as a garage for car repairs and as a shooting range.

Several piles of junk litter sides of the road back toward the main entrance: a cluster of broken refrigerators, a pile of tires, decade-old letters and a box of clothes with the name "Michele J" written on it, likely having belonged to Michele Jones, Koresh's sister-in-law.

Back toward the front and between two lakes, there's an abandoned bus. Most of the windows have been shot out and all the seats removed so the children could play in it. All around, there are trash bags filled with insulation, toys, boxes of military-style cooking and eating utensils, and clothes, some belonging to Koresh's wife, Rachel.

Jury deadlocked on penalty in 'gangsta rap' murder case

AUSTIN (AP) — A fourth motion for mistrial has been made in the punishment phase of a trial for a Houston man who has said that anti-cop rap music was part of what led him to kill a state trooper.

Allen Tanner, who has said "gangsta" rap inspired Ronald Ray Howard to kill, asked for a mistrial for the fourth time Sunday after three days of deliberations. The jury reported Saturday they were "hopelessly deadlocked" in deciding whether Howard should receive life in prison or death by injection.

State District Judge Whyland Kilgore denied the motion, which, if granted, would mean an automatic sentence of life in prison.

The eight-man, four-woman jury quit Sunday after eight hours. The jury had asked for instructions from Kilgore Saturday on how to resolve the 10-2 vote that has ground the punishment phase to a standstill.

The note, handed to the court at 5:45 p.m. Saturday, said the jury had been "hopelessly deadlocked" since 11 a.m. Saturday on whether Howard deserves to die for his crime. But the note wasn't read in court until Sunday morning.

Jurors were hung up on whether evidence that explained Howard's behavior should influence his sentence. Two of the jurors did not want to assess the death penalty because of such evidence, the note said.

"Can you give us some guidance on how to solve this problem?" the note continued.

Kilgore instructed the jurors to keep deliberating, saying the only advice he could give was contained in the written charge already delivered to them.

The jury, working through its lunch hours, deliberated for 10 1/2 hours on Friday, 9 1/2 hours on Saturday in addition to the eight hours Sunday.

The same jury took just 40 minutes last month to convict Howard of murder in the death of Department of Public Safety trooper Bill Davidson in April of last year near Victoria. Howard was stopped because the stolen vehicle he was driving had a broken headlight.

Howard's attorney has claimed the anti-cop "gangsta rap" that his client listened to was a contributing factor in the killing. Tanner also has said Howard is a product of the violent inner-city and was abused by his father.

Jackson County District Attorney Bobby Bell has said listening to anti-cop rap music is not a defense for killing an officer.

Tractor combine sales showing increase

HOUSTON (AP) — After a 10 year sales famine, combine retailers are selling more farm equipment than ever.

Industrywide sales of combines for May were up 104 percent compared with a year earlier, according to the Equipment Manufacturers Institute in Chicago, the trade group that monitors the tractor climate.

The long absence from the sales floor, combined with the fact that the secondhand farm equipment supply — fueled by farm foreclosures — are responsible for the resurgence in new buyers.

Manufacturers such as JI Case, owned by Houston-based Tenneco, report May sales of high-horsepower tractors more than doubled what they were for same month last year. Case is already sold out of combines until 1994. Those already in the hands of retailers, at more than $100,000 per machine, are the last the company has until 1994.

For the last 10 years, makers of new equipment had to compete with the mass sales of foreclosed equipment. Until recently, an abundance of good used equipment at discount prices slowed sales of new tractors and combines.

John Joyce of Boling in Wharton County, says farmers have been buying used combines at auctions for $25,000 compared with paying $125,000 for new ones.

Joyce conducts 20 to 30 auctions sales of used equipment per year.

Body found in tool box

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The skeletal remains of a man were found locked inside a large tool box that was found in some brushy hills in north San Antonio, authorities say.

Police said an elderly couple searching the hills for old cans and wood found the remains Sunday. A ruling in the death is pending an autopsy by the medical examiner's office.

"I'd say it was hidden back there on purpose," homicide Sgt. Mike Ross said.

Ross said the black, plastic tool box, which measured about 4 feet long, 2 feet deep and 2 feet wide, is the type that fits into the bed of a pickup.

The man may have been dead for almost a month, police said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

How will Americans pay the new taxes?

As the U.S. Congress churns through the seemingly endless hours of debate over the federal budget, in the subsequent sessions to reach a compromise between the House and Senate versions, millions of Americans across the land are trying to figure out how they'll pay the new taxes. Businesses are asking, "Which employees must I let go because the taxes will cut company income? Which new, jobs-producing products must I cancel research on if the capital-gains tax increase robs the seed corn of future production?"

Sealed off on Capitol Hill, isolated from the people they claim to serve, representatives and senators only can see one thing: More cash will be taken from the productive private sector of the economy to be wasted in the anti-productive special interests that pay for campaigns.

Perhaps most unfortunate about the debate is the continuing fiction that these tax increases will be used to reduce the federal deficit. On this matter, Rush Limbaugh has performed a valuable service in recent days by replaying on his radio and television shows the words of President Bush on Sept. 30, 1990, drumming up support for his late, lamented "deficit reduction" package.

In his patented lilt, Bush promised precisely the same program President Clinton has cooked up in 1993: $500 billion in alleged "deficit" reduction over five years; record tax increases including new levies on gas, cigarettes, beer and wine. Bush even excused the energy tax as promoting "conservation," the same line being used by Clinton.

The results are in: The Bush tax increases torpedoed the economy, helping to sink it into recession. Bush's 90 percent approval ratings plunged; he won just 38 percent in the November 1992 election. The deficit, far from being cut, zoomed to more than $300 billion.

Now Clinton is doing that same thing. And some Republicans apparently have not even learned the lesson of Bush's defeat. In 1993, they are trying to work out a deal with the same Democratic congressional leadership that passed the Bush tax increase in 1990. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole and other "moderate" Republicans have signed on to some of the Clinton tax increases.

No, no, no, Mr. Dole. Taxes are the problem, not the solution. Tax increases are economic and political suicide.

Wasting more taxpayers' money can never cut government waste and deficits. Only by restraining government — cutting taxes and waste — will government be returned to fiscal solvency and the U.S. economy be unshackled to grow again.

And if our elected representatives and senators, the "public servants," cannot control themselves and control the deficit, then perhaps it's time we the public begin seriously to consider ways in which we can control our elected officials in Washington, D.C.

Is the Court on to something?

The decision of the Supreme Court to listen to further arguments against gerrymandering for the purpose of cobbling together congressional districts designed to send black representatives to Washington is creating hysteria pretty much where one would expect. And it is certainly correct that the Supreme Court's opinion will have sympathetic detonations in all those explosive corners of resentment and frustration, damped down for so many years by public policies, designed to make up for slavery and Jim Crow, which simply are not working.

The opinion of Justice O'Connor is best summarized by her warning that the grotesque nature of modern gerrymandering is creating "an uncomfortable resemblance to political apartheid." It is her position, and that of the majority, that courts should at least listen to complaints that some white voters are being denied their constitutional rights to have their voices heard.

The opposition tears out its hair in frustration. "Don't you understand," they are saying, "that it is precisely what all the civil rights laws are about — trying to compensate for unforgivable historical suppression." To which position the question is asked, "But is this the way to go?"

Lino Graglia, the distinguished professor of law at the University of Texas at Austin, has a new book, The Imperiled Academy, in which he makes the basic points about affirmative action, which is the academic complement of guaranteed constituency for black congressmen. We had the Civil Rights Act of 1964 followed by the Voting Rights Act of 1965 followed by the Fair Housing Act of 1968. All of these forbade discrimination on the basis of race.

What then happened, Professor Graglia reminds us, is that the end desired did not materialize: i.e., equality of condition did not come about as a result of equality of opportunity. So that what we got was a series of court decisions — Green (requiring integration, as distinguished from forbidding discrimination), Bakke (OK'ing discrimination in favor of black students), Swann (OK'ing busing in order to effect integration), Griggs (OK'ing hiring with reference to race) and Weber (OK'ing discrimination against whites).

It transpired, says Graglia, that the standard aptitude and achievement tests served cool dispassionate notice on the nation's top college and universities that in adopting affirmative action they were attempting to square a circle. "Robert Klitgaard, a former admissions officer at Harvard, reports that of those who took the GREQ (Graduate Record Examination, Quantitative) in the 1978-79 school year, only 143 blacks had scores above 650 compared to 27,470 whites.

Among law school entrants in the fall of 1976, the total number of blacks with LSAT scores above 600 was 39; the number of whites with such scores was 13,151.

It is correct to multiply by a factor of 10 the black scores, making up for their representation in the population. But even so, we have 1,430/27,470, and 390/13,151.

But the big colleges, including Klitgaard's, were determined to have 5 percent black enrollment. Since that many did not qualify, what had to happen was a change in the curriculum. "Thus are born demands for black studies and multiculturalism, which perform the twin functions of reducing the need for ordinary academic work and providing support for the view that the academic difficulties of the black students are the result, not of substantially lower qualifications, but of racial antipathy."

And the result of the above has been as noted, frustration and resentment; but also a loss of self-esteem, and racial animosity. The distinguished black economist-sociologist Thomas Sowell put it all together: "What all the arguments and campaigns for quotas are really saying, loud and clear, is that black people just don't have it, and that they will have to be given something in order to have something. ... Those black people who are already competent ... will be completely undermined, as black becomes synonymous — in the minds of black and white alike — with incompetence, and black achievement becomes synonymous with charity or payoffs."

Graglia points out that the principal beneficiaries of affirmative action are black middle-class applicants who simply have not lived Uncle Tom's Cabin lives, and that if the point of the whole thing is to find people who are oppressed by poverty, there are plenty of white students whose claims are valid. What the Supreme Court has done is to invite attention to the generic assimilationist American position.

Are we so certain that blacks need to have black representatives in Congress? So certain of this proposition that we are ready to hire Jackson Pollock as the redistricting czar? Or could it be that the civil rights community had it right the first time around, when Martin Luther King talked about the evanescence of color, not its singularization?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, July 12, the 193rd day of 1993. There are 172 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On July 12, 1690 (by the New Style calendar), Protestant forces led by William of Orange defeated the Roman Catholic army of James II at the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland.

On this date:
In 100 B.C., the Roman Emperor Julius Caesar was born.

In 1543, England's King Henry VIII married his sixth and last wife, Catherine Parr, who outlived him.

In 1812, U.S. forces led by Gen. William Hull entered Canada during the War of 1812 against Britain. (However, Hull, retreated shortly thereafter to Detroit.)

In 1817, naturalist-author Henry David Thoreau was born in Concord, Mass.

In 1854, George Eastman, inventor of the Kodak camera, was born in Waterville, N.Y.

38 hours — with a smiling face

Arizona is more a state of mind than a state and a longtime someplace to anticipate between visits.

Phoenix in 1993 is rather like an old sweetheart who has put on weight, but then haven't we all?

Even yet the Great American West includes some of everything, and the best way I've found to hopscotch the in between is by light plane.

In a one-lung Cessna, Tim Hubbell and I took off into the pre-dawn dark from Scottsdale, Ariz., headed north by northeast across the McDowell Mountains into the land of the Navajo.

Over much of the wide, roadless West the low-level pilot still navigates the way the earliest wagon trains did — by landmarks, mountains, mesas and rivers.

Reservoirs along the Verde are filled from the wet winter.

Elk are feeding as the sun rises over the Mogolion Rim.

For a so-far lifetime I have postponed two adventures — white-water rafting and fly fishing — and the next 38 hours promised some of each.

From Scottsdale's 110-degree heat we have escaped to a cool 65 degrees within a hundred minutes as we settled onto a mile-high runway on the upslope of the Rockies near Durango, Colo.

It was there, sharing the earliest Americans' hunger for what's next, that we left civilization behind.

Paul Harvey

Barely two of our 38 hours have unfolded and we are in the midst of pinon and juniper and snow-capped peaks — adrift or wading the river San Juan.

With a patient teacher-guide, John Flick, a fledgling fly-fisherman was soon sufficiently adept at that art to bring in several beautiful rainbow trout — 20 inches and more — on a tiny 20 barbless hook so that each gallant fighter could be released unharmed to report to his schoolmates about the 200-pounder from Chicago that got away.

The night embraced two tired, happy fisherman at Wit's End Lodge.

Daybreak found us horseback up through the aspen and gamble oak, into the Ponderosa approaching the Great Divide.

There the pack horses were unburdened, and round an open fire we shared juice, eggs, flapjacks, trail coffee and spectacular vistas of the verdant valleys below.

By noontime, Day 2, we are appropriately briefed and life-jacketed and heading down the roller-coaster turbulence of the icy Rio Animas.

The wild white-water ride ended just downslope from our waiting plane.

And if what I've described sounds more like a sprint than a holiday, it's my shorthand account that's at fault.

Thirty-eight hours traveling, fishing, horseback and rafting were just right refreshing for a fugitive from civilization and its headlines and deadlines and broken water pipes.

Retracing our route homebound, Tim and I were comfortably weary, sorting our recollections, mostly in silence.

Over Canyon de Chelly, I remarked that our several adventures had never included that exciting canyon. Maybe next time.

For this time we've quite enough to remember and relive as back in the city's suffocating traffic we can frustrate the hurried, harried horn-honkers who can't imagine why in the world we are smiling.

Big Labor wants that trump card

Consider this scenario: You're the primary household breadwinner, juggling the financial responsibilities of three kids, a mortgage, car payments and doctor bills. When your company's union decides to strike, you decide to continue working.

The strike drags on for a year. During that time, you receive no raise and no promotion, even though you've put in extra hours and assumed extra responsibilities. When the strike finally ends and the union workers return, you're fired.

Sounds horribly unjust, doesn't it? Yet this is what could happen under a bill passed by the U.S. House of Representatives in mid-June.

The so-called striker-replacement bill would prohibit U.S. businesses from hiring permanent replacement workers during strikes. By increasing the power of union officials — undoing 48 years of labor law — the legislation could jeopardize the careers of thousands of wage-earners, as their employers cave in to such demands as compulsory union membership or dismissal of loyal workers who stay on board during a labor dispute.

Historically a large percentage of strikes have occurred not over worker compensation or other benefits, but over union demands to force all workers at a company to join the union — or at least pay dues to it. With union membership in the United States dramatically down (only 16 percent of U.S. workers still belong to unions), union officials are desperate to maintain their grip on power.

By preventing employers from using the only effective weapon they have against excessive union demands — the hiring of replacement workers — the striker-replacement bill would pave the way for unions to bully workers and companies into going along with their demands. Union coffers would then grow fat from the dues of workers who have no choice but to "contribute."

No wonder most Americans think the striker-replacement bill is a bad idea. A 1992 Time/CNN poll found that 60 percent of Americans opposed the bill and only 29 percent supported it. A new poll by the Marketing Research Institute showed similar results: 57 percent opposed, 29 percent in favor. Even union households gave the bill just 45 percent support.

But overwhelming public opposition — spearheaded by the National Right To Work Committee — may not stop the bill. It sailed through the House, and if it manages to survive a Senate filibuster it will quickly be signed by President Clinton, who owes political debts to Big Labor.

If this happens, the results will be predictable: more and longer strikes with greater violence. This is what happened in the Canadian province of Quebec after it passed striker-replacement legislation in 1977. In European countries with similar laws, strikes over trivial matters have led to extremely high numbers of work days lost due to strikes. In Italy, for example, more than 1,400 work days are lost per year per 1,000 workers, compared to fewer than 100 in the United States.

Big Labor and its supporters don't care how many American work days are lost due to strikes, or how much U.S. economic competitiveness is hurt, or how many jobs are lost — as long as unions gain more control of the American workplace. That's what the striker-replacement bill is really all about — a last-ditch bid for union power and union control.

Women charged more than men for same goods

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assuming that women are inexperienced in financial matters, merchants across America are charging them more than men for the same goods and services, according to a new book.

Cars, health care, dry cleaning, haircuts and clothing all cost more when women are buying, according to "Why Women Pay More" by Frances Cerra Whittelsey, a former consumer reporter for Newsday and The New York Times.

Her book was published by consumer advocate Ralph Nader's Center for Responsive Law.

Among the book's findings:

—Women buy about half the new cars sold each year, but a white woman pays about $150 more for the same car than does a white man and an African-American woman pays about $800 more.

—Doctors generally prescribe more tests and drugs and tell women to come back more times than they do for men with the same illness.

—Dry cleaners charge more for a woman's basic, white cotton shirt than for the same style in a man's size.

—Women over age 25 pay the same amount that men do for auto insurance although women have fewer accidents.

—Unisex clothes sold for men are almost always less expensive than the same style in the women's department.

—A basic shampoo, cut and blow dry is usually cheaper for a man.

The cure for this "suckerism" is to be well informed, she says. But she also delivers a bit of a lecture against becoming a slave to fashion.

"Women obsess about their appearance and fashion," Whittelsey said, citing the case of a Long Island secretary who earns $20,000 a year and pays $60 a month to maintain elaborately decorated, artificial fingernails.

High-heeled shoes also take a hit in her book.

"Stiletto heels, which make their wearers appear long-legged, force women to take small steps instead of on-the-ground strides," Whittelsey writes.

They also cause corns, callouses, inflammation of the Achilles tendon, hammertoe, general pain in the ball of the foot, an enlargement at the back of the heel bone and more visits to podiatrists than men make, she quotes a podiatrist as saying.

The book was researched over three months, with assistance from Nader's staff and relies heavily on the books and studies of others.

It includes spending tips, reading lists and the names of government and private organizations that can help with general marketplace perils, health, finance, legal needs, advertising and fashion.

Women are doubly disadvantaged because they earn less, according to the book, which says women get an average 74 cents to every dollar for a man.

The women's movement has focused on inequities in employment, said Whittelsey.

"I don't think they have looked sufficiently at the marketplace."

Part of the problem can be solved through laws, but women have to stop spending on items that are impractical and overpriced and start educating themselves, she said.

Freezer failure — HELP!

One of the most dreaded experiences for people with home freezers is discovering that the freezer door has been left open or the freezer has come unplugged! When found, the foods may be thawed or partially thawed before the situation is discovered. What can be done?

The first question always asked is, "Is the food safe to eat?" The next most common question is, "Can I refreeze the food?" Both questions go hand in hand and require some thought and consideration before answering.

Food can be refrozen safely if they still contain ice crystals or if they are still cold — about 40°F — and have been held no longer than 1 or 2 days at refrigerator temperature after thawing. If the odor or color of any food is questionable, dispose of it! The food may be dangerous. Foods that have been frozen and thawed require the same care as foods that have been frozen.

MEAT, POULTRY, FISH

Meat, including ground meat and poultry, that have any off-odor or off-color should not be frozen and should not be eaten. The appearance of red meats is changed less than that of other foods.

SHELLFISH, VEGETABLES, COOKED FOODS

Bacteria multiply rapidly in shellfish, vegetables, and cooked foods and often spoilage in these foods cannot be detected by odor. Do not refreeze any of these foods when they have completely thawed. If ice crystals are still in the food, refreeze immediately. Even partial thawing and refreezing reduces the eating quality of these foods. If the condition of these foods is questionable, dispose of them.

ICE CREAM

Thawed ice cream should not be refrozen.

FRUITS

Fruits usually ferment when they start to spoil. A little fermentation will not make fruits dangerous to eat, but it may spoil their flavor. You can refreeze thawed fruits if they still taste and smell good. Or, you can use them in cooking and baking or for making jams, jellies, and prepared foods.

Generally, a fully loaded, non-functioning freezer will stay cold enough to keep foods frozen for two days if not opened. In a freezer with less than half a load, food will remain frozen for about one day.

If power fails or the freezer stops due to mechanical failure, keep the freezer closed except when adding dry ice. If normal operation cannot be resumed before the food starts to thaw, use dry ice or move foods to a locker plant.

REFREEZE FOOD QUICKLY

Clean your freezer before refilling. Freeze thawed foods quickly. Use refrozen foods as soon as possible.

To refreeze food at home, turn the adjustable temperature control, if you freezer has one, to its coldest position. When the current comes on again, the freezer will run continuously and food will refreeze quicker. Place the warmer packages against the refrigerated surface if possible, but place them so air will circulate around them.

After the food is well frozen, turn the temperature control to its usual setting. If the freezer is too full, move some of the colder packages to the refrigerator, and return them gradually to the freezer.

WHEN THE ODOR REMAINS

If the food spoils in the freezer, stubborn odors may result. Wash the interior surface of the freezer with soda water, using one teaspoon baking soda to a quart of warm water. If the odor persists, try vinegar, using one cup vinegar to a gallon water.

If neither of these suggestions work, don't give up. Try using an electric fan for several hours to circulate air inside the freezer. Place a pan of activated charcoal into the freezer overnight to absorb odors. Then try another washing of the interior with soda water.

For more information on food safety, contact your Gray County Service.

Work of William Morris displayed

TORONTO (AP) — Nearly a century after his death, the Art Gallery of Ontario is playing host this summer to William Morris, the British artist whose Arts and Crafts movement rejected modern mass production in favor of high-quality craftsmanship and design.

"The Earthly Paradise," which runs through Sept. 6 at the gallery's Sam and Ayala Zacks Pavilion, includes some 285 paintings, drawings, prints, wallpaper, books, stained glass, photographs and furniture by the Victorian-era artist and his contemporaries.

Gallery officials say it is the most comprehensive North American survey of Morris and other artists and designers such as Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Edward Burne-Jones and William De Morgan.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Failure to measure up causes wife's patience to wear down

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily married for two years, after going with the fellow for nearly four years. I love my husband, but I can't seem to please his mother. She has found fault with me since day one. If I change my hair, she liked it better the other way. Nothing I wear is right; my skirt is either too long or too short — and my clothes are either too loose or too tight.

I have never talked back to her, but once when she was on my back about something, my husband told her to lay off and quit picking on me, so she said I was "overly sensitive." Well, she is overly insensitive, and always has to have the last word. This irritates me.

Last Sunday we were at my mother-in-law's for supper, so after we ate, everyone went to the family room and it was obvious that they expected their daughter and me to clean up the kitchen.

When my mother-in-law comes to my house, I treat her like a guest, and wouldn't think of letting her work in my kitchen.

Any advice? I'm not very good at putting on an act.

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: What happened last Sunday was caused by a difference in perception. You perceived yourself as a guest in your mother-in-law's home, but she perceived you as a member of the family. (Her daughter was the other half of the clean-up crew.)

The constant criticism to which you are being subjected is rude and insensitive. As I see it, your choices are limited. You can develop a tougher hide and tune her out. Or look into family counseling before all your little irritations snowball into one giant family freeze-out.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to Frank Richie, whose pet peeve is people who come to church services and plop themselves down at the end of the pew and expect everyone to crawl over them.

I am very short, so I always get to church early so I can get an aisle seat. I am reminded of what happened to me when our son graduated from the Air Force Academy. The graduating ceremony was to begin at 9 a.m., so the nine people in our party got up at 5:30 a.m., showered, dressed and had breakfast, and headed for the stadium at 7 a.m. We stood in line until the gates opened at 8 a.m.

I staked out an aisle seat and sat on that hard concrete for an hour. At exactly two minutes to 9, a pretty young thing trotted down the aisle on the arm of a cadet. He leaned down and asked me sweetly, "Would you mind moving down, please?" I smiled back and replied, "Young man, do you know how long I have been sitting here?"

He looked surprised and ashamed, as he found a couple of seats in the middle of the row.

JEANNE KELLY,
WEST SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR JEANNE: Thank you for writing. The number of readers who wrote to challenge Mr. Richie's sentiments was amazing.

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem small to some, but to me it's very important. My husband and I have been married for more than 30 years, during which time he has been a good husband and provider. He has only one fault, which really irritates me. He surely must take vitamin "I" because that's his favorite word.

When he talks about a trip we took together, he says, "When I went to Yosemite," or he'll say, "I have a grandson" or, "I own some land." He talks as though he doesn't have a wife. I may as well be dead. It makes me feel so small and insignificant. It's terribly humiliating.

Is it wrong to feel hurt about this? Don't suggest that I talk to my husband. I have, and it's done no good.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Your husband's overdose of vitamin "I" has probably become addictive by now, but if he's a good man, he'll make a conscious effort to avoid hurting you. Remind him that vitamin "WE" is good for marriage, and ask him to leave vitamin "I" on the shelf for a while.

Joel Arrington, a May 1993 graduate of Pampa High School, is the recipient of a $1,000 Bishop Endowed Scholarship from Wayland Baptist University. It was awarded by the Division of Religion and Philosophy at the university in Plainview. It is given to qualified students preparing for a career in Christian ministry and is renewable each year, based on qualifications and academic progress.

Arrington also received a local scholarship in the amount of $1,000 from the Nona S. Payne Charitable Trust. Several scholarships are offered each year to outstanding music students graduating from Pampa High who plan to continue their education in college with a major in music. The Payne Award was presented at the PHS choir banquet on May 22 by Fred Mays, choral director. Arrington, at the same time, was awarded the American Choral Directors Association National Student Award.

He plans to enter WBU in the fall and major in church music.

ABILENE — Dannie Cagle, Pampa, has been named to the Honor Roll at Hardin-Simmons University for the spring semester 1993. Students who make the Honor Roll must carry 12 or more semester hours of work and have at least a 3.0 grade point average for the semester.

LUBBOCK — Tracie Renae Orman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Orman, Pampa, received a

Rangers top Jays, sweep series Astros stomp Cubs

TORONTO (AP) — The Texas Rangers and the Toronto Blue Jays reached the All-Star break headed in opposite directions.

The Rangers, getting two-run homers from Ivan Rodriguez, Julio Franco and Dean Palmer, won for the eighth time in nine games and completed a four-game sweep of the Blue Jays with an 11-6 victory Sunday.

The loss was Toronto's 10th in 11 games.

"To come from where we came to where we are now means a lot," Texas manager Kevin Kennedy said after his club finished its 11-game road trip 9-2.

"We can't play any worse than we played in June, but this team never quit," said Kennedy. "We were down by about six runs to Jack McDowell and fought back, and we were down 6-0 to Randy Johnson and didn't quit."

The difference, he said, is discipline. "We're doing the little things right," he said. "We're stressing things such as moving the runner up and being more selective, and it's paying off."

For Palmer, the break comes just as he's doing big things.

"It would be nice to keep right on playing," said Palmer, who had three RBIs to give him 14 in his last four games. "I've just been fortunate enough to be in a position to come to the plate with runners on."

"The key will be to maintain in through the second half. If I can do it and we get a healthy Nolan Ryan back, we stand as good a chance as anybody of winning the division."

Charlie Leibrandt (9-4) beat the Blue Jays for the first time since May 5, 1987, allowing six runs on 10 hits over 6 2-3 innings.

Leibrandt, 0-5 in his previous nine starts against Toronto, struck out three and walked one.

"The key for this team will be getting our starters pitching into the sixth and seventh inning on a regular basis," said Leibrandt. "We're not going to score 11 runs every game."

Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston wished the break came 10 games sooner.

"I think we're all a little exhausted right now," he said. "We've played about 50 games now with only a couple days off. I don't think we've lost our focus. We're just going through a bad period right now."

The Rangers opened a 10-3 lead with a run in the sixth and three more in the seventh.

Doug Strange's run-scoring double in the sixth made it 7-3. Rafael Palmeiro extended his hitting streak to 13 games with a bases-loaded, two-run single off Woody Williams an inning later, and Palmer hit a sacrifice fly to make it 10-3.

Palmer returned to the lineup Saturday after missing two games with a strained muscle in his right elbow.

Joe Carter's RBI single gave the Blue Jays a 1-0 lead in the first, but Rodriguez homered off Dave Stewart (4-4) after Dan Peltier's single in the second, making it 2-1.

Stewart lasted six innings, allowing seven runs on seven hits.

Turner Ward hit a run-scoring triple and Roberto Alomar an RBI double in the second to put the Jays back in front, 3-2, but the Rangers regained the lead with a four-run rally in their next at-bat.

David Hulse tripled with one out in front of Franco's ninth home run, and Palmer hit his 21st homer three batters later, after Juan Gonzalez was safe on a fielding error by Ed Sprague.

Ward and Devon White hit RBI doubles in the seventh and Paul Molitor added a run-scoring single to cut the Rangers' lead to 10-6.

Pinch runner Butch Davis scored an insurance run on a wild pitch by Duane Ward in the ninth.

While the Rangers are on their way up in the standings, the Blue Jays, losers of 10 of their last 11 games, will head into the break, holding on to top spot in the AL East — barely.

"We've been fortunate that none of the teams chasing us have been hot, or we could have just as easily been in second, third or fourth place," Gaston said.

Houston pitching comes alive in series

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs manager Jim Lefebvre issued a veiled warning to his team as it headed into the All-Star break four games below .500 and 14 1/2 out of first.

"We should spend a few days with our families and come back Wednesday committed to playing the kind of ball we can the rest of the way. Let's find out who wants to stay and play ball here," Lefebvre said.

Three Houston pitchers combined for a three-hitter Sunday, giving the Astros a 10-1 victory and three wins in a four-game weekend series that included a one-hitter by Pete Harnisch in the opener of Saturday's doubleheader.

"That's the secret for us. Solid pitching is tough to beat. You have to have that consistency more often," said Astros manager Art Howe.

Sunday's win went to Mark Portugal (7-4), who reportedly is being sought by the Chicago White Sox. He worked into the eighth inning, giving up two hits, walking five and striking out four.

"If I'm traded, I'm traded. I can't control that. I would like to stay here," he said. "We have a good nucleus. But if they want to send me, that's their prerogative."

Tom Edens retired the three batters he faced in the eighth and Doug Jones pitched the ninth, giving up one single.

Greg Hibbard held Houston hitless through five innings, but then the Astros got the break they needed.

Trailing 1-0, Andujar Cedeno led off with a single. One out later, Craig Biggio hit a grounder to third baseman Eric Yelding, whose throw to second sailed into right field for an error. And when Candy Maldonado overran the ball for another error, Cedeno raced home and Biggio went to third.

"Hibbard is a ground-ball pitcher and you have to turn the double play. I screwed up," said Yelding.

Hibbard said: "It should have been a routine double play, but those things happen. The only thing we can do is forget about it."

After an infield out, Jeff Bagwell walked and then both runners scored on Ken Caminiti's double for a 3-1 lead.

Chris James was then walked intentionally, and Anthony followed with his seventh home run for a 6-1 lead.

"That kind of fired me up when (Lefebvre) put C.J. on and I beat him. I showed him I could get the job done," said Anthony.

Howe said the home run "broke the game open. Eric came through. That's what we have to do in the second half (of the season). We have to relax in those situations and make the pitcher come to us."

A two-run homer by Steve Finley in the eighth and an RBI double by Luis Gonzalez, plus a run-scoring single by Chris Donnels in the ninth concluded the Astros' scoring.

Hibbard pitched six innings, allowing no earned runs, walking three and striking out two.

"Who knows, if it hadn't been for that error (by Yelding), Hibbard might have won 1-0," Lefebvre said. "It just fell apart after that."

Nicklaus captures Senior Open title

DENVER (AP) — Under cool, cloudy conditions on a course softened by early-morning rain, Tom Weiskopf threatened to run away with the U.S. Senior Open — until Jack Nicklaus got in the way, as he always seems to do.

Nicklaus sank a 12-foot birdie putt at the 16th hole to inch ahead of Weiskopf and capture his first title since winning this same event two years ago.

For Weiskopf, the result wasn't surprising. He has continually played in Nicklaus' shadow, including two runnerup finishes to his fellow Ohio State alumnus at the Masters.

"I gave it the best run I possibly could," Weiskopf said. "I played the best four rounds of golf I have ever played under these types of conditions. I know in my mind no one played better than I did from tee to green. I just didn't putt as well as some of the other guys. Jack was just one stroke better than I was. Sure, I'm disappointed, but this has happened to me before."

Weiskopf knew his valiant bid was over as soon as his nemesis hit the green with his approach shot at No. 18, even though Nicklaus was 35 feet away on the treacherous green, needing two putts to win.

"Who can tell me when Jack Nicklaus has ever three-putted to lose a major championship or missed a putt under pressure?" Weiskopf said. "The guy is the greatest putter under pressure of all time, bar none."

Nicklaus got his par, making a 2 1/2-footer, to earn $135,330.

Asked if he ever remembered three-putting to lose a tournament, Nicklaus paused and said, "I don't recall one. I've blown a few tournaments, but I don't think I've blown too many of them that way. Actually, I didn't three-putt a green all week. I three-putted once or twice from the fringe, but not from the green."

Nicklaus, 53, finished with a 1-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 6-under 278. Weiskopf, who closed with a 67, wound up at 279. Kermit

Zarley was third, another stroke back, and Dale Douglass tied with Chi Chi Rodriguez for fourth at 281.

Nicklaus, who entered the final round with a 1-stroke lead over Douglass and a 4-shot advantage over Weiskopf, saw his advantage dissipate in the face of a furious flurry by Weiskopf, who birdied five of his first eight holes.

Taming the putting paralysis that had gripped him for three rounds, Weiskopf vaulted to 6-under-par for the tournament and climbed ahead of Nicklaus and Douglass.

Weiskopf's 5-under 30 on the front nine tied a Senior Open record. Nicklaus, however, drew back into a tie for the lead with a two-foot birdie putt at the seventh hole.

While Douglass slipped back with bogeys at the 10th and 12th holes, Nicklaus and Weiskopf stayed within one stroke of each other.

Weiskopf, 50, reclaimed the lead with his sixth birdie of the day at No. 13 but fell back into a tie when his tee shot at the par-3 15th rolled to the edge of the green and he three-putted for bogey.

Weiskopf failed to take advantage of a birdie opportunity at the par-5 17th when his tee shot sailed into the right rough and his second shot to the island green was partially blocked by trees. He had to lay up and settle for par.

Nicklaus then went ahead, hitting an eight-iron 12 feet behind the hole at No. 16 and making the putt.

He played the 17th conservatively, laying up for a safe par. With thunder rumbling overhead, he two-putted the difficult 18th for his sixth Senior Tour title — all in majors. Nicklaus also has won 18 majors on the regular tour, as well as two U.S. Amateur titles.

Groundbreaking female reporter Martini dies

HOUSTON (AP) — Atlanta Falcons coach Jerry Glanville recalls the impression that broadcast sports reporter Anita Martini made upon him when he was an assistant with the Houston Oilers.

"I went home and told my wife, 'I don't know what this woman's name is, but she's the hardest-working person in sports in the city,'" Glanville said. "I love people who work hard, and Anita outworked everybody in her field."

Martini died Saturday after a long illness. She was 54.

She was a Houston broadcaster for 25 years and a leader in the battle for equal access for male and female sports journalists.

She began her radio career in 1965 doing interviews from the Astrodome stands because women journalists were not allowed onto the field.

Seven years later, she was allowed into the Dome's pressbox. In 1974, she became the first woman reporter allowed access to a major league team's locker room when Los Angeles Dodgers manager Walt Alton allowed her into the team's clubhouse at the Astrodome.

"I don't think Walter (Alton) realized until the next day what a big deal it was," Martini said last April. "He told me: 'I guess you and I have started quite a commotion here, haven't we?'"

Her struggles continued through her recent legal battle against Houston radio station KPRC, which forced her off the air in August 1991, 17 months after she underwent surgery to remove a malignant tumor from her brain.

After beginning her career with Houston radio station KTRH during the '60s, she became the nation's first woman sports anchor in the early '70s at Houston television station KPRC.

Although Martini "never was a big women's libber," she helped fight for equal access for women when the gains of the 1970s and '80s came under attack in the 1990s from such figures as Sam Wyche, then coach of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Two weeks after Wyche had barred a woman reporter from entering the Bengals' locker room after a game, Martini — although still feeling the physical impact of her 1989 cancer surgery — went into the locker room after an Oilers-Bengals game to face Wyche.

"It made me sick to see it happening all over again," she said this year. "I wasn't going to let him get away with it, not after all I had been through.

"He (Wyche) followed me all around the dressing room. Then he asked me why I was there. I told him I wanted to interview his quarterback. 'You know you just want to see me with my clothes off,' he told me.

"I wanted to smack him, but I didn't. I just said: 'Don't flatter yourself.'"

Former NBC broadcaster Joe Garagiola, who helped host a benefit dinner for Martini this year, began as a critic but became a supporter.

"My remembrances of that day (when Martini broke the locker-room barrier) were that I didn't think women reporters belonged," he said.

"But I underestimated her. She was a good reporter. We not only became good friends, and that began just out of respect for her ability, but she knew her job and she was going to get that job done, regardless of what obstacles were placed in front of her.

"It's a shame that she was never exposed to the nation, because she should have been. She was the pioneer. ... There was nothing token about her. Once you started talking to her, you weren't talking male to female. You were talking one sportsperson to another."

Services will be Monday night and burial Tuesday at Calvary Cemetery in Galveston.

Baseball's slam dunk fest

Players focus on home run derby in pre-All Star Game activities

BALTIMORE (AP) — If truth be known, the players aren't yet all that concerned about the outcome of the All-Star game. It's the home run derby that's grabbing their attention now.

In an effort to match the NBA's popular All-Star weekend of dazzling dunks and thrilling 3s, baseball has put together an extravaganza of its own. Events for today at Camden Yards include an old-timers' game, All-Star workouts and the home run derby.

There will also be a celebrity derby with Michael Jordan, Patrick Ewing, Bill Murray, Tom Selleck and Jim Belushi scheduled to take some swings. Jordan just finished playing in a celebrity golf tournament, too.

The derby, a head-to-head duel modeled after a 1950s TV show, started in 1985 when Dave Parker of the NL led the way with six homers at the Metrodome. But the event really took off in 1991 at Toronto when Cal Ripken set a derby record with 12 home runs.

"That was an incredible season," said Ripken, who went on to win the MVP with 34 homers, 114 RBIs and a .323 average for Baltimore. "The ball looked like a balloon, it was a once-in-a-lifetime groove."

The next day, Ripken hit a three-run homer and was selected MVP as the American League beat the National League, 4-2, in the first All-Star game ever played at the SkyDome.

Now, the game is being played at beautiful Camden Yards for the first time. Ripken is the starting shortstop for the AL, but he's not scheduled to appear in the derby.

The AL squad is led by Cecil Fielder of Detroit, who hit a 484-foot homer onto the roof at Tiger Stadium this season. Big Cecil will be joined by Juan Gonzalez of Texas, Albert Belle of Cleveland and Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle.

The NL derby team includes Bobby Bonilla of New York, David Justice of Atlanta and rookie Mike Piazza of Los Angeles. Another NL slugger will be added.

The AL won the derby last season at San Diego, 27-13, as Oakland's Mark McGwire tied Ripken's record with 12 home runs. McGwire was given an ovation matched by anything the next day.

Other All-Stars cheered in the dugout for the big first baseman, often jumping from their seats just to see how far his homers would travel.

"It seems like the derby and Camden Yards are a perfect fit, too. The ball jumps out on a hot day and the fans in the outfield bleachers are right on top of the action."

"It's probably the nicest park in the American League," Belle said. "If I had a choice, other than home (Cleveland) this is where I would want to play the All-Star game."

There are also plenty of targets for the derby participants to aim at. There's the big brick warehouse in right field and an ivy-covered green wall behind the center-field fence. There's also a picnic area in deep left-center.

"Oriole park is beautiful," Cleveland All-Star second baseman Carlos Baerga said. "You see the ball good there and it really jumps out of that place."

A derby scorecard is now included in the official All-Star program. Each player gets to make 10 outs, with anything but a homer counting as an out.

The All-Star game could also be a home run derby, with the AL doing most of the damage. The starting pitchers have not been officially selected yet, but it might be Mark Langston of California against John Burkett of San Francisco or Tom Lave of Atlanta in a matchup of left-handers on Tuesday night (8:35 p.m. EDT, CBS).

"I've never been to Camden Yards, but I'm looking forward to seeing what all of baseball's been talking about for the last couple of years," Glavine said.

Glavine was looking forward to last year's game at Jack Murphy Stadium, too. But he gave up five runs and nine hits in 1 2-3 innings, including seven singles in the first, as the AL won 13-6.

That's all forgotten now. But they're still talking about what Ripken and McGwire did in the home run derby.

Little league softball action

Pampa stops Dumas to open regional girls tournament

Pampa All-Stars jumped on Dumas in the first inning Sunday evening, scoring five runs, and were never headed as they won game number one in a best two-out-of-three tournament in District I Girls Little League softball by a final score of 11-6.

Pampa's All-Stars remained unbeaten, handing Dumas their first loss of the tournament. With Sunday's victory, Pampa improved to 5-0.

Both Pampa and Dumas came into last night's contest having won their area tournaments, each winning four games last week. Dumas is the defending tournament champion.

The winner of this match-up will advance to the sectional tournament to be held in Pampa later this month.

Heather Petty was the winning pitcher for Pampa, going the distance on the mound. She gave up eight hits while striking out 10 and walking 12.

Pampa's stingy defense was outstanding, making some clutch plays that cut Dumas rallies throughout the game and kept Dumas in check.

Pampa's offense was held to only two base hits. Jessica Conner hit a single in the second inning, and Lisa Kirkpatrick had a single in the fourth. It was 18 walks by Dumas pitcher, Kristin Stein, and several defense errors that led to the Pampa win.

After Pampa scored five runs in the first, Dumas came back and scored three in the second. Jayme Durbin and Bethany Ratliff had back-to-back singles, along with two walks that accounted for the runs.

Pampa came back in the bottom of the third, scoring two runs. Lori Lindsey led off the inning with a walk. Kimberly Clark got on as a result of an error, which was followed by walks to Lisa Dwight, Candace Cathey and Molly Seabourn.

This made the score 7-3. Pampa got three more runs in the fourth, going up 10-3. Dumas got two in the fifth, Pampa one, and Dumas gained one last run in the top of the sixth, making the final score 11-6. Lindsey Donnell's defensive play with one out in the top of the sixth spoiled Dumas' comeback attempt.

Pampa had nine hits in the contest. Those with hits included Lindsey and Clark, two singles each. Dwight, Conner, Petty, Kirkpatrick and Tera Daugherty each had a single.

Kirkpatrick is leading the Pampa All-Stars at the plate with four homers.

The two teams will square away again today at 7 p.m. in Pampa Optimist Park. If Dumas wins tonight, another game will be played Tuesday night, also at 7 p.m. A win by Pampa will wrap up the district title in the double elimination tournament.

BaShara Chandler, Miss Northeast Texas, waves to the crowd as she is crowned Miss Texas 1993 in Fort Worth on Saturday night.

New Miss Texas used pageant winnings to pay college costs.

FORT WORTH (AP) — Some people snicker when the parade of beauties known as the Miss America contest is referred to as a "scholarship pageant."

But to BaShara "Bo" Chandler, the recently crowned Miss Texas, beauty pageants have long been a financial boon to her education.

"Girls just don't get the athletic scholarships. I just graduated from the University of Texas at Austin, where all my tuition and books were paid for through pageants," she said at a news conference Sunday. She earned a history degree and a secondary education certificate.

The 21-year-old Miss Texas 1993 put herself through the University of Texas on various pageant scholarships and says she intends to use her Miss Texas winnings to finance her dream of becoming a lawyer.

"My sister is starting college the same year I enter law school, so this scholarship will help. I've always wanted to be a lawyer, and this is the way I can do it."

Representing Garland, Miss Chandler was crowned the new Miss Texas on Saturday night in Fort Worth, emerging from a field of 68.

In addition to representing the state in the Miss America contest in September at Atlantic City, N.J., she also gets a $10,000 scholarship.

She went to high school at Lakeview Centennial High School in Garland.

The new Miss Texas, who has had nine years of piano training, performed her rendition of "Fourth Movement of Ginastera Sonata in C," in the talent competition.

She won the preliminary talent competition earlier in the week.

Chandler was one of three finalists with previous Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant experience. She was last year's second runner up in talent and won the interview and musician awards.

Preliminary competition from Wednesday through Friday narrowed the field of 68 to the 10 finalists for Saturday night's climax to the pageant.

First runnerup was LaDonna DePriest, 24, of Conroe, Miss Hurst-Euleus-Bedford; second runnerup was Angie Mabry, 22, of Pleasanton, Miss Woodlands; third runnerup was Anna Villalobos, 21, of New Waverly, Miss Lufkin; and fourth runnerup was Darcey Rushing, 21, of Odessa, Miss Dallas.

As first runnerup, Miss DePriest won a $6,000 scholarship and will become Miss Texas if for some reason Miss Chandler is unable to fulfill her duties.

Scholarships of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively went to the next three runnersup.

The other finalists were Andria Miller, 19, of Kingwood, Miss Humble-Kingwood; Chelsea Carpenter, 23, of Seguin, Miss Bowie County; Amy Cox, 23, of Fort Worth, Miss Fort Worth; Laurel Pitman, 23, of Mesquite, Miss Duncanville-De Soto; and Jennifer Bishop, 21, of Gilmer, Miss Lake O' The Pines.

No winning Saturday Lotto tickets sold

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — No winning tickets were sold in Saturday's $3 million Lotto Texas drawing, which will make the jackpot for the next drawing on Wednesday worth an estimated $10 million, state lottery officials said Sunday.

The six winning numbers were 8-25-27-32-38-45.

The state comptroller's office, which oversees the lottery, said

109 tickets were sold with 5 of 6 correct, worth $1,944 each.

There were 7,310 tickets with 4 of 6 correct, for $106 each, and 132,917 tickets with 3 of 6 right, which are worth $3 each.

Lotto sales since the previous drawing last Wednesday were $8.1 million, lottery officials said.

Total Lotto sales since the first drawing on Nov. 7 are $611.4 million, officials said.

Last of U.S. troops arrive in Macedonia

By SLOBODAN LEKIC
Associated Press Writer

SKOPJE, Macedonia (AP) — The rest of a 300-member U.S. force arrives today to help keep the peace in Macedonia. The deployment was ordered by President Clinton to prevent the spread of war from other parts of former Yugoslavia.

While there is no imminent danger, Macedonia could find itself threatened if Serbia decides to reoccupy a region it has long coveted, which Serbian nationalists consider part of "southern Serbia."

The U.S. troops from the Berlin Brigade in Germany are joining a 700-man U.N. peacekeeping force of mostly Scandinavian troops already guarding Macedonia's border with Serbia. The force is commanded by a Danish general.

"We know what they're going for but we don't really know what's going to happen once they're there," Debra Cook of San Antonio said today in Berlin as her husband, Sgt. Albert Cook, departed for Macedonia. In Berlin, 156 infantry soldiers in blue berets left today aboard two C-141 transport planes, bringing to 300 the number of U.S. troops on the ground in Macedonia, said Capt. Ronald Kollhoff at Berlin Brigade operations center.

Commanders say they expect the Americans to be on border patrol in about a month. Support units sent in the last week are making a former Yugoslav army barracks liveable.

Macedonia is now noteworthy as the only republic to have escaped Yugoslavia's bloody breakup without being dragged into the violence — so far.

"Serbia has not faced up to the fact that Macedonia is now an independent nation," Macedonian President Kiro Gligorov said in a recent interview. "There are direct pretensions and aspirations towards Macedonia."

U.N. officials concede that the peacekeepers wouldn't be of much help to Macedonia's 14,000 lightly armed soldiers and 7,000 police if war erupted.

But they emphasize that the troops' main role is to act as a trip-wire, such that if they are attacked the West presumably might step in with more force.

Political analysts here believe that Serbia's nationalist president, Slobodan Milosevic, will want to avoid a two-front war and will not venture south until war ends in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The West's indecision and unwillingness to help the Bosnian government militarily could embolden him to try another land grab once that conflict ends.

Some 60,000 heavily armed Serbian troops with hundreds of tanks remain poised just north of the vaguely defined border with Macedonia.

Serbian nationalists repeatedly call for armed intervention in Macedonia in order to "protect" Serbs there. Macedonia's 2 million people are mostly Macedonian, but include about 400,000 ethnic Albanians and small minorities of Turks, Gypsies and Serbs.

There has been relatively little unrest so far involving the Serbian minority, but the Serbs contend they are oppressed and have suggested they could ask Serbia for protection.

Fears about the fate of the Serb minorities in Croatia and Bosnia are what prompted Serbia to incite and support local rebellions when those republics broke away from Yugoslavia.

Most of Macedonia's people, appalled by the televised scenes of carnage in Bosnia, appear to welcome the U.N. presence. The only groups opposed are the Serbs and the Communist Party, which is closely allied with Serbia.

Disputes between neighboring Bulgaria, Greece and Serbia over the rugged, landlocked region ignited the Balkan wars of 1912-13, after which much of Macedonia was left in the hands of the Serbs. The area was a focal point of the struggle for control of southeast Europe in World Wars I and II.

To avoid another general Balkan war — which some fear could draw in NATO members Greece and Turkey on opposite sides — the United Nations sent the Scandinavian peacekeepers to the border with Serbia in January.

More deaths reported in Philadelphia from heat wave

By The Associated Press

A 5-degree temperature drop was as welcome as an Arctic blast for many heat-weary East Coasters, but did not stop weather-related fatalities from mounting.

The triple-digit heat that baked some areas for days fell to the mid-to-upper-90s on Sunday.

In Philadelphia, 24 people were declared dead of heat-related causes, raising the city's death toll to 41, according to Dr. Robert K. Ross, the city's health commissioner.

Many of the dead were senior citizens who lived in apartments without air conditioning, and many had underlying conditions such as heart disease or diabetes, leaving them vulnerable to the heat, Ross said.

In many jurisdictions, a heat death is defined strictly as hyperthermia, a much higher than normal body temperature. But in Philadelphia, any death in which heat played a part is termed a heat death, Ross said.

"My concern is that we're not out of the woods yet," Ross said. "We have a minimum of two more days of high heat and humidity."

Other cities reporting one death each during the heat wave were: New York City; Allentown, Pa.; Brooklawn and Camden, N.J.; Fort Loramie, Ohio; and Keene, N.H.

Meanwhile, beaches and pools were packed again Sunday from New England to Miami. Among the frolickers were nudists gathered for the American Sunbathing Association's celebration of clothes-free tanning.

"I don't see anybody seeking shade at this moment," Hessa Schneider, president of the Maine Coast Solar Bears, said at a nude picnic in Richmond.

In the Merrimack Valley in Massachusetts, about 600 Harley-Davidson motorcycle enthusiasts, many in leather outfits, made a fund-raising cruise for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"When you're sitting on one of the bikes, it's like sitting on an oven," said Chip Dougherty, assistant director of the event. "You not only get the heat from the day, but also the heat from the engine right underneath you."

Air conditioners and fans were in demand all over the region. A shipment of 150 air conditioners at a Silo appliance store in Whitehall Township, Pa., sold Saturday in less than two hours, said Kelly Smulligan, an assistant manager.

And the York Ice Co. in Pennsylvania has been selling between 150 and 175 tons of ice a day.

Abortion-rights activists rally against protests

By The Associated Press

Anti-abortion activists, in the midst of a 10-day, seven-state campaign, were greeted by demonstrations from abortion-rights protesters in Minnesota, Ohio and California.

"We're pestering them to let them know how it feels," John Stewart, an abortion-rights activist from Minneapolis, said Sunday.

"The main idea is to show their people what they do to women who try to use the clinics, and throw the same thing back in their faces."

The California and Ohio demonstrations were peaceful, but a melee between police and abortion-rights activists broke out in St. Louis Park, Minn., where members of Operation Rescue attended a church. Seven people, including an Associated Press photographer, were arrested.

Elsewhere, Operation Rescue's "Cities of Refuge" campaign was mostly peaceful. In Palm Bay, Fla., group founder Randall Terry urged members to take their fight to Congress and lobby against legislation that would limit protesters' access to abortion clinics.

"If this passes, our movement as we know it is dead," Terry told a gathering Sunday at the Zion Christian Fellowship.

The proposal, backed by the Clinton administration, would make it easier to obtain court orders halting violence, blockades or threats to women and doctors.

In Jackson, Miss., about 150 Operation Rescue members sang hymns, discussed adoptions and prayed during a two-hour rally at a church. In nearby Madison, about 20 people protested in front of the home of a doctor who performs abortions.

"We Christians do not take delight in coming to your neighborhood with this tragic news, your neighbor is an accessory to murder, legal though it may be," a notice given to neighbors said.

In Cleveland, about 15 anti-abortion protesters held a vigil Sunday night across the street from an abortion clinic. About 20 abortion-rights activists showed up to protest the vigil.

As Operation Rescue members arrived in St. Louis Park for a summer-long training program at a church about 100 abortion-rights activists chanted, beat drums and blew whistles.

"I think this is sad," said Kristi Peterson, a church member. "People are just coming to worship. This is clearly not what we're doing when we're out at a clinic — playing bongos, shouting at people."

An Associated Press photographer, who stepped past police barricades, was arrested, cited for obstruction and released. Later, police arrested a protester for shouting through a bullhorn in violation of the city's sound ordinance. Others were arrested after protesters tried to block police cars and a melee ensued.

In San Jose, Operation Rescue leaders said they would challenge a recently enacted city ordinance that led to the arrest of 15 people during a protest Saturday.

The protesters were arrested in front of the home of a doctor who performs abortions. The city recently passed a law prohibiting protesters from within 300 feet of private homes.
