Explosions Rock USS Enterprise

PEARL HARBOR (UPI)—Machinist's mate Girard Trahn stared with disbelief into a 20-foot deep hole in the fire-and-explosion-torn flight deck of the nuclear carrier USS Enterprise.

Fate of Local Sailors Unknown

The information office at Alameda Naval Base near Oakland, Calif., home port of the USS Enterprise, told the Pampa News today that no information was available on local or area sailors serving aboard the carrier.

The Pampa News has been able to learn, however, that at least two local youths were serving aboard the Enterprise. They are Hydraulics Mechanic Third Class Ennis Penland, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Penland, 412 Hughes, and Robert B. Weaver, a fireman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Weaver of Skellytown.

Penland's wife, the former Dortha McNutt, who lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe McNutt, 416 Carr St., told the Pampa News that her husband had phoned and said he was not hurt.

"He didn't say too much else, other than that it was pretty messy," she related.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ing, 408 Hill St., also told the Pampa News today that their son-in-law, Ernest E. Byars, was aboard the carrier. Ing said he did not know whether his son-in-law was hurt or not, but said his daughter was scheduled to telephone sometime today to inform them.

"Thank God," he said. "They moved me out of that compartment last week."

Soot and grime covering his clothes from hours of firefighting, the 23-year-old sailor from Central Falls, R.I., was among dozens of crewmen who narrowly escaped death or serious injury Tuesday when explosions and fire swept the Big E, the world's largest warship.

The Navy said today 25 men were killed, 17 were missing and 85 injured. Identities were withheld while families were being notified.

The 90,000-ton Enterprise returned to Pearl Harbor showing the scars of the tragedy which one shipyard worker said put it in the worst condition he had seen any ship since World War II.

The inferno ignited at the onset of a practice bombing mission at sea 75 miles southwest of here. Fifteen planes were destroyed.

Preparing For Vietnam
 The ship and her crew of 5,400 men were preparing for their fourth tour of duty off Vietnam.

Training flights were in progress with 14 planes already launched when the explosions and flames swept across 75 yards of the rear end of the flight deck shortly after 8 a.m. The planes were loaded with rockets, bombs and 20-millimeter ammunition to be used in a mock attack on the small island of Kahoolawe, a frequent bombing target used by Navy carrier planes before assignment to Vietnam.

The blasts and blaze ripped three large holes from the flight deck to compartments three levels below, and touched off a rescue mission involving dozens of emergency helicopters and (See ENTERPRISE, Page 3)

Nation Pauses To Honor Late Martin King Jr.

By United Press International
 He would have been 40 years old today—the man whose cry of "free at last" rallied so many black Americans to his nonviolent cause.

The nation paused today to honor the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Memorial services were planned in cities and towns across the country. But in some communities there was controversy over how best to mark the anniversary of King's birth.

The school board of Long Beach, N.Y., on Long Island, refused to declare a holiday to mark King's birthday following a stormy session Tuesday night.

James Graydon, president of the Long Beach chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), earlier had warned of "trouble" in Long Beach High School if the holiday were not granted.

In Pennsylvania, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer proclaimed today as "Dr. Martin Luther King Day." "It is well that we honor the memory of this man who aroused a new pride and determination in the people of his race and who inspired a redefinition of all Americans to those vital principles outlined in our constitution," said Shafer.

In New York City, special programs and ceremonies were ordered at all public and Roman Catholic schools in honor of King.

The school districts of Yonkers, White Plains and Central District 7 of Greenburgh, all in Westchester County, N.Y., suspended classes today for King's birthday. Special programs and services were to be held in all three districts throughout the week.

In Atlanta, King's birthplace, his widow, Coretta King, scheduled an announcement today on a memorial to her late husband.

Mrs. King planned to fly to New York later today for a plane flight to Italy, where she will have an audience with Pope Paul VI on Monday. She will return to the United States Jan. 27.

Soviet Cosmonauts Prepare To Link Up

MOSCOW (UPI)—Three Soviet cosmonauts rode a Soyuz 5 spacecraft today into earth orbit and began maneuvers leading to a link-up with Vladimir Shatalov in Soyuz 4, launched Tuesday.

Western experts predicted the Soviets would launch more Soyuz vehicles soon and all would lock together and begin forming a space station circling the earth.

The four Soviet cosmonauts, all on their first space missions, matched the group of four U.S. Gemini astronauts in 1965 as the largest contingent of spacemen in orbit at once. In two capsules, the Gemini fliers rendezvoused but did not link together.

Tass said Shatalov watched from his craft as Soyuz 5 sped into orbit. "Au revoir in outer space," he called to the three newcomers hurtling toward him.

If successful, the link-up will be the first between two manned space vehicles and may lead to an immediate try for one of the Soyuz 5 cosmonauts (See SOVIET, Page 3)

March of Dimes Chapter Slates Vaccine Project

A continuing polio immunization program for county residents who could not otherwise afford it is being undertaken by the Gray County Chapter of The National Foundation—March of Dimes.

According to Don Lusher, chairman of the local chapter, the project is designed to provide protection against polio for those adults and children who have not received polio vaccine in more than three years.

Gray County medical doctors are cooperating in the program in which The Foundation will underwrite the cost of the vaccine for anyone who could not otherwise afford it.

Members of the Pampa High School Key Club and Tru-Teens are in the process of distributing special "polio vaccine" cards to doctors' offices throughout the area. Cards will also be available at the Red Cross office, the Salvation Army and the Chamber of Commerce.

Interested persons may complete the card, present it to their doctor, and obtain immunization without charge.

Lusher said medical experts recommend all children and adults who have not received the polio vaccine within the last three years to consult their (See MOD, Page 3)

Anonymous Tip Leads Authorities to Clues

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—An unidentified ex-convict named in an anonymous tip is a prime suspect in the double murder of a pretty University of Texas coed and her boyfriend, Travis County Sheriff T. C. Lang said today.

Lang said Texas authorities began a search for the suspect who previously had been convicted of burglary. No arrest warrant had been issued but officers sought the suspect for questioning, the sheriff said.

Lang also said today for the first time that witnesses noted "a distinctive marking" on the Volkswagen believed used by the killer of Keitha Morris, 19, of White Deer, and her date, John Albert White, 21, of Corpus Christi.

Lang said the note came from a witness. The sheriff declined to elaborate.

A sheriff's spokesman said the second license plate named in the anonymous tip belonged to a University of Texas student who died from an "over" (See COED, Page 3)

Morton Sobell Released From Federal Prison

NEW YORK (UPI)—Morton Sobell, convicted of conspiring to give Russia the secret of America's atom bomb, was free today, having served nearly 13 years of a 30-year prison term.

The 51-year-old former engineer was greeted by his 74-year-old mother, his wife and their two children when he arrived Tuesday night by bus from the federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa.

He had been released from prison on a few hours notice after federal court ruled Tuesday that he was entitled to credit for 7½ months he served in prison between arrest and sentencing.

Those months, added to time taken off his sentence for good behavior, entitled him to an immediate release.

Sobell was convicted in 1951 along with Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, David Greenglass, of conspiring to give Soviet agents a sketch of the "Fat Man" atomic bomb which was dropped on Nagasaki in 1945.

The Rosenbergs, found guilty of actually handing the sketch to a Russian vice consul in New York, were convicted of espionage and executed June 19, 1953.

Greenglass, who testified for the government, was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment and released after serving 10 years. Sobell was sentenced to 30 years, the maximum penalty for conspiring to violate the espionage law.

Sobell's wife, Helen, who had appealed repeatedly for his release, was carrying an armful of red and white gladioli when she greeted him at the Port Authority bus terminal on Manhattan's West Side. There were no tears at their reunion, just a quick embrace before they stepped into a taxi waiting to take them to their Greenwich Village apartment.

Computer programmer, rode with them. Sobell's mother, Rose, and his 28-year-old daughter, Mrs. Sydney Clemens, rode in another taxi.

Sobell was arrested by the FBI in Laredo, Tex., in August, 1950. He had fled with his family in July to Mexico. Mexican authorities returned them to U.S. soil.

At Sobell's arraignment, bail was set at $100,000. He was unable to raise that amount, and remained in jail until he was convicted and sentenced in April, 1951. It was those months in jail for which the courts allowed him credit Tuesday.

See story on budget proposals by President Johnson on page 4 of today's Pampa Daily News.

he takes office Monday—was approximately $195 billion. Congressional sources said that was the figure given them a few days ago.

The $195 billion spending proposal, as well as the indicated revenue forecast of some $198.5 billion, would be record highs—just as annual budget figures in these categories have been recently. As usual, defense outlays were expected to account for close to half the total.

Johnson had been widely expected for some time to come up with a balanced budget in April. (See BUDGET, Page 3)

Lyndon Johnson Says Farewells

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"Let us continue," Lyndon B. Johnson begged a grieving nation in his first presidential appearance before Congress in the sad November of 1963. The failure to continue his programs, he said in his final appearance as President, would bring "tragedy to our nation."

A tired Commander in Chief in his last days in office—sadder "more than any of you know" that peace evaded his presidency—won from Congress Tuesday night the affection and cheers that had evaded him in his last years in office.

Almost powerless now, he asked Congress to extend his great society—referring to it by name for the first time in many months—more for model cities, more for housing, medical care for the young, more for job training, 13 per cent more for those on Social Security pensions.

And he asked a joint session of Congress to extend its hand to his successor, Richard M. Nixon. "President-elect Nixon will need your understanding, just as I did," he said. "He is entitled to have it."

Surplus Extension
 With the concurrence of Nixon, he asked Congress to extend beyond its June 30 expiration date the 10 per cent income tax surcharge which will raise $15 billion a year.

With it, he said, the budget for the current fiscal year will show a $2.4 billion surplus—the first surplus in nine years—rather than the $8 billion deficit he had foreseen a year ago. The budget for the next fiscal year, starting July 1, will have a $3.4 billion surplus, he said.

Republicans quarrelled with that arithmetic. Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., called Johnson's projected surpluses "a manipulation of figures." Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, called them "misleading."

Johnson will spell out his computations in the federal budget for the next fiscal year which he was sending to Capitol Hill at noon today. Inevitably, it (See JOHNSON, Page 3)

School Trustees To Hear Reports

Pampa school trustees will hear a progress report on building improvements and a report on the Texas School Administrators Advisory Conference in Austin during the board meeting at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in Carver Center Educational Services Bldg.

School Superintendent Dr. James F. Malone will present a "possible timetable for Phase I of the building program, which includes cafeterias for Horace Mann and Woodrow Wilson Elementary Schools, a track and lights, band and music hall, science facilities and a library for Pampa Senior High," he said.

Dr. Malone and James Trusty, assistant business manager, attended the school administrators' conference last week and are to report on the conference and discuss briefly the Governor's Committee on Public School Education.

The board will also consider school personnel resignations, reassignments and employment, and hear details of the band and choir's New York and Los Angeles performances.

Included in the agenda for study is a copy of the Texas Municipal Report on Pampa School District, which was compiled by the Municipal Advisory Council of Texas from information submitted by Pampa school officials.

Gov. Connally Expected to Ask Lawmakers to Pursue Projects

AUSTIN (UPI)—Gov. John Connally, who in the past six years submitted far more ideas than the legislature was willing to accept, planned to ask the lawmakers today to follow through on the major projects started during the Connally years.

The house and senate called a joint session at 11 a.m. to hear Connally's farewell address.

Sources said Connally planned to devote most of his talk to a review of his six years as governor, but also would make general recommendations about programs he is especially interested in.

Connally was expected to urge the legislature to continue the start made in the last six years on coordination of higher education, future water planning, and modernization of the public school system.

Session Opens
 The legislature opened its 61st biennial session Tuesday by electing Rep. Gus F. Mutscher of Brenham house speaker and Don Kennard of Fort Worth president pro tem of the senate.

Both were elected unanimously.

Within a few hours after Mutscher was chosen to succeed Lt. Gov.-elect Ben Barnes as speaker, legislative reforms long sought by Barnes were thrown out the window.

The House rejected proposals to trim the list of committees from 44 to 25, initiate a seniority system on committees and restrict the powers of conference committees. All were Barnes' ideas.

Mutscher, 36, is a rancher who has been in the legislature eight years.

Kennard, 39, has been in the senate six years and served 10 years in the house before that. Kennard's new post is primarily honorary. The president pro tem presides over the senate when the lieutenant governor is absent and would become chief executive if both the governor and lieutenant governor should die.

The speakership, however, is a position of real power. Mutscher is expected to begin using that power in about two weeks when he appoints new house committees.

First-day developments indicated Mutscher will have a stronger "consensus" in the house than Lt. Gov.-elect Ben Barnes can expect in the senate.

Most house members donned special black ties decorated with a gavel and the wearer's initials, and lapel buttons in the shape of a "Yellow Rose of Texas." Both symbolize membership on the Mutscher "team."

In the senate, however, sources said the members divided 17-13 in a closed-door caucus on questions involving senators' expense accounts, with a loose coalition of liberals and Republicans outvoting the senate's "old guard."

Over objections of six veterans, the senators raised their daily expense allowances from $85 to $125

National Orchestra of Mexico City

Mexico National Orchestra To Appear in Pampa Monday

The National Orchestra of Mexico City will be the next attraction of the Pampa Community Concert Association's 1968-69 season at 8 p.m. Monday in the Pampa Junior High School Auditorium.

The orchestra was founded in 1949 by Carlos Chavez, famed contemporary composer. Maestro Herrera de la Fuente was named his present post as conductor in 1954.

The orchestra gives two concert seasons each year at the Palace of Fine Arts in Mexico City, in addition to annual tours throughout the country.

In 1958 the group ventured outside of Mexico, presenting concerts in various United States cities and taking part in the Inter-American Festival in Washington, D.C. In September of that same year they toured Europe, playing in Brussels, Paris, and London.

Returning from Europe, they presented more than 40 concerts throughout the United States and Canada, with unanimous praise from critics in every city, such as the following examples:

"Since the orchestra played with virtuoso intensity under the direction of Luis Herrera de la Fuente, the concert aroused admiration and enthusiasm for both musicians and conductor. Mexico may well be proud of its orchestra and conductor. They are alive and vital." (N.Y. Journal-American)

"An orchestra most gifted in the dynamic quality of its strings and the felicity of its percussions..." (Chicago Tribune)

"Mexico has a splendid orchestra and an excellent conductor." (San Francisco News)

Their extensive repertoire includes works of the principal composers from the early classical period to the present time. The orchestra is particularly well known as musical pioneers for the numerous opportunities given to contemporary composers.

There will be no box office sale of tickets for the Monday night performance here. Admission will be by membership card only.

Youth Arrested For Carrying Gun

An 18-year-old Pampa youth, Gene Stanley Groves, 429 N. Carr, was arrested by Pampa police Tuesday night for carrying a prohibited weapon and minor in possession of alcoholic beverage.

His arrest came after Mrs. R. A. Bloomer, 1834 N. Nelson, called police and told them that some boys in a car had tried to run her off the road and would not let her pass.

She gave police a description of the vehicle and officers Norman Neece and Stanley Belt stopped the car driven by Groves.

Belt found a .22 caliber colt frontier pistol in the vehicle. Groves was taken to police headquarters.

Bond of $500 was set by Justice of Peace Nat Lumsford.

Sentence Set For Burglary

Scott Landers, indicted by a grand jury recently for burglary, was sentenced yesterday in 31st Judicial District Court after waiving his rights to a trial, pleading guilty and waiving the 10-day waiting period for sentencing.

Landers was indicted along with Buddy Prestridge for the Oct. 14 burglary of Keyes Pharmacy, 928 N. Hobart, where $250 worth of pills and capsules and $25 in change was taken.

Judge Grainger McIlhenny sentenced Landers to a three-year probation sentence.

Marland Hays Named Delegate To Indian Meet

A Pampa man has been named as a delegate to a national Indian organization and will represent West Texas and the Panhandle at its first national meeting Thursday through Saturday in Chicago.

Marland Hays, 334 N. Rider, a chief of the Pampa Southwest Indian Organization, will be one of about 500 Indian representatives from across the nation who will attend the meeting of the American Indian United Organization.

Hays is one of 11 directors of American Indian United. The organization is a confederation of 23 separate Indian organizations in the U.S.

Jess Sixkiller of Chicago, American Indian United president, told the Pampa News in an interview last May. "The urban Indian does not have a voice and we want to give him one."

Sixkiller, a Chicago police lieutenant, said about a third of the 600,000 Indians in the U.S. "now live in urban or off-reservation areas and have no voice at all in Indian affairs. We hope to correct that situation with this organization."

Reservation Indians are represented by the American Congress of Indians.

One of the primary goals of the organization, Sixkiller indicated, would be the overhaul of the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Sixkiller called the bureau "short-sighted and unfair" because it focused its attention on reservation affairs and "ignored the one-third of Indians who don't live there."

He has proposed a program whereby the bureau would aid off-reservation Indians through scholarships and vocational and technical training.

All Pampa Southwest Indian Organization board members have been urged to attend a 7:30 meeting tonight at 208 W. Browning.

Johnson

Despite their fiscal quibbling, Republicans generally joined the Democrats in a whistling, foot-stomping salute to the President, who broke with tradition in returning to Capitol Hill to deliver his final State of the Union address. It was perhaps the warmest and noisiest tribute he'd ever received from Congress.

Auto Plate Sales

Reach $175,000 In Gray County

Gray County's portion of receipts from auto license plate sales has amounted to $175,000 so far this year, according to Tax Assessor-Collector Jack Back.

The sale of 1968 license plates extends to the end of this month. New tags do not go on sale until Feb. 1.

The state's portion of collections totals $407,531, Back said. The state's fees go into a Texas Highway Department fund.

The number of license plates sold in Gray County totals 23,234 so far this year. Back continued.

The county receives the first $50,000 from license tag receipts. Thereafter, half of all receipts up to $175,000 are divided equally between the state and the county. Above $175,000, all fees go to the state. Back concluded.

Price Would Extend Great Plains Conservation Plan

WASHINGTON — A bill to extend the Great Plains Conservation Program for ten years beyond its 1971 expiration date has been introduced in the House by Panhandle Congressman Bob Price.

Created by Congress in 1956 in an effort to halt deterioration from serious dust storms and water erosion in a 10-state area, Price said the critical needs of the program can't be met by the end of 1971.

"When the next extended drought occurs — a periodic phenomena we have learned to expect — the plains area of the nation should never again suffer the damage of the past," he said.

"More than 31,500 farmers and ranchers have entered into long-term contracts to complete the total conservation job on some 57 million acres," Price said. "This is a good beginning but the job is far from complete."

The Soviet news agency Tass said the three newest cosmonauts—Lt. Col. Boris Volynov, Alexei Eliseyev and Lt. Col. Yevgeny Khronov—had established communication with Soyuz 4 and "they started a program of joint experiments in space."

Tass said Soyuz 5 had attained the same angle to the equator as Shatalov, 51 degrees, confirming the link-up experiment was on. Soyuz 5 was circling the earth once every 88 minutes and 42 seconds, 27 seconds slower than Shatalov in Soyuz 4.

Today's cosmonauts achieved an orbit ranging from 124 to 147 miles above the earth, Tass said, varying five miles at each point from Soyuz 4.

The child was picked up by her mother a short while after the two men had been arrested in Canadian. She was reported to be unharmed by a doctor who examined her.

Enticing Minor Charges Filed

A charge of enticing a minor from legal custody, a misdemeanor, was filed in Justice of the Peace E. L. Anderson's court late yesterday against a 38-year-old Borger man who allegedly took a three-year-old girl from a house here Monday without the mother's consent.

J. P. Anderson set bond of $1,000 against Junior Davis and set his trial date for Jan. 17 after Davis pleaded not guilty.

Davis and a companion were arrested in Canadian yesterday after the mother, Mrs. Charlene Mackey, telephoned the Gray County sheriff's office and complained that the men had taken the child.

Johnson Proposes $195.3 Billion Budget, Challenges Nixon

By JAMES L. SRODES
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Lyndon B. Johnson today proposed a $195.3 billion budget that was both a proud vaudeville to his presidency and a challenge to his Republican successor "to press ahead for freedom and justice at home and abroad."

His final budget foresaw a $3.4 billion surplus in the 12 months starting July 1. But it was pegged to the risky assumption that Congress will approve $12.6 billion in proposed taxes, including a one-year extension of the 10 per cent surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes. The levy now is scheduled to expire June 30.

Without the taxes, Johnson's budget would show an $8.7

billion deficit. Like all recent federal budgets, it set a new record for both spending and income.

The President said the surcharge was necessary to keep the government in the black and to help check inflation. However, he asked Congress to give incoming President Richard M. Nixon discretionary authority to reduce or end the surcharge if peace in Vietnam should cut military outlays enough.

Johnson also proposed raising the cost of a first class letter from six to seven cents, abolishing airmail as a separate category.

He likewise called for increases in social security withholding taxes on workers and their employers to pay for a 13 per cent hike in benefits; maintenance of the present 7 per cent excise tax on new autos and phone calls and higher taxes on truck fuels, aviation gasoline and airline tickets.

Here's how Johnson's fiscal 1970 budget compares with the current fiscal year (all figures in billions of dollars):

	1969	1970
Revenues	186.1	196.7
Outlays	183.7	195.3
Surplus	2.4	3.4

Although "optimistic" about the Paris peace talks, Johnson based his military budget requests on the assumption that U.S. troops will be fighting in Vietnam throughout the fiscal year which ends June 30, 1970, 18 months from now.

However, the recent de-escalation of the fighting was reflected in a decline of $3.4 billion—from $28.8 billion to $25.4 billion a year—in estimated costs of the Vietnam conflict. It was the first such decline since the United States got involved in the Asian war.

Even so, total defense spending would rise by $500 million to $81.5 billion because of increased allocations for missiles, fast new nuclear submarines, the development of a high-performance jet fighter for the Air Force, more Cheyenne gunship helicopters for the Army and other improvements in weapons systems.

Spending for space exploration would drop by $300 million. But Johnson said the $3.9 billion remaining would finance further manned moon explorations after the planned Apollo landing later this year. It would also finance development of a nuclear-powered space rocket engine.

Overall spending would be boosted mainly by increased outlays for health, education and welfare programs.

Johnson proposed a new "urban development bank" to aid decaying cities; stepped-up housing and highway expenditures; and more money for air safety.

The President also proposed turning the post office into a non-profit corporation, requested higher outlays to fight crime and racial discrimination and called for bigger allocations for federal aid to education.

Besides laying out the government's fiscal requirements and program goals for the coming year, as he sees them, Johnson used his last budget message for an accounting of his five-year stewardship of the White House. He said:

"In my first budget message five years ago, I stated: 'A government that is strong, a government that is solvent, a government that is compassionate is the kind of government that endures.'"

"With this budget, I leave that kind of government to my successor."

Johnson virtually dared Nixon to propose major cuts in his spending proposals, which he described as "minimum requirements to fill urgent needs at home and abroad."

He said that under the past eight years of Democratic rule, "we have achieved an increase of 45 per cent in the nation's output of goods and services... the creation of more than 10 million new jobs... a reduction in the rate of unemployment to 3.3 per cent of the labor force... a decrease this 'impressive record.' Johnson said:

"We have come far in our journey, but we are still a long way from our destination... 'I have faith that America will not now fail in its resolve, nor founder in its responsibility, to press ahead for freedom and justice at home and abroad.'"

To meet Johnson's goal of a fiscal 1970 surplus, the Nixon administration either must persuade the Democratic Congress to follow a high tax policy or try to force through cuts in domestic programs which might touch off a legislative rebellion.

On the defense front, Johnson noted with pride that "our military forces today are the strongest in the world, capable of protecting the nation against any foreseeable challenge or threat."

Most of the praise for his five years in office however, went to what he called the "impressive" progress made by his administration in the domestic area.

In that five year period, Johnson said, government spending on social programs has more than doubled, aid to education has more than tripled, health outlays have increased four-fold and federal funds for job training have risen five times.

To continue that progress, Johnson recommended raising social security benefits an average of 13 per cent starting next Jan. 1. Some 2-million elderly citizens now getting the minimum benefit of $55 would be raised 45 per cent to $80 a month.

To pay for the increases, the President recommended that the social security tax paid by employers and workers be increased from 9.6 per cent to 10.4 per cent of income with the taxable wage base increasing of over 17 million in the number of people living under poverty."

In an implicit challenge to his Republican successor to match from $7,800 to $9,000 a year.

The nation's problem-ridden cities also came in for their share of stepped-up aid. Johnson sought $750 million to continue the "Model Cities" program and urged establishment of a government-supported "urban development bank" to finance suburban and inner-city government programs.

Other city-oriented proposals would increase funds from $165 million to $206 million to help local and state governments fight crime in the streets.

Calling federal registration and licensing of guns an "urgent next step," Johnson also called on Congress to pass a stronger anti-gambling law and to improve prison rehabilitation programs.

The budget also would boost federal health program outlays by $1.6 billion to $13 billion with part of the addition going for increased medicare and medicare payments to the elderly and disabled.

Johnson called on Congress to offset some of the spending increases with reductions in some other existing programs, in addition to the $300 million slash in space funds. They included:

A $500 million reduction in farm price supports to a $3.1 billion level.

Foreign aid allotments would also be cut $120 million to a $2 billion level with one-fourth of the funds earmarked for reconstruction in Vietnam. The aid request was the lowest since the program was started after World War II.

IN BRITAIN

Easier To Note What's Right

EDITOR'S NOTE: An authoritative British diplomatic writer reports on the problems besetting his country.

By MALCOLM RUTHERFORD
London Financial Times-UPI
LONDON—It is much easier to say what is not wrong with Britain today than to define what is. Most of the conventional diagnoses, frequently adhered to by outsiders, are almost certainly mistaken and based on misinformation.

For example, to take but two of them: it is said that the British do not work hard enough and that production is bedeviled by the number of strikes; and it is said again that the country fritters away its resources on an exorbitant welfare state that mollycoddles its citizens from the cradle to the grave.

In fact, all relevant comparisons show that the British work quite as hard as their European and North American competitors. The number of hours worked per week has not appreciably declined this decade. The number and length of strikes does not compare unfavorably with (say) Sweden or West Germany, and a strike as long as that of the American workers in the copper industry in 1967-68 would be almost unthinkable.

As for the welfare state, it was undoubtedly true once that the British National Health Service was the most progressive in the world (outsiders, particularly Americans, would use less flattering adjectives). This could never have been said of the other British social services (such as pensions, unemployment benefits, and above all education). Today, even the health service is no longer the model that it was, and social service spending generally has fallen behind that of much of Western Europe.

The observer need only go to any of Britain's big cities to see how much needs to be done purely on grounds of economic survival, let alone on humanitarian grounds. But if the British work as hard as anyone else and their spending on the social services has been curbed, why is it that their over-all economic performance since World War II has been as bad as many say it has? One negative, but not untruthful, answer is that it has not. British exports today can surpass in one month the figure for the whole of 1938.

That, of course, is not enough. Britain began after World War II determined to carry on in the role of world power it had previously so successfully accomplished.

This meant a gigantic expenditure on defense—up to nearly 10 per cent of the national budget in 1951. But it was an expenditure in many ways useless because Britain, however much it spent, could not keep up with the giants of the United States and the Soviet Union, and the alternative course of either even closer alliance with the United States, or political integration with Western Europe, were avoided.

Suez Campaign
Worse, the great power mentality remained even after the pretensions to being a great power were shown to be illusory, as they were for example, in the Suez campaign of 1956.

A major consequence of this mentality was the absolute negligence about how much such and such a new project would cost—the political decision to station British troops in West Germany almost ad infinitum is an instance—and a marked lack of interest in the need for new capital investment.

At the end of the war industrial orders flowed into Britain, almost as of right. The shipbuilding yards had order-books so long that they saw no need to think of the long-term future. As a result, the leading shipbuilding nation in the world was responsible for scarcely any important technological innovation throughout the 1950s. Japanese output surpassed that of Britain in 1957 but the significance of this was hardly noticed at the time.

Some industries Britain did invest in. They were mainly related to defense, and for a time did well. The British aircraft industry survived as a major force until the 1960s when a newly elected Labor government was obliged to cancel three of its most important projects for lack of orders and because the industry was judged no longer capable of standing up to American competition. There is no real reason to think that a conservative government would have done otherwise, though it would probably have delayed the decision longer.

Nuclear energy, in which Britain also heavily invested, is likely to survive now only if plans for pooling resources with other European countries come.

Other countries of Western Europe, which today is the only area with which Britain can be validly compared, behaved differently. They did not spend their money on seemingly vital overseas commitments which, when it came to the point, could not be fulfilled.

A good example is oil. Britain has been the only European country which has kept armed forces in the Middle East with the view of protecting its oil supplies. It has been an expensive exercise, but when trouble in the Middle East has come, the supplies have not been protected. Above all, other European countries, with the possible exception of France, have seen the necessity of providing effective incentives for capital investments in the future—and business has seen the desirability of taking them up.

At root, there has been a basic failure to make a political choice. At the end of the war Britain could have had the leadership of Western Europe, and indeed, was offered it on a plate. Had it taken it, the European Common Market might have been a very much more potent force in the world than it is today. Having rejected it, on the grounds that continental Europe was essentially unstable and therefore incompatible with Britain, Britain also rejected the alternative of closer alliance with the United States.

Instead, it chose the role of honest broker between Washington and Moscow. It was not a credible role for two reasons: one, it was obvious that Britain was not neutral between the two; and secondly there was no reason why Washington and Moscow should need to rely for dialogue on a now second class power of continuing economic weakness which had literally given away that part of the world where its writ once ran.

Which brings us finally to the British empire. Few people looking round the world—at the civil war and accusations of genocide in Nigeria; at the gradual disintegration of the Indian subcontinent; at the way every British-created political federation has subsequently broken up; at what happened in Ghana before the overthrow of President Nkrumah—would argue that the voluntary granting of independence to nearly one quarter of the world's peoples had been an unqualified success.

Patrol Investigates 13 Accidents

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 13 accidents on rural highways in Gray County during the month of December, according to Sergeant J.L. Dalrymple, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in seven persons injured and an estimated property damage of $10,875.

The rural traffic accident summary for his county during the calendar year of 1968 shows a total of 196 crashes resulting in four persons killed, 110 persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $132,530.

The final date of the 1969 motor vehicle inspection period for all motor vehicles registered in Texas is drawing near.

Watch his big smile that says "Thank You"

When the boy comes to collect...

Your newspaperboy makes it his business to collect at a regular time—convenient to you.

That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him.

You can help, too, by having the money there so he won't have to come back. He'll appreciate that.

Because this boy is in business. He depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. And repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Hence, next time the boy comes by to collect, be ready—and watch his big smile, which says "Thank you."

APOLLO 9 10 11

If the successful performances of Apollo space missions 7 and 8 are an indication, the goal of landing an American on the moon in this decade will be realized. Apollo 9, scheduled for Feb. 28, will test the lunar landing craft in earth orbit. In April or May, Apollo 10 will carry three astronauts to the moon, where two of them will descend to within 10 miles of the lunar surface but will not touch down. An actual landing is planned for Apollo 11 sometime in July. At that time, two astronauts will spend 24 hours on the moon's surface, gathering rock samples for earth study.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—From a television viewpoint, I think some healthy things may arise from the triumph of NBC-TV's New York Jets over CBS-TV's Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl last weekend.

To the lay viewer, it should be made clear that the Jets belong to the young American Football League, which has been promoted into importance by NBC's telecasts. The Colts, meanwhile, belong to the established National Football League, whose games are seen on CBS-TV.

I don't much care about the fact that CBS-TV's football advertising spots may decline somewhat in cost because of the loss of prestige by the NFL—or Gray.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who encourages his 10-year-old daughter to give him long, hard kisses on the lips? If she gives him a little peck on the cheek he pulls her back and says, "What kind of kiss do you call that?"

I will be honest and admit that he gets very little affection from me. You see, Abby, I don't especially care for my husband. Ever since I married him I have had to help him make a living and I am sick and tired of it. But I still do not think there is any excuse for his acting that way with his own daughter, do you?

DEAR CONCERNED: Your husband should NOT be kissing his daughter in the manner you describe, no matter how little affection he gets from you. If you do not "especially care for him" — clear out and take your daughter with you. If you remain, you are encouraging a sick, sick situation.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman whose husband had not come near her in two years — since she'd had a hysterectomy. (She said he was the kind of man who went around their property, cutting down all the imperfectly formed trees.)

When I was a boy, I recall we had two apple trees. One was beautiful and perfectly formed, but it bore no fruit. The other bore fruit and showed it by its bent and broken limbs. Dad eventually cut down the beautiful but worthless one.

My wife bore me five beautiful children. Her breasts now droop and her belly shows not-so-lovely stria-gravida ("stretch marks") and plenty of them. But she will not be "cut down." She has born fruit, and to me hers is the most beautiful body on earth.

Sincerely,
An "M.D." in PASADENA, TEX.

DEAR DOCTOR: Please convey a message to your wife for me. Lady, you have a wonderful husband!

DEAR ABBY: You don't often pull a boner, but when you do it's a lulu. You mentioned the wives of a lot of men who had to get their hands dirty, among them were Thomas Edison, Charles Lindbergh, Walter P. Chrysler, and of all people THE WRIGHT BROTHERS. Abby, for your information, both the WRIGHT BROTHERS were bachelors!

Sincerely,
JACK H. in L.A.

CONFIDENTIAL TO: "Single in San Antonio!" — I said (and I repeat) that children should be disciplined by their parents when they are guests in another's home. But if the parents sit by and say nothing when the child walks on the sofa, then the host should tell the child that floors are for walking on and sofas are for sitting on. And if that does not make an impression, I would demonstrate that bottoms are for paddling when children do not behave.

Everybody has a problem. What is yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Council of Clubs Attends First New Year Program

Council of Clubs met in the City Club Room recently for the first meeting of the New Year. President, Mrs. Virginia McDonald opened the meeting with poem, entitled, "I am the New Year."

For the first program section, Mrs. Stan Friend, co-ordinator of Special Education in Pampa Public Schools, explained the work being done in Pampa in this field. She discussed three levels of work including the Pre-School, which is being carried out in the First Presbyterian Church under the guidance of a trained teacher from the Amarillo Center. Classes are being held in schools here for trainable students who are somewhat retarded, she said. Helpers for a post-school group are needed, to volunteer their services for one day a week for three hours for a period of three months.

Mrs. Friend stated that between two and three per cent of a whole population are somewhat retarded and need special help. This program also includes help for the hard-of-

POLLY'S POINTERS
From Bias Tape, Make Flowers, Birds, Ships
By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Hazel not to discard even an inch of leftover bias tape as its uses are only limited by her imagination. Monograms, flowers, birds, trains, animals, ships and planes all add lovely finishing touches to children's clothes, house coats, shifts, tea towels, guest towels and pillowcases. Sketch a rough design on tissue paper and baste the tape in place. Press and pin to the garment or linen. Sew on by hand or machine and then tear away the paper. If the pieces of tape are long enough, harmonizing colors may be combined, faggoted together for distinctive pockets and yokes. If you lean toward the ultramodern, try combining the bright colors into far-out mod designs and then zipzag on with dark colors.

DEAR POLLY—and Hazel—Here are a few ways to use leftover bias tape and rickrack. A pretty personalized apron can be made using this as a border along the bottom. Write the name of the person with the tape of rickrack on the pocket. Using a different color tape for each letter, write a child's name across the front of play clothes. A combination of tape and rickrack can often be used to make pictures for the fronts of play clothes. Plain curtains can be dressed up by making a border of flowers for the bottom and the valance.

DEAR POLLY—I am getting older and need easier ways to do things. I wonder if I could wash my rough plaster walls with a roller and also could I put on enamel paint with a roller?

Senior Citizens Attend Luncheon
LEFORS (Spl)—A special luncheon was held recently by the Senior Citizens of Lefors in Civic Center, with businesses in Lefors as sponsors. After the buffet dinner guests were welcomed and readings were given by Mrs. D.C. Read. Door prizes were drawn with Walter Pflug drawing one gift, and Mrs. Helen Cobb drawing the women's gift. Hosts for the luncheon was Mrs. D.C. Read, Mrs. May Smith, and Mrs. Jess Graves. Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pflug, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McAninch, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie McAninch, Mrs. Jane Cates, Mrs. Fannie Merideth, Mrs. Ferdie Allan, Mrs. Minnie Beck, Mrs. Helen Cobb, and Mrs. Ben Vaughn.

The National Institute of Real Estate Brokers says a home priced within five per cent of its fair market value is 10 times more likely to be sold than one priced 15 to 20 times above that figure. To determine fair market value, the bulletin advises consultation with a real estate agent.

Your Horoscope
JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, JAN. 16
Your birthday Thursday: The year ahead is full of diligent effort for which good material and spiritual returns are indicated. Less chance of getting other people to do part of the work is balanced by a greater efficiency. Romantic interests are stronger in the early part of the year, less important later. Thursday's natives are rather genial, peaceful people with a liking for dramatic literature.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Personal interests right and left take your attentions, while work pressures lead you into abrupt actions. Strive for a bit better balance between fun and career, and take some advice from an old hand.
TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Try turning your imagination on full blast in positive, optimistic directions. Fresh beginnings are open all around you on all sorts of social contacts. Your work schedules now are apt to be erratic; use the opportunity for experimentation.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A great sales effort is going on to get you to commit your funds to some venture. Leave your investments untouched; concentrate instead on your regular activities.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): When your friends start tantrums, your partner is tense and mistrustful. Keep your poise and try to think what set off the fireworks. You may have triggered the reaction with some innocent error.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Nothing you've set your heart on seems available in this rather perverse day. Keep your diet simple or fast for the day. Whatever romantic interests you may have at the moment has attracted competition.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Speculation is to be avoided today! Otherwise it is a productive day for creative effort, family and friends with a promise for excitement later.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't be surprised if you seem to be skipped in the excitement of the day. It is all too easy to be goaded into some complaint. Avoid passing through crowded areas or traffic.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't try new theories or systems. Institutions relating to speculation or chance are likely to go awry suddenly. Search for some fault in your nutrition when aware of nervous tensions; correct it.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The temptation is to dump everything and everybody in favor of a fresh start. Nobody wants to try anything but his own schemes, so there's no point in pushing any ambitious plans. Avert a worse pile-up later.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Coincidence upsets your appointments Thursday Errands for relatives are in step with the day and easier to perform. Friends are helpful, but should not be told too much right now. Affairs of the heart are favored.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Work advances nicely, but increase of expenses threatens. Schedules tend to be upset all day, so you make adjustments as best you can. Take care that some practical joke doesn't trick you into a burst of temper.
PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Be alone as much as you can manage, but be sure to include your mate in any invitation for the evening. Work conditions may change in a way you didn't expect; however, hold your peace for the present.

How does the professional pack glassware for a family that is moving? The secret is in the equipment used according to a furniture moving company. Here, the packer rolls the goblet in a corrugated sheet then tucks both ends in. When the housewife preparing for a move finishes packing that carton of china, glassware or bric-a-brac, it's advisable to secure all flaps with masking tape. Besides lowering chances for contents tumbling out, a firm closing helps bind cushioning tissue firmly about the delicate items.

Thomas Speeds Harvesters By Coronado, 65-59

By RON CROSS

Pampa senior Billy Thomas snuffed out a fire started by Lubbock Coronado and ignited one under his own teammates here Tuesday night to send Pampa to its sixth District 4-4A basketball victory in eight outings.

Thomas scored 24 points to send Pampa past the Mustangs, 65-59, and ran its record to 11-5 while Coronado was slipping to 13-10 and 4-4.

The Harvesters, who trailed almost all the time, were behind by seven, 57-50, with 5:45 to play. The bottom then fell in on the Mustangs.

Pampa outscored Coronado 15-2 in the final five minutes with the 6-2 senior's bucket with 2:06 to play giving the Harvesters the lead to stay.

Jim Gallman, who had been pretty quiet all night, and cool-calm Johnny Epperson hit some pretty important points in the closing minutes.

A basket by Jim Hollis, who had 13 points for the night followed one by Thomas and brought Pampa within three at 57-54.

Then Gallman connected on a three point play to make it 59-57 with 3:14 left. Gallman then scored from under the basket, to tie it and Thomas made it Pampa by two at 61-59.

Epperson, who finished the night with 12 points, eight of them from the foul line, then hit two charity tosses with 35 seconds to play to ice the game. Thomas closed out the scoring with a basket with seven seconds showing on the clock.

Thomas, who scored 19 of his points in the final half, did more than just score.

Coronado had raced to a 38-33 halftime lead and seemed about to blow the game wide open, thanks to the hot hand of senior David Marcell.

Marcell paced his team in scoring with 23 points and had 21 of 'em at halftime. But Thomas was told to guard the 6-10 hustler the final two quarters and held him to a single field goal and the Mustangs finally faded away.

The free throw line provided Pampa with lots of charity with 31 of the Harvesters points coming from the foul line. Coronado could not turn around without fouling in the first half and had a total of 27 for the game, 18 in the first two periods.

Pampa took full advantage and had 23 points from the charity line at halftime. It's a good thing too, since Coronado held Pampa to just five of 20 from the field in the first two periods.

Pampa finished the night with only 35 per cent from the field (17 of 48) while Coronado hit 44 per cent (23 of 52) and had 16 of 36 at halftime.

The lead changed hands 13 times in the first half with Pampa owning it last at 22-21. But the Mustangs went in front 23-22 midway through the second period and never trailed until the fourth quarter.

Coronado led 51-48 after three periods and at one time in the (See PAMPA, Page 9)

John's Back At Old Stand

John Hasse is the type young man you don't hear much about simply because he is one of the good guys.

Not to knock my own media but you don't read too much about the good guys because it's the other kind people like to read about and they sell the papers.

It brought back some fine memories to see John over the holidays.

There he was at the basketball games, by the bench picking up uniforms, towels, etc. He just does it by habit and he does it right, trying to give the players, who come first in his mind a few comforts.

John was the Harvesters' basketball manager for three years and Terry Culley and his players probably thought more of old John than they did of themselves.

Although he's in his first year of college now things haven't changed an awful lot for John. He's still seen everyday in the basketball gym but this time it's at West Texas State's where he works just a little harder but he's still around basketball.

"I guess I just didn't want to be a civilian," John quipped, when asked why he decided to take over his chores at WT.

"It's primarily the same routine just on a bigger scale here, different hours and I get a college credit for it," John stated.

You Don't Say...
By RON CROSS

Despite the fact he's a few miles from home there are some familiar faces around him everyday, in fact some that are as familiar as his own.

There is of course his dad, Warren, for many years the Sports Voice of the Harvesters, who now broadcasts West Texas' cage games.

Then there's two fellows who John has seen a lot of the past few years, both of whom he helped take care of when he was doing the wash and picking-up after 'em on the Harvesters cage team.

George Bailey, Pampa's all-time leading scorer, and Beau Bond, had he started earlier might have been, are both members of a good West Texas freshman team.

The Buffalo frosh have stamped to a 6-1 record thus far, having lost only to Southwestern State of Weatherford, Okla., 91-82.

John considers Bailey one of the best basketeers he's ever seen and also sees him as maybe even zooming to larger height than WT's Simmie Hill.

Bailey hasn't slowed down a bit since high school.

He is currently leading the frosh in scoring with a 30.4 average and is the team's third best rebounder. George has scored 213 points and has made 48 per cent of his field shots and 65 per cent from the charity line.

Bond, who only played a little bit in his sophomore and junior years since he was pretty awkward at 6-9 is the team's leading rebounder and fourth leading scorer.

Beau has scored 79 points good for a 11.2 average. But he has been a jolly green giant on the boards hauling off 72 rebounds, 53 on defense.

Bailey has shown his freshmen coaches something besides scoring. It's teamwork. The 6-3 workhorse also leads his team in assists with 28, which almost doubles his closest competitor.

The West Texas freshmen play their next home game Jan. 18 against Wayland, beginning at 6 p.m.

Old John'll be there making sure the players are as comfortable as possible and doing what has to be done.

We wonder sometimes if people appreciate the really good guys.

FALLING DOWN — Billy Thomas takes a tumble as he hustles after a loose ball in Pampa's 65-59 victory over Coronado Tuesday night.

Thomas led both teams in scoring with 24 points.

East Blasts West 124-112 In NBA Contest

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Richie Guerin, coach of the losing Western Division team, told the story of the 19th annual NBA All-Star game before it was played.

"With (Oscar) Robertson and (Earl) Monroe starting, the East has more firepower at guard than we do," he said. "If we can hold their guards to 25 points (between them) instead of 45, we can win."

Oscar scored 24 points, Earl scored 21, Oscar collected the MVP trophy, and the East won the game, 124-112.

Robertson has now played in nine All-Star games in nine years, won three MVP awards, and only been on a losing side once. Thanks largely to him, the East, where Cincinnati has been placed in most of his career, has a 13-6 edge in the series. "It was a good unit effort," he said. "I'm happy to win the MVP award, and glad we were able to win."

East coach Gene Shue, of the host team Baltimore Bullets, used Robertson and Monroe together consistently only in the first quarter and the end of the last quarter. At the end of the first quarter, the East had a 35-19 point lead.

In the last quarter, Robertson came off the bench to join Monroe. The West led, 96-94, but Robertson scored on a couple of three-point plays, stole some passes, and the East ran away with the game.

Other solid contributors for the East were Baltimore rookie center Westley Unseld, who scored 11 points and grabbed 8 rebounds in 14 minutes, Willis Reed of New York, who scored 10 points in 14 minutes, and Gus Johnson, who led the team in rebounds with 10 and scored 13 points.

The West comeback in the second and third quarters was led by Wilt Chamberlain rebounding and defensive play, and Elgin Baylor's inspired, energetic play and team-leading 21 points.

WATCHING-WAITING — Edward Moultrie (30) and a host of Lubbock Coronado Mustangs wait for this shot by Billy Thomas to go in or out of the basket.

Pampa Ninth, Eighth Post Victories

Pampa eighth grade ran its record to 7-0. Tuesday and Pampa ninth edged Perryton after the buzzer in city junior high cage games.

James Bradley hit the front end of a one and one free throw and it was enough to send Pampa ninth to a 94-88 victory.

Larry Knutson paced the Reapers with 22 points, Richard Benton hit 9, Bradley 8, Doug Smith 6, Roy Hendricks 2, Sam Vallasper 2.

Pampa eighth trailed 19-18 at halftime but came back to bounce Perryton 36-31. Richard McCampbell paced Pampa with 10 points, Rickie Smith hit 6, Freddy Wilborn 8, Don Proctor 4, Ricky King 2 and Bill Lemons 6.

Fouls Make Big Difference In Southwest League Play

By United Press International
It was a foul night for Southern Methodist Tuesday in the Southwest Conference, but despite losing three top hands along the way, the Ponies came within a whisker of smudging Texas A&M's SWC undefeated streak.

It took both ends of a one-and-one with five seconds left in overtime for the Aggies to close the lid on Southern Methodist 76-75.

Meanwhile, in Fort Worth, the Rice Owls pushed Texas Christian down the cellar steps and were trying to nail the door shut when time ran out. Rice won it 71-64, but not before the playing got rough late in the contest.

A&M's win moved them into a technical tie with idle Baylor. The Ags are 3-0 in the loop and Baylor, just watching the action go by this week, is 2-0.

TCU ended the night 0-4 while the Owls, after their first win since 1964, moved to 1-2.

The Ponies battled the Aggies all the way, fighting back from a 14-debit in the second half. But sophomore flash Gene Phillips fouled out in regulation and Lynn Phillips, the game's top scorer with 28 points, and Donnie Berg were retired during overtime.

A&M's Mike Heitmann hit a field goal with a minute and a half to tie the score at 71-71 and there it stayed until time

Texan Takes Dogging Lead

DENVER (UPI) — A 24-year-old former Texas schoolteacher turned cowboy took $1,828 in first go-round money Tuesday in steer wrestling at the National Western Stock Show Rodeo. Jerry Pevelto, of Orange, Tex. wrestled his steer in 4.4 seconds. Pevelto may enjoy the rodeo arena more than the classroom pay wise — he won $16,398 in prize money in 1967, his first full year in rodeo competition.

The 1967 world-ster wrestling champion, Roy Duval, of Boynton, Okla., took second place by pinning his steer in 4.7 seconds for $1,513 in prize money.

Twenty-two year-old Ivan Davines, of Innisfail, Alberta, took top honors in saddle bronco riding Tuesday, pocketing $748. His 75-point total was followed by J. C. Bonine, of Casper, Wyo., with 69 points for $619. Davines was National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association champion in 1966 and placed 10th in the saddle bronco riding nationally last year.

Other first go-round saddle bronco winners were: Hugh Chambliss, Albuquerque, N.M., 63 points, $361; (tie) Shawn Davis, Whitehall, and Denny Looman, Miles City, both of Montana, with 65 points and $297 each, and Larry Kane, Havre, Mont., 64 points, $129.

Billy Bob Barnett led the Aggies with 25 points and Heitmann collected 17. Ronnie Peret had 11 before he fouled out.

third quarter held a 51-44 advantage.

The Pampa Shockers won its fifth straight game and ran its record to 6-4 with a 52-39 triumph over Coronado's junior varsity.

Mike Jordan paced the scoring with 16 points and John Jenkins scored 13. Brumfield had 8, Johnston scored 7, Thompson 4, Sims and Rice two each.

The top two teams in the district, Tascosa and Borger both posted Tuesday night victories.

Tascosa ran its conference record to 8-0 and clinched at least a tie for the first half championship with a last second 43-41 win over Monterey. Borger demoralized Palo Duro, 78-54; Amarillo clipped Caprock, 60-39 and Plainview rolled over Lubbock, 67-45.

The Harvesters end first half district play with probably its biggest game of the young season Friday night in Borger.

A 'Pill' to Spur Understanding

A scientist had an encouraging message for mankind as the sorry old year ended and the hopeful new one began.

It was not exactly couched in scientific language but was a vivid capsule summary of what has been learned about human beings through recent inquiries into the actual physiological functioning of the brain and nervous system — how it receives, processes, stores and utilizes sensory information from the outside.

"There may be much less maliciousness in the world than we supposed," University of California neurophysiologist Dr. Robert B. Livingston told fellow scientists at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Dallas.

That is, the disputations, petty or grave, that strain our daily relations with our fellow men are not due so much to malice as to a simple fact that everyone's brain structure is different from everyone else's. Each brain perceives the world differently from every other brain, and the difference can be slight or it can be radical.

It is in the childhood years, said Livingston, when the brain is doubling in size in the first six months and doubling again by the age of four, that "people become embedded in language and culture, so that much of what we consider 'common sense' in any culture is actually what we experience before age 12."

Everything coming into the mind is modified by our experiences, expectations and purposes, with much data either shielded out or distorted so that it may never reach any two people in just the same form. Observers of human behavior have always been aware, of course, that each man views the world through his personal set of glasses. Psychologists have long remarked the fact that two people can witness the same event and yet report entirely different versions of it, with neither one lying or deliberately distorting what he saw.

The glasses can be both acquired and inherited. For example, a standard test is with the chemical substance PTC (phenylthiocarbamide). Some people taste it as bitter, others as sweet or salty. Some people can't taste it at all.

This does not mean that people of different cultural and genetic backgrounds can never hope to understand one another, though it becomes increasingly difficult to change or learn after the childhood years when the brain is "set."

Livingston is hopeful that if we can learn to understand these neurological mechanisms better, we could be able to see the world with less emotion, be more tolerant of the next man's perception of the world and be more capable of "tentativeness of response" — that is, less likely to go off half-cocked.

He predicts that researchers, as they find out "where things are" in the nervous system, will devise new drugs and new treatments for mental illness and depression.

It would be wonderful if science could also come up with some kind of "understanding" pill to unfreeze our nervous systems and help us attain that which philosophers have bewailed the scarcity of for centuries.

The world could use a few million tons of the stuff right now.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT
Complete Hysterectomy
Advisable in Malignancy

Q—What are the reasons for a hysterectomy? Should it ever be done on a single woman?

A—The uterus may be removed because of a uterine or cervical cancer, multiple fibroids, malignant ovarian cyst and, in some cases, for a severe prolapse (fallen womb). If a malignancy is present the uterus should be removed without delay, regardless of marital status.

Q—I am 66 and had a complete hysterectomy 26 years ago. I am taking stilbestrol. My doctor says I should take it the rest of my life. What benefit would I get from this drug? Is there any harm in its prolonged use?

A—This drug is given to replace ovarian hormones and reduce such menopausal symptoms as hot flashes and drenching sweats and to prevent osteoporosis (weakening of the vertebrae) and hardening of the arteries. Many doctors advise taking the drug indefinitely. If the dosage is carefully adjusted to your needs, this procedure is perfectly safe.

Q—I am 30 and have one child. I had a complete hysterectomy six months ago. Will I age faster because of this operation?

A—Removal of the uterus will not cause you to age faster. In fact, you will not age as fast as a woman who bears a child every 12 to 16 months. If when your uterus was removed the ovaries were also removed, replacement therapy with a female hormone preparation will forestall premature aging.

Q—I had a hysterectomy four years ago. I have been spotting bright red or dark red blood one or two days a month ever since. What would cause this?

A—You probably had a partial hysterectomy and still have your ovaries and enough uterine tissue to cause an abbreviated menstrual period. You should check with your doctor to make sure.

Editor:

Some "STOP" signs are often treated as a nuisance and constitute a traffic hazard by encouraging bad driving habits.

On seldom-traveled streets observation can unduly slow traffic or engender disrespect for law and order. Such "STOP" signs require a delicate choice between disregarding and obeying the law. If the public becomes accustomed to disregarding unneeded signs, they may sometime fail to observe the "STOP" signs which serve a vital purpose.

The results may be damage to vehicles, bloodshed, or loss of life. Signs which serve a doubtful purpose and impede traffic should be replaced with wordings the public will approve.

Driving habits can be improved by diligent police chiefs selecting for their cities better words than an invariably emphatic "STOP." The public has thankfully accepted the warning "YIELD" where two or more lines of traffic must merge carefully.

The International Chiefs of Police, 1319-18th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 could agree upon a title for the best warning from such words as: "CHECK," "ALERT," "APPROPRIATE," "DANGER," "CAUTION," "PAUSE," "WARNING," "JUDGE," "DEFER," "SLOWER," "WATCH OUT," and "COURTESY."

It seems a logical development. If students ought to have the right to dictate how their courses are taught and to grade their teachers, as some of our own students are demanding, it is only fair that students be allowed to decide what questions they shall be asked.

Evans Stated As Chairman Of GOP—
When Bliss Quits

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON Thomas W. Evans, former partner in President-elect Nixon's law firm, is his choice for Republican National Chairman.

No date has been set for the departure of incumbent Chairman Ray Bliss. That's being left up to him. He can announce it at next Friday's meeting of the National Committee or later. But the Ohioan now knows Nixon is insistent on installing his own selection in this key party post.

It has been carefully explained to Bliss there is nothing personal in that. His exceptional talents as a political "technician" are highly regarded. Similarly warmly appreciated is his rebuilding and revitalizing the National Committee following the crushing 1964 defeat. Bliss is given unqualified credit for these notable achievements.

At the same time, Nixon feels a change is essential. Bliss does not fill his concept of a national chairman.

While readily acknowledging the Ohioan's excellence as a political organizer and manager, it is felt the National Chairman should be more than that. In addition, he should be a personable, articulate and effective spokesman for the party and the administration.

Bliss dislikes making public appearances and pronouncements. He has consistently kept in the background. He is essentially a "desk man," and not a partisan scrapper. Prior to the Miami Beach convention, that was an admirable trait. Bliss confined himself to running the National Committee and being impeccably impartial toward all the GOP aspirants.

With a Republican President in office, it is held more is needed in a Republican chairman. He should be a vigorously vocal champion—a role Bliss manifestly does not fit.

So he will have to make way for someone who does, and Evans is Nixon's choice. He well meets the requirements.

PUT AND TAKE—Whatever difficulties President Johnson may encounter when he leaves the White House, they will not be financial.

Unlike President Truman, who reputedly departed "dead broke," Johnson is well heeled. In addition to being a multimillionaire with highly profitable radio-TV and ranch holdings, he will receive a record-high total in government pensions.

Like all ex-Presidents, he will get $25,000 annually. In addition, he will be paid a civil service annuity of around $17,000 a year based on his more than 30 years' service as an official of the New Deal's National Youth Administration, member of Congress and as Vice President.

Total of these annuities is more than $40,000. Johnson is also taking with him into retirement more records and files than any of his predecessors. These private and official papers fill some 2,000 four drawer filing cabinets which if placed back to back would extend more than a mile.

In "take home" pay, President-elect Nixon actually will draw less than half of the $200,000 salary voted by Congress.

That's the estimate of Representative Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that writes tax legislation. Says Mills, "Mr. Nixon will wind up with somewhere between $98,818 and $99,246 after federal taxes are deducted from the pay raise. $200,000 looks big, but he only gets part of it."

JUSTICE DEPT. WHITE-WASH—While Adam Clayton Powell regained his House seat after a stormy and torrid debate, the last has not been heard of his notorious case.

Bipartisan opponents are considering seeking an investigation of the Justice Department's abrupt termination of a grand jury probe of the bombastic Harlemite. This dynamite-loaded move is still in the discussion stage, but there is strong feeling behind it.

Reason is the charge of a whitewash; that the Justice Department deliberately prevented the grand jury from bringing in an indictment. This accusation was sharply voiced by Representatives Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, Albert Watson, R-S.C., and others during the heated House debate over seating Powell. Foremost among the contentions they raised were:

The grand jury was dismissed on motion of the Justice Department "without making the determination it was convened to make." Added Representative MacGregor, "If insufficient evidence to establish a probable cause as to the guilt of Powell with respect to criminal conduct did not exist or could not be found, then he is entitled to a 'clean bill.' For the grand jury to make no determination leaves the original question of probability of guilt or innocence still open." Federal Judge Edward Curran, who signed the department's dismissal order, did so in the belief the tenure of the grand jury had expired. It had not. It is claimed it still had four more months to function.

Two Justice Department attorneys who worked on the case prepared an indictment last May. It is charged this was suppressed by Attorney General Ramsey Clark after conferring with President Johnson. The draft indictment was never presented to nor considered by the grand jury.

"The key question," declared MacGregor, "is why the grand jury was dismissed—it had not expired—on the motion of the Justice Department without making the determination it was convened to make. The indictment sought by the working-level (Justice Department) attorneys would have paralleled the unanimous findings on February 25, 1967, by a special bipartisan House committee which investigated Powell's action at length and concluded he had 'willfully and wrongfully' misappropriated $4,401 in government funds to his own use."

Representative Gross was even more scathing in his denunciation of the Justice Department and Powell, whom he characterized as "unfit to enjoy the privilege of being a member of the House of Representatives today as he was unfit on March 1, 1967 (when he was kicked out by a 307 to 116 vote.)"

"The spineless refusal of the Justice Department to press for a decision from the grand jury is inexplicable and indefensible," continued Gross. "It is inconceivable that any panel of jurors would, of their own volition, refuse to act on the mass of evidence supplied them by this House unless blinders were put on them by the Justice Department."

"The House of Representatives found Adam Clayton Powell guilty of the charges against him before this grand jury was in existence. If he was guilty then, and there is no argument that he was, he is just as guilty now, the nonfeasance of the Justice Department notwithstanding."

Dependency Is Demoralizing

By PAUL HARVEY
We cannot continue to make loafing profitable. During this most prosperous era, our welfare rolls continue to increase twice as fast as our population.

For votes, already have destroyed any desire to work on the part of many Americans, and others are encouraged to join the 8.4 million Americans now on relief.

How are we going to provide for the genuinely deserving needy without creating a mushrooming army of parasites?

More importantly, perhaps, how are we going to subsidize more and more "dependents" without destroying the characteristically American "spirit of independence"?

The Nixon Administration is comparatively free from the obligation of extravagant promise to the poor. He has a better opportunity than any President since F.D.R. to seek and find a proper alternative to the presently demoralizing welfare system.

Three suggestions were reviewed recently by Roger Freeman of Stanford University's Hoover Institution.

1—The guaranteed annual income. This would raise the income of every four-person nonfarm family to at least $3,335. It could cost taxpayers $11 billion.

Obviously, such a program would further encourage many Americans to quit $3,000-and $4,000-a-year jobs in favor of this "government income." Soon, therefore, the cost would climb far above $11 billion. "This," says Freeman, "is the most simple system and potentially the most destructive."

2—The family allowance. This would pay every family, rich or poor, $25 per child per month. This would cost taxpayers $21.5 billion a year. Advocates of this plan say that to pay rich and poor alike "removes the stigma from relief."

But where the pressure of increasing population is another of government's major anxieties, it would be strange strategy indeed for government further to increase that pressure.

3—The negative income tax. Under this plan, if you earn less than a specified amount in a given year, instead of you paying taxes to the government, the government would pay you enough to make up the difference. Cost? Probably $30 billion a year—at first.

The Wall Street Journal acknowledges that society has an obligation to care for its citizens who cannot care for themselves. "For others, however, the overriding aim should be to provide an opportunity to work, not an opportunity to avoid it."

This, hopefully, is what President Nixon meant by his campaign slogans emphasizing "jobs."

Welfare was most effectively administered by churches and private agencies when it was called "charity," before the politicians found out they could use such handouts as vote bait. Perhaps the Salvation Army should be subsidized and government-administered welfare phased out entirely.

Before the arch-liberals jump on me as heartless, please heed this quote: "The lessons of history show conclusively that continued dependence on relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit."

Franklin D. Roosevelt said that in his State of the Union message, 1935.

Adam Powell walked in an brought down the House. Not only that, he got a good seat. One congressman said the reason he voted to get him back into the House that Joke built was because he hadn't violated any of the constitutional provisions. That means the oath they take gives them a license to steal.

A commission reported Powell put his wife on the payroll when she didn't perform any congressional duties, and used travel funds for his own personal purposes. There was also some business of a civil suit in N.Y. with Powell running off to Binini to avoid prosecution.

All these things are to be expected in the House of Sticky Fingers. Rep. Celler says, "Judge not that ye be not judged—especially in regard to loved ones on the payroll and travel." In other words, they are all in it for the film-flam.

Then Celler says, "Powell is hurt in his dignity, and nothing is more serious than wounding a man's dignity." Well, open my eyes and call me a bleeder. I always thought stealing was more serious than dignity.

But that is only for us outsiders. You watch. In a few days some Rep. will get up and say "Now we have got to do something about crime—"

A close-fisted, hard-bitten citizen died. After the funeral, as neighbors loitered at the cemetery, one broke the awkward silence:

A frantic housewife called the doctor. "You've got to come over immediately. When my husband got up this morning, he took his vitamin pill, ulcer pill, tranquilizer pill, anti-histamine pill, appetite depress pill, and added just a dash of benzdrine. Then he lit a cigarette and there was this tremendous explosion!"

Mechanism for Change

It is impossible for a postal clerk to reform the U.S. post office.

It is impossible for a government file clerk to clean up Washington, D.C.

It is impossible for anybody to do very much directly about anything that is bad.

Why then does The News continue to declaim against various bureaucratic systems?

What do we have to offer that is better?

What can we say that is hopeful?

How can desired change morally occur?

Those are fair questions. We are confident that they have occurred to readers of these columns more than once. They are entitled to an answer.

Here are some of our thoughts on the matter. We have entitled them "Mechanism for Change." That means what you do to make things different from what they are.

First of all, we believe, things are as they are basically because of men's attitude toward them. We believe things change when men change their attitude. In other words, "as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Thought is the seed from which springs the action, and action is the tree from which springs the fruit of material goods.

For example, take a house. We are inclined to say a house is valuable property. It contains wood and steel and stone, all of which cost money. However, what made these materials take on a useful form is the human energy that shaped them into a house.

Somebody sawed, hammered and installed plumbing and electricity. Yet, all that energy would be in vain, but for the fact that the craftsman knew in what manner to work. So knowledge is the basic ingredient of useful property. The idea is what counts at the beginning.

The same principle, we believe, applies to the social structure in which we live. The idea, the attitude is fundamental. This is the foundation upon which customs, institutions, practices arise. When, therefore, we desire to improve society, the proper method is to improve our own ideas.

The postal clerk can't alter the post office, but he can alter his ideas as to how the mail system should operate.

A file clerk in Washington may not be able to do much about the crime that is rampant in the streets of that stricken metropolis, but he might weigh the evidence and decide for himself whether a Congress that can't govern a single city is qualified to make laws for the entire country.

Some people want to tear down the country because it happens not to fit their notions.

Some people want to harass the schools violently until they close. Some people say, "Burn baby, burn." The correct answer, we believe is, "Think man, think!"

As each man takes a good look at his own ideas and tests them to see whether they follow eternal principles, or go astray, he begins to change. A changed man makes a change in the world around him.

History shows "change of thyself" is the mechanism of all constructive action.

It seems a logical development. If students ought to have the right to dictate how their courses are taught and to grade their teachers, as some of our own students are demanding, it is only fair that students be allowed to decide what questions they shall be asked.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: "Morbid, morbid," said sensitive presidential daughter Luci Johnson Nugent as she surveyed the packing cases inside the White House and the inaugural scaffolding outside.

"It's like a wake," she said, then hastened to add "it's all in jest. We all make morbid jokes in jest. It makes it easier."

In a telephone interview, frequently interrupted by her 19-month-old son Lyn who grabbed the phone to chatter, Luci spoke with deepfelt convictions of her five years in the White House and her future in Texas.

"The White House has been my home for five years," she said. "It has been difficult, tumultuous and traumatic at times. But it has been worth it."

"I feel I am beginning a new life but still in limbo because Pat still is away," she said. Her husband, Airman 1C Patrick J. Nugent will end his tour of duty in Vietnam in mid-April.

Luci said she is "proud" of him because he turned down a promotion to sergeant because he is not going to make the military a career and he felt others in the service rated it more "to support their families," said Luci.

Luci observed that Tricia Nixon, 22, is moving into the White House "at just the right age."

"I was 15 and a half," she recalled, "and I had to adjust to a adolescence to find myself."

Speaking of Tricia, Luci said "I'm very pleased for her, especially because Julie is married (to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's grandson) David. She's young and attractive."

"The only thing I am somewhat remorseful about is the time I spent adjusting to my new position."

Luci says dating for a single girl in the White House has problems but "the prospects also increase." Her advice to the Nixon girls is to "be like a sponge listen and learn all you

Whatever may have been Israel's justification for her year-end attack on Beirut airport, the fact remains she chose as her target the one Arab neighbor who took no part in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and one which always has preferred banking to fighting.

She also took on the one least prepared.

More Luck

Thousands of international travelers pass through Beirut's airport each day and the fact that no one was killed probably was more luck than planning.

At any rate, the attack gave substance to the charge that Israel in two other wars, gered world peace, just as she opened herself to similar charges in November, 1966, when she sent a brigade on a punitive raid against Jordan.

Of all the Arab neighbors who had fought and lost against Israel in two other wars, Jordan's King Hussein probably was the least desirous of the conflict which finally broke out in June, 1967.

One immediate result of the Beirut raid was the fall of Premier Abdullah Yaffi's conservative government which had been only moderately pro-Egypt and its replacement by another whose premier-designate once described President Gamal Abdel Nasser as "superman."

Demand Arms

It led to student demonstrations and demands among Moslem leaders, students and leftists for military conscription and distribution of arms to frontier villages.

Both of these now have been undertaken.

Certainly, the new government will take a stiffer attitude against Israel than in the past.

The new premier, Rashid Karami, is Lebanon's most prominent Moslem leader and has held the premier's post many times before. He is regarded as an Arab nationalist with strong sympathies for Nasser but with emphasis on Lebanon's independence.
