Nixon Expresses Hopes for Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon expressed hope today that the Paris peace talks could make progress toward restoring order in the Vietnam Demilitarized Zone, mutual troop withdrawals and an exchange of prisoners.

Czech Students Threaten To Restore Calm

PRAGUE (UPI)—Teen-agers today threatened government attempts to restore calm in Czechoslovakia following the death and burial of the martyred student Jan Palach.

Their weapons were shouts and the popping of paper bags. Twice Sunday, jeering, long-haired youths taunted police into restrained action, the first such incidents since the 21-year-old Palach set fire to himself Jan. 16 to protest Soviet occupation.

The main action in Wenceslas Square involved more than 600 steel-helmeted police and multi-manned welding truncheons who quickly swept 500 youths and onlookers from the site of a memorial to Palach.

Thirteen persons were detained afterwards, according to Prague Radio, but no injuries were reported.

news conference since his inauguration a week ago today that the United States was proposing all those things at the Paris talks. What happens now, he said, depends on the attitude of the Communists.

Nixon said the U.S. delegation would not propose a "laundry list" containing a multitude of Vietnam proposals but was limiting its proposals to steps which could be taken now toward ending the war.

As far as the American side is concerned, Nixon said, "we are off to a good start."

In reply to another question, Nixon said that Red China had not indicated any interest in becoming a member of the United Nations and that the policy of his administration would be to continue to oppose seating of a Peking delegation in the world body.

Nixon said he thought it would be a mistake to change U.S. policy opposing admission of Red China to the U.N.

He did say however that he would be "interested to see what Red China might offer in the way of proposals at the next meeting in Warsaw between U.S. and Red Chinese delegates."

In a reply to a question about his position on the long pending nuclear nonproliferation treaty and proposed negotiations with the Soviet Union on disarmament, Nixon said he favors the treaty designed to keep the number of nations possessing nuclear weapons from increasing.

But he added that the question remains when the United States should ratify the treaty.

He said he would take up the (See NIXON, Page 3)

SPECIAL DELIVERY — U.S. Marines occupying high ground near the Demilitarized Zone in Vietnam receive a special delivery howitzer from a helicopter for fire support of troops searching out enemy forces. U.S. and Saigon have announced plans calling for gradual withdrawal of American troops from such various outposts to be overtaken by South Vietnamese troops as they seek to take a more active part in the war.

Pueblo Incident Inquiry Continues With Superiors

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI)—The Navy's inquiry into the seizure of the USS Pueblo continued in secret today with Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher's immediate superiors telling their side of the story.

The 41-year-old Pueblo skipper presented his case for four days last week, in public and without potentially embarrassing cross-examination from the five admirals sitting as the court of inquiry.

The closed-door sessions dealing with matters of national security began Friday with testimony from the officers who were Bucher's superiors at the time of the seizure.

The content of their testimony was not disclosed, but a spokesman said there was more of a courtroom give and take during the session on Saturday.

The inquiry apparently was getting down to the basic question of the extent to which Bucher was able to defend his vessel. The skipper has placed a good share of the blame for the loss on the officers immediately above him in the chain of command, and contended he did everything possible to avoid surrendering the ship.

The key issue in the inquiry is whether Bucher exhausted his "power to resist" the seizure. The Navy has warned him he is "suspected" of violating the applicable section of U.S. Navy regulations.

Top officials in Washington were upset over what they thought was undue emphasis given to the warning, which they termed "routine." Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of Naval Operations, said the court was searching for "facts, not scapegoats."

Once the facts are in, the court must decide whether or not to recommend a court martial. The ultimate decision, said Moorer, could go as high as the secretary of the Navy. Moorer said the court's recommendation could also cover "such things as operational procedures, material improvements, communications and training of personnel."

IN WITHDRAWAL PLAN

U.S. Troops Turn Over Dak To to S. Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States turned over its 3,000-man garrison at Dak To to South Vietnamese troops today—another major transfer leading toward eventual U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

The last soldiers of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division's 1st Brigade left the Central Highlands outpost and South Vietnamese troops assumed full command of the base 250 miles northeast of Saigon, UPI correspondent David Lamb reported from Dak To.

The battle of Dak To in November of 1967 was one of the war's biggest setpiece campaigns pitting allied soldiers against tough North Vietnamese troops in a series of hill battles, the fiercest of which was Hill 875.

Today's turnover is part of a series of transfers of responsibility from American to South Vietnamese troops in the highlands. U.S. Green Berets last week turned over their camp at Plateau GI to government special forces.

The first South Vietnamese division from which the United States withdrew its advisers, the 22nd, has taken command of the Dak To garrison. The U.S. pullout began 11 days ago.

It was the third base since summer American forces have left. The other two—Khe Sanh and Camp Carroll to the north—were considered of no tactical use and no one replaced the U.S. troops.

The turnover at Dak To is another step in the U.S. command's goal of turning over major responsibility to the South Vietnamese as a prelude to eventual U.S. withdrawal from the war.

In the war, Communist gunners attacked the U.S. outpost at Dau Tieng, northwest of Saigon, for the third time in five days today. On the central coast, a land minesweeper (See TROOPS, Page 3)

Army to Try Soldiers For Mutiny Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The historic Presidio, founded the same year the Declaration of Independence was signed, and long considered a "showplace" by the nation's GIs because of its ocean-side beauty, Tuesday becomes the site of a rare mutiny trial.

The first six of 27 accused mutineers are scheduled to be brought at gunpoint from the barbed wire enclosed stockade high on a bluff overlooking the Golden Gate Bridge. They will face a general court martial in a neat military courtroom—for holding a sit-down strike.

The Army goes to Federal Court today to answer charges that stockade prisoners received cruel treatment. The suit was brought on behalf of 17 of the defendants by attorney Terence Hallinan, who termed the stockade the Army's "Black Hole of Calcutta."

The consequences of a guilty verdict in a mutiny case can be death, but the Army said it would not impose the maximum penalty in any of the Presidio cases.

The 27 soldiers were stockade prisoners Oct. 14, 1968 when they held a brief sit-down strike and refused to go to their work details.

They protested alleged inhumane conditions at the stockade and the fatal shooting of a prisoner by a guard three days earlier. The Army said the slain inmate, Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, of Dayton, Ohio, was trying to escape.

The Army accused all 27 of mutiny and pressed the charges despite a recommendation by a military hearing officer that the charge "does not apply."

Capt. Richard J. Millard said the most serious charge against the 27 should have been willful disobedience. Army authorities have refused all requests by newsmen to interview the prisoners. They have also denied newsmen permission to visit the stockade, although such an inspection was allowed before Bunch was shot.

Thousands Homeless, Hundreds Marooned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bulldozers pushed through mud and debris in flood-ravaged Southern California today to reach hundreds of persons marooned by the worst siege of rain in more than 30 years.

Helicopters shuttled between rooftops of homes and relief centers when access by road or boat was impossible. More than 10,000 persons were temporarily homeless and the death toll passed 90.

After nine days of almost constant rain from back-to-back subtropical storms, the sun peeked through the clouds and the downpour dissolved into scattered showers.

Sheriff's departments in the 150-mile stretch from Santa Barbara through Ventura and Los Angeles counties to San Bernardino and Riverside counties reported that all was "peaceful and quiet" during the night and dawn broke with generally sparkling clear skies.

At least 92 persons were killed and damage was estimated statewide in excess of $35 million. Twelve persons were buried alive when the mud rolled down hillsides and into their homes. Fifty-five died in rain-connected traffic accidents and four in weather-related plane crashes. Nineteen drowned and two died of heart attacks, one while filling sandbags to save his home.

Major Disaster Area President Nixon declared the entire state a major disaster area. The Small Business Administration made low cost federal loans available to those whose homes or businesses were damaged by the torrential rains.

More than 9,000 persons were evacuated, 3,000 of them from homes in the Santa Paula area in Santa Barbara County where the Santa Paula Creek flooded the lowlands.

The U.S. Weather Bureau today promised some easing of the storm. Only scattered showers were forecast through Tuesday. The first storm began Jan. 18 and dropped more than 6.5 inches of water on Los Angeles before ending last Wednesday. The second onslaught hit Southern California a day later and inundated the soggy area with nearly seven more inches of rain. Lake Arrowhead in the San Bernardino Mountains recorded a total of 37.5 inches.

U.S. and Saigon Meet To Prepare Position Papers

PARIS (UPI)—Chief American negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge called a working session with South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky today to assess the initial phase of the Paris talks on Vietnam and prepare position papers for Thursday's second bargaining session.

The session between Lodge and Ky was preceded by a flurry of separate staff meetings at the American and South Vietnamese delegation headquarters.

Preparations for Thursday's new plenary session of the conference, which opened Saturday, coincided with reports the American delegation would continue urging a halt to propaganda blasts to engage at the earliest possible time in give-and-take bargaining.

Already observers remarked that both the allied delegations and their North Vietnamese and National Liberation Front (NLF) opponents had put a damper on their past habit of frequently airing their grievances at news conferences and in public statements.

Attempts to keep the propaganda heat largely out of the new phase of the talks was apparent in Saturday's opening session. Observers familiar with the Paris meetings which started last May remarked the preliminary parity that led to the complete U.S. bombing halt was marked by much mutual public recrimination.

Allied sources believed the talks will gradually move from largely publicized plenary sessions attended by 15 delegates on each side into more restricted meetings which can more easily insure faster movement of the parity.

Despite statements from both the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations that similar proposals had been rejected in the past, conference analysts said neither had ruled out discussion of the subject later in the talks.

Hanoi's chief spokesman here, Nguyen Thanh Le, explained in his news conference after the Saturday meeting that North Vietnamese Minister of State Xuan Thuy made only "preliminary comments" on Lodge's speech at the first session.

At the same time, allied diplomats were reported to consider the future of the Paris talks unhindered by the recent upsurge of hostilities on the battlefield. Sources described the latest Viet Cong attacks on American and South Vietnamese installations as "more political than truly military."

IN ITS FIRST BILL

Texas Legislature To Discuss Money

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The 61st Texas Legislature is expected to consider its first bill—a special appropriations measure involving at least $500,000 today.

The supplemental funds would be used to continue welfare payments to families with dependent children, give an additional $335,000 to junior colleges to compensate for unexpected enrollment increases and possibly provide more money for operation of the governor's office and the legislature until the end of the current fiscal year. Budget officials said the $134,000 needed to continue the welfare payments involve transfer of the funds from three other welfare accounts.

The money would come from funds for the aged, the needy blind, and the totally and permanently disabled, which the spokesman said all have surpluses.

Some New Money The other appropriations requested would involve "new money," rather than transfers. Gov. Preston Smith Friday announced plans for the special appropriations request but said he would not submit the single bill as an emergency measure.

No other bills are expected to be considered by the legislature until committees are appointed later this week. Budget officials denied a report the state will have a $125 million deficit this year and predicted instead there would be a $50.3 million cash balance when the fiscal year ends Aug. 31.

Deficit Now There is a deficit now, they said, but income in the next eight months will put the state in the black at the year's end.

Barnes was expected to name members and chairmen of the 23 senate committees Tuesday, but House Speaker Gus F. Muhsler said it would be Thursday before he appointed members of the 45 house committees.

However, a legislative squabble may crop up before the committees are appointed in the form of resolutions setting rules for both houses.

The house has already adopted its rules without a dissenting vote, but the senate has delayed until today any action on its rules at the request of Sen. Jim Bates of Edinburg. Bates was hospitalized as a result of a traffic accident last week.

Sirhan's Defense Readies Motion

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Defense and prosecution attorneys readied arguments today over a motion to throw out the indictment against Sirhan B. Sirhan for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

In its move to quash the indictment, the defense contended the grand jury which returned it did not include representatives of minorities and was therefore unconstitutional.

The motion faced almost certain rejection by Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker when court reconvenes Wednesday.

The eight men and four women selected to determine the guilt or innocence of the 24-year-old Arab were making the most of the last few days they will spend at home with their families for the next three months.

Later this week, probably Thursday, they will be sworn in as jurors along with six alternates yet to be picked. All will be locked up nightly in a downtown hotel for the duration of the trial.

Mainly About People

As he prepared to leave the White House, President Johnson presented to Congress the first balanced budget since 1960, the last Eisenhower year. The proposed fiscal year 1970 budget, which would begin July 1, 1969, in fact, contemplates a surplus of $3.4 billion.

There are, however, several conditions to such a surplus, the most important of which is an extension for one year of the 10 per cent surtax enacted last year, and which would expire June 30, this year.

A reduction in the Federal debt would also be reflected by the surplus and the sharp reduction in net Federal borrowing requirements.

As encouraging as this is, there could be some slips between the cup and the lip. Extension of the 10 per cent surtax is not a foregone conclusion, nor is extension of certain excise taxes which would otherwise be reduced under a prior law. The 10 per cent surtax extension is estimated to produce $9 billion in income tax receipts in 1970. There are a few other bitter pills in the budget prescription, such as proposed legislation for user charges in the field of transportation — highways, airways, and waterways plus a proposed shift in the timing of collections of the Federal unemployment tax from a lump-sum annual basis to a current quarterly basis. Most of these proposals, including extension of the 10 per cent surtax, are unlikely to be popular but may be necessary, along with continued efforts by the Congress to hold down appropriations, if a balanced budget or surplus is to be achieved.

The new Nixon Administration also has the tight rope of a balanced economy to walk — maintain full or near-full employment and prosperity, slow down the present and alarming rate of inflation without slowing the economy into a recession.

— all of this in the face of the uncertainties of the war in Vietnam and continued development and maintenance of an essential military and defense superiority. It's not an enviable position for a new President to step into but I'm confident that Richard M. Nixon is the best capable man in the United States to attempt to restore not only price stability, and order in the nation, but peace in the world, I believe he will have the full cooperation of Congress and all America in rallying the nation "Forward Together."

Of vital interest to the Panhandle and all of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico were proposals in the budget for funds to continue the water import study. An appropriation of $555,000 for the Bureau of Reclamation and $450,000 for the Corps of Engineers to continue their reconnaissance study of the West Texas and Eastern New Mexico water import project was included in the budget. If approved by Congress this will be an increase from the $892,000 already funded to those two agencies for the water import study for fiscal 1969.

The scope and magnitude of the water import plan is well expressed in the foreword of the summary of the Texas Water Plan, which was released in December, which states in part: "With the heavy demands on the Federal budget, it is completely unrealistic to expect that the United States would fully finance construction of all of the works needed to meet Texas' urgent water needs. The State of Texas, and its political subdivisions, must provide significant portions of the funds required. Further, in order that

The Agricultural Committee Texas may have full control over the development and utilization of its water resources. It is essential that the State be a major participant in financing and directing the Texas Water Plan into actuality and in its management once construction is completed.

There is not a water resource plan of this magnitude or complexity in existence in the world today or even in the planning stage, yet Texas' water needs for the future can be met with nothing less sweeping."

Lodge's Imprint Found at Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge already has put his own personal imprint on American participation in the Paris talks on the Vietnam War.

Although he has only been in the French capital for a week, President Nixon's envoy has, in the eyes of conference observers, shown he will do many things differently from his predecessor, W. Averell Harriman.

Some diplomats raised eyebrows Saturday, for example, when Lodge walked into the International Conference Center wearing a light grey business suit instead of a more conventional dark one. The chiefs of all three Vietnamese delegations wore the traditional outfit.

According to prediction, Lodge has also established himself as a public figure in Paris. Sunday morning, when he went to church, he allowed himself to be photographed and televised.

Sources close to the American delegation say he may also see to it that an interpreter is provided at the American briefings for the first time since the talks began last May.

explosion, killing seven American Marines.

Viet Cong fired 30 rockets and mortar rounds into the U.S. 25th Infantry Division at Dau Thieng, 40 miles northwest of Saigon. Spokesmen reported "light" casualties and damage.

Spokesman said the mine-sweeping vehicle, converted from an armored personnel carrier, exploded Sunday as it moved through a field in the Viet Cong stronghold of the Batangan Peninsula on the central coast. It apparently was blasted apart by "premature" ignition of one of the explosive charges used to detonate mines in its path.

Seven Marines were killed and two others wounded, spokesmen said. About 5,000 Allied troops are involved in an operation on the peninsula, attempting to rout out Viet Cong who have operated in the region for more than two decades.

Terrorists tried to bomb a civil defense office in the Cholon section of Saigon Sunday and hurled an assault against the police station at Phan Rang, 165 miles northeast of the capital. Spokesmen said neither attack succeeded.

Ground fighting flared near Saigon over the weekend. Spokesmen said 127 Communist soldiers died in three battles.

At Phan Rang, Viet Cong attacked the police station with rocket grenades and automatic rifle fire. Police, however, chased the Red force out of town, capturing two Viet Cong at the cost of one policeman wounded.

Communist saboteurs slightly damaged a civil defense office in Saigon's Cholon Chinese section with a satchel charge. The terrorists escaped, spokesmen said.

U.S. Army 9th Infantry Division troops reported killing 78 Communist soldiers and capturing three others in weekend fighting in a marshy area 25 miles southwest of Saigon. The Americans pounded the Communist troops with air strikes and artillery after trapping them in a palm tree-dotted region bordering South Vietnam's Plain of Reeds.

American losses were placed at seven killed and 12 wounded. North Vietnam said Sunday its forces shot down a U.S. F4 Phantom fighter-bomber in Nghe An Province Saturday morning. A radio broadcast monitored in Tokyo said the plane was in a formation which attacked several villages in the Nghi Loc district of the North Vietnamese province.

SEVEN ARRESTED HONG KONG

(UPI)—Seven employees of a Communist Chinese department store were arrested Saturday after a billboard advertising the thoughts of Mao Tse-tung appeared outside the store. Police said the sign was attracting crowds which blocked the sidewalk.

Storm

Story Of People

The awesome statistics obscure the real story of the storm—the story of people: —A dike protecting the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shultz in Glendora overflowed. "One or two pictures, that's it. That's all that can be saved," Schultz said. "Insurance? They don't cover mudslides."

"My babies are in the front room. Save them," screamed Mrs. John Gonzalez from beneath her collapsed house in Highland Park. The two children were found dead. The home was reduced to kindling by a mudslide.

—Three pregnant women being evacuated from the Ojai Valley in Ventura County began having labor pains at a relief center. They were taken to a hospital by helicopter.

—Mrs. William E. Stephens of Montecito was swept into a creek. She was missing for 12 hours, then was found alive clinging to the root of a tree undercut by the water. At one point, the water carried her under a parked car, she said.

—At Yosemite National Park, winds gusting up to 30 miles an hour toppled giant redwood trees across a half dozen cabins. One woman, Iris Pope, 23, Downey, was killed when a trunk smashed through a roof. Flooding and mudslides are an old story in Southern California.

It rained so heavily in 1815 that the Los Angeles River carved a new channel to the west of its normal course. The river left its bed again in 1825.

Area Men Charged For Disturbing Peace

A complaint of disturbing the peace has been lodged against two men in connection with an affray early Sunday morning in the Chapparral Lounge No. 1, 435 W. Brown.

According to police, the charges were filed against Edwin Harold Lowrance, 45, of White Deer, and Keith L. McLaughlin, 25, of Berger. A 17-year-old girl involved in the incident was released to the custody of her mother by juvenile authorities.

Both men were releasing on $25 cash bonds pending trial in Corporation Court.

He said he also favored talks on reduction of strategic arms. He said he hoped that the talks would take place in a "context" that could lead to both reduction of arms and progress on pressing political problems such as the Arab-Israeli confrontation in the Middle East.

He said "new initiatives and new leadership" by the United States are needed to "cool off" the Middle East, which he referred to as a "powder keg." He warned that "the next explosion in the Middle East, I think, could involve a confrontation between the nuclear powers."

Nixon said he and his principal advisers plan to devote all of next Saturday to a Middle East review. The new President, at a crowded news conference in the White House East Room broadcast live on television and radio, also said:

He plans to submit "a major legislative program" to Congress this year but has not yet decided whether to present it in his own State of the Union message.

In reply to a question about the possibility of a ceasefire in Vietnam, Nixon said he feels that "a cease-fire has no relevance to the kind of guerrilla war which is going on in Vietnam." "In conventional warfare, a cease-fire means the shooting stops by agreement on both sides. In guerrilla war one side may not even be able to control many of those who

In neither instance did young people shout anti-Soviet slogans. But many Czechoslovaks still fear any major demonstration would serve as a pretext for Soviet occupation forces to intervene, alleging the presence of "extremist forces."

Stripped Of Reminders

The incidents began when police refused to allow a group of young people to raise a Czechoslovak flag over the statue of St. Wenceslas, stripped the night before of all reminders of the dead student. Government and student leaders apparently agreed on the removal of wreaths, posters and other tributes to Palach from around the monument and nearby walls as a step towards regaining calm after the near crisis last week over his death. Another self-burning death and three more attempted "human torch" suicides were reported Sunday by Prague Radio.

Josef Hlavaty, 24, a divorced brewery worker who set himself ablaze in Pilsen last Monday, died Saturday night, according to the radio. He was the second person in Czechoslovakia and third in Eastern Europe to die of self-inflicted burns suffered since Palach's gesture.

He is responsible for the violence, so a ceasefire may be meaningless." He would take a "fresh look" at all program allocations by the Johnson administration and promised to send a set of new recommendations to Congress. "I have hopes for reductions," he said.

Nixon's Vision Of Better America

Just as some Americans demand "a choice and not an echo" in each election, some seem to believe that there must be an abrupt change, a dramatic break with the past, when an old administration leaves and a new one takes over, else they are not getting their money's worth from history.

Fortunately for the nation, such times are infrequent — as infrequent as a Civil War or a Depression, the two chief examples of times when Americans had to adopt radical measures to confront dangers that threatened the nation's very existence.

Other times, and most of the time, there is a basic continuity that survives and underlies changes of administrations, despite differences in philosophies and approaches.

It is a continuity of challenges. Much the same problems that engaged the energies of an outgoing president remain to be the concern of an incoming president.

It is a continuity of purpose. There have been ineffectual presidents, even foolish ones, but there has never been an evil one. Each has been a patriot, desirous of leaving the nation and the world a better place for his having briefly held in his hands the greatest power a people can bestow.

The man who was inaugurated the 37th president of the United States on Jan. 20, 1969, came very close to being inaugurated 35th president on Jan. 20, 1961. Had that happened, the man who actually did become president that year would probably be with us today and might well be the one now entering the White House.

"Let us never fear to negotiate," said John F. Kennedy in 1961, "but let us never negotiate out of fear." He could have said it in 1969.

"We can't expect to make everyone our friends," said Richard M. Nixon in 1969, "but we can try to make no one our enemy." He could have said it in 1961.

"Ask not what your country can do for you," said Kennedy. "Ask what you can do for your country."

"We are approaching the limits of what government alone can do," said Nixon. "What has to be done, has to be done by government and people together or it will not be done at all."

"Let us continue," said Lyndon B. Johnson five years ago.

"Let us go forward together," urges Richard Nixon today.

The comparisons may be odious to those who divide parties and politicians into either rascals or heroes. The words may be meaningless to those to whom inaugural addresses are nothing but high-flown rhetoric designed to impress readers of history books in the future.

Grandiose, glittering, such sentiments may be. But they are also blueprints presented to the American people, with whose aid they could be transformed into reality.

Each president has had his vision of building an edifice that would endure after his passing. It is, after all, one and the same edifice — America, the United States, still the last, best hope of mankind.

A Fearsome Protection

It's frequently true that some authorities in government appear to urge that guidelines and controls be established for everyone except government — where, as the costly experience of recent years has amply proven, they are most sorely needed. An example of this official penchant for restriction of others is found in proposals for restrictions on the free-market system that are advanced as consumer protection measures. One of the most insidious has been the advocacy of controls on promotion and advertising. So far as curbing the price increases brought on by inflationary governmental fiscal policies, this would be about as effective as trying to cure a broken leg with a diet of bread and water.

Many people apparently fail to realize what is really at stake in any move to set a limit on legitimate business promotion. The head of a major supermarket expresses his views in no uncertain terms on one form of promotion — trading stamps. He says, "We feel that there are enough customers who would leave us if we discontinued stamps that we might lose 10 to 15 per cent of our business. Our profit margin is so low that a difference of 10 per cent could make the difference between profit and loss."

The success of mass distribution as we know it today depends upon high-volume movement of goods at minimum prices. In reality, promotion is as much a partner of mass production, and moreover, promotion and advertising have a deeper — than economic significance that is also often overlooked. They are the backbone of the free press. Such things as trading stamps encourage advertising, and without the financial support of advertising, the thousands of independent newspapers in the United States would face ruin. And, as we have just seen in Czechoslovakia, the death of an independent press is speedily followed by the death of liberty.

Bruin Trouble Brewin'

It's coming down to a choice between bears or people in our increasingly visited national parks, says a biologist.

According to Gairdner B. Moment, a professor at Goucher College in Baltimore, injuries standing bears from are far daily in Great Smoky and Yellowstone National Parks, and some of them are rather gruesome. Within the past few years, the government has paid $100,000 in damages on two separate occasions because of grizzly bear injuries.

Smoky the Bear and Goldilocks' acquaintances notwithstanding, bears are far from being friendly, harmless playmates, he writes in BioScience, organ of the American Institute of Biological Sciences. They are large, often bad-tempered carnivores who can outrun anything except a horse or antelope.

If we can have sanctuaries for waterfowl, Moment argues surely we can find suitable ones for bears. Old Faithful, he points out, is unique to Yellowstone; bears are not.

Reg Manning On Arizona

Want to make an enjoyable armchair visit to Arizona? You can do it now with a new book by Reg Manning, whose cartoons appear on the editorial page of The News.

We have just received a copy of Mr. Manning's book "What Is Arizona Really Like?" which bears a subtitle, "A Guide to Arizona's Marvels." It makes the reader want to take every step outlined briefly in the book, which is illustrated by Mr. Manning's inimitable cartoons. Visits to the Indian Country, the pine forests and the deserts of the neighboring state are described concisely and entertainingly by the prize-winning cartoonist and booster for the state of his adoption.

Whether you are an Arizona fan or whether you like to read a little of the history and nature of the southwest, we recommend Mr. Manning's new and enjoyable book.

Pull Up A Chair

By JOHN KEASLER
 "Your tongue needs brushing, too... to reduce the number of cavities... you must brush your tongue as well. Sound funny? If it does, just take a good look at your tongue in the mirror. You'll probably see that it is coated or stained... but you can brush it well and bring it to a firm, reddish pink with your toothbrush." — "Ask Your Dentist," by Dr. Alfred E. Seyler, Daytona Beach News-Journal

Ever alert to trends in modern dentistry, I could hardly wait to get home to brush my tongue after reading this. The very idea of brushing my tongue lent a new purpose to an ordinarily prosaic life of quiet desperation.

And I actually felt one of those moments of fulfillment when I read it — one of those all-too-rare realizations where seemingly dissociated actions can be seen as part of a logical pattern once you understand what course to pursue down life's pathway.

By this, I mean obviously I subconsciously for years had realized — my tongue needed brushing.

Why else would I have all these years gone into the bathroom every morning and stuck my tongue out at myself in the medicine chest mirror? Surely I never had the slightest idea what I was looking for.

It was just one of those things you do, like kicking tires, poking in pay phones or fainting when an envelope comes from Internal Revenue.

Man's the time I've stood before the medicine chest mirror with my tongue out and, wondered vaguely: "I wonder why I am standing here before the medicine chest mirror with my tongue out?"

The answer, now so obvious, had eluded me. This was nature's way of telling me to brush my tongue. How could I have missed it? There have been mornings when my tongue probably needed combing.

In any case, I raced into the bathroom, grabbed my toothbrush and gave my tongue a brisk brush.

"YOWWWW!" I expostulated, leaping about.

"What's with you?" inquired my wife, as I raced up and down the hall.

"Gr-shall! diddammle ungaung!"

"I can't understand you if you're going to hold your tongue in your hand."

"I said, 'I brushed my tongue. Oooh. That smarts!'"

"Gee," she said. "That's a new one. Is brushing your tongue more fun than rubbing toothpaste in your hair?"

(This was a snide reference to occasional mixups I have with various tubes and pressure sprays. I didn't even tell her about spraying her hair set under my arms three straight days.)

The point here, and I rather wish it had been included in the "Ask Your Dentist" essay, is not to brush your tongue as hard as you brush your teeth. It leaves painful and unsightly ridges and valleys. And there is nothing worse than a nice, healthy reddish-pink tongue otherwise glowing with health and goodwill but with a Band-Aid in the middle.

I've experimented with this new health measure, which I certainly hope is covered by my Blue Cross, and find that numerous gentle strokes of the brush are better than a few rough strokes.

Many people will ask: Should I use toothpaste on my tongue when brushing it?

In fact, I am one of the people who ask that.

Who am I to dispute modern dentistry? I'll admit certain drawbacks. For one thing, my tongue gets cold with its coat off. For another, it tries to run the other way each time it sees a toothbrush.

Withal, however, I like the new effect, with the part on the left, and often stop to admire my tongue's reflection in store windows.

Or, As Another President Put It—

Inside Washington

That Demo Policy Council Could Get Brush from Lawmakers

WASHINGTON — Democratic congressional leaders are far from enthusiastic about the creation of that top-level Democratic Policy Council to chart party policies.

The council was authorized by the Democratic National Committee at its meeting earlier this month. As matters now stand, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is expected to be chairman of a prestigious council membership.

The council is supposed to function as a sort of "shadow government" for the Democrats while Republicans control the government's executive branch. Meeting periodically, the council is to discuss national issues and issue party position papers on them.

Many congressional Democrats feel that party policy while Republicans control the White House must be made by Democrats in the House and Senate. They think policies and policy papers drafted by an outside group will only complicate the process for the elected lawmakers.

Senate Democratic Floor Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., has let it be known that he was not consulted about formation of the council. He says that, as a consequence, he is neither for or against the idea — only unconvinced and uncommitted.

"I will have to be convinced that the council can do a job down there that will help us with our job up here at the Capitol."

"I think the fulcrum of power is here in Congress and the party's success in the 1970 and '72 elections will depend on our performance," says Mansfield.

1956 REVISITED — A similar panel, known then as the Democratic Advisory Council, was established by Adlai Stevenson after his presidential defeat in 1956. That council was headed by Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler.

Former President Harry S. Truman was one of 20 council members. So were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, but Butler was firmly rebuffed when he sought participation by Democratic leaders in the House and Senate.

Speaker Sam Rayburn wanted no part of the council, and the then Senate Democratic leader, Lyndon B. Johnson, said: "The necessity of dealing with an additional committee, not created by federal law, before taking action would only cause delay and confusion."

Democratic strategists are now hoping that Mansfield and Speaker John W. McCormack can be persuaded to participate in the council's deliberations. They think the two top congressional Democrats of 1964 are less antagonistic to the concept than their 1956 predecessors.

Supporters of the council plan contend that, with former

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION:—Assuming that we had an ideally streamlined government operating at maximum efficiency, from what alternate sources could revenue, if needed for government operations, be obtained should the Liberty Amendment pass? Or would a complete restructuring of our tax system be needed?

ANSWER: The Liberty Amendment proposes not only an end of the personal income tax, but also the elimination of business functions of the federal government which are not authorized by the Constitution. It is proposed that the many business functions of the federal government would be sold to private enterprise over a period of three years, the receipts to be used to help retire the national debt, thus reducing the heavy interest payment. The sponsors of the Liberty Amendment claim that elimination of the subsidies for the unconstitutional business enterprises would end the "need" for the funds raised from the personal income taxes. Whether these statements are correct, we have no way of knowing. It should be pointed out that in addition to personal income taxes, the federal government also raises funds from corporation taxes, from excise taxes, import duties and others. The Liberty Amendment sponsors have not proposed eliminating these other taxes provided for in the original Constitution.

Assuming that the Liberty Amendment were to be passed, and still more money were required for legal government operations we would suppose the alternate source of income which the politicians would choose would be some form of manufacturer's excise tax.

The News favors users paying for any governmental services they want or need so the services would not be financed from willing and unwilling persons alike. This would not forestall voluntary contributions from persons favoring a particular recreation project such as a school or a recreation facility which they favored making available to those less able to pay.

Why Presidents Get Gray

By PAUL HARVEY
 As private businessman and public servant, Lyndon Johnson kept his black hair for half a century. It turned gray, almost white, during his first few years in the White House.

Take a good look at Richard Nixon now; four years from now he, too, will have aged more than most of us.

Insurance statisticians have studied the lives of American Presidents and there is no accurate measure how much, if any, the Presidency shortens a man's life.

Frequently, the Presidency has been described as the world's "most demanding" job. A conscientious President is forever preoccupied with the undone, the unsolved, the imminent or eventual danger, the sometimes decisions which may alienate lifelong friends. And, as Mrs. Johnson once said, "The terrible sound of the telephone at 4 a.m."

Most of our Presidents have been vigorous men; each clung tenaciously to life and each had available the best medical care.

Yet, on the average, each died sooner than if he had never been President.

For our Presidents, the average duration of life after taking office has been shorter than might have been expected from mortality conditions prevailing at the time of their inaugurations.

Since the Civil War, for example, only five Presidents have outlived their own "life expectancy." Those who did were Grover Cleveland, William H. Taft, Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Perhaps it is significant that our most recent Presidents had available to them vastly improved medical knowledge and facilities.

Yet, by and large, our earlier Presidents enjoyed greater longevity. The 15 Presidents Washington to Buchanan lived an average 74.2 years. That is one and a third years longer than their life expectancy at inauguration. The first 10 of those officeholders outlived their life expectancy by an average four and one-half years.

Since Lincoln, however, the 13 Presidents who died of natural causes lived an average of only 66.6 years. That is almost five years less than expected.

When you include the four assassinated President, the average President's lifetime was eight years less than it might have been.

Our longest-lived Presidents, so far, have been John Adams and Herbert Hoover, each of whom lived to be 90.

Our shortest-lived Presidents, John Kennedy and James Garfield, both died from assassins' bullets—Garfield at 49, Kennedy at 46.

Longevity statistics are inconclusive mostly because there is no way to know how long those who were killed might otherwise have lived. Also, variables in their ages at inauguration complicate the computation. Theodore Roosevelt and John Kennedy took office at 42 and 43 years of age. Harrison and Buchanan were respectively 68 and 65.

From the statistics which are computable, however, it is indicated that the job does subtract years from the life of the average President.

exposed to venereal disease had two negative blood tests. In the following five years, could he possibly have syphilis?

A—Although false negative tests do occur, they are rare with improved methods of testing. When there is reason to doubt the results of a blood test one of the new modifications of the test should be used.

Q—Are niter and saltpeter the same? How effective are they in reducing sexual desire?

A—Niter and saltpeter are other names for potassium nitrate. Its value in reducing sexual desire has been greatly overrated and it is no longer prescribed for this or any other purpose. Vigorous exercise and a cold shower are still the best means of cooling your ardor.

Q—I am taking Regroton. It gives me a headache. Could the headache be caused by prolonged use of this drug?

A—Yes. Other side effects include nausea, diarrhea and muscle cramps.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT
 Venereal Disease May Pass to Infant

Q—What are the symptoms of venereal disease? Can it be passed from a mother to her infant?

A—Gonorrhea starts with a severe burning pain on urination starting five or six days after an exposure. This is associated with a discharge of pus from the urethra. These symptoms are more likely to occur in men than in women. But, in women, the uterine tubes may become infected, causing pain and often sterility.

Syphilis starts with a small hard tumor or chancre on the genitals which develops from 10 to 90 days after exposure. Because it is painless it may go unnoticed, especially in women. About four weeks later there may be a skin rash that resembles measles.

A mother who has gonorrhea may, at the time of delivery, pass the infection to the baby's eyes. This was a common cause of blindness in the past and is why all states require prophylactic treatment of the eyes of every newborn. A mother with untreated syphilis may transmit the disease to her baby by way of the blood passing through the umbilical cord.

TUESDAY, Jan. 28.
Your birthday Tuesday: Your experience in the coming year runs into the extremes (which Tuesday's natives generally prefer). Much is to be given away, and good riddance. Emotional crisis, if permitted to develop, is more readily understood now because it becomes easier to talk about. New relationships (other than purely intellectual) should be explored. Tuesday's natives nearly all have unusual ideas and long-range plans, and in many cases, high skill at a specialized activity. ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): The choices you make today will have permanent impact. Pay close attention. Physical fitness programs are favored.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Reorganizing your budget is likely to take some of your attention. The problems of older people come in for a share of time and effort. Health seems improved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good counsel is at hand if you will be careful in checking on who is who in the field. Put something aside if possible, preferably an amount to be frequently repeated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Show your special qualities; anything goes and is likely to pay off. Courses in health maintenance go well if started today in their complete form. Home chores are easy this evening.

MALCOLM HINKLE, Inc.

1925 N. Hobart

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Today I received a third class letter addressed to my "husband" and myself. (My husband has been dead for 12 years.) There was no return address on the envelope, but it was post-marked "Los Angeles."

Upon opening it I found an invitation to send for a book on sex relations for $10. There were also drawings of "things to use" — about 10 items ranging from $10 to $75 each.

From whom did these sellers of pornography get my name? I thought there was a law against sending this kind of stuff through the mails.

I know I can just throw junk like this in the waste paper basket, but people who peddle such stuff should be put out of the business.

What do you advise?

TWIN CITIAN

DEAR ABBY: Our 16-year-old son recently received in the mails a catalog listing some "stag films" at $35 each. Some of the titles were, "Hubby Returns from out of Town Unexpectedly," "A Wedding Night Through the Keyhole," "Love Making Techniques in 30 Different Countries," and Boys with Boys and Girls with Girls." Do I have to say anything further?

Abby, our son is a decent, clean-minded young man, who is active in the youth group at our church. He brought this catalog to his father saying he had no idea why it was sent to him.

Now, you tell me. What are parents supposed to do about a situation like this?

UPSET IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR ABBY: What on earth is going on? I do believe there is a communist plot afoot to destroy our great nation from the inside by corrupting our young people with filth and rotten literature.

The most obscene bunch of paperback books I've ever in my life seen came in the mail today. The pictures and subject matter are so terrible I can't even tell you about it.

"I don't want these dirty books around my house and I don't see why I should spend my good money sending them back. A friend suggested that I return them postage due to teach the senders a lesson. What do you think I should do?"

—IRRITATED IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about objectionable material received in the mail? I refer to advertisements for books, magazines, pornographic pictures and even "contraptions" to make "sex in marriage more fun."

I was told to take this stuff to the postoffice and give it to my postmaster. So that's what I did. He told me all he could do is return it to the sender, and request that my name be taken off their mailing list. Why should I be put to the trouble of going to the post office with this trash?

DISGUSTED IN DAYTON, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: I am informed that unsolicited advertisements or material in the mails which the recipient regards as "erotically arousing or sexually provocative," should be returned to his (the recipient's) postmaster with instructions to be removed from that mailing list. If there are children under 19 living at home, their names may be listed to prevent them from receiving such mail or material.

If the request is not respected, and a second mailing is made, the senders are in violation of the law and may be punished by fine or imprisonment.

No one is responsible for the return of mail or material sent to him unsolicited. Nor should he be inconvenienced by going personally to the post office.

Bookies Out, You Can Bet On It

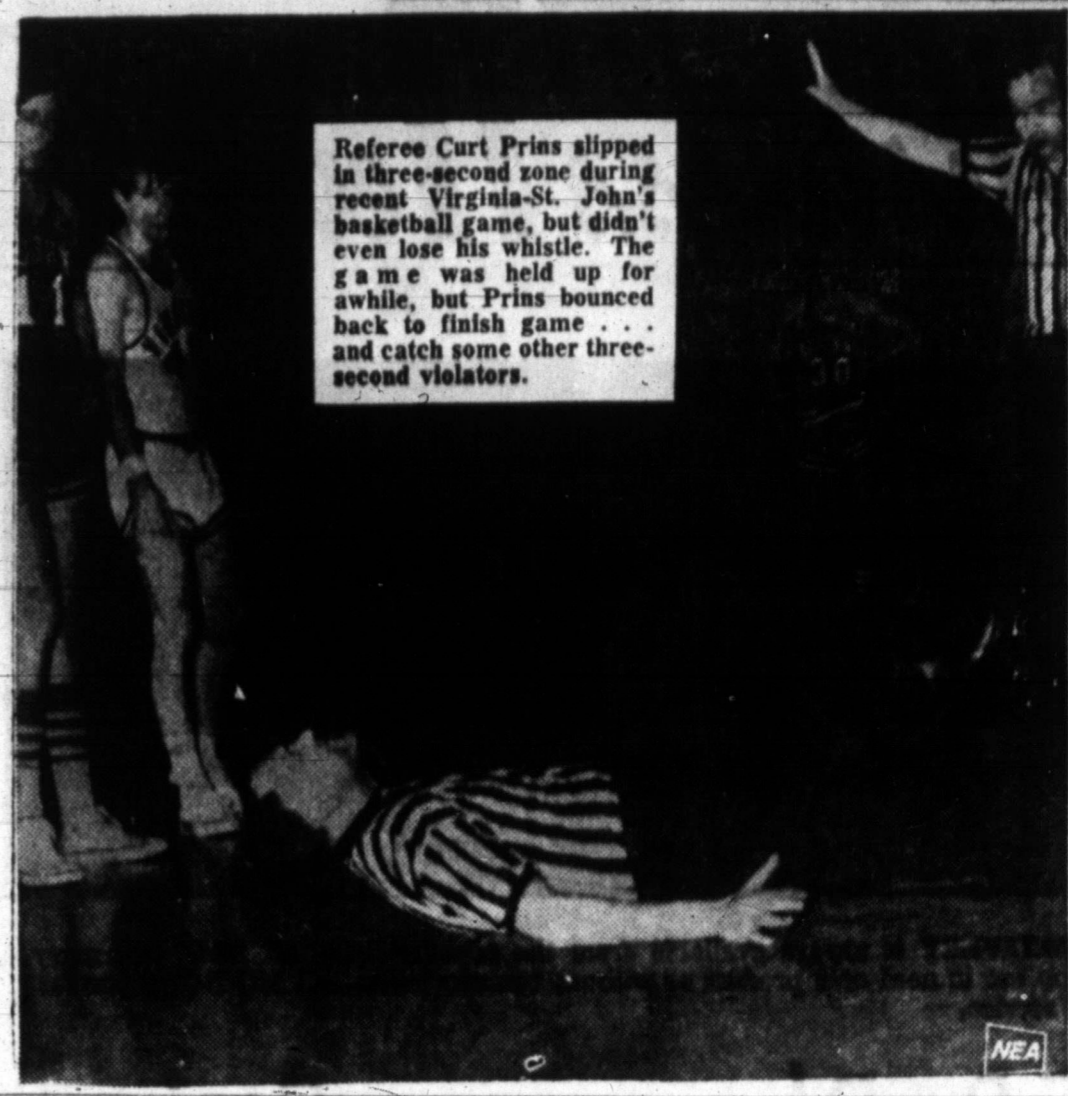

By LEE MUELLER
NEW YORK (NEA)—The guy in the blue sweater held out his hands and showed both palms to his friend. Squinting under the vast yellowness of Madison Square Garden, he tried to explain.
 "Don't ya see, Harold, he don't know ya," the fellow said, spacing his words for emphasis. "A guy calls up and says he has $5. Now, how's he supposed to know? He don't know ya."
 Harold's problem is not unusual in the Garden these days. There simply are not enough betting bookmakers to go around. The fact still astounds many here because there was a time—not so long ago—when Tuesday night pro basketball doubleheaders practically belonged to the bookies.

 Those were the days when the point spread was king. A man could place a bet as easily as he could buy a hot dog. Tuesday nights, the books did everything except erect a tote board.
 "It was like a chicken fight, you know," recalls a gray-haired usher who claims to have worked in the Garden for 25 years. "Guys would stand up and shout their bets to books in the next section. They were all over the place."

 No more. Inside the new, cavernous Garden, blatant betting has been reduced to occasional wagers among friends—a dour comment on the gambling world.
 "Bookies been closed up for about 15 years now," the usher says. "Police. The books could not buy 'em off anymore. Hell, they used to go into police stations to get bets. Now, it's tough. Things changed." Indeed, things have changed.

Now, instead of 15 or so Tuesday night doubleheaders a season, the Garden has scheduled only four. Action in the stands, meanwhile, has been restricted to sporadic ripples.
 "If they've got a book, they bet before they come here," the usher says. He suddenly turns away, biting his lip. One suspects he might have known a bookie.
 Overhead, the public address system snaps on and the man says, cheerfully:
 "Good evening, everybody, and welcome to the magical world of Madison Square Garden Center."

 The Garden crowd, always impatient with fancy words (magical world?), boos the announcer thoroughly. The usher turns and smiles.
 "Great bunch of people," he says. "It's a shame, ya know? These people, they should bet if they want to. What the hell, they run the books out and the girls took over."
 Huh?
 The old fellow shakes his head. "Go up to 47th Street sometime," he says (knowing wink). "Not a book in sight."

Referee Curt Prins slipped in three-second zone during recent Virginia-St. John's basketball game, but didn't even lose his whistle. The game was held up for awhile, but Prins bounced back to finish game... and catch some other three-second violators.

Pole Vaulter Sets Record

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI)—Pole-vaulter Bob Seagren, who felt he was "pushing my luck," and Ralph Doubell, Australia's newest track hero, both owned world records after following near simultaneous finishes at Albuquerque.
 The two climaxed the sixth Albuquerque Jaycees Invitational Indoor Track Meet which had numerous other Olympians and a handful of record-holders competing.
 Seagren went over the bar at 17-5-3-4 on his third and final try at the height while on the other side of the track, Doubell was thrilling the crowd by crossing the finish line for a 880-yard indoor record of 1:47.9.
 "Albuquerque seems to bring out the best in you," said Seagren, who set world record marks of 17-0-1-4 and 17-2 in two previous appearances in the mile-high city. His 17-0-1-4 vault was the first 17-foot vault in history.

 The Southern California Strider star said someone asked him before the meet if he would try for a third world mark.
 "I told him that would be pushing my luck but once I cleared 17-feet, I just couldn't stop," he said.
 It was at first thought Seagren had cleared 17-5 but a remeasurement by officials after the leap revealed the extra three quarters of an inch.
 Doubell, the gold medal winner at Mexico City, ran without pressure to the new 880-mark with only fellow Olympian Tom von Ruden of Oklahoma State offering token opposition.

 "Sometimes I run just to win, but tonight I decided to go flat out and see if things fell into place," said the 23-year-old Australian who has now won eight consecutive indoor races.
 Doubell also praised the meet's lightning fast track for his record run but indicated he felt he could hit a 1:47-flat later in the indoor season.
 Ron Clarke, holder of six world records in distance events, failed again to whip steeplechaser George Young in the two-mile run.
 Young of Casa Grande, Ariz., has yet to lose to the Australian in indoor competition and the win set a meet record of 8:51.2.

 Also beaten was indoor two-mile record holder Kerry Pearce of Australia who moved into the mile run and saw unheralded Web Loudat of the University of New Mexico kick by him in the final lap with a slow 4:13.3.
 Dobbell, Seagren and female star Chi Cheng were named the top athletes of the meet.
 Miss Cheng, a three-time Olympian, won the 60-yard high hurdles in :07.8 and the time will go down as a technical world record because of the hurdles raised three inches and spaced further apart than in the past. The world mark at the old height of two-feet six-inches is :07.4.
 Other wins in the meet were posted by Willie Davenport in the 60-yard high hurdles with a meet record-tying time of :06.9. Silver medalist Barbara Farrell in the women's 60-yard dash in :06.9; shotputter George Woods with a toss of 63 feet 1-2; and Ralph Boston in the longjump with a season's best of 25-feet.

Football Teams Prepare To Burn Oil for Draft

NEW YORK (UPI)—The top brass of 16 National and nine American Football League teams will be burning the midnight oil tonight in preparation for Tuesday's draft of college players.
 One team—Buffalo—doesn't have the problem.
 The Bills, whose 1-12-1 record was the worst in pro football, will take O. J. Simpson, the Heisman Trophy winner and two-time All-America halfback from Southern California.
 The Bills aren't particularly weak at running back—they in fact could use help at a number of other positions—but owner Ralph Wilson has clearly indicated he won't miss a chance at getting Simpson, who's called by many the best runner in the history of college football.
Awesome Talent
 The talent available is awesome when you consider that a college player rated approximately 40th best in the country can command a $100,000 or better contract—and get it.
 Atlanta has second choice and the Falcons still haven't made any decision public. Their big need is for offensive linemen and a George Kunz. But the Falcons would hate to miss an opportunity at Purdue's Leroy Keyes, twice Simpson's All-America running mate and one of the most versatile players in college football.

 Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the next teams to choose, both are "very interested" in Ted Kwalick, the All-America from Penn State.
Cincinnati Fifth
 Cincinnati will choose fifth, followed by Boston and San Francisco, which acquired New Orleans' first choice, Los Angeles, with three first round picks, has both the eighth and tenth pick while San Diego will pick ninth with a choice acquired from Denver.
 Miami will draft 11th, followed by Green Bay, Chicago, the New York Giants, Houston and San Francisco.
 New Orleans has 17th choice, using one obtained from Minnesota, and San Diego makes its second choice as No. 18. St. Louis is 19th, followed by Cleveland, Los Angeles, Oakland, Kansas City, Dallas, Baltimore and the world champion New York Jets.
 The order of the draft, which will consist of 17 rounds with 442 players to be selected, is determined in inverse order of the combined standings of both leagues. The only exceptions are Baltimore and New York, who as league champions draft last.

WT Buffaloes Continue Wins In Basketball
By United Press International
 West Texas State's fast-moving Buffaloes continue to win while other major Texas independent basketball teams have their trials and tribulations.
 The Buifs, who beat Utah State 102-92 on the latter's own floor last week, now have a 12-2 season record and will play three more games on the western swing this week—at Utah Monday, at Weber State Wednesday and at Denver Saturday.
 The Houston Cougars (10-8) were upset 73-66 by Centenary last week to take some of the spotlight away from their big Astrodome date this Saturday night against Notre Dame, and North Texas State (10-5) had its Missouri Valley Conference winning streak snapped 97-89 by Wichita.
 Other major games this week will find Texas-El Paso (12-5) at Seattle Monday and at Arizona Saturday, North Texas at Tulsa Monday and at home to Drake Thursday.

Fight Results
Saturday
SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—Bennie Briscoe, 162, Philadelphia, stopped Vicente Paul, 162, Venezuela (8).
Sunday
CANTON, Ohio (UPI)—Jerry Quarry, 201½, Los Angeles, stopped Aaron Eastling, 196, St. Paul, Minn. (5); Doyle Baird, 165½, Akron, Ohio, stopped Willie Jackson, 164, Canton (1); Ray Anderson, 180, Akron, outpointed Marion Conner, 185, Canton (10).
Douglass Leads Third Round of Crosby Pro-Am
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Three years ago Don Messingale burst out of the pack on the final day to win the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am and immediately sent everyone scurrying to find out who he was.
 Dale Douglass isn't exactly in that same "who he" class but after he took the third-round lead in this year's clambake Sunday people started asking questions, especially the fans.
 Most came to watch Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Bob Gouby and Lee Trevino and wound up being sorry they didn't follow Douglass instead.
 And with just a few early birds in his "army," Douglass shot a two-under-par 70 at Pebble Beach Sunday. Still, the round went without much notice but when the day was over, Douglass was the leader—by a stroke over veteran Howie Johnson, and by two over big money winner George Archer.
 Arnie, Billy and Jack? They were back in the bunch—Nicklaus at 217 and Palmer and Casper at 220.
 So, today, Douglass goes out with 78 other pros in pursuit of the top prize of $25,000, and is the man to watch.
 With rain having played havoc with the three courses used in this tourney—Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill—there were only six players under par for the start of the final round.
 John Lotz, Jerry McGee and Grier Jones are the others besides Douglass, Johnson and Archer.

Top District Teams Face Heavy Slate

Something will have to give in the second half District 4-4A basketball race this week and Pampa will be trying to receive rather than give anything.
 The Harvesters, Tascosa, Borger and Amarillo are all tied for the No. 1 spot in second half play but the standings could be jumbled a bit after this week's action.
 The top four are all 2-0 but Amarillo hosts Borger Tuesday night and one of the two will lose its first game.
 Tascosa has an easy night Tuesday, hosting Lubbock, winners of only one of 11 conference games this season. But the Rebels play Lubbock Coronado Friday and despite its 0-2 start in second half play the Mustangs are capable of beating Tascosa.
 Pampa hosts Monterey Tuesday night and the Harvesters will have to continue their improved second half play to get by the Plainsmen.
 Monterey is 1-1 in second half play and lost its first, 70-59 to Borger Friday night.
 Friday Pampa plays at Amarillo in what will probably be Pampa's toughest battle of the second half.
 With its victory over Plainview Friday night the Pampa record jumped to 13-6 for the season and 8-3 overall in league play.
 Caprock ended a 10-game drought by clipping Lubbock. The victory was the Horns first in league play this season.

Wranglers Upset Ft. Worth Team
By United Press International
 The point spread in the southern division of the Central Hockey League standings tightened Sunday night with an upset win from the Amarillo Wranglers and an edger by Omaha.
 The Wranglers, deep in the cellar in the south part of the loop, rose up in rebellion, scored five goals in the final period and beat the Fort Worth Wings 5-5.
BOUT TELEVIEWED

 The fight will be telecast live and in color beginning at 9:30 p.m. EST.

Spoiled O'Malley Delays Commissioner Selection

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walter Francis O'Malley is an individual with a sharp mind, a deep rooted sense of justice and a warmer heart than most suspect, but for a grown man of 65 there are times he acts like a spoiled little boy.
 This looks like one of those times because the forceful, tough-minded president of the Los Angeles Dodgers seems determined that no new commissioner of baseball will be elected without his personal seal of approval.
 As one of the major leagues' 24 owners, O'Malley has as much a stake in the election of a new commissioner as any of the other 23. No argument there. Sometimes, though, he acts as if he has the biggest stake of all and that's where the rub—or roadblock—comes in.
 When you talk to some of the owners and ask them what or who is responsible for the ridiculous lack of accord among them in the matter of picking a new commissioner, they first answer in generalities and then get around to Walter Francis O'Malley. They say he's bent on having his way and that's the big reason for the deadlocked jury so far.
Substance To Belief
 O'Malley always reminds you "half the lies they tell about the Irish aren't true" but in this case there appears some substance to the general belief that he's the guy holding up the whole works.
 At the seat of the whole business is one simple word: pride. Walter Francis O'Malley's pride is to be specific.
 For years, they used to say O'Malley runs baseball. The cigar-smoking Dodger owner used to poo-poo that theory occasionally by pointing to legislation passed over his objection and while these periodic demurrers convinced some people, they didn't change the fact that O'Malley did have a lot to say about the way baseball ran its shop.

 So what happened?
 Suddenly some of baseball's younger forces got together—the media referred to them as the "new guard" or "young Turks"—and decided it was high time for a change in the commissionership as well as the overall structuring of the game. One-two-three, just like that, they decided to bounce Gen. William D. Eckert and get themselves a new boy.
 The "old guard" was pushed into the background, not only by the new guard but also by the media, and some of its members weren't at all happy. O'Malley was one of them. He's human. He doesn't mind seeing his name in the newspapers once in a while. Don't ever get the idea such things don't count with baseball and football owners. Why to you think some of them buy ball clubs in the first place?
 O'Malley made it clear how he feels about newspapers when he moved his Dodgers from Brooklyn.
 "I can remember when there were four newspapers in Brooklyn and now there are none worth mentioning," he said at the time. "And if you don't think a newspaper is important to baseball, you don't know baseball."

NOTICE
1. The above entitled actions numbered KC-1945, KC-1946, KC-1947, and KC-1948 were brought originally by Cities Service Gas Company, subsequently repleaded by Cities Service Gas Company and Cities Service Crude Oil Company, as plaintiffs against the defendants named in the caption of this notice. The defendants in these actions were certain named individual landowners and certain named leasehold landowners. Defendants in these actions were certain named individual landowners and certain named leasehold landowners. The landowners appeared for themselves and as representatives of a landowner class defined by the court as: "...the persons, firms and corporations owning a mineral interest in land from which helium has been, is being or will be severed from the ground in connection with or because of production under oil and gas leases, which helium has been, is being or will be taken into the possession by the United States of America in Grant County, Kansas, at the delivery point described in that certain contract between the United States of America and plaintiff in Interpleader Cities Service Helium, Inc., dated August 22, 1961."

2. The named leasehold producers appeared for themselves and as representatives of a leasehold producer class defined by the court as consisting of: "...the persons, firms and corporations owning a mineral interest in land from which helium has been, is being or will be severed from the ground in connection with or because of production under oil and gas leases (from which gas is produced or will be produced) and who deliver helium gas to the oil and gas purchaser from which gas is produced or will be produced, which helium gas is produced or will be produced from gas streams directly or indirectly to Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company, which helium has been, is being or will be removed and delivered by plaintiff in Interpleader National Helium Corporation, at the delivery point described in that certain contract between the United States of America and plaintiff in Interpleader National Helium Corporation, dated October 12, 1961."

3. The named leasehold landowners appeared for themselves and as representatives of a leasehold landowner class defined by the court as consisting of: "...the persons, firms and corporations owning a mineral interest in land from which helium has been, is being or will be severed from the ground in connection with or because of production under oil and gas leases (from which gas is produced or will be produced) and who deliver helium gas to the oil and gas purchaser from which gas is produced or will be produced, which helium gas is produced or will be produced from gas streams directly or indirectly to Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company, which helium has been, is being or will be removed and delivered by plaintiff in Interpleader National Helium Corporation, at the delivery point described in that certain contract between the United States of America and plaintiff in Interpleader National Helium Corporation, dated October 12, 1961."

Foreign News Commentary

Window on the World:
De Gaulle Setback:
President Charles de Gaulle's hopes that the Nixon administration will be more amenable to French diplomatic initiatives than the Johnson administration have received an initial setback. French officials are dismayed at Washington's failure to endorse the Franco-Soviet call for a joint Big Four power effort to find a quick solution for the Mideast crisis. Britain backs U.S.

Britain also is likely to brush off the French proposal for Big Four talks on the Middle East. Britain takes the same view as the United States that an imposed big power settlement out of the question without agreement first between Israel and the Arab states.

Tighten Drug Laws?
The British labor government, far from easing penalties for drug-use and possession, plans to tighten up the law. There has been virtually no parliamentary support for a recent recommendation by a government advisory committee that the maximum penalty for taking or possessing marijuana should be slashed from 10 to two years.

Eye on Elections:
A British government white paper, with an eye on general elections expected in about 18 months, will unveil on Jan. 28 a revolutionary new national pension scheme for Britain. Instead of the present flat five pounds ($12) weekly pension for all at the age of 65, it will recommend that state retirement pensions be based on average earnings throughout a man's or woman's working life.

New Pressures on Reds:
The new strong denunciation of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia by Italian Communists, whose party is the strongest on this side of the Iron Curtain, is stirring pressures inside the French Communist party. Reliable sources say party secretary Waldeck Rochet, who first condemned the invasion, but later sought to write it off as a minor incident inside the Communist movement, is coming under pressure from many young party members to come out publicly again for an early Soviet pullout from Czechoslovakia.

The Soviets Retreat:
Western observers inside the Soviet Union say Soviet leaders now believe they acted too late against Czech liberalism. They believe the invasion never would have been necessary if they had agreed early to the ouster of hard-line President Antonin Novotny.

LONELY WHALE
PICKERING, England (UPI)—Cuddles, a killer whale at an aquarium near here, was so lonely that she used to let out piercing love whistles at night. Keepers have found a temporary cure. They play pop music all night and it appears to soothe her.

"Of course, the best thing would be to get her a mate," said a keeper. "But that's hard because she's from America and she's the only one in captivity in Europe."

HONORED GUEST
BENTLEY, England (UPI)—In the past the town of Bentley has honored heroes, royalty and famous athletes. Next month, the guest of honor at a banquet will be a horse.

The horse is "Mister Sothee", which won a bronze medal at the Mexico City Olympics last year for rider David Broome.

While other guests eat dinner at the banquet, Mister Sothee will be in a corner in the same room, with his own barrel of ice cream and a little area of artificial (but edible) grass.

LONELY WHALE
-PICKERING, England (UPI)
-Cuddles, a killer whale at an aquarium near here, was so lonely that she used to let out piercing love whistles at night.
Keepers have found a temporary cure. They play pop music all night and it appears to soothe her.
"Of course, the best thing would be to get her a mate," said a keeper. "But that's hard because she's from America and she's the only one in captivity in Europe."
