Injunction Sought On Commissioners

By RON CROSS
Pampa contractor Earl Hilton said today that he would file an injunction with the State Attorney General's office against Gray County Commissioners Joe Clark and Hershel Wilks.

The injunction stems from work Gray County did at Panhandle Packing Co., a private business, and a bill submitted to the company for the work done, which Hilton said was not an adequate bill.

Commissioner Wilks presented a bill for $619 to the company Monday and the bill was paid Monday afternoon.

Hilton had said earlier the value of the county's work, including about 200 loads of sand, was worth about $2,500.

"It isn't fair to us contractor's for such a small bill like this to be submitted," Hilton said.

"The customary price to haul sand in Pampa is $2 per yard and there is no way the county could have done this work for the amount they say," the contractor said.

Wilks said that he himself made the estimation of the bill and that it was a final bill.

"I did the work on the bill, and figured in it was truck usage, depreciation and man hours spent on the job," Wilks said.

"The sand came from an old abandoned gravel company near Lefors and did not cost the county a cent," Wilks stated.

The commissioner said that 16 man-days, full days of work, were figured in the bill and that no county employee ever worked more than half a day at the job.

Hilton told Wilks he did not think the settlement was fair and that an injunction would be filed with the State Attorney General's office.

Brown Oil Slick Licks at Beaches Of Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—A brown, ugly oil slick closed Santa Barbara's harbor today and licked at its glistening beaches.

Pushed shoreward by southerly winds, oil from a fractured offshore well washed into this resort Tuesday night. The harbor master's office ordered the owners of 750 fishing and pleasure boats moored there to stay away from their craft because of the fire hazard.

Union Oil Co., driller of the well, strove today to surround it with a wall of wood—a boom made of utility poles designed to check spread of oil so that it can be pumped into barges.

Now boiling into the sea unchecked, the raw petroleum was spread over an estimated 800 square miles of the ocean surface.

The oil began coming ashore in the Santa Barbara area at dusk Tuesday. A Coast Guard spokesman said no assessment of the thickness of the slick or its effect on beaches could be made until later today.

There was no immediate (See SLICK, Page 3)

Students and Police Clash in New Fights

By United Press International
Twenty persons were arrested and 10 policemen were among two dozen persons injured Tuesday as striking students fought with nonstriking students and police at the University of California's Berkeley campus.

The occupation by 300 students of the Administration Building at the University of Chicago was in its seventh day today. The demonstrators said they were "active" seeking formal negotiations with the administration—which had no comment.

At Stanford University, the Black Students Union demanded that a Negro be hired as vice president—answerable only to the school president—and each department of the school hire a black faculty member by next fall.

Class Boycott

About 1,000 students of the University of California at Santa Cruz called a one-day class boycott Tuesday to support demands that the campus' new college be named "Malcolm X." A sit-in at the Administration Building of Michigan State University over the ouster of a psychology professor who let his students grade themselves was weakened by mass defections.

The trouble at Berkeley began when six husky nonstriking students formed a flying wedge to break through a picket line set up by striking minority group students two weeks ago at Sather Gate, the main gate of the 28,000-student campus.

Fist fights broke out and spread to Sprout Plaza. Police moved to Sather Gate and ordered the 300 pickets to disperse.

The pickets didn't. About 40 policemen charged, using their nightsticks. They were driven back by sticks, cans, rocks, bottles. The police regrouped, increased their number to 100 and charged again. The pickets broke—and ran through the campus, breaking windows, smashing doors and furniture and disrupting classes. Some tore down fences and built a bonfire in a street.

Press For Talks

At the 8,600-student University of Chicago, the steering committee of the militants occupying the Ad Building since last Thursday pressed for talks on four basis "non-negotiable" demands: Rehiring of a woman sociology professor, Mrs. Marlene Dixon, who is a radical; equal student voice in the hiring of faculty members; amnesty for the demonstrators; and full pay for university personnel (See STUDENTS, Page 3)

Durbin to Enter Plea on Murder

BURNET, Tex. (UPI)—Clyde Durbin Jr., charged in the killing of two University of Texas students, was to enter a plea today before a Burnet County judge in the death of one of the students, 19-year-old Keitha Morris.

Durbin, of Dallas, was indicted in Burnet for the Jan. 8 slaying of the White Deer, Tex., sophomore. He was indicted Jan. 26 in Travis County for the murder of John Albert White, 21, Corpus Christi, the Morris girl's date.

White's body was found at a picnic spot near Austin, his date was found dead, floating in Inks Lake.

After arraignment today authorities said a trial date may be set in Burnet County.

Authorities in both counties said they were working together in the case.

"If the case comes to court in Burnet County first, I'll go up there and help him. If it comes to trial here first, he'll come down and help me," said Travis County Dist. Atty. Bob Smith.

Smith Does Not Plan to Increase State Sales Tax

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Gov. Preston Smith said today he does not plan to ask the legislature to raise the state sales tax.

Smith told UPI any increase in the state sales tax, now 3 per cent, "is pretty much out of the question." He reserved the right, however, to change his mind before he submits his budget recommendations to the legislature later this month.

For most Texans, sales tax rates have been effectively doubled in the past two years.

A 1 per cent local option city sales tax was authorized in 1967 and is now being collected in 302 Texas cities. The legislature last year raised the state rate from 2 to 3 per cent, making the total 4 per cent for most taxpayers.

Smith said this is "one of the reasons" a sales tax increase has been dropped, at least temporarily, from consideration.

The governor and his advisors are said to believe taxpayers have had about all they can take in sales tax increases.

Smith said he is considering a proposal by Rep. Don Cavness of Austin to raise more revenue without increasing taxes.

The Cavness plan could reduce the tax bill by $60-$80 million by spending some royalty income from the public school system's oil and gas leases instead of investing it all in the permanent school fund.

At present all royalties from oil and gas production on school land go into the permanent fund, and only income from the permanent fund's investments is spent.

Cavness proposes that 27 1/2 per cent of the royalties—the equivalent of the federal income tax depletion allowance—be placed in the permanent school fund and the rest be spent for public school operations, thus reducing the schools' drain on general revenue.

Cavness said he will introduce his bill later this week.

Researching Plans

Smith said his staff is researching the Cavness plan, particularly to determine if it would require a constitutional amendment. Cavness believes it would not.

If public school teachers get the pay raise they seek, the legislature probably will face a tax bill of $100-$200 million.

The legislature has held no hearings on taxation so far and is not expected to do so until Smith makes his spending and taxing recommendations.

TESTIFIES AT TRIAL

Sirhan's Mother Poor, Proud

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mary Sirhan testified in a low voice, a whisper at times, about the sad state of the finances of her immigrant family but she was not asking for pity.

The mother of Sirhan B. Sirhan, on trial for the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, saw pity in the eyes of the courtroom spectators—and she didn't like it.

She rose from the witness chair at the conclusion of her testimony Tuesday and some hidden source of energy gave strength to her voice as she said:

"I thank God He gave me the strength. I thank you nice people (of the United States)

NO PLACE LIKE HOME — A haggard woman sits before her makeshift dwelling in New Delhi, India. She is one of thousands of persons who prefer to live in frail huts and unused sewer pipes rather than leave the Indian capital. India faces a problem of providing decent shelter for thousands of her residents, in addition to coping with the threat of famine hanging over the country.

Testimony Reveals Documents Were Lost to North Koreans

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI)—The Navy inquiry into the loss of the USS Pueblo appeared to have reached its peak today with disclosure that secret documents were lost to the North Koreans despite frenzied efforts to destroy them.

From here on out, the inquiry was expected to go over the same ground covered by skipper Lloyd M. Bucher in his dramatic recital of his vessel's seizure and subsequent testimony by his superiors that aid could not be sent.

The head of the "spook" intelligence unit aboard the ship told Tuesday of desperate but unsuccessful attempts to burn or dump all the classified documents before the North Koreans seized the vessel.

Lacey To Testify
Today Chief WO Gene H. Lacey, who was on the bridge with Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher during the attack, testifies before the five-admiral court. He will be followed by others of the 82 surviving crew members.

At an impromptu news conference Tuesday, Capt. William E. Newsome, the counsel for the court, said he thought the hearings might end sooner than expected. Newsome said once five or six sailors from the Pueblo had testified their court might believe that further information was unnecessary.

Newsome said it would have been feasible to request the Air Force to testify but he did not think it was necessary in view of naval testimony that planes could not have reached the Pueblo in time to save her.

Lt. Stephen Harris, the head of the intelligence unit, and Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr., the executive officer, were the two witnesses Tuesday in open session.

Not Sufficient
Harris said there were not sufficient facilities to destroy all the papers on the Pueblo but secret gear was reduced to "power" and top secret information was shredded to "confetti."

Bucher was not permitted to enter Harris' quarter of the ship without permission. But during the attack, the skipper came in and—dismayed by the material destroyed—said "get rid of this stuff."

Harris said a passageway was blocked by a dying man, smoke was choking his men and confusion reigned. "We did the best we could under the circumstances," he said.

Lt. Murphy, the second in command, said he thought the Pueblo "got the short end of the (See TESTIMONY, Page 3)

Car Registration Starts Moving

Gray County vehicle registration, which started Feb. 3, has resulted in 450 motor car listings as of Tuesday, according to Jack Back, county assessor and collector.

"Most of the licenses sold have been for the year 1969," Back added. "But, of course, 1968 licenses have been granted to some new car owners and to owners reporting from out of state. These will pay the last quarter charge. The old tags will continue to be sold until the beginning of the official 1969 year, April 1."

The demand probably will peak within the next six weeks, the official noted. The regular staff of the office is handling the registration without extra help thus far.

The 1969 Texas license plate is light beige in color with lettering and numerals in midnight black. The plate is reflectorized to be highly recognizable in daylight or dark.

Plans European Trip To Meet Allied Heads

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon today urged the Senate to proceed promptly with ratification of the treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to have-not countries.

Nixon, who opposed ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty during the election campaign last fall following the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, said in a special message to the Senate:

"My request at this time in no sense alters my condemnation of that Soviet action. I believe that ratification of the treaty at this time would advance this administration's policy of negotiation rather than confrontation with the U.S.S.R."

Signatory nations under the treaty would join in attempting to curb the spread of nuclear weapons, but help nonnuclear-weapon countries to develop peaceful applications of atomic energy.

Nixon, who is preparing for a trip to Europe to visit capitals of some of America's NATO allies, discussed the treaty as well as the Mideast situation, and other matters in a meeting with Republican congressional leaders this morning.

While the White House was making public the President's request for Senate ratification of the nuclear treaty, the GOP congressional leadership emerged from a meeting with Nixon predicting that new legislation would be proposed to deal with strikes if the East Coast dock-strike is not settled shortly.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen told newsmen that the new legislation may be necessary if current arbitration efforts are unsuccessful.

The President apparently will go to Europe later this month or early next month, with visits planned to Paris, London, Bonn, (See NIXON, Page 3)

Dolph Briscoe Jr. To Be Banquet Keynote Speaker

Dolph Briscoe, Jr., Uvalde banker, will be the keynote speaker at the state's Outstanding Young Farmer banquet in First Christian Church here Saturday night.

The Outstanding Young Farmer program is sponsored nationally by the Jaycees and the Pampa Jaycees bid a year ago at Midland to host the state banquet this year.

Briscoe, active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce program, was chosen one of the Five Outstanding Young Texans by the Texas Jaycees in 1958, after being named the Out-

Heart Trouble Cause of Death Of Thelma Ritter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thelma Ritter, gravel-voiced housewife who became famous for her sharp, strident role as the disillusioned mother who argued with Santa Claus in "Miracle on 34th Street," died early today from an apparent heart attack. She would have been 64 on Feb. 14.

The veteran character actress was admitted to Queens Hospital Jan. 27 after being stricken at her home.

The onetime Broadway performer had kept her hand in the trade after retiring to a Long Island home with her advertising agency husband and two children.

Thelma accepted her first try at cameras in "Miracle on 34th Street," playing a fired mother whose youngster dragged her to Macy's to see Santa Claus. Once there she proceeded to get into a beef with the old gentleman in the white beard when he promised the boy a pair of skates for Christmas.

Thelma's stock soared and she played top roles in "All About Eve" and "A Letter to Three Wives." She was a perennial Academy Award nominee, a holder of Broadway's coveted "Tony" and the first woman to win the American Academy of Dramatic Arts' Achievement Award.

In her television debut in 1955 she won an Emmy as the Bronx housewife in Paddy Chayevsky's "The Catered Affair."

After finishing "Move Over, Darling" in late 1964 Thelma made a try at retirement again to her showplace Forest Hills, N.Y., estate with her now retired husband.

Hollywood beckoned once more, however, and she returned to the screen in 1965 as the indispensable fourth dame in the lives of Jerry Lewis and Tony Curtis in "Boing Boing."

In 1960 and 1961 he served as president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and in 1966 was awarded the Knapp-Porter Award for distinguished service to agriculture by Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

In addition to his great interest in rural Texas, he served as president of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce in 1967 and just retired as president of the Texas State Chamber of Commerce.

that I never got hungry and that I always had a roof over my head." Walker, after hearing arguments pro and con for almost a week, quickly dismissed the motion as irrelevant and of no merit.

On today's agenda in court was the swearing in of the eight men and four women selected last week to try Sirhan for one of the most shocking crimes of the century.

Alternate Jurors
Then six alternate jurors had to be chosen before opening arguments would begin. Selection of alternates was expected to take a week.

Sirhan's testimony was given in a low but firm voice. He sounded a bit hoarse, but his English was precise and well enunciated.

His answers were mostly crisp, "Yes, sir," and "Yes, I do."

He identified income tax statements showing his highest income during the past few years was a net of $2,212.46 in 1966.

Under cross-examination by chief Prosecutor Lynn D. Compton, he said he lived "for the most part" with his mother since 1964. He was asked if he got any withholding tax back and said, "part of it." After a little more thought, he volunteered, "almost all of it."

Phi Sigma Alpha Members Conduct Analysis Series

Texas Delta Alpha Chapter of Phi Sigma Alpha met recently in the home of Mrs. Felton Webb at 1105 N. Starkweather for the monthly business and program meeting. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Wayne Couch, president, as members voted to accept names for new pledges for an April Rush at the next meeting.

The program conducted by Mrs. Curtis Griffin, program chairman, was the first in a series of psychoanalysis of each member from tests given at an earlier meeting. These tests were evaluated by a psychologist at the international office of Phi Sigma Alpha in Scottsdale, Ariz. This phase of psychoanalysis covered human relations.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Couch Feb. 12. Members present at Mrs. Webb's home were Mmes. B.A. Organ, F.L. Symonds, Tom Dunn, Harry Cook, R.L. Gordy, Hugh Peoples, Couch, Griffin and Webb.

Kappa Kappa Iota Conclave Slates February Banquet

Gamma Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota met recently in the City Club Room for its annual March of Dimes and Game Night. Members gave $29 for this project.

Mrs. J. E. Gunn, conclave president, presided for the business session as members planned the February meeting, a banquet honoring bosses and husbands at Jim's Steak House Feb. 24. Mrs. Otis Nace will be guest speaker.

Hostesses Mmes. Truett Ross, W.L. Parker, J.R. Pevon and D.L. Mackie, served refreshments from a table decorated with a March of Dimes motif. The table was covered with a red cloth centered with a piece of black driftwood on which were perched small figures made of dimes and pipe cleaners.

Other members attending were Mmes. Homer Bowers,

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have a neighbor whom we would like to help, but we don't know where to start.

She grumbles and pities herself so much it is a chore to visit her. Her children have moved far away and seldom telephone her. (I suppose they can't stand her whining.) She sits and does fancy work most of the time, and little else. She goes from one doctor to another and doesn't like any of them.

When one of the neighbors takes her shopping, she'll sit in the car for an hour afterwards, complaining and wasting their time.

Her husband doesn't seem much concerned. They rarely go out. She has a lovely comfortable home, but she is so lonely and unhappy. How can we help her?

HER NEIGHBORS

DEAR NEIGHBORS: It is difficult to say whether your neighbor is a malcontent or emotionally disturbed, but since she goes from one doctor to another, I assume she's under observation or treatment for whatever ails her.

Some people find a curious comfort in feeling sorry for themselves, and those who complain most about 'neglect' actually invite it.

If it makes you feel any better, call on your lonely and unhappy neighbor. But don't look for any improvement. She may be happier than you think.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old boy who has had a problem nagging at me since I was 11 years old. You see, when I was younger I did some damage to a neighbor's house. (I broke two windows on purpose. I never owned up to it, but now I would like to pay

GROWN UP

DEAR GROWN UP: You could get an estimate of the damage and mail him the money. But I have a better suggestion. Face him like a man, apologize, and hand him the money. He can only admire you for it, and you'll have proven to yourself that you're really 'grown up.' Congratulations.

DEAR ABBY: Take it from the wife of a television repairman: Some people are so abusive on the telephone to the wives of service men, you wouldn't believe it.

I just got a call from a woman who raked me over the coals because her set was out of order. She yelled about the high cost of repairs, and finished off by saying that my husband 'owed her a service call because her husband (who died recently) had bought the set from us.'

I didn't have the heart to tell her that her late husband owed us $70 on that set, but my husband wrote off the debt out of the kindness of his heart.

Abby, television repairmen get more calls on Sundays and holidays than doctors. My husband is hard-working and honest, but people seem to think that all repairmen are crooks. Please print this. I hope it wakes up some of those loud mouths, who are real brave on the telephone.

THURSDAY, FEB. 6

Your birthday Thursday: You now come into a cycle of increased responsibility. You have more to do, more resources to work with, more cooperation from others. Your natural need for privacy, both in time and space, will be exaggerated. Thursday's natives do their best work in solitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): A definite break in the conditions around you. Your companions show different, perhaps disturbing attitudes. Circumspection on your part is essential from the outset to avert some inconvenience.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Variance predominates in working conditions. Stick with habits, disregard the distractions. Faulty ventures run into difficulty. Your comments are more important if kept to a few words.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your real friends turn out to be no more than human after all, while mere acquaintances disappoint or disappear from the scene.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Speculative appeals collapse; group finances, pools tend to run into confusion, misunderstanding. Have your facts straight and ready for answers to hasty questions. Spend the evening alone, if possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A small but essential change in your views of life or base of operations may come Thursday. Diplomatically give other people the benefit of any doubt and the time to readjust their lives around new facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your faculties are alert; Pay attention to any intuitive notion on new people or information pertinent to your work. A flash of insight at the beginning may save time and effort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Partners and competitors take turns springing surprises. Odd coincidences keep piling up. Personal relationships may flip into new directions—not necessarily for keeps.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The unexpected may occur in regard to resources of other people, and funds. Your own feelings are, as usual, hidden, but those of other people may cause difficulty. Suspend action if it can be done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Problems involving children may come just when your attentions are fully occupied with routines. Patience with loved ones is essential all day and evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A quirk can put your stock up or down sharply. Your recent efforts suddenly produce appropriate results, and you are not prepared for the impact.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The pattern you are involved in is apt to ride along with no great improvement for many weeks. So save your money, time and effort for an early summer change-over.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20):

THE NOSE KNOWS. Since there is no known chemical method to gauge diesel odor intensity, engineers are endeavoring to eliminate diesel exhaust odor by studying it with the human nose. Here, Dr. Gerald J. Barnes of the General Motors Research Laboratory, demonstrates a new technique which allows natural "sniffing" of different controlled dilutions of air and exhaust gas.

Slick

(Continued From Page 1) relief in sight. The U.S. Weather Bureau said the southerly winds that pushed the brown blob of oil ashore were expected to continue today.

Crews of the Union Oil Co. fed tons of 'oil mud'—a viscous substance that hardens like concrete—into the well in an effort to contain the pressures that were forcing oil into the ocean at a rate of 500 barrels a day.

"We can't set a definite time for containment," was the dejected prediction of a Union spokesman.

Until Tuesday, the oil slick's damage to California's coastline was confined to a seven mile area south of Santa Barbara in Ventura County.

The approach of a small rain storm to Southern California Tuesday shifted the prevailing wind to the south, pushing the oil toward the Santa Barbara area.

The oil already has encircled Anacapa Island, a rocky outcropping that supports a colony of about 100 seals. The shoreline of the rocks is coated with oil, and conservationists claim the seals' existence is threatened.

Oil also lapped at the eastern side of Santa Cruz Island, 23 miles southwest of Santa Barbara.

Pioneer Reports Net Income Down in 1968

AMARILLO—At a meeting of the board of directors of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. yesterday in Amarillo C.I. Wall, chairman of the board and president, announced that consolidated net income of Pioneer and its subsidiaries for 1968 amounted to $6,689,845 from operating revenues of $54,934,461 compared to consolidated net income in 1967 of $7,902,706 from operating revenues of $56,074,441.

Earnings per share amount to 93 cents on the 7,201,320 shares outstanding at the end of 1968. This compares to $1.10 per share for 1967 and 92 cents per share for 1966, according to Wall.

The board declared a regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share payable March 4, 1969, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Feb. 21, 1969.

U.S. Diplomats Dismiss Talk of Peace Deadlock

PARIS (UPI)—American diplomats today dismissed talk of a deadlock at the Vietnam peace talks and said they were encouraged by a cautious dialogue developing between the Allies and Communists.

The officials said that although their approaches to the issues were still radically different, both sides were now moving on common ground on certain subjects.

The talks have a third weekly session Thursday.

Both the United States and South Vietnam have so far insisted that military questions be discussed first. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations have demanded political matters be the first point of discussion.

The officials said the U.S. position on the matter could change if future negotiating sessions produced the "right conditions."

With this flexibility in mind, and the possibility of "more concessions" mentioned by the South Vietnamese President Nguyen Cao Ky on Monday, Allied negotiators looked forward to Thursday's third full-scale negotiating session.

U.S. sources said the Allies' main reason for insisting on discussion of military topics first was that they thought the military problems—such as restoration of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ)—between North and South Vietnam—would be easier to tackle than the infinitely more complex and touchy issues involved in the political future of Vietnam.

But in any case the United States is determined to leave debate of the political future of Vietnam up to Saigon. Encouragement of secret bilateral talks among the Vietnamese is seen as an aid to this end.

Administrators To Attend Meet On Kindergarten

Six Pampa elementary school administrators will attend a conference on kindergarten education Thursday in Amarillo to help acquaint area schools with the purposes of kindergarten and explain pilot programs in Pampa and Dumas.

Pampans attending will be D. V. Biggers, Dan Johnson, L. E. Davis, Sam Begert, Mrs. Marjorie Gaut and Bob Parks. Parks is principal of Woodrow Wilson School here, which started operating its pilot kindergarten program Thursday with 32 children.

Speakers in the conference Thursday will be Dr. Huey Lynn Laycock, director of PESO (Panhandle Educational Services Organization); Dr. Ruth Lowes, of West Texas State University; and Mrs. Hazel Strickland, PESO kindergarten coordinator.

Mrs. Gaut is Pampa's elementary education coordinator. Others attending the meeting are all elementary school principals here.

Pampa's kindergarten teaches only older five year olds, those who missed enrolling in the first grade by one or two months.

Estranged Husband Shoots Wife, His Son, Attorney

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—Mrs. R. P. Whittis watched George Todd through her window because she knew there was going to be trouble. She called police for help but when they arrived Tuesday it was too late.

Todd, his estranged wife and the couple's 2-year-old son were dead and a young Columbia attorney critically wounded.

Sheriff's officers said Todd, a 22-year-old construction worker they described as a "big man," shot Ronald Graves, an attorney, his wife, Judy, 20, and his son Michael before placing a 20-gauge shotgun in his temple.

Graves, 28, was reported paralyzed and in critical condition at the University of Missouri medical center. He was Mrs. Todd's divorce attorney.

Nixon

Informed sources said those were the stops planned but not necessarily in that order. As for the nuclear treaty, it was submitted to the Senate last year by former President Lyndon B. Johnson, but ratification efforts ran into trouble with the "indignant reaction on Capitol Hill to Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia."

During his campaign for the presidency—and again in his message to the Senate today—Nixon said he had always "supported the goal of halting the spread of nuclear weapons" but opposed ratification last year because of the Czech situation.

During the campaign Nixon said he favored the nonproliferation treaty but believed the United States should delay ratification because of Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia and uncertainty of the Soviet's future intentions.

The United States, Russia and Britain took the lead in putting together the treaty. These three powers and 85 other countries have signed it, but so far only eight small nations have ratified it. Many of the signatories appear to be waiting action by the U.S. Senate and the Soviet Union's president.

West Germany, India and Japan are among the countries which have expressed reservations about the wisdom of signing the pact. Whether the delay actually has increased opposition is a matter of dispute.

The treaty to prevent the further spread of nuclear weapons binds nuclear powers to refuse to supply any weapons or knowhow to non-nuclear nations and pledges non-nuclear nations to refrain from seeking weapons or information on their construction.

Two of the world's leading countries—now possessing nuclear weapons—have refused to sign the treaty. These are France and Communist China.

The peril in permitting non-nuclear nations to build even a small nuclear force lies, in the opinion of most officials, in the fact that it would give them the ability to trigger a nuclear exchange between the two super powers.

There is no underground passage from the Capitol to the White House.

Waits Outside

Mrs. Whittis, a neighbor, told sheriff's officers Todd had waited outside the duplex all night in a pickup truck and when his wife and Graves arrived he followed them to the apartment carrying the weapon.

"I was watching because I knew there was trouble brewing," Mrs. Whittis said. "He (Todd) opened the storm door and fired a shot and I saw this man (Graves) fall."

"As soon as I heard the shot, I went to the telephone to get help," she said.

Graves had accompanied Mrs. Todd to the Forbis apartment, where Michael had spent the night, to discuss divorce proceedings. Mrs. Whittis said Todd had called Mrs. Forbis "three times during the night trying to find out where his wife was."

Threatens Women She said Mrs. Forbis told her Todd had threatened both women.

"While I was calling police," Mrs. Whittis said, "Barbara (Mrs. Forbis) came running out of the apartment screaming, 'George has killed Judy!'"

Roy Gallemore, a sheriff's deputy, said officers had answered a peace disturbance call at the Forbis apartment Monday night "but Todd had gone by the time our men got there."

Dr. Richard Johnson, county coroner, ruled the deaths homicide and suicide. He said there would be no inquest.

Garrison May 'Overprove' His Charges Against Shaw

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison seemed determined today to "overprove" his conspiracy case against Clay L. Shaw to an all-male jury in a courtroom battle to link an alleged New Orleans plot with the John F. Kennedy assassination.

That battle cannot begin until a second alternate juror is chosen, but his selection on this 14th trial day seemed certain because both the state and defense have run out of arbitrable challengers.

There was a new panel of 150 prospective jurors on hand, but the routine has been that most of the morning session is consumed in dismissing automatically, but singly, about two-thirds of these for such reasons as bad health, family concern or financial hardship occasioned by being locked up for perhaps two months.

Can Get Dismissed After being sworn for questioning, prospects also can get dismissed automatically by the statement that they have a fixed opinion.

In the Tuesday afternoon session, 39 of the 50 available prospects—virtually one out of every five—took this route. The last man excused was the 1,093rd of the trial.

James L. Alcock, 35, the chief prosecutor, told a special last week that "the state may choose to overprove" the charge that Shaw conspired with Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie to murder President Kennedy.

Despite rulings by Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. that the Warren Report is immaterial to a case of alleged conspiracy that does not charge any murder anywhere, the state has subpoenaed eight persons who were present at the Kennedy murder. Three of these were riding in the car with Kennedy.

A Step Further Monday, Garrison went a step further into Dealy Plaza where the assassination occurred, by issuing a subpoena signed by Haggerty—for slides to be made of 120 frames of motion picture film of the assassination by Abraham Zapruder, an amateur photographer.

The subpoena, issued to Time Inc., which bought the film from Zapruder for $25,000, also directs Time to enlarge 21 of the frames into 8x10-inch color prints.

Garrison had contended that the Warren Commission was shown only a copy of the Zapruder film with certain frames missing which had been damaged in the original.

Water, Inc. Sets Annual Meet For Amarillo Feb. 18

Water, Inc. president John Kendrick of Brownfield announced today that Howard W. Crooke, executive director of the Orange County Water District in California, will give the lead-off address at its second annual meeting, Tuesday, Feb. 18, in the new Civic Center at Amarillo.

Crooke, active for many years in the major water planning in California, will be followed on the program by other outstanding water authorities from Texas including Howard Boswell, executive director for the Texas Water Development Board; Harry P. Burleigh, area engineer for Austin for the Bureau of Reclamation, and John Simmons, executive vice-president and general manager of the Sabine River Authority from Orange.

Attendance is expected to be larger than the large turnout last year in Plainview, which exceeded 800.

After lunch is served in the Civic Center, Kendrick will give the president's report. Election of directors and officers will follow President Kendrick's report.

Light Rain Hits Parts of State

By United Press International Gulf breezes, usually associated with a balmy, refreshing spell, brought irritating light rains to many portions of the state today and more was expected by tonight.

Radar stations as far apart as Fort Worth and Galveston reported scattered showers dotting some areas and more of the same was forecasted through Thursday.

Galveston's radar post found rains extending along a line stretching from Lufkin to Lake Charles, La. The Fort Worth outpost reported a rain line stretching along a line beginning at Bowie and running through Paris and Mt. Pleasant to Cleburne.

Rainfall rates, however, did not exceed one tenth of an inch per hour.

The moisture was attributed to winds sweeping up from the Gulf and although the wind direction was supposed to change today the rains were not expected to stop.

Temperatures were expected to ride through Thursday.

Saturday Evening Post's Final Edition Nothing to 'Cry' About

By RUTH LEWIS
Daily News Staff Writer

Editorial nostalgia for the heyday of reading as demonstrated by the Saturday Evening Post and brought out by the magazine's demise, rise up again this week with the advent of the publication's final issue, dated Feb. 8.

The last number, as this writer has seen it, is scarcely a thing to be tearful about. But of course the magazine has not been the old Post since the most recent management took over.

One would have to be upward of 30 to recall the Saturday Evening Post as it was under editorship of Ben Hibbs, whose retirement brought about the sweeping changes evidenced in recent years by frequent articles of the expose type. Some of these cost the publication many thousands of dollars in libel judgments.

Apparently the new leaders considered the old magazine outdated, perhaps a little absurd, believed that a more "realistic" approach to current issues was the only road to popularity.

However, it didn't work. Perhaps the age of reading as we knew it before television is, in fact, over. The old Post was a nation's contact with current literature. And some of it really was literature. The rest was merely good writing, so far as I recall.

As Larry Howell of the Dallas News pointed out, the Post did not die this year; it died when the changeover was made from the Hibbs editorship. Nothing but the name remained of what had been a national institution.

Perhaps the day of magazines itself is passing. Maybe only the determined readers who value books and frequent libraries will be the readers of the future. All the others will be getting information and entertainment from the TV screen. Times do change.

The SEP—as it once was—goal of aspiring fictioneers and editorialists—will be a cherished memory for thousands of former readers for years to come.

Sports writer Grantland Rice named the backfield of the famed Notre Dame football team of the early 1920s the Four Horsemen.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The myth of the mermaid has been traced to the ancient Semitic moon-goddess Atergatis. The World Almanac says. The ancients often saw the moon rise from and descend into the sea and therefore attributed a semihuman shape to the moon-goddess who, apparently submerged in the ocean most of the day, was able to swim. Sailors mistook seals or sea cows for mermaids.

Big Four Snags:
Britain is expected to back the United States in seeking to delay big four Middle East talks. But it still believes the main effort should be on trying to get Israel and the Arabs to the conference table and in backing the peace mission of United Nations mediator Dr. Gunnar Jarring. Britain shares U.S. fears that a big four meeting simply would find the big powers split, with Russia and France supporting the Arabs, the United States supporting Israel and Britain on the fence.

Russian Dilemma:
Many French Kremlinologists believe Moscow may again put off its all-Communist conference scheduled for May if the current upheavals in Czechoslovakia continue to rock the restive satellite. Sources say that if Moscow goes ahead with the meeting, the French and Italian Communists will spearhead demands for an early withdrawal of the Soviet army from Czechoslovakia. French observers warn that Moscow may resort to new forceful measures to crush Czech liberals.

May Eat Words:
Allied diplomats in Paris believe that chief American negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge, who predicted hopefully early in January that a cease-fire in Vietnam might be achieved within two months, will have to eat his words. Initial sessions of the new Paris talks on Vietnam have embittered rather than smoothed, relations between the belligerents. But insiders also predict that before long secret talks will be under way, while the air at plenary sessions remains thick with insults and vituperation.

Drive for Settlers:
Argentina will try a limited program this year to stimulate a renewal of European immigration to the nation's hinterland. The government feels that while the Buenos Aires area is over-crowded, the interior needs more people to develop its resources.

Washington Window

By RAYMOND AHR
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The

federal treasury is now contributing $20 billion a year to the budgets of state and local governments. Under the budget submitted to Congress by former President Lyndon B. Johnson last month, the figure would jump to $25 billion for the fiscal year starting July 1.

But Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, long regarded by more conservative Republicans as a re-spender with state taxpayers' money, is warning that a serious New York crisis is facing a state budget crisis. He recommended cutbacks in planned spending along with a sales tax increase. Additional tax increases, he said, would damage New York's economic position in competition with other states.

Hits Spending Limit
Rockefeller told his legislature that his budget defined the limits of its capacity to spend—Pending urgent and essential revisions of federal policies in allocating responsibilities among the various levels of government and in distributing the lion's share of revenues that the federal government collects.

Rockefeller also told his legislators that it would take courage to apply restraint to increases in state spending. That comment did not sound like it came from the same Rockefeller who said in a Harvard University lecture seven years ago this week: "If a state government lacks the political courage to meet the needs of its people by using its own taxing powers—if it prefers to escape by letting national government do the taxing and then return the money to the state—the leadership of this state puts itself in an exceedingly poor position to weep over the growth of federal power."

Like many of his fellow governors Rockefeller now wants more federal aid.

Big Jump In Aid
Rockefeller said he would successfully for a concrete program to meet Peru's economic, financial and social problems. The political parties have been unable to decide on a united course of action to oppose the new military chiefs.

The Johnson budget showed that federal aid programs for state and local government had climbed over a 10-year span from $6.7 billion for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1959 to $20.8 billion for the current fiscal year.

The projected $4.2 billion increase to a total of $25 billion for the next fiscal year is subject in part to changes by Congress and the Nixon administration. As shown in the Johnson budget, $16.7 billion of the total is supposed to go to urban areas, the current centers of domestic trouble.

Both major political parties are pledged to try to give state and local government more freedom to spend federal aid money to meet their own needs.

Some leaders of both parties have advocated revenue sharing plans to give the states federal money with almost complete freedom to spend it as each state government decides. Key Democrats in Congress, where their party still is in control, have never been impressed by arguments for these plans.

The ideas of the Nixon administration are still to be heard.

Mrs. Dorothy McMurtry RN and school nurse for the White Deer Schools has completed her Homemaker Class on Home Nursing. In this class the girls learn to make beds, give baths, feed sick persons and learn to prepare meals that the sick and injured need. The girls that completed the course were Kathy Kelp, Cindy Jordan, Brenda Willson, Konya Stalls, Nan Stagle, Debbie Allen, Renee Allen, Janet Pipes, Joyce Pipes, Jenney Hawpe, and Vicki Ramming all from White Deer. The following girls who completed the course were from Skellytown: Vickie Tollison, Gloria Allen, Paula Hamilton, Diana Trölinger, Beverly Cook and Pearlene Moore. Mrs. McMurtry reports that the girls enjoyed the course very much. All girls bought their attractive nursing pins to wear on their school dresses.

We have completed another course of High School Hospital workers for our Volunteer group. They are Ann Harvey, Iris Lee Page, Donna Gassaway, Carolyn Ann Hopkins, Marsha Crouch, Carol Waggoner, Debra Hansard and Sharon Pittman. These girls will serve juice to the patients in Highland General Hospital as well as deliver mail and flowers to the patients. They will work on Saturday morning, Saturday afternoon and on Sunday afternoon from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. We are happy to have these girls to work with us.

WE DO NOT SELL DRUGS ILLEGALLY
We take no credit for obeying the wise laws that protect you from harm. As a matter of public record, pharmacy has often been complimented as a profession in which the overwhelming majority resist the temptation of making easy money by selling forbidden or narcotic drugs.

TEENAGE DRUG CURIOSITY IS A PROBLEM
Reports indicate that the narcotic drugs like heroin or morphine are not the real problem for youngsters. It is their growing use of amphetamines, barbiturates, marijuana, etc., which can eventually lead into their taking more dangerous narcotics.

PARENTS MUST GUARD THEIR CHILDREN
Also, observe their friends. If they are often overstimulated with a reacting depression, if their sleeping habits change, if at frequent times they become usually talkative, beware. Children, from the eighth grade up, are usually induced by a more sophisticated friend to try a "goof" pill or some "pot."

IF DOUBTFUL CONSULT A PHYSICIAN
The odds are his examination will disclose if your children have a drug problem, or some other ailment he can treat. If it is drugs, you can depend on his discretion.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Many years ago I came across the fact that Boris Karloff was born William Henry Pratt. And William Henry Pratt was how I always thought of him thereafter—for it always seemed to me a much more accurate reflection of this dignified man than "Boris Karloff," a spooky monicker if ever there was one.

As every late-night watcher of television knows, probably the two spookiest—and most famous—names in oldtime horror movies were Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi, who, by the way, was born Bela Lugosi Blasko. And now, with the death of Karloff in England Sunday, at the age of 81, both are gone.

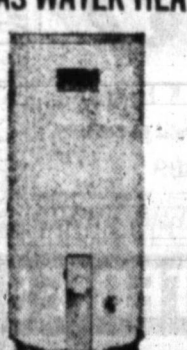

Karloff, on screen, was quite different—and more subtle—in his conception of horror than Lugosi. And Karloff, as Frankenstein's monster, was still something of a higher order—and not merely because the shadings of tragedy were written into the movie character.

Even though the shadings were there, it took a superior actor—and a man with superior dignity—to steadily sidestep the easy, all-out horror approach of black and white. And what Karloff was able to create, therefore, was a vividly-etched portrait of a lump of a monster who was not a horror until human beings reacted in terror toward him.

Underneath all the trappings of a horror film, Karloff created a soul for a monster who had none, but was merely stitched together by a scientist seeking—as the scripts always said—to play God. He was a creature who happened to be different from so-called normal persons, and was turned into a hero by people who reacted with fear to something so extremely opposite from themselves. Thus he was both tragic and pathetic. He did not ask to

Training Base for Marines Gets Many Diverse Views on Activity

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by Bill Martin, Pampa News photographer. Martin has been through the Marine Corps Recruit Depot while in the service.

By BILL MARTIN
News Staff Writer

On the extreme west side of San Diego, near San Diego Bay, the United States Marine Corps owns a piece of land solely for the purpose of training recruits. This spotless, well-kept base is known to all Southern Californians as Marine Corps Recruit Depot.

To thousands of other individuals, better known as Marines, this piece of property is not as pretty in looks as it is made up to be. When first heard of, it sounded as glamorous as MCRD's neighbor some many miles to the north: Hollywood, Calif.

MCRD is, as a recruit stated once, "... nice to look at on the outside, but corrupt within. A real hellhole."

Most likely, many will agree. Fortunately, minds tend to change after departing from the base. Still, a few will hold MCRD in the backs of their minds as they always knew it, something evil and terrifying.

There are reasons it is a tough place to live, and make no mistake about it, it is tough. A man is put there immediately after entering the Corps, to be torn down mentally and physically, only to be built back again and molded the way the Marine Corps wants him: as a man, alert, attentive, and really tough.

Each man is made into a sort of "machine" to qualify for combat as he is molded. He's made to think for himself, to do his share of fighting, no matter how great the odds.

His training in thinking also enlightens the confidence he possesses when he leaves MCRD, whether he goes on to another base or to war.

When a man first steps aboard the Depot, there is one individual the Marine Corps holds responsible for making a man a Marine.

This individual is rugged, tough and sometimes hated by those who train under him, because of his seemingly

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spear and Staff Inc. sees many "crap shooters" in the market at present, with money increasingly finding its way "from slowpoke stocks into fewer issues where the action is." This pyramiding effect, the firm says, "may simply be regarded as another indication of a massive market 'topping out.'"

Other adverse signs, the firm notes, include a shrinking percentage of stocks showing long range gains, the increasing threat of tight money, "the prevalence of elevated price earnings ratios" among American Stock Exchange and unlisted stocks and "the copious outpouring of new issue junk."

Standard & Poor's believes a constructive investment stand is justified since "mounting signs of further economic boom and a quickening of the inflationary trend should make for a higher price level, notwithstanding continued monetary restraint."

The market might snap out of its stalemate at any time, the firm says, possibly on wider recognition that the economy is not losing steam, or on signs of progress in the Vietnam peace talks.

The United States does not have an official national flower. Two most often proposed as such are the rose and the marigold.

Baseball Hires Bowie Kuhn For One Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Newly elected baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's statement that he will be surprised if major league players strike brought a cautious reaction today from the executive director of the Major League Players Association.

"I really don't know," said Marvin Miller when asked whether the election of Kuhn by the clubowners Tuesday lessened the possibility of a strike. "He is on the owners' Player Relations Committee and is one of the people with whom we have been quote negotiating unquote.

A 42-year-old attorney for the National League who has remained in the background during his 20-year connection with baseball, the 6-foot-4-inch, 200-pound Kuhn was the unanimous choice of the 24 clubowners who met in Miami. He was elected to a one-year term but was given a $100,000 salary in contrast to the $65,000 paid William D. Eckert, who was fired as commissioner last December.

Miller said the next meeting of the clubowners' Players Relations Committee and the Players Association will be held in New York tomorrow but added, "I don't know if Mr. Kuhn will be there or, if he is, what role he will play. Kuhn said in Miami he planned to disassociate himself from the negotiations but added, "the commissioner does have functions as an arbitrator."

The announcement of Kuhn's election was made by Francis Dale, president of the Cincinnati Reds, who was a member of the seven-man screening committee which recommended the new commissioner.

The other members of the committee were Gabe Paul of the Cleveland Indians, Dick Meyer of the St. Louis Cardinals, John McHale of the Montreal Expos.

Bears Topple Aggies On Bad Clock, 66-65

By United Press International
It doesn't make any difference now that Baylor and Texas A&M players were crashing into each other underneath the A&M basket and the clock was sitting idle.
It doesn't make any difference now whether a foul was or was not called during the last frantic seconds against A&M's Mike Heitmann.
It doesn't make any difference now that A&M once held a 13-point lead in the second half before Baylor's final surge that delighted the largest home crowd in the school's history.
All that matters now is the final score in Tuesday night's thriller—Baylor 66, Texas A&M 65—which in turn means the game is on again in the Southwest Conference.

Both teams missed scoring opportunities in the final minutes, but with 22 seconds left and the Bears trailing by one, 65-64, Gatewood was fouled and the confusion began.
Gatewood missed the first shot on a one-and-one situation and both teams began battling for the rebound. A tip went up and missed, and then another.
But the giant clock at the end of Heart 'O Texas Coliseum did not move.
Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf yelled to the referees to do something and finally play was stopped. Deep consultations followed and the officials decided to eliminate three seconds from the clock—which put it down to the 19-second mark.
Gatewood Again?
But, wait. Gatewood was now back at the free throw line preparing to shoot again. Was there another foul called? Against whom?
No one knew, not even the official scorer, what Gatewood was doing back at the line.
Gatewood might now have been too sure himself, but he knew he had a second chance and that he had better make the best of it. He pumped in both ends of the one-and-one and Baylor had its victory.

The reason Gatewood got another chance, referee Burt Rollins explained after the game, was that he was fouled by Mike Heitmann in the scramble for the rebound after the first missed free throw.
Metcalf, who appeared quite heated during the final few seconds, calmed down in the dressing room.
"We weren't beaten by the clock," he said.
Baylor coach Bill Menefee called the victory his most satisfying at the school.
"Tom Freidman hit a few for us to get us started from our deficit and our zone press helped us some," he said.
"When you hit two or three and the crowd gets to yelling most anything can happen."

Bears and Ags Lead
The Bears and the Aggies are now tied at the top of the SWC chase with 5-1 conference records. Just a game back is SMU (#2). Texas, with a win over Rice tonight in Houston, can also move to within a game of the league leaders.
The rest of the conference

Packer Board To Make Decision

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vince Lombardi will enjoy his dinner in New York tonight while the Packer Board of Directors is deciding his fate in Green Bay.
Lombardi, who has asked for his release as general manager of the Packers to become coach, general manager and part owner of the Washington Redskins, is to be honored tonight by the Catholic Youth Organization as its outstanding sportsman of the year.

Lee Tumbles Borger Austin In Twinbill

Robert E. Lee Junior High ninth and eighth grade cage teams took a pair of games from Borger Austin Tuesday.
The ninth grade built up a 24-13 halftime lead and breezed to a 62-36 victory. The eighth grade led all the way and won a 36-32 decision.
Haynes paced Lee ninth with 18, Gambin scored 10, Hogan 8, Edgar 7, Cain 6, Ammons 7, Schultz, White and Phillips, 2 each.
Rick McGuire paced Lee eighth with 12 points, Ferrell hit 10, Blumer, Simon and Dewitt, 4 each and Brewer 2.

Wranglers Tied by Omaha, 4-4

The Omaha Knights had a rough night with the Amarillo Wranglers Tuesday night and had to scramble for a 4-4 tie. But it was good enough to give Omaha the first place slot in the northern division of the Central Hockey League.
The Wranglers, the last place team in the southern division, has started a hard press to improve that position and the tie Tuesday was the sixth game without a loss.
Oklahoma City, the southern division leaders, also had trouble with the cellar club in the northern division, managing only a 1-1 tie with the Memphis South Stars.
Action is light tonight in the league with Amarillo visiting

Houston and Omaha journeying to Dallas.
Amarillo, now 10 points out of third place in the southern division, scored first on a goal by Dave Simpson in the first period and Omaha played catchup the rest of the night, finally tying the game for good while Amarillo was a man short early in the third period.
URICH HEAD COACH
CHICAGO (UPI)—Richard W. "Doc" Ulrich, a former assistant coach at Northwestern and Notre Dame, has been named head football coach of Northern Illinois University.
Ulrich, 40, succeeds Howard Fletcher, who had served as head coach for 13 years.
HULL RECOVERED
CHICAGO (UPI)—Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks, the National Hockey League's second leading scorer, is fully recovered from a broken jaw and has had the wiring removed from his mouth.

Hull has been able to eat only a gruel based on ground meat since suffering the injury last December.
FLETCHER SIGNED
PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The University of Pittsburgh has signed Tom Fletcher as an assistant coach to serve under new head coach Carl DePasqua. Fletcher had been defensive backfield coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers the last three years.

Harvesters, Borger Lead 4-4A

HIGHER THAN A KITE — Edward Moultrie, Pampa's jumping-jack goes high above Caprock players to score a basket Tuesday night in the Harvesters' 54-28 victory. Moultrie did his usual fine job on the boards.

By RON CROSS
Caprock tried something new for the second time. And for the second time it didn't work. Despite the fact Johnny Epperson scored only one point and Jim Hollis shot only nine times and old reliables Billy Thomas and Jim Gallman came through to keep the Harvesters in a first place tie with Borger for the second half District 4-A basketball lead.

Caprock ran an offense without a post man and worked only for the good shot and still didn't get any and the Harvesters scored almost at will for a 54-28 victory over the 'Horns here Tuesday night.

The Pampa defense had its best night of the season holding Caprock to but three first half field goals, none in the first quarter and a total of nine in 42 shots for the game.

The Harvesters themselves hit 56 per cent from the field (22 of 39) and 10 of 16 from the free throw line.

Thomas kept his average in double figures with a 14 point output, high on both sides and Gallman hit five baskets for 10 points. Hollis, the district's leading scorer, tipped in 11 and hit five of nine from the floor.

Caprock took a quick 1-0 lead but after Thomas hit a basket to make it 2-1 the 'Horns were never in the game anymore.

They took four shots the first quarter and missed 'em all and the Harvesters raced to a 9-3 first period lead.

Then things really got bad. Thomas and Moultrie hit field goals to start the second period. Hollis hit two in a row, then Gallman tossed in a couple and with 2:01 left before halftime the 'Horns had been outscored 12-0.

Ted Teague, the 'Horns leading scorer with nine points, got Caprock's first basket of the night at the 1:47 mark to make it 21-5. Then Ted Owens hit a couple and at halftime Pampa led, 27-9.

Fate hit the 'Horns again in the third period. After Rick Culp's basket cut the margin to 29-12 with 6:09 left in the period, the Harvesters didn't allow Caprock another field goal and after three quarters the Harvesters had a 38-14 margin.

Pampa will face its biggest 'must' game of the season Friday night when the Harvesters travel to Amarillo to meet Tascosa.

The Rebels saw an eight game winning streak go by the boards Tuesday night when Borger edged them 54-53 in Borger. Tascosa was down 21-8 at halftime.

Tascosa was one of three teams to beat Pampa in the first half of district play and is now 4-1 in second half play with both Pampa and Borger at 5-0.

The Harvesters will be working on a six game winning streak Friday.

The Pampa Shockers extended its record to 10-8 with an easy 58-44 victory over Caprock's B team. The Shockers led 34-20 at halftime.

Four Shockers hit in double figures with Thompson leading the scoring with 12. Jordan scored 11, Jenkins and Brumfield 10 each, Johnston 8, Sims 4 and Hood 4.

In other district action Tuesday night Monterey beat Palo Duro, 53-45; Coronado downed Lubbock, 66-42 and the Amarillo-Plainview game was postponed when one of the officials broke an ankle.

combined for seven points at the start of the last period to give the Royals a 102-97 lead that they never relinquished.

The New York Knickerbockers raced to their sixth straight win behind the shooting of Bill Eradley and Willis Reed as they overwhelmed the Atlanta Hawks 122-97. Bradley scored 25 points while Reed clipped in with 24 points and 14 rebounds.

The Phoenix Suns jumped to an early lead and then held off a late Philadelphia surge to register a 125-116 victory over the 76ers. Dick Van Arsdale and Jim Fox paced the Suns with 25 points each. Phoenix has won three consecutive games.

Allison, Briscoe Win Pair, Play Friday

Allison's boys continued on their unbeaten trail Tuesday night while Briscoe took a pair of games from Miami to set up a showdown between the two teams Friday night.

Briscoe hosts Allison in a conference game Friday night.

Mike Richardson tossed in 16 points to pace Allison to a 38-32 victory over Groom and remain unbeaten. Lanny Fredericksen scored 11 for Groom.

The Allison girls ran into Margaret West, who scored 19 points for Groom in a 45-28 victory. Rainey also scored 19 for Allison.

The Briscoe girls trailed 27-25 at halftime and led 36-35 after three periods and downed Miami, 46-44.

Phyllis Aderholt hit 15, Diane

Zyback 19 and Lucy Meadows 12 for Briscoe. Serdy Dedmon scored 25 and Rita Adams 15 for Miami.

Briscoe's boys rolled up a 34-11 halftime margin and went on to down Miami, 64-38. Hefly scored 18 and Meeks 10 for Briscoe and Steve Hale and Loyd South scored eight each for Miami.

In other area games Darrouzett beat Balco twice, 57-46 in the boys game and 51-35 in the girls contest; Clarendon boys dumped Wheeler, 74-52; Happy took McLean twice, 62-39 in the boys contest and 43-23 in the girls game; Gruver took the boys game from White Deer, 67-54 but the White Deer girls scored a narrow 32-31 win; Sunray downed Canadian twice, 52-44 in the boys game and 45-22 in the girls game.

NAMATH WINS AGAIN

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Quarterback Joe Namath, who guided the New York Jets to a stunning upset over Baltimore in the Super Bowl, won another close one Monday when he edged 31-game winner Denny McLain of the Detroit Tigers by four votes to win the S. Rae Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award.

Namath drew 321 points to 317 for McLain in the closest balloting in the 19-year history of the award. Pitcher Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals was third with 131½ points.

Ted Teague, the 'Horns leading scorer with nine points, got Caprock's first basket of the night at the 1:47 mark to make it 21-5. Then Ted Owens hit a couple and at halftime Pampa led, 27-9.

Fate hit the 'Horns again in the third period. After Rick Culp's basket cut the margin to 29-12 with 6:09 left in the period, the Harvesters didn't allow Caprock another field goal and after three quarters the Harvesters had a 38-14 margin.

Hayes Performs in Astrodome

By United Press International
The Astrodome brings out the best in Elvin "Big E" Hayes. The rookie sensation of the San Diego Rockets scored 32 points and hauled down 23 rebounds to lead his team to a 135-126 victory over the Boston Celtics Tuesday in the second game of a doubleheader that attracted a record NBA crowd of 41,163 in the Astrodome.

Hayes, an All-America center at the University of Houston, was making a return visit to the site where he had perhaps his greatest college game. Only a year ago Hayes put on a devastating shooting show in the Astrodome to lead Houston to a victory over UCLA, the only defeat handed the Bruins during the past three years.

Hayes found the range again Tuesday night as he hit six straight points in the third period to pull the Rockets past the defending world champions. Jim Barnett added 31 points for San Diego while John Havlicek netted 24 for Boston. The Celtics played without Bill Russell who suffered a knee strain Sunday.

In the opening game, Oscar Robertson's 37 points and 10 assists sparked the Cincinnati Royals to a 125-114 triumph over the Detroit Pistons. While Robertson was playing his steady floor game, Tom Van Arsdale and Jerry Lucas combined for seven points at the start of the last period to give the Royals a 102-97 lead that they never relinquished.

The New York Knickerbockers raced to their sixth straight win behind the shooting of Bill Eradley and Willis Reed as they overwhelmed the Atlanta Hawks 122-97. Bradley scored 25 points while Reed clipped in with 24 points and 14 rebounds.

The Phoenix Suns jumped to an early lead and then held off a late Philadelphia surge to register a 125-116 victory over the 76ers. Dick Van Arsdale and Jim Fox paced the Suns with 25 points each. Phoenix has won three consecutive games.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Our Capsule Policy

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

The Campus Not-with-its

One of today's suspect institutions is the university college trustee. A profile of a typical member of this species is reported by Educational Testing Service, based on a nationwide survey of 5,000 trustees. He is a white (96 per cent), Protestant (75 per cent), male (86 per cent) businessman over 50 years old (73 per cent), and is more likely than not to be a Republican (58 per cent) and have an average annual income of more than $30,000. Only 15 per cent call themselves liberals.

The majority of trustees, especially those in junior colleges, are unwilling to give faculty and students a share in decision-making. For instance, 63 per cent say the faculty should not have a major role in appointing their dean. They would limit student authority to matters like housing, cheating and social groups. In the field of academic freedom, 70 per cent of the trustees surveyed favor screening campus speakers; 40 per cent recommend censoring student publications; 53 per cent want professors to sign loyalty oaths, and 27 per cent don't believe faculty members have a right to express their opinions.

Few trustees have read, or even heard of, "the more relevant higher education books or journals," but two-thirds of them believe that disadvantaged students with college potential should be admitted, even if they do not meet normal entrance requirements.

All in all, the picture is of rather crusty types who are set in their ways. But that, in the eyes of many of the students they serve, is the sin of sins.

New Uses for Old Tires

Few things are more useless than used-up automobile tires.

Kids can have fun with them; fishermen say they make good artificial shoals for the breeding of fish; they protect a lot of garage walls from car bumpers; people in less fortunate lands carve them up and make sandals out of them.

But in general, nothing is more of an eyesore, burden and source of pollution than the mountains of worn-out tires that dot the landscape. An estimated 100 million of them are thrown away, piled up, burned or otherwise disposed of annually.

This may not be true much longer, says Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Researchers are hopeful that old tires may one day become a source of valuable chemicals as well as gas for heat and power.

In recent experiments scientists obtained surprisingly large quantities of chemicals, oil liquids, gas and tar by heating shredded tires in a reactor.

As much as 140 gallons of liquid oils and 1,500 cubic feet of gas, comparable in heating value to natural gas, were extracted from a pile (how big the man didn't say) of old tires.

This is an example of what is going to have to be the normal thing in the not-very-distant future. A society more crowded, more industrialized, far more dependent on earth's limited resources than it is today simply will not be able to waste anything.

'Being Of Sound Heart...'

If you want to give your heart away—or your eyes or kidneys or other vital organ—see a lawyer.

According to R.C. Page, senior vice president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company of Winston-Salem, N.C., and a leading national authority on wills and trusts, legal authorization is as vital as the vital organ itself. Since transplants must be made immediately after death, any delay could make the organ no longer usable.

The bank has distributed to North Carolina attorneys a suggested legal format for dealing with anatomical gifts.

Unfortunately, in some states at the present time, the law hasn't caught up with medical science and the wishes of next of kin can override those of a deceased. But having your intentions down in black and white is certainly not a bad idea.

Smoke Gets In Your Pores

The list of maladies for which cigarettes are supposedly responsible seems to be endless.

A Redding, Calif., physician claims that habitual smoking causes crow's-feet and other wrinkling of the facial skin. Dr. Harry W. Daniell also says that threats of crow's-feet are more effective in making his female patients give up smoking than warnings about something minor like lung cancer.

As the commercial for a new ladies' cigarette puts it, "You've come a long way baby"—and you look it.

New Course For Nixon's Foreign Policy

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON (NEA)—In a very quiet way, Henry Kissinger will exert a very heavy influence on the course of U.S. foreign policy in the years just ahead.

This will not be because Kissinger will push his personal concepts of what that policy should be. For it is understood by President Nixon and by Kissinger, by mutual agreement and temperament, that, unlike Walt Rostow who held the White House foreign affairs role until recently, Kissinger will only assemble and present the facts and the options—not propose solutions.

But Kissinger's strength lies in his ability to marshal facts and in knowing when old criteria do not apply to the solution of new problems.

He has a thorough knowledge of history and a sense of knowing when historical solutions are pertinent. He is best known now for his book, 'Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy.' But friends say he will be remembered for his book, 'A World Restored: Castlereagh, Metternich and the Restoration of Peace, 1812-22.'

At the age of 20, as a private in the U.S. Army in World War II, Kissinger decided that what he needed was a knowledge of facts on international affairs. He has spent the 2 1/2 decades since then remedying that deficiency.

His friends say that he has accumulated in those 25 years a most unusual amount of information to apply to almost any given situation abroad.

Kissinger has what associates say is a fantastic ability to concentrate on the specific problem at hand. Just as it was said of Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., as deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, that he 'lit up' whenever he came across a new scientific discovery, however small, so it is said of Kissinger in the fields of history and foreign affairs.

So great is his concentration, in fact, that Kissinger may come into a room and see only the person with whom he can share a new discovery in his research. He may thus pass close by men he knows well without seeing them. Close friends, on such occasions, have been known to say: 'Henry, I'm here, don't you see me?' Moreover, he is shy and not sociable in the usually accepted sense of the word.

All this has led some men to call him 'arrogant.' But those who know him well are intensely loyal.

What is likely to have the greatest effect on Nixon is that Kissinger is bound by an exceedingly high set of personal principles, an attitude the new President finds very persuasive. This set of principles is coupled with a dogged persistence that in the past has left him and his facts in command of a situation after those who disagreed have grown exhausted and abandoned the field. He will not be worn down.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Can the Gross National Product be used to indicate the economy of the nation? If not, why not?

ANSWER: To the degree it is a measure of a free market economy, it is a good measure of the economic condition. The reason it is a distorted measure of the economic condition at present is that it includes government spending. When the government increases its spending and buying for materials that are not for the use of the consumer, then the Gross National Product will show higher than it really is. Government spending does not represent productive capacity and should be subtracted from the Gross National Product in order to have an accurate indication of the state of the economy.

Only Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas still forbid the use of snow tires that contain small metal stud inserts for increasing the grip, according to the National Automobile Club.

Too Little, Too Late Proclamation On Parklands Typical Johnson Fumble

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — In a dramatic series of events which culminated in his final hours in the White House, former President Johnson gave his critics a review, in miniature, of those qualities which tumbled his personal popularity and now blur the Johnson record.

The events were climaxed by the blunt offer of resignation from Stewart L. Udall, the outgoing secretary of the interior. Udall's now-publicized offer was made in a stormy discussion before Johnson vetoed Udall's plan for adding nearly 7.5 million acres of government-owned land to the National Parks system.

As the story is now emerging from the aura of secrecy and stealth, which so frequently cloaked the Johnson Administration's worthwhile initiatives, it becomes clear that the eleventh-hour National Park controversy, had other half marks of the Johnson presidency.

In the first place, the angry showdown with Udall (which was quickly publicized in the press), came after a long period of presidential indecision. The delay necessitated a rather typical last minute action by the President.

Also typically, Johnson's caution stemmed in part from his own careful reading of congressional sentiment. He concluded, and probably correctly, that a 7.5-million-acre park addition would be sharply attacked as an improper and unauthorized land-grab by a lame-duck President.

In his last-minute deliberations, Johnson lost his temper (as he has now admitted to some of his associates). Then, in the end, his final "surprise" decision, to add something less than 400,000 acres to parklands in Arizona, Alaska and Utah, really pleased no one.

There was another familiar circumstance too, a hint of meanness, when Udall was not a guest at the post-inaugural Cabinet luncheon, given for Johnson by former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford.

LEJ RIGHT — It should be said at once that Johnson, as was frequently the case, was genuinely and rightly concerned — this time about the propriety of so large a park addition under authority of the Antiquities Act. That 1906 law permits a President to proclaim historic landmarks and protect them by reserving surrounding parcels of land. Udall had armed Johnson with opinions upholding the legality of his plan. Johnson was also briefed on the precedents provided by other presidents who had added smaller acreage to the National Parks under the Antiquities Act.

It is now clear that the 7.5-million-acre plan was first proposed to the White House several months ago. Under one version, Johnson was urged to make his proclamation under the act during the holidays and describe the big park addition as a Christmas present to the nation.

Conservationists in Congress were urging the President to act, and at least one of them advised that the proclamation should be made quickly, so that it would not be a last-gasp action by the outgoing President.

No final decision was reached by Johnson at that time, however. He knew that Rep. Wayne L. Aspinall, D-Colo., chairman of the House Interior Committee, would oppose the plan. He told Udall to do some missionary work with other prospective critics at the Capitol.

Then Johnson went to the hospital with the flu. Udall was reluctant to outline the plan for other congressional critics. He was afraid that they would air their opposition in the newspapers and add to Johnson's concern about the plan.

Finally, on the Saturday before inauguration Monday, with Johnson actively considering the plan, Udall's Interior Department press office erroneously announced to previously briefed reporters that the 7.5-million-acre plan had been approved by the President.

Johnson's anger came very shortly after that mistaken announcement came into his office on the news wires.

STORY UNFINISHED — Another story from Udall's Interior Department had cluttered in on the news wires that day. The story reported that Udall was changing the name of D.C. Stadium to honor the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. Some Johnson critics have suggested that the President was angry about that story too.

Associates who have since talked with Johnson discount that bit of embroidery, however. They report that Udall had advised some congressional leaders about his stadium plan and suggest that the President may already have known of it too.

In any case, the parklands story is still unfinished. After scaling down his Parkland proclamation to 384,500 acres, Johnson asked key members of the Senate and House to explore the possibility of adding the additional acreage by congressional action. They agreed to do that.

Their prospects are viewed as less than good, however. Even the scaled-down addition under the Antiquities Act has provoked sharp criticism in the states involved. A Utah congressman, Rep. Laurence J. Burton, R., has offered a bill which would limit future land additions under the act to a total of 2,560 acres.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT

Slow Resting Rate Preferable for Heart

Q—I am a man, 66. My pulse is 40 to 45 when I am relaxed. What is the normal resting rate? Would a slow pulse indicate hardening of the arteries?

A—Although 72 is the average resting rate, a rate of 30 is compatible with health if there is no electrocardiographic evidence of heart block. In general, a slow resting rate is preferable to a resting rate of 100 — which is still within normal limits — because it indicates more complete relaxation. It does not suggest hardening of the arteries.

Q—I have a rheumatic valvular heart disease. My doctor says I will need an operation in a year or two. What kind of operation would I need and why?

A—In general, operations for valvular disease are of three kinds: (1) commissurotomy in which the opening in a tight valve is widened, (2) a bypass of the blood flow around an obstructed valve and (3) replacement of the diseased valve with an artificial one. All of these operations aim at restoring the heart to normal function.

Q—Is angina pectoris in any way affected by nervous tension? Can it be fatal?

A—Although attacks of angina may occur when the victim is relaxed or even sleeping, nervous tension is often a precipitating factor. A person with angina may live for 48 years after the diagnosis is made but sudden death during an attack is a possibility, especially if the victim has neglected to carry his nitroglycerin tablets (or their equivalent) with him.

Q—A friend who has angina pectoris takes nitroglycerin. Is there any limit to the number of tablets she can take in a day?

A—No. Some victims take 25 to 30 tablets a day.

Q—My doctor says I have angina pectoris. He gave me Itramin fosylate. Is it habit forming? What are its side effects?

A—This new drug is not habit forming. No serious side effects have as yet been reported.

Q—Is Elavil a tranquilizer? Does it contain phenobarbital? Will it quiet an irritable bowel? What are the side effects? Can one stop taking it abruptly?

A—Elavil is an antidepressant rather than a tranquilizer. It contains no barbitol. It has no direct action on the bowel in the usual dosage but large doses may cause constipation. Other side effects include drowsiness, dry mouth, tremors, weakness and blurred vision. It can be discontinued abruptly without danger.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Efficiency Benefits All

By PAUL HARVEY
As I recall the story, starving American prisoners of war were tortured by their captors by seating them before a banquet table loaded with delicacies, each with his hands tied behind his chair.

The captors returned in an hour expecting to find the men raving. Instead the prisoners had formed an "association." Each was taking turns, with a spoon held in his mouth, feeding his neighbor.

Thus can co-operation accomplish objectives otherwise unattainable.

With industries increasingly handcuffed by federal restraints and a cost-price squeeze, trade associations are more than ever important to you.

Example: Turkey farming has gone the way of all farming; bigness, larger flocks, mass production.

The number of turkey growers has been cut in half in recent years, yet production has steadily increased.

When you have production to protect, and fewer votes than before, you need help. The National Turkey Federation is a joining of hands by these men and women with similar interests in legislation, research, improved production, promotion and new product development.

Today more than a fourth of all turkeys are not marketed as turkeys but as further processed items: turkey rolls, turkey roast, TV-type dinners, packaged turkey parts and so forth.

Presently, there is in the works a proposal for use of poultry meat in sausage products which could tremendously expand this market.

These NTF fellows apply themselves to industry problems so scientifically that the old Tom Turkey now has been replaced by the artificial inseminator. The mother hen has been replaced by incubators, brooders.

Today, because of all this new know-how-including computer-formulated feed—a turkey can produce a pound of meat on a smaller amount of feed and in less time than any of our other domesticated meat-producing animals.

What does this mean to you? Obviously the National Turkey Federation is fine for the turkey grower. It helps him produce more efficiently, research more economically, market more efficiently, make more money—what's that to you?

Here's what: Because we can now produce turkey meat for your table nationally for 18 to 23 cents a pound, turkey is one of those rare food products which actually costs you, the consumer, less than it did 15 years ago.

Further, the turkey industry is not getting any of your dollars by the backdoor tax route. This industry receives no direct federal subsidies, has no government production controls.

This industry is as free as any and freer than most. It prospers—and you benefit.

Trade associations necessarily relate themselves to other industries in other ways, but addressing conventions of these associations in recent years has reaffirmed and enhanced my respect for what private industry can do to solve its own problems.

Unlike unions, membership in such associations is not compulsory. It is true that nonmembers benefit from these efforts without paying "dues." But then so do you, the consumer. Efficiency benefits everybody. Helping to feed one another, we all eat better.

Branch Head Bill Says:

By BILL KENNEDY

George Wallace so frightened the political world that even the electors now want to do away with the Electoral College, at least that's what some of them said when they had the national spotlight the day they cast their votes.

How anybody thinks the change to a system where the President is elected by popular vote—which is what most of them advocated—will prevent a hang-up over a third party candidate, they haven't explained. They can't explain; they are simply using the Wallace thing for pulling wool over people's eyes. We'd still have some way to select a president in case no candidate gets a majority.

Some suggested that we simply let the candidate who gets the most popular votes become president—whether he has a majority or not. This would work all right — work to destroy our Republic, to further break down the system of checks and balances so painstakingly set up by the framers of the Constitution.

The Electoral College may not be perfect; man-made bodies seldom are. But it at least gives some recognition to the existence of individual states in the union of states. The one-man, one-vote, one-world advocates are using this unrest about the Electoral College as an opportunity to rush us toward their goal.

Russia and China will be for majority rule in the world just as soon as they get a setup where the Commie block votes can make all the decisions — where the 200 million Americans can be ruled by foreigners.

The one-man, one-vote system has destroyed many democracies. Once we let them change the system of electing a president to a computerized tally of the popular vote it is most likely that nobody will ever get a majority. Splinter parties invariably develop in all directions with the purpose of amassing enough votes to get a share in a coalition government. We would end up with more political parties than France and Italy — and have just as much instability. The party with a plurality would have to make deals with a splinter group to get a combined majority.

The first thing that would happen, perhaps, is that both major political parties would set up secondary parties of their own—so that between the two (the original party and the splinter) they could promise everything to everybody (even more than now) by taking opposite stands, and hoping to get a combined majority.

That's four parties. But there would be others, groups of all kinds — ethnic and otherwise — rallying together to grab a "piece" of government. The "isles" on the floors of Congress mean very little now, but with a system where state lines are not recognized in national elections they could do away with them altogether — the House and the Senate would be mixed up like a bowl of succotash.

In fact, there would be no need whatsoever to have two "houses" of Congress — just one big assembly similar to assemblies in most other socialistic countries. And that is what our one-man, one-vote advocates want.

If we change our election system, I hope the "majority" of us will insist on some means of keeping it on a state basis... a "majority" of "50 majorities" is far more apt to be right than one big corrupt "majority."

Washington, D.C. might be the nation's capital, but it is recognized more importantly these days as one of the "crime capitals of the world."

Already in the start of this new year the police have recorded their 200th armed robbery. In the papers they are just reported as a group. There was eight bank holdups and 11 murders in the first 11 days of 1969. Murder and rape are so common they are reported on the inside pages.

Since 1961, crime has increased 175 percent. But we are going to put a stop to it right away, yessir. The new att'y. general, John N. (No-No) Mitchell, says he intends to extend wiretapping and eavesdropping in investigations of crime. That ought to take care of it.

"Hey, Joe, this is Willie on the line. What do you say to a little mugging job tonight?"

"I'll meet you at the usual place on Pennsylvania Avenue, then we'll talk it over. You heard they are tapping our lines?"

"Yeh, I heard about that. I'll meet you there, then we can decide. There ain't no use in letting the fuzz know where we are working."

"That's right, baby. What do you think about this new A.G., Mitchell and his line-tapping. Ain't it a blast?"

MIDDLE EAST

Tom Anderson Reports From The Scene

By TOM ANDERSON (American Opinion)

JERUSALEM — On May 15, 1948, international Zionists established a State in Palestine and, with the help of the United Nations, proceeded to drive 1.5 million Arabs from their homes. Thousands of these unfortunate Moslems have been murdered, maimed, and tortured. The great majority of them suffered and starved, sickened and despaired, in filthy desert tent cities at Israel's borders. Now, twenty years later, most of these people are still in refugee camps — and the Arab world is united in its commitment to revenge them.

won. The Soviets could take credit; if by some miracle Egypt had defeated Israel, however, the Arabs would not have been so willing to accept Soviet subsidies and accompanying "guidance." As it is, the Arabs are convinced that they have no choice but to seek Soviet help — giving up freedom and sovereignty in return. In short, Russia engineered the recent crisis so as to further alienate America from the Arab world and to lure Egypt, Syria, and Jordan into humiliating defeat. Thus Egypt and Syria would be compelled to maintain their alliance with the Soviets, and pressures could be applied among Palestinian refugees in Jordan to end King Hussein's flirtation with the United States.

Malta and the narrows between Sicily and North Africa. Will the Soviets now dare to re-open Suez, possibly bringing on Israeli attacks on Russian vessels — and a Soviet-American confrontation? Would the Russians have created this tremendously expensive fleet unless they planned to use it? Even though the U.S.S.R. has dumped billions into the Arab countries to re-stock the decimated Arab air and ground forces, sent thousands of military and political advisers, financed the Aswan Dam, and controls half-a-dozen Moslem states in the area, the Communist Party is still outlawed in most Arab nations as camouflage for the largely anti-Communist Moslem citizenry. Moslems love their independence. They have no intention of going Communist if they can help it. But every Arab with whom I have talked has welcomed Communist support against Israel.

Arabs now believe that Israel is the tool of American-British interests, acting not for humanitarian reasons but for commercial purposes. They contend that they could get along with the Israelis if both Russia and America would pull out and let them solve their own problems. They remind one that for thirteen centuries, until the beginning of Zionism, Jews and Arabs were not enemies but allies against Christendom. And, one remembers that, before Zionism, persecuted European Jews used to escape to safety among the Arabs of the Middle East!

Some good but deluded Christians among us are not in the least disturbed by this outrageous theft of Moslem-owned properties, saying that God ordained it. Certainly the Bible says that the Jews will return to their homeland. But it hardly says that Zionists among them must steal it. In any event, many Arab Christians have even abandoned Christianity because so many of us interpret the Bible as saying that the Zionists had a right to take by force, and without payment, the country, homes, and possessions of the Arab people of Palestine.

With America so heavily committed in Vietnam, this has all supported the Soviet campaign to dominate the Mediterranean. With the support of the Moslem world — the Russians have thus gained their age-old dream of warm-water access to both the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, along with access to the most important oil fields in the world. And, if the Soviet Union can now turn the Mediterranean into a Red lake, she can isolate Western Europe.

All of the great Empires of history — Persian, Greek, Roman, British — have solidified their power by control of Egypt and the Mediterranean. After Waterloo, the exiled Napoleon at St. Helena lamented that he failed to conquer Europe because he failed to take the Mediterranean. Egypt, he said, was the most important country in the world. In World Wars I and II, our side held that area — so vital to allied victory. We have now lost Algeria and Egypt to the Communists, and appears that we are losing the Mediterranean.

In the third chapter of Zeephaniah the prophet addresses his message to Israel, a sincerely repentant people. But the Bible says that when Israel regains the Holy Land, the Israelites will have become a Christian people, acknowledged by the Lord as His People. At that time, it says all nations will be praising the Israelites.

Why all the furor about the Middle East? Why don't we pull out and tend to our own business? The real reason is not preservation of the Zionist State, but the unalterable fact that right now the Arab States are strategically the most important in the world; and the key to control of the Mediterranean. In the four-thousand-mile area from Moslem Morocco to the head of the Persian Gulf lies the Middle-East Corridor through which European traffic passes from the Far East, Australia, India, and East Africa. Also, a large portion of the world's known oil reserves are there.

Christmas is over but the American tax payers got a present when the Netherlands repaid their Marshall plan debt from 1948. The Dutch, who are noted for thrift, paid the final 65.5 million dollars of a 129.5 million dollar loan 15 years ahead of schedule, "as an appropriate form of cooperation in the light of the over-all United States balance-of-payments situation," the treasury reports.

Although Israel now appears to be more secure than at any time during the twenty years since the new State was established, there are 100 million Arabs dedicated to its destruction. Of these, 1.3 million are still living inside Israel, along with 2.3 million Jews. The anti-Zionist Arabs have two advantages: (1) They are multiplying much faster than the Jews; and (2) the Soviets are training and supplying them for the non-too-gentle arts of insurrection, and anarchy.

The situation was literally made to order for the Communists. In spite of the hundreds of millions of dollars which have been spent on agriculture and industry, Israel is by our standards still a poor country — and a relatively weak one. Whereas the brilliantly-led Israelis could doubtless whip Jordan in forty-eight hours, and maybe Egypt and Syria in a month, they could hardly last more than a week against the Soviet Union. And, the Arabs know it. Hence...

And no politician has publicly asked whether the good intentions of a school "busing" program have not spurred the flight of middle class parents to the suburbs. (White children are withdrawing from the city's public schools at the rate of 40,000 per year; today some 90 per cent of Manhattan's elementary school children are Negro or Puerto Rican.) In sum, New York City is rapidly deteriorating. And while some of the deterioration is from natural causes and outside pressures, the principal cause is the self-serving — and self-defeating — political climate.

The Middle East is infinitely more vital to us than Vietnam. If the Communists take the Middle East, they will probably take Europe. If they take the Middle East and Europe, they will be in an excellent position to take America.

The Soviet navy is already in control of a major part of Egypt's port at Alexandria — with bases in Algeria, the Indian Ocean, and on the East Coast of Africa. The new Russian helicopter carrier, Moskva, cruises off the Turkish Coast. Soviet ships are filling the seas east of

'Strike City'

(Arizona Republic)

At first it was only a rhetorical question posed by TV comedians hoping to get a laugh. Now the major publications — the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times, Time magazine — are asking it in all seriousness: Can New York City survive?

More precisely, can NYC survive as the sort of city one would like to visit, never mind living there?

There are good arguments on either side of that question. For what seems to be happening is that a combination of woes have ganged up on the city to create insurmountable problems.

Middle-class families, who pay the bulk of the taxes (and who Euripides said "make the state secure and uphold the laws"), are deserting NYC in droves.

Organized labor, infused with what the New York Times' A. H. Raskin describes as a rampant "gimme" spirit, has saddled the city with one crisis after another.

The city bureaucracy, to quote the Wall Street Journal, is "maddening."

And, priding itself on its "liberal, enlightened policies," the city has become a welfare recipient's paradise — so much so that if all the welfare recipients left and established their own city, it would be the eighth largest city in the U.S. and one of the fastest growing.

Granted, many of New York's problems are not of its creation. Welfare recipients, for example, come there from all over the country. So do criminals whose bold daylight attacks have made a jungle of much of the city. And traffic congestion is a nationwide urban problem.

But many of the worst problems stem directly from the policies pursued by politicians of both parties, policies which, while they are passed off as enlightened and liberal, are actually myopic and doctrinaire. And are destroying a great city. For example:

(1) Organized labor's grip on the city is unbreakable — and precisely because politicians-on-the-make have ever pondered to organized labor at the expense of the average New Yorker.

As a result, subway strikes, garbage strikes, school strikes, police and firemen slowdowns, fuel truck driver strikes, strikes which have killed several newspapers — all have helped bring "Strike City" to its knees.

Not only have the city's "liberal" politicians sanctioned strikes against private industry, by putting the city's weight on the side of the strikers no matter how valid their cause (even now the Lindsay administration publicly supports organized labor's boycott of California grapes). But they have refused to provide New Yorkers with adequate protection from striking public employees, even to the point of refusing to enforce the state's weak Taylor law.

(2) City officials boast of their enlightened civil rights climate. If this meant equal opportunity under the law, it would have reason to boast. But too often it has meant political expedience and questionable sociology.

For example, despite the influx of poor newcomers — typically Negroes from the rural South — no major candidate has dared suggest a residency requirement in order to discourage immigrants (who add not just to the welfare rolls, but to the crime rolls as well).

And no politician has publicly asked whether the good intentions of a school "busing" program have not spurred the flight of middle class parents to the suburbs. (White children are withdrawing from the city's public schools at the rate of 40,000 per year; today some 90 per cent of Manhattan's elementary school children are Negro or Puerto Rican.)

In sum, New York City is rapidly deteriorating. And while some of the deterioration is from natural causes and outside pressures, the principal cause is the self-serving — and self-defeating — political climate.

Cities which have not yet reached the crisis stage owe it to themselves to study New York's mistakes and resolve to avoid them, now and in the future.

Influence, The Libertarian Way

By LEONARD E. READ

(Notes from The Foundation for Education, Inc.)

Libertarianism is not authoritarian, dictatorial, or prescriptive; it is the ideology of freedom, a nonprescriptive philosophy.

If freedom — individual liberty, the free market, and related institutions — is a way of life that works, the first demonstration of its workability should be in its own propagation. For, if libertarian methods cannot successfully extend an understanding and belief in freedom, then it is not a viable philosophy.

My thesis is that no one can take an effective stand for liberty and its propagation whose stance is not libertarian. In a word, any methods other than libertarian will work against liberty, not for it. The method must fit the objective, for, as Emerson points out, the end pre-exists in the means.

Many of those who avow their devotion to liberty follow practices that would deny my position on methodology. While they will not resort to the pure authoritarian method of "believe our way, or else," they indulge in argument and persuasion; name-calling is often used; they attempt the pushy, impertinent method of high-pressure selling. Believe-as-I-do, while not backed by force, is, nonetheless, a nonlibertarian attitude. This method is prescriptive, and a prescriptive means cannot bring about the libertarian objective — freedom to act creatively as each may choose.

At the outset, let us acknowledge that few people even so much as take a look at freedom ideas and, of those who do, most are impervious to them. Impervious to freedom ideas! But what's so strange about that? There are scientists, for example, who have an obsessive interest in algae and oceanic scum, in bumblebees, in continental drift, in human uniqueness, in polar bear meanderings, in organic farming, and so on. They are deeply devoted to these subjects; I am not. But, some may counter, these are rare specializations, having little bearing on people's lives; while freedom, whether one appreciates the fact or not, is important to everyone. Well, the threat of cancer should be of interest to everyone, yet note how few are devoted to its cure.

Why are so few devoted to the cure of cancer? Not because of its insignificance! I have just read an article reporting that certain leukemic cells die in the absence of an amino acid known as L-Asparagine. This is a first-rate discovery. However, such ventures in biochemistry are well over my head. Interested? Yes, in an offhand sort of way. But deeply devoted? Not even close! These investigations seem not to lure me; I am impervious to them.

And so it is with my specialization, the philosophy of freedom. Only now and then is there an individual who subjects a real student of the subject, that is, who acquires a deep and abiding interest in freedom's significance to himself and others. Further, until a person becomes such a student, he is just as impervious to freedom — has no more insights into it — than I have into leukemia and amino acids or a thousand and one other specializations.

Based on what appears to be a national and world-wide trend toward all-out statism, we must suspect that the few of us who are devotees of freedom aren't equal to the challenge; the currents of contrary thought are too powerful for us. Thus, we must hope that some others will join us, not because ours is a numbers problem — it is not! — but because among the newcomers there may be some who will far excel the present devotees in depth of understanding and clarity of exposition.

In view of the need for better men than we, the first question that comes to mind is, how do we go about influencing them? Particularly, what should be our approach to persons who are our intellectual superiors? Selling our idea to such individuals or to anyone, for that matter, is no more possible than minnows capturing whales. Are we, then, left helpless? Is there nothing we can do? To the contrary, there is a way if we can master it.

The distinguished Swiss psychiatrist, Dr. Carl Gustav Jung, gives us the key:

What does lie within our reach... is the change in individuals who have, or create, an opportunity to influence others of like mind in their circle of acquaintance. I do not mean by persuading or preaching — I am thinking, rather, of the wellknown fact that anyone who has insight into his own action, and has thus found access to the unconscious, involuntarily exercises an influence on his environment. The deepening and broadening of his consciousness produce the kind of effect which the primitives call "mana." It is an unintentional influence on the unconscious of others, a sort of unconscious prestige, and its effect lasts only so long as it is not disturbed by conscious intention.

Dr. Jung gives us the key but it is not as simple as a metal key. His is a mental key, and will unlock nothing for us unless we understand his words and what he intends to convey by them. So, let us reflect upon the ideas behind the words:

What does lie within our reach — There is a power that lies within your reach and mine, one he is about to reveal. The change in individuals who have, or create — We may already possess this power; but if not, it is possible to create it and, thus, bring about a change in ourselves. He refers to my changing me, not you.

... an opportunity to influence others — Obviously, he has some secondary effect in mind, as a consequence of the change in self.

... of like mind — The secondary effect will be most fruitful on those who have a passing and favorable interest in the enlightenment in question, in our instance: freedom.

... circle of acquaintance — Each of us has his own orbit — not two alike — beyond which this power cannot extend.

I do not mean by persuading and preaching — Away with argument, exhortation, polemics, ideological pushing, attempts at intrusion, forcing in. These devices are the opposite of what Jung has in mind.

... the well-known fact — Doubtless, the fact that follows was well known to Jung and some other pros, certainly to a few of the ancients and, as he suggests it is sensed now and then by primitives. Today, however, it is nearly a secret.

... insight into his own actions — Know thyself

... Access to the unconscious — Insight into one's own actions, when deep enough, plumbs what Jung calls the unconscious, the undiscovered self. Here lies the source of ideas, intuition, creativity — the aforementioned power that lies within our reach.

... involuntarily exercises an influence on his environment — This power radiates from the excellent individual without any awareness on his part that he is radiating. We — the ones who constitute the environment — occasionally experience being drawn to such persons; we ascribe a magnetic quality to them.

The deepening and broadening of ... consciousness — the power to which Jung alludes stems from our own thoughtful concentration and understanding, awareness, perception.

... produce the kind of effect the primitives call "mana" — "Mana" is a Polynesian term and was regarded as a spiritual power manifesting itself in certain individuals. Is not insight into one's own actions a spiritual power?

It is an unintentional influence on the unconscious of others — yes, it is an unconscious prestige. The moment one becomes conscious of this power, it ceases; it is turned off. Observe those who are probing ever deeper. The more they discover the phenomena of self, the more are they aware of how little they know; thus, they are not conscious of possessing any superior knowledge. But let them cease their probing, spend their effort instead proclaiming their superiority, and we are no longer drawn to them. A surge of self-esteem short circuits this system of power.

... its effect lasts only as long as it is not disturbed by conscious intention — To appreciate the truth of this, we need only take note of who it is we turn to for light. Instinctively, we turn away from those who are bent on reforming us or making us ever in their images. Whether we look to our contemporaries or to those who have gone before, we seek out those who pursue truth for truth's sake and who, obviously, have no thought of its effect on you or me or any other particular individual. Their intentions are honorable and the effect is enlightenment, until and unless they are disturbed by consciously trying to intrude their ideas into the consciousness of others; in that event, off goes the power!

We may deduce from Dr. Jung's analysis that you or I cannot sell anyone on freedom. The individual sells himself. His doing so, however, presupposes that an unconscious magnetism exists, that an unintentional lure is within his reach.

Both fact and theory seem to suggest that Dr. Jung is correct in his analysis. As to fact, civilizations on the rise have always been studied with stars. This would stand out in crystal clarity were we able to "replay" the original Constitutional Convention for comparison with a current political convention.

As to theory, it stands to reason that the generative process in society can be nothing more than the generative process going on in individuals. Improvement is impossible except at these discrete points.

Intentionally working on others takes the effort away from self. It has no effect on others, unless adversely; and the unevolving self is always the deterring self. The net result is social decadence — and has to be. The corrective for this popular pastime is to rid ourselves of the notion that Joe Doakes must stand helpless unless he is made the object of our attention. Joe will do all right, and the same can be said for you and me if we'll just mind our own business — the biggest and most important project any human being can ever undertake!

A New Model of the Universe

Between Intent And Achievement

(The Wall Street Journal)

The record of the Johnson Administration, it seems to us, is a classic illustration of how vast can be the distance between intent and achievement. And much of the difficulty may be read in three paragraphs in his final week in office — his Monday speech, the State of the Union address and the budget message.

The intent was grand (some would say grandiose) and unquestionably sincere. Mr. Johnson set out to conquer poverty, disease and ignorance and generally, in words that have now become a cliché, improve the quality of life for all. Abroad he sought to contain Chinese communism and in the process save a minor Southeast Asia nation.

The measure of his tenure he himself says, is whether there was a change for the better in the way people live. His not surprising answer: "I really think there has been."

Mr. Johnson went on to explain: "Black citizens, bound in silence for so long, are finding their voice in the voting booth in every part of the nation. The old in their illness, 20 million of them, know the dignity of independence.

"Young minds have been enriched and young horizons expanded... because of America's new concern for its schools. By the millions, families who were poor — and men who were idle — have begun to know the dignity of decent incomes and jobs. A larger share of American earth — of its shores and forests — was set aside for all the American people."

Only the most carping critic would deny any validity in these claims; the progress in civil rights is especially notable. Yet altogether the results present a very mixed bag indeed.

Even while so much has been done in the name of the Negro, the nation has suffered the degradation of race riots and the bitterness injected by the black militants. Not Mr. Johnson's fault perhaps and yet his administration cannot escape blame, particularly to the extent it built up unrealistic expectations.

One of the less admirable results of Medicare and related programs is an overloading of health facilities. As a consequence, all too often health care has not gotten better but actually deteriorated.

Or consider higher education, which has become such a sacred cow in the minds of many. We are not thinking merely of the havoc wrought by a minority of radical students; the problems go deeper. For one, it is a question whether practically every young person should attend college since many are patently not geared to it. It is also a question whether the whole process need take 16 or more years of an individual's life. Washington has poured out billions for education, but it has not poured out much thought.

It is good to know that the incidence of poverty is declining. But it has been declining for generations, and the greatest warrior against poverty has never been the federal government. Rather, it has been and continues to be private enterprise, the incentive economy.

Observers frequently contend that the domestic programs would have advanced a lot further had it not been for the absorption in the Vietnam war. Without doubt the war has diverted huge resources, human and financial. In fact, the most serious charge against it may well be that the diversion is out of all proportion to any gain that might be achieved.

Still it is an untenable proposition that the war is the basic reason for the administrations' domestic failings and general lack of progress. The underlying trouble is that for the most part the programs were poorly conceived and ineptly carried out.

Too much faith was put in what federal funds alone could do. The avalanche of social legislation became a bureaucratic nightmare, with confusion and duplication and waste rampant. The most damning indictment of this whole attempt at a welfare state is that the liberals themselves are turning away from it and seeking to diminish the federal domination of welfare.

Then there is the matter of cost. Yesterday's budget for the 1970 fiscal year asks spending close to $196 billion, up more than $18 billion just since fiscal 1968. Although the Nixon administration will in all probability try to modify the budget, we say it is excessive; like the Vietnam war, out of all proportion to whatever good the spending could conceivably bring about.

Nor does that end the story of cost. Because the government endeavored to do too much, employing reckless financial policies, a citizenry already oppressed by heavy taxation must bear the added burden of inflation. In these ways the authorities viliate the largest they dispense, ironically hurting especially the poor.

A final cost might be cited: The Johnson years have seen the growth of a spiritual disquiet in America. While it cannot be attributed to governmental policies, it is connected. People sense that government is too big, too intimately involved in their lives and, without very effective means to soothe this new uneasiness.

By and large it can be said the heart of the Johnson administration was in the right place. The unhappy lesson of these years is that more than a concern for humanity is required. It is also necessary to know how to make things work for people.

Culture Vs. Barbarism

(The Freeman)

Culture strives to establish a boundary between itself and barbarism. The manifestations of barbarism are called "crimes." But existing criminology is insufficient to isolate barbarism. It is insufficient because the idea of "crime" in existing criminology is artificial, for what is called crime is really an infringement of "existing laws," whereas "laws" are very often a manifestation of barbarism and violence. Such are the prohibiting laws of different kinds which abound in modern life.

The number of these laws is constantly growing in all countries and, owing to this, what is called crime is very often not a crime at all, for it contains no element of violence or harm. On the other hand, unquestionable crimes escape the field of vision of criminology, either because they have not the recognized form of crime or because they surpass a certain scale. In existing criminology there are concepts: a criminal man, a criminal profession, a criminal society, a criminal sect, a criminal caste and a criminal tribe, but there is no concept of a criminal state, or a criminal government, or criminal legislation. Consequently the biggest crimes actually escape being called crimes.

THE THOUGHT OF MY MARRYING A MAN WHO IS INTERESTED IN BALLET AND CHOREOGRAPHY SENDS DAD INTO A FRENZY!
THIS IS RICK! HOW DOES HE LOOK LIKE A HIPPIE TO YOU? AND HE HAPPENS TO BE AN EXCELLENT ATHLETE!
I'LL ADMIT HE'S A FINE LOOKING YOUNG MAN!
WELL, YOU TRY TO TELL THAT TO DAD—AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS!
BETTY—THERE'S SOMETHING ELSE YOUR FATHER IS CONCERNED ABOUT!

Priscilla's Pop
LIKE TO HIT A FEW CARLYLE??
NO, THANKS!!
HOW ABOUT PITCHING A FEW??
NOT TODAY!!!
THAT LESTER SUZIE LIKES TO RUSH THE SEASON!

Debbie Deere
HIS KISS WAS SO GOOD! I CAN'T BEAR HIM TO TOUCH ME!
I STOPPED OFF AT THE BUTCHER ON THE WAY HOME AND BOUGHT SOMETHING SPECIAL... STEAK TARTAR!
WHAT'S THAT?
IT'S DELICIOUS MEAT! YOU EAT IT RAW!

Joe Palooka
JIMMY... YOU CAME IN HERE TONIGHT AS A DECIDED UNDERDOG... AND YOU FOUGHT MAGNIFICENTLY!
BEING THE UNDERDOG TURNED OUT TO BE A DEFINITE ADVANTAGE FOR ME!
YOU WERE IN COMMAND OF THE FIGHT FROM THE VERY BEGINNING! YOU KNOW, OF COURSE, THAT THE CHAMP WAS HERE... AND HE SAW WHAT THAT RIGHT OF YOURS DID TO RIZZO!
YES! I'M HOPING FOR A CRACK AT PALOOKA'S TITLE!
HOW IS HE?
HE'S STILL STIFF! AN AMBULANCE IS ON THE WAY... AN' I HAVN'T GOT AN OUNCE OF PITY FOR HIM! HE FOUGHT LIKE A BUM! A REAL BUM!!

FINDS SKELETON
COPENHAGEN (UPI) — An apartment house superintendent broke into the flat of Hakon Nielsen, 68, who had failed to pay his rent and found his skeleton in bed. Medical examiners said the man had been dead perhaps 18 months. Landlord Henrik Jensen said he had sent Nielsen many reminders his rent was past due.

GREEN EARRINGS
PRAGUE (UPI) — British novelist Graham Greene arrived Tuesday for a week's visit at the invitation of the Union of Writers, Czechoslovak television said.

The Lighter Side

The Lighter Side
By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eighty-six House members are sponsoring legislation to enlarge President Nixon's Cabinet by creating a Department of Consumer Affairs.

As I understand it, the proposed department would do for consumers what the Commerce Department has done for businessmen, the Labor Department for workingmen, the Agriculture Department for farmers and the Department of Housing and Urban Development for city dwellers.

But let us not be discouraged by that.

It could be that some of the programs which haven't been overwhelmingly successful in the other departments would produce the desired result when applied to consumer problems.

May Have Helped

Take, for example, the attempts by the Agriculture Department to solve the farm problem by paying farmers not to grow things. That program may have helped to some extent, but thus far it has fallen short of bringing about an agrarian Utopia.

If, however, the proposed new department were to adopt the same approach—that is, if consumers were paid for not buying things—all sorts of problems might disappear.

Each consumer, as I envision it, would be assigned a purchase allotment, along the lines of the acreage allotments assigned to farmers.

Should he exceed his quota, he would forfeit his benefits under the program. But if he stayed within the allotment, he would be paid for not buying the things he would otherwise have purchased.

Lessen Danger

Right away this would lessen the danger of a consumer getting rooked on a transaction. Which seems to be the No. 1 consumer problem.

Most of the consumer laws now on the books were designed to protect the consumers from sharp dealings in the market place. This way he would protect himself by avoiding the market place.

A secondary benefit would be an easing of the inflationary pressures now besetting the economy.

Strong consumer purchasing power is the chief reason for the inflationary spiral. If the consumer spends less, prices, wages and so forth will drop accordingly.

Thirdly, consumers would bank the extra money, which would ease the credit squeeze, which would lower interest rates, which also would benefit the economy.

Considered in this light, the proposed new department could be a great asset to the country. Stranger things have happened.

Davy Crockett used the expression, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead," in the War of 1812.

Quirks in the News

COLD LOSERS

ALSTON, England (UPI)—The referee blew his whistle for the start of the second half of the Cumberland Cup championship game between Alston and

Raffle United.

Alston rushed out—but no Raffles. The Raffles players, complaining it was too cold to play football, huddle around a fire they had started on the sidelines near their bench. Nothing the referee could say would change their minds.

FLED WITH BED

LISBON (UPI)—Emilio da Cunha was walking down the street when he saw movers take a bed from a house and put it down on the sidewalk. When they went back into the house for more furniture, Da Cunha picked up the bed and fled. Two passersby summoned the movers and all four chased Da Cunha.

Later, at the police station, Da Cunha told a sergeant: "I found the bed in the street." THE TIME IS . . .

WOODFORD, England (UPI)—Katie Pickles' father got a $72 telephone bill and called the General Post Office to check.

The GPO, which manages Britain's telephone system, replied its records showed an inordinately large number of calls to the GPO's clock—a recorded device which tells callers the exact time.

Neither Pickles nor his wife ever called the clock—so they began watching Katie. A couple of days later Mrs. Pickles saw the tot playing with the telephone, calling the clock.

She told mom she called her "favorite auntie" nearly every day. STOLE "BREAD" HERRIN, Ill. (UPI)—Burglars broke into the Bunny Bread Terminal Tuesday and stole some "bread"—a safe containing $2,000 in cash and some checks.

Cherry is the most valuable American cabinet wood. The burls are used for figures in veneer and the wood is quarter-sawn for solid beauty.

FUTURE BALLERINA concentrates on her exercises for there's no nonsense at the Junior Ballet School in Moscow. Hundreds of little girls are enrolled annually for the 10-year course, but most are weeded out after a few weeks. Those that remain know their training could be terminated at any time because they're not working hard enough or not showing enough talent. Competition in the school is intense for the reward is probable acceptance by the Bolshoi or Malyevy Ballet schools, sources of the truly great ballerinas.
