By DE VAN L. SHUMWAY
 SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Sirhan B. Sirhan could easily become the man who will keep the death penalty alive in California.

As a practical political matter, few politicians seriously believe that capital punishment will be repealed while the man who gunned down Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in an Ambassador Hotel hallway still lives on Death Row.

In a way, Sirhan could become the Carl Chessman of the '70s.

Chessman, famed as a convict-author for his two books and known as Los Angeles' red light kidnap-artist, became an international cause celebre during his 12 years on San Quentin's Death Row.

Dies In 1960

He died in the gas chamber May 2, 1960 while a crowd gathered outside the prison in protest. Gov. Edmund G. Brown had tried, and failed, to get the state legislature to end capital punishment.

Chessman himself said that while he lived the death penalty lived and that he would give his life for its abolition.

Sirhan's views on the death penalty aren't known. But, ironically, his victim's major California backer already has asked that he not be executed.

"To close out the career of Robert Francis Kennedy by exacting the life of another human being—same or insane mad killer or demented exhibitionist—is not the last chapter that ought to be written in the brilliant public record of a gentle man," said state Assemblyman Jess Unruh.

Unruh headed Kennedy's delegation in the June primary election and was nearby when bullets from Sirhan's gun cut down the senator as he left a rally celebrating his primary victory.

In 1963, Unruh furnished the needed 41st vote to clear from the assembly a bill granting a 4-year moratorium on capital punishment. That bill promptly died in a state Senate committee.

Gov. Ronald Reagan favors the death penalty as a deterrent to crime.

Regrets Necessity

"I have always regretted the necessity for it but I think there is a necessity for it," Reagan said in 1967 after he refused clemency for Paul E. Lavergne, a 23-year-old murderer who still has not been executed.

The state assembly's Criminal Procedure Committee defeated the only repeal bill on Feb. 27 after a lengthy hearing that Included testimony from former Warden Clinton Duffy of San Quentin.

"I believe deeply that the sanctity of human life is the highest value of our society and that the state must not violate that sanctity by taking a life," said Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, the bill's author.

But he lost. So did Assemblyman Henry Waxman, a Los Angeles Democrat who authored a bill granting a four-year moratorium on the death penalty.

Sirhan was a sort of silent topic of the hearing. He was being tried in Los Angeles then but his case wasn't mentioned as an issue.

Reagan has the power to grant him clemency but that appears highly unlikely at this point in time. If he did, it certainly would be a major issue—one way or another—in his expected campaign for reelection next year.

"In the realm of the spirit as of the flesh, certain lines of wholesome and rewarding procedure, seem to be worked out for us, and we cannot profitably transgress them."

Charleston Police Arrest Rioters

U.S. Armada Move Made

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The powerful carrier-led armada formed to protect U.S. intelligence flights was abruptly shifted from the Sea of Japan and to the other side of the Korean peninsula Saturday. The move may be aimed at bettering relations with the Russians.

The Defense Department announced without amplification that "Task Force 71, which has been operating in the Sea of Japan since April 20, is proceeding south of Korea through the Tsu-Shima Straits to the Yellow Sea where fleet operations will continue."

Observers noted however that the Russians have twice protested—or "expressed concern"—at the fleet's presence near their far eastern port of Vladivostok fronting on the Sea of Japan. The shift will take it well away from Soviet shores.

The move could also enable the fleet to extend its protective arm farther to the west while continuing to guard intelligence flights on both sides of Korea. It is less than 10 minutes by jet plane across most parts of the peninsula.

Indictments Hit Prairie View College Students

HEMPSTEAD, Tex. (UPI) — Rioting Prairie View A&M College students who burned a destructive path across campus March 29th have been indicted by the Waller County grand jury and face arrest this week, it was disclosed Saturday.

A total of 25 indictments were returned in connection with the riot at the predominantly Negro school. Because some persons were indicted for more than one offense, the number of persons involved was not known.

"No arrests have been made for those offenses, therefore the names cannot be revealed until the sheriff makes the arrests," said Dist. Atty. E. A. Oualine Jr. of Conroe, Tex.

He said arrest warrants would be issued this week.

It's Really An Hour Later Than You Think

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Spring forward, fall back" was the byword in 47 states when Daylight Savings time went into effect at 2 a.m. today.

People should have set their clocks and watches an hour ahead before retiring Saturday night in every state but Arizona, Hawaii and Michigan, whose legislatures have voted to exempt them from "fast time."

Those who lost an hour's sleep Saturday night will gain it back at 2 a.m. Oct. 26, when Daylight Savings Time ends and clocks are turned back an hour.

In the meantime, most Americans will get an "extra" hour of daylight for six months and there will be the usual grumbling among purists about tampering with "God's time."

The Transportation Department, which oversees time zones, reminded the public that Daylight Savings Time in the 47 observing states will be mandatory for such things as opening and closing hours of government offices and facilities, schedules of public and commercial transportation, and time requirements in contracts or legal duties and responsibilities.

The Arizona and Hawaii legislatures in 1967 took advantage of an exemption clause in the law which permitted a state to continue on Standard Time all year long if the entire state and not just part of it is exempted. The

Gong Troops Hit

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. troops drew North Vietnamese infantrymen into a trap near the Cambodian border Saturday and reported killing 213 in a battle in which the Americans withstood one of the heaviest artillery barrages since the siege of Khe Sanh. One American was wounded in the lopsided victory.

A force of about 600 North Vietnamese moving out of lairs in Cambodia assaulted the U.S. 25th Infantry Division camp behind a curtain more than 450 rounds of rocket, mortar and rocket propelled grenade fire. American military spokesmen said.

The camp, "Frontier City," the area by helicopter. The about 45 miles northwest of Saigon and a mile from the Cambodian border, was established only Thursday in hopes it would lure the Communists into battle.

Accept Bait

When the North Vietnamese accepted the bait, the Americans called in jet fighter-bombers, helicopters and fixed-wing gunships and fired howitzers at chest-high level from within the camp, a network of deep and heavily fortified bunkers.

The camp defenders were bolstered by two 180-man U.S. infantry companies dropped into

Total of 174 Taken In Demonstrations

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI) — Seventy-four more Negroes were arrested Saturday, the second mass arrest in as many days, when they staged a four-hour demonstration in support of striking hospital workers and the jailed Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy.

The arrests in front of the Central Baptist Church brought to 174 the total jailed in two days. Those arrested Saturday were charged with failure to obey an officer, Abernathy and 99 followers were arrested Friday for violating a court order limiting pickets in front of the city's two biggest hospitals.

There was no violence. Fifty-six of those arrested Saturday were juveniles and were turned over to their parents pending appearance in juvenile court.

In Columbia, both whites and Negroes sponsored by the Charleston County Young Democrats marched in front of the Capitol in support of the hospital workers. Police ignored them.

The Negro hospital workers are charging discrimination and substandard pay scales, and demanding a union contract.

"You are directed to disperse and go home or you will be arrested," a police official shouted Saturday to the demonstrators, who had been blocked by police and National Guardsmen in an attempt to march to the county courthouse.

The protesters, about 15 adults and the rest teen-agers, raised their hands in a "V-For-Victory" sign and sang "We Shall Overcome" while police herded them into waiting buses and police vans.

The vehicles then pulled away from the church amid much hand-clapping and foot-stomping from the youth inside.

The youths who marched Saturday filed two-abreast out of Central Baptist Church and moved toward King Street, the city's main thoroughfare, where Abernathy led 2,500 marchers Friday. But Police Chief John Conroy halted the column because the demonstrators had no parade permit.

First Amendment

Carl Farris, a local SCLC official who was leading the march in Abernathy's absence, asked Conroy to remove the police and National Guard lines sealing off the proposed route march. When Conroy refused the demonstrators sat down on sidewalks and curbs and sang "freedom" songs.

"We would like you to honor the constitution you are sworn to uphold," Farris told Conroy. "We only seek to exercise our constitutional rights of the first amendment."

Conroy, who said he learned of the intended march just 10 minutes before it started, replied, "We support, defend and uphold the rights under the first amendment. Our only interest is to maintain the safety of the city."

Involved in the dispute are the South Carolina Medical College Hospital and the Charleston County Hospital. Most of the 500 workers who walked off their jobs at the two institutions have since been replaced and the Hospital and Nursing Home Workers Union is now seeking to be recognized as their bargaining agent.

But officials have refused to talk with union representatives on grounds that a state institution cannot legally negotiate with a union.

Abernathy's wife, Juanita, said her husband intends to remain in jail to dramatize the demands of the workers.

Texas Senate Now Most Activist Branch

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Redistricting and new leadership have reversed the traditional roles of the Texas House and Senate, making the Senate the more activist branch for the first time in memory.

Traditionally, the Texas House has been the body that initiated most legislation; the Senate sat back and turned thumbs up or thumbs down on what the House had done.

A few years ago it would have been unthinkable for the Senate to pass more legislation than the House.

But that is exactly what is happening this year. The Senate so far has passed 300 bills; the House 243.

The comparison is made more striking by the fact that nearly twice as many bills have been introduced in the House as in the Senate. The House has passed 17 per cent of its bills; the Senate percentage is 23.

A few years ago the Senate was the place where most bills were slowed down or killed. This year's figures show that that function has now shifted to the House.

House members have been able to get 80 of their bills through the Senate and onto Gov. Preston Smith's desk. Senators have been able to get only 50 of their bills through the House.

The work schedules of the two houses also reflect the switch in roles. The Senate used to be the more leisurely body, rarely working in the afternoons or on Friday.

Make Friends With the Machine, Teachers Told

SILVER ANNIVERSARY — Dr. Robert Burton, chairman of West Texas State University's department of geology, stresses a point in his talk Saturday to teachers attending the Silver Symposium in Science sponsored by Pampa Independent School District. About 100 area teachers attended the 25th anniversary of the National Science Teachers Association which was held Friday and Saturday in the Coronado Inn.

School Host to Symposium

By WANDA MAE HUFF

The 10 Pampa area teachers attending Pampa's two-day Science Symposium Friday and Saturday were reminded to "make friends with the machine" if they were going to teach the explosion of students which will be enrolling in America's schools.

Dr. Robert Burton, chairman, department of geology for West Texas State University, was one of five special speakers presenting talks at the Coronado Inn to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the National Science Teachers Association. Pampa Independent School District hosted one of the three symposia in Texas, and one of 180 in the nation.

Special guests and program speakers were Dr. Claude Boatman, WTSU department of Chemistry; Jr. Ronnie Wade, WTSU department of biology; Dr. Ernest R. Carlson, WTSU department of physics, and Dr. Harriet G. Barclay, University of Tulsa, professor of botany.

Keynote theme of Dr. Burton's talk Saturday was that "trends of science teaching point to fewer teachers being available to teach the increasing number of students who are faced with an explosion of knowledge in new scientific fields."

"These fewer teachers will be faced with a money gap to continue teaching up to date science because the complex equipment, space, material and help required costs more than most school districts can afford," Dr. Burton said.

"Each new piece of equipment that is discovered enlarges our world and opens up new problems, new questions to be answered. Teachers are finding today they need machines (computers) to interpret machines. The chalk and blackboards of yesterday are inadequate to solve complex questions arising daily."

As the population explosion continues, Dr. Burton said, science has developed a new feature — socially — oriented sciences — to solve the problems created by more people. Scientists are discovering they can get research money most when it applies directly to a social problem of the moment. In offering solutions, Dr. Burton stressed he would not deny more money is needed in scientific research, but "money (See TEACHERS, Page 3)

Twenty-Year-Old Optometry Fuss Close to Settlement

AUSTIN (UPI)—Private negotiations have brought the 20-year-old Texas optometry feud "very close" to a solution, state senators say.

Such a solution would end a stalemate that has prevented the State Board of Optometry Examiners from licensing any new eye examiners for the past two years.

The two warring factions — "chain store" optometrists and individual practitioners — have narrowed their differences to a few issues and both sides have agreed to submit the remaining questions to binding arbitration, according to Sen. Jack Strong, D-Longview.

The arbitrators are expected to be Strong, Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, and a third person to be named by Gov. Preston Smith.

Strong and Creighton have drafted a bill that incorporates the agreements already reached. A question about the wording of one section of that bill has been submitted to Atty. Gen. Crafford Martin for a legal opinion.

"Generally, they have reached a decision that the board should now have power to make substantive rules changes," Strong said.

GJIE: ALLY, Retainshr The bill drafted by Strong and Creighton says "the board shall not have any power or authority to amend or enlarge upon any provision of this act by rule or regulation or by rule of regulation to change the meaning in any manner whatsoever of any provision of this act..."

He said the question submitted to the attorney general is whether this language is strong enough to limit the board to making procedural rules only.

Cornell Students Still Demand End To Racist Policy

By United Press International Black students at Cornell University will not relinquish their guns and are not satisfied with concessions won after last weekend's armed occupation of the Student Center.

"Nothing has been gained," Thomas Jones, a spokesman for the Afro-American Society, said Thursday. Jones said Cornell still practices "racist policies," and black students "could not take part in the community until the university showed efforts to end racism."

Alvarado Bank to Open

ALVARADO, Tex. (UPI)—A director of a proposed new bank for Alvarado said that the new bank could open as early as the end of next week to relieve a financial upheaval caused by the collapse of the Citizens State Bank.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Thursday sued Jack Park, 63, Alvarado's mayor and president of the collapsed bank, for $12,397, plus interest.

The suit, filed in district court in Cleburne, accused Parks of "dishonest, fraudulent and criminal acts" and said "others" were involved in the shortage.

State Banking Commissioner J.M. Falkner announced in Austin that the banking commission has approved an application for charter of a new bank to be called the Alvarado State Bank.

The proposed new bank has an overall capitalization of $30,000 and its president would be James A. Nees of Lovrenia.

Insurance man Bobby J. Seale, one of the proposed directors of the new bank, said the directors and president met Thursday night.

We have been in contact with the FDIC regarding using the old bank with a certain amount of remodeling amount of remodeling at a later date," Seale said.

"The old bank collapsed April 14 and Seale confirmed that the financial situation in Alvarado still was complicated, with checks hard to handle.

"If you woke up one Monday morning and couldn't find a bank open, would that freeze a city like Dallas?" Seale asked. "Well, we are in the same situation, except on a smaller scale."

"We are operating on a limited amount of funds placed with one of the directors to negotiate checks on other banks and checks merchants might receive from other banks. Some people have made temporary arrangements with other banks in the area and they have been very helpful."

Seale said that to insure against anyone's ever looting the assets of the new bank, "our intentions are to have an outside auditing firm periodically audit the bank."

Although Park has said nothing about the civil suit against him, he still is in Alvarado and Seale said he would see Park today.

"He is well thought of in the community," Seale said. "You would be hard pressed to find too many people around here even now who would not say he has helped them from time to time."

"Understand me, I am not condoning anything he may have done. I think the public was aware earlier this week that there would be action and I have heard only one man speak against Park."

The name Canada is derived from the Huron Iroquois "Kanata" meaning "village, lodge, collection of tents."

Friday, Saturday Busy Day for City Policemen

It is reported fairly often that a pedestrian, tired by the fact of a car's crossing at a stoplight with its front wheels and half the body on the crosswalk, thus requiring the walker to go around had walked right through the car to get across the street. Such a case was reported to Pampa police Friday but it was the driver of the vehicle that complained about a "disturbed" gentleman. Mrs. Carol Stepp of Briscoe, was shopping in Pampa, she asserted, and had to stop quickly at the First National Bank corner. She went into the crosswalk, Mrs. Stepp told Officer George Wallace, "but I couldn't back up because another car was right behind me."

But a man, about 45, wearing a short-sleeve shirt and dress trousers, walked up to her car and kicked it several times. He also used some ungentlemanly language. She explained the situation but all in vain. The kicking, she said, made light scratches on the car's surface.

Other complaints included a stolen truck taken from Vaughn Oil Co., 400 E. Tyng, sometime after closing at 5:30 p.m. Jack Vaughn asserted that the driver had to ram the front gate of the compound, springing the lock, to get the truck out. The truck was found abandoned on Highway 60 about 8:30 a.m. Saturday officer George Wallace investigated.

A stolen dog too was wanted back. Reported to police at 8 p.m. Friday by Barbara Hickok, 406 N. Nelson, the dog was described as a mixed breed animal about six months old, mostly of Chow ancestry. The owner had suspects in mind but these, when investigated, were found to have been "given" the dog by others, names unknown. It was the belief of the officer that children had been playing with the puppy but had disappeared without returning him.

J.E. Forde told police his wife Marsha had lost a billfold four days earlier while shopping. It contained no money or driver's license, but had credit cards and personalized checks inside. The billfold was black leather.

A continuing harassment by telephone was reported by Mrs. Judy Rooms who works for the Schlumberger Oil Well Survey Co., Woodward, Okla. The company has a direct line to Pampa. Mrs. Rooms said, and can be reached by dialing direct from Pampa. Local youngsters have been doing this, sometimes asserting they are "making a survey on Martin Luther King," or else simply breathing into the transmitter. She had explained the situation to the patrolman but he would "work a little closer" to his son and "get him straightened out."

Someone had taken her purse, Mrs. Annie Belle McLain, 1204 S. Barnes, complained to police. The purse contained a 5-dollar bill, three 1-dollar bills and $4 in silver as well as personal papers, Harold Grimes, patrolman, investigated.

In a call answered by George Hendrick, a woman reported that several boys had beat on her son. The boy was questioned and he confirmed that he had been attacked by several boys, four of whom he named. The attack occurred in an alley back of his house. Hendrick explained that such conduct was anti-social and the boy agreed.

Stan Brown, cruising late Friday, saw a 1960 Chrysler with a Texas tag parked on a street with a woman asleep inside. When he and another officer, Danny Honeycutt, questioned the woman she said she and a male companion named Jerry had been drinking and she was leaving a local tavern. She was advised to go home to sleep.

A woman reported that her young son had been "picked on" by several other boys at school and that teachers would take no action. As she talked with Officer Stanley Belt, a boy joined them and the woman slapped him. He could not explain how the trouble started but the officer suggested that fighting is " frowned upon." He promised the incident would not be repeated. The boy's father also told the patrolman that he would "work a little closer" to his son and "get him straightened out."

Pampa Boy Gets High College Honor

David Wilks, a senior in mechanical engineering at Texas A&M University, has been elected to membership in Phi Kappa Phi, highest academic honor attainable on the A&M campus. Members are elected from all disciplines and must rank in the upper 10 percent of their graduating class.

Wilks, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Wilks, west of Pampa, is a 1965 graduate of Pampa High School. At the university, he is a member of Tau Beta Pi and Pi Tau Sigma honor fraternities and is a distinguished student. He recently completed a cooperative Education program, supplementing his academic study with work experience.

Involved in extracurricular activities, Wilks is current president of the Civilian Student Council which represents about 9000 of A&M's 13,000 students. He has been vice president for programs and summer director of the Memorial Student Center.

Teachers

is not the real solution, for even without money to buy the complex machines available the real teacher will find a way to create, to answer his problem without the machine."

"The real teacher will do what the machine can not do. He will think, he will be more than a tape recorder to repeat what's in a book. He will make friends with the machine and use it to his advantage to preserve the human element in teaching," Dr. Burton said.

He stressed learning is done in two categories—first by the student becoming aware of facts, figures, and information, and then by understanding. No teacher can teach another. He can only show him the way to learn.

"The self-motivated student is scary. He's hard to teach because he's more than a wheelbarrow student that you have to push to try to learn. The only way a teacher can help a self-motivated student is to direct him in his quest for knowledge, to weed out the essentials and then stay out of his way. If he wants to learn, you can't stop him," Dr. Burton said.

Some of the answers to the problem of less money, fewer teachers and more students are flexible scheduling of labs, eliminate regimentation of classes, and inspire each student to become aware himself of facts, figures and information to free teachers to help him understand what he has learned, Dr. Burton said.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS
The Texas Water Plan has been revised several times to meet the needs of various areas of the state. The Texas Water Rights Commission has been required by law to hold public hearings on the contents of the Texas Water Plan. These hearings are to ascertain if vested and correlative rights of all parties, groups and municipalities are protected. The hearing in Austin drew a strong reaction from former Speaker of the Texas House, Jim Lindsey, who attended the public hearing Apr. 8 to present the Texarkana position on the 2020 Water Plan. Lindsey took the position that the Texas Water Plan allocates only 145,000 acre feet to Texarkana for the year 2020, when it already holds a current permit for 189,000 acre feet yearly from Lake Texarkana. Lindsey stated that the Lake Texarkana Water Supply Corporation was working on application to submit for term permits for a number of cities, for a share of the Texarkana permit. He emphasized that growth rates based on history are no longer valid, particularly in a basin where water is available to support accelerated growth. He added that the commitments already made out of Cooper Reservoir for export, now require that more replenishment supplies should be allocated to meet the 50-year needs of the Sulphur River Basin.

George Brabham, president of the Northeast Texas Municipal Water District, in his appearance before the Commission stated that the 2020 Texas Water Plan didn't recognize that the Municipal Water District was losing 65,000 acre feet of water with the construction of Titus and Franklin Reservoirs. Starr County Water Users Association said the plan totally ignores the county while earmarking large distributions of upstream Rio Grande water for El Paso and Pecos valleys, the Winter Garden and Webb-Maverick counties, Starr County Water Users Association said poverty in the already stricken county would further increase if farm water needs are ignored. Attorney Harry L. Hall, representing 14 water improvement districts in Nidalgo, Cameron and Willacy, said costs of proposed exchange of Rio water for benefit of Winter Garden and Maverick-Webb be paid by those areas and that diversions not be made until replacement water from the coastal canal is actually available for use in the Lower Valley irrigation systems. Hall also said that provisions should be made "not in theory but in practice" to protect Rio quality. The Water Rights Commission voted to accept briefs up to April 22, then to announce its decision on approval of the plan, or on modifications which will be made to get approval. Presumably, the Water Development Board then will make those modifications, and the plan will be in effect as a "flexible guide" for development. The legal basis for laws and policies dealing with water resources in Texas is covered in a report issued by the Water Development Board, titled "Laws and Programs Pertaining to Water and Related Land Resources." Donald Yarbrough, general counsel for the board, is the author. The report covers the history and development of water law from Spanish days and describes the several agencies involved in water regulation and their roles, including district, local agencies and interstate compacts. The report revises an appendix on water law prepared by the Water Development Board for a study of the Red River below

Ryals to Manage Water District

Felix Ryals is named general manager of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District at the April meeting of the board of directors of Water, Inc. at Lubbock. Ryals succeeds Fred Vandenburg of Pampa, who resigned for health reasons. J. M. Collins was named to the advisory board of the organization. Bean Rae's resignation from the board was accepted and a tentative budget of $284,000 for the coming year was adopted. Bill Clayton, state representative from Spring Lake, is the new executive director of Water, Inc. He presented several proposals for the board to study in mapping plans for statewide support of the $3.5 million bond amendment that will be voted upon in August. The bond issue will permit the issuing of bonds to support the Texas Water Plan.

Agriculturally Speaking

By FOSTER WHALEY
John Spearman was by our office recently and wondered why we didn't have something in the paper on the 32-state Cattle-On-Feed report. Here is a brief rundown. Compared to April 1, 1968, total cattle (32 feeding states) on feed as of April 1, 1969 was up seven percent. This was about as expected. When compared to Jan. 1, 1969, the total cattle on feed decreased 8 percent as of April 1. Placements on feed during the first quarter of this year were one percent less than same period a year earlier. Earlier a six-state report had shown a 9 percent drop in placements in January and a 14 percent drop in February. These six states represent over 50 percent of total cattle fed in U.S.

Marketing of fed cattle for slaughter during the first quarter this year was 6 percent above the same period a year earlier. Marketings are expected to show same increase for the April to June period this year. Since the slaughtering weights are somewhat lower than year earlier levels, it appears the total tonnage of beef would not be up by the same percentage. Generally speaking, the report was interpreted as being favorable. Some were disappointed that placements on feed didn't drop more. Placements on feed in the North Central States for the first quarter this year were down 12 percent as compared to the same period a year earlier. Iowa led the decrease with a 21 percent drop in placements. Iowa feeds well over 2,000,000 cattle, almost twice as many as the closest cattle feeding state. For the benefit of speculators and hedgers this indicates to me the spread in the price between the Futures Market and the local cash market might be somewhat wider than normal between August and October.

FAYETTE, Iowa (UPI)—Scott Robinson, 6, was given a baby chick for Easter. After the chick grew a little, Scott wanted to play with it in the house, but Mrs. Richard Robinson had reservations. She solved the problem by making miniature three-corner diapers for the chick which she changes twice a day.

Training Course Eyed By Four - H

A tractor operating course permitting limited work exemptions for 14 and 15 year old youths from hazardous occupations in agriculture will be offered under sponsorship of the County 4-H Clubs, according to Jesse Hoerrman, assistant agent. "If enough interest is shown," Hoerrman said, "we shall try to offer a training course before school closes for the summer."

The 1966 minimum wage law provides for designating hazardous occupations considered hazardous for employment of youths below age 16. Club members and other youths 14 and 15 years old may obtain a certificate so that they can do such jobs as operate a tractor more than 20-horsepower, a rotary tiller, combine, baler or do other farm work. The course will consist of 16 to 20 hours of orientation, training, examinations and operation. The course does not apply to youths working on their parents' farms. But for all interested in finding farm employment "this is the only means of getting an exemption so that they may work," Hoerrman summed up. Anyone interested or having a question is invited to telephone MO 4-2671 as early as possible.

Grass Should Be Sowed Now

Grass planting time is for hay land, pasture range land and waterways. The grass seeding rates vary depending upon the type of the land, such as pasture, range, and waterways. Also the time to plant depends on the type of grass being planted, for example Weeping Lovegrass on hay land and pasture land the planting time is from Dec. 1 to Jan. 1, and until Aug. 1, if the land is irrigated. On range land the planting time is from Feb. to Dec. 1 and if it is on a cleared surface the planting time is from May 1 to June 1. For the various recommended seeding rates and planting times check with the SCS County-Work Unit.

The Prairie Wind

BY CLEO TOM TERRY

During the cold snap last week I talked with my aunt, Walter Walters of Pampa. I told her that the hackberries were suddenly a clouds of green along the creek bottoms, and that the gums looked like the frost may have damaged them. And I remarked that we usually have short false spring a cold snap, or two perfect spring days, in all at once it's summer!

Mrs. Walters told me that she remembered a snow on the second day of May, 1907. She and Uncle Arthur Walters had moved to Texas County, Oklahoma, near Eva, from Parker County Texas in October 1906, and they lived in an immaculate half-dugout. The temperature doesn't change very fast underground and you don't see what has happened outside till you go up and open your door. This morning of May 1907, Arthur Walters lifted the door and hollered, "Sweet thing, come here." The sight that met his wife's eyes when she came up to the door was a soft blanket of snow—"the prettiest snow I ever saw" she says, after more than fifty years.

"We had corn four inches high" she told me, "but it wasn't hurt at all. It takes a lot to kill corn. Cotton killed by a light frost, and wind with a little electricity and cotton was gone. Arthur and the neighbors had signed up to all plant little cotton as they were trying to start it up there, but it was too cold. I didn't care much. The first thing I could ever remember was a cotton patch and I didn't intend to pull a boll in Oklahoma!"

Lots of people pulled bolls and picked cotton. My grandmother pulled a baby on the cotton-sack and went right on picking. To listen over the news casts and entertainers you might get the idea that no white people worked in the cotton fields but it just isn't so. I don't care whether they were black white, brown, pea green or purple, everyone except a very, very few of the most wealthy went to the cotton-patch and no one color ever had any monopoly on all the hard dirty work in the South!

No more than any color had a monopoly on slavery: the higher caste African blacks captured and sold their own people into slavery in the North, and the northerners sold them south to the plantation owners. And the African blacks, when they were able to, captured and made the most abject slaves of the pygmies such a slavery no other group however cruel was subjected to this slavery of the colored pygmies.

Odd how much more convenience is to us than health—until we lose that health!

Twenty years ago, heart attacks were an occupational disease in that farm workers did not have any! After the tractor came into general use, heart attacks became as common among farm workers as among other workers.

Sarah Reid walked from Arkansas to Texas when she was nine years old, and at ninety she could straddle a barb-wire fence or squat down and catch a squaking baby chicken in her apron! She was almost ninety-five when she died and if she ever had any heart trouble until right at the very last I never knew it, and they joined us on the south—were close neighbors all my life.

Telling of the long trek nearly seventy years later, Sarah Reed, now "Grandma" Meadows said, "There wasn't room for but one in the wagon and Mama was poorly," meaning that a child was on the way.

The Reeds lived on the White River in Arkansas away down near Little Rock. When small

Things Shaping Up Well At Marie Foundations

By RUTH LEWIS STAFF WRITER

It would be corny to say that Marie Foundations, a Pampa industry, is shaping up well. So that will not be said.

But there is nothing corny about this still-new manufacturing firm and its astonishing growth since establishment here in 1964.

Because of this continuing expansion and sturdy increase in personnel and performance Marie Foundations of Pampa will receive a special award to be presented at the Governor's Industrial Conference May 7 at Austin.

The Texas Industrial Commission, sponsor of the Conference, offered early this year five awards to state industries for significant expansion during 1968. The Pampa Chamber of Commerce nominated Marie Foundations in a letter dated March 19 this year. The letter noted that the company had started construction of its original building in January 1964. By steady advancement each year since, the industry has achieved a total payroll now exceeding $2,000,000, with a labor force of 650.

Marie Foundations is a division of Form-O-Uth Corporation, owned by Cal Fraser and Mrs. (Marie) Fraser, Gardena, Calif. The company manufactures women's girdles and brassieres which are marketed by Sears-Roebuck & Co.

Plant executives here are Tom Greenwood, plant manager, and Dale Greenhouse, local manager.

Although Marie was not winner of one of the five top prizes, a letter from the Industrial Commission reported March 27, a "special recognition" at the conference May 7 had been planned. "We are extremely proud of their contribution," the letter said.

Attending the Austin ceremonies will be Tom Greenwood and Dale Greenhouse of Marie Foundations; George B. Cree Jr., president, and E.O. Wedgeworth, manager of Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Governor Preston Smith will make the chief address at the meeting.

The Mohammedan calendar is dated from the Hegira, the flight of Mohammedan from Mecca to Medina in 622.

And Another Thing

By RUTH LEWIS

I wish I could have heard Mike Hayes in his poetry-reading demonstration at the Lions Club. He won the district with such a performance, I understand.

Poetry is, one supposes, indescribable. At least no one person has presented an inclusive definition. Emily Dickinson did not attempt to say what a poem is, but she did comment, "When a piece of writing makes me feel as though the top of my head has been taken off, then I know it is poetry."

Edwin Markham, in his old age, described poetry as "the smile on the face of truth."

Now of course he knew better than that. Poetry is not always a smile by any means. What of Robert Frost's "Death of the Hired Man," for instance? Or Robert Browning's "My Last Duchess?"

Poetry, so far from being a smile, is often a leer, or a snarl, or a smirk. It can be all that, of course, and still be poetry. Otherwise Shakespeare would not rate as a poet at all.

The most common definition is "Poetry is emotion remembered in tranquillity." And I don't remember who it was that said that first.

Lawrence Perrine in his book, "Sound and Sense," notes that "Poetry is as universal as language, and almost as ancient." He also notes that "In all ages, and in all countries, poetry has been written — and eagerly listened to — by all kinds and conditions of people, statesmen, lawyers, farmers,

Ruth: Never Too Busy For A Boy

There's still a few of us who still consider baseball as the National Pastime and who still follow baseball through the standings and daily wire stories.

A friend of mine quit writing sports because, he said, all athletes today think about is the money they can make.

In other words, there isn't much pride left anymore. Business comes first.

A case in point is that of former Boston Red Sox star Ken Harrelson, who after being traded to Cleveland, decided he couldn't go because his business interests in Boston would suffer.

After he was assured by the Cleveland management he could make as much money in Cleveland he decided it wasn't such a bad deal after all. But I can remember several ball players, either dead or retired, who played the game for the love of it.

The one I remember best, and just slightly, is Babe Ruth, who was probably the greatest baseball player ever.

There are many stories told about the 'Babe' but the one that keeps coming back to me is his famous 'call-shot' for a sick boy.

Babe Ruth was never too busy to sign an autograph or shake a youngster's hand. It has been debated time and time again if Babe really hit his 'call-shot' home run.

Paul Gallico, one of America's most respected writers not only saw the home run but was in on the beginning of the story. This is the way he tells

You Don't Say...
By

it: "There was a handsome kid aged around 12 or 13 who had undergone an operation. The operation had been successful, but the boy failed to improve. He had slipped too far downhill. Something special was needed to bring him back. The boy's idol was Babe Ruth. A baseball autographed by the Babe might prove the right stimulus to quicken that nearly extinct flame. A newspaperman (me) went to Ruth and told him the story and asked him to autograph a baseball for the boy. The next morning the nurse came into the room and said: "Johnny, Johnny, you must open your eyes and sit up for a moment. Someone is here to see you." The door opened and it was God Himself who walked into the room, straight from His glittering throne, God dressed in a camel's hair polo coat and a flat camel's hair cap, God with a flat nose and little piggy eyes, a big grin, and a fat black cigar sticking out of it.

God gave His alias as Babe Ruth and sat at the foot of the bed, talked baseball then promised Johnny a personal and private miracle.

He said: "Ya know what I'm gonna do this afternoon? I'm gonna hit a home run just for you."

This was in the 1932 World Series, the last one in which Ruth played. It was between the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs and Ruth was pitching for the Cubs.

Babe Ruth was being rode unmercifully. Root put over the first pitch and Ruth swung at it and missed. There was a great roar of delight from the partisan crowd.

Ruth held up one finger so that everyone could see it. He was indicating that that was just one strike.

Root pitched again and Ruth missed for the second time, and the park rocked with laughter. This time Ruth held up two fingers.

Two balls, wide pitches intervened and at this point, Ruth made the most marvelous and impudent gesture I have ever seen.

With his forefinger extended he pointed to the flagpole in center field, the farthest point removed from the plate. There was no mistaking his meaning.

The crowd roared and Ruth made them choke on it by slugging the ball out of the premises at exactly that point, the center-field flagpole, for his 'call-shot.' And a little boy was happy.

Lee Ninth Wins Crown

Lee ninth grade trackmen brought home the trophy Saturday despite a tie with Dumas in the annual District Junior High track and field meet.

Lee ninth and Dumas each scored 139 points but the trophy was awarded to Lee, who might have won it outright anyway.

In the 220 dash Dale Ammons was picked fifth but spectators and coaches all claimed he was third. A third place finish would have given Lee two more points for a total of 141.

Pampa ninth finished sixth, while Houston was third with 101 points, Perryton fourth with 98 and Berger Austin, fifth with 44 points.

In the eighth grade division Austin surprised everybody with 115 points, then came Dumas, 106; Perryton, 84; Lee, 82; Pampa 51 and Houston 21.

Austin also won the seventh grade division with 126 points while Dumas had 92, Lee 81, Pampa 67, Perryton 50 and Houston 27.

All three Lee ninth relay teams finished second with the 440 relay running the distance in 47.1, the 880 relay in 1:37.2 and the mile relay in 3:40.6.

Tommy Montgomery set a new record in the 120 yard hurdles. Montgomery was clocked in 15.5 beating the old mark by one-tenth of a second. Montgomery took second in the 180 yard low hurdles in 22.8, was sixth in the pole vault and second in the shot with a heavy

National League Roundup

Cubs, 9, Mets 3

NEW YORK (UPI)—Al Spangler had three hits and scored three runs Saturday to support Bill Hands and help the Chicago Cubs defeat the New York Mets 9-3.

Spangler doubled and scored in the first inning, singled and scored during a three-run fourth inning and singled and scored amid a two-run sixth as the Cubs pounded Don Cardwell and three relievers for 13 hits.

Padres 5, Reds 2

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The San Diego Padres, after pecking away at Jim Merritt for seven innings, exploded for five runs off the Cincinnati southpaw in the eighth and downed the Reds 5-2 with Nate Colbert collecting his third home run in three days.

Colbert cracked a three-run homer in the inning as the Padres overcame a 2-0 deficit and Chris Cannizzaro followed with another homer with one aboard. It was Cannizzaro's first four-bagger of the season.

Giants 2, Astros 1

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Willie Mays hit his 500th home run in the first inning and scored the winning run in the fifth Saturday while Juan Marichal pitched a four-hitter leading the San Francisco Giants to a 2-1 victory over Houston.

The win was San Francisco's fourth in a row and sixth in the last seven games.

The Astros suffered their 10th loss in the last 11 games and their 15th overall this season.

Bucs 4, Expos 3

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Robert Clemente's two-run homer in the sixth inning gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday and dealt Bill (No Hit) Stoneman his third loss of the season.

Stoneman, who pitched a no-hitter against the Philadelphia Phillies on April 17 and followed it with a shutout against the St. Louis Cardinals, had his string of 21 consecutive scoreless innings ended in the fourth inning when Willie Stargell homered for the Pirates.

Cards 10, Phils 4

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Lon Brock's solo homer and Tim McCarver's grand slam highlighted a six-run uprising with two out in the ninth inning Saturday night that carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 10-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Brock's homer—his third extra base hit—came with two out against reliever Barry Lersch and snapped a 4-4 tie.

American League Roundup

By United Press International

Joe Pepitone homered off relief Pitcher Pete Richert with two out in the 10th inning Saturday to give the New York Yankees a 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Pepitone, who had ended a New York rally in the eighth by banging into a double play, connected on a 1-0 pitch to give Lindy McDaniel, the fourth Yankee pitcher, his second win of the season.

The Yankees tied the score at 5-5 in the eighth when Tom Tresh drove home two runs with a triple. The Orioles took 2-1 lead in the second when Dave Johnson cracked a two-run homer, but the Yankees tied the score in the third on Bobby Murcer's run-scoring double, bringing his league-leading RBI total to 19. Murcer's throwing error contributed to Baltimore's three-run inning in the fifth, however, Frank Robinson and Brooks Robinson each singled—home runs in the inning.

His First Major Homer
Rookie Charlie Manuel drove in four runs with a double and his first Major League homer and Rod Carew had three singles and a double to lead a 16-hit attack that carried Minnesota to a 12-1 triumph over Chicago.

Leo Cardenas and Ted Uhlander also homered for the Twins. Minnesota scored a run in the second, added two in the fourth and routed Horien with a five-run uprising in the fifth during which Manuel hit his two-run homer.

Reliever Casey Cox hurled 2-3 innings of shutout ball and Ken McMullen doubled home two runs to highlight a four-run fifth inning as Washington handed Cleveland its ninth straight defeat, 6-1.

Second Grand Slam

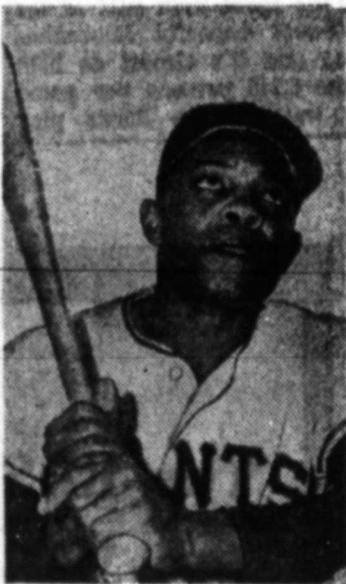

Carl Yastrzemski's first of two tremendous homers—the second grand slam of his career—powered the Boston Red Sox to a 7-4 victory over Detroit, to tag the slumping Tigers with their fourth straight defeat.

Yastrzemski, batting a mere .194 entering the game, blasted a Joe Sparr pitch off the upper deck in right center at the 415 foot mark, to cap a six-run Boston second inning. Two-time American League batting champion followed that blast with a homer off Fred Scherman in the fourth. Norm Cash and Bill Freehan hit homers for the losers.

In night action, Oakland was at Seattle. A night game between California and Kansas City was postponed because of rain.

ON TO THIRD—Bill Hobson is about to roll over third base and then to score for Berger on an overthrow Saturday. Pampa won the game, however, 3-2, for its second conference win of the season. (See other picture page 10).

Pampa Nips Berger, 3-2 For Second District Win

By RON CROSS

Southpaw Sammy Heasley struck his way out of a seventh inning jam and his Pampa teammates took advantage of Berger's wildness for a 3-2 Harvester victory, here Saturday afternoon.

The victory was Pampa's second against 12 league defeats and came after an 8-3 loss to Palo Duro Friday.

With the score tied 2-2 in the top of the seventh Berger's Melvin Robinson opened with a single and went to second on an error.

But Heasley got John Ashford to groundout, James Robinson followed with a walk and another groundout put the runners on second and third. Heasley then struckout pinch-hitter Mike Braddock to retire the side.

Catcher Wyatt Earp led off Pampa's half of the inning with a single, then advanced to second and third on wild pitches by Darrell Werthor, the Bulldog pitcher.

Dan Carlton batted for Heasley and hit a slow roller down the first baseline. The Bulldog first baseman picked the ball up and stepped on first and Earp scored the winning run.

Heasley, a junior, picked up his first league win against three losses and gave up seven hits in going the full seven innings. He struckout five and walked only two and hit a batter.

Pampa collected only three hits in the game but made them all count.

With Berger holding a 2-0 lead in the third Pampa scored its first run on a walk to Heasley, who was wild pitched to second, a walk to Mike Stephens and Vernon Johnston's single. The Harvesters tied it in the sixth when Parrish reached first on an error. Tommy Hawkins sacrificed him to second and the Bulldog right-fielder dropped a pop fly.

Parrish did some heads up base running going from first to third on the overthrow at first.

Berger's two runs in the second came on Pampa errors. Hobson led off the inning with a single and when Littrell doubled both runners scored when the throw to third got by

Hawkins and rolled to the left-field fence.

Friday Palo Duro jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning with only one hit and made it 5-0 after two innings.

The Harvesters cut the margin to 5-3 in the fourth when Parrish and Hawkins both walked and Ros Holman singled Parrish across. Lindsey walked and the Palo Duro pitcher couldn't handle Earp's ground ball and both Hawkins and Holman scored.

Thompson took the loss and Sandez was the winner. Cotter homered for Palo Duro. Holman paced Pampa hitters with two singles.

In other District 4-4A action Saturday Tascosa moved to within one game of first place Monterey with a 3-2 victory over the Plainsmen. Coronado downed Palo Duro, 10-7; Amarillo edged Plainview, 12-11 and Lubbock beat Caprock.

Nebraska's Greene Wins Special Century in 9.4

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—Records were set in two individual events and one relay Saturday in the rain-marred windup of the 60th Drake Relays before a sodden crowd of 16,000.

The major individual mark went to the Florida Track Club's distance man, Jack Bacher, who took the six-mile run in 27:29.9 before the downpour began.

Bacher, who won the three-mile run Friday, was the only individual double winner in the carnival.

The second individual record-setter was the perennial sprinting star from Nebraska, Charlie Greene, who captured a special 100-yard dash in :09.4 in 3:18.3.

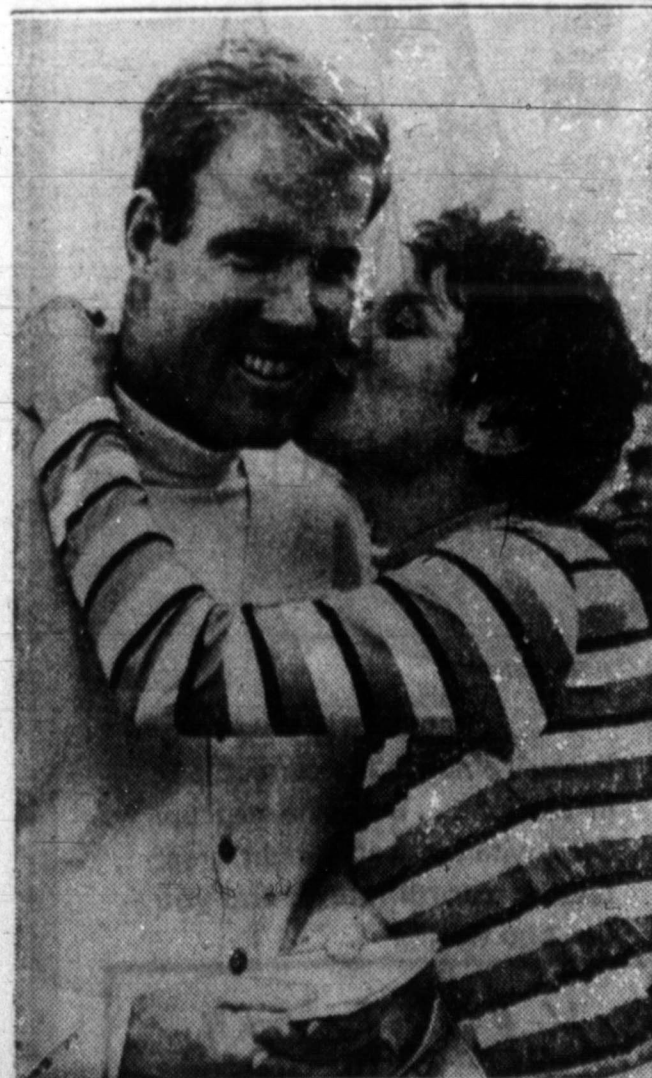

to beat the previous mark by a tenth of a second. But Greene's effort on the new Tartan Track was two-tenths of a second slower than the Drake record set Friday in the time trials by Mike Goodrick of Indiana.

Only one relay record toppled Saturday, when Texas-El Paso won the university distance medley in 9:41.1. It was the second relay victory for El Paso this year.

Prairie View College was the champion relays winner, capturing three.

On Friday Prairie View won the college two-mile and Saturday added the mile in 4:12.0 and the sprint medley a special 100-yard dash in :09.4 in 3:18.3.

Frustrating Road to Bank

NEW YORK (NEA)—Frank Beard was saying that golf, now, is the sport where the money is.

"Look at last year," said Beard. "Fourteen tour golfers made over $100,000. And Billy Casper was tops with $205,000. No other sport has so many people making so much money."

"It seems that the smaller the ball, the more the money, overall. If youngsters want to make money in sports, I think golf is the place for them."

Grier Jones, a rookie on the golf tour from Wichita, Kans., said that "a lot of young athletes who might have gone into other sports in years past, are now becoming golfers."

And Ken Still, 34-year-old tour veteran from Tacoma, Wash., played third base in high school; good field, little bit hit, by his own admission. "I'm a frustrated baseball player," he said, "but I know a lot of major league ball-players and most of them would rather play golf."

The 29-year-old Beard, who also played baseball as a youngster, has made over $100,000 the last two years. Still, almost an unknown on the tour, has made annually, from 1965, $31,000, $35,000 and $50,000 in 1967 without ever winning a tournament. (He won first tournament, the Cit Open, this April.)

Jones, the medalist in the PGA's Approved Tournament Players (ATP) school last October, has won, up to the Masters, $7,800. An excellent accomplishment for a rookie.

But Beard, Still and Jones are part of the very select few. So many young players who do get playing privileges from the ATP—about 30 players, the best of the youthful lot of that year—founder, scrambling for the 10 or so openings in tournament fields and finally give up and go home.

Tournament field spots are taken up by the 60 top money winners of the previous year, all winners of tournaments of the year preceding the tournament, the low 24 and ties in the last PGA championship, low 25 and ties in last year's tournament by the same sponsor, those who make the cut in the previous week's tournament, local PGA sectional champs, that state's open and amateur champions. So, out of a starting field of 144, most openings are already filled.

A young "rabbit," as the new young pro is called, must compete with about 150 other golfers on Monday to qualify for those precious places in the Thursday starting field.

From the 1965 ATP class, the first instituted, 17 got playing cards. By the end of 1968, they had won a total of $111,000. Three won nearly $10,000 of that: John Sewee, Jim Colbert and Dave Marad. Only Colbert still plays regularly on the tour.

From the 1966 class, 32 got playing privileges. By the end of 1968, their total earnings were $302,000. Again the top three accounted for over half: Bob Lunn, Rives McBee and Australian Bob Stanton. Only 19 from that class are still active, tour players.

From the 1967 class ("a great class," said Harvey), 30 got playing privileges. They won over $423,000 by the end of 1968. The top three, Bob Murphy, Tony Jacklin and Deane Beman, won nearly half of that amount. The next four, Ron Cerrudo, Lee Elder, Bob Smith and Marty Fleckman, won another 120,000. That leaves $80,000 for the other 23. About half of that class of 30 have quit the tour.

In 1968, another class was added by the ATP, the spring session. That group has won $141,000, with Bob Dickson, Mac McLendon and Mike Hill winning $128,000 combined. That leaves $13,000 for the 27 other classmates.

As Beard said, there is money on the pro tour. But not for everyone.

THERE IS big money on the pro tour, but only for some. Tom Weiskopf is one of the outstanding young golfers. But even he has a hard time hanging onto his checks, as is demonstrated above. After winning a recent tournament he received a kiss from his wife Jeanne—and she took the loot.

O.J. Unhappy About Grid Draft

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sitting on the sidelines gives a man some extra time to think.

O.J. Simpson is getting plenty of extra time from Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills, so he's mulling over many things he never gave much thought to before.

Like the professional football draft.

O.J. says he has discovered that some people feel it's contrary to the constitution and anti-trust laws of the land.

Simpson doesn't come right out and declare he feels the same way himself... yet... but he does have this to say about the impasse with Wilson:

"Say I majored in medicine at school, came out a doctor and then the American Medical Association said I had to go to Utah because more doctors are needed in Utah, otherwise couldn't practice. For me, it's turning out to be just the same in football."

Hold on a minute there, O.J.

it's true, doctors are too big and important to make house calls anymore, but name the last doctor you know to demand a $500,000 loan before he'd even take his stethoscope out of the Anyway, I was greatly relieved by Wilson's announcement and he is only $850,000 apart. My heart was in my mouth for awhile. I thought he said 8,500,000...

The Money Rebellion

Speaking of money, Gabe Paul, who had to shell out some to get Kenny Harrelson to play with his Cleveland Indians, doesn't see any rebellious trend developing among players who are traded. He doesn't see it even though it's as plain as the portrait on a $10 bill.

"I don't think it's a rebellion," he says, "I'd characterize it more as an apprehension on the part of the players who are traded. This is nothing new. All you have to do is look back at 1919. The Red Sox traded Babe Ruth to the Yankees but he didn't want to leave Boston. He had just hit 30 home runs and declared his South African buddy, "you'd never think a man like Arnold Palmer would have nerve trouble but it can happen as you get older. It happens to everybody. I feel my nerves are not as good as they used to be."

Can you feel that excitement building?

You should. Howard Hawkins and Webster Smith are getting ready to defend their U.S. championship soon.

Whaddya mean, who are Howard Hawkins and Webster Smith? Hawkins is out of Springfield, Ohio, and Smith from Kissimmee, Fla., and together they make up the U.S. shuffleboard summer doubles championship team.

Which reminds me: whatever became of Arturo Gody, Fanny Blankers-Koen and Dave (Sweetney) Schriner? ...

Don't worry about Brock

Everybody's trying to tell Lou Brock how to snap out of his slump. One guy tells him he's standing too close to the plate, another guy says too far. Brock is polite to them all and doesn't argue.

"I'm standing exactly in the same place I always have in the batter's box," he says. "I didn't change or alter my stance in the slightest. My own thinking is that I tried too hard to jump off to a great start this year. I wanted so much to have a good start. When I didn't, I probably started pressing a little, trying for that extra base hit, and when you press, you don't relax the way you should. I think that's what has been wrong up to now."

Don't worry about Lou Brock. He's like Yaz, Pete Rose, Roberto Clemente and Tony Oliva. Too good a natural hitter to stay in a slump forever...

Ken Still, winner of the Citrus Open, says he has seen most of the baseball players on the golf course and that the longest hitter among them is Mickey Mantle, as is generally supposed, but Sandy Kousser who as a hitter in baseball, was lucky to get one out of the infield.

And in that golf-baseball connection, Ted Williams firmly believes each putt in golf should count a half stroke instead of a full one.

I'm not so sure about that. They don't count a safe base half a hit, do they? But then when wa- the last time Ted Williams ever had anything to do with a bun? ...

The Pittsburgh Pirates look real snazzy traveling around in their golf sports coats, gold-and-black striped ties and black slacks which the club has supplied them.

Two airlines hostesses noticed the Pirates boarding a jet not long ago and one asked the other:

"I wonder who they are?"

"I don't really know," replied the other sweet thing, "but I heard somebody say they were Les and Larry Elgart's orchestra."

DALLAS (UPI)—U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and New Zealand southvaw Bob Charles, stayed in front until Trevino putted their way into a tie for the third round lead in a tie at 207 with Australian Bruce Devlin, who also posted a 34-36.

Bruce Crampton claimed fifth place alone at one under-par 209 with a similar 34-36-70, while young Bert Greene, who held or shared the lead the first two rounds, skidded to a 37-36-73 and slid into a tie at par 210 with Australian new comber Bob Shaw. Shaw had a 34-33-67.

Charles birdied his first hole from 20 feet, the third from four feet, the seventh from 12 feet and then ran into bogey trouble on the 10th and 14th to apparently drop out of a challenging spot. He was short of the green on No. 10 and three-putted the 14th.

Trevino scrambled on the front side. He three-putted the second for a bogey but got it back with a 25-foot putt on the fourth hole. He rolled in a 30-footer for another birdie on the sixth, but promptly lost it on the next hole when he caught a trap.

Beard's putter gave him trouble on the back side as he missed two short birdie putts and three-putted the 12th.

Devlin shook off back-to-back bogeys at the 13th and 14th with brilliant approaches that left him birdie putts of only one and four feet on the 15th and 16th. He had also bogeyed the 10th from a trap and had started the day with the same fate on No. 1. He birdied the second and third, however, from 12 and 2 feet.

The 15th and 16th holes spelled doom for Crampton, who was very much in contention until he double bogeyed the 15th and bogeyed the 16th.

Julius Boros, the PGA champ who had started the third round tied with Charles, Trevino and back of Devlin, Beard and Greene, wound up with a 36-36

Singer Wins Fourth As Dodgers Sail

By United Press International
Bill Singer is determined not to let the loss of Don Drysdale hurt the Los Angeles Dodgers. The pitcher suffered an apparently crushing blow when Drysdale, their right-handed pitching star for more than a decade, was placed on the 21-day disabled list Thursday night.

But Singer seems to have taken up the slack and more. The hard-throwing right-hander, who celebrated his 25th birthday Thursday night, became the first National League pitcher to win four games this season. Friday night when he pitched a four-hitter in Los Angeles' 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Seventh Victory
The victory, the surprising Dodgers' seventh in the last nine games, moved them into first place in the league's Western Division.

Singer allowed doubles to Hank Aaron and Felix Millan and singles to Clete Boyer and Felipe Alou in pitching his second complete game of the year. He outdueled Phil Niekro, the Braves' knuckle ball specialist, also seeking his fourth victory without defeat.

A crowd of 40,751 fans watched the Dodgers take advantage of Niekro's specialty pitch to score their three runs. They snapped his string of 24 scoreless innings in the first when Willie Crawford singled, walk, and scored on a wild pitch.

Atlanta's only run off Singer came in the first when Alou moved up on a ground out and a singled, took third on Aaron's double and scored on Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly.

SERVICES HELD

Weisman died after suffering a heart attack. He was a former television and projects director for the American Football League and sports publicist for the American Broadcast Company.

DALLAS (UPI)—Tom Stincic, the Michigan linebacker who was the third round draft choice of Dallas, signed with the Cowboys. Dallas also signed free agent Russell Webb a center from American International.

Baseball Failing As National Pastime?

NEW YORK (NEA) — Just when baseball was smugly congratulating itself on expanding frontiers across national boundaries and into new (in today's climate it's square to say virgin) territories, along comes a nasty little old polltaker to deliver another whack at the old pastime.

Baseball, said the Harris Survey, has been supplanted by football, with percentage figures to prove it. Football won the title of "America's national pastime" by a score of 31-28, which sounds like a result of a basketball game when they had the old center jump.

"What do they know?" said a man from the baseball commissioner's office. "They're on the profootball payroll to take surveys. They got nothing else to do, they start knocking baseball."

Out at the ball park, the reaction was less vehement. The performers weren't even aware that they'd lost the poll game. Theodore Samuel Williams, once known as The Kid, was in town and willing to act as a spokesman for baseball's attitudes.

"All we need," he said, "is a couple of young guys to take the place of Mantle and Mays. And a good pennant race." Spoken like an eager young Nellie, pitching batting practice, said he wasn't interested in polls. Far as he was concerned, they were for telephones.

Mike Epstein, the young first baseman of the Senators, said it was all news to him. "I haven't read the papers for three days," he said. Afraid he might have to see his batting average. Since Mike once had a clear cut choice of playing football or baseball, it was noted that football is supposed to be more in pace with our times, where slowmoving baseball can be a bit of a drag.

"Socio- psychologically speaking," said Mike, honest-to-goodness, "you may be right. But baseball is an exciting sport for me. Something's happening on every pitch. I watch them

"Then I feel better," said "because I still think we're a nation of spectators who want to see the things we can do ourselves. Man who watches baseball can always play softball. But how many of them can play football? I'm a big auto racing fan myself."

Steve was asked if there were any signs that a big league baseball player is something of a hero in the community (Morehead has a population of 4,170, official census). "Well," he drawled, "speculatively. I guess everybody in town knows me. And I can go to the bank and get a loan just by asking."

The president, v. me bank probably never had to sit through a Sunday doubleheader.

Baylor's Heroics Push LA To 2-0 Playoff Advantage

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—The Los Angeles Lakers had a 2-0 advantage over the Boston Celtics in the teams' National Basketball Association championship series today and Elgin Baylor, an 11-year veteran who never has been on a title team, was the reason.

Baylor sank six free throws in the last 42 seconds Friday night and the Lakers came away with a 118-112 victory over the Celtics.

"I got a little tired in the fourth period, but not real tired," the Laker captain said. "I knew I had to make those free throws but I didn't try to think about them."

Baylor sank six free throws traded in the finals previous times by Bill Russell and the Celtics, had reason to be tired. He scored 18 of his 32 points in the last period including the

Trevino Exempt For US Open

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lee Trevino, the defending U.S. Open champion, three former Open titleholders and four former winners of the PGA title will be totally exempt from qualifying for the 1969 Open to be played June 12-15 at Houston, Tex.

The U.S. Golf Association said Friday Trevino, who won last year's Open at Rochester, N.Y., former champs Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Ken Venturi and former PGA champions Sam Snead, Bobby Nichols, Al Geiberger and Don January are among those totally exempt.

George Archer, winner of this year's Masters, is also exempt. He is exempt from qualifying because he was among the low 15 scorers in the 1968 Open.

Local qualifying begins at 56 locations on May 19 or 20.

Stottlemyre Wins Fifth Game

By United Press International
Reggie Jackson put on another slugging display Friday night but this time he was only hitting baseballs.

Jackson, who hit two homers Thursday and then was ejected from the game when he attacked pitcher Dick Woodson after the Minnesota reliever tossed two pitches over his head, blasted two more homers as the Oakland A's drubbed Seattle 14-2.

But this time the pitchers didn't throw at him and Jackson didn't go charging to the mound. American League President Joe Cronin sent out a warning Friday that the rule against beanballs will be strictly enforced.

First-Inning Homer
Jackson homered in the first inning off Gary Bell for his third consecutive homer, him one short of the major league record of four homes in four straight times at the plate. The string was broken in the fourth inning when he singled in a run but he homered again in the seventh inning to give him four in the 1-1-1-1 two days.

In other American League action, New York drubbed Baltimore, 7-2. Boston nipped Detroit, 5-4. Washington blasted Cleveland, 10-3. Chicago nipped Minnesota, 6-5, and California topped Kansas City, 6-3.

In the National League, Philadelphia edged St. Louis, 5-1. Chicago topped New York, 3-1. Pittsburgh drubbed Montreal, 8-2. Los Angeles beat Atlanta, 3-1. Cincinnati defeated San Diego, 4-1 and San Francisco topped Houston, 12-8, in 13 innings.

Five-Game Winner
Mel Stottlemyre became the first five-game winner in the major leagues as Jimmie Hall hit a solo homer and Joe Peppone socked a two-run blast in the Yanks' win over Baltimore. The Yanks have now scored 32 runs in Stottlemyre's five games and they're giving him the kind of support Denny McLain got last year from the Tigers while winning 31 games. This year the Tigers have been blanked and two of McLain's games and he's 2-3. Jim Hardin, who's 0-3 and has suffered half of the Orioles' six losses, was beaten by Stottlemyre.

Billy Conigliaro, who can't figure out why he's being platooned by Manager Dick Williams, and Mike Andrews slugged back-to-back homers in the fifth inning and the league's top hitter, Rico Petrocelli, added one in the seventh in the Red Sox' win over Detroit. World Series hero Mickey Lolich took the loss and the Tigers aren't exactly showing the same class they did last year.

13th Loss
The Indians suffered their 13th loss in 14 games—and their eighth straight—as Frank Howard drove in four runs with his seventh homer and two singles and Brant Aleya drove in three

The Beta Sigma Phi Sorority 1969 selection for Woman of the Year is a teacher, photographer and writer who has been recognized internationally for her teaching abilities and service to Pampa.

The 1969 choice, Mrs. W.M. (Elaine) Ledbetter, will be honored at 2 p.m. today in the annual Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Woman of the Year Tea at First Christian Church.

A native of Tonkawa, Okla., she was married to William M. Ledbetter in 1942, has been honored by students, magazines, and state, national and international science teachers' associations.

After receiving her Bachelor of Science Degree from University of Oklahoma and Masters of Education Degree from North Texas State University, her special work included studies at Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies Tennessee; University of Arizona and University of California.

Her special fields, general science, biology, chemistry and physics, have led her from teaching positions in Blackwell High School, Blackwell, Okla., Shidler-Webb City High School, Shidler, Okla., to Pampa Public Schools where she is chemistry teacher and head of the Science department of Pampa High School.

Her professional services include the state presidency of Texas science teachers three years, secretary of National Science Teachers Association two years, chairman of NSTA regional conference one year, and chairman, NSTA national convention one year. A member of International Science Fair Advisory Council since 1961, she was NSTA delegate in January to the Association of Science Educators in Bristol, England.

Her published books and articles indicate she is as much at home behind a typewriter as she is mixing chemicals in a science laboratory or photographer's darkroom. Her articles have appeared in "Journal of Educational Research," "The Science Teacher," "Studies in Education" and other educational publications.

In her books she combines poetry and her original photographs and has had two such books published "Triumphant Moment," 1961 and "Candles at Noon," 1966. Two other books published were "Keys to Chemistry," and "Physical Science, a Laboratory Approach," which John A. Marean co-authored.

Mrs. Ledbetter's roll call of honors include the 1961 Pampa Key Club Adult Leader of the Year award, the Outstanding Chemistry Teacher in Texas award, 1965, Texas Teacher of the Year, 1966, Look Magazine National Teacher of the Year Honor Roll, 1966, James Bryant Conant Award, Fifth District, American Chemical Society, 1967, and most recently, the Star Award, for her science teaching skill, which was presented at the NSTA convention in Dallas in March.

Special recognition has been her listing in Who's Who of American Women and the Dictionary of International Biography.

The award today is being given not only for her service as a teacher, but for her community and church service in Pampa. She has served the Scholarship Committee of Gray County Heart Association, helped evaluate project material for Cancer Society, helped organize the Carter Sunday School Class at First Methodist Church and was one of the first teachers. Other church-related service includes

Miss Linda Kay Ladd, Larry Earl Tarvin Exchange Marriage Vows In Pampa's Central Baptist Church

Miss Linda Kay Ladd became the bride of Larry Earl Tarvin in an evening marriage ceremony in Central Baptist Church April 10. Rev. T.O. Upshaw, pastor, officiated for the double-ring wedding service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dale Ladd, 1718 Williston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lige E. Tarvin, 400 Powell.

BRIDE
The bride was dressed in a formal gown of silk organza with long sleeves bordered with daisies around the collar, yoke, sleeves and hemline. The silk organza was worn over a fitted satin-skimmer. Her chapel train of illusion was accented with daisies and a daisy border, and fastened to the bodice with a satin bow.

Her "something borrowed" was a handkerchief belonging to her grandmother. She wore a blue garter and two pennies in her shoe with her birth date and that of the bridegroom.

The wedding veil was three tiers of imported French illusion attached to a tiara of silk organza and Venice lace encrusted with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

ATTENDANTS

Bridal attendants were Miss Dee Ann Mathis, maid of honor; Miss Regina Ladd, the bride's sister and Miss Connie Ladd, bride's cousin as bridesmaids and her mother and bridegroom's mother as special attendants.

Attendants wore identical costumes—A-line short dresses of red stardust crepe with square necklines and three-quarter-length sleeves with flounce trimmed in matching lace. Their headpieces were red crepe bows and illusion.

Mrs. Charles Parr played traditional wedding music. The ceremony was performed amid background of seven-branched candelabra entwined with salal foliage. Floor baskets of white gladiolas and chrysanthemums completed the decorations. Pews of honor were noted with white satin bows. An arrangement of white stocks and red carnations in a tall crystal and silver compote decorated the bridal table.

RECEPTION

Music for the reception in Central Baptist Church Fellowship Hall was provided by Mrs. Charles Parr. The serving table was decorated with white net over a white cloth. An arrangement of white stocks and red carnations in a tall crystal and silver compote decorated the bridal table.

Dietitians Attend State Convention

Area dietitians attending the convention of the Texas Dietetic Association in San Antonio recently were Mrs. Jack Ware of North Plains Hospital, Borger; Mrs. D. V. Hayter of Highland General Hospital, Pampa and Mrs. Paul Burt of Northwest Texas Hospital, Amarillo. Because members of the American Dietetic Association recently voted to become registered through a constitutional amendment, much of the meeting was devoted to registration structure and how one obtains approval for registration hours. The association requires members keep up through continuing education, especially urging members to go on to advanced degrees. No set amount of time has been required. If a member chooses to become registered as well as being a member of the association he must have 75 clock hours of continuing education each five years to keep this registration up. Various activities will count different numbers of hours with the obtaining of either a master's or doctorate degree counting the entire number of hours. New Texas Dietetic Association officers to be installed in the Fall will be Patricia Calmes, Houston, president; Marjorie Manning, Temple (See DIETITIANS, Page 17) Wedding Slated CANADIAN (Spl) — M. By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm the kind of wife who tells her husband everything. And I am married to the kind of son who tells his mother everything. Well, his mother has a big mouth, and she's the kind of woman who tells everybody everything, so now everyone in town knows all my personal business. How do you suggest I go about getting Friend Husband to keep his trap shut? Or maybe I should tell his mother to keep hers shut.

DEAR NO: I have a better idea. Why not simplify things and keep yours shut?

DEAR ABBY: I have it on very good authority that up until about 50 years ago it was the custom for Eskimo women to leave their villages just before their babies were due, go off by themselves, and give birth all alone.

This seems to be a very barbaric practice, and I can't figure out the reason for it. I know it is true because someone who has lived above the Arctic Circle for more than 50 years told me this himself.

What are the facts?

DEAR CURIOUS: The facts (as obtained for me from Mr. Robert B. Atwood, my esteemed friend and editor and publisher of the Anchorage Daily Times) are: "No one has any proof that such a custom ever existed."

Father John P. Fox, a Catholic priest, who has spent 30 years in the Arctic Circle stated:

Once, 43 years ago I knew a young Eskimo woman who left her village to have her child alone. The reason. She was 19, unmarried and did not want anyone to know of her disgrace. She had been running around with a native trader who had three wives. The baby apparently died at birth or shortly after, and was hidden somewhere out on the tundra by the young mother. That is the only such case I have never heard of.

"That so-called 'custom' is in a class with the 'wife-swapping' stories one hears about the Eskimos, and the practice of 'loaning' one's wife to a guest. An occasional drunken native may have used his friend's wife, but that would hardly make it a custom."

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine has owed me $100 for a very long time. I have had no success in collecting even a part of it, so I decided to get even with him. I borrowed his library card and checked out an arm load of magazines, from which I tore all the articles I wanted.

On one of my visits to the library, I met a young librarian for whom I fell very hard. He was most attentive at first, and

I know he was about to ask me out when he learned of my vandalism. Since then he has been very cold and unfriendly. Should I explain to him the circumstances, or what?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: What could you "explain"? Your childish retaliation trick? I doubt if the young librarian would feel that your vandalism was justified. Putting another further into debt is a strange way of collecting what is owed you.

DEAR ABBY: I received a telephone call the other evening. A woman with a pleasant voice asked me for my name, so of course I let her talk. She said she could not tell me who she was, but she thought I should know that my husband was stepping out with a woman he works with.

It would have really upset me terribly except that I'm not married!

Continue to tell your readers to pay no attention to nuts who make anonymous phone calls.

Altrusans Evaluate 1969 Career Clinic

At the noon luncheon April 14, the Altrusa Club met in the Crown and Shield Room of the Coronado Inn. Mrs. M. Q. Wilson, president, presided, leading the club in the Altrusa Blessing, the introduction of guests.

Mrs. Gertrude Barber, introduced Mrs. Wilene Pate; Mrs. Lillian Snow introduced her sister, Mrs. F. D. Savage from Dallas, and Mrs. Floyd Yeager from Tucson, Ariz.

Mrs. Dick Sullins introduced Mary Bearden, Altrusa Girl for March, who introduced Marsha Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill W. Ellis, who is April Altrusa Girl. Marsha is a member of the Concert Choir, Student Council, French Club, Future Teachers of America and a member of the Central Baptist Church.

Miss Evelyn Mason read an invitation letter from the Borger Altrusa Club for their Awards Dinner. These awards are to people who have been outstanding to the community in some special way, and recommended for the awards by the general public.

Other correspondence was of a new Altrusa Club in Walnut Creek, Calif. Mrs. Fred Weeks, Vocational Services Chairman, announced an April meeting of this committee in the home of Mrs. Irl Smith.

Mrs. C. C. Fitzgerald, vice president, requested the new incoming officers, committee chairman and all Altrusans that could, to attend the Leadership Training Seminar in Odessa, April 26-27.

Mrs. Dick Sullins introduced the program, Evaluation of Career Clinic. Teddy Trice, sophomore representative, the first speaker, said 1200 students participated in the round table discussions with 60 consultants.

Linda Sadler, junior student, said at the next year's clinic, she planned to attend Speech and Music round table discussions and she wanted to be a speech teacher. Linda mentioned Mrs. Joe Daniels of Travis' Elementary School as one of the consultants who gave qualifications which would contribute to being a good teacher.

Mary Bearden, senior representative, thanked the Altrusa Club for their part in making the Career Clinic possible, and she felt it was beneficial in helping students to choose their vocation in life.

Mary stated she had attended six round table discussions the last three years. One this year was on law, led by Gene Martindale, attorney. Mary said "It was important to choose the right career, and not the wrong career. Career is exactly what a person makes it. Seniors participate the most. A question and answer session followed on how the Career Clinic might be improved."

Mrs. Sullins concluded the program by reading a letter from the National Association of Secondary School Principals, Washington, D.C., addressed to Steve Bossay, Editor-in-Chief, The Little Harvester, Pampa High School, which reads: "We have just read the March 14 issue of The Little Harvester, which describes Pampa High School's Career Clinics. We are impressed both by the clinic and by your newspaper's coverage of it. In fact, we would like to see the clinic reported in Student Life Highlights, the official newsletter of the Na-

Miss Carolyn Hudson Exchanges Vows With Sidney R. Stout III

In an evening candlelight ceremony recently in the St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Miss Carolyn Jean Hudson became the bride of Sidney Robert Stout III with Rev. Sam Hulsey officiating for the exchange of double-ring vows.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Hudson, 1936 Fir, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Robert Stout II, Amarillo.

BRIDE

The bride chose a pearly and scalloped chantilly lace formal length gown. An oval neckline accentuated the yoke redingote front revealing a definite "A Line" rayon organza gown. The lace cage effect swept to a wattleau chapel train. The headpiece was a three-tiered shoulder-length silk rolled illusion.

The bridal bouquet was of rose buds and lilies of the valley carried on her bible.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Leonard R. Hudson attended her sister-in-law as matron of honor. Mrs. Hudson wore a floor-length gown of chiffon in a soft coral featuring an Empire line and wore fresh flowers in her hair.

Ernest R. Finney Jr. of Lubbock served as best man. Ushers were Leonard Hudson, brother of the bride, and Eddie Collum. Chip Taylor served as the Acolyte assisting Rev. Sam Hulsey.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. J. S. Skelly of Pampa. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hudson wore a soft lime green silk linen dress. Mrs. Stout wore a soft coral crepe dress.

Vows were repeated by an arrangement of a double candlelabrum and two arrangements of a Spring bouquet. The spring bouquets were of roses, daisies, daffodils, and lilies of the valley.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Corley, Sprio, Okla., and Mrs. Carolyn Brown, Mt. Vernon, Ill., were among the out-of-town guests. The grandparents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hollingsworth, Amarillo, and Mrs. Lucille Stout, Amarillo, were able to attend.

The wedding register was attended by Miss Toni Hudson, Spearman, a cousin of the bride.

RECEPTION

The reception was held at the Pampa Club immediately following the wedding. The bride's cake was attended by Mrs. Jack S. Amrey, aunt of the bride, from Holdenville, Okla. The bridegroom's cake was attended by his sister from Amarillo, Miss Candy Stout.

Mr. and Mrs. Stout, bridegroom's parents, were hosts for the wedding rehearsal dinner at the Pampa Club. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Finney Sr., Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Finney Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wicker, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Amrey, Mrs. Carolyn Brown, Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Taylor and Chip Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard R. Hudson, the bride's parents and bridegroom's parents, Candy Stout, Larry Rhea and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Collum.

The couple planned a short trip to Red River, N.M. before the bridegroom joined the U.S. Saratoga.

A luncheon was given by Mrs. R. C. Sidwell and Mrs. C. R. Hoover at the Pampa Club March 22. Among the guests from Amarillo were Mrs. Lucille Stout, Mrs. W. Hollingsworth, Mrs. James Hayatt, Mrs. Paul Tabor, Mrs. Johnny Austin and Mrs. Kevin Kay.

The center of the table was decorated with three candlelabra and arrangement of daisies. The bride wore a blue and white polka dot dress. Mrs. Hudson wore a lime green dress. Mrs. Stout wore a soft blue suit.

Business, Professional Women Sponsor Social

"Families Are Forever," was the theme of the program given at the April social of the Business and Professional Women's Club in the City Club Room, recently with Mrs. Flossie Weatherford as chairman.

Mrs. Hazel Robertson, narrator said "Forever is a long, long time. Families, too, are of long duration spanning the eons of history, spanning all the years of a lifetime. The major functions of every family are to transmit from generation to generation not only the physical heritage from families, but the cultural heritage from families and the society as a whole. In addition, families are responsible for the development of healthy personalities in children toward rich and effective maturity and for the maintenance of healthy personalities in adult family members."

Mrs. Robertson shared a Blue Ribbon Recipe, made up of three parts. "The first part is Home: two parts love one part confidence, one part courage and one part security. Add a dash of humor, flavor with joy, then season with consideration, respect, and pride.

"The second part is church: One large square of sincerity two heaping cups vision and three full measures of faith. "Sift these ingredients until a smooth even texture results. The last part is school: three cups practical knowledge; two parts ambition and one full measure of self-reliance. "Fold in two parts wisdom. Stir constantly until the ingredients blend. Combine all three mixtures. Add equal portions of active citizenship and free enterprise. Be sure these ingredients are fresh, crisp and of the highest quality, since the success of this recipe largely depends upon them.

"Place this mixture in the container of freedom and warm in oven of Understanding. When dish appears ready, cool and cover entirely with a smooth blend of happiness, peace and contentment, she said.

After the program, the group sang "America The Beautiful" and "America," and repeated the Pledge of Allegiance. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Pearl Castka. Mrs. Nell Tinnin

Pampa Panhellenic Members Plan Annual Tea For PHS Senior Girls

The Informational Tea for graduating senior girls and their mothers given annually by Pampa Panhellenic will be held at 3 p.m. May 4, in the Hospitality Room of Citizens Bank and Trust Company. "Every girl who is planning to go to college should take this opportunity to learn about the various aspects of sorority membership," Mrs. J.G. Morrison, Panhellenic president, said. "Advantages, costs, and rules pertaining to rush and the methods used by chapters to become acquainted with prospective members will be discussed."

As every active chapter requests a picture accompany a recommendation, it will be helpful if each girl will bring eight billfold size pictures with her to be placed in the master file for use of those recommending her, she said.

To insure information is available to the sororities, Panhellenic requests a card be filled out for the Master File before a girl will be recommended from Pampa. Each girl will need to know her SAT and ACT scores her four year grade point average, rank in class, honors and activities. Mrs. Melvin Dennis, Gamma Phi Beta, Panhellenic vice-president has charge of the Master File and will discuss recommendation rules and requirements at the tea.

"Invitations will be given to every graduating senior girl at school. Both she and her mother are invited to attend. Area senior girls are also invited to attend, particularly those residing in the eastern part of the Panhandle," Mrs. Morrison said.

The Only Real Foreign Aid

The foreign aid problem is being raised again. Some people are saying there should be more of the federal tax payer's money taken from him to be sent to lands where people are less fortunate.

There's an increasing number who believe there should be less foreign aid. Only a couple of years ago, one of the principal advocates of the aid program in Congress admitted that if it were left to a vote of the people there would be none at all.

The Nixon administration has inherited the mess that is foreign aid, and will be criticized regardless of what it does. Since Nixon and the crew around him are pragmatists, they are cognizant of the fact that the United States has failed to buy friends around the world with its government-to-government programs. Yet, if they propose to cut out the international handouts they will lose support from the internationalist crowd whose support Mr. Nixon seems to court.

One solution which has been coming up of late is for more "multilateral aid," which would be channeled through such international institutions as the United Nations and its agencies. We can see no value to handling more tax money to the bankrupt and useless U.N., other than the slight possibility that perhaps those receiving the aid would blame the aid failures on the international organization instead of on the United States.

However, we suspect that would be a forlorn hope, since the inclination of the "have nots" to blame the "haves" seems endless, regardless of who's dispensing largesse. The trouble is that the United States is moving toward the "have not" stage, what with its multi-billion-dollar budget deficits year after year after year.

It's cumulative deficits since World War II are somewhat comparable to the amount of tax funds which have been funneled into the international welfare program called foreign aid. One proposal which has been heard increasingly of late is that U.S. private enterprise be encouraged to become more deeply involved in the developing lands. Some congressmen are proposing that the federal government provide greater guarantees against loss in foreign lands. The Wall Street Journal urges instead that it would be better if the poorer nations made such losses less likely by stabilizing currencies and by some sort of guarantee against those nations expropriating property of the Americans who invest in the foreign lands.

We suggest the best sort of real foreign aid is that involving people and not government. Therefore, if the United States wants to encourage foreign lands—and incidentally to enhance the opportunities for peace—it should do everything it can to encourage—but not subsidize—trade between free individuals of all nations.

The United States should start eliminating tariff barriers and import quotas and eliminate restrictions on Americans seeking to invest their funds abroad. If people are free to trade and invest their own funds where they desire, they will be building up good-will all over the world.

The people will become so interdependent that they cannot afford to go to war, nor will they want to destroy their customers. As Bastiat said, where goods are not permitted to cross national borders, soldiers will. Trade between free individuals is the only kind of foreign aid.

Rail Featherbedding Again

The threat of featherbedding is back to plague the nation's railroads. If the leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen succeed with their featherbedding plans it will cost the railroads—and the consuming public—almost $200 million a year.

almost $200 million a year. The railroad firemen are a vital member of the engine crew. He was kept busy tending the fire and watching boiler controls. But the need for firemen ended with the coming of the diesel locomotive which, like the diesel engines of trucks and buses, is fed fuel automatically and has no boiler controls to watch.

However, by the time diesels began to replace steam locomotives, the so-called "national Diesel Agreement" already was in effect and firemen's jobs were protected by contract—even though they had no fires to tend and no duties whatever to perform on diesels in freight and yard service.

It took years of agonizing efforts by the railroads—and ultimately an act of Congress—to bring about modernization of work rules designed to correct this situation.

Following the threat of a nation-wide strike in 1963, a special arbitration board authorized by Congress looked into the role of firemen in modern railroading and concluded that the need for them on some freight and yard diesels had disappeared. The board permitted eventual elimination of all but 10 per cent of the regular firemen assignments on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service.

Over the next few years, the railroads reduced the number of firemen by 18,000, exercising extreme care in attempting to minimize adverse effects in each case. Many fireman jobs were not filled when they became vacant due to death or retirement. Comparable jobs were provided for a number of

The first machine to convert the energies available in nature into mechanical energy was the water mill, invented by the Greeks about the 11th century B.C. The ancient water mill was the prototype for all other engines that convert running water, wind, coal, petroleum, uranium and sunlight into usable mechanical energy.

THE HAIR GENERATION

Dr. Bob Stein, the sane man's psychiatrist, called me the other day about having dinner but I missed him, and more's the pity. I wanted to get the poop on Hair.

I don't mean the dirty play. I mean the kind of hair which young men grow on their necks, chops and jowls. I figured Bob would have the straight stuff on the subject. I suppose young men in Lincoln, which is in Nebraska, grow hair the way they do in California and Texas and North Carolina. The Mexicans—and this may surprise you—are on an anti-hair kick. A kid with a mop hanging over his collar and down over his eyes can't get over the border. In the State of Tamaulipas, they grab the little noodnik and march him, under guard, to the nearest barbershop where the sheep shears are applied. I have never heard of a Civil Rights suit filed down there, either. LeRoi.

Anyway, Bob Stein, the last time I talked with him, had almost a gloomy attitude toward the future of the human race; but I suppose when you sit around all day and half the night listening to crazies you get to wondering if all the corkscrews are not twisted wrong. We didn't get onto the subject of hair that night because, as I recall, the hostess said it was time to eat and knock off the chit-chat.

There has got to be some deep psychological aspect to this hair business. Are the young men trying to prove something, and if so, what? Surely a straggly beard must be uncomfortable; and Lord knows how a young lady could abide kissing those brooms. Are they hiding? Are they proving their manhood? (Girls grow hair clean down to their mini's, so what does that prove?)

My own expert in the Hair Generation is uncharacteristically reticent to explain it to me, and I rather suspect that everybody grows long hair because everybody does. There is no conformist like a non-conformist, and there is good reason to suspect that every tube Pepsodent makes comes off the machine thinking it is a rugged individualist, thumping its nose at the middle-aged code.

Thing is, someday a bright young kid—probably majoring in public relations and flacking an underground paper—will wake up to the fact that the way to be a non-conformist here is to shave off all his hair and paint a bull's-eye on the point of his head. In a week they'll be working three shifts at the barbershops and the real cool cats will shave their eyebrows besides.

The parents will loathe and despise this new style; and the Old Man will tell the kid if he doesn't grow a respectable crop of hair between now and Maundy Thursday (look it up), he need not come home for Easter.

Me, I have a 100 per cent middle-aged-type prejudice against Abundant Hair on the Male Issue; but that is where I part company with most of my Geritol compadres. I think the present clutch of young people is the most stimulating (and stimulated) in the history of the world. They are sharp; they are keen; they are uncertain. They know more than any generation before them, but they haven't any idea what to do with what they know. In this they are not distinctive. We all spend our lives wondering at the significance of all the truck and clutter which makes up our bag. We all try to do our thing in some acceptable way. Some live out their lives in that quiet desperation and others fight life as if it were a contract in seven no-trump. The kids today—I don't know. Maybe we never had it so good, but we never had it so bad, either. I sort of think they'll middle through and start wondering about THEIR kids pretty soon. The more things change, the more they remain the same.

I just made that up, but you can quote it.

Korean Retaliation? — Russell Wants Ship Seizure Weighed

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON— Despite President Nixon's calm official reaction to North Korea's downing of our EC-121 reconnaissance plane, retaliatory measures are still under discussion here.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, Georgia's influential Democrat, is urging careful consideration of one such step. Russell thinks the United States could seize North Korea's new and elaborate fish processing ship, much as the Pueblo was seized by North Korea, in international waters.

The cannery vessel was built for North Korea in a Dutch shipyard and was recently reported enroute to North Korea. It is designed to operate far from its homeland, much as the Soviet factory ships which service Russian fishing fleets off the coasts of the United States and Canada. A second cannery ship is being built for the North Koreans in Holland.

Russell is now the senior U.S. senator in point of service. In January he shifted from the chairmanship of the Senate Armed Services Committee to become chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and he still heads the Military Appropriations subcommittee. His suggestions are seldom ignored in high government councils.

It was at Russell's persistent urging that the Pentagon finally took the battleship New Jersey from the mothball fleet and sent it to provide fire support for U.S. forces in Vietnam. Ironically, the New Jersey has now been assigned to support the U.S. fleet units which are providing protection for the resumed reconnaissance flights while cruising in the Sea of Japan.

Russell is well aware of the problems which could arise if the United States were to move against one of the North Korean cannery ships on the high seas. He feels, however, that the advantages of such an action, in the wake of the Pueblo and EC-121 incidents, could outweigh the disadvantages.

"I would hope our government would explore it fully," the senator says. ACT OF WAR — The first of the North Korean cannery ships, then under construction in Holland, figured in speculation about possible retaliation immediately after the Pueblo seizure. Such retaliatory seizure, even in international waters, would be an act of war.

North Korea's actions against the Pueblo and the spy plane were acts of war, too, in this context, but such provocations do not justify such a response in the antiseptic eyes of international law. That is one of the problems involved in a retaliatory seizure.

More important, for President Nixon and his aides, is the possibility of moves by North Korea against the 56,000 U.S. troops now stationed in South Korea. Such a counter to seizure of a North Korean vessel would not be beyond that

Ex-Marxist Cites Goofs by North Korea Soldiers

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

SEOUL, Korea (NEA) — The failure of North Korea's November 150-man raid on South Korea's eastern coast has more than usual significance. North Korea's strongman, Kim Il Sung, modeled his new tactics after those of Ho Chi Minh in Vietnam. The elements contributing to this and other recent Kim failures may indicate it may not be so easy for other Communist leaders to successfully copy Ho's tactics.

When things begin to go wrong, as they have for Kim Il Sung in South Korea recently, even a Marxist as skilled as he may begin to make serious blunders. This may have application in South Vietnam, where Ho himself has of late run into a number of as yet unpublicized problems which may shake him as badly as Kim has been hit.

To get a Communist tactician's analysis of why the November coastal raids went sour, this reporter talked with a man who had been a leading Marxist theoretician and senior instructor on the theory and practice of infiltration in North Korea's top agent-training school.

The following parentheses relate the failures of the commandos. The quotations mark the analysis of this Marxist theoretician.

1—(When things began to go wrong for the team, they threatened the villagers, killed ordinary farmers and even children to get their way.)

"The organization of the team was not good at all. The group was made up of 150 men in their early 20s. To be sure, there was a political commissar along. But he was so inexperienced that he could not really be called a political commissar. What best illustrates the inexperience of the commissar and the team was the killing of the farmers and children when they could not find officials and police to threaten. This won the enemies, not cooperation."

2—(The maps carried by the infiltrators were inaccurate. Hamlets were incorrectly located. The information on these hamlets was wrong.)

"An operating intelligence net and a supply base well-stocked with ammunition and supplies should have been established before sending down the 150 men."

3—(South Korean troops moved in within hours after the infiltrators entered the area. They were killed, captured or forced to a frozen death in the mountain snows.)

"The selection of the area to be infiltrated was disadvantageous because it was easy of access by South Korean forces. To make such a team effective, there should have been diversionary tactics to thin out the troops available for searching for the 150 men. The North Koreans should have heated up the demilitarized zone

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Spying Necessary Business

By PAUL HARVEY

There's nothing new about espionage. Since a harlot hid behind the curtains in Jericho, men of all nations have sought to keep a clandestine eye on potential enemies.

Today, with orbiting satellites and sophisticated electronic devices, surveillance of neighbors is possible from a considerable distance.

How much is enough distance? Once upon a time it was believed that freedom of the seas ended within three miles of any nation's shoreline. With improved weapons, that territorial limit was extended to 12 miles out.

Recently, North Koreans seized one of our surveillance ships and shot down one of our "spy planes" more than 50 from their shores.

Americans are proud, instinctively indignant when a pip-squeak fourth-rate power sticks a thumb in our eye.

But if we intend to continue to engage in espionage, we are going to have to learn to accept the risks involved in such missions — as the crews of those ships and planes do themselves accept that risk.

We have all allowed ourselves to become emotionally wrought up over the indignity of unwon dead-end wars such as those in Korea and Vietnam. Thus unnerved, we are ill-prepared to keep a "Pueblo incident" in proper perspective.

For that reason the men sitting in judgment on Comdr. Lloyd Bucher and his crew have already decided that their own careers are finished as a result of this experience.

No matter which way they judge, the judges are finished. As a result, at least two of them have indicated they expect to retire in June.

Military traditionalists are immovable in their insistence that Bucher and his crew should have "gone down with the ship."

On the other hand, our more recent tendency toward leniency and compassion toward wrongdoing, per se, has diluted some of the old traditions — perhaps destroyed them.

Now we are inclined to temper what should be done with what is practical. Now we are inclined to reject many of the old absolutes in the interests of political expediency.

Also, with a position of cataclysmic, potentially terminal power comes an awesome obligation to act with restraint. As State Secretary William Rogers put it, "The weak can be rash; the powerful must be restrained."

President Nixon has prescribed armed escort for future surveillance missions. He says the safety of our 56,000 men stationed in South Korea would be jeopardized without the intelligence these missions can provide.

Our President's restrained re- and hit a number of scattered points along the long coastline with feints.

"The 30 teams should not have infiltrated together. That was certain to attract wide notice."

4—(Each team member carried 20,000 to 30,000 won — 75 to $10 — in counterfeit South Korean currency.)

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT

A mother writes that her daughter, age 1, wakes up crying loudly three or four times every night. She has tried ignoring it, holding the child and giving her milk or water but nothing seems to help. This has been going on since the child was 5 months old. She is otherwise happy and healthy.

Going to sleep when put to bed, then waking up crying, usually starts with a bad cold, earache or teething but when it persists for seven months or more it is a habit aimed at getting attention. If you can be sure the child isn't cold, hungry, thirsty or in pain it is best to ignore the crying. This will be rough for a few nights but she will soon learn that nothing is to be gained by these outbursts and she will stop. The ignoring must be complete—no peeking into her room and no talking to her by you or your husband while the crying is going on.

Q—My grandson, 3 1/2, cries every night when he is put to bed. His mother lets him cry himself to sleep but sometimes this takes two or three hours. How can she get him to go to sleep without crying?

A—This boy has developed an exaggerated fear of separation, probably as a result of some earlier experience. Children who have been brought up in a household with several persons in addition to their parents are less likely to fall into this behavior pattern. A child of 3 1/2 is old enough to be reasoned with. His mother should explain to him that she will be there in the morning, well and happy and ready to start a new day with him but that for now he'd best go right to sleep without any fuss. She should then quietly leave the room and let him cry if he feels he must. She should ask him in the morning what his reason was for crying and give him further reassurance.

Q—My daughter, age 13 months, has mucus in her stools whether they are formed or loose. Sometimes there is blood also. Where does the mucus come from? Should I have her stools examined?

A—Inflammation of the mucous lining of the bowel will stimulate the production of a blood could be caused by a thick stool, amebic dysentery or ulcerative colitis. A thorough examination to determine the cause of the trouble should be made without delay.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Your story isn't very vile and vulgar, but I'm going to stick my neck out and use it anyway!"

Tasteful Nudity On Broadway

By LEE MUELLER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Every night in a Broadway theater on 7th Street, a dozen or so young men and women lie on the stage and undress beneath what appears to be a long muslin sheet. Then, as the orchestra plays something appropriate for slipping off of tablecloths, the cast of "Hair" rises and stands — jaybird naked — before its audience.

The patrons stiffen momentarily, blink and then nod absently to show their sophisticated upbringing. "That's what I call tasteful nudity," gulps a man in a tuxedo.

People never gulped like that when Gypsy Rose Lee walked offstage back in the 1930s and '40s. No sir. People whistled. In class burlesque houses like the Republic, the Irving Place and the 42nd Street Apollo, men in tuxedos stood and applauded as though they had just heard Caruso sing in "Rigoletto." As perhaps the most famous strip-tease produced by burlesque, Miss Lee was more tease than strip. She winked, she sang scurrilous ditties and she looked absolutely scrumptious, but all her audience ever saw was a flash of flesh as she sidled off to the wings.

There were more basic, less scrupulous characters, in burlesque in those days, to be sure, but none emotely challenged the attention-on-stage nudity gets today. The human body has not been so discussed since the invention of the bustle.

Now 54, Gypsy Rose Lee is amused at the uproar, sort of. "I don't think people are seeing anything the world didn't know about," she says, smirking. "It's just that now, suddenly, people are talking about it."

As a stripper, Miss Lee — Louise Hovick to her mother — absorbed much of the lusty atmosphere that went with the business. Her conversation is laced with exclamatory "What the hells" and other sundry oaths. She is not shy and, certainly, she is not dimb.

Indeed, if Gypsy was not the greatest stripper ever, she has to be the most intelligent. While girls like energetic Georgia Sothorn, the tassel girls, Rose La Rose and Mimi ("I'm more scarlet than Scarlett O'Hara") Lynne faced into the sunset Gypsy Rose Lee stuck around, wrote a best-seller, "The G-String Murders," and then scored with her autobiography, "Gypsy," which became a Broadway hit and movie.

Today she is a respected member of the Hollywood community in Beverly Hills where she lives with two peacocks, 11 Chinese hair less dogs, numerous gold fish and several lizards.

These days, she endorses things like the National Water Institute's clean waters contest. "All those poor baby seals being killed by the oil slicks and being washed up on Monterey Beach," she fumes. "Now what the hell good can there be in that?"

Animals, obviously, are important to Gypsy. Now her pet projects include a trip to England with her Chinese hairless this year to win dog shows and get the American Kennel Club to recognize the breed.

"They're recognized in England," she says. "I was up all night last night with one which was having puppies. All dogs have pups at night, you know. Boy, my eyes feel like they're out on sticks."

Largest fish ever caught by rod and reel was a 2,664-pound man-eating great white shark caught off Australia in 1959.

A Modest Jack Paar, Slimmer, Younger Now

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor
NEW YORK (NEA) — He was never overweight, but now, with 30 pounds removed as incentive for his daughter, he is positively lean and looks younger than ever.

Although one of the most controversial figures in — or out of — television because, as someone who knows him well says, "he can only be honest," he is easy to talk to, pleasant, has a vast fund of knowledge and possesses a childlike enthusiasm for the world and its foibles.

He's Jack Paar, nervous, emotional, prompt, witty and concerned.

"You don't have to write all this down," he says at the beginning of the interview. "I talk endlessly, but I don't say anything until the end."

Jack says something every time he opens his mouth. Whether he is talking about his daughter, Randy, an honor student at Radcliffe, or his pride of — and in — lions on his forthcoming NBC-TV special, Jack Paar in Africa, set for May 1 his 51st birthday.

Jack, his wife Miriam and Randy, went to Uganda and Kenya where they shot all the film "with the exception of a few shots taken by another cameraman. When I edited the show I realized there are no shots of the three of us together because one of us was always taking the pictures."

When he discusses Kenya, Jack hastens to explain that his pronunciation — Ken ya — is not an affectation but the way they pronounce it over there. Ken-ya, more often heard, is the British version.

Since he left his chores as host of Tonight, Jack says, "I have had a few offers. No, I'm being modest. I have had offers."

But he has no desire to get back into the daily TV grind. "Somehow I have blocked out so much of those days. I have a vague recollection of having done five shows a week for five years. Now I'm busier than ever. I can't wait to get up in the morning."

When Paar left Tonight, he is supposed to have been making less money than the starting salary given Johnny Carson. In all his problems with the network, money was never an issue.

"I don't have to make the most money in the world," he says.

If Paar wanted, he could have his choice of networks and his choice of shows. He's one of the few names in the business that everyone talks about and listens to.

But he prefers traveling, taking along his family and making an occasional appearance on a special.

"I've always wanted just to quit, to stay home to read, paint and travel.

"This show is like no other done on Africa. There is no hokum, all the myths about animals are debunked and it's probably the fastest moving documentary ever done. There are lots of interesting new facts. They were new to me and I question if many others know them, since this is my sixth trip there."

Africa is a land of contrasts, which appeals to Paar. "They've jumped centuries and gone from footpaths to jet travel. It's a common sight to get on a modern American jet and find as fellow passengers women bare to the waist feeding their babies.

"They have TV, but won't allow violence. Bonanza, which was very popular and which certainly isn't violent, was canceled. They are not opposed to violence on moral grounds, they just don't want to give the people ideas on how to overthrow the government."

JUDO CLASS The judo class meeting last Thursday night was honored to have Mr. Tim Jo of the Amarillo School of Judo Present. Mr. Jo brought several of his friends with him and they assisted in the instruction period. Our instructor Paul Moot and coach Sam Moot were very pleased with the response.

The judo classes meet on Monday and Thursday nights from 7-8:30 in the Center recreation hall. This class is open to all males 8 yrs. of age or older. Those interested should come by one of these nights and talk with Paul Moot.

MEMBERSHIPS The participation at the Center this year has been tremendous. More memberships have been sold than ever before and our program continues to grow with the addition of a new health club and handball courts. Members of the Center will have an opportunity to join the health club when it is finished.

Participation at the Center is by memberships - are daily fee. It is more economical to purchase a membership. There is the individual membership for persons 8 years of age or older which costs $8 per year or $5 for six months. The other membership is our family one which includes all members of the immediate family. This sells for $20 per year or $12 for six months.

To purchase any of these memberships you need only come by the Center's reception desk, pay your dues and membership cards will be issued. Membership is open to Pampans and persons living within a 15 mile radius of Pampa. Others must be approved by the Board.

It is estimated there are 91 Buddhist churches in the United States, with a membership of about 110,000.

our office has been busy working on our yearly financial report for the Pampa United Fund Budgets and Admissions Committee. We do not have the date for this meeting but we are hoping to be ready this year. The committee for Funds for the Red Cross is made up of the following persons, James McCauley, Fund Chairman, Bill Kindie, Treasurer, and the chapter Chairman, John S. Skelly. These three will meet with the UF committee when it is called.

Remember the registration date for the Summer Swim Program this year. Registration for the Youth Center Pool will be Friday May 16th at the Patio of the United Methodist Church from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Please plan to register at this time as it makes so much work for our secretary when you come to our office to register. You interrupt her work and this means she will have to work after hours.

The 10 layettes made for us by the Puthian Sisters were sent to the U.S.A.F. Hospital at the K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base, Michigan. The layettes were lovely and we know will make some service family very happy.

The pillow tops made by the Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club were mailed to the Veterans Administration Hospital, Temple, Texas for the day room. The new pillow tops will brighten up the day room for the patients. Thanks again for your continued help to Red Cross.
