Hanoi Says U.S. Dealt Heavy Losses

President Assures South Vietnamese

SAIGON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers flew into Saigon today with orders from President Nixon to "explore in depth" ways to hasten the end of the war and send the GIs home.

In an airport news conference, he assured South Vietnam that the United States would stand fast in its basic objective—"The establishment of conditions which assure that the people of South Vietnam can determine their own future unconditionally."

This means, Rogers said, "That the decision must not be imposed, in whole or in part, by outside forces. It must be made by a process which permits the people of South Vietnam their own choice."

Rogers' mission was to meet with President Nguyen Van Thieu, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and other top South Vietnamese and American officials to get their views on how to stop the fighting. "The President has directed me to explore in depth with President Thieu how we and our Allies can most effectively move forward from the present position further in the direction of peace," he said.

Bunker today met for the third time in three days with Thieu and then headed to Tan Son Nhut Airport with the American military commander, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, to meet the secretary of state.

Rogers' son, Navy Ensign Jeffery Rogers, 23, a navigator aboard the hospital ship Repose, also was on hand.

Rogers' arrival on his first visit to the war zone coincided with the departure from Paris of U.S. peace negotiator, for Washington to brief Nixon before the President's speech on the "prospects for peace" tonight.

Rogers said the four-day stay in Vietnam would give him "the occasion to describe the policies of the new administration in Washington in person to the top leaders of the Republic of Vietnam and get their views first hand."

Rogers' wife accompanied him on the trip but will head for Bangkok Thursday. Her husband will join her there following his stay in Saigon, part of the two-week tour of capitals who have men fighting in Vietnam on the Allied side.

County Supports Bill To Get More Car License Cash

By TEX DEWEESE

Gray County will join with other Texas county judges and commissioners in urging support of a House Bill introduced in the state legislature to correct what it calls "inequities in the apportionment of motor vehicle registration fees to Texas counties."

County Judge Sherman Lenning Jr. said today he would ask the Gray County Commissioners Court at its next meeting to go on record in favor of the legislation.

Judge Lenning stated the bill, if approved by the legislature, would enable Gray County to retain approximately $50,000 to $75,000 more a year in motor vehicle license fees.

Currently the county receives around $175,000 annually out of more than a half-million dollars in collected fees, with about $385,000 collected here going to the State.

State Rep. Jamie Eray has introduced House Bill 1007 which would correct what Lenning described as "the unfair policy now in force."

The current statute, Lenning stated, bases distribution of motor vehicle registration fees to counties entirely on the first $300,000 collected. Counties retain 100 per cent of the first $50,000 collected and 50 per cent of the next $250,000. The formula currently yields $30,685,000 to the State out of the $144,064,000 in collected fees.

Lenning said the Eray Bill "would correct this unfair policy by allowing counties to retain 100 per cent of the first $50,000 collected, 60 per cent of the next $250,000, and 50 per cent of the remainder."

Shellings Take Toll Of Civilian Lives

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces pushed their "general offensive" into its fourth day today with rocket and mortar attacks on Da Nang and 45 other allied towns and bases.

Hanoi radio said the drive had dealt U.S. troops their heaviest losses of the war, but American sources said the Communists were paying the heavier price.

The U.S. spokesmen estimated at least 1,500 Reds had been killed in the past three days. U.S. losses were put at about 150 dead and 750 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were described as "light."

The Communist shellings, however, were taking an increasing toll of civilian lives. A 10-rocket salvo hurled into the heart of Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, killed 12 persons and wounded 29. Five civilians died and one was wounded in the provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived in Saigon on his mission to seek avenues to peace and deplored the Communists' attacks as "senseless" acts which "cast somewhat of a cloud" over their intentions at the Paris peace talks.

U.S. military headquarters said 10 of the dead and 24 of the wounded in Da Nang were South Vietnamese civilians. The others were government soldiers.

Three nights ago, Communist rockets or mortar shells slammed into 212 allied bases and towns, followed by 40 two nights ago and then the 46 late Tuesday and early today, according to U.S. figures.

Seven flights of B52 bombers went after Communist hideouts between Saigon and the Cambodian border overnight, hitting 42 to 60 miles from the capital where intelligence reports have said the guerrillas are on the move for a possible drive against Saigon.

Among the provincial capitals targeted in the overnight shelling attacks were An Loc north of Saigon, where five civilians were killed, and My Tho southwest of Saigon, where 10 persons were wounded.

Military spokesmen reported these three days which added 196 guerrillas Tuesday to the death count for the four-day-old offensive.

30 miles northwest of Saigon, U.S. 25th Infantry Division soldiers killed 50 Communists while losing 25 killed themselves in an attack on a guerrilla base camp.

U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops backed by dive bombers killed 81 guerrillas at miles southwest of Da Nang. The Leathernecks reported killing 11 killed and 22 wounded.

Monkeys Studied To Help Improve Man

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Man behaves like a beast because his biological heritage is beastly, according to Scientists.

There may be some hope, however, that he can change his ways. Some beasts, at least, have managed to do this.

The possibility that warmaking man can learn to improve his behavior—or, anyway, understand it—by studying animals is being discussed at a three-day international symposium sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution. Title of the symposium is "Man and Beast: Comparative Social Behavior."

Evolution has bred into monkeys a need to keep their distance from one another (spacing) plus a simultaneous need to draw together (for security and to mate and rear young) along with a complex variety of stratagems for doing both without seeming to do either.

For example, a monkey too close for comfort to a stronger and more aggressive monkey, will act as though this wasn't the case by looking the other way or staring at the ground.

Animal "spacing mechanisms" were reported by I. Hans Kummer of Tulane University. His paper went deeply into territoriality, aggression patterns, dominance, submission, inhibition (some monkeys wouldn't dream of propositioning another monkey's wife), efforts to achieve privacy, and a widespread tendency to take out on strangers grievances kindled by one's neighbors.

Human beings, like monkeys, Kummer suggested, often find it useful to have foreign enemies in order to preserve unity at home.

The crucial question is whether inherited behavioral tendencies can be modified to make man less beastly.

PPROA Starts Convention in Pampa Today

Convention business was good at the Coronado Inn this morning as members of Desk and Derrick Club and personnel of Pampa Chamber of Commerce welcomed and registered guests for the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

"They're swarming in," said Mrs. Ruth Campbell, president of Desk and Derrick. "We registered 58 in 50 minutes."

In addition, there is a long list of pre-registered guests who have not reported at the registry.

"I suspect they have already gone out to the golf course," Mrs. Campbell added.

Golf and a gin rummy tournament are the chief attractions of the first day of the conference. Thursday the serious program of discussions will take place.

Tonight's banquet at 7:45 will feature the rollicking humorist, Zany Bladen, as entertainer. The dinner will be in the Inn's Starlight Room.

Smith Argues With Barnes on Budget

AUSTIN (UPI) — The facade of harmony Gov. Preston Smith, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Speaker Gus F. Mutscher have tried to maintain as they haggled over budgeting has cracked on a sour note.

Mutscher accuses Smith of using "inaccurate and completely erroneous" information in "an attempt to drum up public support to make it more difficult for us to complete our program."

"I'd like for the governor to give the lieutenant governor and I a chance to complete our program," Mutscher said.

Barnes says Smith apparently has been given "wrong information" about the effects of one-year budgeting.

No Intentions

Mutscher said Smith ought to shed "some positive light" on the budget question by saying whether he will veto the Barnes-Mutscher plan to delay new taxes by adopting a one-year budget.

"I don't know how many times I have to tell them," Smith said. "But he apparently meant only that he has vetoed Barnes and Mutscher's one-year budgeting plan."

Smith said he has not told them whether he would use his veto and doesn't intend to tell them.

Smith accused Barnes Tuesday of backing down from his assertion a one-year budget would require no new taxes this year.

Noting Barnes' comment a one-year budget might require $15-$20 million in new revenue this year, Smith said, "Has he abandoned his position?"

However, Rep. S. Heatly, D-Paducah, Tuesday introduced a package of bills to raise $19.4 million through fuel transfers and other non-tax sources, and Mutscher said that might be enough to finance the one-year budget without taxes.

The Smith statements Barnes and Mutscher challenged were in a letter Smith wrote explaining his opposition to one-year budgeting.

Campus Demonstrators Continue To Flaunt the Law of the Land

By United Press International

National Guard troops remained on standby near the Baton Rouge, La., campus of Southern University today after one of the most violent student-police clashes in recent weeks.

A sit-in in Massachusetts, a camp-in in Missouri and a boycott in California highlighted student protests at other schools.

Former protesters were arrested in Kentucky and New York and forty-five jailed; protesters were denied bail in New Hampshire and 109 were indicted in Tennessee.

State, county and city police used 12-gauge shotguns loaded with tear gas pellets to break up the Southern University disturbance Tuesday. Two students were treated at the school infirmary for removal of tear gas pellets from their legs and eight others for treatment of tear gas inhalation. Seventeen persons were arrested as students pelted firemen and police with molotov cocktails, acid, bricks and bottles.

Evers Stresses Town Serenity

FAYETTE, Miss. (UPI)—The head of Mississippi's first all-black government of a biracial municipality since Reconstruction stressed a law and order theme today in a program to "make this town fit for all God's children."

Violence will not be tolerated, Negro leader Charles Evers said. One of the first laws of his administration will be to make it illegal for citizens to carry guns or knives longer than two inches.

Evers' first act early today when it was certain that he and five black town councilmen would assume office July 7 was to lead a prayer meeting at Hollywood Baptist Church.

"Help me, God, to be the kind of mayor to look out for all of us—the whites who hate us and the blacks who distrust us," he prayed.

CHECKING THE NEW SIGN — Harold Barrett, left, points out new "Land of Coronado" sign to Jim Morris. The sign which is located on Hwy 70 north of Pampa is one of several being erected on the approaches to town in an effort to spur tourist traffic into Pampa. The signs are sponsored locally by the Chamber of Commerce. (See Story, Page 3).

Weather Watchers Encircle City

Water and Hail Drenches Pampa Again

BY RON CROSS

While Pampa residents were ducking for a few minutes Tuesday evening from pea-sized hail folks in White Deer decided it was safer to stay inside than venture outside.

Moderate size hail broke car and home windows in this community west of Pampa and covered the ground enough to make some wonder if it hadn't snowed in May.

Heavy rains flooded highway 60 west of Pampa between Pampa and White Deer in spots. Red flares were put along the highway, but roads were not closed.

Then there were the sightings of tornado funnels around Pampa.

Jake Osborne of Pampa was heading toward the city and was just outside Kingsmill when he suddenly found his pickup had been blown off the road.

Osborne reported to his swerving service he thought he had been hit by a tornado and could still hear it after it passed over.

Other funnels were reportedly sighted between Wheeler and Twitty and another south of Pampa off highway 70.

But Pampa's official weather watchers, the citizen's band radio operators, did not confirm any of the funnel sightings.

But Pampa was well covered with members of the Gray police department, the Gray County Sheriff's office, highway patrol and CB personnel scattered in all directions from the city watching the skies.

Pampa received from 78 to 1.25 inches of in about 15 minutes Tuesday afternoon and streets were bank full in the city. Water was fender deep at the Hobart St. underpass.

Kingsmill received hail and heavy rain as did White Deer. Letors caught moderate rain and so did Miami, Wheeler, Shamrock and McLean.

Elsewhere in the state:

More than 4 1/4 inches of rain soaked Brownsville Tuesday and two inches fell on Galveston in one hour sending streams of water knee deep racing through the streets, causing numerous minor accidents and stranding motorists.

The storms which hit the Rio Grande Valley have caused at least $2 million damage to crops since they began Monday.

Numerous thundershowers were forecast today for West Texas.

The rains continued along the upper Gulf Coast and into scattered portions of Southeast Texas throughout Tuesday spawned by a low pressure system which moved along the coast.

Brownsville recorded 4.56 inches of rain. Galveston 3.83, La Grange 3.00, Beaumont 1.71, McAllen 1.31 and Laredo 1.00.

Nixon's TV Report Scheduled Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon will make his first formal report to the nation Wednesday night on prospects for peace in Vietnam. A speech he decided to make before the latest round of Communist mortar attacks in South Vietnam.

There have been numerous signs in Washington in recent days the administration may be making new moves in seeking peace—including Secretary of State William P. Rogers' trip to Asia and the brief return here of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam.

Nixon and key congressmen met with Abrams Monday, a few hours after Rogers flew to Asia. But as Rogers left the country, he warned the mortar attacks were "senseless and indiscriminate" and "can only raise questions about the intentions of the other side."

Hospitals and You

By WES LANGHAM

Who was the lady with the rule?

That is what the famous nurse, Florence Nightingale, has been called; in addition to the more popular "Lady with the Lamp." Her birthday, May 12, coincides with the observance of National Hospital May 11-17.

When she founded the first hospital school of nursing in London more than a century ago, she was establishing the hospital in its present day role as an educational institution. Today, education of personnel is one of the main functions at Highland General Hospital and hospitals throughout the nation.

Although famous even in her own time for her expert and compassionate care for wounded soldiers of the Crimean War, Florence Nightingale was known in medical circles for her impressive range of skills. The slide rule was indicative of her use of scientific data gathering methods, her abilities as a statistician, and her graphic methods of presenting factual evidence.

In fact, Miss Nightingale was more than a nurse. Her skills would fall under today's mushrooming category called "paramedical careers"—careers of hospital personnel having specialized training who work closely with the medical staff to provide the total services necessary to the patient's care.

Wes Langham, Administrator of the hospital, explained that paramedical personnel perform their work at the direction of a physician. Nurses, social workers, and physical therapists, work directly with the patient. Others work in such areas as pharmacy, laboratory, medical library, and medical records.

Miss Nightingale once said: "Nursing is helping people to live. Nursing is a progressive art in which to stand still is to have gone back." The words have not lost their freshness, and they apply today not only to nurses, but to any professional in the health care field, Mr. Langham observed.

Just a glance at the headlines tells us that modern medical care has not been standing still. Wide and rapid advances in medical science and allied disciplines have become almost routine.

Moreover, community hospitals across the nation are beginning to go beyond their traditional role of providing care for the more seriously ill or injured to include community services for prevention of disease and injury, and a broadening range of outpatient and home care programs," he said. "Hospitals are planning together to improve the health picture of whole communities."

"What improved medical science and the hospital's expanding role in total community health services mean for everyone is better and more accessible health care. What they mean for someone in or considering a position in the health field are virtually limitless, rewarding career possibilities."

As growing knowledge requires more specialization and as hospitals reach out into their communities, there is underway a proliferation of health careers, so much so that the largest hospitals often have a staff that answers to more than two hundred job descriptions.

"In fact, whatever a person's age, sex, experience and interests happen to be, there is very possibility that he or she can find a rewarding career in the hospital field," Mr. Langham said. "Often, what the person needs to know can be learned in the many educational and training programs of the hospital."

"And, with continued training, a person can 'grow' into more challenging and responsible positions."

Billboards Go Up to Attract Tourist to City

Twenty-four towns and cities of the Texas Panhandle are cooperating in the "Land of Coronado" advertising program designed to attract tourists, according to Harold Barrett, tourist committee chairman of Pampa Chamber of Commerce. The program has been spearheaded by Southwestern Public Service Co., assisted by 24 chambers of commerce. Local funds will have to be raised to cover Pampa's part in the program, said E. O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, since this activity is not budgeted in the annual program. The advertising will be in the form of window and table cards in cafes and restaurants, reminding the traveler of sights to look for in the Panhandle area. Theme of the campaign is "Land of Coronado." Fifty-two giant highway billboards have been put up this week in anticipation of the tourist season. Window and table cards also are being distributed. These tell visitors what to look for in the Panhandle.

From The Police Blotter

Charges of burglary were filed on a Pampa man and woman Wednesday by O.K. Edwards after an investigation by Pampa police. The pair, Rhyetha Gay Thompson and Harold Beck, have been charged with burglarizing a residence owned by Edwards at 421 Graham, according to Pampa Assistant Chief of Police George Wallace. The burglary, which apparently occurred Sunday, was reported to police Tuesday. Taken were dishes, cooking utensils, wall plaques, a piggy bank, two electric coffee makers and other items. Entry was gained by breaking out a rear window. Loss of the articles and broken window was estimated by Edwards at over $150. Police Lt. Preston Bailey and officer Stanley Belt investigated. Police were called twice to the Bluebonnet Courts in Pampa once late Tuesday evening and again early Wednesday morning. Police Lt. John Thomas made the first call and according to his report found a woman carrying a shotgun trying to get her children back from neighbors. Thomas said the woman told him the children were taken by neighbors who felt she wasn't taking proper care of the youngsters. Thomas said the dispute was apparently settled. But about 2:35 a.m. officer Jim Woods was called to the scene and was told by a man that a friend of the woman's had discharged the shotgun and then hit him over the head with the stock. Woods reported that the accused assailant told him the gun went off accidentally while he was trying to unload it and that he had not struck the man. Woods then confiscated the shotgun and a pistol and told the parties involved to come to the police station Wednesday. A. J. Ramming, 2346 Aspen, reported to police Tuesday that his house was entered sometime between Jan. 13 and 23 and two items taken. Ramming told police that a pendant, valued at $165 and a lady Hamilton wrist watch, valued at $900 was taken. Pampa policeman Jim Woods investigated a burglary at Hazeewood Milk Co., 732 E. Frederic, that occurred sometime after 10:30 p.m. Monday. In his report officer Woods said that several cartons of milk were taken and an outside storage building was entered and holes punched in several cartons of milk. Windows were broken out of dairy trucks and total damage done was estimated at over $170. Bond of $500 was set by Justice of Peace E. L. Anderson on John Holt on a charge of theft under $50. According to a report by officer Jim Woods Holt was observed coming from a the next $250,000 and 10 per cent of all over $300,000. This proposal would give Texas counties an additional $13-million annually.

The bill has received the endorsement of the Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association and the Texas County Auditors Association.

Judge Lenning said he already had contacted State Rep. Malouf Abraham of Canadian and several other lawmakers in Austin urging support of the Bray bill.

The official endorsement of the Gray County Commissioners Court will be forwarded to state lawmakers urging that the bill's approval would be in the best interests of the people of Gray County and Texas, Lenning stated.

"Texas counties must have additional sources of revenue," the county judge said, "if they are to satisfy increased demand for government services. A more equitable distribution of motor vehicle registration fees would provide one of these sources."

Texas Congressmen, Giant Stockholders

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When it comes to congressmen owning stock, Texas representatives hold a candle to very few. And heading the list are two of the state's Republican representatives.

After the recent incident involving Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., Congress passed a bill requiring public disclosure of sources of certain incomes. Some Texans in the House of Representatives own so much stock they had to add extra sheets to their official forms to submit to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

The amounts of income listed on these sheets is not made public. They are listed on separate forms and held in secret.

What is made public shows income sources from:

- The management or ownership of firms doing business with, or regulated by, the government if the business is worth more than $5,000 or earned more than $1,000 in the previous year;
- Services rendered amounting to more than $5,000, capital gain from every source over $50,000, and reimbursement for expenses over $1,000;
- Professional organizations bringing the representative or his wife income of $1,000 or more.

Texans Make Reports

The Texans and what they made public (listed in the order of their district number):

Wright Patman of Texarkana—filled in his form with a flowing script that said "none" in each place.

John Dowdy of Athens—sold farm in 1968, but the gain is spread over a 10-year period and for any one year, is only a fraction of $5,000.

James M. Collins of Dallas—Common stock ownership in 33 companies; real estate holdings in six areas of Texas and Georgia; partnership in a Richardson firm and an Arizona firm; a land trusteeship; assets of the James and Dorothy Collins trust, proprietary rights in oil royalties in Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, and Louisiana. Under his capital gains for 1968 he showed sales of stock from Luminators, Inc., Abitibi Paper Co., Great American Holding Co., Northwest Industries, Inc., and Eastern Industries, Inc. His stock ownership includes some gold companies in Johannesburg, South Africa, and such American firms as Armo Steel, Southern Pacific, U. S. Steel, General Motors, AT&T, Standard of New Jersey, and Mobil Oil.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Like millions of other couples, my wife and I read a newspaper at the breakfast table. Ours is not a silent ritual, however.

When she comes across an item of particular interest, she calls it to my attention. And I do the same.

"West Germany has decided not to revalue the mark," I observed the other morning. We exchanged significant glances over the egg cups and resumed reading.

A few minutes later, she said, "Venice is sinking."

Dreadfully impolite

It is dreadfully impolite to snatch a newspaper out of someone else's hand, but when I get excited about something I often forget my manners. "Let me see that," I cried, making a grab for the section she was reading.

Actually, I needn't have acted so precipitantly. It was only a dispatch from Italy reporting that Venice is sinking at the rate of one-fifth to two-fifths of an inch per year.

By the time another century elapses, unless something is done, Venetian starts, squares and even ground floors will be under water. Which already is true of the canals.

Thus far, the dispatch said, the Italian government has been unable to agree on a plan for keeping the city above the plimsole line.

Consumer Price Index Spirals To a New High

By The Babson Staff

Since the beginning of the year, and particularly in the month of March, the Consumer Price Index compiled by the Department of Labor has sputtered sharply higher. Indeed, the latest jump staged by this barometer was 0.8 percent, largest monthly rise since Feb., 1951.

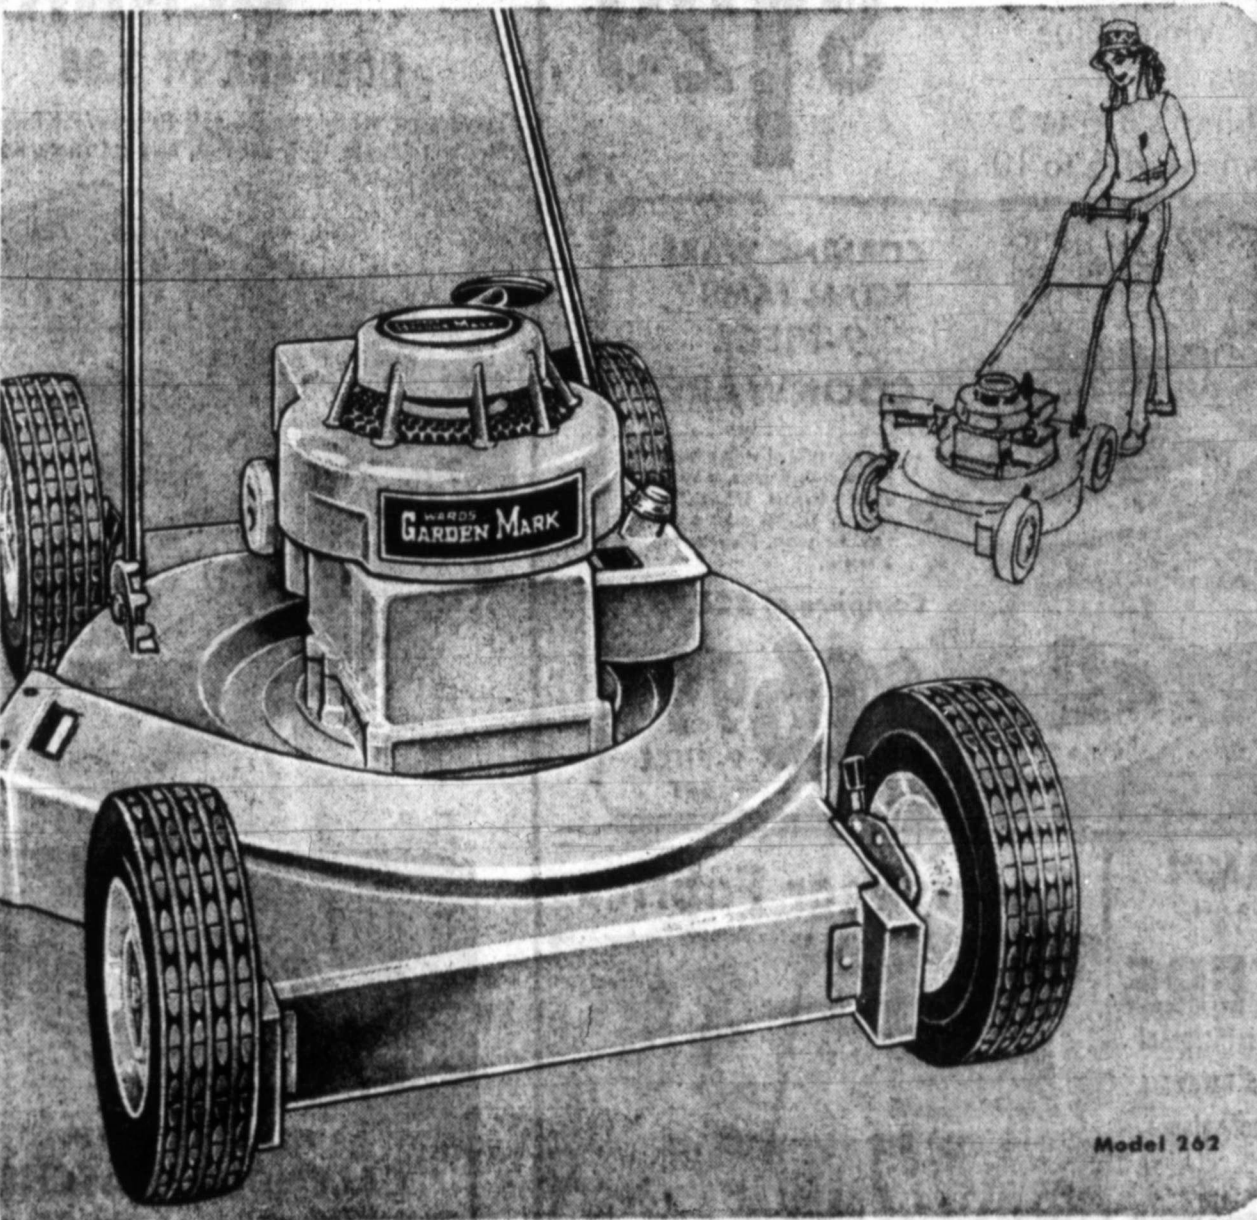

Most segments of consumer prices were affected during March. One of the most important was the cost of transportation. Used-car prices climbed sharply for the second successive month. New-car prices in March also increased, but not nearly as much as those for used cars. Other factors which raised transportation costs included increases in prices of gasoline, charges for auto repairs, and air and rail fares.

The cost of home ownership also was up in March. About half the advance was due to boosts in mortgage interest rates. But costs of home maintenance, property taxes, repair services, furniture and other home furnishings were also higher.

Apparel and shoe prices rose during March, while food prices were up contraseasonally. In the services field, higher insurance and interest charges on consumer loans again prevailed. Also, the cost of medical care continued its long-term uptrend, reflecting increases in physicians' fees and higher charges for hospital services.

On the whole, the early portion of the current decade saw only a slight uptick in the Consumer Price Index. But commencing in 1965, the barometer, which is often mistakenly referred to as the Cost-of-Living Index, started its accelerating uptrend.

Milk Upped 6 Cents For a Half Gallon

Milk prices in Pampa went up Monday six cents per half gallon. Half-gallons are 50 or, in some cases, 61 cents in local grocery stores.

Customer reaction has not been too unfavorable, said Steve Rodgers of Furr Food Stores. "Pampa streets have been selling milk at cost and below cost," Rodgers said today. "People began to think it was an accommodation to which they were entitled. Competition has been tough too."

Now that dairies and dealers have got together, it seems that Pampa no longer will be the best milk market price-wise in the state, the grocer noted.

Rodgers added that no special customer reaction had been observed as the new price went into effect.

Jerry Boston, who operates the Quick Stop Grocery at 915 W. Wilks is selling half-gallons of milk at 50 cents.

"Milk has been much cheaper here all winter than in the larger cities such as Dallas and Oklahoma City," said Boston.

"I guess the dairies decided to stop subsidizing."

To Clarence Ward of Ward's Mini-Mart milk has been "due for a rise" for months.

"Pampans have been getting cheaper milk than any other town around," for instance Amarillo.

Texas A&M Opens Cotton Gin Lab

A large attendance is expected Saturday at the US Department of Agriculture ginning research laboratory at Lubbock. Open house and dedication will be at 2 p.m.

The new facility is situated about 7 1/2 miles north of Lubbock on US 87. It is next door to the Texas A&M agricultural research and extension center.

Dr. Clifford Hardin secretary of agriculture, will address the visitors. He will be introduced by Congressman George M. Mahon and Bill Thompson, Shallowater ginnet, will be master of ceremonies.

Roy Baker, engineer-in-charge of the ginning lab, is general chairman.

Other speakers will include Dr. Gerald Thomas and Dr. John Bradford, of Texas Tech. The latter president of Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Dr. H.O. Kunkel of Texas A&M.

The ginning lab is the first of its kind in Texas and fourth in the nation.

Some cotton will actually be run through the lab to demonstrate the gin's operation.

The only other such labs are located in New Mexico, South Carolina and Mississippi.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—ABC-TV is betting on youth to pull the network out of its ratings doldrums next season, and CBS-TV is aiming again basically for the older audience to maintain its prominence.

A look at some ABC-TV shows indicates what the smallest commercial network is trying to do.

"The Music Scene," for instance, will stress pop records and anti-establishment humor.

"The New People" will be about young persons forming their own society while marooned on an isolated island.

"Love—American Style" will offer tales of young romance.

Mod Squad Continues
"The Mod Squad," of course, will continue with stories about three young persons helping the police to understand the new generation.

"The Flying Nun," of course, has a very young star, Sally Field.

"Room 222" will focus on a high school teacher.

"That Girl" has youthful Marlo Thomas as its headliner.

The Tom Jones Variety Hour has a definite emphasis on youth and pop music.

The Lennon Sisters, not long ago little girls on the Lawrence Welk Show, will have their own series.

"The Dating Game" and "The Newlywed Game" are strictly for the almost-marrieds and the just-marrieds.

And "Land of the Giants" is a children's version of science-fiction.

CBS-TV, meanwhile, apparently sees little reason to change from the big shows that have hooked an audience that is essentially middle-aged and up.

"Gunsmoke" and Lucille Ball and "Mayberry R.F.D." and Doris Day and Carol Burnett will all be back on Mondays.

"Lancer" is a stock Western with no special youth appeal despite two younger leading men.

Skelton Back
Red Skelton will be back, and so will "The Beverly Hillbillies" and "Hawaii Five-O" and "Family Affair," which has two older male leads—Brian Keith and Sebastian Cabot—despite all the publicity and attention for the show's child performers.

Jim Nabors, who used to play "Gomer Pyle," will have a variety show that offers no indication it will be youth-oriented. "Hogan's Heroes" and "Get Smart" and "Green Acres" and "Petticoat Junction" and Jackie Gleason and "My Three Sons" and Ed Sullivan and "Mannix" and "Mission: Impossible" are all returning.

Of all the three commercial networks, NBC-TV appears to be the one trying most to achieve a balance between youth and age programming.

And Another Thing

By RUTH LEWIS

I remember Pappy O'Daniel. Do you? And the flour salesman's handsome family of tuncesters.

"There ain't gonna be no runoff" was his campaign theme in that long hot Depression summer. And he was right.

When I read of the former Governor's death it seemed impossible that he could be 79 years old.

But of course persons we see only a few times, then not again, become etched in our minds, forever the same age.

A reader said, "Okay, I'll bite. What is a 'bullet surprise'?" A sudden gunshot. So you didn't catch it. The student who wrote that Sinclair Lewis was awarded the "bullet surprise" really was referring to the Pulitzer Prize. It was a phrase he had heard but apparently had never read.

I remarked in the column that the statement was not even factually true for, although the novelist was granted the Pulitzer he chose to refuse it. Later he did refuse it. Later he did receive the high honor of the Nobel Prize for Literature.

It is a bit late to comment on the recent band concert by Pampa school musicians but I will. I heard the program over radio and was impressed, especially by the final number, Sousa's "Stars and Stripes." As apropos as the music itself was the obligato of tiny tots' voices for such occasions are family affairs. Even the youngest is interested in hearing Big Brother or Sister perform in a group the "pieces" he has been practicing at home.

A bow here to Cabot and Celanese who, I understand, underwrote the broadcast.

I heard some of the high school players again Monday at the Chamber of Commerce campaign kickoff and talked with some of the young musicians later. I asked one outright how much that trombone cost and he said $490. He has had it six years. And how did all the students learn so much? "By practicing every day and sometimes in the evenings."

I miss the frisky little puppy on Browning whom I wish I could be adopted by. Apparently he has been sold. He is all white, except for one black ear! You never saw anything so

Peace Officers Elect Ranger Baten President

Bill Baten, Texas Ranger stationed at Pampa, was elected president of the United Peace Officers of America at its final session. The meeting was at Cal Farley Boys Ranch, Amarillo.

Other officers are Weldon Fromm, Parks and Wild Life Department; first vice president; Sheriff John Rainey, Wellington; second vice president; Judge Clarence Williams, Panhandle treasurer; Sheriff Joe Thomas, Channing, secretary.

The final official act of business was the presentation of a check for $1000 to the ranch to serve as a revolving fund for use of Future Farmers of America. The fund will be available to boys who desire to buy a pig or other animal to use in FFA demonstration.

Among the 250 delegates were Rufe Jordan, Gray County sheriff, and Baten.

ON SAINTS' BEHALF

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The California Department of Unemployment was picketed Tuesday on behalf of the 40 saints removed from the official calendar of the Roman Catholic Church.

Twenty-five young people who said they were members of the committee for the non-suppression of the 40 demoted saints wore long robes and sang "When the Saints Go Marching In." Their placards read: "How secure is your saint?" and "Is Christmas next?" They also filled out applications for unemployment benefits.

Pampan Awarded For Services To Customers

A special award was presented recently to Benny Wyant, an employe at the Post Office Service Station, 123 S. Ballard.

The award, a plaque bearing two rare silver dollars, two Kennedy half-dollars, and a specially minted coin set in an automotive engine design, was presented for exceptional customer service by a representative of the Gates Rubber Co.

The Denver-based company sponsors a nation-wide contest to reward service station personnel who provide exceptional customer service. A fleet of "mystery cars" regularly travels across the country stopping at service stations. The "mystery" car has a worn fan belt. Award plaques are presented to station personnel who notice the defective belt and offer to replace it.

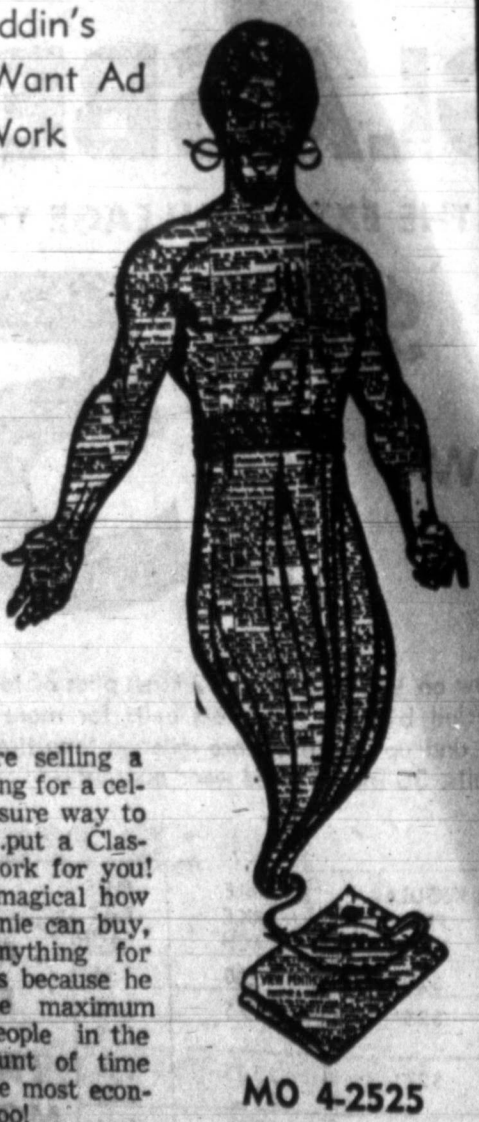

LUCKY MEN
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mrs. Ida Butcher opened her door Tuesday to two men who said they were from the gas company and had come to read the meter.

But once they got inside, they demanded money. Mrs. Butcher screamed and the pair fled, empty handed.

"It's a good thing for them my husband wasn't home," she told sheriff's deputies.

Dear Friends: At a time when student unrest in our nation has reached crisis proportions, it is encouraging to see the growing disapproval of the methods of dissenting students.

Bayard Rustin, a long-time activist in the Negro Civil Rights Movement, recently criticized students demanding so-called black studies courses for seeking the "easy way out."

"What the hell are soul courses worth in the real world? In the real world, no one gives a damn if you've taken soul courses. They want to know if you can do mathematics and write a correct sentence."

Also, President Nixon recently urged all college faculty members and administrators to have the "backbone" to stand up against dissenting students who terrorize teachers and other students who engage in violence and who carry weapons into the classroom.

Echoing the President's words, Attorney General John Mitchell called for "an end to patience. The time has come for us to demand, in the strongest possible terms, that university officials, local law enforcement officers, and local courts apply the law."

I strongly endorse our Attorney general's stand. My position has always been that appropriate form of discipline for violation of university rules is expulsion or suspension. Students ought to know that such discipline is going to be administered toughly and resolutely.

The real tragedy of student unrest is the disruption of classes, which results in less teaching and less learning. For most students, a higher education is the result of long hours of study and the expenditure of large sums of money to finance the schooling.

Attorney General Mitchell said the Justice Department had "substantial information confirming" that some major disturbances had "been incited by members of a small core of professional militants."

Discipline is a university responsibility. Government should not interfere in it. But when people may be injured, when personal property may be destroyed, and when chaos begins, the university official only aids lawlessness by procrastination and negotiation.

Law and order must prevail on America's campuses.

CAREER CORNER by F. J. Lain

Geologists Unearth New Answers To Mysteries

"What do geologists do? Any new career opportunities?"

A — Compared to 20th Century physics and biology, the earth-science geology was a Strauss waltz; our globe was regarded as essentially unchanging. Then, just a couple of short years ago — pow! Geoscientists found new evidence strongly suggesting our earth is really one powerhouse rock 'n' roll scene of constantly moving continents.

Implications of the new turbulent activity theories are enormous:

Is this the long-sought clue to the causes of earthquakes and volcanoes? Can we now develop better leads to locating the oil, minerals and water needed for an expanding and increasingly industrialized world population?

Many geologists think "yes" and today earth science has become another new frontier of knowledge, stirring fresh excitement as a career choice.

THUMBNAILED. This is oversimplified, but in general, the geologist (1) does field work, usually drilling for samples of physical materials. (2) analyzes geological specimens in a lab and (3) prepares reports on his findings.

SPHERE OF SPECIALTIES. Petroleum geologists (the vast majority of geologists) attempt to discover and recover oil and natural gas. Closely related are the economic geologists who search for new resources of minerals and fuels. Engineering geologists apply geological knowledge to road, bridge and building construction problems.

Stratigraphers study sedimentary (material deposited, as by water) rock layers by analyzing fossil and mineral content. Sedimentologists perform related work; they determine factors involved in the formation of sedimentary rocks, and paleontologists deal with fossils found within the sediments.

Petrologists are concerned with rock masses and mineralogists classify minerals and precious stones.

WHERE ON EARTH? About 25,000 geologists are employed today. They work for private industry (oil, gas, mining, railroads, sand-gravel companies, chemical, cement and ceramic industries.

Beef Price Publicity Unfair, Says Bergsma

Prices received for beef cattle during April 1969, averaged only 85 percent of parity, according to Lloyd Bergsma, executive vice-president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, with headquarters in Amarillo.

"Recent publicity given to beef prices is unfair in that it failed to tell the complete story," Bergsma said.

"It is true that beef prices have increased during the past year, but," Bergsma continued, "you could hardly say they are out of line when they are 15 percent below parity."

Bergsma said, "With per capita beef consumption about double that of 15 years ago, the percent of consumer disposable income spent for beef has declined during the period from 3.5 percent to 2.5 percent. Compared to fifteen years ago, the American worker today works fifteen minutes less to purchase the same amount of beef."

Bergsma's statement went on to say: "The beef producing industry is composed of several producing segments. The calf producer, the range man, feed grain producer on to the cattle feeder, the meat packer and finally the retailer are involved in supplying the consumer with the highest quality beef enjoyed by any nation in the world.

Under our free enterprise system, it is essential that each of the production segments receive prices that allow them a reasonable profit for their efforts.

"The calf producer and the feed grain producer have long been carrying on their segment of this beef producing industry at below production cost prices. They have been able to exist only through very low or negative returns for their labor, management and capital investment. This cannot continue.

"All segments of the beef producing industry have made rapid strides in improving their production efficiency. Modern research and technology are utilized to a high degree throughout the industry in bringing to the consumer the high quality beef products she has available to her in the retail store. The beef producing industry is very competitive, and all segments are making every effort to carry out their phase of production in the most economical manner. The industry does, however, want to share in the growth of the Nation's economy."

Start Children Early On Gardening For Outdoor Family Fun, Education

By Sheila and Allan Swenson
NEA Garden Specialists

PANTED COTTON—The mild dress worn over pants is fashion's most sophisticated swinger. Chester Weinberg's version in white pebble cotton is washed at the waist in red, white, and blue. The little dress, boasting a front kick pleat and wide midriff insert, tops wide leg pants.

Youngsters learn from growing things, especially their own flowers and vegetables. Equally important, children are a big asset in creating more beautiful outdoor living rooms for your home.

Best bet to start children right in gardening is to provide their own exclusive garden area. Give each one in your family his own plot. Usually a corner of the family vegetable garden or portion of a flower bed can be set aside.

Remember that youngsters can be easily discouraged. Help them select the easiest to grow flowers and vegetables. Even toddlers love to plant seeds. The first thrill comes when their own garden starts to sprout.

We recommend marigolds, cosmos and zinnias from seed. Morning glories do well on walls or fences. Pansy and petunia plants give lots of bloom for show-and-tell or home decoration.

With vegetables, consider beets, radishes, sweet corn and snap beans from seed. Try lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers and melons also. This way, youngsters can grow the salads for the family. When you buy seed from catalogues or stores, look for F-1 hybrids. They are more resistant to diseases, stronger and produce more abundantly.

In flower beds and borders, plant groupings together. Groups give better outdoor display and provide cut flowers of marigolds, zinnias, asters and petunias. Children take real pride in making arrangements for the home, parties or decoration in their rooms.

Help youngsters select the right location, with lots of sun and good, rich loam soil. Once the bed is dug under with fertilizer, follow seeding directions.

Cultivation is needed, and it gives you a chance to show how weeding pays. Leave some weeds to demonstrate how unwanted weeds rob moisture and nutrients and prevent good plant growth.

And finally, let children experiment. Show and tell projects also help in school work and can lead to broader horizons in the world of plants.

Dear Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When Tom and I got married two years ago, he made me tear up all the pictures I had taken with my ex-boyfriends. He also tore up all the pictures of himself and his ex-girlfriends — or so I thought.

We went to visit his mother the other day and as we got ready to leave, Tom drew my attention to a framed picture on the wall. He laughed and said, "Well, look at that!" I didn't see anything funny about it. It was a picture of him and the girl he went with while he was stationed in the army in Germany. He had his arm around her.

I was so shocked and hurt, but I didn't say a word. I've been to the house several times before, and that picture wasn't hanging there. Why all of a sudden now?

My mother-in-law is not a stupid woman, and she surely must have known that this would hurt me. I really can't imagine why she did this. I love her dearly and I always thought she loved me, too.

I haven't said a word, but I've been crying my eyes out. Should I tell my husband how I feel? Or should I tell my mother-in-law?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Since your husband drew your attention to it, thinking it was "funny," skip him. But do tell your mother-in-law.

DEAR ABBY: Are gentlemen becoming an extinct breed in our civilization? I ride the bus to work every day and back, and I have seen men sitting with their noses buried in the newspapers while women stand. I mean some pregnant, and elderly women. Once in a while a gentleman will stand and offer a lady his seat, but then you should see the dirty looks he gets from the men who are sitting. I'd like your opinion.

MIDDLE-AGED LADY

DEAR LADY: No pregnant or elderly woman should stand while men sit. Neither should feeble or handicapped men stand while healthy, able-bodied women sit.

Being female no longer entitles a woman to special treatment in a world where women compete with men for the same job.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you that each man must decide for himself how much church is "enough." I personally feel that a woman is lucky if her biggest complaint is a husband who wears his knees out in church.

Here's a little verse I've known for years, which says it very well:

"Whenever we pass by a church
Let's stop and pay a visit.
Then when at last we're carried in
Our Lord won't say, 'Who is it?'"

A Rocky Debut

TONY (ROCKY) Longo will never forget his debut as a professional fighter. As he bounced eagerly into the ring, to meet Pedro Sanchez, he immediately started dancing around in his corner and tossing imaginary jabs in his terry cloth robe. But when it came time to fight, he discovered something was missing: his trunks. He forgot to put them on. As the crowd howled, Longo made a hasty trip to the locker room. Upon his return he assured he was read to last. So however, was Sanchez. Longo was knocked out in the first round.

Carew Hitting Well, But His Base Running is Bad

By United Press International — Rod Carew is currently baseball's best hitter but he also may be the game's worst baserunner.

However, Minnesota Twins Manager Billy Martin was mild in his criticism of Carew's latest baserunning blunder since it scored the deciding run in the Twins' 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night in a rhabarb-filled game between the two division leaders.

Carew, leading the majors with a .408 average, hit a shot to right center in the eighth score Cesar Tovar and tie the game 2-2. Carew should have been satisfied with a triple since there were none out and Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva were the next two hitters. But Carew gambled and stretched his hit into an inside-the-park homer that was the deciding run—even though

SPORTS

The Pampa Daily News

Killebrew and Oliva followed with long flies to center that would have easily scored Carew if he'd stayed at third.

Carew slid into home, just beating the tag of catcher Ellis Hendricks even though Hendricks protested vigorously.

The biggest argument came in the top of the eighth when Frank Robinson scored on a short passed ball to snap a 1-1 tie.

Pitcher Dave Boswell put the tag on the sliding Robinson and umpire Larry Barnett raised his arm in the out call. But as Robinson slid in, he knocked Boswell over and the ball fell out of his glove and Barnett changed his sign to safe. The Twins protested but Barnett ruled Boswell didn't have possession long enough.

Martin said, "I would agree with the umpire if Boswell lost the ball while standing up but he was knocked down after the tag for the out."

Tony Horton rapped a pair of homers including a two-run shot in the five-run fifth inning and knocked in four runs as the Indians turned back Kansas City. Dick Ellsworth went five innings to gain his first win for Cleveland.

Jim Northrup's two-run homer highlighted a three-run seventh inning that gave Detroit the win over Chicago. The rally came after a 35-minute rain delay. Mickey Lolich went 8 1/3 innings to gain the victory.

OU's Fairbanks Takes Three Of Best Griders From State

HENDERSON, Tex. (UPI) — Chalk up three in a row for Oklahoma football coach Chuck Fairbanks who believes get 'em any way you can, but get 'em.

Fairbanks descended into Texas for the third year in a row Tuesday and by the time he left he had the signature on a letter of intent of the state's top high school football player secure in his hip pocket.

Southwest Conference officials put their heads together last year and decided this type of foolishness must stop. So they passed a rule easing recruiting policies for coaches but that doesn't stop old Chucking Chuck.

And Chuck has pulled off his three coup d'etats on Texas coaches in just two seasons. It's thievery like that which makes great television plots.

"I selected OU because I feel like they have the possibility of winning the national championship and I would feel bad if I did not attend OU and they won the championship," said Joe Wylie, this year's No. 1 blue chipper, before the ink was dry.

Wylie became the third top player in as many graduating classes to wind up at Soonerland. He was not the easiest of the three to snare, but his story pales that of Amarillo's Monte Johnson who will wear the colors of Big Red this season via a route with the Grange.

Johnson, along with Bridge City's Steve Worster, was the pick of the Class of '67. When coach Darrell Royal of Texas grabbed both Worster and Johnson in that year's recruiting war rival coaches paid reverence reminiscent of when UCLA got Lew Alcindor to play basketball.

Lakers Ready For '69-70

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The shock is over. Fred Schaus can talk about next season.

With the memory of the bitterest playoff defeat slightly more than a week old, the general manager of the Los Angeles Lakers speaks confidently of the future.

"A lot of people are saying we're too old," Schaus said. "Well, we're not that damn old. And we obtained what we needed most in the draft. We picked up two guards who will give us the additional outside shooting that we lacked this season."

The guards he referred to are Willie McCarter of Drake and Dick Garrett of Southern Illinois, the Lakers' first and third draft choices.

The Lakers also have signed their No. 3 draft selection, Rick Roberson, a 6-9, 225-pound forward from Cincinnati.

The Lakers' three superstars — Elgin Baylor, Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West — will average 33 years in age next season but Schaus feels the trio may be even more effective in 1969-70.

"Look, these guys were together for the first time this season," the general manager explained. "Having this nucleus back with a year's experience together makes me feel pretty good."

Baylor, who will be 35 in September, is the biggest question. After averaging 24.8 points a game during the regular season, he slipped to 15.4 average in the playoff.

National League Roundup

'Oldtimers' Aaron, Banks Shine in NL

By United Press International — Hank Aaron will need an assist from Father Time to catch Willie Mays in the all-time home run derby.

At least that's what the slender 35-year-old Atlanta Brave right fielder said after he edged closer to Wondrous Willie with the 615th homer of his career in a 4-3 Atlanta victory over the New York Mets.

In other NL action, Chicago thrashed San Diego, 19-0. Houston whacked Montreal, 10-3. Cincinnati beat Philadelphia, 6-4, and San Francisco whipped Pittsburgh, 11-8. Los Angeles at St. Louis was postponed because of rain.

Aaron cracked his homer—the fifth of the season—with no one aboard in the first, and Orlando Cepeda backed him up with a homer in the fourth, Orlando's eighth of the year.

Bob Tillman also hit a homer—a two-run shot—in the fourth to complete Atlanta's scoring.

Tommie Agee slammed a two-run homer for the Mets in the sixth and New York scored its final run on a single by Art Shamsky in the ninth.

Ernie Banks drove in seven runs with two homers and a double to lead Chicago to its laughter over the Padres and give Dick Selma his first victory as a Cub. Chicago's 19 runs tied a National League mark for most runs scored in a shutout.

Billy Williams slammed two triples in five times at bat, driving in two runs and scoring twice. Nate Oliver had three hits, including a two-run homer and drove in four runs and Don Young belted a three-run homer in the seventh. Selma gave up only three hits and struck out

Andretti Faces Top Contenders

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Mario Andretti, who Tuesday set an unofficial speed record at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for piston-driven racers, may have to make room today for one or two other drivers in the 170-mile-per-hour club.

A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., a three-time winner of the Indianapolis "500", appeared to be the top candidate for the 170 m.p.h. club, having flirted with that mark twice during practice this month for the Memorial Day classic.

Andretti, from Nazareth, Pa.,

turned a lap Tuesday at 171.494 m.p.h., the fastest ever recorded at Indianapolis by a piston-driven car. He hit 170.197 Monday in his backup racer, but Tuesday was working out his No. 1 machine, a four-wheel drive turbocharged Ford.

However, Foyt Tuesday was clocked at 169.173, which was a shade slower than the 169.237 he turned a week ago. That had stood as the fastest speed since the track opened May 1 until Andretti got going Monday.

Other quick laps Tuesday included a 168.287 by Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz.,

Welcome To The PPROA

Pampa rolled out the red carpet today for delegates and visitors to the 39th annual convention of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association which opened shortly before noon today and runs through Thursday. More than 250 oil men and their wives from over the Texas Panhandle and guests from several states are here for the two-day sessions. Pampa is extremely proud to host the PPROA convention and extends a hearty welcome to all those connected with it and to the visitors who will be here from other Texas cities and other states, even as far off as Michigan. This year will mark the second time Pampa has had the pleasure of entertaining PPROA members and their guests. The first time the group met in Pampa was back in 1963 for its 33rd annual convention. So, welcome again to the PPROA and guests. An excellent program has been arranged by the current officers and executive committee to make your attendance enjoyable and worthwhile.

Nixon Would Tax Costs

Let those who would tinker with the investment credit give thought to the full economic effects and not just about taxes that can be put on the other fellow. The words are those of Robert C. Tyson, chairman of U.S. Steel's finance committee, in a company news release. The reference is to President Nixon's political plans to "reduce" the impact of income taxes on the lower and middle income tax payers at the expense of increasing the tax impact on business and industry by withdrawing the 7 per cent investment credit write-off businessmen have been permitted to take late. The proposal was presented by Nixon as designed to accomplish essentially three things:

1. A tax reform.
 2. Provide some relief for lower and middle income tax payers.
 3. Put a brake on inflation.
- In effect, as U. S. Steel's chairman plainly sees, the proposal will accomplish none of its claims. Demonstrating sound, long-range economic savvy, as opposed to the whim-of-the-moment "thinking" of Nixon's Keynesian advisors, Tyson continued: "Those who advocate the suspension of the investment credit are in effect proposing a reduction in depreciation charges, and depreciation is the real seed corn which permits industry to keep existing plants intact and modern. To treat and tax real depreciation costs as though they are profits is triple folly. It places an inequitable tax burden on those companies and their owners who are more heavily invested in long-lived plant facilities; it slows down the very spending that is the major deterrent to built-in wage-cost-push inflation and guarantees a reduction in the economic growth and international competitiveness which would provide future tax revenues."
- Well said! However, let us examine each of the claims made for the Nixon proposal in even greater depth:
1. The proposal, in actuality, is not a "tax reform," but merely a temporary tax shift for reasons that will immediately be made clear.
 2. While the proposal would provide some immediate relief for lower and middle income groups at the expense of industrial and business investment capital, since all costs of production (taxes do add to the costs of production) are ultimately borne by individual consumers, the long-range effect of the Nixon proposal would be to cause lower and middle income groups to pay in higher prices for goods and services the amount the Nixon government is trying to get them to believe it could save them by the tax shift. Inflation, contrary to what governments indulging in the legal counterfeiting process would have the people believe, is not rising prices. Rising prices are the result of inflation, not the thing itself or its cause. Inflation, in simple terms, is an increase (by the government) of money supply not matched by a corresponding increase in production for goods and services. With more money bidding for the same (or less) goods and services, prices, responding to the natural law of supply and demand, go up. Therefore, instead of providing any real relief to the lower and middle income tax payers, the Nixon proposal will actually hit such people with a double political whammy. This is so because: a. As explained above, the taxes which the Nixon administration proposes to save the lower and middle income groups will be paid by such people in the form of higher prices and this amount, in turn, will be collected a priori by the government from the businessman by taxing his investment capital. b. This money, collected from the businessman by taxing his investment capital, but, in reality, paid by the individual consumers in the form of higher prices, will be spent by the government in nonproductive boondoggles and socialistic giveaways; consequently, there will be no reduction in the amount of money in circulation and therefore, no brake on inflation applied. c. And here is where the consumer is hit with the double whammy we mentioned earlier — the withdrawal of the 7 per cent investment credit write-off from business and industry will have an even more harmful effect on the lower and middle income consumers. It will actually act to feed the fires of inflation and higher prices because, by taxing investment capital, the proposal would act to deny business and industry the "seed corn" needed to maintain their present levels of production. Consequently, production will fall off, the money-goods and services ratio will widen and prices will go even higher. The consumers, as usual, will get it in the neck. Let those who tinker with the laws of nature and the free market, where those laws manifest themselves, indeed, beware. Good advice for Mr. Tyson and other industrialists to remember the next time they are tempted to ask the government for market frustrating import quotas and taxes. What the government gives today, it will take tomorrow, with interest!

Square Maybe, But Funny

Yes, sir and Ma'am, it's nice to know that the permissive society is rewarding its offbeat, upbeat, downbeat, underground and voyeur-type movie industry properly... at the box office. Want to know what is leading the list of 50 top-grossing films as reported by the trade daily, Variety? Walt Disney's for-all-the family comedy, "The Love Bug." Something seen seldom on the screens these days — good, clean, out-of-style fun — is said to be responsible. Could this be? Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functioning of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION:—Freedom Newspapers is always saying that public schools cannot teach right from wrong. What is your reason for thinking this?

ANSWER: Freedom Newspapers do not say that PUBLIC SCHOOLS cannot teach right from wrong. Freedom Newspapers say that TAX-SUPPORTED SCHOOLS cannot teach right from wrong. The main reason is that tax-supported schools set a bad example. They teach, by example, that might makes right. They follow a double standard of right, which is no standard at all. There are very few, if any, teachers who would contend that they had the right to force their neighbor to let them teach their neighbor's children as the teachers see fit and to force the neighbor to pay for it, whether the neighbor wanted it or not. Yet they all believe, because the majority of people have voted to do just that very thing, that it is all right. That is simply might makes right. But if it is wrong for one, it is wrong for all and the majority cannot change it by a vote. While it is true that many individual teachers in the tax-supported schools are dedicated, sincere, and good teachers who will try to show their students right from wrong as well as they understand it themselves, they will only partly succeed. They will fail in two ways. First, they cannot teach what they do not fully understand, and it is obvious they do not fully understand right from wrong or they would not be part of the tax-supported school system. A teacher may counsel his students that it is wrong to steal, but he does not see that his salary comes from stolen money. So the teacher is in the position of preaching what is right and practicing what is wrong, and that is the second way they will fail, for they set a bad example and as Albert Schweitzer says, most people learn by example. When the teacher and the parents instruct the student that stealing is wrong, the student will believe it because he can understand that he would not like it if his bicycle were stolen from him. And if he had to work to earn the bicycle he would understand the effort and sacrifice it had taken to get the bicycle, so he would especially dislike having it stolen. And he could recognize that others, too, dislike having stolen from them what they have worked hard to get. So he could recognize that stealing is wrong. But when people who do not wish to pay for schools for any reason, have their money taken from them to pay for schools anyway, by the force of law, that is the same as stealing. The state can make an immoral act legal, but they cannot make right moral and just. And in proportion they have worked as hard for their money as the student has for his bicycle. Yet the schools teach that this is not wrong. Is it any wonder that the students are confused? Even though they may not be able to reason this out and express it in words, they will sense it, and they will express it in their behavior. They will see that though stealing is wrong, the property of others is not safe from theft and they will know that they are not safe either, and they will rebel.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS
If a billionaire decided to count his own money it would take nearly half his lifetime. At the rate of a dollar bill a second, counting a billion (1,000 million) would require about 31.7 years of round-the-clock work without holidays, the World Almanac says. Moreover, a billion bills stacked in one pile would be 59.3 miles high.

Year-Long Probe Starting Of TV Violence Impact

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — A stimulus on top of the original real event. Dr. Rubinstein says, however, that he is not prejudging television's effects and is not predisposed to the idea that young people are necessarily harmed by constant exposure to a program diet rich in televised violence. He says he thinks the networks will profit from the inquiry. He is spreading the word that network cooperation is essential if the study is to produce an accurate picture of TV's influence on people, and especially young people. MOVIE RATINGS — As the TV study gets underway (but completely separate from the motion picture industry) is making plans for an evaluation of its new efforts at self-regulation. The voluntary ratings — G, M, R and X — had been in effect for six months on May 1. During that period 86 new films were rated G, for general audiences; 89 were rated M, for mature audiences and mature young people; 53 films were rated R, for restricted viewing only with a parent or guardian, and 13 were classified X and barred to persons under 16. Jack Valenti, the former LBJ aide, who moved from the White House to the top job by pressing the voluntary rating plan. It now appears that the plan will be successful. The association is expecting to conduct a survey of theater compliance later this summer. Advance indications are favorable, however, and all except one of the major theatre chains are reported to be using the ratings. Currently, Motion Picture Association aides are seeking to iron out some minor problems, such as assuring that lurid preview "trailers" for pictures classified X, do not appear in theatres showing films keyed to general audiences. While the motion picture ratings are separate from the question of TV crime and violence they have in common the threat of government regulation. Valenti urged the voluntary rating plan on the industry after the Supreme Court, in a couple of decisions, indicated that acceptable standards for juveniles can be more rigid than those which apply to adults.

Working with Dr. Rubinstein's staff, the advisory committee is to study television's impact much as an earlier surgeon general's committee studied the health effects of cigarette smoking. The focus will be on TV's effects on young viewers. The study was proposed by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R. I., who is chairman of the Senate Communications Subcommittee. Pastore had been critical of television's attempts to ride herd on its own programming, and he has himself been criticized by network comedians and network executives. The senator knows, however, that public complaints about televised crime and violence, and their impact on youth, are no joking matter. He is trying to avoid proposals for government regulation of TV programming, which would be far more objectionable to the networks. MEDIA AND UNREST — Dr. Rubinstein is no novice in studying the effects of the mass media. Last year he participated in a Stanford University study which recommended an inquiry into student unrest which would look into media operations before and during campus protests. Writing early this year in the professional journal, American Psychologist, Dr. Rubinstein concluded that the effects of rapid social change are intensified by "instantaneous communication." The media, he said, are "influencing" behavior to an extent which should be evaluated. Remarkably on what he called "the world of instant replay," Rubinstein commented that "No sooner does something happen, than it is, predigested, and regurgitated by the communications media as a new

Taking Iodine In Milk Will Not Help Growth
A boy in his early teens writes that he has read that if three times a day he would drink a glass of milk to which two drops of iodine are added he would grow taller. He wonders whether this is true or whether an operation would be necessary to make him gain height. I get many similar letters. The milk will help him grow but will not in any way modify his normal growth pattern and the iodine will not help at all. Since there are several causes for short stature he should first find out what cause accounts for his lack of height. Some slow starters make unexpected rapid gains in their late teens without any treatment at all. I certainly would not advise an operation. Human growth hormone stimulates growth in hormone-deficient dwarfs but is of no use in boys who do not fit this category. Others between the ages of 3 and 17 have increased their rate of growth by taking the hormone, oxandrolone, but this should be done only under medical supervision. One should always remember that being short has its own special advantages at times.

Q—My daughter, 3, has juvenile eczema. Our doctor says there is no cure for it. Can the itching be controlled? A—It is true that in most cases control rather than cure is the rule. Even this may be difficult. The first step is to discover the offending allergen so that it can be avoided. Skin infections are commonly associated with eczema and, when they occur, must be treated promptly with antibiotics. Local applications of betamethasone valerate are very effective in reducing inflammation and thereby indirectly allaying the itching. Instead of soap and water, your daughter's skin should be bathed with a fat-free lotion (Cetaphil).

Q—Could a child's temperature vary a degree or more from early morning to mid-afternoon if no infection is present? A—If a normal child is very active an elevation of 1 to 1.5 degrees is not unusual and should not cause alarm. Most such rises in temperature go unnoticed because the wise mother doesn't routinely take the temperature of a child who appears to be well and happy. I'll loan you some of my magazines for 1922 to put in your anteroom. On his way out of the lecture the professor asked if anyone had seen his hat. Peter (a student) — You're wearing it, sir. Professor Price — Thank you. If you hadn't seen it, I'd have gone home without it.

Editor: Perhaps this letter I'm writing will go no farther than your trash can but, at least, I will have had the satisfaction of knowing I tried. The reason I am writing is more-or-less an intimate matter but one that I feel concerns a large number of people—that of the fact that a large number of the department stores in Pampa have closed their restrooms to the public. Emergencies do arise at times and I know this problem has proved to be an inconvenience to some of your Pampa citizens but it has become a major annoyance to some of us who travel many miles from the small towns surrounding Pampa for a day of shopping. I personally know of quite a few women from Wheeler alone who make an all-day shopping trip to Pampa on the average of every 2 weeks. Some of the stores lose sales that they would otherwise have made. This happened yesterday when a friend and I had to leave two stores because the public was barred from the restrooms. I believe I could guarantee that each of us would have spent approximately 25 dollars in both these stores but after having to leave the shopping area to search for a service station, we just didn't have the extra time to go back downtown and search for another parking place. Also, in spite of the fact there are babysitters and nurseries galore now, there are still times when a mother has to take young children shopping with her and this presents a double problem because some children are just too young to understand the word "wait." This can turn into a mild disaster for mothers living in Pampa, not to mention those of us who have traveled quite a few miles and are without the facilities to clean them up. Also, where the service station was once a lifesaver to the traveler in such matters, they have now, too, begun to frown on anyone except paying customers making use of their restrooms. There are times when one does not need gas, an oil change, or a grease job, but does need a restroom. Yesterday my friend and I went to a station close to the downtown area after being refused restroom facilities in the stores. We pulled in and asked directions to the restroom. The man informed us that first we'd have to park our car out on the street before we could make use of the restroom. The nearest parking place on the street was almost a block away, so we just drove on until we finally found another service station attendant who was a little more understanding. I understand that there are always two sides to every story. I have worked in department stores and know that the public sometimes leaves a restroom in a undesirable condition but I think for the most part, people leave a restroom as clean as they found it. Must everyone be punished for those few who have no concern for others? So, now I come to the end of this letter. I don't expect you'll say anything about it in your newspaper but, at least, I know that I have tried to help the shopping public. Thank you for taking the time to read this. Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

SEXUCATION—Part III
Dr. Gordon Drake of Christian Crusade recently pointed out, it is not a question of how much sex education should be taught in schools, or how. No sex education should be taught in schools! Mass sex instruction is wrong because: (1) It deprives the parents of one of their prime God-given duties. (2) Children are different, and anything as vital and personal as sex instruction should be taught on an individual and private basis. (3) Sex education in schools, no matter how it begins, will eventually get out of hand. (4) Many teachers are neither morally nor intellectually fit to teach sex to children. Psychiatrist William McGrath explains it this way: "There is a phase of personality development, called the latency period, during which the healthy child is not interested in sex. In this interval, from about age five until adolescence, a boy learns how to get along with other boys. And he can dream of becoming a man among men, a hero. The latency period is not just a cultural or moral intervention. It serves a very important biological purpose. It affords the child an opportunity to develop his own resources, his beginning mental and physical strength. Later, when he is ready, he can take on other responsibilities."

Exhaustive research indicates not one single sexologist educator is a fundamentalist Christian or a political "conservative." Many are part of the Far Left. One of the founders of SIECUS, Dr. Lester Kirkendall, is a director of the American Humanist Association. Of course! Humanists are pro-MAN and anti-GOD. I don't know if you ever watch the Hauntley-Blinkley telecasts. I hope not. But these two geeks are more interested in making the history instead of reporting it. Neither one of them should be given tube room in anybody's house. During the week of March 24, during the ABM debate after they paraded a raft of critics against U. S. missile defense, the commentators sat there with their bland faces hanging out and said that we were provoking the Soviets. On March 26 the critics were again paraded, but their comments was not enough as the smart sages of the telly-vee waves threw in their two cents worth by saying that most "experts" opposed defense for America. On March 27 David Blinkley came a cropper when he said that "if we went ahead with out ABM, the Soviets 'might be forced to build one of their own.'" Naturally, this reporter failed to mention that the Soviets already have ABM system, and are improving it more and more every day. Dottering Cretay Hauntley is even worse when it comes to guiding the lulu. You might think by listening to him that the Japs didn't attack Pearl Harbor and that it was instead of the Soviets who created tension with an ABM. In addition to this hogwash over the waves, they both go around giving speeches about how we can make peace by having little kids hand out ballpoint pens to Russians.

On March 26 the critics were again paraded, but their comments was not enough as the smart sages of the telly-vee waves threw in their two cents worth by saying that most "experts" opposed defense for America. On March 27 David Blinkley came a cropper when he said that "if we went ahead with out ABM, the Soviets 'might be forced to build one of their own.'" Naturally, this reporter failed to mention that the Soviets already have ABM system, and are improving it more and more every day. Dottering Cretay Hauntley is even worse when it comes to guiding the lulu. You might think by listening to him that the Japs didn't attack Pearl Harbor and that it was instead of the Soviets who created tension with an ABM. In addition to this hogwash over the waves, they both go around giving speeches about how we can make peace by having little kids hand out ballpoint pens to Russians.

Q—My daughter, 3, has juvenile eczema. Our doctor says there is no cure for it. Can the itching be controlled? A—It is true that in most cases control rather than cure is the rule. Even this may be difficult. The first step is to discover the offending allergen so that it can be avoided. Skin infections are commonly associated with eczema and, when they occur, must be treated promptly with antibiotics. Local applications of betamethasone valerate are very effective in reducing inflammation and thereby indirectly allaying the itching. Instead of soap and water, your daughter's skin should be bathed with a fat-free lotion (Cetaphil).

Q—Could a child's temperature vary a degree or more from early morning to mid-afternoon if no infection is present? A—If a normal child is very active an elevation of 1 to 1.5 degrees is not unusual and should not cause alarm. Most such rises in temperature go unnoticed because the wise mother doesn't routinely take the temperature of a child who appears to be well and happy. I'll loan you some of my magazines for 1922 to put in your anteroom. On his way out of the lecture the professor asked if anyone had seen his hat. Peter (a student) — You're wearing it, sir. Professor Price — Thank you. If you hadn't seen it, I'd have gone home without it.

Doctor Cobb (the coroner) — Where did the car hit him? Mr. Case (the medical witness) — At the junction of the dorsal and the cervical vertebrae. The burly foreman rose from his seat. Mr. Cross (the foreman) — Man and boy I've lived in these parts for years, and I have never heard of the place. Rick — It's a little hard for young doctors to get a start. UNDERWATER ESCAPE from East Germany was made by Bernd Boettger, who is shown holding the equipment which made it possible. Boettger, a life-guard, made the mini-submarine that pulled him through the Baltic Sea to freedom in Denmark.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst In July about half the inhabitants of the world's second largest island, and certainly its most primitive, will hold an extraordinary election. American GI's of World War II remember the island without pleasure. The island is New Guinea just to the north of Australia and the election will involve some 800,000 inhabitants of its western half who in theory at least will be deciding whether they wish to remain under Indonesian rule. The Indonesians call it West-Irian.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS The City of Pampa, Texas, will receive sealed bids in the City Commission Room, City Hall, Pampa, Texas, until 3:30 P.M. C.D.T. Tuesday May 27, 1969 for the WATER METERS. Bids may be delivered to R. M. Chittenden, City Secretary, City Hall, Pampa, Texas.

BEULSVILLE, Md. (UPI)—The Secret Service is building a Hollywood-type set to help train its agents. The scene looks not unlike the place in Dallas where John F. Kennedy was assassinated. The set, which will be used for motorcade training, features false-fronted buildings, a curving roadway and an overpass—an eerie re-creation of Dealey Plaza, where Kennedy fell victim to a sniper.
