Pretty Teen Slain, Clues Are Scarce

MEXIA, Tex. (UPI)— Sheriff Conner Spivey said today that his best lead in the rape-murder of the pretty head-baton twirler of the Mexia High School band played out and "we have got to start all over again."

A farmer Tuesday found the half-stripped body of the 17-year-old Cathy Jones, wrapped in a blanket, in his pasture. She was stabbed 18 times in the chest and abdomen Tuesday while she was in the living room of her home. The killer wrapped the body in a blanket and took it—Spivey believes in a pickup truck—to the pasture, a mile-and-a-half from her home.

The farmer, McKenzie Masters, found the body almost as quickly as the killer dumped it under a bush.

Body Still Warm
 "He didn't miss it (the dumping) but a few minutes," Spivey said. "He went to check his cows. He looked over there and saw the body wrapped in the blanket. It was real warm."

Masters found the body at 1:15 p.m. Spivey said she may have been slain as little as 15 minutes earlier.

Investigators had some hope Tuesday night that they would quickly find the killer. But the lead they were following did not pan out.

Cathy left school at noon and went home because she was not in the mood for the soup the school cafeteria was serving. She drove her small gray foreign car home. Neither of her parents was home. Cathy went inside and apparently got a glass of iced tea in the kitchen and took it into the living room. There she was murdered.

Possibly Followed Her
 "We at first thought the killer was waiting in the house," Spivey said. "But now we think he had seen her little car there and drove in."

"He evidently knew the little girl... may have followed her home from school."

Mexia police patrolman Joe Teel said she evidently tried to fend off the knife thrusts because she had a gash on the back of her left hand.

Her father, Roy Jones, came home and found a pool of blood. He telephoned police in Mexia to ask whether they knew anything about his daughter.

Father Calls Police
 The body had been found when Jones telephoned and police and sheriff's deputies were trying to identify it.

Cathy was wearing a navy blue dress. Her undergarments were torn off and dropped near the body. The undergarments and a blond wiglet were on a bush. The clothing was torn away from the upper half of the body.

Masters said he was attracted to the body by fresh tire tracks. It had been raining and the tracks led straight to a clump of brush.

Masters looked under the brush and saw the girl's legs protruding.

President Pledges U.S. Defense To Stay Same

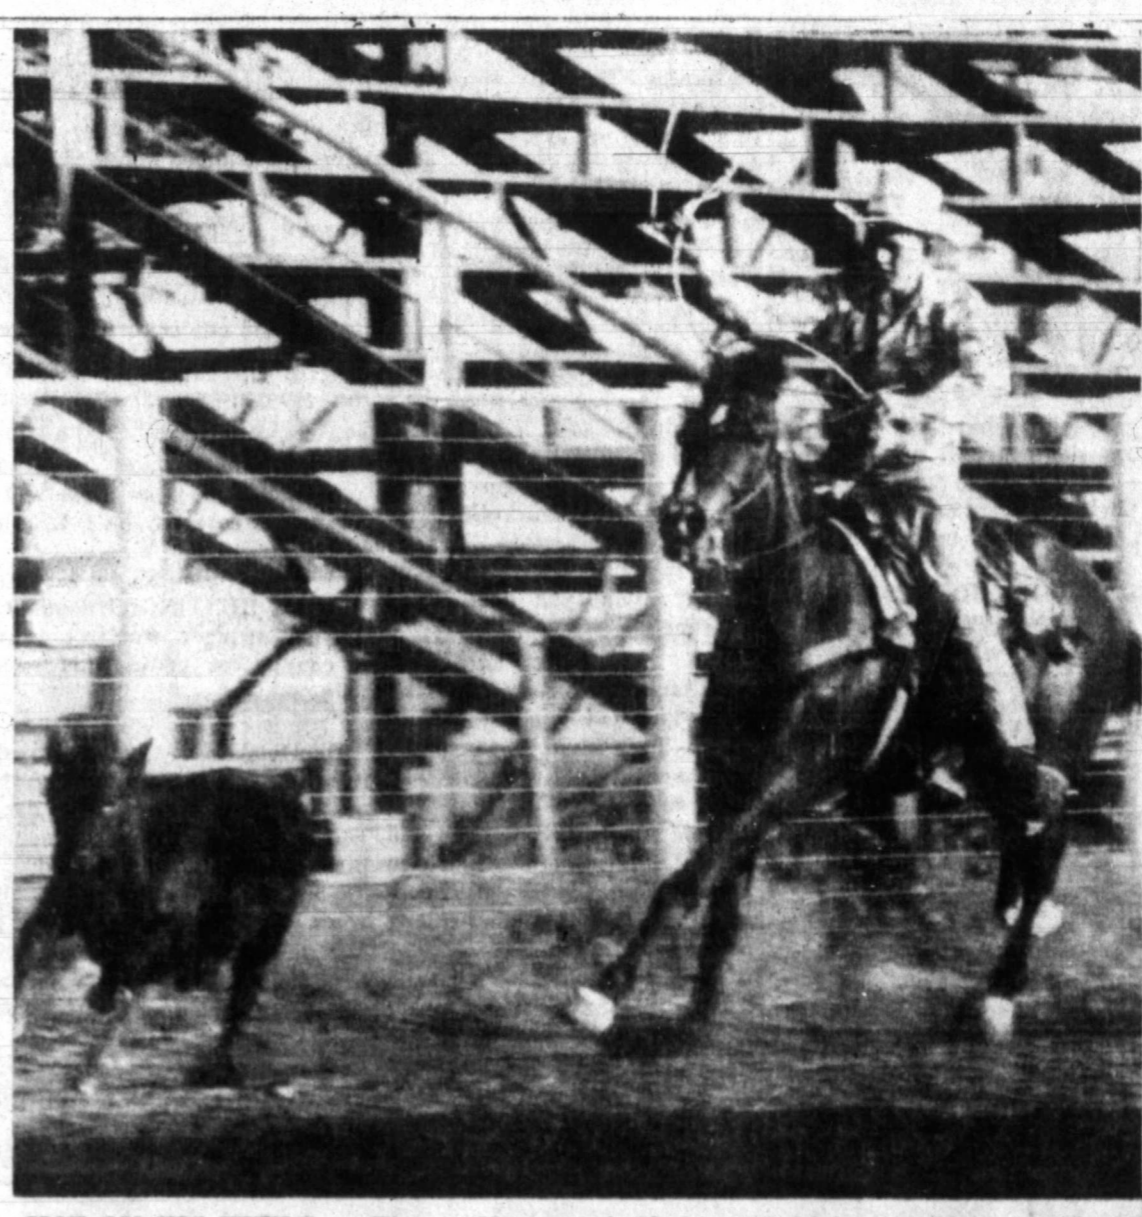

Senate Group Quizzes Builders Of C5A Aircraft

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Armed Services Committee, told it has little choice but to lay out another $1 billion for the controversial C5A aircraft, summoned the prime contractors today to explain the soaring costs of the huge jet cargo plane.

The committee planned to complete a special two-day hearing on the cost of the C5A by questioning Lockheed officials about why it was able to bid less than $2 billion for an aircraft whose total costs have now soared to over $5 billion.

Committee members have questioned whether Lockheed "bought in" by submitting an artificially low bid with the full knowledge its costs would be far higher.

Defense officials testified Tuesday procurement of the C5A had progressed to the point it would be uneconomical to cut off production. Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Jeffrey Jr., Air Force production director in charge of the C5A, said if the Lockheed contract is canceled the government would be forced to pay Lockheed $2 billion and would have nothing to show for it except "great piles of uncompleted aircraft."

Storing Of Arms Is Ruled Out

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—President Nixon pledged today to keep U.S. defenses strong despite what he called an "open season" on criticism of the armed forces. The President also ruled out unilateral disarmament by the United States.

Nixon, using some of the strongest terms he has ever used as President against the advocates of unilateral disarmament and critics of American military power, said it would be easy to "buy some popularity by going along with the new isolationists—but it would be disastrous for our nation and the world."

"If America were to turn its back on the world, a deadening form of peace would settle over this planet—the kind of peace that suffocated freedom in Czechoslovakia," he said.

"We must rule out unilateral disarmament," Nixon said. "In the real world, that simply will not work."

The chief executive addressed commencement exercises at the Air Force Academy here before continuing on to California and a Sunday meeting in the Midway Islands with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Speaking in Falcon Stadium to 675 seniors and other members of the academy cadet corps, the President said "the aggressors of this world are not going to give the United States a period of grace in which to put our domestic house in order—just as the crises within our society cannot be put on a back burner until we resolve the problem of Vietnam."

Nixon's aggressive attitude against critics of the American military was broadly aimed, apparently to include opponents of his ABM Safeguard system, as well as advocates of unilateral withdrawal from Vietnam.

"It is open season on the armed forces," he told the graduating air cadets, over two-thirds of whom will go immediately into pilot training.

"On a fighting front," he told the future officers of the Air Force, "you are asked to be ready to make unlimited sacrifice in a limited war. On the home front, you are under attack from those who question the need for a strong national defense, and indeed see a

Pampa Businessman Dick Hughes Dies

Richard G. Hughes, 63, owner of the Hughes Investment Co. and one of Pampa's most significant symbols of progress during the years from 1940 through the mid-1960s, died last night in a Fort Worth Hospital.

Mr. Hughes, who rose from a meager beginning in White Deer to one of the nation's business tycoons, had been ill in the hospital for some time.

He lived at 6609 Genoa Rd. in Fort Worth.

He was a past president of the National Association of Home Builders and was a member of President Eisenhower's advisory committee for drafting the 1954 Housing Bill.

He served on the President's Council on Aging and was active in the Action program for slum clearance. He also was a first life honorary trustee of the national Housing Center, Washington, D.C., and the 10-story Neil P. Anderson Bldg. in Fort Worth, acquired by Mr. Hughes in 1963 about a year after he moved his development operation to Fort Worth from Pampa.

Mr. Hughes had become recognized as one of the major home builders in the nation and was the first Texan to be elected to the NAHB post.

In 1965 he acquired the Shady Oaks Farm, near Fort Worth owned by Amon G. Carter, which he later sold. In 1954, House and Home Magazine carried stories on Hughes and at that time declared him a "regular Paul Bunyan from Texas." The article said "he is generally credited with being the spark that set off the home air-conditioning explosion."

Mr. Hughes was a member of the First Methodist Church of Fort Worth. Survivors are

'Dead End Kid' Leo Gorcey Dies

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Millions of movie fans of the 1930s knew actor Leo Gorcey as the leader of Hollywood's "Dead End Kids"—an urban slum boy with a heart of gold.

Gorcey, whose funeral services will be Friday, rose to stardom in the street kid role, and never escaped it the rest of his professional life.

He died Monday of a recurring ailment at Merritt Hospital in Oakland. The hospital declined to disclose the exact cause of death. Gorcey would have been 52 Tuesday.

The son of an actor, Gorcey was born in New York City. When he was 20, he and five other youths were cast as a gang of toughs in the Broadway production of Sidney Kingsley's play, "Dead End."

Two years later the six appeared in Samuel Goldwyn's movie version of the play, and achieved group stardom.

Thereafter, Hollywood relentlessly type cast them in a score of movies that were variations on the "Dead End" theme.

Gorcey's private life was turbulent. He was married five times, with three of the marriages ending in stormy divorces. In 1948 he was cleared of a charge of firing five shots at his second wife, Mrs. Evalene B. Gorcey, when she entered his Van Nuys, Calif., home with two private detectives.

PHS Gets Letter From President

For winning the presidency of Texas Association of Student Councils for 1969-70, Pampa High School has received a letter from the White House, signed by President Nixon.

The two-paragraph letter was sent to John H. Karr, student council president of PHS, and commends the school for its "culmination of a most impressive series of accomplishments during the current school year."

"There is a tendency to focus our attention on the small minority of students who are engaged in protest while ignoring the large majority who are working within and improving upon our democratic institutions," President Nixon wrote.

"The activities of Pampa Senior High School student body are in the best tradition of American youth, and I am proud of their positive contributions to their community and their nation."

Settlement Is Reached, Trash Collections Start

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI)—For the first time in nearly a week, garbage was collected today in Corpus Christi following a compromise settlement between the sanitation workers and city officials.

The City Council met Tuesday with a five-member delegation of sanitation workers who wanted sanitation supervisor Raymond Duncan replaced because of alleged incidents of discrimination. The workers, mostly Mexican-Americans, wanted Duncan replaced with a Mexican-American.

Bill Reed, administrative assistant to the mayor, said during the meeting Duncan would no longer supervise the sanitation workers. He added, however, Duncan would not be fired and would probably not leave the sanitation department.

The sanitation workers went on strike last Thursday, but promised to work around the clock, if necessary, to collect all the garbage once the dispute was settled.

At a meeting Monday, the City Council called the strike "premature, irresponsible, lacking in good faith and violating the course of action agreed to."

"We have not decided at this point as to whether Mr. Duncan will be transferred or not. We know he will not be fired. He will not be supervising the sanitation collection workers from this time on," Reed said.

"He will probably be in the same department, but hold an equal position in supervisory capacity in another area. He will not be over the collection workers," said Asst. City Manager Archie Walker.

The sanitation workers claimed Duncan called them names, cursed at them and was guilty of discrimination. The city Mayor turned the charges over for investigation to City Manager Marvin Townsend.

Gas Main Erupts in Gary, Damage Set at $340,000

GARY, Ind. (UPI)—Mrs. Dolores Dobroslcki was talking on the telephone with her mother when she heard a "crackling noise" in the kitchen. She hung up and hurried to investigate, and found flames from every burner on her stove licking the ceiling.

Minutes later her home was gone.

An apparently overloaded gas main exploded on the South Side Tuesday. For one hour, blasts ripped through homes, destroying some residences and setting fires in others.

Near hysteria swept the neighborhood as homes filled with fumes and residents ran into the streets without knowing where the next explosion would occur.

Six Homes Destroyed
 Six homes were destroyed. Nineteen were damaged. Officials estimated damage at $340,000. Nine persons were injured—officials said the casualty toll would have been higher had it not been early afternoon, when fewer people were home. Five were still in hospitals today, one in critical condition.

Thousands of persons were evacuated from the 56-square-block area as firemen rushed to the scene and gas was shut off.

Mayor Richard G. Hatcher declared an 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew in the area to prevent looting. Hatcher considered calling in the National Guard, but decided against it. He said looters would be arrested, and two juveniles found in one of the damaged homes were taken into custody.

The affected neighborhood is known as Glen Park, an all-white area whose residents have been trying to disannex from Gary, which is mostly Negro.

A spokesman for the Northern Indiana Public Service Co. said the blasts apparently were caused by a defective underground regulator that controlled gas piped into the area. Gas built up in homes and became so great pilot lights and gas jets flared up in stoves. Flames from the stoves touched off the blasts, he said.

Center of Blast
 The center of the blast was at 46th and Pierce streets. The first one came at 1:29 p.m. CDT. The first blasts blew two meter readers employed by North Indiana Public from homes. They suffered minor injuries. The blasts continued until about 2:30.

Milton and Bailey Elementary schools and Lew Wallace High School were evacuated. Firemen and policemen rushed to the area in force. Residents ran through the streets as explosions boomed the walls from homes, causing roofs to collapse and touching off raging, gas-fed fires.

"Firemen and policemen were telling people to evacuate but they didn't know where to go," said Clifford Massey. "The explosions, the low-hanging smoke—it scared me."

Massey is a fireman.

Elaine Traicoff, 19, was standing outside her home when a brick home nearby exploded. Bricks flew 60 feet into the air.

"People were running around screaming and crying. They didn't know what to do," she said.

"We can thank God that this didn't happen at night," said William Johnson, Mayor Hatcher's new special assistant for law enforcement.

No Injuries In Dallas Blaze

DALLAS (UPI)—An explosion-fed fire and dense smoke trapped 21 persons for 20 minutes Tuesday on the 34th floor of the Republic National Bank building in downtown Dallas.

No one was seriously injured as most of the victims staved off asphyxiation by hanging their heads out the smashed windows as pieces of glass peppered startled pedestrians below.

Four persons were taken to hospitals for treatment of smoke inhalation. One of them was a fireman.

The explosion and fire occurred in an unoccupied office in which workmen were applying a new floor.

"It just exploded," said Hubbar Coe, 56, of the building's maintenance department. "It was just a blinding flash and then a roaring fire. We were doing well to breathe. It was terribly smoky."

"I was making a phone call and all of a sudden smoke started filling the office," said John O'Connor, 37, an American Airlines salesman. "We had to smash windows to breathe. That's how I cut my hand."

At least 12 persons suffered from smoke inhalation or were cut by broken glass. Deputy Fire Chief F. F. Frances said the fire caused an estimated $50,000 in damages, most of it to offices other than American's.

Twelve Die, Including Eight Children in Apartment Fire

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Lawrence Smith saw the flames and screamed.

"There's a fire! My God! Save us!"

Then he cradled his five-month-old son Charles Henry in his arms and leaped from a window on top floor of the flaming three-story apartment building.

Horrorful onlookers watched Smith land face down on a cement drive. The impact jolted the infant from his arms and into a basement window well. The baby died later at a hospital.

The child was one of 12 persons who perished Tuesday when flames roared through the 30-unit apartment building.

Smith's wife and daughter were among the victims. Smith himself was critically injured. It was Kansas City's worst fire in 45 years.

Trapped In Hallway
 Smith's wife, Barbara, 19, and their daughter, Lora, 2, were found trapped in a hallway.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Johnson, both 40, and their four children all died in the flames.

"I'm surprised more people didn't jump," said James Combs, 26, who occupied a basement apartment in the brick apartment house. "I know there was a helluva lot of screaming."

James Halloran, director of the Kansas City Fire Department, said damage, most of it on the top floor, would come to about $35,000. He said the cause had not been determined.

The fire apparently started on a lower floor and swept up a dumbwaiter shaft. Other victims were Joyce Franks, 21; Eddie Goddens, 5, and his sister Scarlett Christine, 3.

Catches Baby
 Mrs. Alice Newell, 22, a neighbor, said that shortly after firemen arrived one woman tossed her baby "to a fireman halfway up the ladder. He tossed it to me. It was all wrapped in blankets. I don't think it could have been hurt if I had dropped it."

She said her roommate,

DEAR ABBY: I don't know how many wives get bawled out every week for spending too much money on groceries, but I am one of them.

I spend about $40 a week on groceries. Is that a lot? There are four of us. My husband, two children ages 4 and 5, and myself. My husband takes home about $150 a week, and we are only $300 in debt.

Now, here is why I have to spend so much for groceries. My husband has to have meat, potatoes, and gravy every night of the week. He won't eat left overs, and he doesn't like casseroles. The only vegetable he'll eat is corn. He has to have real butter on everything. He demands a milkshake with every meal! This means he consumes nearly two gallons of ice cream all by himself every week.

He insists on cake or pie and candy and cookies in every lunch, in addition to two sandwiches. In case you think he's a big man, he's not. He's 5 ft. 9 inches and weighs 160 pounds. Don't tell me to tell him to do the marketing. He won't go inside a store. He says that's my job.

What would you do, if you were me?

PENNY PINCHER
DEAR PENNY PINCHER: Tune him out when he complains. Then invite a sharp life insurance agent over to sell your man a policy that will provide handsomely for you and the children after he has eaten himself into the grave. From what you say, it won't be long now.

DEAR ABBY: How can I possibly tell my pastor to please develop a firmer handshake? He is a wonderful man, but when he shakes your hand you feel as though you have been holding an old dishrag.

ANNIE
DEAR ANNIE: It may not be necessary to tell him if you show him. Next time you give him a good firm handshake grip. Many men are reluctant to give a lady as firm a handshake as they'd give a man. It's a mistake. I don't recommend a bone crusher, but a firm handshake is the only meaningful kind.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are presently house-hunting in a fashionable suburb in Connecticut. Friends who have lived there have told us that there's a real swinging crowd of socialites living there.

They said that one of their neighbors used to throw wild parties and one of their favorite games was the "key" party. All the women would toss their housekeys into a hat, and a man would pick out a key and go home and spend the night with the lady whose key he got. Can this be true?

HOUSE HUNTING
DEAR HUNTING: I doubt it. A real swinger wouldn't take a chance on getting his own wife.

DEAR ABBY: Today I laid my little 4-month-old baby down on the front seat of our car, and in a matter of seconds his little head was badly burned.

You see, the new cars all come with seat belts, which I am not used to. The car had been parked in the sun for a few hours and the metal clasps on the seat belt got red hot.

Abby, please warn other mothers of this hazard. I wish someone had warned me.

The camping committee will meet June 10 at 7:30 a.m. at the Girl Scout Little House.

Brownie Troop 87 became Junior Troop 87 in Fly-Up ceremonies recently at Camp Mel Davis, near Lefors.

In the campfire ceremony, held in the lodge due to rain, sticks were burned to represent the three parts of the Promise and the 10 Girl Scout Laws. Each girl made her promise and received her wings and pin.

Assisting Mrs. N.G. Kadingo, leader, with the ceremony were Mrs. Richard Norwood and Mrs. David Bronner, assistant leaders; Troop 3, their sister troop; and Junior Scout Susan Davis.

"Flying-Up" were Laura Addington, Linda Bowman, Edwina Black, Jenny Lynd Bronner, Jerri Ann Carter, Carrie Lee Comer, Brenda Crocker, Jona Daniels, Cecelia DeWitt, Julie Jackson, Jannine Johnson, Anne Kadingo, Brenda Kite, Susan Michael, Jana Norwood, Tracy Rice, Martha Skoog, Brenda Smith, J'Non Black, DeAnna Hantsche, Shelly Shearer, Kellie Schaffer, and Terry Lawrence. About forty parents and relatives attended the event. The troop celebrated the occasion with a weekend campout.

Visitation Day for both sessions of Day Camp will be held from 1-3 p.m. on Wednesday of each week. Directions to the camp site will be distributed to the campers to take home Tuesday afternoon. All interested relatives and friends are invited to drive out and see the girls' accomplishments.

A Yard Work Day was held at the South Summer Little House by Troop 136 led by Mrs. Thomas Collins; Troop 61 led by Mrs. Wayne Jones; and Troop 28 led by Mrs. Gene Leigh. After the yard chores were completed, leaders and girls presented Mrs. Eleanor

Those attending were Cathy Bailey, Melinda McCuiston, Emmy Bailey, Tammy Bengt, Triska Jackson, Pamela Welch, Susan Welch, Elaine Odom, Mary Beth Karr, Cathy Collingsworth, Paula Homer, Shannon Hills, Terry Morris, Gretchen Skelly, Laquita Carter, and Kathleen Fitzgerald.

Senior Scouts Eva Whitley and Frances Palmer accompanied Pampa exceptional children on a bus trip to Amarillo. The trip, sponsored by the Pampa Life Underwriters, included a visit to Boys Ranch and a picnic at Thompson Park in Amarillo.

Cadette Girl Scouts Cindy Gill, Sonya Keen, Annette Dicosimo, and Ruth Felter from Troop 1 planned a bridging activity to meet their Challenge of Social Dependability. The girls invited all sixth grade Junior Girl Scouts from the Highland Neighborhood to an outing recently at Camp Mel Davis. Various outdoor activities were planned.

Don't court disaster. Don't store gasoline or kerosene in glass jugs or bottles; use either gasoline or kerosene to start the burning of trash, leaves or barbecue pits; use gasoline as a cleaner.

His wife, two sons, Dr. Richard B. Hughes, Lawson, and Robert Lynn Hughes, Pampa; a daughter, Mrs. James A. Jones, III, Richard Richmond, Va.; a half brother, Ray Brady, Arlington, two half sisters, Mrs. Claude Henderson, Tucson, Ariz., and Mrs. William B. Hoover, Amarillo; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday in First Methodist Church, Fort Worth with burial in Greenwood Cemetery in Fort Worth. Gause-Ware Funeral Home of Fort Worth is directing services.

At one time or another, Mr. Hughes was president and majority stockholder in approximately 40 corporations which were associated with growth and progress — building and related firms such as construction, electric, heating and air conditioning, plumbing, mortgage loans, title and abstract, insurance, real estate sales, shopping center development, office buildings, and even a radio station.

He formerly owned Radio Station KHUZ in Borger.

Mr. Hughes had been a member of or held office in many national organizations. These included:

Federal National Mortgage Association board; past president National Association of Home Builders (with whom he held all offices); President Eisenhower's advisor on housing; chairman of EPIC (Economic Planning for Industry Committee) with NAHB; chairman Texas state board of Plumbing Examiners, general advisor to the Federal National Mortgage Association;

National Housing Center in Washington; National Builders Economic Council; Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit program; ACTION (American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods; Urban Renewal Institute); NAHB past presidents' council; Texas Association of Home Builders.

Mr. Hughes made Pampa the hub of his business career, starting back in the early 1940s with local home construction.

He was credited with building approximately one-fourth of all the permanent homes in Pampa. The homes he built here run into several thousands. He also built around 4,500 homes in Borger.

A monument to the Hughes enterprises in Pampa is the Hughes Bldg. which he built in the 1950s and the Hughes Bldg. Annex in 1962.

He built many of the homes in central and east Pampa and the addition now known as North Crest.

Mr. Hughes in the past ten years sold most of his Pampa interests and currently, Hughes Bldg., Inc., is the remaining active holding here. It supervises maintenance and rentals of the Hughes Bldg.

The Hughes family moved from Pampa to Fort Worth in the early 1960s.

Six months before he was born his family lived in Snyder and his grandparents and father were killed in a cyclone that swept the area in May, 1905. His mother was found the next day in the branches of a cottonwood tree five miles away, her back broken.

Hughes was born Nov. 24, 1905, at White Deer. He grew up and went to school in White Deer and went to West Texas State College at Canyon.

He developed the versatility of being part time bookkeeper in a bank, worked in service stations, was janitor, and milked cows to finance his schooling. He went into insurance to overcome a natural shyness, and through working from daylight till dark that first year in White Deer, young Hughes sold $982,000 worth of policies and so impressed his superiors that they nominated him into the coveted "Million Dollar Club."

Insurance was his principal job until he made a stab at housing in 1940 as he sought to improve the housing gap in fast-growing Pampa. He built a project of 100 homes on the first program, designed to sell for $250 down and $17.46 monthly; and then formed a company to build 1,100 houses during World War II in Pampa alone.

Through sale of the first 500 units he acquired enough cash to buy out his partners, and then he assumed the risk of rising financial trends, held the remaining 600 homes and sold them for an average of $7,000 apiece in 1947 and 1948, offering them for a thousand dollars under the market price.

Through this maneuver he was able to put more than a million dollars into the till and launch the impressive, far-flung ventures for which he gained himself and Pampa nationwide fame.

Police Probe Theft Of Rifle, Tool Box

Theft of $110 worth of personal property was reported to Pampa police by Walter Eller Tuesday afternoon.

U. S. Bombers Set Fast Pace

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Military Command said today B52 bombers flew their heaviest strikes of the year in May, hitting Communist buildups 272 times despite the protests of congressional critics at home.

Maintaining the record pace, five waves of the Stratoforters dropped 500 tons of bombs overnight onto the hills around Dak Tu where 945 guerrillas have died trying to close in on the base in the past three weeks.

The Viet Cong stepped up their terrorist campaign today, killing 22 civilians and wounding 27 in the Mekong Delta with bombs. An American civilian was wounded in a hand grenade blast in Saigon.

danger in the power of the defenders.

"You are entering the military service of your country when the nation's potential adversaries abroad were never stronger and your critics at home were never more numerous."

Then the chief executive proceeded to list some of the fundamental differences of opinion between his critics and his thoughts on defense. He rejected one school of thought that held to the idea that understanding with the Soviet Union and Communist China would come through downgrading of American alliances and what would amount to a unilateral reduction of U.S. arms.

He rejected, too, the idea that by becoming conciliatory, accommodating and unable to cope with the threat of war that the United States would increase the chances of peace.

CERTAIN DRUGS NOT FOR SALE
Because we are a pharmacy we are more than casually concerned with the so-called "Hip Drugs" of the modern generation — "Acid," "Pot," "Pep" Pills, and glue.

LSA IS CALLED "ACID"
A LSD "trip" could be disastrous, for LSD is a very potent, highly hallucinatory, experimental drug that has not yet been proved to be fully medical helpful. Its effects and side effects make it improbable it will ever be safe for regular prescription use. We do not even stock this dangerous drug.

PEP PILLS ARE AMPHETAMINE DRUGS
Uned conditions controlled by physicians the amphetamines are an effective treatment in many medical cases. Uncontrolled use can be very dangerous. We keep them for use only in prescriptions.

POT IS MARIJUANA
Although not considered by some experts to be habit forming itself, it is said to lead to a desire for the more potent narcotics. Narcotics are miraculous in relieving pain, but they are disastrous in their habit forming, body destroying effects. The sale of narcotics is tightly regulated for prescriptions. We keep them in a safe place.

Methodists Set Thursday Meet

An opportunity for persons interested to ask questions concerning actions of the recent United Presbyterian Assembly will be afforded here Thursday, according to the Rev. Martin Hager, first United Presbyterian minister here.

Thus far there is not enough data to enable sociologists to determine with exactitude just what impact all this drumming and guitar playing is having on Western civilization.

Recent studies have shown that a disturbing percentage of high school seniors already have hearing deficiencies. And they spent at least their cradle days in a relatively low decibel environment.

I didn't raise my son to be a drummer. His case only illustrates how quickly the youth of today become dominated by influences outside the home.

He had hardly begun his first year in public school before he was pleading to take drum lessons.

For more than six months I managed to stand him off, using the grace period to try to get him interested in the mandolin, which is one of the few sensible musical instruments still extant.

It was a futile campaign and my wife finally interposed.

Business Shows Upward Trend For Month, Year

By The Babson Staff

Bolestered by a powerful momentum underlying the economy, general business held to its upward course during May. But as in recent months, additional signs of erosion emerged indicating that the long-awaited deceleration process may be under way. Nevertheless, the Babson Composite Business Chart maintained its April peak of 135.6, up from 131.7 a year ago.

Output of business equipment was one of the prominent strong points in the economic picture. Production of aircraft and equipment, primary nonferrous metals, fabricated metal products, and consumer staples supplied additional strength to keep over-all business on the upbeat.

Most other important industrial lines held near seasonal norms. But the vital steel and auto sectors were somewhat disappointing. Auto production was hampered by labor disputes for the second consecutive month while the advance in steel output leveled off in May.

Further evidence of erosion in the economic underpinning could be seen in the employment and income sectors. The downturn in employment noted in April (seasonally adjusted) apparently continued during May. The significantly slower advance of personal income in April likewise continued. While the unemployment rate has not yet shown any significant upturn, and retail trade remains encouragingly high, the downturn in employment and the slower rate of advance in personal income will bear watching as to their impact upon confidence.

Unquestionably the economy still possesses considerable vitality, due to the momentum built up during the long boom. The sharp rebound of new orders for durable goods in April gave additional support to the economy. However, this must be regarded as temporary, since it reflected stepped-up buying of capital equipment to beat the feared cut-off of the 7 per cent investment tax credit. Hence odds still favor a gradual cooling of the overheated economy.

Nuevo Larado Is Improving Waste

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI)—Mexico's secretary of patrimony (interior) told health officials today the border city of Nuevo Laredo was pioneering extensive new sanitation programs and financing them through import-export taxes.

"In two-and-one-half years we have accomplished projects unique in the history of the border cities," Dr. Jorge Abarca Calderon told health officers at the United States-Mexico Border Public Health Association Conference.

Some 300 persons from Mexico City and six Mexican states and from Washington, D. C., Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California are attending the four-day conference through Friday.

"We have rehabilitated the entire water system in Nuevo Laredo and extended it out to two ejidos (farming communities) nearby. At the ejidos for the first time in 45 years they have potable water now."

"And the sanitation improvements are great—we have two sewer systems now. One is to collect the rainwater for use and the other handles the sewage, the dark waters," Abarca explained.

And Another Thing

By RUTH LEWIS

The other day I telephoned Cabot Co. and asked for an employee. The person who answered told me, "Oh, he's not here; he won't be back until Wednesday."

"He's on his long-off," the speaker added. "Long-off, I had never heard the word before, but doesn't it have a beautiful sound?"

One could do so much with a five-day-long-off. But, come to think of it, what exactly?

A local feature I find interesting is the Sunday night radio program composed of local ministers discussing timely topics. One of these last Sunday was the delicate balance of interrelationship between parents and their offspring. An parents themselves mentioned old, but always new, consideration. Several clergymen, their own experiences and one of these, a young father (I am not sure which minister it was) related an amusing expression of sibling rivalry between his two-year-old daughter and her brother, aged four.

The father had been absent several days and on his return picked up what he described as an enormous stuffed turtle for the little girl. As he handed it to her she began to show her appreciation volubly, to the delight of her elders.

But the little boy was discomfited. "How come you didn't bring me a turtle?" he asked. "Oh, you're too big," his father told him. "You're four years old."

"Then how come I didn't get a turtle when I was two?"

Several other fathers mentioned problems that affected themselves, as well as all parents. Until Father Hynes of St. Vincent's broke in.

"That's something we priests don't have to worry about," he said smugly.

Ending the discussion on a light note. And perhaps that is exactly the note such problems should be ended on.

(Now don't condemn me for using "a preposition to end a sentence with.")

I have expert authority for this usage which I can cite at the drop of a hat, but readers might be bored with details. However, there is the little boy who ended a sentence with no fewer than FIVE prepositions, and he was right too!

The youngster had been put to bed against his will and wasn't feeling too happy when his mother told him, "I'll be up later to read to you."

When she came through the door, volume in hand, he demanded querulously, "What did you bring that book I don't want to be read to out of up for?"

And a man our family knows likes this one: "This is the hardest table I ever saw to get out from under in back of."

I am mutely apologizing all over the place for a comment I made last Sunday about valedictorians being all boys. And here, right under my nose, was a GIRL valedictorian, Sue Sanders.

I can explain, but my explanation, like all explanations, does not excuse. One of my jobs, you see, is to check the area newspapers and to reprint such items as are of general interest. The papers—such as Perryton, McLean, Miami, and so on all published photographs of the top scholars of 1969 and these, without exception, were boys. The valedictorians, I mean. There was one—just one—lone girl salutatorian.

Since Pampa schools do not come under my reportorial range I paid no attention to the winners there, although these had been noted in this newspaper.

It was not Sue Sanders who called my attention to this, but I apologize to her anyway.

Perhaps Sue is entitled to extra special honor as the only girl valedictorian in the entire area.

Smothers Had Something Going

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Regardless of whether one is a fan of the Smothers Brothers, they raised a very serious point in their recent fuss with CBS-TV.

The brothers, who were fired by the network, were, as all viewers know, extremely critical of the American position in the Vietnam War.

They made this clear repeatedly in their series of highly contemporary comedy and music.

There are those, in fact, who—while admiring the brothers—feel that one of the reasons for their drop in the ratings was that their political views were coming on rather heavily in the context of their show.

If the performers with one view of social and political life are subject to criticism by video people, shouldn't the same principle apply to entertainers of other viewpoints who make clear their feelings.

I believe the brothers brought up the point that Bob Hope has a position quite opposite from theirs, and yet no one in television—with authority—criticizes him.

Yet, on a matter of principle, it is fair to ask: If one entertainer is allowed to take a clear political position on television, why not all? And if one is clamped down on for political express, again—why not all? Popularity of a viewpoint, or unpopularity, has nothing to do with the principle. That is not what this country is all about.

Perhaps it is a purely business outlook that decides what is allowed—and what isn't—on video. Hope's specials are the most highly rated group of shows on video. His annual programs built around his visits to troops in Vietnam are virtually the most popular single television outings of the year.

Warren's Tone Changes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With But Warren said the goal is now June 23. The extension is partly due to the sudden resignation last month of Abe Fortas as an associate justice.

Fortas' resignation under fire meant that all his work, finished and unfinished, had to be distributed among the eight other members of the court for revision or completion.

The 78-year-old Warren said in a speech to the District of Columbia Judicial Conference that judges should be "willing to fight" for changes they believe are needed to permit them to do their job more effectively, such as expediting trials of accused persons.

Warren's eyes appeared to well with tears when 200 lawyers and judges in his audience gave him a farewell ovation. He told them he had planned to move back to California after retirement but found he "just couldn't pull up stakes in Washington" and would stay here.

His retirement is effective at the end of the current term. Originally, it appeared the term would end June 16—and there was even some speculation the court would wind up June 6.

37TH STATE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—New Mexico has become the 37th state to agree to upgrade its state meat inspection program to federal standards, according to the Department of Agriculture. Under the 1967 Wholesome Meat Act, all states were given until December, 1969 to bring their intrastate inspection up to federal standards.

MAJOR PROBLEM

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says since President Andrew Jackson there has been a new postmaster, with new policy, on the average of every 3.1 years. "This lack of a continuity management" is a major problem that would be eliminated through the creation of the Nixon administration's proposal for a government-owned corporation to run the Post Office, he said. Blount testified before the House Post Office Committee.

Arnies' Army Can March in U.S. Open Golf

By United Press International
Arnie's Army will march again in the U.S. Open golf championship this year, but the followers of Tommy Bolt, Bob Goalby and Ed Furgol will have to break ranks and parade elsewhere.

Arnold Palmer, whose army of followers has attracted attention for over a decade, Tuesday earned the right to compete in the 1969 Open at Houston, June 12-15, by turning in the low medal score at the McKeesport, Pa., qualifying site.

Palmer, forced to qualify for the Open for only the second time in his illustrious career, had rounds of 70 and 68 and was one of eight qualifiers from a field of 52 at McKeesport.

However, Bolt, Goalby and Furgol failed to qualify at their respective sites and thus will deprive the Open of three of professional golf's biggest names.

American League Roundup

Harmon Just 'Kills' The Yankees

The New York Yankees are learning why Harmon Killebrew is called "The Killer." Killebrew smashed a two-run home run in the first inning Tuesday night to start the Minnesota Twins on their way to a 4-0 victory over the Yankees. Killebrew had beaten the Yankees with a home run only the night before when he smashed a three-run shot off Stan Bahnsen in a 3-2 Twins' victory.

Tony Oliva had a solo home run in the sixth inning and tripled in Killebrew with the other Minnesota run.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston ripped Chicago, 8-2. Kansas City downed Washington, 5-3. Baltimore outlasted Oakland, 3-1 in 11 innings. California beat Detroit, 4-2, and Cleveland shaded Seattle, 3-1.

Rico Petrocelli, Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith homered to give Jim Lonborg his fifth straight victory as the Red Sox drubbed the White Sox. Petrocelli hits his 17th homer the season in the fifth to tie Oakland's Reggie Jackson and Willie McCovey of San Francisco for the major league lead. Yastrzemski drove in four runs with a two-run homer, a single and a triple as Lonborg went the distance for the first time in six starts this season and posted only third third complete game victory since 1967, Boston's pennant-winning year. Lonborg is now 5-0.

Joe Foy's two-run single ignited a four-run fifth inning rally which enabled the Kansas City Royals to snap a six game losing streak with their victory over the Senators.

Wally Bunker pitched a six-hitter and struck out 10 in pitching his first complete games since last August. The Royals trailed 2-1 in the fifth when they put runners on second and third with two walks and an infield out. Foy singled to give Kansas City a 3-2 lead and they boosted the advantage to 5-2 when Ed Kirkpatrick walked and Lou Piniella ripped a two-run double.

Speedy Wills Retires Tuesday
MONTREAL (UPI)—Maury Wills—one of the most intense, combative and controversial players of the past decade—retired from baseball Tuesday night.

Fast as a whipper, Wills flashed past baseball immortal Ty Cobb to establish the major league record of 104 stolen bases while playing for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1962. Cobb's record was 96 set in 1915.

Wills, now with the Montreal Expos, retired just before his team took the field against the San Francisco Giants. The announcement was made by Jim Fanning, general manager of the Expos.

clubhouse as the Giants romped 9-3 and dealt the Expos their 17th straight loss.

The 17 straight losses equal the record for an expansion team which was set—you guessed it—by the Mets in 1962.

The Chicago Cubs defeated the Houston Astros, 4-2, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Atlanta Braves, 5-2, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-3, and the San Diego Padres shaded the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-5, in other National League games.

Hundley Singles
Randy Hundley singled home one run and Don Young followed with a run-scoring double in the sixth inning to help extend the Cubs' winning streak to five games. Bill Hands allowed seven hits, including Joe Morgan's seventh homer, in raising his record to 5-5 while Denny Lemaster suffered his seventh defeat against three victories.

Steve Carlton struck out nine batters in a five-hitter and Vada Pinson and Joe Torre each drove in two runs for the Cardinals. The Cardinals rapped out nine hits, including three by Pinson and two by McCarver, who stretched his batting streak to 10 games. Milt Pappas was the loser.

Alex Johnson singled home Bobby Tolan with the lead run in the seventh inning, stole second and scored another run which gave the Reds a 5-3 lead. Jim Merritt, acquired from Minnesota during the winter, pitched a six-hitter for his sixth win while Bob Veale suffered his sixth loss. Roberto Clemente homered for the Pirates giving him 2,417 hits and third place on the Pirates' all-time hit list.

Perryton Hosts Pampa Legion

PERRYTON — The Pampa American Legion baseball team opens the 1969 season, here tonight against Perryton at 7:30 p.m.

Pampa will be playing only its third game this summer. The legion team played Tascosa a doubleheader Sunday and dropped both games.

Closed Door Meeting May Be Held on NFL Realignment

NEW YORK (UPI)—If past performances are any indication, National Football League club owners will wait until they are again locked behind closed doors before agreeing on a divisional realignment.

The 13 NFL owners have another six months before they will be forced to reach a decision, since schedules for the 1970 season will not be drawn up until December and the realignment, which is part of the National and American League merger, does not go into effect until next year.

Another attempt to reach some sort of agreement failed Tuesday.

It took a series of continuous, all-night sessions last month before NFL owners could agree on which three teams would shift to the AFL to balance both leagues with 13 teams for the start of the merger agreement. And non-stop meetings might be needed again before the owners can agree on internal realignment.

The biggest hangup confronting the owners, according to Commissioner Pete Rozelle, is the provision calling for a unanimous vote on any realignment plan. Rozelle revealed Tuesday that the owners had reduced from 16 to nine the number of plans still under consideration, but admitted "at least one or two owners" objected to each plan. In each case, different owners voiced their disapproval.

Following the shifting of Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Baltimore from the NFL to the AFL, the American League quickly agreed on its three division makeup for the start of the 1970 season. Cleveland and Pittsburgh joined with Cincinnati and Houston to form one division while Baltimore, New York, Boston, Buffalo and Miami formed a second grouping.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability.

Our Capsule Policy

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

FTC To Probe Auto Prices

The Federal Trade Commission again is demonstrating that it believes people are not intelligent enough to protect themselves from businessmen, who just might try to fool the people.

equipment or by redesigning equipment that once was "standard" or "optional."

It pretty generally is agreed the auto companies will have to increase prices on the 1970 models, because of their increased costs. Inflation has hit those companies with higher salaries and costs of materials just as it has hit everybody else.

We believe most auto shoppers know what they want and will ask the dealer to quote a price with the equipment they want. From there they will start dickering for the best deal they can get. We doubt if many of them are fooled by gimmicks.

Principally what concerns the trade commission is that manufacturers may "gimmick" their new prices by deletion of investigations such as this.

PTA's Expanding Horizons

The PTA used to be regarded as sort of a Boy Scout Girl Scout organization that performed honorable tasks for the welfare of the community and kept itself free of scandal and clear of controversy.

problems bearing from Hon. Glenn A. Olds, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

But the PTA hit the big time when somebody discovered that all those parents and teachers in all those cities and towns and school districts throughout the USA could be used to influence legislation. It didn't matter whether all those parents and teachers approved or didn't, the effect was the same when those putting on the pressure merely claimed they represented the PTA.

Delegates balloted "to elect new officers to lead the 10 million membership of the National PTA for the next two years," the national PTA announced. You may be sure that when the national PTA is putting the pressure on congressmen in Washington, it won't be concerned about how many of those 10 million members it actually represents.

The PTA long ago ceased to be concerned about home-school-community only. Its horizons are ever expanding. At the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Cleveland, the PTA was prepared to "consider the nation's relation to world

While Rome Burns

Once again U.S. companies are issuing their Annual Reports. Again, as in recent years, these reports are colorful, as well as factual, summaries of financial operating experience. They display the accomplishments and future hopes of the major enterprises that keep the wheels of American production and distribution turning. Implicit in the typical Annual Report is the message to the investor which, summed up in a few words, means "we have done the best we can to justify the investment of your savings in the company, and we hope we will be able to do an even better job for you next year."

profits must be earned or investors will turn their backs, and the company will perish for lack of capital for expansion. Free-wheeling attacks on an industry, such as the oil industry, are a far greater disservice to the public, oil industry customers and stockholders than most people will ever realize.

What many industry critics do not seem to realize is that the management of a major petroleum company, for example, must serve two masters — customer and stockholder. Prices must be kept at the lowest practicable level to attract customers, and

This threat was well-stated in the Annual Report of one oil company when it said, "Looking ahead to 1969, we anticipate an increasing demand for products and services which promises new opportunities for profitable growth. Realization of those opportunities, however, will require a willingness on the part of our government to act decisively in containing the monetary inflation which is eroding our economic gains." In short, the investigators fiddle while Rome burns.

Let's Clear the Air

There is growing feeling in the Nation's Capital that the latest in the long chain of events known as the "Otepka Case" is no more than a political game.

Control Board, which has become an active unit rather than the ghost board it has been in the past. Attorney General Mitchell is expected to utilize the Board in the investigation of operations by radicals on the nation's campuses.

Otto Otepka was dismissed from his State Department security evaluation post for giving information to a legally constituted committee in the U.S. Senate. No one to our knowledge has ever questioned the validity of his testimony. In fact he was reinstated at the State Department by Dean Rusk, but assigned to a lower position. Rather than accept the new assignment, Otepka decided to fight for complete vindication.

Four U.S. Senators, including Teddy Kennedy, have announced that they want an investigation of the source of funds for Otepka's legal defense during his long fight for reinstatement, the stated purpose being to ascertain whether or not members of the John Birch Society contributed to the fund.

President Nixon has now appointed Mr. Otepka to a post on the Subversive Activities

Control Board in reverse.

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

(The following is a column which originally ran June 7, 1966. We are repeating it by popular request.—The Editors)

"Why don't you join the twentieth century?" inquired my friend, "or, would you rather we'd just stop the world and let you off?"

It never ceases to amaze me that so many people are willing to meekly accept anything the politicians, or even the majority vote, may decree, right or wrong.

Mark Twain said, "Whenever you find that you are on the side of the majority, it's time to return."

History is not made by majorities. History is made by dedicated minorities. The turn history takes, therefore, depends on which minority is more dedicated and effective: The minority working for evil, or the minority working for good.

The most effective minority in this country for the past 30 years has been the minority working for evil—the collectivists. Collectivism—Big Government—is evil because it unnecessarily restricts—and finally obliterates—man's freedom. God made men free.

"But you can't turn the clock back," people say. Of course you can. You can turn the clock any way you want to. Our forefathers turned the clock back when they wrote the Declaration of Independence. Men had been free before that and had, as we have done, sold out their freedoms for a mess of pottage.

"But what are you conservatives for?" they ask. We're for turning the clock ahead, to freedom.

I'm for learning from the mistakes of others, since I can't possibly live long enough to make them all myself. For old age, because I'm against the alternative. For understanding life backward and living it forward.

For doing what is right and disregarding "world opinion."

For winning the war in Vietnam as soon as possible by whatever means are necessary.

For blockading Cuba and helping anti-communist Cubans and other Latin Americans return to Cuba and destroy the Castro regime and the Russians and the missile bases pointed at us. For reasserting and maintaining the Monroe Doctrine. For retaining our ownership and control of the Panama Canal, by force if necessary. For retaining the Connelly Reservation, restricting the jurisdiction of the World Court. For a redefinition of treason to determine where one-worldism ends and treason begins.

For getting out of the United Nations and getting into a council of free nations, as suggested by Herbert Hoover. For peaceful non-existence of the UN. It will quit paying its bills. For restoring to Congress the exclusive right to make treaties, tariffs and war. For the original Bricker Amendment protecting the United States from treaties, executive agreements and secret diplomacy.

For ending "unilateral" disarmament and for restoring our capacity to defend ourselves against any imaginable combination of enemies.

Satchel Paige, baseball's Methuselah, said: "Don't ever look back — somethin' might be gainin' on you." I'm for looking back, only to find out how much it's gaining, how it got there and how to gain on it. For realizing that "those who ignore history are condemned to repeat it."

Wit and Whimsy

Every day for three years a certain train on a Southern line had been late. But one day to everyone's amazement it rolled into the station exactly on time. In gratitude and to commemorate this historic event, the delighted passengers made up a purse which they presented to the engineer. But he refused it regretfully, saying "I sure hate to do this, because I could use that money, but I gotta admit that this here is yesterday's train."

The Manion Forum

By MARILYN MANION

During last year's presidential campaign, Richard Nixon criticized Lyndon Johnson for allowing the Pueblo to be seized by a "fourth-rate military power like North Korea."

The election is over; the erstwhile campaigner is now our President. And on April 14, a U.S. reconnaissance plane was shot down, over international waters, by that very "fourth-rate power." Thirty-one Americans were killed in the incident.

Many questions demand to be answered in the wake of this second outrage by North Korea in 15 months. First of all, after the Pueblo experience, why was a plane flying border reconnaissance near North Korea without protection? Representative Otis G. Pike of New York observed a number of similarities between the Pueblo capture and the downing of our EC-121:

"The manner in which it was reviewed and approved by higher authority; the manner in which the decision was made not to protect it; the fact that, being unprotected, there was no possible way to help it simply because they were closer than we were."

If reconnaissance flights are vital to our national defense — and this writer firmly believes they are essential — then they should be protected. President

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

Q—After a complete check-up my doctor reported the following findings: Labile hypertension, spina bifida occulta S-1 and hyperostosis frontalis interna. In simple language, what do these terms mean? Are they serious?

A—Labile hypertension means that your systolic blood pressure (the upper reading) is high and fluctuates widely. This is usually caused by nervous apprehension in the presence of a doctor or a blood pressure apparatus. It is not serious if the lower reading is below 100.

Spina bifida occulta is a congenital defect in which the right and left halves of the vertebrae forming the spinal canal fail to fuse at some point—in your case at the level of the first sacral vertebra. "Occulta" signifies that there is no bulging out of the contents of the spinal canal. This type of defect can be discovered only by x-ray. It is of no significance.

Hyperostosis frontalis interna is a thickening of the frontal bone in your skull. This condition is most frequently seen in men who are past 40. The cause is unknown. The condition may be associated with headache but usually produces no symptoms. No treatment other than headache tablets, if needed, is required.

Q—My doctor told me to take mineral oil every night for my diverticulitis. Since taking it I have not had any symptoms. I read that you do not approve of mineral oil. Please comment.

One man says that the average voter will butcher out at about 140 pounds. It can be assumed that the figure does not count the intestines and brains. These organs have all but disappeared in modern times. Include me in that arraignment years ago governments would not have dared to do the things to citizens that they are now doing. From City Halls up to Washington, we are being enslaved by experts, communists, and general do-gooders. We haven't the nerve to even openly question these experts.

All city commissions are looking around for different ways to fatten the city treasury, and they have already figured out some "good projects" on which to squander money.

The average voter protests feebly, but is mostly afraid of the voice too loud an objection for fear his business might be hurt. It simply doesn't pay to buck the establishment, and every city has an establishment.

Countries also figure that "keep up" they had better grab more earnings of the people, so as not to drop behind. The odd angle to these experts is that their cracked schemes are often accepted as pure truth by the voters.

The truth is that we have become so accustomed to being robbed that we accept it as a way of life, and accept the word of the robbers as Holy Writ.

Washington is the master mind of all the clan. The confidence game actually started in Washington, and apt teachers and students were easily recruited at the County and City level.

Tolerance of communistic ideas started in Washington. Now we condone the communist doctrine down to the precinct level. We are scared. We don't like being robbed but we are afraid to say so.

When the time comes that we shall be stood against the wall, then we will understand our folly; then we will cry for the rocks to fall upon us, we will pray, but our prayers will be too late.

Jacob Abbot, many years ago, said in his history—"The enslaving robbing Government takes Stateism to install, but once the people accept it, it is almost impossible to root out."

This day we are with our Idols. We worship business, political offices, a freshly-washed car on Sunday morning, a well waxed floor, a fresh hair-do for the week-end, and many other things, like money.

The Bible says—"Ephraim is with his Idols, let him alone, let his Idols save him, if they can."

JACK (to a friend)—Did you hear about the karate expert who was drafted in the Army. He killed himself while learning to salute.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

'Incentive' For Americans

By PAUL HARVEY
Gen. Hershey is opposing his own Commander in Chief on the military draft. This revolt in the ranks probably will have little effect on Administration policy or on congressional reaction, but let's make sure.

I've debated this subject eyeball-to-eyeball with Gen. Hershey and his mind is made up: he does not want to be "distracted by facts."

His latest utterance on the subject, however, demands discussion.

Gen. Hershey, publicly opposing the Nixon plan for an all-volunteer Army, said it is not "the American way" to "go into something for no reason other than to get money."

In fairness, I suppose the idealistic general meant that we should all be eager to serve our country at personal sacrifice, as indeed he and countless selfless others have served.

It is, however, a distorted military concept which suggests that "the American way" is the present course of involuntary servitude.

The civilian tradition of our country has allowed compulsory mobilization only in times of true emergency. Many of us are unwilling to accept recent unbecoming involvements in Southeast Asia as an "emergency" for our own country.

Today's enlightened generation is quite rightly unwilling to concede that we could or should try to make the world safe for democracy when we've not succeeded in making Havana—or indeed New York City—safe yet.

Aside from the questionable morality of this present involvement, however, President Nixon has pledged himself to abolish the draft as soon as the Vietnamese war has phased out. Meanwhile, he has suggested a sensible compromise which will allow young Americans, after the draft-eligible age of 18, to proceed to plan their lives and their careers.

We have been fighting today's wars with the weapons of the last one—masses of marching men.

America's 6 per cent of this planet's mothers cannot produce enough boy babies to continue that practice and we can bleed to death trying.

In tomorrow's confrontations, our enemies must be kept at arms' length by potentially devastating superweapons.

War in the technological stratosphere cannot depend on schoolboys; it will require extremely skilled and competent technicians. These deserve and will demand pay commensurate with their preparation.

I do not share Gen. Hershey's recently expressed fear that not enough volunteers will volunteer.

I think Uncle Sam has learned an important lesson from these dead-end, no-win, pulled-punches jungle wars. From now on we will likely find our own business—keeping a nuclear club in the closet just to be sure everybody else believes.

There will be more than enough volunteers for that duty as there are always more than enough volunteers for policeman, test pilot and astronaut. But a man has to believe in what he's doing.

The American Way

By D. R. SEGAL

If the newspapers are reporting this thing accurately, I think I'd just as soon they stopped the world and let me off. A number of state legislatures are considering measures which would make it illegal to take guns, saps, brass knucks, switchblades or poison blow guns on campus. How's that again?

Has it been legal to tote instruments of instant destruction onto the campus all along? Did existing laws against carrying weapons exclude campuses? (Campus?) Come again?

I noticed, too, that there has been some reluctance to use National Guardsmen, state cops or local fuzz on campus in time of insurrection riot, arson or looting. I never understood that either. Have campuses been some kind of shooting preserve, or is it that college students can't be expected to observe the law against kidnapping because it might curtail their "academic freedom?"

Even goofier, I should say, is that the aforementioned bills to outlaw guns on campus specifically provide that the Army, National Guard and duly constituted authority may wear side-arms when quelling a campus riot. Is it necessary to give them this written permission, reckon?

The presence of uniformed, armed cops or soldiers on a campus to preserve the rights and insure the safety of lawabiding students and faculty members has been construed, lately, as a fascist incursion into the rights of vandals, arsonists, kidnappers and political provocateurs. Only in the last few days has anyone in Washington had the wit to inquire about the rights of students who don't want to join the rebellion. What are their guarantees?

College presidents have abdicated, resigned and otherwise turned and run under fire. It's a good thing they are "educating" our young people instead of leading them under fire in Vietnam, isn't it? Kind of gets you right here, when you read that some egghead who has been drawing thirty or forty G's a year, sitting on his piazza and casting pearls, has hailed it first sign of a rumble.

Father Hesburg of Notre Dame is being celebrated in wine and song for having said, simply, that he isn't going to turn the shop over to a gang of criminals. You can't fault the padre for that, but you can wonder: that such a reasonable and expectable attitude should attract so much attention. When a fellow is celebrated for getting an infield single, you know what kind of a league he's batting in.

If there is a modicum of comfort to be derived from the academe it is that no fat and happy alumnus is immune. The old grads of the church-related little colleges with crossbred alumni used to belong to the I Can't Happen Here club, founded by the late A. Hitler. Oh, how they cringe when Deep Fry U. has the same kind of trouble as the big old state university!

A young man of my acquaintance has accused me, correctly, of having very little patience with those who major in rioting and take a minor in looting. I said I would jail the criminals and not worry about those who simply boycotted classes. Either they will flunk out or (how embarrassing!) they'll prove you can get a passing grade without going to class. Either way, I have no hassle with them, whatever. I think, perhaps, we have confused the criminal element with those who a) just want to work off some adrenalin raising hell and b) those who don't want to go to class. This last-mentioned group might be okay. Some classes are pretty grim and, besides, maybe the professor is burning down the library or involved in some other act of academic freedom.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION—The Golden Rule, according to Moffatt's translation, and the King James version are just about the same. It reads: "Whatsoever you would men to do to you, do just the same to them; that is the meaning of the law and the prophets." (Matthew 7:12)

The question is, then, can a man who believes in the Golden Rule rationally believe in taxation?

Answer: It would seem to be irrational to believe in taxation and claim to believe in the Golden Rule. We know of no one who would want another person to force him to pay for something he didn't want to use. So according to the Golden Rule, he should not force others to pay for things they don't want. Yet this is exactly what taxation does. For example taxes are used to finance the draft and support a conscript military service and many people oppose conscription. Taxes pay the costs of wars and very few people really want wars.

While most people claim to believe in the Golden Rule and claim to use it as their guide of conduct, they thus do not rationally live by it. That undoubtedly is part of the cause of the trouble and fix we're in today in the United States and throughout the world.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A question has arisen as to why it was necessary for a sizable contingent of U.S. congressmen to attend the air show in Paris this week.

1. Congressmen need to be well informed in order to legislate intelligently.

2. Some legislation transcends national boundaries, thrusting Congress into the area of global responsibility.

Information Obtained

3. Information involving other areas of the world can best be obtained by sifting those areas.

The Paris Air Show, for example, provides a congressman with an excellent opportunity to familiarize himself with the Paris Air Show.

He could stay in Washington and let witnesses testifying at congressional hearings describe the air show to him. He could also read newspaper accounts and look at films.

But none of these methods of gathering information serves as a satisfactory substitute for seeing the air show in person.

A congressman who has seen the Paris Air Show with his own eyes obviously is better informed about the Paris Air Show than a congressman who has never been to the Paris Air Show.

Consequently, he is better prepared to act intelligently should Congress happen to consider any legislation involving the Paris Air Show.

No Legislation Pending

At the present time, to my knowledge, there is no Paris Air Show legislation pending. But that doesn't mean the trip to Paris was unfruitful.

"SOUTHERN BELLE"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the third time the Kansas City Southern and the Louisiana & Arkansas Railroad has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to discontinue its "Southern Belle" passenger train. The railroad cited declining patronage and high operating costs and asked the train be discontinued July 3. The Southern Belle runs between Kansas City and New Orleans.

Highlights And Sidelights From The State Capitol

By — VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN, TEX. — Texas lawmakers have written the record of the 61st regular session, but their toughest job — levying the taxes to pay for what they have ordered — remains to be done.

In adopting a $2.8 billion one-year state budget (for 1970), they invited a special session to complete appropriations for 1971 and to decide on the inevitable major tax bill. Legislative leaders, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher, claim the latter will be smaller if the finance showdown can be delayed until next year.

Gov. Preston Smith, who holds the key to the timing of the special session, has made clear from the start that he feels the Legislature should face up to a biennial budget and the raising of needed revenue. He more more could veto the single-year bill and call another session immediately — or accept it and schedule the remaining financial work whenever he pleases.

Many all-time legislative records have topped at this session. Certainly, the 61st session passed more legislation than any before it, and it was committed in advance to spending more money.

A multitude of laudable ends were attained. Giant strides were made in the field of education. Teachers got a $61.9 million pay raise. Overhauls were ordered in the field of vocational and technical education. Three new medical schools, a dental school and two new nursing schools were authorized. Also, three new universities, plus an experimental upper level branch college in Laredo. Never have so many new higher educational facilities been launched in a single session.

A master water plan got all the legislative support it could expect. Workmen's compensation laws were updated. Sweeping controls were approved over air and water pollution. A constitutional amendment to legalize the sale of liquor by the drink was submitted, along with many other proposed changes in the constitution. State employees got a 6.8 percent pay raise.

Texas' 61st Legislature was a busy, productive session. It was a liberal-spending one with the bills yet to be paid.

"The citizenship of Texas will applaud our work at this session and give us their full support when we return to appropriate and finance the second year of the biennium," concluded Speaker Mutscher.

LAW ENFORCEMENT PLAN ADVANCED — Texas' new State Criminal Justice Council has recommended a comprehensive $1.1 million law enforcement plan that covers a wide scope of activities.

Gov. Smith will analyze it before it goes to the U.S. Department of Justice for approval and funding under the Federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. Funds for a two-year operation must be committed by June 30.

Texas received $234,000 for riot control and $330,350 in planning money six months ago. Council voted priority funding for these programs: Prevention of juvenile delinquency, education and training in all elements of the criminal justice system, regional and statewide information and communication systems, community relations programs, experimental and demonstration projects to test and evaluate new approaches to solving problems in criminal justice system.

Approved funds will be disbursed to 21 geographical planning regions of the state. Congress now is considering funding which would provide Texas more than $11 million in action money, plus planning aid for next year to develop a long-range plan and begin putting it into effect.

COURTS SPEAK — An order by the Midland District Court to jail nine union members for picketing the Texaco plant at Port Arthur was invalidated by the State Supreme Court. House of Representatives followed up in a matter of hours by passing a bill directing that lawsuits to halt picketing and strikes must be filed in the counties where the labor dispute arises.

Supreme Court ordered an Austin trial before August 1 of Clyde Durbin Jr. charged with killing two University of Texas students early this year.

Third Court Civil Appeals affirmed a lower court condemnation award of $247,526 against Austin in connection with Decker Lake and a park area east of the city.

BEAUTIFUL, BEAUTIFUL TEXAS — Governor Smith will keynote a one-day workshop June 11 to stimulate the preservation and enhancement of natural beauty in Texas. This second annual clean-up and beautification conference of the Beautify Texas Council will be held at the Villa Capri Motor Hotel in Austin. Other speakers will include O.P. Schnabel of San Antonio, president of the Council, DeWitt Greer, chairman of the State Highway Commission, R.H. (Dick) Hackendahl of Washington, D.C., director of the National Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Bureau, Mayor C.P. Waggoner of Grand Prairie, Earl Rudder, president of Texas A&M University and Reagan Brown, sociologist-community improvement specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

Beautify Texas Council was organized in 1967 to combat the litter problem and to advise and act as a coordinating agency through which business and industry, government, public and private organizations may work together to solve the problems of Texas beautification.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES — A person not registered as a voter is ineligible for election or appointment as an independent school district trustee. So advises Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin in ruling on a Spring Creek school election issue. A similar opinion was returned earlier following a Honey Grove controversy.

In other recent opinions, Martin held that: Texas Foundation School Fund Budget Committee must include cost estimates for the school program training all prison inmates over and under 21 years of age who are not high school graduates.

A bill providing for private road construction and maintenance in counties of 10,000 to 10,050 population is unconstitutional as a local and special bill.

Bexar County is required to advertise for competitive bids on all purchases including road machinery, although some emergency buying is expected.

State funds cannot be used for payment of group insurance policies for legislators and their dependents.

An act to prohibit corporations from engaging in farming or ranching (allowing a 10-year period to sell interests) would be constitutional.

State treasurer must publish information on unclaimed funds over $50 held and owing by life insurance companies.

APPOINTMENTS, HONORS — Davis W. Tees, assistant city manager of Arlington, is now with the Institute of Urban Studies of the University of Texas System.

Brig. Gen. Carl F. Schupp II, assistant Texas adjutant general, received legion of merit award for service. Temple banker S.R. Greenwood is new chairman of Governor's Committee on Aging.

Major General Max H. Specht of New Braunfels assumed command of Texas State Guard, replacing Maj. Gen. Harley B. West of Dallas.

Governor Smith has named A. Ross Rommel of Houston as his traffic safety administrator and Tom Bishop of Austin as assistant traffic safety engineer.

Governor and Mrs. Smith will lead Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang and Texas delegation to Klondike Days in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, July 16-20.

Musicians Bob Wills, Tex Ritter and Ernest Tubb were named "country music ambassadors of good will from Texas," after being honored by the Legislature.

Texas Ranger Captain James M. Ray of Lubbock is the new chief of Criminal Law Enforcement Division of the department of Public Safety.

GRANTS APPROVED — Follow Through Head Start grants have been extended to seven Texas school districts by order of the governor.

Districts benefitting are Corpus Christi, Dimmitt, Fort Worth, Houston, Rosebud, San Diego and Uvalde.

Follow Through program will carry benefits of pre-school Head Start training into primary grades of public schools to make sure children maintain their gains.

SHORT SNORTS — Texas Highway Commission included Harlingen, Midland and Grand Prairie in the Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety (TOPICS).

Rio Airways Inc. seeks certification to serve Brownsville, McAllen, Corpus Christi, Houston, San Antonio and Austin, says the Aeronautics Commission.

Texas business activity in April reversed its downward trend and the inflation danger now increases, said University of Texas' Bureau of Business Research.

State Senator Henry Grover of Houston says he will run as a Republican nominee for the U.S. Senate in 1970 if Congressman George Bush doesn't run.
