FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—About 6,000 members of United Auto Workers Local 218 walked off their jobs at 12:01 a.m. today at the Bell Helicopter Co., closing the nation's largest producers of helicopters for the Vietnam war.

Bell officials and union negotiators reached an agreement late Saturday on a new contract, but 90 per cent of the union members voted against the contract Sunday at a mass meeting.

A spokesman for the local said the workers would return to work "at the request of the government." The federal government was expected to intervene if the walkout lasted more than 48 hours.

The spokesman would not say what the reasons were for rejecting the contract.

A spokesman for Bell, however, said the contract "was completely within the pattern set in the aircraft industry and would result in Bell employees enjoying the highest wages and fringe benefits in the Fort Worth area."

"All activities and all department at all facilities of Bell Helicopter will close at midnight (CDT) and remain closed until further notice" because of the strike, the company spokesman said.

Search Fruitless For Downed Plane

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI)—Several false alarms have been the only result of a fruitless search for a Strategic Air Command plane missing since Thursday with 19 men aboard.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said Sunday several sightings of orange floating objects were made over the weekend. But closer inspection each time identified the objects as floats used by crab fishermen rather than the hoped-for life rafts.

Between 10 and 15 planes and two Coast Guard cutters searched the Bearing Sea.

Ship Probe Underway

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (UPI)—Three days before it sliced the USS Frank E. Evans in two, killing 74 American sailors, the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne almost collided with another ship.

An unprecedented U.S.-Australian board of inquiry began its investigation of the Melbourne-Evans collision today and heard an Australian admiral describe the carrier's near miss before dawn on May 31.

Rear Adm. G. J. B. Crabb, commander of the six-nation SEATO naval maneuvers in the South China Sea, testified that another ship passed within 50 feet of the Melbourne in what he called a "near collision."

He elaborated on the incident when the six-man board went into closed session, away from newsmen. The Navy banned both cameras and tape recorders from the open sessions at George E. Dewey high school. Crabb's account indicated the second ship, like the Evans, was a destroyer, for he said the incident prompted him to order new procedures for destroyers screening the Melbourne from simulated submarine attack.

The orders made mandatory the use of navigation lights after sunset and moved the destroyers from 2,000 to 3,000 yards away from the aircraft carrier.

Capt. John Stevenson of the Melbourne told newsmen in Singapore Friday that the Evans, one of the screening destroyers, was changing its course when the Melbourne sliced into it.

Crabb was the first of 30 to 40 witnesses expected to give accounts of the collision last Tuesday 350 miles south of Saigon. Reliable Naval sources have said the Evans was at fault in the accident.

Fleet tugs towed the stern section of the Evans into Subic at dawn. It looked like a giant

Senate Selection Of Burger Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate was expected to confirm Warren Earl Burger today as the 15th Chief Justice of the United States and clear the way for President Nixon to make his second appointment to the Supreme Court.

Burger, 61, who fits Nixon's stated wish for a "strict constructionist" on the high court, is a native of Minnesota who has been a U.S. Appeals Court Judge in the District of Columbia for 16 years.

He would succeed Earl Warren, named Chief Justice 16 years ago by the last previous Republican president, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Nixon said he would not appoint a successor to Abe Fortas, who resigned last month under pressure, until Burger is confirmed. The confirmation process went rapidly for the white-haired one-time Minnesota farm boy who worked his way through law school.

Nixon appointed him May 21, he was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee June 3 after a very brief hearing, and the appointment reached the floor today.

Burger will not assume the office until he is sworn in and given his commission. This is expected after Warren retires at the end of the court's current term later this month.

After naming Burger, the President explained to newsmen he prefers elevating U.S. Circuit or District Court judges to the Supreme Court without regard to race, religion or geographic balance.

Burger has described himself as a "moderate liberal." His colleagues label him a "common sense" judge who can be tough on criminals. He also has been characterized as a "law and order" judge, "strict constructionist" on constitutional questions.

Burger was born Sept. 17, 1907, in St. Paul, Minn., of Swiss German descent. He spent his boyhood on the family farm outside the city.

He worked his way through the University of Minnesota and Mitchell College of Law. He was graduated magna cum laude from law school in 1931 and began private practice.

Burger also taught at Mitchell and did post graduate work at New York University School of Law and The Hague Academy of International Law in Holland.

He came to Washington in 1953 during the Eisenhower administration to serve as assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's civil division.

Troops Leave 'H' Hill

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. military officials said today President Nixon's troop withdrawal would neither harm the American fighting machine nor deter the Communists from further offensives.

The guerrillas shelled 22 military camps overnight—a sharp dropoff from the 102 and 50 salvos in the previous two nights in an attempt to show their strength to Presidents Nixon and Nguyen Van Thieu at Midway.

Gen Crelighton W. Abrams' military command had no word on who would be among the 25,000 GIs sent home or when they would go.

One officer said the Army's view was that the withdrawal would "cut off the fat without cutting off the muscle" of the 538,500 GIs now fighting in Vietnam.

Says Unharmful . . .

An official Saigon government spokesman said the removal of U.S. troops "will not be harmful to the security of the Allied forces or to the self-determination of the Vietnamese people."

U.S. military officials said more waves of Communist shelling such as the stepped-up fighting before the midway conference which cost the Reds an estimated 1,500 dead. U.S. losses were estimated at 200 dead, 600 wounded.

"I suspect they'll keep at it for a month or two," a high-ranking officer said. The aim: To increase American casualties, draw troops away from population centers like Saigon and grab headlines.

Canceled Shows Bag Emmy Prize

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Four television shows the networks canceled during the season won Emmy Awards Sunday night in the 21st annual presentations by the Television Academy.

Don Adams (Get Smart), Hope Lange (The Ghost and Mrs. Muir), Carl Eitz (Judd for the Defense) and the writers for the Smothers Brothers Show all picked up statuettes.

No single show or series dominated this year's edition of the awards as did the madcap "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" last year, although "Laugh-in" was honored as best musical or variety show.

The Smothers Brothers were canceled after a contractual and program content rhabarb with CBS-TV. Both "Get Smart" and "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" were not renewed by NBC-TV and migrated to other networks.

CBS took top honors in number of Emmys with 19. NBC was second with 16 and ABC had six. NET (National Educational Television) won two awards. One went to a syndicated show.

Best acting awards in comedy series went to Adams, who won his third Emmy for his role of the addled agent in "Get Smart," and to Hope Lange for "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir."

Dramatic acting honors were bestowed on Carl Eitz for "Judd for the Defense," and Barbara Bain won her third Emmy as a member of the "Mission: Impossible" team.

"Get Smart" was voted best comedy series for the second straight time, and "NET Playhouse" was honored as the best dramatic series.

School Trustees Face 7 Action Items Thursday

Pampa School Trustees will have seven end of the school year action items in their regular board meeting at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at Pampa Junior High School.

Board meetings, previously held at Carver Educational Services Center, are being held at the junior high school while remodeling work is being done at the center. The remodeling, approved in the district's $900,000 school bond, passed by voters April 1, includes creating administrative offices and conference rooms which will be moved from Pampa Junior High School. School business and tax offices of Homer Craig will remain in their downtown location at Pampa Junior High School.

Agenda items for Thursday include approval of personnel resignations and employment, approval of elementary physical education teachers, appointment of a delinquent tax attorney, designation of the district's official radio station, approval of boilers insurance and bus routes, and acceptance of PESO (Panhandle Educational Services Organization) commitment for 1969-70.

In Superintendent Dr. James F. Malone's reports, he plans to discuss the 1969-70 tax rate, the 1968-69 cafeteria report, a letter regarding driver training cars, and consideration of fireproofing attics of old buildings, a science lab fee of $1.50 and a possible increase in substitute pay from $12 to $15 a day.

August Date Set For Withdrawal of Troops

By MERRIMAN SMITH
MIDWAY ISLAND (UPI)—President Nixon has announced he will withdraw 25,000 American troops from Vietnam by the end of August and indicated others will be sent home as conditions warrant. They will be replaced by South Vietnamese combat forces.

Nixon made the announcement Sunday at a summit conference with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam, the seventh meeting of a U.S. president with leaders of the Saigon government. They appeared affable and relaxed, confident of the course of the war and mildly optimistic about peace.

In the firm words of a joint communique, they told the Communists to realize the futility and danger of trying to win a military victory in Vietnam and said there must be self-determination for the Vietnamese people without interference or terror. They ruled out imposition of a coalition government on South Vietnam.

Nixon called the Midway meeting a "significant step forward" toward peace in Vietnam. Their joint communique added that a study of recent Communist and Allied peace plans in Paris showed "certain points which appear not too far" from the Allied positions.

Nixon did not wait for conclusion of the meeting to announce the troop withdrawal. He disclosed it to reporters between morning and afternoon sessions with Thieu and stated complete agreement with the South Vietnam president.

"As a consequence of the recommendation of the President (Thieu) and our own commander in the field (Gen. Crelighton W. Abrams) I have decided to order the immediate redeployment from Vietnam of the divisional-equivalent of approximately 25,000 men.

"This troop replacement will begin within the next 30 days and it will be completed by the end of August.

"During the month of August and at regular intervals thereafter, we shall review the situation having in mind the three criteria that I have previously mentioned with regard to troop replacements."

Those criteria were: Developments at the Paris talks, developments on the battlefield and in South Vietnam and training and equipping more Vietnamese troops. He said America would never withdraw troops if it cost the South Vietnamese the principle of self-determination.

There had been reports before the meeting they would agree on some token U.S. troop withdrawal, and Saigon reports (See WITHDRAWAL, Page 3)

12 in Family Killed in Fire

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—A flash fire swept an eight-room wood and tarpaper home in South Parkersburg Sunday, killing 12 members of the Charles Bailey family. Ten of the victims were children ranging from eight months to 17 years of age.

Asst. State Fire Marshal E. L. Roush said it was the "worst loss of life" in any blaze he had investigated during his 34 years as a state policeman and fire marshal.

The victims were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Bailey and 10 of their 13 children.

Two other children, Sahron, 15, and Rodger, 13, escaped the flames because they were sleeping in a two-room building adjacent to the Bailey home. A married daughter, Mrs. Judy Fury, 20, lives in Illinois.

The children's grandfather, Obie Bailey, 63, was sitting in a chair in front of the home when firemen arrived. Roush said he planned to question the grandfather about the cause of the blaze. The elder Bailey was treated at a hospital for shock and released.

Row Continues Over Cigarette TV Advertising

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bill to exempt cigarette commercials from government regulations was challenged today on grounds the broadcasting industry may have told Congress a phony story about self-regulation.

Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., said his House Commerce Committee would call National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) President Vincent T. Wasilewski back Tuesday for a rare repeat session.

Staggers said the bill was approved by his committee partly because Wasilewski said the NAB was doing its own policing job on cigarette commercials.

Reactions are Varied To Viet Troop Pullout

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., says President Nixon's announced plans to withdraw 25,000 American troops from Vietnam is "tokenism." But other congressional reaction was guarded or favorable.

"It kind of fits the advance prediction," McGovern said Sunday. "I don't see that as anything more than token action. It doesn't fundamentally change the character of our involvement.

"It's a very, very small reduction, one that I am grateful for but I don't regard that as a fundamental change in our policy," he said.

McGovern, who has called for withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam, said former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara on a trip to Vietnam two years ago expressed the opinion American forces there were "swollen" beyond what was actually needed.

"Therefore the notion of withdrawing 25,000 or even 50,000 troops to me is tokenism," McGovern said.

In contrast, House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said the announcement was "good news." He said it "is undoubtedly the first of a series of steps aimed at giving greater and greater responsibility to the South Vietnamese."

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and a supporter of a hardline policy in Vietnam, said he was pleased Nixon "thinks he can withdraw the troops."

"I'm really not surprised," Stennis said. "I'm really not too hopeful the South Vietnamese forces will be able to rapidly assume this burden of fighting and be effective."

"I wouldn't think it is merely tokenism, but I do think the President is feeling his way," Stennis said.

Cancer Ridden Actor Robert Taylor is Dead

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Before Robert Taylor's operation for removal of a cancerous lung in October, he kicked his three-pack-a-day cigarette habit.

"I'm going to take the situation by the horns . . ." he vowed. "You're damned right I am. I'm going to whip it, knock it down and trample on it."

Sunday the motion idol lost his battle. He died at 10:30 a.m. at St. John's hospital. Officials said the 57-year-old actor knew he had terminal cancer.

Men derided the almost toothless actor as a "pretty boy." Girls crashed through the doors of a London hotel in 1937 to get near him.

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., who once ran for the presidency himself, wants a constitutional amendment to make it easier for mobile Americans to vote for president.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who may be running for the same office in the future, also wants to relax state residence requirements to let more citizens vote for president. But he thinks the states can be forced to act by federal law.

Both Goldwater's proposed amendment and Kennedy's bill, which has 26 co-sponsors in the Senate, would allow new residents of a state to vote for president after they have lived there for 30 days.

State Action Slow
 The state could make this change in their own laws but many have been slow to move. A commission named by President John F. Kennedy on registration and voter participation came up with a report in 1963 urging such action.

Sixteen states in 1968 allowed citizens to vote for president—but not for state and local office-holders and members of Congress—after 31 days of residence. Thirty-one allowed the vote after three months.

But Mississippi law carried a two-year residence requirement, and 15 states and the District of Columbia still required one year. Three states had a six-month residence requirement.

An estimated one-sixth of the population moves from one state to another over a 10-year span.

Census Bureau estimates supplied to Kennedy indicated that 5.3 million citizens were disqualified to vote in 1968 state and congressional elections by residence requirements.

Fight Sends Borger Resident To Hospital

Police were sent to the 500 block of Gray at 2 a.m. Sunday where a fight was in progress between a Borger man and two Pampa men.

According to the police report the Borger man had a deep gash over his left eye and was taken to Highland General Hospital for treatment.

The Borger resident said the wound was inflicted by one of the two local men with some kind of a wrench.

The Pampa man claimed they were defending themselves. Both parties were expected to file charges against each other.

Sisters Dislike Being "Quads"

CASTLE COMBE, England (UPI)—The Good quadruplets—Jennifer, Brigit, Frances and Elizabeth—held a 21st birthday reunion Sunday and agreed they disliked being "quads."

Elizabeth, a nurse in a Boston children's hospital, said, "I left home two and a half years ago to work in America. Basically I never liked being a quad and wanted to get away."

Jennifer said, "Everybody at school hated us and they used to hit us for no reason at all except that we were quads. It was awful. And there was this awful business of dressing in the same clothes because it was cheaper. We stopped that the moment we could."

"We so desperately wanted to be individuals and not thought of as quads."

Soviets Call Troop Pullout Propaganda Step

By United Press International The announced withdrawal of 25,000 U.S. troops from Vietnam brought praise from many world capitals today as a positive step towards peace. But some people questioned whether it went far enough.

There was echoing of Soviet charges that the announcement was just a "propaganda step" aimed at placating those in the United States critical of the war.

"Nixon did just what Johnson talked about," said Stockholm engineering student Leonard Bergman. "His decision was merely an action to head off public opinion pressure and strengthen his own position."

"The Finnish government considers this a positive step, as Finland has often expressed its hopes that the Vietnam War would be settled," said a foreign ministry spokesman in Helsinki.

A spokesman for the Japanese foreign ministry said: "We understand this is the first step toward the replacement of American troops by South Vietnamese. We hope this will enable the Paris peace talks to progress further."

"It is a step in the right direction," said history student Karl Bjerknes in Oslo. "There is, however, a quotation from the history of 18th century France about reforms and changes which came too late and were too small. Let us hope that this is not the case this time."

Government sources in Vienna said Austria welcomed the announcement as a promising step towards peace. No official statement was expected, however, from the neutral nation.

Vietnam Is A Nation Tired of War

By David Lamb SAIGON (UPI)—Promptly at noon as the scorching sun neared its zenith, the South Vietnamese patrol veered out of the rice paddies and into the shade of Uluwa village near Da Nang.

The men caught and cooked six chickens while the village women watched with sullen eyes. Then they spread out their ponchos under bamboo trees and dozed off for the midday siesta.

At a South Vietnamese division headquarters in the Central Highlands, a Sunday visitor is surprised to find most offices closed because the men are home for the day with their families.

The examples are not untypical for this is a nation tired of war. Its armed forces, although improved, often operate with something less than enthusiasm.

This is difficult to understand for most Americans, whose tours in Vietnam last year. But for the 820,000 South Vietnamese under arms, there is no end in sight and their conscription is for an indefinite period.

An objective analysis of the ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam); is complicated by the fact that officials announce victories, but seldom defeats.

No official mention was ever made of an ARVN battalion which ran in panic from a North Vietnamese force near Xuan Loc recently, of an outpost overrun near the Demilitarized Zone, of a position near Tam Ky where 100 militiamen died or defected.

Most U.S. commanders concede the ARVN is a far superior force to the one near defeat at the hands of the Viet Cong in 1965. But to imply the ARVN is capable of handling the estimated 300,000 Communist troops in South Vietnam, they say, is illusion bordering on folly.

The most prominent obstacle to a major ARVN takeover of the war effort is its dependence on U.S. logistics—everything from helicopter support to nuts and bolts for jeeps.

A thought for the day: Henrik Ibsen said, "A community is like a ship—every one ought to be prepared to take the helm."

First Family Visits Injured U.S. Soldier

HONOLULU (UPI)—Army Private I-C George Constantine, 26, of Galveston, Tex., lay in a Honolulu hospital bed with wounds he suffered in action in Vietnam. His family was not able to visit him. But the First Family did.

Mrs. Pat Nixon and her two daughters, Tricia and Julie Eisenhower, stopped to talk with Constantine during their one-hour tour Sunday of the Tripler Army Hospital which overlooks Pearl Harbor.

"It really made me feel good," said Constantine.

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Near the end of Sunday night's Emmy Awards show on CBS-TV, Jack Benny observed that the television academy really improved things this year.

"For example," he said, "this year they validate the parking."

Good old Jack. As usual, he got right to the heart of the matter. Another year, another bomb, this time wasting the exceptional talents of two fine hosts, Bill Cosby in California and Merv Griffin in New York.

From what I could tell, the chief improvement in the Emmy system was that, instead of four million awards this year, there were only three million.

I'm not going to bore you by noting in detail again that the procession of awards was endless, that the lumping of different types of shows into one category was ludicrous, and that the trivia of much of the low quality nominating was underpowering. For this is just par for the course.

What was appalling, however, was the total absence—in the program's conception and production—of even the slightest trace of show business magic, except perhaps for Cosby's personal magnetism and way with even mediocre material. He is a comedy genius, but the material provided for him and Griffin was woeful by any writing standards.

To give you an idea of the basic note of the evening, the magic of exceptional show business production was replaced by award highlights that, essentially, were a mixture of regret and bitterness.

For example, Don Adams got an award for "Get Smart," and observed that it was picked up by CBS-TV after being canceled by NBC-TV. Hope Lange got an award for "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," and it is transferring to ABC-TV after being let go by NBC-TV. Carl Betz got an award for "Judd for the Defense," and it has been canceled by ABC-TV. Barbara Bain got an award for "Mission Impossible," and at this point it seems that she is leaving the series because of sharp differences.

Miss Bain, in fact, really socked it home to the video audience Sunday night that there was bitterness in the way she and her husband, Martin Landau—also a star of "Mission Impossible"—apparently have parted from the series.

Withdrawal

(Continued From Page 1) that cost 84 GIs killed and about 400 wounded to capture in May. "There are no troops on the hill as far as we know," a U.S. spokesman said in announcing the end of the 10,000-man allied offensive through the A Shau Valley, which Hamburger Hill overlooks.

The 10-day battle for the peak, killing 700 North Vietnamese, brought criticism from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that it was a "senseless" and "irresponsible" sacrifice of American lives.

Military spokesmen said eight of the latest 22 overnight Communist shellings were "significant" in that they caused damage or casualties.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the senate Foreign Relations Committee and long a critic of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, said he would not have any comment until he had studied the text of the communique issued by Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu at the conclusion of their Midway talk.

Governor Silent On 1-Year Budget

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. (UPI)—Will he or won't he? Only the governor knows for sure. And he still is not telling a soul which way he plans to go on the question of the state budget.

Gov. Preston Smith attended a barbecue for Tarrant and Dallas County political figures in Grand Prairie Sunday and said he "will not use this occasion to issue a veto proclamation."

Smith must decide by June 22 whether he plans to sign or veto the one-year budget bill passed by the legislature. Smith is on record as favoring two-year spending over the one-year plan.

The governor did say he might not wait until the deadline to decide. He said he will make his decision when Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin renders a decision on whether certain bills take effect now or later.

He also tried to muffle any reports of a possible feud between him and the men who pushed the one-year budget through the legislature—Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher—calling them "two of the outstanding young leaders in America."

Smith said reports that he and Barnes are "putting on the gloves are not true."

Pampa Officials Attend Meet Of City Managers

Three Pampa city officials and their wives joined some 300 other municipal officers from over the state today at the annual spring conference of the Texas City Managers Association in Amarillo.

Pampa officials attending included City Manager Charles Hill, City Engineer B. M. Wofford and Ronnie Wood, personnel director.

Today marked the final session of the statewide meeting which opened Saturday in Amarillo's Holiday Inn West.

Topics of interest to city managers were on today's program. Speakers included Mark Keane, executive director of the International City Managers Association, and Clyde Emmons of the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Jim White, former city manager here and now city manager at Denton, visited in Pampa Sunday before returning to today's session of the Amarillo conference.

Pythians Have Busy Schedule At Convention

There was a joint meeting at 9 a.m. with Mayor Milo Carlson delivering a welcome address; a noon luncheon honoring Grand Lodge and Temple Grand officers; and competitive drill by floor work teams of Pythian Sisters at 7:30 p.m. The drill program is open to the public.

At 9 p.m. state finals in the public speaking contest will take place. More than 200 members of the two lodges registered Sunday to begin the groups' 96th annual convention. More delegates are expected today.

N.S. Greenwood, district deputy from Longview Lodge 26, received the award of outstanding knight and was granted the honorary degree of Knight of the Golden Spur. The rank of page was conferred upon Eddy Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Hopkins, and Jimmy Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Harper, both members of the Junior Order Knights of Pythias; and J.N. McDowell, 2211 N. Nelson. The rank team of Pampa Lodge 480 and Longview Lodge 26 conferred the honors.

The day closed with a "patio party" at the Inn at 9 p.m. Members of both groups as well as of the junior chapter served as hosts at the coke bar and refreshment table.

Wilson Elected New Prexy of Khorassan Group

Jack Wilson, Austin, was elected president of the Khorassan Society Sunday as Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters lodges of Texas closed the business session of the society Saturday at Coronado Inn.

Mrs. Vivian Alcorn of Zephyr was named president of the Nomads Society. Other officers of the two "fun" groups of Pythians and Pythian Sisters are: Albert Hammon, Denton, vice president; Bert L. Hamilton, Denton, secretary (re-elected).

The DOKK conducted its ceremonial at the 100F Hall Saturday evening with Lubbock Lodge providing the divan for the rank work. Henry Yantzen, Beaumont, is retiring president.

Other Nomads officers are: Mrs. Hazel West, Freeport, first vice president; Mrs. Cathrene Harrison, Fort Worth, second vice president; Ruth Reynolds, secretary. The event took place in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Votary Max William, Longview, won the fitted travel kit project. The Nomads and DOKK will have their next meeting at the midwinter convention Nov. 14-15 at Beaumont.

Saturday's events closed with a dance in the Starlight Room. The Tommy Adkins band provided music.

Police Search Fails to Yield Marijuana Party

Pampa police received an anonymous telephone call Sunday night and were told if they would stop a blue vehicle, license number given, it would be loaded down with marijuana.

Officers found the vehicle parked in the west part of town. A search of the car yielded nothing but officers found a party in progress at the residence in front of which the vehicle was parked.

Police were unable to detect any use of the weed by persons at the party but did say that two of the partiers were known to get high on paint thinner.

Spanish Guards On Patrol in Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR (UPI)—Armed Spanish guards today patrolled Spain's border with Gibraltar after the Madrid government sealed off the frontier in the latest chapter of a long dispute over ownership of the tiny British Mediterranean colony.

Troops

(Continued From Page 1) said a troop reduction actually would boost Saigon's prestige. There also were presumable reports of deep differences between Nixon and Thieu and Saigon's concern the United States would call for a coalition government that would include the Communists.

Thieu, in a farewell statement, said speculation he and Nixon came to Midway to settle their differences was "not true." He said "We came here for more understanding and closer cooperation... we had no differences before."

Before the meeting Nixon conferred in Honolulu with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, chief negotiator at the Paris talks; and with General Abrams and Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to Saigon.

Nixon then flew on to Midway with Lodge and Abrams aboard Air Force One. Thieu flew in from Saigon aboard a chartered jet with Gen. Cao Van Vien, armed forces chief of state; Foreign Minister Tran Chanh and Bui Diem, ambassador to the United States.

Midway Island is more than 1,000 miles west of Hawaii and is normally populated by a handful of U.S. military men and thousands of "gooney birds"—the big albatrosses which like to use the long runways at the airport for their own airplane-type landings. This time they were shoofed off to one side. They lined the runways as the presidential jets came and went.

Ship

About 150 of those survivors were leaving by chartered jet today for Long Beach, Calif., home port of the Evans. They came from the collision site aboard the USS Kearsarge, an aircraft carrier.

The Board of Inquiry will turn its findings over to the U.S. and Australian navies for use in establishing guilt in the collision.

Shivers Son Hurt in Dive

EUFAULA, Ala. (UPI)—Coast Guard seaman Robert Allan Shivers, son of former Texas Gov. Allan Shivers, was listed in "fair" condition Sunday after suffering a fractured neck in a swimming accident at Lake Eufaula.

P. O. IC John H. Orr, commander of the Coast Guard unit at Lake Eufaula where Shivers was stationed four months, said doctors at medical center hospital in Columbus, Ga., reported Shivers was apparently permanently paralyzed from the waist down after fracturing his neck and seven vertebrae Friday.

Spain ordered the land gates to Gibraltar closed at midnight Sunday, barring some 4,600 Spanish laborers from their jobs on the 2 1/2 square-mile "rock" and forcing the colony's government to initiate emergency plans to cover the loss of one-third of its work force.

The cause of the closing was a constitution for the colony Britain published May 30. Madrid said the document defies a United Nations resolution calling on the British to return Gibraltar to Spain by Oct. 1.

Spain was expected to take even more steps against Gibraltar within two weeks, including possibly a blanket ban on travel to the colony for all Spaniards. It also could cut water, cable and telephone communications.

Britain seized Gibraltar by force in 1704 during the Spanish War of Succession. The Madrid government ceded it to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713. The treaty banned any hand of contact between the colony and Spain—and this is cited by Spain for its actions today.

According to a British Embassy spokesman in Madrid, the London government feels U.N. General Assembly resolutions are not mandatory, therefore the December U.N. measure calling on Britain to return Gibraltar to Spain can be ignored.

The spokesman cited a referendum in September, 1967, in which Gibraltar residents voted to retain their ties with Britain and said the new constitution is in accordance with their wishes.

The economy of Gibraltar has been on the slide since Spain banned all vehicular and goods traffic across the La Linea border in 1966. The tourist industry, a main source of income, was hard hit, their number down more than two-thirds since the ban went into effect.

Dear Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My own "solution" for being dropped in on by folks who invite themselves for Sunday dinner is simple. I don't have "Sunday dinner" anymore. Six days a week I cook real cooking, and on Sunday everyone is on his own, making sandwiches, eating leftovers and raiding the ice box. My husband put his foot down on my being in the kitchen all day the one day he has at home with the kids and wife.

I can think of other helpful solutions for those who always get unexpected (and unwelcome) Sunday dinner "guests." (1) Get a good early start and arrive at their house with your bibs on before they leave for your house. (2) Pack a simple picnic lunch and leave early with your family for the park. (3) Don't have dinner at the same time every day. Be "picking your teeth" at one o'clock instead of just starting to eat.

"BEEN THERE?"
DEAR BEEN THERE: Thanks for some practical suggestions for getting the "sun" back into Sunday.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column signed "NOSY" made me sizzle. She wanted to know if the pianist and soloist were part of the wedding party, and should be included in the wedding pictures.

Abby, I don't know of anyone who is taken advantage of more often than the musicians at a wedding. Let me tell you that no one in the wedding party works harder, studying, or spends more for his education than the organist or soloist. And that goes for the minister, too. And nobody gets less for his trouble than the musician.

I happen to play the piano and organ, and have been asked to play at many weddings. Of course I must be there at the rehearsal and if it's a formal wedding I have to dress accordingly, even though half the time no one sees me. Then I am supposed to disappear right after the ceremony. I'm just never asked to stay. I'm just ignored.

From now on I play only for weddings of very good friends, and I tell the others that I charge $50 and if they don't like it, let them use a phonograph or whistle.

MUSICIAN

DEAR ABBY: I am heartbroken. All the plans for our daughter's wedding have been made. The church, the hall, the printer the go-ahead on the wedding invitations.

Our daughter, who has been visiting her fiancé, called us last night to tell us she's pregnant! Now we can't have that lovely wedding we planned because they want a hurry-up little ceremony with just a few close friends.

What should I tell the minister? The caterer? Our friends?

HER MOM

DEAR MOM: Tell the caterer you won't be needing him. Tell your minister you'll be needing him sooner than you had expected. And it won't be necessary to tell your friends anything.

DEAR ABBY: Who said scars were repulsive? I have had a hysterectomy and my husband has had a "Mr. ectomy" and it hasn't diminished our love for each other one bit. If you print this, please sign it "A COUPLE OF HAPPY SCAR-GAZERS FROM ILLINOIS."

Wear a Scarf

For color-treated hair, wear a bright-colored scarf to protect your tresses from the ravages of sun and wind.

Your Horoscope
JEANE DIXON

FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 10

Your birthday Tuesday: This is the year to outgrow all your unproductive habits. There is so much going on now that you will not have much time to brood about anything that is past and gone. Some self-indulgence early in the year leaves you in a difficult situation, then you will have to get right down to fundamentals. Tuesday's natives are nearly all capable of violent, emotionally stirred action.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your resources are temporarily hindered, so that you are not free to pursue an offered opportunity. When you have the funds, the opening is no longer at hand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Look through your wardrobe, consider your appearance. You may want to buy something new, and certainly should sell or give quite a number of items to people who lack them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Long time friends may try your patience. Remember it is not their intention. Take the time to visit or call anyone you know who is ill.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Strife is attached to almost anything that looks good Tuesday. Expect some sad news about a feminine friend. Older associates may put you next to an excellent opportunity now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Life tends to be slow-paced due to diverse shortcomings. There is nothing you can do about it but extend your patience. Retire early tonight for some needed rest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Save your energy where you can. Partners and competitors both tend to be nuisances Tuesday. Group funds are to be carefully checked going and coming.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may uncover some unsuspected shortage or loss Tuesday. Leave the situation alone so that no confusion arises about the matter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Become security and health minded for the day. It's time other people had the experience of shouldering the burdens anyway; let them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your work may double up Tuesday as you cover for somebody who is not there or not pulling his weight. It is a temporary phase, to be taken seriously while it is on, then put out of mind. Retire early to get the rest you've earned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Miscalculation, flaws in schedules are normal for today; think nothing of them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Old friends show up, each with a different story. You can do a lot about your home today. Celebrate the progress.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Concern over a neighbor is apt to bring you sadness. Do what you are expected to do. Your own plans can be picked up later.

Safeguard Against Acne

Medical writers seem to agree that soap and water are among the best weapons against acne. To prevent blemishes, tiny skin glands should be allowed to become unplugged. How to do it? Washing. But this must be done properly. Soap and water, (NOT a harsh one which will irritate the skin), to be followed by copious rinsing with fresh running water.

Mrs. Bob Milton, secretary read minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. H. C. Swank, program chairman, gave the mission study, entitled "A Chaplain's Ministry in Correctional Institutions."

Those attending were guests. Mmes. Willie Ragsdale, Viola Harrell, Othelle Driskill, D. A. Watson, Beadie Brown, and Lea Ann Cain.

Members included Mmes. Odell Cain, Thelma Pool, Bob Milton, Bertha Knight, H. C. Swank and the hostess, Mrs. Wheeler.

The church's WMS also met in the home of Mrs. Bertha Knight recently for the May meeting. Mrs. H. C. Swank was in charge of the mission study "Missions Here and There". Those attending were Mmes. Ermine Bray, Dan Ashford, Corrine Wheeler, Odell Cain, H. C. Swank and the hostess, Bertha Knight.

The WMS met at the church building May 20, for Bible study led by Mrs. Jeff Gray. Subject was "The Missionary Messages of the Bible".

Those present included Mmes. Alvin Hiltbrunner, Donald Ritter, D. A. Watson, Bertha Knight and Mrs. Gray.

Marriage Plans

GROOM (SPL) — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood of Wheeler announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Jane Hubble, to Jimmy Britten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Britten of Groom. Both Miss Hubble and Mr. Britten are sophomore students at Clarendon Junior College. Wedding plans are pending.

Couple Celebrates
60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Crisp celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary with open house at their home south of Alanreed recently. Approximately 100 friends and relatives attended. Miss Lula Fay Hammer and Frank Redding Crisp were married near Mobeetie, May 23, 1909. Rev. T.B. Hilburn, Methodist pastor at Mobeetie, read vows for the home wedding.

Mrs. Crisp was born in West Virginia and came to Texas in 1891, and to Wheeler County in 1903.

Mr. Crisp was born in Sulphur Springs and moved to Mobeetie in 1901. The couple made their first home near Wheeler where he was engaged in stock farming. In November of 1923 they moved to their present home south of Alanreed.

Mr. and Mrs. Crisp have three daughters. Mrs. Marguerite Gardner, El Paso; Mrs. Lula May Craig, Texico, N.M.; and Mrs. Mabel Worsham, Alanreed; six grandchildren, Jack Gardner, Deming, N.M.; Mrs. Lois Hensley, El Paso; Jesse Craig of Tucson, Ariz.; Dan Craig, Texico, N.M.; Eugene Worsham, Amarillo; and Frank Worsham, Alanreed.

Life for your Eyes
If you have droopy eyes that seem to slant down at the corners, use a team of two liquid liners. Use shiny white first. Starting just past the pupil, draw a thin line outward, following the natural curve of the eye. Widen the line as you near the outer corner and finish with an upward curve. Next, using brown liner, begin drawing a thin line one-quarter-inch away from the inner corner. Follow the natural curve of the eye with your brush until you reach the white line; then continue the dark line above it.

Area TOPS Club
Meets in Groom

GROOM (SPL) — Regular meeting of the TOPS Club was held recently in the school gym. Irene Baggerman received the fruit basket for losing the most weight the preceding week. Margaret Logan of Amarillo gave the program.

Two guests, Billie Bivens and Josephine Payton were welcomed at the meeting.

Members present included Olien Elmore, Erma McKee, Sue Pair, Pat Pair, Gloria Huck, Charleen Weller, Karen Case, Eetty Brooks, Irene Baggerman, Margaret Whatley and Mary Rose.

The TOPS Club also presented Irene Baggerman the fruit basket for losing the most weight in another week.

Alcindor Has Wicked Punch

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—It was only last Thursday that Atlanta Hawks' coach Richie Guerin said what a lot of people are wondering.

Guerin felt Lew Alcindor, UCLA's super center, might have a tough time in his first National Basketball Association season against the league's stronger centers.

Alcindor, a 7-foot-1½, 231-pounder, may not take too much shoving around, though.

In a pickup basketball game at a local high school Saturday, the slim New York product decked Dennis Grey, a reserve center with the American Basketball Association Los Angeles Stars, with one punch. It broke Grey's jaw.

"Lew's team was taking the ball out of bounds," reported Warren Davis, Grey's teammate with the stars who was not playing. "According to Dennis, Lew turned and threw a punch that landed on the jaw. Lew walked off the court and left the gym. I doubt that he even knows he broke Dennis' jaw."

"It was the last game of the day and there was the usual pushing and shoving that occurs when the guys are tired," Davis continued.

BECKERT SIDELINED

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Cubs reported second baseman Glenn Beckert will be sidelined three to four weeks with a broken thumb suffered in Friday's game with the Cincinnati Reds. Beckert was injured when Reds' pitcher Tony Cloninger attempted to break up a double play.

TO NAME COACH

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—General Manager Jack Riley of the Pittsburgh Penguins said Friday he hoped to name a new coach in mid-June for the 1969-70 National Hockey League season.

Red Sullivan, fired as Penguin coach in March, remains with the team as a scout.

Expos Break Streak, Mets Don't

By United Press International
Gene Mauch didn't think he could take another day of his streak. Gil Hodges has even gone superstitious to preserve his.

Mauch's Montreal Expos snapped a 20-game losing streak, a record for an expansion club, Sunday when they downed the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3. Hodges' New York Mets continued as baseball's hottest club, winning their 10th in a row with a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

MANTLE HONORED

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former New York Yankee star Mickey Mantle will be honored Sunday at Yankee Stadium between games of the doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees will officially retire Mantle's No. 7 uniform and place it alongside retired numbers that belonged to Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio.

Rain Sends Casper to Western Title

CHICAGO (UPI)—Allergy-plagued Billy Casper welcomed what everybody else condemned, day long rain, and it cleared the air for him to walk on the water for a four stroke victory and $26,000 in the $130,000 Western Open.

Casper, on a strict diet for years to curb his allergy problems, got off to a lightning start in the final round of the 72-hole event on par 71 Midlothian Country Club when he dropped birdie putts of 20, 30 and 25 feet on three of the first four holes.

Then, discovering that the downpour had cut down "contamination" in the air, he charged to a four under par 67 and an eight under par 276 for the 72 holes.

His final round score, the best in the field by two strokes, wrapped up his steady improvement over the four day contest, in which he shot rounds of 72, 69, 68 and 67 in order.

Susie Is Back In Form Quick

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Susie and Dale Berning may not have to be concerned if there is real estate gold to be found in the hills of Nevada after all.

Since winning the National Women's Open Golf title last year, Susie has spent most of her time sticking close to her Lake Tahoe home where her husband dabbles in real estate. In fact, while most of the leading women golf pros worked on their games in southern climates last winter, Susie was skiing.

But the form Susie flashed in winning the Lady Carling Tourney Sunday in one of her rare appearances on the circuit this season has all but convinced the couple that Susie should get out of the house more often.

Mrs. Berning came from off the pace to pick up a $3,000 winner's check after posting a six-under-par 54-hole score of 213.

What Really Did Happen in Belmont?

NEW YORK (UPI)—What do you think—did Bill Hartack blow the Triple Crown for Majestic Prince by taking the most expensive "snoot" in racing history?

Would the handsome, popular Prince have beaten arch rival Arts and Letters in Saturday's Belmont Stakes if Hartack hadn't allowed him to lumber along next to last through the incredibly slow first six furlongs?

Or did the rugged Belmont, longest of the Triple Crown classics, simply show that Arts and Letters—winner by 5 and ½ lengths as Majestic Prince finished second and Dike third—was the best horse after all?

Bring on the witnesses:

Johnny Longden, much disappointed trainer of Majestic Prince, refused to blame Hartack for the defeat of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness champion. He answered, "Yes, he will" when asked if Hartack would ride the horse again.

But Longden also said: "There is no doubt we needed to be closer to the pace. I could see we were going to lose when we were so far behind. When they had a half mile to go, I turned to owner Frank McMahon and told him, 'no chance.'"

American League Roundup

By United Press International
It was like old times for the New York Yankees Sunday, even if the one-time all-American boy shared the cheers with the mod man.

A crowd of 60,000 cheered as the Yankees officially retired the No. 7 worn by Mickey Mantle, the all-American boy in the glory seasons of the 1950s.

Then it cheered as loud—well, almost as loud—as Joe Pepitone, the long-haired mod man of the modern Yankees, hit a three-run homer in the first game and a two-run single during a five-run rally in the second game to lead the Yankees to 3-1 and 11-2 victories over the Chicago White Sox. The victories enabled the Yankees to reach the 500-mark for the first time since May 1.

Pepitone hit his 16th homer of the season, topping by one his 1968 total, in the fourth inning of the first game after singles by Bobby Murcer and Roy White. Mel Stottlemyre made it look easy with a three-hitter that raised his record to nine victories and four losses.

Pepitone's two-run single and White's two-run double by White helped the Yankees break open the second game with a five-run spurge in the fifth inning. Rookie Bill Burich pitched a six-hitter to win his third game against four losses.

Seattle Pilots beat the Baltimore Orioles 7-5, the Washington Senators topped the Minnesota Twins 7-5 in 12 innings and the California Angels scored a 3-2 victory after losing to the Cleveland Indians 3-0 in other American League games. Oakland at Detroit was rained out.

Two homers by Rico Petrocelli and one each by Dalton Jones and Reggie Smith led the Red Sox to their victory and enabled Jim Longborg to raise his record to 6-0. Petrocelli's two homers gave him a career-high of 19 while the victory for Longborg, the Red Sox' 1967 pitching hero, marked his second straight complete game.

John Kennedy's two-run single and run-scoring singles by Gerry McNertney, Ray Oyler and pitcher Steve Barber, all with two out, enabled the Pilots to score five runs in the first inning. Paul Blair hit a two-run homer and Frank Robinson and Don Buford singled in runs for the Orioles but John O'Donoghue shut out Baltimore for the last 3-1-3 innings to receive credit for the win.

Del Unser hit a two-run homer off Tom Bahill with one out in the 12th inning to give the Senators their decision over the Twins. Casey Cox received credit for his fourth win for two innings of scoreless relief while Hall suffered his fourth setback against three victories.

Three walks, a pop fly double by Aurelio Rodriguez—the Angles' only hit in the second game—Tom Egan's sacrifice fly and an error by catcher Ray Rosse added up to three California runs in the fifth inning of the second game at Cleveland. Jim McGlothlin, aided by Hoyt Wilhelm's relief in the eighth and ninth innings, won his fifth game of the year.

Sam McDowell pitched a two-hitter embellished with eight strikeouts for the Indians in the first game. Ken Harrelson drove in all three Cleveland runs with a two-run homer in the first inning and a double in the sixth.

losses. Ed Spiezio homered for the Padres.

Jim Davenport singled with none out and the bases loaded in the 12th inning as the Giants handed the Phillies their eighth straight loss. Reliever Al Raffo walked Bobby Bonds and Ken Henderson leading off the 12th and Bob Burda beat out a bunt for a hit. Davenport then delivered his third hit of the game.

Larry Hise had tied the score at 8-8 with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth after Willie Mays' pinch-hit homer. Errors by Richie Allen and Johnny Briggs and Bonds' single had produced three runs in the eighth and given the Giants an 8-6 lead.

Allen had two homers, his 14th and 15th of the season, for the Phils.

It was like old times for the New York Yankees Sunday, even if the one-time all-American boy shared the cheers with the mod man.

A crowd of 60,000 cheered as the Yankees officially retired the No. 7 worn by Mickey Mantle, the all-American boy in the glory seasons of the 1950s.

Then it cheered as loud—well, almost as loud—as Joe Pepitone, the long-haired mod man of the modern Yankees, hit a three-run homer in the first game and a two-run single during a five-run rally in the second game to lead the Yankees to 3-1 and 11-2 victories over the Chicago White Sox. The victories enabled the Yankees to reach the 500-mark for the first time since May 1.

Pepitone hit his 16th homer of the season, topping by one his 1968 total, in the fourth inning of the first game after singles by Bobby Murcer and Roy White. Mel Stottlemyre made it look easy with a three-hitter that raised his record to nine victories and four losses.

Pepitone's two-run single and White's two-run double by White helped the Yankees break open the second game with a five-run spurge in the fifth inning. Rookie Bill Burich pitched a six-hitter to win his third game against four losses.

The Boston Red Sox defeated the Kansas City Royals 8-2, the

Seattle Pilots beat the Baltimore Orioles 7-5, the Washington Senators topped the Minnesota Twins 7-5 in 12 innings and the California Angels scored a 3-2 victory after losing to the Cleveland Indians 3-0 in other American League games. Oakland at Detroit was rained out.

Two homers by Rico Petrocelli and one each by Dalton Jones and Reggie Smith led the Red Sox to their victory and enabled Jim Longborg to raise his record to 6-0. Petrocelli's two homers gave him a career-high of 19 while the victory for Longborg, the Red Sox' 1967 pitching hero, marked his second straight complete game.

John Kennedy's two-run single and run-scoring singles by Gerry McNertney, Ray Oyler and pitcher Steve Barber, all with two out, enabled the Pilots to score five runs in the first inning. Paul Blair hit a two-run homer and Frank Robinson and Don Buford singled in runs for the Orioles but John O'Donoghue shut out Baltimore for the last 3-1-3 innings to receive credit for the win.

Del Unser hit a two-run homer off Tom Bahill with one out in the 12th inning to give the Senators their decision over the Twins. Casey Cox received credit for his fourth win for two innings of scoreless relief while Hall suffered his fourth setback against three victories.

Three walks, a pop fly double by Aurelio Rodriguez—the Angles' only hit in the second game—Tom Egan's sacrifice fly and an error by catcher Ray Rosse added up to three California runs in the fifth inning of the second game at Cleveland. Jim McGlothlin, aided by Hoyt Wilhelm's relief in the eighth and ninth innings, won his fifth game of the year.

Sam McDowell pitched a two-hitter embellished with eight strikeouts for the Indians in the first game. Ken Harrelson drove in all three Cleveland runs with a two-run homer in the first inning and a double in the sixth.

What Price Justices?

Occasionally, comparison of news headlines themselves without reference to the details provided in the accompanying stories, adds up to a more revealing analysis than any interpretative editorial. Such was the case with two headlines which appeared recently on the front pages. As an exposure of the cynical gulf between government words and government action, the following are probably without equal:

"U.S. Resources Limited, Sec. Rogers Warns SEATO."

"More U.S. Patronage Jobs Are Being Created."

But we have come to expect such contradictory pronouncements from government bureaus, none of which ever seem to know what the others are saying or doing. Boo-boos of that order have now become commonplace. So let's pass on to other things.

Take the U.S. Supreme Court, for instance; assuming you have a strong stomach, of course. Here, as we were taught and led to believe, we have a body of men, supposedly of the highest caliber and integrity, who, acting as the final safeguard in a system of "checks and balances," were going to keep the rest of the government honest and free of the lust for power and taint of corruption.

And, with what results, we are now being forced to inquire? Just about, what should have been expected when mortal, fallible men are placed in positions of power over other men's fortunes and lives. The court, the highest judicial body in the land, it now turns out is just as politically motivated, just as subject to vested interest, just as susceptible to

Disregard of the Facts

The real Ugly Americans are those people who, without bothering to inform themselves about the situation they discuss, insist that America knows best and the world better march to the tune of the Stars and Stripes.

Most frequently, these spokesmen possess minds that freeze upon an idea and just cannot conceive of error, let alone careless disregard of the facts.

Like Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe, at Promontory, Utah, when he said that only Americans could have built the railroad that tied both sides of our continent together. It sounds patriotic. Undoubtedly, that's what he intended.

But little did he know of the tremendous contribution of thousands of Chinese workmen who underwent the serious rigor of chipping down and through the granite top of the Sierras to permit the railroad to be constructed. The builders couldn't round up enough American workmen. They worked a few days and quit. Finally, Chinese were imported under special arrangements to perform the grinding, tedious job.

Many of those Chinese remained, eventually becoming citizens. They form a prosperous, industrious minority out in California, largely centered in Chinatown, San Francisco. These people sent a big delegation to the 100th anniversary of driving the golden spike at Promontory. But Volpe ignored them, probably thinking a thoughtless speech would cover the subject with the least effort, for he was totally unaware of the large Chinese delegation present or of the story they were there to tell.

Other typical examples about brazen American officials include demands that tribal nations, who have no concept of freedom nor any idea what democracy means, hold two-party elections a la America, or the U.S. won't give them vast sums of money. This silly and meaningless "bargain" is standard practice for us throughout Africa and South America, and particularly in Vietnam.

It makes American travelers, who get a glimpse of foreign culture, squirm and cringe to see how blind and brazen American foreign policies often are — how tribal and national customs are ignored, with no consideration of local conditions which make an intended friendly gesture look like an insult.

No wonder our minorities protest. No wonder we're losing friends round the world. No wonder we're in foment at home. Ignorance destroys.

Oh, Justice! Thy blindfold has slipped.

Thus, we come to one of the supreme ironies spawned by fickle man-made laws.

Louis F. Wolfson, the man whose $20,000 check brought about Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas' resignation, was convicted and sent to prison for selling stock he owned.

This Is Agriculture?

We see where the U.S. Department of Agriculture has come up with a profound finding.

According to the Chicago Tribune, the Agriculture bureaucrats made a survey of the women in Boston and discovered that today's young woman is shapelier than her mother was. She has about the same size bust, but is trimmer around the waist and hips and slightly taller and heavier than her mother was at the same age. The survey in Boston was compared with results of a national survey made 30 years ago.

We join the Tribune editor in wondering what such a survey has to do with agriculture. But if there are many more such studies being made by the department, it might explain why there is one employee of the Department of Agriculture for every 22 farmers in the United States.

While Congress is studying ways to reduce government spending and taxes, it may well consider eliminating such foolishness by the bureaucracy.

Shepherds Stray From The Flocks

By DONL OAKLEY
NEA Staff Writer

In the long history of the churches, the shepherds have frequently tended to go off in different directions from their flocks — or vice versa — but never has the division been as widespread as it seems to be today.

Two University of California sociologists, Prof. Charles Y. Glock and Rodney Stark, have concluded a five-year analysis of prejudice and church belief in the United States.

A few of their findings: While 75 to 90 per cent of Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders and clergy are working actively against racial and religious discrimination, the majority of church members are not only prejudiced but also deny the right of the churches to challenge their prejudices.

Racial prejudice is higher among members with conservative theological views and among members who are most active in church activities.

The traditional Christian image of man prompts such people to blame the miseries of the disadvantaged on their own shortcomings.

Half of American Christians continue to blame the Jews for the Crucifixion, despite official church pronouncements to the contrary.

Catholics are a little less prejudiced than Protestants and liberal Protestants are a little less prejudiced than conservative Protestants.

When the churches search for support for their ethical teachings they are more likely to find it among those who stay home on Sunday.

The sociologists emphasize that "a great many devout Christians" do accept their churches' ethical precepts and are trying to fight prejudice, "but when the whole range of Christians is examined, ethical commitment is, seemingly, not the typical product of religious devotion."

SOVIET-CUBA NUCLEAR TREATY

In the midst of all the discussion of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, little was given to a very significant event occurring recently in Havana. The anniversary of Castro's take-over in Cuba was featured by the signing of a Soviet-Cuban nuclear treaty.

Several leading Soviet scientists, including Igor Morozov of the Soviet Atomic Energy Commission, were present at the ceremonies. Together with Cuban scientists they launched Cuba's institute of Nuclear Physics.

It is most unlikely that the Soviets and Cubans are interested in sharing knowledge of peaceful uses of atomic energy. The new Nuclear Institute will be built at Managua, a small town far from any large cities. The site is only a few miles from San Antonio de los Banos, one of the missile sites spotted in 1962, and is also near Mariel, a Soviet submarine port. The Managua region has many caves where missiles and weapons can be hidden.

Cuba has already announced that it will not sign the non-proliferation treaty. Although the Soviets will probably ratify the document, they will still be able to give nuclear weapons to Cuba under the cover of "scientific" and "peaceful" research, now that this treaty has been signed.

Continued Cuban hostility to the U.S. and Castroite Guerrilla activities throughout Latin America make it clear that communist Cuba has no intention of living peacefully with its neighbors. With nuclear capability, Cuba will pose an exceedingly dangerous threat to peace in the Western Hemisphere. The Soviet-Cuban nuclear treaty points up the inadvisability of our having ratified the non-proliferation treaty, as well as the foolishness of debating whether or not to build the Safeguard Anti-Ballistic Missile protection system.

A thought for the day: Roman playwright Terence said, "Nothing is so difficult but that it may be found out by seeking."

The Greater Cost of War

By PAUL HARVEY

Win or lose, a nation pays for each war forever.

When the cost of munitions is amortized, the cost of veterans and dependents' benefits remains a continuing drain on the Treasury.

But the irreparable loss to any nation engaged in war is the sacrifice of its most promising sons.

Somewhere in France during World War I, a young man died crying in the mud. His son—who now would never be—might have been the doctor with the answer to cancer.

One day on a nameless hill on the island of Guadalcanal, a young man died—whose grandson might have known the way to end all wars forever.

In war, we are harvesting before the crop is ripe.

Only God knows how much we might have learned from the silent voices coming home from Vietnam in boxes.

Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says, "If the Vietnam war continues much longer, all our best young men will have fled the country."

Novelist Pearl Buck says the "loss of the future leaders" is Vietnam's greatest tragedy. She remembers history:

China's civilization once led the world. But Ghengis Khan skimmed the cream from the top of China's youth and left the lesser ones behind to propagate. Today China, with a wage scale of 10 cents a day, has no leaders competent to solve the problems of over-population and semistarvation.

Alexander the Great thus decimated the youth of ancient Greece. Those into whom had been bred superlative athletic prowess died fighting in Asia Minor. The weak who remained begat weakness.

Rome, for a thousand years, siphoned off her strongest and best to try to make the Mediterranean a Roman lake — then collapsed.

Historian Dr. David Jordan cites — as typical of the character and integrity of the culms whom war left behind—Nero.

Spain was lord of the world up to the 17th century, but the Spanish infantry which preserved that power drained Spain of its best manpower until, by the 19th century, Spain was Europe's football.

In World War I, France lost 60 percent of its youth between the ages of 19 and 31 and never recovered from that loss.

England, which poured the flower of her youth into wars with the Kaiser and Hitler, now is impotent, leaderless.

Any breeder of animals recognizes that the characteristics of ancestors are transmitted to their offspring; thus do strong men and women breed strong descendants, weak men and women breed weak descendants.

When modern war takes the best and leaves the least behind to propagate, it constitutes reverse breeding. The most capable and most healthy are removed from society for protracted periods — often forever — while back home we are down-breeding succeeding generations.

Thus, says Pearl Buck, the United States in Vietnam is losing future teachers, scientists, poets, writers, leaders.

Win or lose, a nation pays for each war forever.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSFORD

New Procedures In Snake Bite Cases

Thousands of persons in North America are bitten by poisonous snakes every summer. The old emergency treatment, making an X-shaped incision through the fang marks and sucking out the venom, however, is rarely necessary. The deciding factor is whether or not the victim can reach a hospital within an hour. If so there is no need to panic.

It is estimated that 66 per cent of all persons who are bitten by a poisonous snake get only a minute amount of venom and will survive without any treatment but, rather than take any chances, a tourniquet should be placed about two inches above the bite. It should not cut off the circulation but be just tight enough so that you can still slip an index finger under it, then it should not be loosened.

The bitten part should be kept as motionless as possible and the victim should not move about, any more than necessary because movement speeds the spread of the poison through the system. For the same reason alcohol should not be given.

At the hospital, further treatment will be determined by the victim's age, general condition and the severity of his symptoms. For some of those who do not have high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries or Raynaud's disease, immersion of the bitten limb in cold water to retard the spread of the venom may be the best treatment. The rest of the body must, however, be kept warm. Some authorities now advocate surgical removal of the skin and subcutaneous tissue around the bite.

These patients should not be given antivenin because the chilling interferes with sensitivity to horse serum. If antivenin is to be given, the victim should be tested for sensitivity to horse serum. If he is sensitive, precautions are taken to prevent a severe reaction.

Supplementary treatment may include antibiotics, tetanus toxoid, inhalation of oxygen, transfusion or an injection of hydrocortisone.

If the bite was made by a coral snake, the symptoms (nausea, drooling and weakness) may not occur for several hours. For this reason the victim should be kept in the hospital for at least 48 hours.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION:—Is the state our enemy as Albert Jay Nock contends in his books, "The Theory of Education in the United States" and "Our Enemy, The State."

ANSWER: We believe that the state can do nothing but coerce and that the coercer is immoral. Many people and Albert J. Nock among them differentiate between the state as protector and the state when it interferes with man's right to make decisions. When the state protects us, as the police force is intended to do and as the military defense is intended to do, it is obviously not our enemy. But when the state interferes with the individual's right to his own life, then it uses the police force against the people, and it is, then, our enemy.

In Nock's book, "Our Enemy, The State," he says: "It is unfortunately none too well understood that, just as the state has no power of its own, so it has no power of its own. All the power it has is what society gives it, plus what it confiscates from time to time on one pretext or another."

Perhaps it is nearer the truth to say that people are their own worst enemies, for when they abdicate their responsibilities for educating their children, for protecting themselves, for providing for their old age, or anything else, they give power to the state—power that can, and someday will, be used against them. If you grant someone the power to take some of your property, you have given him the power to take it all, even your life, which is your most important property.

History shows that nearly every society has gone to pieces by the state grabbing more and more of the income so there is not enough left to support the people and defend them against foreign aggressors. On the whole we would agree with Albert Jay Nock.

Inside Washington

Memo to Ted: Mind Those Glass Splinters

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON, — If you look closely, you will discern a glaring incongruity in those stridently moralistic preachments of Sen. Edward Kennedy against the Vietnam war, the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system and other politics-rife issues.

The 37-year-old eager-beaver presidential scambler is the last man to do any holier-than-thou stone throwing. For him to assume a lofty ethical stance is comparable to the pot calling the kettle black.

As a Harvard student, Kennedy, in effect, was expelled for cheating.

Doing poorly in Spanish, he ducked an examination by inducing another student to take it for him. The deception was discovered, and Kennedy and his accomplice were "asked to withdraw."

The sorry affair came to light in the spring of 1962 when Kennedy rocked Massachusetts politics by announcing for the U.S. Senate.

Until then, the Democratic nomination was considered certain to go to State Attorney General Edward McCormack. An Annapolis graduate, nephew of Speaker John McCormack, popular and able, he had worked his way up the political ladder.

Kennedy, 30, had no political service or experience. But he had four unbeatable assets — his father's immense wealth, an older brother who was President of the U.S., another brother who was U. S. attorney general, and the family's highly organized and well oiled political machine.

Intrepidly, McCormack fought this insuperable combination down to the wire. The bitter campaign cost the Kennedys more than $1 million. But in the end, "Teddy" got the Senate seat.

During the scorching fray, McCormack charged Kennedy with cheating in college. Kennedy admitted it in the following statement:

"I was having difficulty in one course, a foreign language. I became so apprehensive that I arranged with a fellow student to take the exam in that course for me. The dean learned of this and my friend and I were asked to withdraw, with the understanding that we might reapply for admission after a period of absence, provided that during the time we could demonstrate a record of constructive and responsible citizenship."

"What I did was wrong. I have regretted it ever since. The unhappiness I caused my family and my friends, even though years ago, has been bitter experience for me. But it also has been a very valuable lesson. That is the story."

Kennedy was later readmitted to Harvard and graduated in 1956. But he did not attend Harvard's famed Law School. Instead, he graduated from the University of Virginia Law School in 1959.

His vehement moralistic denunciations of the Vietnam war continue to be extensively broadcast by Hanoi and Moscow radio. In these castigations, Kennedy carefully says nothing about the fact that his late brother, President John D. Kennedy, initiated the policy of sending combat troops to Vietnam to avert a Communist take-over.

Supplementary treatment may include antibiotics, tetanus toxoid, inhalation of oxygen, transfusion or an injection of hydrocortisone.

Not only is there strong bipartisan opposition against the proposal, but Rep. Kenneth Gray, D-Ill., chairman, is cool towards it. The World War II Air Force veteran and long-time legislator was a warm supporter and admirer of the late President, but shakes his head disapprovingly at voting more money for the center.

Two factors are behind that: (1) Several years ago Congress voted $15.5 million for the project, plus a 17-acre site on the Potomac near famed Lincoln Memorial, on the explicit assurance no more federal funds would be sought; (2) serious doubts that his subcommittee will approve the additional $7.5 million.

Also, Gray is well aware that even if the item should somehow reach the House floor it faces vehement bipartisan hostility. Gray has no stomach for defending it.

He has already been warned by dissenting colleagues that he will have a knockdown battle on his hands. Said one, "There are too many hungry people, particularly children, in need of food to spend $7.5 million on this fancy building. If you bring it up, we'll do our utmost to make you wish you hadn't. I think we can lick it."

Apparently, so does Gray. He is not over-exerting himself pushing it.

Original estimated cost of the center was $31 million; now it's put at more than double that.

OUTSIDE HELP — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., chairman of a House Education subcommittee, may have to appeal to the full committee to get a bill cracking down on campus rioters.

She is being blocked by liberal members, foremost among them Reps. Philip Burton, D-Calif., Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, brother of Cleveland's Negro mayor, and Ogden Reid, R-N.Y.

Mrs. Green vigorously disapproves of student agitators and trouble-makers. She is also highly critical of pusillanimous and leftist college officials and faculty members. She is seeking tougher legislation to cope with them, particularly a bill to require schools receiving federal funds to submit plans for dealing with disturbances. If these measures are deemed unsatisfactory, government money would be withheld.

But the liberals on her subcommittee are adamantly opposing this, and so far Mrs. Green has been unable to make any headway.

To circumvent this inside obstructionism, she has proposed to Representative Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the full Education and Labor Committee, that it assume jurisdiction of the stymied legislation.

Perkins is sympathetic to the idea, and may resort to it if the subcommittee deadlock isn't broken.

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, will open a wide-ranging probe of the Students for a Democratic Society and other extremist elements next week.

This probe has been underway for many months. Committee agents have visited college campuses across the country, including Michigan State, Wayne University, University of California at Berkeley, Wisconsin University, University of Delaware, Stanford and Harvard.

Committee members say the forthcoming hearings will conclusively prove three things — that the same radical pamphlets, manuals and other literature show up at all campus uprisings; the same is true as regards agitators and leaders; and the disruptive tactics and procedures are the same.

First witnesses at the McClellan committee hearings will be police intelligence officials and other authorities with firsthand experience in campus disturbances.

OFFENDED CHAIRMAN — It's still a toss-up whether the House Foreign Affairs Committee's long-delayed hearings on the new multi-billion dollar foreign aid budget will finally get underway this week.

It all depends on whether Rep. Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., is over his peeve.

The one-time practicing surgeon, who has been a member of Congress since 1945, became miffed at President Nixon because of not being consulted in advance on his $2.7 billion foreign aid budget. It was outlined to Republican committee members, but Morgan wasn't briefed until later.

This irked him. While not complaining to the White House, Morgan did talk to committee members, expressing sharp resentment at "being slighted." He followed that up by calling off hearings scheduled last week.

Whenever they do get underway, first witness will be new foreign aid director John Hannah.
