

Pat Nixon Is Greeted By Anti-War Protestors

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Pat Nixon, who kept her cool during a mock "napalm" bombing by anti-Vietnam war protesters, toured day care and Braille centers today before flying to Los Angeles.

The First Lady and her married daughter, Julie Eisenhower, were on the second leg of a four-day West Coast safari to spotlight nationally local volunteer programs to help the needy.

Before departing at 2:50 p.m.

P.D.T. Mrs. Nixon planned to motor 20 miles to a farming area to visit a day nursery for the children of migratory workers and a Jewish temple where the blind are taught Braille by volunteer tutors.

Her journey, which she described at the outset as a "lighthearted trip" was marred Monday when protesters showered down paper from a top-floor window. The slips read:

"If this were napalm, you would be dead."

The confrontation with demonstrators occurred when she arrived at the headquarters of a 24-hour volunteer emergency service in an old ghetto neighborhood church. Many anti-war groups had their headquarters in the same building.

Mrs. Nixon looked pale and startled, but chose to ignore placard-waving members of the Portland Chapter of the Resistance, a national anti-war group.

Later she was beset by several members of a group calling itself "Women's International Terrorist Conspiracy from Hell" (WITCH), who wore black witches' costumes and put a "hex" on her in a chorus: "Mrs. Nixon: Millions die but you don't cry," they chanted. "This hex on you will all come true."

A huge banner held up by protesters also read: "How many people have you killed today? How many have you allowed to starve? $70 million a day spent in Vietnam—why?"

The demonstration came as a surprise and Mrs. Nixon's wary Secret Service guards cut short her visit. Later, the President's wife said of the protesters that she did not "get a good look at them." But her daughter Julie, a bit perturbed, said she thought the pickets were "out of place."

In the evening, Mrs. Nixon and her party toured a tense black ghetto area that has produced a rash of fire bombings and disturbances in recent days. She ran into no trouble except for one black power flag hung on a press bus. But about an hour after she left, some rock throwing and one small fire produced arrests although nobody was hurt.

At the Albina Art Center in the ghetto area, she was taken on a tour by denim-clad Rufus Butler, a Negro who told her:

"Art is our major concern. We find it's a wonderful way to get people together in a neutral way."

As he led her around, Butler took a swipe at the press for saying that his center was located in a "slum" area and he pointed out a poster inscribed with the words of black poet Langston Hughes. Taken from his "Black Miser," "Miser," read the sign, "is when you heard on the radio that the neighborhood you live in is a slum but always thought it was home."

Mrs. Nixon and her party also inspected a volunteer garden project similar to the victory gardens of World War II. She found the neighborhood people there overjoyed to see her.

Project Director Mrs. Vivian Barnett told the First Lady that she founded the program because "There is no need for (See NIXON, Page 3)

BISHOP TO INVESTIGATE

Texans Claim To See 'Image' of Christ

PORT NECHES, Tex. (UPI) — An estimated 1,000 persons crowded around a Port Neches home Monday night to look at an "image" on a screen door which some claim to be Jesus Christ.

The home is owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bass, both of whom are described as "deeply religious" by their 19-year-old adopted son Wayne.

"About 1,000 people came here tonight to look at it," said Bass, who recently was discharged from the Air Force. "I'm not what you would call a deeply religious person, but I don't know how you would explain something like this unless it was the work of God."

Bass said the image is made of "tiny dents on the screen" which form an "image of Christ just like you see in church."

"It is a full size profile picture, and he is looking toward the east at a fig tree in our back yard," he said. "Some of the news media have said people have seen it more and heard it talk but that's not true."

Bass said his mother, 73, first saw the image Thursday while she was in the back yard. "She told our neighbors about it and wanted them to see it. She didn't want any publicity because she thought people would think we were some religious cranks," he said.

"My parents are too old to be pulling any practical jokes. It would take someone a long time to do that (the image) by hand, and I have been here nearly all the time. I also have a Doberman pinscher in our back yard."

"The image is clearly defined and sometimes it has colors in it. His hair is long and flowing, and he is dressed in a white robe. There is a halo over his head, and he has a beard," Bass said.

Bass said the police had to turn the huge crowds away at about 11:45 p.m. "Our yard had a lot of flowers and shrubbery in it but now it looks like a fair ground."

Evans' Officer Refuses To Give Testimony

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (UPI) — The officer in charge of the USS Frank E. Evans when it collided with an Australian aircraft carrier refused today to testify before a board of inquiry without "full constitutional rights."

Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, 24, of Long Beach, Calif., informed the board of his decision through his legal counsel, Lt. Frederick F. Tilton of Mariemont, Ohio, on the eighth day of hearings into the cause of the crash that killed 74 Americans.

Tilton said he advised Ramsey not to testify because his requests to see the testimony of previous witnesses, to recall witnesses and to cross-examine witnesses had been denied.

"Mr. Ramsey, after careful consideration of this advice declines to make a statement at this time, reserving, of course, the right to testify before any board or formal board hereinafter convened which has the authority to grant him his full constitutional rights," Tilton said.

The board of three U.S. Navy and three Australian navy officers, called to determine the facts and not guilt adjourned for a closed meeting. A spokesman said no more witnesses would be called today.

The board Saturday said it did not have the authority to grant Ramsey's requests and warned him he was suspected of "negligently hazing" the Evans in the collision.

Ramsey was within his rights in refusing to testify. The fact-finding board cannot force him to give his account of what happened in the minutes before the June 3 tragedy in the South China Sea.

Kennedy Agrees, Overhaul Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts warns that ending the draft after Vietnam as proposed by President Nixon, could aggravate a split between the U.S. military and the nation's civilian population.

In an introduction to a new book on the Selective Service System by George E. Reedy, President Lyndon B. Johnson's news secretary, Kennedy pointed to the author's concern that an all-volunteer army could lead to a largely black Army.

"This," said the Massachusetts senator, "would serve only to increase the separatism between the military and civilian sectors of our society."

Kennedy endorsed Reedy's conclusion that "it is highly unlikely that the draft will be abolished in the foreseeable future... or at least in time to effect the lives of those who now stand in the shadow of military service."

He agreed with Reedy that major overhaul of the draft system is urgently needed.

Reedy gave strong support to proposals to start the draft with 19-year-olds under a lottery system. Similar proposals were made by the advisory commission and endorsed recently by Nixon.

He also suggested overhaul of draft boards.

THAT BARRICADE WAS A LITTLE LATE—Cars and trucks had a hard time getting around the intersection at Barnes and Frederic Tuesday morning as hard rains hit Pampa. The biggest trouble was caused as rain washed out the base from a newly completed sewer line which cuts across Highway 60 at the intersection. Several cars and trucks, including a police car sent to the scene to control the traffic, fell victims to the trench. City crews were working hard to replace the base over the line and get the intersection open by noon.

SEWER CAVE-IN BLOCKS TRAFFIC

Rain Continues To Soak Pampa Area

Pampa received a soaking 1.22 inches of rainfall early today in two thunderstorms that flooded some streets and caused a sewer cave-in.

A traffic detour was forced when the sanitary sewer caved in this morning at the intersection of E. Frederic and Barnes Sts.

E.M. Wofford, public utilities director, said city workmen expected to have repairs made and traffic flow restored by noon today.

Wofford said sand and gravel were being hauled in to fill the excavation, caused when this morning's heavy rain undermined the main.

West 23rd street in front of Robert E. Lee Junior High School was running water curb to curb as usual in the early morning traffic hour.

Red Deer Creek continued to climb toward bank-top during the forenoon from runoff waters coming down from north sections of the city. The creek was not expected to overflow.

Gray County's wheat harvest operations continued at a standstill because of the rain, which still was falling at mid-forenoon. Weather forecasts indicated the rain would continue with the possibility of severe thunderstorms late today and tonight.

Continuation of the rainfall or high winds could cause serious damage to Gray County's anticipated $2,000,000 wheat crop.

There are approximately 78,000 acres of wheat land in Gray County that was expected to yield upwards of 1,560,000 bushels at an average yield of 20 bushels to the acre. The current wheat price is $1.25 a bushel.

Poster Whaley, county agent, said today the damage had not yet been done. Wheat farmers were praying for a lull in the rainfall.

"If the rain would stop and we could get a southwest wind," Whaley said, "the combines could get into the fields within a day."

A couple of dozen combines still were stacked up in the area today and their crews were waiting in town to go into action as soon as the weather permits.

According to the official U.S. weather reporting station at Radio KGRO, Pampa has received a total of 2.42 inches of rain so far in June bringing the year's total to 9.45 inches.

Last year on the this date the total was 9.10 inches, according to meteorologist Darrell Seahorn.

Today's rainfall started in a thunderstorm shortly after 2:30 a.m. That downfall brought .84-inch and a second thunderstorm around 7 a.m. brought an additional .38-inch up to 8:30 a.m. Both storms were accompanied by lightning.

It is estimated another .10-inch had fallen between that time and noon today.

Pampa received the lion's share of the precipitation which was a general over the Panhandle. Other amounts to (See RAIN, Page 3)

Harlem Democrat's Back Pay Refused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House members, angered at the Supreme Court ruling they had no right to exclude Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, irately vowed they wouldn't foot the bill for the Harlem Democrat's back pay even if the court orders them to pay it.

"We'll never pay it," was the defiant word around the House.

Powell, who is 60 but doesn't look anywhere near that, got the news on Bimini, his hideaway island in the Bahamas. He was understandably very pleased.

Relaxing on a yacht in white shorts and knee socks, he said, "it means the judicial branch of government has re-established itself as one of the three branches of government instead of being secondary."

Powell said he did not know when he would return to Washington but said he believes the decision "is a mandate to go back and see what they (House members) are going to do."

Most members argued hotly the Supreme Court had no business considering the case of Powell's 22-month exclusion from the 90th Congress. They said the Constitution gives the House the exclusive right to judge the qualification of members. But the court said the Constitution sets the qualifications for House members and Powell was eligible.

Monday's 7 to 1 ruling, which also sent to the lower courts the question of Powell's right to back pay, cleared up the last of the legal problems that have beset the Harlem lawmaker since 1960 and that figured heavily in the March 1 1967, House vote to exclude him.

And it threatened to put the House itself in the contempt of court role that dogged Powell for years after he refused to pay a slander judgment against a Harlem widow he called a "bag woman" for police bribe takers.

Under the court's decision, members of the House themselves could not be subject to any eventual court order that might grow out of the case. The court said employees of the House such as the sergeant-at-arms could be defendants but not members themselves.

But since the members would have to direct their employes to issue any eventual pay order (See POWELL, Page 3)

Manager States New Law Will Up Operating Costs

Pampa's operating costs will be increased some $4,000 a year by a House bill which increases police and fire department longevity service from $2 to $3 a month per year, according to City Manager Charles Hill.

The provision is made in House Bill 41 passed by the Texas Legislature and recently signed by Gov. Preston Smith.

The bill becomes effective next Jan. 1 and will affect Pampa's budget during the 1969-70 fiscal year.

The city manager said a nother major piece of legislation, House Bill 456, has removed governmental immunity from many acts of the city and its employes while carrying out their normal functions.

This legislation, Hill stated, for the first time makes governmental units responsible for personal damages incurred in acts involving motor-driven vehicles, and condition and use of property.

Pampa currently carries liability insurance, the city manager said, but not in the amount required by the new law, some $100,000 to $300,000 for personal injuries or death.

"These new laws are going to increase the cost of city government operation," Hill said.

A 25-year-old American woman tourist and an Israeli civilian were killed today and four other persons including an American were wounded when they were caught in an artillery and mortar duel between Israeli and Jordanian forces near the Dead Sea. She was first tourist to be killed in the border warfare.

The Israeli army withheld names of the victims of the three-hour border clash but Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem identified the dead woman as Shirley Anderson of New York and her companion as Eileen Bonnet, 27, of California. Miss Bonnet suffered a shrapnel wound in the arm.

The two women had been in Kinshasa, the Congo, where they had been working at the American community school for the past two years and had paused in Israel during a pilgrimage to the Holy Land on their return to the United States.

Also wounded in the attack was a 39-year-old Arab taxi driver who drove the two girls from Jerusalem to the Dead Sea. The women were changing for a swim when a Russian-made 122 millimeter shell slammed into Qalya Beach on the northern shore of the Dead Sea in what is now occupied Jordan.

Shrapnel riddled the cabana in which the two women were changing and set fire to two taxis parked nearby.

Officials said it was the first time a tourist had been killed during Arab-Israeli fighting since the end of the June, 1967 six-day war.

Jerusalem and barely three miles from the Abdullah bridge spanning the Jordan River.

An Israeli spokesman said the tourists had stopped for refreshments at the Arab-owned Lydo cafeteria near Qalya when the shell slammed into the parking lot as they were changing. Officials first said two buses were set afire but later identified the vehicles as taxis.

The injured were flown by helicopter to Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem.

A Jordanian military spokesman in Amman, Jordan, said the battle lasted more than 90 minutes but reported no Jordanian casualties. He pinpointed the location as near Al-Maghtass, four miles north of the Dead Sea.

The Tel Aviv spokesman identified the exploding shell as a 122mm Soviet-made type. He said the battle began at about 7:45 a.m. (1:45 a.m. EDT) and continued for nearly two hours, intensifying and spreading south to the north shore of the Dead Sea.

The new clash came as a leader of a Palestinian guerrilla group said that his followers have changed their tactics from hit and run to limited confrontations with the Israelis.

In an interview with the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar, Al Fatah leader Yassir Arafat cited a recent battle with Israeli troops in the Sammarian Hills near Jericho as an example of the group's new strategy.

Israeli spokesmen said eight guerrillas and three Israelis were killed in the four-hour battle last Wednesday. The Israelis used artillery to blast the guerrillas out of caves.

Arafat did not indicate a reason for the change in fighting style, apparently designed to bring bigger battles with the Israelis.

On the diplomatic front, U.S. ambassadors of the Big Four powers were meeting today in their 13th session aimed at finding a Middle East peace formula. No progress was reported in the talks, now in their 10th week.

An Israeli spokesman announced that one Gaza Arab resident was killed and 21 injured Monday night in the second grenade attack in 24 hours at the Medina Square in Central Gaza. Army officials said they believed the grenade had been intended for a passing (See DUAL, Page 3)

Dear Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Today is my wedding anniversary. I am spending it alone, as I have spent the last three such occasions.

My husband was a handsome, intelligent young man. He came from a good religious family. Our marriage was thought to be one of the perfect matches of all time. Then my husband discovered marijuana.

At first it was a kick—something "fun" that we could do together. From marijuana we graduated to the amphetamines, first benzadrine—white crosses or "bennies"—then dexadrine then methadrine. We took tranquilizers—mainly to help us through the bad moments when the high was wearing off.

It finally got to the point where we were taking pills to sleep, pills to wake up, pills to keep us going during the day.

Then I became pregnant. The doctor became suspicious, and gave me a long lecture on the harm I was doing to myself and to my unborn child. He frightened me so badly that I quit the pills completely—not without a severe struggle, but I did quit. Unfortunately, my husband couldn't, or wouldn't quit, too. Since I was unwilling to "turn on" with him, he found friends who would. Our apartment soon became a gathering place for potheads, pillheads, acid users cocaine sniffers, and other assorted drug abusers.

I saw my husband become a stranger to me. Our marriage fell apart so rapidly that it is now difficult to remember that we were ever the happy young couple our friends congratulated. He couldn't stand the thought of having a "straight" wife. I couldn't tolerate his moods, his friends, his constant demands for money for more drugs. (Believe me, it is expensive, and it keeps getting more expensive.)

When he started to abuse our infant son, I realized that there was nothing I could do to help him. He didn't want my help, or anyone else's. On the advice of a minister, a psychiatrist and a lawyer, I left him and sued for divorce.

So Abby, please don't ever stop telling parents, young people, teachers, husbands and wives the dangers behind drugs. Some day I want my son to be proud of his mother and I want him to understand that his father would love him if he could, but he's sick.

In rereading this, I see I haven't touched upon the hell those years were. But they were hell, and don't ever let anyone tell you that drug abusers are happy. They are the most miserable, tormented people on God's earth. I know.

Abby, I can't expect you to print this letter. It's much too long. But it's all true, and I just had to say it because I know how you feel about young people. I am signing my real name and address, but please don't use it if you see fit to publish any part of my letter. My family and my husband's are fine people and I wouldn't want them hurt. Thanks for listening.

"BLUE GRASS"
DEAR BLUE GRASS: Your letter was long, but it's well worth the space, and I'm printing every word. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My mother says it is not right for my boyfriend to see me in my sleeping pajamas, but she has no objections to him seeing me in my bathing suit, which covers a lot less.

I asked her what the difference was and she said to ask you.

DEBBIE
DEAR DEBBIE: It is not a matter of how much is covered. Sleeping pajamas are appropriate attire for the bedroom, and therefore are inappropriate for entertaining your boyfriend. (That should cover everything.)

DEAR ABBY: This is for the party who said it bugged her to hear married couples call each other "MOM" and "DAD".

They could call each other worse names. You should hear what the couple next door to us call each other!

VC Rockets Hit Near U.S. Embassy, Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—Two 100-pound rockets crashed into Saigon today, one of them landing in an empty schoolyard a block from the U.S. Embassy.

Costliest of the salvos was a 17-round mortar attack into Kien Van, 70 miles southwest of Saigon, where one South Vietnamese militiaman was killed and 17 civilians were wounded.

The two rockets fired into Saigon landed at 2:45 a.m. with crashes that echoed through empty streets.

Allied spokesmen reported light ground fighting Monday afternoon except for a clash 50 miles northeast of Saigon in which South Vietnamese soldiers reported killing 36 Viet Cong.

Calling on warplanes, helicopter gunships and artillery to help them in the 11-hour battle, the government soldiers lost three men killed and 13 wounded, according to their spokesmen.

In two widely separated skirmishes about 50 miles from Saigon, U.S. troops killed a total of 10 North Vietnamese troops while losing two killed and 10 wounded themselves.

Several of the overnight shellings targeted key U.S. military bases involved in the defense of Saigon, including the Bien Hoa Air Base 15 miles northeast of the city and the headquarters of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division 60 miles to the northwest.

Casualties and damage in all of the attacks was light, military spokesmen said.

Four shells landed in a center where Communist defectors are "reindoctrinated" on the northern coast, killing one of the former Communist soldiers and wounding six.

Also to the north, 10 rockets hit the U.S. Army's big base at Phu Bai on the coast but caused no damage or casualties, initial reports said.

American B52 bombers went after Viet Cong buildings in two spots—in the A Shau Valley in South Vietnam's far northwest corner, and around the Special Forces camp at Katum, 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

It was the first time since June 6 that Communist shells have been fired into Saigon. Guerrilla gunners tried Monday to hit Tan Son Nhut Air Base but five rockets fell a mile short.

"I went over there and didn't see nothing," said Tony Alvarez, a Port Neches man. "All I seen was a blank screen door. But my wife seen it."

"There is an image—that's the only thing we can call it—that's very distinct, with Jesus Christ facing toward the East," said Joe Lanclos. "There has been an image similar to that of the Virgin Mary with a child in her arms. This all came out on polaroid."

Asked about the people who came and saw nothing, Bass said, "Some people can't see the forest for the trees and some people were looking from the wrong angle."

"I'm not a radical and my parents are just too good of people to pull a prank like this," Bass said. "We have asked the bishop of the Catholic Church to come out Tuesday and look at it."

Delayed Murder Trial Begins At Ft. Worth Today

FORT WORTH (UPI)—The trial of J. Loyd Parker Jr., charged with murdering his millionaire father six years ago, was scheduled to begin today after attorneys spent the first session selecting a jury.

The 12th person was empaneled at 9 p.m. Monday and the court was recessed until today.

Parker, arrested two months after his father was shot to death in his $100,000 home May 2, 1963, was sent to the Rusk State Hospital for the mentally ill when a jury ruled he was insane at the time of his trial.

Parker was released earlier this year when another jury ruled he had regained his sanity.

J. Loyd Parker Sr. was a prominent Fort Worth resident who made his fortune in investments and land.

Parker's trial, originally scheduled to begin a week ago Monday, was delayed when Parker's attorney former Dallas Asst. Dist. Atty. Bill Alexander, had a severe throat infection.

The case could even wind up in the Supreme Court again, by which time there would be a new chief justice—Warren E. Burger—and a replacement for Abe Fortas. The color of the case, and the court as well, could be changed by then.

Disguised Blessing Helps Woman Golfer

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI)—Add that smile named Marilyn Smith to the list of persons with a "blessing in disguise" tale to tell.

Her story deals with a bad trip while on a good trip. The lady pro golfer stumbled over a curb in Marbella, Spain, just as she was heading into the last lap of a four-month globe-circling journey earlier this year.

The result was a torn ligament — "the metacarpal something or other," she said with a smile, warping the digit with a thin piece of tape—and six weeks of rest. Six weeks off the pro tour. Six weeks away from where the money is.

"But, it's worked out fine. Now I can concentrate on my timing. My putting is improved, too, because when I hold the putter properly, I don't get a pain. If I'm out of the slot, or there's something wrong, I suffer some pain—then I know something is wrong and I can adjust."

She looked at the thumb and added, "Yep, I guess that trip was a blessing in disguise for me."

Moody's Sponsors Are World's Happiest Men

By MILTON RICHMAN. NEW YORK (UPI)—If you asked Orville Moody the happiest man in the world today, you'd be wrong, you'd be warm. Three different gentlemen are for that distinction and though none is Orville Moody, they have something to do with him. Their names are Leonard Cohen, Tom Carlisle and Jackie Blackburn and they are equal one-third sponsors of the new U.S. Open golf champ. The reason they're so happy that they nearly dropped Orville Moody last year because he wasn't earning his keep, but finally decided against doing so. Down through the years many mistakes have been made in sports. Some unfortunate fellows like Fred Merkle, who forgot to touch second; Roy Riegels, who ran the wrong way, and Dave Barry, the long count referee, never were really permitted to forget theirs. Had Cohen Carlisle and Blackburn withdrawn their support of Moody, they would've remembered their booboo a long time, too. It could've been a million dollar mistake. Moody, who knows they talked about dropping him, doesn't hold it against them, so all's well that ends well. The idea of sponsoring the 35-year-old Moody first occurred to the three men two years ago. Three Handicap Carlisle, a Killeen, Tex. attorney, and a three handicapper, played golf with Moody who was stationed at Fort Hood and honestly believed Moody was a better golfer than Billy Maxwell and some of the other touring pros he had played against. Carlisle felt it would be a good idea to sponsor Moody on the pro circuit despite his age and talked to Cohen about the prospect. Cohen owns a mens' wear shop in Killeen and can't break a 100 on any course but he liked Carlisle's idea. Blackburn, a retired army sergeant from Oklahoma City, who doesn't play golf, became the third partner in the triumvirate. Among them they put up the money required for Moody to attend the PGA Rookies' school in Florida. Moody was graduated from the school but didn't exactly set any records coming out of the chute. He played in the Cajun Open in Louisiana after his graduation and made the cut but finished out of the money. Moody's total income in 1962 from money he made playing golf came to $12,950.01. An income like that didn't permit him to provide too many luxuries for his wife and child or for himself for that matter. It also caused his three sponsors to do a little thinking. When all was said and done last year, they showed a $5,000 deficit backing Moody and since none is a millionaire or even near it, all three had to sit down and do some re-assessing. Nobody can really blame them for that. They are all fond of Moody but he is, after all, a business investment, and the way he was going last year he certainly didn't look like an especially good one. Understandably, the three partners are rather reluctant to talk about their meeting at the end of last year. "You have to understand all of us are not wealthy," said Carlisle before a big civic reception for Moody Monday night in Killeen. "All I can say about any thought of terminating our support is that it wasn't my idea." Carlisle, apparently, reaffirmed his faith in Moody at the session with his partners and they ultimately agreed to go along with him. Moody was told the sponsorship agreement would be continued and he was glad. When Cohen talks about Moody's performance last year, he says: "Remember, it was his first year on the tour. It wasn't the worst and it wasn't the best. We feel, as we have always felt, that he's going to be a great champion. As people saw on TV, he didn't freeze. He didn't choke. He's the new 'Ice Man' of golf and he's going to win a lot more tournaments. Do we think he can make a million? We feel he can make more. That's how much faith we have in him."

Tigers' McClain Wins 100th Game

By United Press International. Denny McClain, the bluff, tough-talking 31-game winner of 1962, is taking as much pleasure in his 10-5 record this year as his 11-2 mark a year ago. "What burns me is that so many guys even in Detroit, said I might be a 5-10 pitcher at this stage of the season," said McClain, after pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 3-2 win over the New York Yankees Monday night. "I want to shove it down their throats."

The big blow in the Tigers' victory, which saddled Fritz Peterson with his seventh defeat, was a two-run homer by Al Olivar in the fourth inning. The Minnesota Twins beat the California Angels, 8-2, as Rod Carew tied an American League record by stealing home for the sixth time in one season, the Chicago White Sox downed the Seattle Pilots, 8-3, the Boston Red Sox topped the Cleveland Indians, 8-5, and the Kansas City Royals scored a 12-inning victory, 3-2 after losing the first game to the Oakland Athletics, 7-5, in 13 innings.

The Twins whisked off to a 3-0 lead. Carew's six steals of home equal the AL record set by Ty Cobb of the Detroit Tigers in 1915 and equalled by Bob Roth of the Cleveland Indians in 1917. Carew is one short of the major league mark set by Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1946. Perry Goes Route Jim Perry went the route to pick up his fifth victory of the season for the Twins. Billy Wynne allowed eight hits and hit a two-run single during a five-run third inning as the White Sox snapped a four-game losing streak. Luis Aparicio and Gail Hopkins each had two hits for the White Sox while Mike Hegan and Don Mincher had two each for the Pilots. Reggie Smith hit a three-run homer in the seventh off Juan Pizarro and a solo homer in the ninth off Mike Paul to rally the Red Sox to their victory at Cleveland. Carl Yastrzemski hit his 18th homer for the Red Sox while Ken Harrelson drove in two runs for the Indians with a homer and a double. Dick Green's two-run double enabled the Athletics to win their opener at Kansas City but the Royals split the doubleheader when Jim Roland hit Jackie Hernandez with a pitch with the bases filled in the 12th inning of the nightcap.

Longhorns Lose, Take On Ole Miss In NCAA Tourney

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Texas Longhorns, their backs to the wall after receiving their first defeat in the College World Series, must play desperation baseball tonight against a team that eliminated the series favorite. The Longhorns were scheduled to meet Ole Miss tonight in the second of three series games. In the opener, Arizona State was to play Massachusetts at 1:30 p.m. The losers of these two games will be eliminated from further contention. In the feature attraction, Tulsa and NYU, the only two undefeated teams left, square off at 8 p.m. The vaunted Texas hitting attack was completely stymied for 6 2-3 innings Monday against Tulsa. Jack Miller, whose strikeout ended Texas' only chance to win the game the ninth inning, registered the first hit off sophomore Tulsa ace Steve Rogers after two men were out in the sixth. Tulsa's 4-2 upset win put the Hurricanes into tonight's game with NYU.

Cubs Have Lived By Home Runs, But Couldn't Outlast The Pirates

By United Press International. The Chicago Cubs, who've been living by the home run lately, died by it Monday night. Rookie Al Olivar belted a two-run homer to spark a three-run eighth inning outburst that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-8 victory over the Cubs. Roberto Clemente opened the eighth with a triple off loser Phil Regan and scored the tying run on Willie Stargell's single. Jose Martinez ran for Stargell and moved to second on a sacrifice before Rich Nye replaced Regan. Olivar then cracked his sixth homer of the season. The Cubs, however, didn't go down without a struggle. Ron Santo walked to open the inning. After two outs, singles by Al Spangler and pinch-hitter Jim Hickman produced one run, but Steve Blass came on to strike out Rich Bladt to end the game. Remaining NL Games Elsewhere, Cincinnati downed San Francisco, 8-6, Atlanta swept Houston, 8-4 and 6-2, St. Louis blanked Montreal, 3-0 and San Diego shaded Los Angeles, 3-2 in 13 innings. New York and Philadelphia were not scheduled. Pete Rose, Bobby Tolan and Alex Johnson drove in two runs each to pace the Reds over the Giants. Rose's RBI single and a two-run double by Tolan gave the Reds a 5-4 lead in the sixth. Johnson's eighth-inning triple accounted for what proved to be the winning runs. Rico Carty and Tommie Aaron hit consecutive homers to highlight an eight-run second inning in the Braves' second game victory over the Astros. Tony Gonzalez' two opposite field homers boosted Atlanta to victory in the opener and helped Phil Niekro become the major leagues' first 11-game winner. First Home Run Carty, who also had two doubles in the second game, hit a three-run homer in the second and Aaron followed with his first home run of the season. The eight runs were Atlanta's biggest outburst in three years. Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N. Y. highlighted the American attack in the men's singles by defeating former Wimbledon champion Alex Olmedo of Peru, 7-5, 11-9, but defending Wimbledon champ Rod Laver of Australia still appeared unbeatable as he disposed of Britain's Peter Curtis, 6-4, 6-2. Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., had little trouble with Patrice Beust of France, 6-3, 6-2, after struggling to defeat

Seven U.S. Tennis Stars Remain In London Grass Courts Tourney, Nancy Richey Forced To Withdraw

LONDON (UPI)—Seven U.S. men remain in the London Grass Court tennis championships today, but an outstanding American girl is on the sidelines in this final tuneup for next week's Wimbledon. No. 2 seeded Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., was forced to withdraw from the tournament Monday because of back trouble while Linda Tuero of Metairie, La. and Juli e Heldman of New York advanced. Miss Tuero defeated Carole Sheriff of Australia, 6-0, 6-4, and Miss Heldman whipped Judy Salome of the Netherlands, 6-1, 6-2. Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N. Y. highlighted the American attack in the men's singles by defeating former Wimbledon champion Alex Olmedo of Peru, 7-5, 11-9, but defending Wimbledon champ Rod Laver of Australia still appeared unbeatable as he disposed of Britain's Peter Curtis, 6-4, 6-2. Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., had little trouble with Patrice Beust of France, 6-3, 6-2, after struggling to defeat

Ive Bengsston of Sweden, 8-6, 7-5, in an earlier match. Clark Graebner of New York edged John Alexander of Australia, 7-5, 8-6. Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., whipped Ingo Buding of West Germany, 6-1, 6-4, and Marty Riesen of Evanston, Ill. hung on to down Alan Stone of Australia, 16-14, 7-5. Charles Pasarell, U.S. Davis Cupper from Santurce, Puerto Rico, defeated Stephen Warboys of Britain, 7-5, 6-3, and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis toppled Jean Courcol of France, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. Five other Americans were beaten in men's singles play. HARRIS INJURED KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Infielder Billy Harris was examined by team physician Dr. Paul Meyer Monday for an ankle injury and was placed on the 21-day disabled list by the Kansas City Royals.

'Sleeping Giant' Awakes

Fellow by the name of Herbert Marcuse preaches revolution in America to students at the San Diego campus of the University of California. He's no ordinary professor, but a wild-eyed dreamer and they say the kids hang onto every word he utters. Isn't that what they call charisma? Could be.

Maybe you've heard of Marcuse; maybe you haven't. It really doesn't matter. What matters is the anti-American dirty work he is doing with impunity while on the payroll of the university, a tax-supported institution. Paradoxical? A little more than slightly.

The word from San Diego is that Marcuse doesn't attempt to cover up or camouflage his extremely radical thinking. He has been described as an old-fashioned Marxist-Leninist who envisions a destructive revolution in America followed by a repressive authoritarian state, or a dictatorship of the proletariat. How does that grab you, dad?

The rapid rise of Marcuse from relative obscurity to international prominence as a revolutionary theoretician has ultra-liberal thinkers standing by in awe. He is the mentor and idol of much of the New Left both in the United States and around the world.

Marcuse's appointment as a professor of philosophy was recently confirmed by the university board of regents, despite wide-spread opposition from the public. His employment by the State of California can be compared with the shipment of war material to an enemy by the U. S. government, something we've never heard of. However, some of our best friends — England, France, Italy and others — have kept supplies pouring into Hanoi ever since we got involved in Vietnam. But that's something else again. Or is it?

Fred Schwartz, head of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade (CACC), said in the May CACC bulletin that he had made a study of all the published works of Marcuse. Schwartz referred to the critical review of Marcuse's writings as an "onerous task" and went on to say:

"His specific contribution to the revolutionary process has been his advocacy of the use of pleasure and self-indulgence for revolutionary recruitment. He is astute enough to realize that 100 people can be recruited for fun and games where only one would be recruited for sacrifice. His revolutionary tools are sex, obscenity, absurdity, drugs, violence, and the natural rebelliousness of youth."

But there's another side to the story. U. S. News and World Report says in its May 26 issue that forgotten students of this era are the vast majority on any campus who go to class, stay away from demonstrations. Now, USN & WR goes on to say, there are signs the moderate majority is getting fed up with violent, radical minorities (those stirred up by Marcuse and his ilk) and this could be a turning point in campus unrest. Excerpts from the story follow:

For every hard-core radical on American college campuses today, it is estimated there are 99 other students whose main interest is getting an education.

This large section of the student body has come to be known as the "quiet majority" or the "sleeping giant."

It is a group that has been accused of apathy in the face of campus turmoil and of relying on "somebody else" — usually the administrators — to restore order at colleges and universities.

In recent weeks, however, there have been signs that the "sleeping giant" is awakening and the "quiet majority" is beginning to be heard. Some of these signs:

Moderate students, when given an opportunity to vote on issues, are tending to oppose radical programs and violent methods.

Students at many schools are organizing to work actively for law and order on their campuses.

Individually and in groups more and more undergraduates are speaking out against the forces of disruption. They are also showing in other ways concern for the welfare of schools in which they are enrolled.

Finally, a new group called the Association of Student Governments give promise of becoming a rallying point for those who favor moderation.

It's about time somebody does something and the students who make up the "quiet majority" on campuses seem to be made to order for the assignment. Who else is better equipped than a dedicated majority of 99 per cent of the students?

Those Undollar Dollars

"By U.S. statute, the name 'dollar' is applicable only to one thirty-fifth of an ounce of pure gold in an alloy nine-tenths fine."

We hope that you will read that sentence and then read it again; for when its full import has been grasped, you will then be in possession of the knowledge required to accurately measure the depths of cynicism into which your government has sunk.

Meanwhile, as you mull over the full meaning of that explosive sentence, let us digress a bit.

Last year, early in September, as we recall, Economic Education Bulletin, Vol. VIII, No. 7, published by the American Institute for Economic Research of Great Barrington, Mass., came across our desk. Skimming the bulletin rapidly, the sentence with which we began this essay caught our eye and interest and, being busy at the time, we laid the paper aside for later study. But, ever since then, the words of that sentence have been ticking away in our mind as, surely, the words and meaning of the U.S. statute of law defining the dollar as "one thirty-fifth of an ounce of gold" must have been ticking away in the minds of our governmental monetary authorities. Then, in a flash, it came! Without realizing it at the moment, we had come into possession of vital information not known to us before.

We had known, of course as do most of our readers, that gold has been arbitrarily pegged (priced) for years at $35 an ounce by governmental decree. We had known, too, that for example, a $20 dollar bill used to carry the inscription "The United States of America Will Pay to the Bearer on Demand Twenty Dollars" (signifying that the bill itself was NOT Twenty Dollars but merely a claim check for that amount). Such bills today simply bear the legend "Twenty Dollars" (signifying that the bills themselves are dollars!). What we had not known — the missing bit of information that reveals the full extent of governmental perfidy — was the fact that a dollar, under the government's own laws, is "one thirty-fifth of an ounce of pure gold in an alloy nine-tenths fine."

Now, to fully grasp the enormity of what has happened, it will be helpful to realize that the government ("without any action by Congress or any public announcement that has come to our attention," according to the American Institute for Economic Research bulletin), in issuing pieces of paper and calling them "dollars," when, under the law they obviously are not dollars any more than claim checks for baggage are baggage, is doing precisely what the counterfeiter does when he prints bogus money and introduces it into the economy.

Challenge To Solve Causes Of Violence

By DON OAKLEY
(NEA Staff Writer)

Confession may be as good for the national soul as it is for the individual soul, but it is not clear just what benefit will come from the recent report by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, which declared that Americans have been and are "a rather bloody-minded people in both action and reaction" and suffer from "a kind of historical amnesia" that obscures this truth.

The report repeats what we have been hearing ever since the assassination of John F. Kennedy. Its aim no doubt is to bring us to take a good, hard look at ourselves and begin doing something to change this condition.

But a nation, like a person, can be told too often how bad it is. It can lead to either defensive self-righteousness or punishing self-hatred. In either case, the frequent result is worse behavior in the future.

The 13-member commission, composed of historians, political scientists, anthropologists, psychiatrists, psychologists and sociologists, note that other nations have their own traditions of violence. Before we claim the trophy, it might be interesting to compare a few of them with our own.

America has practiced violence against its minorities, but nothing to approach the centuries-long slaughter of religious heretics in medieval Europe.

The American Revolution never produced a guillotine, nor the mass execution of the losers that took place in Cuba only 10 years ago.

The English conducted public executions for any number of petty crimes into the 19th century. The lash was the norm in their army and navy, something never permitted in the American armed forces.

What greater and more enduring example of violence is there than the repression of human liberty which the Russian people have suffered under both czar and commissar?

The greatest episodes of insane bloodletting in all history — the two world wars — began in old, civilized Europe. If Vietnam and our tremendous military establishment are pointed to as proof that America has now adopted violence as a foreign policy, it may be that we have learned too well the lesson taught by Europe that the best way to prevent a big war is to fight little ones.

"Assassin" derives from an Arabic word, and it is at least a little ironic that the murder of Robert F. Kennedy, which prompted the formation of the commission a year ago, was the work of a deranged alien who was an emotional victim of the seemingly insoluble violence that wracks his Middle Eastern homeland.

Nevertheless, it is true, as the commission points out, that other Western countries have overcome their violent pasts. In one of them there is a crime rate like ours. In Britain, especially, where the darkest streets of London are safe at night, personal violence is simply in bad taste and its occurrence relatively rare. The police carry no guns.

When one thinks about it, there is something unhealthy about the sight of an American policeman, with a revolver strapped to his hip, leading a child across the street. We are so used to seeing police with guns, however, that we seldom think about it.

America does have a problem with violence. Perhaps it is because we have grown too big too fast. A lot of neglected domestic dilemmas have suddenly become crises. The melting pot is overheated. We are still a young, brash people, still imbued with the attitudes of the pioneers, whose lives were one constant combat with their environment.

If the commission's report helps us to look realistically at ourselves and leads to a national determination to find the causes and the cures for the violence we inflict upon ourselves in our cities, on our highways, in our homes, in "confrontations" between rival groups, it will have performed a worthwhile service.

But let us not overdo the confessions of guilt. We have a lot going for us.

"Very Pretty, but Will It Stop a Cop?"

Campus Violence Seems To Be Running on Last Legs

By DON GRAFF
(NEA Staff Writer)

Can it be that the high tide of campus violence is about to ebb?

Available evidence would seem to be against it, what with additional schools being swept into the battle and agitation now reaching down to the high school level.

Two well-placed Washington observers, however, have come up in recent days with independent but similar predictions that, if not an end, at least a sharp tapering off of campus turmoil may not be long in coming.

Both Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., fresh from the commencement-speaking circuit and campus-roots contact with students, and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert Finch see quieter times coming. And both offer the same basic reason — the waning effectiveness of minority extremists in manipulating for their own ends the vast and increasingly resistant majority of moderate students.

Finch believes the moderates are beginning to mobilize against the extremists. Ribicoff, who believes the campus upheaval will leave some good behind in a long-overdue reform of the university structure, sees 1969 as a landmark year. "I think you'll see a waning of SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) and other anarchistic societies."

This could be merely so much more wishful thinking, with much worse still to come. SDS, however, seems to be going out of its way to give some point to predictions of its decline.

It is reported in the throes of a leadership struggle between two dogmatically opposed factions reflecting, to some extent, the Moscow-Peking split in world communism. One group, with Maoist sympathies, wants to hold to the classic Marxist high road to revolution via mobilization of the working classes. The other, Berkeley-based and believing prosperous American workers are infertile ground for revolution, disagrees to the point that it is in the process of splitting off to set up a new organization.

Although SDSers, who seem to be a pretty humorless lot to start with, are not likely to appreciate the joke, there is some humor in the spectacle of a power struggle within their ranks. In the early days, they prided themselves on being virtually leaderless, arriving at decisions by some process akin to telepathy or intellectual osmosis that obviated the necessity of a formal organization.

In any event, it seems the young revolutionaries are learning the hard way a few of history's lessons about revolutions — that trouble really begins when they become institutionalized and that they have a way of devouring their own creators.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSFORD

Faulty Diet, Drug Use May Cause Osteoporosis

A safety tag with a red, gray and black reflective surface is now available. It is recommended for use by persons who walk near highways after dark. It can be attached by a string to the walker's clothing, a woman's handbag or the handlebar of a bicycle. When in motion its shimmering makes it easy to see.

(FYI: It is manufactured by the 3M Company, St. Paul, Minn.)

Q — What causes demineralization of the bones?

A — When calcium phosphate is lost from your bones (usually the vertebrae), as in osteoporosis, the cause may be faulty diet or prolonged use of drugs of the cortisone group. It is most frequently seen in women who have passed the menopause. For the acute stage you may need a back brace or orthopedic corset. When the pain has subsided you should keep active but avoid heavy lifting and sleep on a firm mattress. You should also drink milk three times a day or take calcium tablets. Small doses of fluoride are also beneficial.

Q — Five years ago a benign cyst was removed from my left breast. The surgeon told me not to take any drugs that contain female hormones but my family doctor prescribed Premarin for menopausal symptoms and I have taken it for a year. Last month a biopsy showed precancerous tissue in my left breast and the same surgeon removed both my breasts. He said that now that the breasts were removed I could take the hormones but now my family doctor says I should not take them. I'm thoroughly confused. What do you think?

A — This letter illustrates the fact that there is still a lot that even the experts don't know about female hormones and their relationship to cancer. The use of these drugs in the treatment of menopausal symptoms is justified in women who do not have or have never had cancer of the breast or uterus. By telling you not to use them your family doctor is trying to protect you from the risk of getting these diseases.

Inside Washington

Black Panthers Milk-ing 'Free Breakfast' Program

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — The notorious Black Panther Party which preaches and practices murderous violence and armed revolution, is reaching out for a new class of disciples—ghetto children.

For that purpose the BPP has launched what it emphatically calls the "Free Breakfast for Children Program."

Aim of this program is twofold: (1) To indoctrinate ghetto youngsters in the Black Panthers' revolutionary ideology and extremist anti-white hatred; (2) to operate as a cloak for illegal activities, such as shakedowns, rackets and vice.

Scope of this plan is nationwide. It is already underway in a number of cities, foremost among them Oakland, Calif., a main BPP headquarters, and Kansas City, Mo.

Money, food and equipment to feed ghetto children are being obtained from neighborhood merchants and others through strong-armed "donations" and "contributions." Churches and schools are being dragged into providing facilities, and free labor is supplied by BPP "volunteers" and the youngsters' mothers.

The nature and vicious background of this project is chillingly portrayed in an article in a recent issue of The Black Panther, official publication of the BPP. It discusses ways and means to induce merchants to "cooperate," as follows:

"The Black Panther Party has hounded the avaricious businessmen infesting the black community who rob, steal and abuse the black people. Some of them have come across with donations, but other live-time stores charging space-age prices for stone-age quality food have refused to cooperate.

Therefore we call on the masses of oppressed people to kill this worm of economic exploitation. "Large businesses (naming some) have had the audacity to say that the price of milk is too high for them to donate. (Obscenity) Who sets the price? The (x) chain store refused to donate food or otherwise cooperate with the people's revolutionary program because they claimed they already donate food to Soul, Inc.

"But that is a cop-out. The people will deal with this antagonistic contradiction. "At the time of this writing, about 450 children are being fed daily. Power to the people! This revolutionary program will be a good way to show the oppressed masses of the Black Third World that they are the strength of the revolution. Not only does this breakfast program show them their innate strength and make them flex their muscles, but the program takes care of an immediate need — feeding children."

An unpublished congressional report characterizes this program as designed to "instill poisonous propaganda into the minds of small children."

"It is the same device and tactic used by the communists, fascists and other totalitarians throughout the world," continues the study. "It grimly illustrates the mockery that is being made of hundreds of sympathetic people, merchants, teachers, ministers and parents, under the cloak of humanitarianism."

MORE BLACK REVOLUTION — The same issue of The Black Panther newspaper has a revealing article about a BPP wedding in Oakland, Calif., that had the trappings of a Red Chinese affair — including a copy of the little red book with "Quotations from Chairman Mao Tse-tung."

Spread over three columns with a picture of the bridal couple, the account of this remarkable ceremony is as follows:

"The wedding was the first of its kind here in decadent, racist America. The ceremony was performed at the church of the Minister of Religion of the Black Panther Party, Father Earl Neil. The church is the site of one of the Black Panther Party's free breakfast for children programs. The ceremony was officially carried out by the National Chairman of the Black Panther Party, Bobby Seale.

In place of a Holy Bible, Chairman Bobby used the Red Book "Quotations from Chairman Mao Tse-tung." The crowd attending the wedding consisted of Black Panther members, and children who attend the breakfast program every morning.

"The united couple was serenaded by the children to the revolutionary song of 'We want a pork chop off the pig.' (In ghetto vernacular "pig" means police.)

Comments the congressional report tersely: "This description vividly illustrates what is going on at these breakfasts and shows the reason why the Black Panther Party started them. Before well-intentioned, uninformed 'humanitarians' aid the so-called party, they had better acquaint themselves with the strong-armed techniques, the illegality, the violence and the racist activities of this group."

WASHINGTON:

Impact of Riots Hastens Deterioration of the City

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Indications are that the serious big-city riots may have major, long-time economic and sociopolitical effects on whole cities, not on their riot areas alone.

In some — perhaps all — cases, the riots have speeded up long-range trends toward deterioration.

Partial statistics and some official estimates from some of the cities hit have been revealed in congressional hearings over the past few weeks. They indicate that in the one to two years following major riots: Business has been hurt throughout the city. Suburbanites are buying less downtown generally, not just in the riot areas. Instead, they are shopping more in the suburbs. This trend existed before the riots. The destruction apparently stepped up the rate.

Middle and well-to-do income groups are moving out of the cities at a more rapid pace, leaving the metropolises more and more to the poor.

Again, officials studying the increase in out-migration, believe it has been caused, at least in part, by the riots.

Businesses, both in and out of the riot areas, are moving, or planning to move, out of the cities in greater numbers. This conclusion has been developed through interviews. In numerous cases merchants gave riots as a principal reason for their move-out plans.

At the same time, probably independently of the riots, crimes against businesses are growing markedly in both the riot areas and in big-city shopping areas generally, intensifying the problems of merchants and the cost of city operations.

These trends could reduce considerably in time the tax base on which the big cities operate, make it more difficult to raise the funds needed for schools, welfare programs, streets, parks, civic development and for police and fire protection.

These trends, if left unchecked, could intensify decay in our major cities."

The slums will get larger, not smaller. The gap will widen between the poor (white, Negro, Mexican-American, Puerto Rican) living in the cities and the suburbanite 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. city worker in "air-conditioned buildings in the heart" of the business districts.

Black businesses are being started in some of the declining, riot-scarred areas of some cities. But black capitalism alone, however otherwise desirable, will not solve the problems of decay. Black capitalism, like white capitalism, wants to go where business is profitable. Government subsidies may send men into unprofitable areas for a period. But sooner or later practical economics will take over.

Nixon Asks For $5 Billion On Air Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to enact a $5 billion airport and airways program designed to ease what was described as a crisis situation in aviation.

Money for the program would come from taxes on airline tickets, cargo and aviation fuel.

"Pay-as-we-grow" is the way the President characterized his proposal.

Nixon said "we do not have the capacity in our airways and airports ample to our present needs" or to the future growth of aviation. James M. Beggs, undersecretary for transportation, was more direct, he said the nation faces "a crisis situation in its airways and airports."

Under the program, $250 million would be spent annually for the next 10 years on airways facilities and equipment. This compares to an average of approximately $93 million in each of the last 10 years.

Nixon called for $180 million in aid to airports in fiscal 1970, which starts July 1. This would increase to $220 million in fiscal 1971, "with continued expansion leading to a total of $2.5 billion in the next 10 years."

Matching grants from state and local authorities would bring the total airport spending program up to $5 billion.

The heart of the program is the user tax formula, however. Specifically, Nixon asked for: Increasing the domestic airline ticket tax from 5 per cent to 8 per cent.

A $3 tax on passenger tickets for international flights originating in the United States.

A new tax of 5 per cent on air freight waybills.

An increase from two to nine cents a gallon on general aviation fuels.

A thought for the day: Sir John Suckling said, "Women are the baggage of life; they are troublesome, and hinder us in the great march, yet we cannot be without them."

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There are two reasons why I didn't pre-review CBS-TV's "Hee Haw," a summer series of country-style comedy and music that arrived Sunday night, replacing the Smothers Brothers.

The first reason is that CBS-TV, which has made a big thing about allowing pre-reviews of its shows, was not very sharp with handling this new policy in regard to "Hee Haw."

That is, it did indeed offer a screening of the debut earlier last week. But someone from CBS-TV called me up the day of that screening and told me very honestly that the program being shown in advance would have some slight adjustments made before it was put on the air for the general public.

My own personal attitude is that I flatly refuse to see anything in advance that is not precisely as it will be when it is put on the air.

At any rate, I turned down the "Hee Haw" screening. And then, of all things, CBS-TV offered the polished (if you'll pardon the expression) version of the debut in another pre-screening last Friday. But since some of us don't have Saturday or Sunday columns, this meant the final version of "Hee Haw" was not actually available for published pre-reviews on a blanket basis.

And it seems to me that if CBS-TV is going to have a policy, it should make sure that its final air prints are available to live up to that policy. As I recall, didn't the network fire the Smothers Brothers with the charge that they didn't deliver their shows in time for proper pre-screening? And wasn't there a lot of talk about the fact that you can't make an exception for one show over others?

Well, anyway, the matter only bothered me as a point of principle.

It didn't take too much experience or insight to get a hunch about "Hee Haw," and I didn't want to be responsible for anyone staying home Sunday night to watch it if social alternatives were available.

To be brief, "Hee Haw" is a sort of very provincial Country-Western version of "Laugh-In." Country-Western it is. "Laugh-In" it ain't.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration recently adopted a system under which airlines and private planes are required to make reservations at five of the nation's most crowded airports.

Making reservations is old stuff to passengers, but it is something new for pilots. To see how the system is working, let us wiretap one of the airport phone lines:

"National Airport reservations. I'm sorry, all of our lines are busy now. Please wait a moment and someone will help you. And thank you for calling National Airport."

"National Airport reservations. Thank you for waiting. May I help you?"

"Would Like Reservation?"
"Yes, I would like to make a landing reservation for 11 am. on July 4."

"Very well, sir. Will that be commercial or private?"
"Commercial."

"Hold the line a moment, please, thank you for waiting. I'm sorry, sir, our 11 a.m. landing has already been reserved for July 4."

"Could you book me for a later landing?"
"One moment, please...thank you for waiting. We have nothing available at all on the 4th, sir. Our runways are booked solid for that date."

"Well, I've got to land somewhere."

"Have you tried one of the other airports?"
"Not yet."

"Hold the line..."
"If you will hold the line a moment I'll see if I can locate landing space for you somewhere else in the vicinity...thank you for waiting. There an 11 a.m. landing available at Midway Airport in Chicago. Would you like us to confirm for you?"

"I'm afraid that won't do. My passengers will be expected to land in the Washington area. Can you suggest anything else?"

"We can put you on stand-by, sir."

"How does that work?"
"You fly to Washington on the 4th and if there has been a landing cancellation in the meantime we will have a runway for you."

"What happens if there isn't a cancellation?"
"That depends on whether your plane is equipped with parachutes."

"Well thanks for your help, but I guess I had better try to make some other arrangement."

"You're very welcome, sir. And thank you for calling National Airport."

CAREER CORNER by F. J. Lahn

COMPANY No. 9: "A categorical yes or no is not realistic. We do not condone breaking the law, violence to achieve an end, nor do we look favorably upon acts which deny others their rights to 'do their thing'."

COMPANY No. 10: "If a student's felonies were of a nonserious nature, then we would not hesitate to employ him. If, however, he has numerous arrests, as would an ardent member of the S.D.S., and if we had other candidates who had equal qualifications without arrests, we would most likely choose the latter."

COMPANY No. 11: "Any person who has a police record will have problems when applying for a job. Most companies will have reference and credit checks run on applicants. Employees who do not reveal police records at the time of employment risk being fired once such records are discovered. Companies usually will not employ applicants who have police records — they're unwilling to assume what might be an unnecessary risk."

COMPANY No. 12: "Obviously a police record doesn't help an applicant for employment. Of all the personnel selection tools we have, a person's past record is one of the best indicators of his or her future behavior. It is difficult to be convinced that a person has 'turned over a new leaf.' In spite of this, we have hired a few people with past records, but only after a mutual friend whom we know and trust has recommended them unconditionally. As you can well realize, such a mutual friend is hard to find."

That's how it is, according to the men who hire.

Three Police, One Reporter Stabbed During Confrontation

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Three policemen were wounded by gunfire and a reporter stabbed Sunday night during a confrontation between Negroes and police in the predominantly black residential area of Oak Park.

At least 24 persons were arrested, but Police Chief Joseph Rooney announced at 1 a.m. today that the gunfire has subsided.

The disturbance erupted around 9 p.m. on a hot, muggy night—Sacramento's first of the year—after officers moved in to stop youths from blocking traffic and driving over laws.

It was the third straight weekend of such incidents, but Sunday night it escalated.

"We wanted to clear it up," Rooney said, "but apparently that's what triggered it."

Rooney said arms and ammunition were confiscated from the headquarters of the Black Panthers, a militant Negro organization. The chief said officers raided the headquarters "because a shot was fired from inside the building."

Riots Presage Full Revolution, Claimed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee investigator testified today that "black power" groups have helped spark city and campus riots as steps toward "a general revolution throughout the country."

He said the Black Panthers and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) had formed alliances with white revolutionary organizations including Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

Philip Manuel, who headed the investigation of campus disorders for Sen. John McClellan's permanent investigations subcommittee, said SDS now faces an internal split between the new "revolutionary union" faction seeking to radicalize factory workers and other members, led by SDS founder Tom Hayden, who believe "American workers are paid too much and are too conservative" for revolutionary action.

"Black Power organizations are those which promote what they call 'black liberation' within the context of a revolution in the United States," Manuel testified. "They advocate an anticolonial struggle for self-determination which must go hand-in-hand with a general revolution throughout the country."

Manuel and Perman Clay, another subcommittee investigator who concentrated on SDS, led off testimony after McClellan announced his year-long investigation disclosed that "many of the same individuals and organizations which have been involved in agitation in the cities are spearheading the disturbances and disruptions at our colleges and universities."

On the House side, separate hearings on campus unrest continued today with the president of the University of Michigan describing as unwise a pending bill to cut off federal aid to colleges that do not adopt plans for dealing with disorders. He said colleges are now on the move in combatting disruptions and disciplining rioters.

Robben W. Fleming, Michigan president told the House Education Committee that "the total number of campuses disrupted, when compared with

Apollo Pilots Train For Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—It was not exactly a dizzying height for a man scheduled for a July 16 blastoff to the moon, but Apollo 11 commander Neil Armstrong soared an important 330 feet Sunday in the lunar landing trainer vehicle (LTV).

Five times Armstrong piloted the delicate craft to heights ranging from 100 feet to 350 feet Saturday and Sunday in a series of tests to practice a moon landing.

The space agency called off another LLTV flight scheduled for 7:30 a.m. EDT today, but did not give a reason for the cancellation. The next flight was scheduled for 11:30 a.m. EDT.

The LLTV, with maneuverable rocket thrusters, duplicates the effect of the moon's one-sixth gravitational force and is the only vehicle that can give the pilot the actual feel of what it will be like to land on the moon.
