

Pittsburgh Sniper Holds Police At Bay From Bridge

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The young man strode high atop the bridge, at once defiant and pathetic, a king of the hill with nowhere to go but down. "Come down, we won't hurt you," police pleaded. The response came from the tiny pistol in his hand. Barely visible, it popped twice, shattering the windshield of a patrol car, and police pressed against the cars and wagons behind which they took cover. More than 80 times Robert Michniak squeezed the trigger on his .25 caliber automatic, randomly it seemed, at the faceless policemen below the bridge surface, at passing boats in the Allegheny River, then, finally, at his own head. His horrified family, 90 miles away, watched television as the drama unfolded. Michniak, 22, married and the father of a five-month-old daughter, was carried from the bridge superstructure by police Thursday after his hour-long, one-man duel in the hot June sun. He underwent 2½ hours of surgery at Allegheny General Hospital for removal of the bullet and bone fragments from his head. His condition was listed as guarded and he was given a 50-50 chance to survive. Michniak, a native of Bethesda, Ohio, enrolled in an electronics school here two months ago. He was receiving medical assistance because of a medical discharge from the Air Force. At noon Thursday, he asked his instructor for the rest of the day off. "He said he wasn't feeling well," the instructor said. Three hours later, he climbed up the catwalk of the Seventh Street Bridge and began firing the gun aimlessly. As police converged on the bridge, he made no attempt to conceal himself, standing in full view of expert marksmen who could have cut him down effortlessly. Silently, he seemed to be daring the police to kill him. But they were under orders of Police Supt. James W. Slusser not to shoot. His left hand at his side, his right hand, holding the gun, on his hip Michniak gazed down, lifted the gun slowly and fired. Again, again, and again. Whether by design or destiny, he hit no one, even though there were plenty of targets. Several thousand persons gathered, inexplicably, on the streets in a four-block area to watch the action. Thousands more peered from nearby office buildings. Countless others viewed it live on a local television station. Forty-five minutes into the ordeal, Michniak started down off the bridge. He got a third of the way, opened fire again, then returned to the top to view the entranced audience, peeing occasionally to wipe the sweat from his brow, to smoke a last cigarette, then to sit on a girder across the archway of the bridge. Fifteen, then 20 minutes elapsed and he sat there, unmoving, oblivious to the pleas of police and a Roman Catholic priest. Almost on cue, all fell silent. Michniak raised the gun to his right temple. "Pop." He lurched backward. A helicopter from a local radio station hovered overhead and reported he was lying motionless. Police climbed a fire-truck ladder and carried him down. Later, a classmate said he talked with Michniak moments before he scrambled up the bridge. "He was shaking like a leaf in a storm. I saw the look on his face and I really knew something was wrong. I asked him what was the matter and he said, 'I'm tired of it all and I'm nervous. I'm going to take a long walk.'" Ninety miles to the southwest, in Bethesda, Michniak's mother, two brothers and a sister watched their television sets helplessly as he put the gun to his head. "Oh, no, Oh, no, I think he must have shot himself. He just slumped over. Oh, good Lord," his mother, Mrs. Frank Michniak, cried over the telephone. "Can't they get that helicopter to him?" A brother, Frank Jr., 21, said Robert had been under psychiatric care and was "highly nervous . . . he's had some (See SNIPER, Page 3)

Smith 'Warmed Up' By Vetoing 50 Bills

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Preston Smith, who "warmed up" by vetoing 50 pieces of legislation Thursday, goes on statewide television at 7:30 p.m. today to tell Texans what he will do with a $2.8 billion one-year budget and a $60.4 million teacher pay bill. Political observers predict the governor will veto the one-year budget he has referred to as a "Frankenstein monster" and may or may not let the teacher pay bill become law.

The two legislative leaders responsible for the one-year budget bill — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Speaker Gus F. Mutscher — will be out of the capitol when Smith makes his address over 35 Texas television stations, but Mutscher is scheduled to view the speech at a Houston hotel room. Barnes is vacationing in Washington and New York.

Smith will watch his performance at a Dallas hotel, then will take Mrs. Smith to watch singer Glen Campbell's show for the couple's 34th wedding anniversary celebration.

The governor Thursday said an attorney general's opinion concerning 38 bills and 12 concurrent resolutions that reached his office after the legislature adjourned did not resolve the legal questions involved.

Smith vetoed the bills, saying he believed they were unconstitutional because they were not signed in the presence of the House and Senate by Mutscher and Barnes, and because they were not "timely presented" to him when the legislature adjourned.

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin had earlier said the bills would be legal if journals reflected that they were signed in the presence of the legislature. (See SMITH, Page 2)

Father Beats Son To Death Because He Prayed Wrong

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Little Ronald Curry got his prayers all wrong, so his father beat him and had him say them over again, police said. Ronnie, 4, ended his second attempt at prayer with: "God bless mommy and daddy." They were his last words. Ronnie died the next day from the beating his father gave him with an auto fan belt and a stick.

His father, Robert Curry, was found guilty Thursday of the Feb. 15 murder of his son and sentenced to death.

Dr. Walter Krohn, a pathologist who testified at the trial, said the boy's bruises and cuts were too numerous to count. He said the only body he had seen in worse condition was that of the victim of an airplane crash.

Allies, Americans Kill 400 Viet Cong

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command reported today that American and South Vietnamese troops had driven Communist forces from Tay Ninh City in the heaviest combat in Vietnam in four months, killing more than 400 of the attackers. But new attacks came today outside Tay Ninh. Spokesmen said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, operating out of Cambodia a few miles to the west, shelled Tay Ninh during the night — one of more than 50 attacks on allied camps and South Vietnamese allies. One of two rounds hitting Tay Ninh struck a South Vietnamese army hospital, further wounding four patients.

Tay Ninh is 50 miles northwest of Saigon.

At dawn today 400 North Vietnamese struck a U.S. 1st Air Cavalry landing zone 10 miles north of Tay Ninh. The mortar broke through the outer defense perimeters but were driven back at a cost of 79 dead. The Americans lost seven killed and 18 wounded.

Spokesmen said the attackers shelled the landing zone, known as Ike, with 82 millimeter mortar and 107 mm rocket fire and then launched a ground assault 40 minutes later. U.S. "Spooky" gunships, helicopters and artillery strikes helped break the attack.

Tay Ninh, a city of 150,000 lies on a major Communist invasion route from the Cambodian jungles to Saigon. The Communists struck it June 8 and occupied some of the suburbs before they were driven off in fighting that inflicted heavy suffering on the civilian population.

Committee Plans Summer Contest To Beautify City

Pampa's recent cleanup campaign and plans for city-wide beautification were discussed by members of the Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention and Safety committee yesterday.

R. B. Cooke, public works director, reported that more than 300 loads of trash and debris were hauled from the city during the May campaign.

Plans are underway for determining winners in contests for the cleanest alleys and most beautiful yards in Pampa, to be judged around the latter part of August.

Engraved plaques will be presented to the cleanest alley in Wards 1, 2, 3, and 4. Plaques will also be awarded for first, second, and third place for the (See COMMITTEE, Page 3)

$10 Million For Youth Jobs OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed a $4.8 billion catch-all appropriation bill including $10 million to provide summer jobs to keep 20,000 poor youths off city streets.

The bill, containing funds to pay the government's bills for the rest of the fiscal year ending June 30, was passed Thursday by an 84-1 vote. It now goes to a Senate-House Conference Committee.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who lost a fight for a $55 million summer job program, said the $10 million was "totally inadequate to meet the problem of potentially riotous idle youth."

The bill was loaded down with amendments in both the Senate and House. Each body included its own version of a ceiling on spending by the Nixon administration for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

The conference committee must work out a compromise acceptable to both the Senate and House.

Javits proposed a $55 million appropriation to pay for 135,500 new summer jobs which the National Mayor's Conference said were needed this year. That would be in addition to the $139 million appropriation for 340,000 summer jobs which was voted earlier by Congress.

But Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., argued the Labor Department has said it could "effectively use" only an additional $10 million. By a 73-18 vote, the Senate adopted Byrd's figure instead of the one proposed by Javits.

ASG Seeks 'Riotless' Change

By DON TURNER
Daily News Staff Writer
Campus disorders have caused Americans to wonder about college students. But now there is an organization that is trying to help solve campus issues by using the democratic process.

The name of the organization is the Association of Student Governments of the United States of America (ASG), and David Harmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harmon, Pampa, is its vice president.

"We are concerned with change without confrontation," Harmon said, at an informal dinner Thursday night with the organizers of 1970 career clinic at Pampa High School.

Harmon, who will be the keynote speaker at the Career Clinic next March, told the group that about two million students are represented by ASG.

The student organization has several tools to help its members solve campus problems and potential problems.

This September it will sponsor a "President to President" conference in Washington, D.C., which will mean getting student government presidents and college presidents from member schools together and discussing the problems of the colleges.

"We're going to put the college presidents in the students' places and the students in the presidents' places and have them try to solve the problems the students present to them," Harmon said. If member schools need help with a specific problem, they can consult the ASG about a solution.

"We have case studies for nearly every problem happening on a college campus," Harmon said. "We send them what we think is the best solution."

If the problem requires more attention, he said, they will send ASG representatives to the school to directly help the student government.

The main purpose of these programs, is to develop communication from the student to the school administration. "It is our contention that there are a lot of channels downward to the student," Harmon said, "but there are few upward from the student."

These communication channels are designed to help eliminate the college students' confusion.

Rocket Fire On Suez by Israel Heavy

By United Press International
Egyptian military sources in Cairo said Israeli forces today slammed a barrage of rockets and artillery fire into Suez City in the heaviest bombardment along the Suez Canal in three months.

The sources said the Israelis opened a rocket attack on the city at 2:15 a.m. and damaged three houses in a 25-minute barrage. A second rocket attack was launched at 3:30 a.m. and lasted an hour, they said.

The Egyptians said the shelling was the heaviest since March when Israeli rockets set two Suez oil refineries on fire and caused extensive damage.

The Egyptians said their own artillery returned the fire and "silenced" the Israeli positions. Still another duel across the canal broke out in the Tewfik area at dawn and continued until early afternoon, the Cairo report said. It said the shooting spread to the nearby residential towns of Arbeen and Ganavin.

Israel reported two Arab guerrillas and one Israeli soldier were killed Thursday night in a running battle near the ancient city of Sodom, three miles south of the Dead Sea. Two other Israeli soldiers were wounded in the fight which began when a patrol ran across a band of guerrillas as it was attempting to plant explosives near some tractors.

Pompidou Is Inaugurated As President

PARIS (UPI) — Georges Pompidou was inaugurated President of France today in a rainswept half-hour ceremony at the Elysee Palace dominated by references to Charles de Gaulle, the "grand old man" he succeeded but who was not there.

"For 10 years Gen. De Gaulle represented France with unequalled brilliance and authority," Pompidou, 57, declared in a brief inaugural address in the state reception room where De Gaulle held his twice-yearly news conferences.

"I have the firm intention of fulfilling my duty in the strict respect of the constitution and with the desire to maintain the dignity of France," Pompidou pledged.

Earlier, Gaston Palewski, president of the Constitutional Council, proclaimed Pompidou president in a speech in which De Gaulle loomed largely. Recalling President Nixon's visit to Paris last February, Palewski said, "in this very room where on Feb. 23 an eminent guest saluted him as a giant among men, I express in full confidence the conviction that your seven years in office will maintain the example of love for country and devotion to the public welfare that he traced for always."

Earlier today Frenchmen displayed their colorful flags in abundance to celebrate the formal inauguration of Georges Pompidou as the nation's 19th president.

The 57-year-old former premier formally was taking over as chief executive in a 30-minute ceremony at the Elysee Palace without the pomp and fanfare familiar to American presidential inaugurations.

The red, white and blue French flag flew on public buildings, banks, offices and even buses as Frenchmen celebrated the start of another seven years of gaullism without Charles de Gaulle.

The 78-year-old former president, who taught Pompidou his politics during their 25-year friendship, was at his country home at Colombey-les-Deux-Églises, 100 miles outside Paris. He was not taking part in any of the ceremonies installing his successor.

Pompidou officially became president at 5:03 p.m. Thursday when the constitutional council formally proclaimed him the winner of last Sunday's runoff election.

Later, Pompidou was to lay a wreath on the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier beneath the Arc de Triomphe and be honored at a Hotel de Ville (City Hall) reception.

The protocol used today had to be designed specifically for the occasion because there was no real precedent for the ceremonies under the Fifth Republic. Pompidou was taking over from Interim President Alain Poher, the man he defeated in the runoff.

When De Gaulle took over at the end of 1958, he had a predecessor, President Rene Coty, to transfer powers to him. At the beginning of his second term in 1963, De Gaulle succeeded himself.

For Pompidou, the inauguration ceremonies meant a break in the work he and his future premier, national assembly President Jacques Chaban-Delmas, have been putting in for the past three days in forming a government.

The new president was said to be struggling with persistent difficulties in his efforts to form a cabinet with a new, liberal look.

OFFICIALS TO INSPECT

Jet-Powered 'Copter Due in City Monday

Pampans will have an opportunity Monday afternoon to see one of the Texas Department of Public Safety's new jet-powered helicopters.

The $600,000 'copter will arrive at Perry Lefors airfield at 2 p.m. where city and county officials, along with community leaders, will get to inspect it and be taken for short hops over Pampa and the countryside.

The State of Texas has purchased six of the helicopters, one for each DPS region, to be used wherever needed in the state for emergency calls.

The 'copter coming to Pampa Monday will be accompanied by Maj. C. W. Bell, commander of DPS Region 8, headquartered at Lubbock.

Major Bell is scheduled to explain its purpose and inform local officials and townspeople how it can be made available to Pampa and Gray County for any emergency including search for criminals, aid in fighting major fires, search for drowning victims or for use in any kind of disaster.

Pampa's mayor, city manager, police and fire chiefs, Gray County sheriff and deputies, and heads of industrial safety departments have been invited to be at the airport when the huge helicopter arrives.

The emergency 'copter, which will not be used in traffic supervision from the air, will come to Pampa from Borger where it is scheduled to land at 9 a.m. Monday, according to DPS Safety Officer Chester E. Fant who was in Pampa yesterday afternoon making advance arrangements for landing space at the airport and to inform local officials of its coming.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pursue your practical business early. Take the time to let your loved ones know how you feel about them and their share in your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A steady pace counts now; use tact where the public is concerned. Preparations dominate the day, so leave the last formalities to a later date if it is at all feasible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Older people could get in the way of your work. Focus your main attention on routine activities, putting off big decisions for a day or two.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A period of effort opens for the next two months, after which your tension eases. Until then is a massive learning experience; be alert.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Partnership and group transactions thrive quietly now with a full, steady effort on your part. Come to terms with any flaws in personal relations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The indications are that Saturday events set you to thinking. Your rivals can bring you added opportunity just by making competitive noise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Bring to bear all the influence that can be organized — just be sure it is well directed to give you the exact results you would like to achieve. Side issues are to be left out. Keep it simple.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Concern over older people, parents may distract you. Put in a day of unremitting pressure toward your goals, take leisure at a later date.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your mother who said to you when you were young, "Don't buy me anything for Mother's Day — I don't need anything." I am that kind of mother, too, and I'm sure there are many mothers just like me. Mother's Day (like Christmas) has become so commercialized it's lost its meaning. It's downright embarrassing to be bombarded on all sides with "gifts" just because a date was circled on the calendar, and all the ads have urged you to buy this and that for mother on "her" day.

I love spontaneous gifts at odd times which come to me only because one of my children saw something he thought I'd enjoy. Mother's Day hits me all wrong, Abby. It's how you treat your mother every day of the year that really counts.

There is something sad about the mother who is "honored" once a year. Her children buy her a corsage and take her out for Sunday dinner, but she sits and waits a whole year before they do it again.

A MOTHER
DEAR ABBY: That letter from the woman who wrote to say that her "mother" never missed an opportunity to remind her that she was adopted, hit a sympathetic note with me because my problem is just the opposite.

We have an adopted daughter before painting wrought iron railings, remove flaking paint and rust by sanding. Add a coat of rust-inhibiting primer. Follow up with a coat or two of enamel to finish the job.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Both Sides Now" — the girl who went from one affair to another, the average duration being two months, then (even with sex) she lost the fellow. She says she quit that kind of behavior, not because it's immoral, but because it's smart.

Like "Both Sides Now" I had several affairs of short duration but I don't go that route anymore. All I needed was the assurance that "everybody isn't doing it." Thank you so much for printing that letter.

Smith

 presence of the House and Senate, but Smith said Martin's opinion was confined "to court rules of evidence" which prohibited fact findings about legislative compliance with the requirements that the bills be signed during legislative sessions.
 "The governor is not protected nor bound by court rules of evidence which permit him to close his eyes to the actual facts," Smith said.
 "The governor is part of the process by which bills are passed, and as governor I do not intend to become involved in any situations whereby the constitution was not followed."
 The latter statement apparently would reinforce speculation that Smith will turn down the budget bill, since he has repeatedly said annual budgeting violates the spirit — if not the letter — of the constitution.
 Thirty-seven of the bills Smith vetoed did not reach his office until a week after the legislature adjourned. One reached his office June 5 — three days after adjournment. Four "late" bills are still in the hands of the state comptroller.

Apollo Pilots Rehearse Lunar Take Off Plans

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—While technicians fueled their spacecraft, the Apollo 11 moon pilots today rehearsed lunar takeoff procedures in a trainer that does virtually everything but fly.
 Beil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin began the day's simulation by practicing procedures of their final three hours on the moon's surface while Michael Collins rehearsed rendezvous preparations in a command ship trainer.
 The Mission Control Center at Houston controlled the exercise as if today were July 21.
 Apollo 11 is scheduled for launch July 16 with Armstrong and Aldrin set to land on the moon July 20 and take off 22 hours later.
 The space agency reported that preparations for the historic mission were proceeding smoothly. Technicians were busy on launch pad 39A fueling the three spacecraft modules.

Got Any Work For Teenagers?

Got a job that can be handled by a youngster under 18? The Texas Employment office here has many applications from boys in that category, but does not have jobs on which to place them.
 Bill Ragsdale, local office manager, said today he also has job applications from many high school and college girls seeking summer jobs.
 Ragsdale said as of June 9 his office had received 135 applications from youngsters, but had been able to place only 36 of them.

best kept yards in each of the four city wards.
 "This contest is just a part of an overall plan to cause the people of Pampa to be more conscious of their part in making the city more beautiful," said Warren Fatheree, chairman of the committee.
 The group also discussed ways and means of getting rid of many old unusable shacks and buildings within the city that have been designated eyesores and fire hazards.
 It is hoped some plan may be worked out, with the help of city officials, whereby these old buildings can be torn down and the lots cleaned up. It was brought out in the meeting that many towns over the state have had programs to this end that have been successful.
 City Manager Charles Hill reported on work completed and being planned to beautify Pampa's city parks. He said all parks in the city will soon have sprinkler systems made possible through funds provided by the Pampa-Gray Foundation.

Six US Fishing Boats Seized By Ecuadorians

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Six San Diego tunaboats have been seized off the coast of Ecuador, the American Tunaboat Assn. said today.
 Edward Silva, secretary of the association, said the clipper Endeavor notified him by radio that one of the boats was fired on early today before it was seized.
 He was told, "Ecuadorian naval craft are acting like mad dogs."
 The ship allegedly fired on was the Neptune. It was seized along with the Puritan, Royal Pacific, Dominator, Marietta and Bold Venture.
 Silva was told the Ecuadorians were taking the seized vessels to the port of Salinas. There was no report of injuries.
 The boats were about 22 miles offshore when the attack came, Silva said. He added it was possible the boats actually were on the Peruvian side of ocean waters claimed by Ecuador.
 Armed guards were placed aboard all six boats, Silva said.

Wheat Harvest Still Delayed

Wheat farmers in the Pampa and Gray County area still are suffering from the continued rains of the past week.
 Jesse Harmon, assistant county agent, said today he had learned that a few combines and crews waiting for days to get into local wheat fields have pulled out of the area to fill other commitments.
 "Only a few fields in our area have been harvested," Harmon said. "These were in places skipped by the thunderstorms, but last night's rainfall again left water standing."
 Harmon stated it would take at least two days of good warm sunshine to dry out fields enough to permit combines to move in.
 Pampa received another 1.7-inch of rain in yesterday evening's thunder and lightning storm, bringing the total for the last two days up to nearly a half-inch.

have been reported in the area in recent weeks. Today, U.S. Air Force B52s struck at the reported concentrations and base camps 15 miles north of Tay Ninh and only four miles from landing zone Ike. A spokesman said they dropped at least 180 tons of bombs on the Red positions.
 The military command said an Army UH1 helicopter was shot down by Communist ground fire Thursday near Xuan Loc, 35 miles northeast of Saigon, and that the crew escaped injury.
 A weekly report said 21 helicopters were destroyed in the week ending Tuesday, bringing to 2,765 the number lost in the war. Thursday's loss brought the figure to 2,766.
 Although the ground action was concentrated in the Tay Ninh area, guerrillas also struck near Saigon. A spokesman said the Viet Cong opened fire on the 18,000-ton Dutch tanker Norenia, on the Long Tau River 25 miles southeast of Saigon, but missed.

Quarter Horse Show Postponed

The Top O' Texas Quarter Horse Show, originally planned for Saturday, June 21, has been postponed because of unfavorable weather, according to Ed Vincent, manager.
 The new date is August 29. All rules set for the original date will apply at the August event Vincent said.

trouble since he was in the Air Force."
 "It looked like he wanted to be shot," he said.
 Slusher said he could have had Michniak shot down "at any time." But he waited, he said because "there's a life at stake."

Mexican-Americans Claim They Are 'Damned In The Southwest'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Mexican-Americans "are damned in the Southwest because we are non-violent," but it might not always be so, activist Jose Angel Gutierrez of San Antonio, said Thursday night.
 Gutierrez spoke at the first annual awards dinner of the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Foundation, which honored journalists for coverage of poverty and discrimination.
 Gutierrez, seeing around him Texas State Sen. Joe Bernal and some other Mexican-Americans, started off in Spanish. "Viva la Raza, Hermanos," he said—"long live the race." And then, "Alli en Texas, el gigante que ha estado dormido esta a punto de despertar—the giant who has been sleeping is at the point of awakening."
 Gutierrez said, "We must begin taking on the people who say 'no' to our people. Wall Street says no, and the business community says no, and the Democratic party and the Republican party say no to the Mexican-American."
 "The Ford Foundation says no, because we are involved in partisan political action, everybody down the line is playing the chicken game and we are the last in the packing order."
 Gutierrez called some of the Texas political leadership "wild animals running around the country," and he said, "They say you have to be hypocritical and play the game. I am beginning to realize there are gringos around the world—these fat cats who control the corporations and the media."

Leave the Church? No! Help Restore Her Luster, Glory

By DAVID POLING, UPI
One of the results of a recent Gallup poll which showed a majority of church members believing that the church would become obsolete was a re-assessment of the religious situation by commentators. One of these was David Poling, NEA religion editor.

Walk out on the Church? NO! was Poling's theme.

"The big scene today is religion," the writer said. "The stage is the church and the main actors are those celebrities who are coming and going."

Poling pointed out that last year the eminent theologian Father Charles Davis said goodbye to the Catholic community in England. Then Tennessee Williams, novelist of the South in America, came in. Bishop James Pike published his farewell to the Episcopal Church in this country, compiling a long list of institutional failures and charting a new direction for himself and those who might wish to "tag along."

Days of stress are not without their lighter moments, Poling added. "Newspapers have just carried the report that Tiny Tim was 'suddenly converted' in a California crusade. Yet we are hopeful that in an exchange for a Bishop Pike the Church would get a Hugh Hefner as well as a Tiny Tim—with Joe Namath as a future draft choice."

In spite of these lighter comments Poling notes that no amount of comedy can be strong enough or prolonged enough to "hide the serious criticism being leveled at the Church and the religious establishment. And the criticism is justified. And it's coming from within."

Conclusions might be, the writer says, that the wise and prudent people should "leave the church this afternoon." Perhaps reform and renewal can go only so far. Poling notes, before the scoldings from the Vatican balcony increase and ecclesiastical crackdowns are the next order of business.

"We are faced with the whole question of whether there can be freedom within authority, independence within discipline innovation alongside tradition." The "theological nit-picking," Poling stresses, may be a

To Preach On Indifference

"What's the Difference" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Martin Hager, First Presbyterian Church pastor, at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m., worship services Sunday. The minister will use Deuteronomy 26:5-11 and II Corinthians 13:5-14 as the textual basis of his sermon. Ruling Elder J. Kirk Duncan will serve as the pulpit assistant at both services, this Sunday.

Mrs. Fidelia Yoder, Church organist, will present "Andante Religioso" by Mendelssohn as the offertory.

"prelude to a more bruising encounter". Then he adds: "Leave the Church now? The answer is a loud NO! This is no time to leave the church. One should leave, and people do retreat, when you have lost the argument, been clobbered by defeat, smeared by the opposition. But this is not the case."

Who owns the Church anyway? Poling demands. The Church does not belong to anyone in particular. Buildings and grounds may have some part-time caretakers but the permanent ongoing fellowship is the people of God.

These are the serious players of Christian history, Poling notes. Always found on the front edge of social concern. They

Criswell Preaches One Truth 42 Years

Following his reelection last week as president of the Southern Baptist General Convention, Dr. W. A. Criswell, Dallas, reaffirmed his adherence to such beliefs as a literal interpretation of the Bible. But, he also said that the 1969 convention program had placed greater emphasis than ever on social issues and shown increased awareness of minority groups' viewpoints than previous conventions.

"Our people want to be used of God," Criswell said. We want to make Christians of people and we want to help them. This is my hope for the denomination from within."

CS Considers Atomic Power As Human Genesis

"Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

This is the subject of Sunday's Bible Lesson-Sermon heard in all Christian Science churches this week.

In the responsive reading, taken from Job, one verse asks: "Where was thou when I laid the foundations of the earth?" A correlative passage from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy reads: "The universe, like man, is to be interpreted by Science from its divine Principle, God, and then it can be understood; but when explained on the basis of physical sense and represented as subject of growth, nativity and decay, the universe, like man, is and must continue to be an enigma."

Services are at 11 a.m. Sundays at First Church of Christ Scientist, 901 Frost.

surface in crises, comfort in sorrow and celebrate the boundless gift of life. They are not intimidated by false leaders or uncertain prophets. They do not live by a consensus morality or shape their creed after the neighborhood samplings are in on war and peace, aid to Biafra or assistance to the urban poor.

Poling sums up: The love of God is their ultimate reality and the fellowship of Jesus Christ their daily expression. Don't ask me to leave this church. This is the crew that taught me how to walk, insisted that the truth would often take you upstream, and demanded a commitment which was never short of patience and hope."

Dr. Dan Loving At 1st Christian

Dr. Dan Loving, Dumas, president of the Texas Association of Christian Churches, will be the speaker at Sunday's morning worship at First Christian Church. His announced topic is "Living Life Abundantly."

The service will be at 10:30, following Church School at 9:45. The sanctuary choir directed by Miss Rosemary Lawlor will have given much thought to. Mrs. John Gill is accompanist. Youth groups will meet at 6 p.m. and Christian Curriculum sessions are at 7 p.m.

The calendar for the week includes education committee, 8 p.m. Wednesday, J. Stanley Hill chairman; and elders meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. W. R. Harden is chairman.

Church Owned Properties Providing Income Taxable, Say Pampa Clergy

By RUTH LEWIS
Should church buildings and properties be taxed?

This is a question United States Congress soon is to consider seriously and one, no doubt, that churches themselves have given much thought to. A sampling of Pampa ministers shows such almost complete agreement that there cannot be much conflict when and if the members themselves take a vote.

The Rev. Melvin G. Herring of Zion Lutheran Church said, "It is only fair, I believe, for churches to pay property taxes, at least in the area of operations outside church and school buildings."

"In fact," the Lutheran minister went on, "it is not, in my opinion, the duty of the government to leave our religious buildings tax-free, though we appreciate the fact."

"But when we are in any way competing with business and engaged in occupations for revenue, we should pay taxes just as other businesses do."

The Southern Baptist Church, which operates schools, hospitals and orphanages, in addition to its denominational activities, is quite willing, according to the Rev. T. O. Upshaw of Central Church, to pay its fair share of toll back to the government under which it lives. Church sanctuary, education buildings and other related properties might well go untaxed, he believes, since "These contribute to the welfare of the nation itself." But it would be "completely wrong" not to tax any building or institution which is not connected with religious teaching.

His church's position always has favored separation of church and state, said Guy V. Caskey of the Church of Christ on Mary Ellen. "But churches should pay taxes on any interests they have that bring in income. 'The nation owes us nothing. We are grateful for the favors they have shown—which we hope reflect a feeling of appreciation. But if I run a book

Glorieta Group Discusses Wide Ranging Views

GLORIETA, N.M. — Through a series of eight closed-circuit television programs, approximately 2000 teenagers at Glorieta Baptist Assembly have participated in the first series of mass discussions on practical problems facing contemporary youth.

During two weeks of youth conferences sponsored by the church training department of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tennessee, students ages 13-16 participated in video-taped interviews and live television panels.

Emcee for "Tune IN," Larry Walker, minister-at-large for Metropolitan New York, led discussions on drugs, hippies, the generation gap, sex, demonstrations, racial strife, the war in Viet Nam, teenage dress, and the church's role in the lives of teenagers.

Taped interviews from a test program run in 1968 at Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly, Ridgecrest, North Carolina, were also shown as bases for comparison of ideas.

"The kids are opinionated, articulate, and eager to be heard," Walker said. "We do not try to monitor or edit anything they say. No tutoring, lecturing, or preaching is involved in this program, for we feel they can reach intelligent decisions for themselves through two-sided discussions."

Not only were teenagers the stars of the show, but several cameramen and technical assistants were recruited from the conferences.

Walker said that since the test program in 1968, technical improvements, the addition of a second camera, and a smoother format have been accomplished. Technicians strung 1500 feet of cable requiring 60 man hours to make the Glorieta studio operational.

Glorieta Baptist Assembly is located 18 miles east of Santa Fe. A 13-week summer program for Southern Baptists emphasizes church conferences, youth activities, mission studies, and leadership training sessions.

Both Glorieta and Ridgecrest Baptist Assemblies are owned and operated by the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board.

Mormons to Celebrate

Young Mormons from over the United States will be on the Brigham Young University campus June 27-28 for the annual dance festival of the Mutual Improvement Association (MIA). It will celebrate the MIA centennial.

The dancers will number in the thousands converging upon the Utah capital from congregations in America and all over the world, spokesmen say.

The festival dancers are chosen from local congregations.

It was in 1869 that Mormon Leader Brigham Young organized what he called the "Young Ladies' Department of the Cooperative Retrenchment Association." The name has later been trimmed to its current size, and often is referred to as simply "MIA" or "Mutual."

The young women's organization started with Young's own daughters and expanded to all young women of the church. It worked so well that a young men's counterpart was started in 1875. Today the groups number some 670,000 youth.

D. C. Reads to Goodlet Church

The Rev. D. C. Read, Methodist pastor at Lefors for the past four years, has been transferred to Goodlet by the United Methodist Conference. His assignment first was listed as Liberty.

He has been succeeded by the Rev. Luther Baker, formerly of Whiteface, where he also had served four years.

Goodlet is situated nine miles west of Quanah, Mrs. Read explains. Her husband also will serve congregations at Margaret, Mobetie, Briscoe and Gagely. The Ready son, now working at Cooper and Woodruff, will return to Frank Phillips College in the fall. He will attend on a tennis scholarship.

There are two daughters Mrs. Bobby Call Jr. and Mrs. Robert Kelley, the two husbands from Lefors and Mobetie.

Mrs. Read has been corresponding for Lefors for the Pampa Daily News.

CIRCUIT RIDERS OF SONG — Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stalneckner are song specialists who will be heard in the 8-day revival starting Sunday at First Baptist Church. The meeting will continue through June 29.

Stalneckers To Be At The First Baptist

Music evangelists for the First Baptist revival starting Sunday are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stalneckner, who call themselves circuit riders of song. Mrs. Stalneckner, the only American ever to sing in Central Hall, Westminster, London, sings approximately 100 songs a week publicly. She engaged in more than 78 meetings and concerts last year.

Mrs. Stalneckner not only sings vocally but has sung in sign language for the past five years. Because of the increasing demand for this type of singing she studies sign language six hours a day, she reports.

The young couple has two sons, Rick and Chip, who travel with their parents in a custom built house trailer. The children are tutored by their parents through the Calvert School of Missions and the extension department of Nebraska University.

The Stalneckers have made a number of recordings recently.

God's Continuing Encounter With Man Is Theme

"God's Continuing Encounter with Man" is the topic of study Sunday at Trinity Baptist Church, Amarillo, according to the Rev. Norris Onstead, pastor. The text is from Deuteronomy 5:1-6 and 30:15-20.

Emphasis will be on the words, "Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope."—Romans 15:4.

An alternate title for the lesson, writes the Rev. Onstead, is "The Bible Speaks to Me" or "The Bible, a Personal Book."

In Deut. 5:1-6 it is shown that the Bible speaks to every generation. Moses sketched God's dealings historically, right on down to a specific day. Then, in Chapter 30, we see that the Bible calls for personal commitment to the will of God. The people were given a choice: God's way or some other way of life."

What of Future For Smaller Church Groups

By LOUIS CASSELS
Still surviving in America's rural counties are upwards of 100,000 Protestant churches.

Most of these "country churches" have congregations of 200 people or less. They have a hard time raising enough money to pay a pastor—even on a part-time basis. In smaller churches, it sometimes is a struggle just to pay for heating, lighting and repairing the building.

Each year, hundreds of rural churches quietly give up the ghost. Some merge with larger churches in nearby towns. Some just go out of business.

Leaders of major Protestant denominations have been inclined to regard this trend as inevitable and, on the whole, desirable. It is, they say, the religious manifestation of the massive population movement into urban areas that has also eliminated thousands of country stores and little red school-houses.

From this prevailing viewpoint, a vigorous dissent is now being raised by one of the nation's most respected church planners, Dr. Lyle E. Schaller. Schaller, a social scientist now in the Methodist ministry, argues in the current issue of the Lutheran Magazine that country churches should be kept alive because they are fulfilling a vital need.

He acknowledges that a small church is "uneconomical" in the sense that its operating costs per member served are apt to be twice as high as those of a congregation with 500 members or more.

But it is a fallacy, he contends, to equate small churches with country stores and one-room schools. When a rural store closes, its customers' perforce drive to the nearest town to shop in the supermarket. When a rural school closes, its students are transported by bus to the consolidated school in town—whether they like it or not.

"But when the church down the road closes or merges with the larger congregation in the county seat, people do have a choice," Schaller points out. "They can start attending a different church. Or they can drop out of the church-going habit."

Another reason for keeping small churches alive, in Schaller's view, is that they provide a "sense of community" that is often conspicuously lacking in larger congregations.

Schaller suggests a practical way in which country churches can survive. "The trick, he says, is for laymen to take over many of the functions—including the conduct of Sunday worship services

THE WORLD OF YOUTH — Theme of the concert to heard at Central Baptist Church June 28 will be youth, religion, music. The group includes 20 singers and the same number of instruments. The public is invited to head the program.

Continental Singers, Orchestra To Be Heard in Concert At First Baptist

The Continental Singers and Orchestra, a musical group from Southern California, will appear in concert here Saturday, June 28, according to Randall Hendricks, minister of music at Central Baptist Church. Hendricks also is director of youth activities.

The touring organization is made up of 20 singers and a 20-piece orchestra selected carefully from all parts of the United States, Hendricks notes. The young people, aged 17 to 20, are either professional musicians or majoring in some area of music at colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The group has been touring the United States for the past five years, according to Hendricks. Previously the group had traveled through western Europe and the Caribbean countries. They have been heard on television shows and provided the music for a series entitled "The World of Youth." Their recordings are widely appreciated.

The concert here will be at 8 p.m.

"GUT ISSUES"

By REV. MELVIN G. HERRING

"Yeah, I've heard it before. 'Jesus died on the cross to forgive my sins so I can go to heaven.' I've heard it a thousand times, but I still can't make sense out of my life." If that's you, you haven't REALLY heard the Good News, or at least not all of it. You still say, "I can't make sense out of my life."

Let's be more explicit. The Good News about salvation isn't pie-in-the-sky-by-and-by. Sometimes Christians make it that because it's easier to talk grandly about heaven than to face the "gut issues" of man's total life in the here and now. God has always been concerned about the gut issues of life. In the Old Testament the God of Israel's salvation was the God who rescued her from Egypt's Pharaoh, from hunger, from sickness, from oppression. He was a God who concerned Himself with the nitty-gritty of life.

Jesus was the same. And His salvation was the same. He made men WHOLE! Put the broken pieces together. He brought salvation for now and always. He stooped to conquer. Jesus' victory over death marked the end of the ruling power of evil. He won the decisive victory over our sins at the cross and the empty tomb. "ALL THIS IS DONE BY GOD, WHO THROUGH CHRIST CHANGED US FROM ENEMIES INTO HIS FRIENDS, AND GAVE US THE TASK OF MAKING OTHERS HIS FRIENDS ALSO" (2 Corinthians 5:18, TEV). All this has meaning for you.

NOW! Jesus wants you to experience salvation NOW! To live in His kingdom under His rule. NOW! AND on into eternity.

By ourselves we can't make sense out of our lives. The gnawing fact of sin, the sicknesses, the disappointments, the extra drinks, the lost weekends, the hatreds... It doesn't add up. We're fractured people, splintering off in many directions. We need glue.

And that's the Good News! In Him everything holds together, said St. Paul. He's the glue. Jesus steps in and makes sense out of our broken lives. He brings forgiveness for the past, strength for the present, and hope for the future. His salvation is a NOW thing, and now is for always.

Our hated hang-ups fall into place, and we see them as part of the broken, unglued world. They may still raise their ugly heads, but we know the forgiveness and power we have in Christ, who is the Victor. As one minister pointed out, the kitchen floor may be three inches deep with water, but if the plumber turns the water off, the end of the problem is in sight. Just a lot of mopping up to do. THERE'S THE GOOD NEWS!

We may still have our problems surrounding us in our lives, but the source of these problems has been defeated by Jesus Christ. The end of the problems is in sight when the fact of Christ's victory gets through to us and to other people by the proclamation of the Gospel. Just a lot of mopping up to do. This is the Good News of Christ's salvation for now and always. HE makes sense out of our lives.

Less Involvement in War

Boiled down to its essence, President Nixon's peace plan for Vietnam amounts to the proposition that the future of South Vietnam should be decided by the South Vietnamese themselves—without interference by either the United States or North Vietnam or armed harassment by the Viet Cong.

If the South Vietnamese want to establish a coalition government with the Communists, if they want to institute a hereditary monarchy, or a unicameral parliamentary system, or if they want reunification with North Vietnam, any of these are acceptable to us as long as they are reached through free and open and internationally supervised elections.

This is no more and no less than the stated objective of President Johnson, as put forth in the Manila Declaration of 1966.

But things have changed in two and a half years. A lot of water has gone over the dam and an awful lot of blood has flowed into the soil of Vietnam. Maybe the North Vietnamese are prepared to accept now that which they rejected two years ago.

There is evidence that the year-old Paris negotiations have reached a turning point and that the time was ripe for a restatement, in clear and simple language of U.S. objectives. Both the United States and the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) are now on record with their various points.

Once the rigid procedure of Communist rejection and denunciation of the U.S. position is gotten over with, the task then will be to work on the area of disagreement, chief of which is the insistence of Hanoi that U.S. forces must withdraw totally before peace terms can be discussed.

But there is hope, reinforced by the very fact and timing of the President's address to the nation, that there are larger areas of agreement behind the scene in Paris that are apparent at the formal public negotiations. The President's speech itself appeared to be part of the negotiations, and it is noteworthy that the chief departure from former President Johnson's tender to Hanoi was in the area of troop withdrawal. We now propose it be mutual and simultaneous, whereas the Johnson plan promised the withdrawal of American troops six months after the North Vietnamese had gone back home.

Still, we must ask ourselves what happens if the negotiations continue to get nowhere, if Hanoi rejects the idea of mutual troop withdrawal and perseveres in its hope that it can eventually wear down the American will to fight? In his address to the nation, the President hinted of a U.S. military response if the Viet Cong continues its terror tactics against the South Vietnamese cities or North Vietnam attempts another offensive on the order of the Tet offensive of 1968.

COUNSEL FOR WORLD COUNCIL

(Southern States Bulletin)

If ever there was a time when the churches should emphasize the true meaning of Faith, Christianity, and a return to spiritual values—that time is now.

If ever there was a time when the churches should deplore violence, bloodshed, brutality and hatred—that time is now.

If ever there was a time when churches should be free from invasion by rabble-rousing, trouble-making charlatans demanding "reparations" for fancied wrongs committed against Negroes in centuries past—that time is now.

Chaos and anarchy lie in the recommendations stemming from a consultation on racism conducted in London recently by the World Council of Churches. Black power advocates were among the consultative counselors at the meeting. Perhaps this explains such recommendations as, "American and other member churches... make a serious and negotiated response to the demand for reparation"...

...launched by the National Black Economic Development Conference.

Sounding like a manifesto—not too unlike the "black manifesto" being read from pulpits by black extremists who force entry into houses of worship—the recommendations call for reprisals that are hardly Christian in character.

Boycotts and economic sanctions are merely the milder punitive measures reserved for any corporations and institutions that practice "blatant racism." Well, that's fine, but what is "blatant racism" and who will decide what corporations and institutions practice it? Right now we're seeing a lot of racism in reverse, and the whites are the victims. But they haven't proposed any boycotts or sanctions against the blacks. On the contrary, they continue to make honest and effective efforts to give the blacks every assistance.

It would be disturbing enough if the consultation body had continued its vendetta tactics economic weaponry, but the proposals go far beyond such nifty-pammy devices. And we're not referring to that other bit of visionary nonsense, namely, that "reparations" be paid to "exploited peoples" around the world to achieve a "more favorable balance of economic power." No, the real shocker is the recommendation:

"That all else failing, the Church and churches support resistance movements, including revolutions which are aimed at the elimination of political or economic tyranny which makes racism possible."

The group's chairman, according to the UPI dispatch from London said, "This would include violence, but make clear it is as a last resort." Who was the chairman? He wasn't Eldridge Cleaver, Rap Brown or Stokely Carmichael. No, he was George McGovern, U.S. Senator from South Dakota. We sincerely hope he was misquoted.

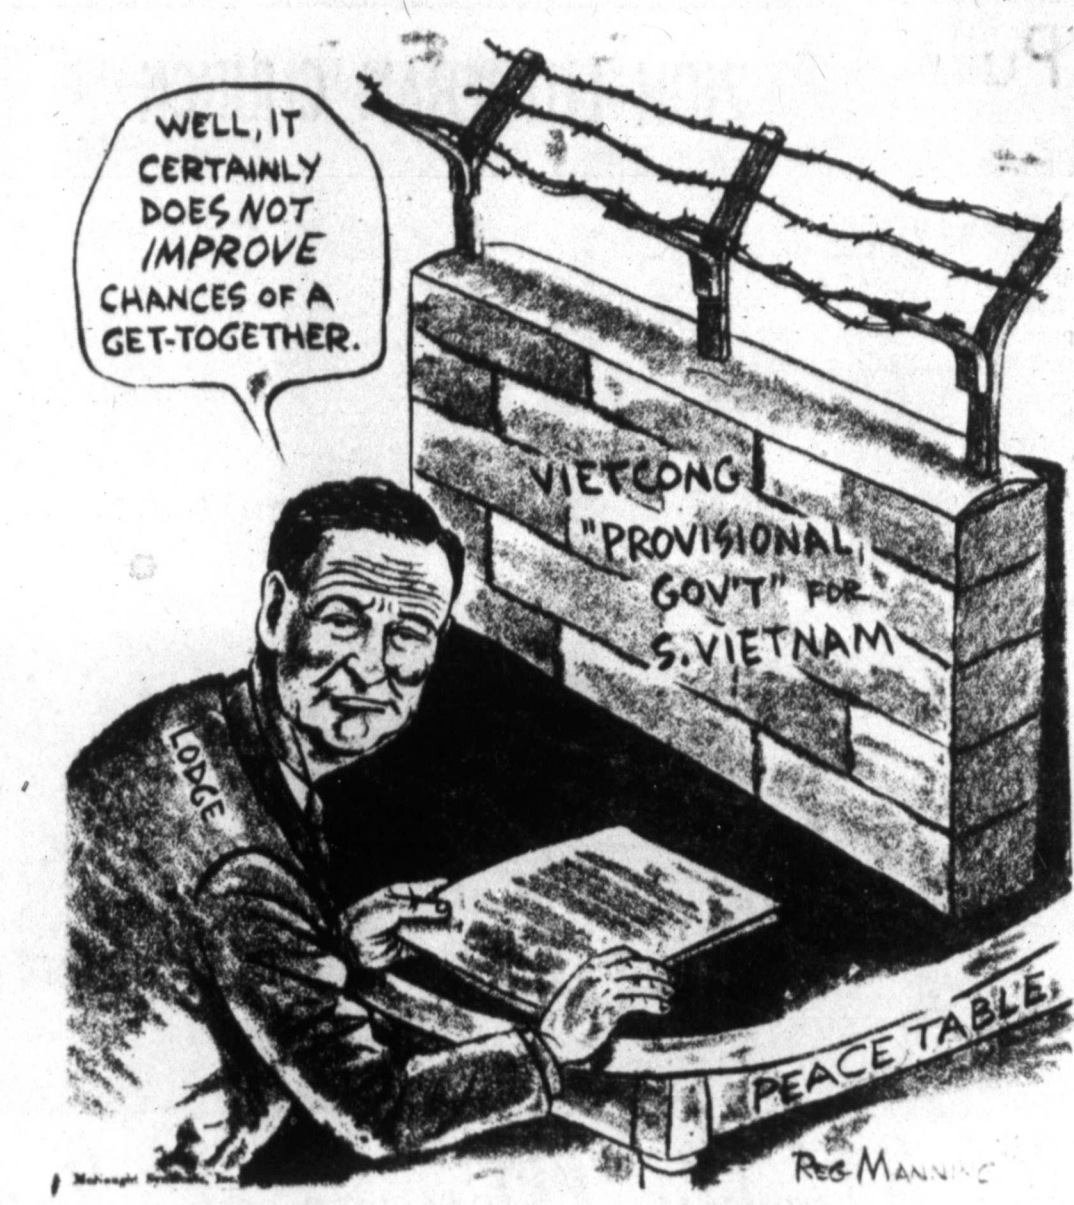

More and more we see church intervention in aspects of the racial controversies sweeping the nation. Perhaps there is some justification for some participation in some phases of the problem by the clergy. We doubt, however, that talk of revolution—with all the horror, bloodshed, and sheer tyranny that comes from most such upheavals—is deserving of church advocacy in many instances.

We suggest that the World Council of Churches take time to review all of the preferential legislation that has been enacted in behalf of Negroes in the past few years. We suggest that it look at some of the Supreme Court decisions that have given Negroes even more than Congress has. We also suggest that the WCC return to the Bible, to expounding the love of God and Faith in His being. That, we believe, is a better antidote for racism than is revolution.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION:—In reference to the answer to a question: In your philosophy is it meant that in the purpose of gaining a few dollars, it is O.K. to invest in organizations other than strictly American that is, those on the shady side of American ideals, for a profit that is the way we can aid and comfort the enemy; by investing in his business for a few bucks in return. What kind of American ideology is that?

ANSWER: We do not know just what, specifically, Mr. R. W. means by referring to organizations "on the shady side of American ideals." Nor are we sure what he means by "the enemy" unless he is referring to those our armies are fighting in Vietnam.

We would not, of course, invest, or advocate investing in any organization engaged in immoral activities. In the first place, that would not be a real investment—it would simply be supporting such activities, and we would not choose to do so. An investment is properly made available to others in the prospect of growth and return of a profit over a period of time.

Property made available to those engaged in immoral activities will more than likely be destroyed and not return its owner a profit. That is no investment.

We would like to define what we mean by immoral, so that there will be no misunderstanding. Our definition is, perhaps, not the same as that of all other people. No one else need accept our definition unless he wishes to, but at least all will know what we mean when we use the word. We accept the definition of Andrew J. Galambos that the presence or absence of coercion determines whether a particular act is immoral or moral. This is in harmony with both the definitions of freedom we also accept: Rose Wilder Lane's "Freedom is self-control—no more, no less" and Andrew J. Galambos' "Freedom is that societal condition where every individual has 100 per cent control over his own property and zero per cent control over the property of anyone else. We believe in freedom. Freedom gives man the right to make decisions that will enable him in his opinion, to help himself and others to develop and grow, spiritually, intellectually and materially.

As we said in our former answer, nobody can be 100 per cent consistent in a confused world or society. If one insisted on investing only in those which have a single standard of right, it would be mighty hard to find any investments at all. And by our definition, The Los Angeles Times is not engaged in immoral activities. It uses no coercion to force people to buy the paper or to advertise in it, nor does it coerce people to have them work for the company. In its editorial and news columns it gives approval of the coercive activities of government and it has a double standard of right, but in this it is more mistaken than immoral.

Even if you put your money in banks, they are controlled by the government, which is a coercive organization, so one simply has to use common sense to make the best decisions he knows how in making investments that will return a profit and choose between those corporations which are simply confused and mistaken in their beliefs and those which may actually be operating immorally and thus unprofitably.

Could Mr. R. W. Deny a man the right to invest in what he thinks will enable his ideas to grow, spread and be useful to every man in the United States and the whole world?

That is the way Telley-vee has always been run in England. And look what a mess they're in. But the lawmakers ain't given up. The first year they authorized 23 million geets for the two-year period ending June 30, 1969—but appropriated 4 million.

The backers are now looking for some long-term financing that would bring in about 120 million kopecks a year. One idea is, naturally, another tax. They want to start a tax on sales of TV sets, putting at 2 per cent and riding along till it reaches 5 percent.

Another proposal is to sock it to the commercial broadcasters with fees and taxes on their revenues. This is in order for the "non-commercial" broadcasters to compete with the commercial ones, using their money.

They claim the educational corporation is not political. How is that again? The 15 men on the board of directors are appointed to 6 year terms by the president with the consent of the senate. The grants are handled by the dept. of HEW. If this ain't a political bunch then I am getting as squirrely as congress—and that could be serious!

Q—What can be done about one ear sticking out farther than the other. I tried taping it but that didn't help.

A—This is a job for a plastic surgeon.

Self-Improvement Is One Of Worthy Aims in Life

BY OSCAR W. COOLEY
Assoc. Prof. of Economics,
Ohio Northern Univ.

"What is my aim in life?" This has been a time of "Commencement" for many high school and college seniors. That means it is time to commence thinking about the above question.

In other columns, I have discussed a few of the possible aims of life. Now we turn to those who would define their aim in life as maximum self-improvement.

"We are here to grow, to develop, to live more worthily day by day, insofar as our knowledge and ability make possible," they might say. This, indeed, is a worthy aim and one that is especially fitting for a free American to follow.

One may liken himself to the athlete, who seeks development of physique. He strives to build his muscles and to improve his coordination. His thought is always on the future. He wants to play a better game tomorrow, improving both his individual skill and his team play. Thus, his life has an absorbing object, and many a youth puts forth enormous effort in pursuit of this object.

Now let this object be broadened from the merely physical to the intellectual and spiritual spheres. Let each take upon himself, making it his central aim in life, to improve himself in ALL respects—physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual—to the utmost of his capacity. Let him become a truly all-around "athlete," and for life.

(The ancient Greeks, incidentally, did not restrict athletics to the physical.) This philosophy has certain great merits. First, it can be practiced by anyone, anywhere. It merely says, "Whatever you are now, become better."

Do you feel your lack of knowledge? Go to a university. If this is impractical, go to the nearest good library and plan a systematic program of reading in the areas that interest you most. Buy books and build a library of your own.

Take advantage of public lectures and concerts, dramas and art exhibitions. Cultivate the habit of being a good listener, of making fewer dogmatic statements and asking more questions.

Do you enjoy your employment? If not, and if you have plumbed it thoroughly and found it unsatisfying, get out and get into a line you will enjoy. Then resolve to climb to the very top in that line.

Are you as kind, as frank, as generous as it is humanly possible to be? Most of us are not. Do you always respect the personality and rights of others? These qualities do not come automatically. Virtue requires thoughtfulfulness.

Cultivate an open manner, telling the truth even in small things. Every man should "make the world his confessional," said Godwin. How often a busy executive instructs his secretary to say to visitors, "I'm sorry but Mr. E is not in," when he is—right behind the door. White lies are an easy way out. They are also an easy way to lose friends. Secondly, the very adoption of self-improvement as an ideal is a long step forward, for thus one recognizes how far he is from perfection. He becomes more humble and open-minded in his relations with others.

To improve oneself is to become a student, and who is so meek as a student? He faces the world with an inquiring mind. He is conscious of how little he knows, but he is not crushed by a sense of inferiority, for is he not overcoming his lack of knowledge, bit by bit? The non-student, on the other hand, has not even started to learn, nor does he admit that he needs to.

Another and perhaps the greatest merit of the philosophy of self-improvement is that it focuses ones effort upon the changing of that which he CAN change and bears the full responsibility for changing himself. At the same time it takes ones attention away from the reforming of others, who may not need, desire or appreciate being reformed.

We spend great effort in trying to make others act as WE think best. Whether more mischief is done by interfering with THEIR development, or by neglecting OUR OWN, is hard to say.

To the extent that people concentrate on their own improvement, a healthy egoism is developed. The other fellow, meanwhile, liberated from those who would do him good, acquired dignity and self-respect.

The extent to which a person can improve himself depends on how much freedom he enjoys. In this respect, the man who operates his own business or practices his own profession is in a better position than he who is tied to an 8-hour-a-day job. And the worker who sells his services on the strength of his ability has the most opportunity and the stimulus to do more for himself than does the man who has tenure in "on civil service," or works under a union contract.

People today are freer from work—that is, have more leisure time—than a generation ago. This increasing leisure is "a problem," some say, but to the person whose philosophy is self-improvement it is no problem. Time never hangs heavy on his hands. Though not at his work bench, he is not idle; rather, he is self-employed. He is self-managed.

Here we are faced with a choice. The productive of capitalism has given us a 40-hour week, and promises to shorten the work-week still more in future. Will we use the extra leisure time to plan ways and schemes of interfering with our neighbors' lives, to "organize" stage demonstrations and protests, or will each use his extra time to try to make himself a more worthy person and a better citizen of the world?

"We seem to have lost a sense of direction, many of us," says Arthur Burns. "This, I think, is what ails America." What is YOUR aim in life?

H. L. HUNT WRITES: Government and Farmer

During the 20th century, farmers in the United States have proven their ability to meet the food needs of a rapidly growing population. They brought previously barren land under cultivation, developed new and better hybrids, and used mechanization to increase production. For all those accomplishments, personal enterprise deserves the credit.

derdeveloped" countries, encouraging their dependency on the U.S. and enabling their governments to continue socialist experiments. Under the "Food for Peace and Freedom" program foodstuffs have also gone to communist countries.

The farm policies of the United States government, on the other hand, have been almost uniformly disastrous. Instead of encouraging farmers to adjust to the free market supply and demand, the Department of Agriculture alternates between paying subsidies to encourage production and imposing acreage limitations to discourage it. Consequently we have surpluses, rising food for consumers, and continued difficulties for the farmer.

Farmers must pay the higher taxes that support these programs. They suffer from rising consumer prices and inflation. The best the Department of Agriculture could do for the farmer would be to free the $8 billion it will spend in fiscal 1969 for investment by personal enterprisers in agriculture.

In the last two years for example, acreage cuts ordered by the Department of Agriculture caused a severe shortage in better grades of cotton, resulting in higher prices for consumers. In wheat and feed grains, the Department subsidized more production than the market was able to absorb, causing prices to fall sharply.

The Department of Agriculture has also arranged for large-scale shipments of U.S. farm products to "un-

The phrase "get down to brass tacks" meaning get to facts and realities, may have originated at the buttons and bows department of the old general store. The World Almanac notes, "To measure cloth, which came in bolts, brass tacks were nailed into the counter to mark an exact yard, and customers told clerks: 'Don't hold it up and guess. Get down to brass tacks.'"

Texas Press Association Has 90th Convention

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Press Association's 90th annual summer convention opened Thursday in Arlington extends through Saturday and will see the installation of an Arlington publisher as president.

George W. Hawkes, publisher of the Arlington Citizen-Journal will be the new president of the association, which represents about 600 weekly and daily newspapers in Texas. Hawkes will be installed Saturday. He succeeds Glynn Morris, publisher of the Borger News-Herald.

Preceding the installation, Gov. Preston Smith will speak at a luncheon. The speech will come less than 24 hours after Smith has addressed a statewide television audience to announce his decision concerning the state budget bill.

TPA awards will be presented at a breakfast scheduled for Saturday.

Registration for the convention was to begin Thursday at p.m. The first business session was this Friday morning.

Among speakers Saturday will be Dr. Gerald Monroe of the Ling-Temco-Vought missile and space division. Monroe will discuss "The Wet Power Syndrome—Signs of National Suicide."

Administration Housing Fund Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee, despite an admission the urban crisis is continuing, today chopped $384 million from Nixon administration housing programs.

The same committee, however, in sending a $14.9 billion money bill to the House floor, agreed to spend $150,000 to plan a $750,000 official residence for the vice president of the United States.

The appropriations measure, containing funds to run housing space, veterans and miscellaneous government programs for 12 months starting July 1, was $473 million less than the $15.4 billion sought by the Nixon administration. The big reduction $384 million, came from housing programs.

While chopping $19 million from the $3.7 billion of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) sought, the committee said economies were needed because of problems back on earth.

Two new programs designed to provide interest subsidies for home ownership by low income people and subsidies for builders of low rental housing were cut.

The measure included $500 million for the Fair Housing $175 million from the Nixon administration request; 100 million for urban renewal programs, a $150 million cut; $3 million for the Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity Program, a $7.5 million cut.

Another major reduction was for the National Science Foundation, which lost $80 million of its $500 million request for fiscal 1970. The committee cut $17.5 million from the $462.5 million asked for Appalachia regional development.

Democratic Leader Endorse Viet Pull Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — W. Averell Harriman and two top Senate Democratic leaders endorsed today former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford's proposal for withdrawal of 100,000 U.S. combat troops from Vietnam this year, and the remainder in 1970.

Harriman, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks in the Johnson administration, told UPI that he recommended last winter an immediate pullout of 50,000 American troops and an end to search-and-destroy missions.

These steps, Harriman said in an interview, might have induced the Communists to take a reciprocal troop reduction step and to begin serious discussion of peace proposals.

Clifford's proposal also won support from Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Senate Democratic Whip Edward M. Kennedy. Roth said they hoped President Nixon would give serious consideration to the Clifford plan as outlined in an article in the magazine Foreign Affairs.

Although Harriman did not say so, other officials have reported that his point of view was rejected last winter by President Lyndon B. Johnson, backed up by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presidential adviser Walt W. Rostow.

Asked whether he thought it was too late now to achieve this aim by large withdrawals of U.S. forces, Harriman replied "I just don't know."

He said that while he felt the Communists would have responded favorably last January, when he repeated his recommendations to the Nixon administration, he could not be certain now because he had been out of the discussions for five months.

Harriman did not agree specifically with Clifford's timetable for withdrawal, calling for the pullout of 100,000 ground troops by the end of this year and the remaining 100,000 to 150,000 combat forces by the end of 1970.

But he said: "I certainly hope that we will pull out 100,000 by the end of this year."

Harriman indicated belief that the United States lost a golden opportunity in late 1968.

Japanese To Plant Rice In Old Lagoon

AKITA, Japan (UPI) — Dutch engineers pumped the seawater after World War II led the government to seek technical assistance from the Netherlands and the work was started.

But Japanese farmers now are growing so much rice that government-planners may be forced to figure out new ways to use the land uncovered at the bottom of the lagoon.

"Hachiro has become a dilemma," the Agriculture Ministry says. "We may have to find other uses for the land such as pastures for cows."

Japan's serious food shortage after World War II led the government to seek technical assistance from the Netherlands and the work was started.

But Japanese farmers now are growing so much rice that government-planners may be forced to figure out new ways to use the land uncovered at the bottom of the lagoon.

"Hachiro has become a dilemma," the Agriculture Ministry says. "We may have to find other uses for the land such as pastures for cows."

They pumped out all the water, uncovering a rectangular plain containing 37,900 acres of sandy soil.

The Japanese first got the idea of draining Hachiro 150 years ago. Its narrow neck to the sea made the lagoon appear ideal to dam up and empty.

Engineers tried three times—in 1872, 1924 and 1941, but their techniques were not up to it.

Air Control Ask To Shut Down of Plant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air traffic controllers protesting congestion over the nation's airports are conducting a nationwide slowdown similar to one last summer that led to take-off and landing delays of up to three hours.

"We are telling our people to operate safely but to operate by the book," John Maher, national coordinator of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Association (PATCA), said Wednesday as the slowdown began.

No major delays were reported yet as a result of the action by PATCA, which represents about half of the 14,000-man air traffic control force used by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) at commercial airports.

But FAA Deputy Administrator David D. Thomas said 75 controllers reported sick at Denver and Kansas City, causing a transcontinental backup of planes and diversion of some traffic to other cities.

In 1934 Congress created the Federal Communications Commission to regulate interstate communications, including radio and television broadcasting.

Package Stores Within Other Businesses Must Be Isolated

AUSTIN (UPI) — Package stores located within other businesses will have to be completely isolated by Sept. 1.

"The premises must have an outside exit that opens onto a street, sidewalk or other public way and cannot have an opening between the package store premises and any other business," said a letter mailed to 3,000 liquor sellers Wednesday by the Texas Liquor Control Board.

TLCB officials estimate the new regulation — part of a lengthy Liquor Reform Act passed by legislators — will affect about 300 package stores located inside discount houses, department stores and pharmacies.

"The premises must have an outside exit that opens onto a street, sidewalk or other public way and cannot have an opening between the package store premises and any other business," said a letter mailed to 3,000 liquor sellers Wednesday by the Texas Liquor Control Board.

In 1963 Giovanni Battista, Cardinal Montini was elected Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church. He chose the name Pope Paul VI.

Theft Reported to Pampa Police

An auto burglary was also reported to police Wednesday by Mrs. Beesie Poe, Borger.

The report stated that someone had stolen five Crescent wrenches valued at $15. The tools were taken at about 1 p.m. from Mrs. Poe's pickup truck parked at 517 S. Somerville while she was visiting a friend at 521 S. Somerville.

Burglary Reported

Fred Alvey, 2100 Charles, reported that someone had broken the window and entered a house belonging to R. E. Reid, 2712 Duncan. Mr. Reid is presently on vacation.

Apparently someone had thrown a brick through a window and had tracked mud through the residence.

The tracks in the house and outside the window were small, probably belonging to a child police said.

A thought for the day: Willa Cather said, "There are all those early memories; one can not get another set; one has only those."

Hall Ties Mark In High Hurdles

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Erv Hall of Villanova matched a world record in the 120 high hurdles but sprinter Jon Carlos of San Jose missed his bid for a record because of a bad start in opening action Thursday of the 48th annual NCAA track and field championships.

Hall streaked to a time of 13.2 seconds in his preliminary heat, equalling the world mark set in 1959 by Martin Lueder of West Germany and tied by Americans Lee Calhoun and Earl McCullough.

Hall, the Olympic silver medalist and NCAA champion was amazed he had done so well. "I didn't think I could run that fast," he said. He is expected to battle Richmond Flowers of Tennessee for the title. Flowers hit the first hurdle in his heat and had to settle for second place in a photo finish to George Carthy of San Jose State. Both were timed in 13.7.

Carlos "eased up" to a 9.3 time in his 100 yard dash preliminary run. The San Jose flash, who owns a share of the world record of 9.1, said he had wanted to try for a new mark but lost his chance because of a bad start.

"I have two chances tomorrow—and I will try then," he said. "All I need is a good start. If I can get out tomorrow, something is going to come."

Carlos also won his 220 yard heat with a time of 20.4.

WHOPPER—Don Riddle, 704 Lowry, just returned from a trip to Alaska where he caught this 42 lb. king salmon. Riddle made his excellent catch in the Gastneau Channel off the coast at Juneau. He used a 10 inch herring as bait.

Rodgers Ties For Kemper Lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—When pro golfer Phil Rodgers decided "it was time for a change," he didn't fool around. He went on a diet, he gave up the night life and he shortened his putter by five inches.

The result? He tied for 13th in the U.S. Open after a disheartening 76 in the opening round. And here he is less than a week later tied for the lead going into today's second round of the $150,000 Kemper Open.

Rodgers and Masters champion George Archer both shot 2 under-par 67s Thursday to lead at the end of the first round by one stroke over former Masters champ Bob Goalby, New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles, Monsanto Open winner Jim Colbert and Bob McCallister.

A dozen golfers were grouped within two strokes of the lead as par took a terrific beating on the 7,205-yard Quail Hollow course which was playing host to its first pro tournament.

McNally Draws Great Audiences

By United Press International
Dave McNally is getting to the point where he's starting draw distinguished audiences. McNally pitched a two-hitter Thursday night to gain his 10th victory without a defeat as the Baltimore Orioles downed the Washington Senators, 2-0, before a crowd which included President Nixon.

The President, who last week watched Oakland's Reggie Jackson put on a slugging display arrived at the game in the eighth inning as Don Buford, who doubled and took third on a bunt single, scored the Orioles' first run as Frank Robinson hit into a double play.

McNally, who allowed only singles to Tim Cullen and Paul Casanova, walked one and struck out five in winning his 12th consecutive game over a two-year span. But despite his sizzling start this season, McNally refused to consider the prospect of a 30-victory season.

Elsewhere, Minnesota ripped California, 8-1, Chicago outlasted Seattle, 13-10, Boston blanked Cleveland, 3-0, and New York downed Detroit, 5-3, in the only other games scheduled.

Ray Culp pitched a two-hitter for his 10th victory of the season and Carl Yastrzemski snapped out of a mild batting slump with a two-run homer to lead the Red Sox over the Indians.

Culp, now 10-4, struck out eight batters to tie the Indians' Sam McDowell for the league lead in strikeouts with 104. He did not allow a Cleveland runner to reach second base.

The Yankees scored three unearned runs in the second inning on pitcher Earl Wilson's three-base throwing error en route to their victory over the Tigers.

Score Tied 1-1
The score was tied at 1-1 in the second when Gene Michael and Jake Gibbs singled and moved up on a sacrifice. Wilson walked Horace Clarke to fill the bases before throwing Jerry Kenney's high bouncer into right field, allowing all three runners to score.

Rod Carew drove in two runs with a single and a double to raise his league-leading batting average to .374 and lead the Twins over the Angels. Rookie Dick Woodson pitched a three-hitter to boost his record to 4-2.

Bob Allison drove in three runs and Carew two as the Twins scored five unearned runs off the Angels, who committed four errors.

Lou Brock May Lead Cards' Pennant Run

By United Press International
The champion St. Louis Cardinals, who have been inching toward the 500 mark the last 10 days, are looking for a sign that a pennant run is in the "Cards" this year, Lou Brock seems ready to provide it.

Brock went on a 4-for-4 batting spree Thursday to pace St. Louis to a 5-3 victory over the Montreal Expos and give the Cardinals their sixth victory in the last nine games, bringing them to within one game of .500.

The fleet Cardinal left fielder smashed a seventh-inning homer to go with two singles and a double as he scored three runs and knocked in two more. He also boosted his average to .300.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati nipped San Francisco, 8-7, New York edged Philadelphia, 6-5, and Houston topped San Diego 4-2 in the only games scheduled.

Reliever Jim "Mud Cat" Grant picked up his second victory in only three appearances since being obtained by the Cardinals from Montreal on June 1. Grant blanked the Expos on three hits over the final 5.1-3 innings after starter Ray Washburn had been touched for three runs on four hits.

Tommy Helms' ninth-inning double knocked in the winning run to give the Reds a come-from-behind victory in which they scored seven runs over the last three innings.

Trailing 4-1, the Reds scored twice in the eighth, then took the lead with a four-run eighth inning, highlighted by Bobby Tolan's three-run homer. Helms' RBI double in the ninth gave reliever Clay Carroll his ninth victory in 12 decisions.

Singles Two Runs
Ken Boswell singled home two runs with two out in the ninth inning to give the Mets their victory. Art Shamsky knocked in three runs with a pair of homers to pace the New York attack.

The Phils had taken a 5-4 lead in the eighth when Mike Ryan doubled and Gene Sontz was safe on a bunt single. Rick Joseph scored them both with a single.

John Edwards started a three-run rally in the second inning with a single, then singled home Houston's fourth run to pace the Astros' victory.

Don Wilson, 6-6, scattered eight hits in pitching Houston to its 18th victory in their last 22 home games.

Pampa's Ellis Ties For Lead In Men's West Texas Golf Meet

LUBBOCK—Richard Ellis, Pampa, is among five persons tied for the lead going into the second round of the Men's West Texas Golf tournament being held here on the Hillcrest Country Club course.

Ellis fired a one-under-par 71 to tie for the top spot with John Farquhar of Amarillo, Billy Wood of Fort Worth, and Lee Moss and J. B. White of Lubbock.

Buster Carter, Pampa, was just one stroke-over-par and two strokes off the leaders at 73. Other Pampans in the championship flight included Bob Loerwald, 76, and Richard Roach, 81.

A four-way tie developed for second place at even-par 72. Involved in that deadlock were Gary Frankendorf of Fort Worth, Dean Strack of Midland, Tommy Wilson of Lubbock, and Stan Wilemon of Arlington.

There will be a new champion this year since defending champion Jerry Barrier of Pampa is not participating in the tourney.

All other flights in the tourney will get under way today following qualifying rounds Thursday. These flights undergo match play until Sunday when they meet in medal play.

Marshall Moves Tjerina To Federal Prison

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—U.S. Marshal Emilio Naranjo said the transfer Wednesday of Mexican-American Reies Tjerina from Albuquerque to federal prison at La Tuna, Tex., was "for his own good."

Naranjo and Albuquerque police Capt. Freddie Gallegos moved Tjerina to the prison near El Paso Wednesday evening with the approval of the Bureau of Prisons.

Tjerina's $2,000 appeal bond set in connection with an assault on two forest rangers in 1966 was permanently revoked in a decision Tuesday in Albuquerque.

Naranjo said he did not know if Tjerina would be placed in a cell with other prisoners. The marshal also said the trip was uneventful, but said he took a different route than he normally takes to the prison.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Whatever else Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York may accomplish, his tour for President Nixon is bringing into dramatic highlight the many faces of Latin America.

In Brazil, ruled by military-enforced decree, the government assured a peaceful visit by the simple expedient of throwing potential troublemakers into jail before he arrived.

In traditionally democratic but sadly torn Uruguay students warmed up for his arrival by breaking windows and shouting anti-Rockefeller slogans. The government felt it wise to keep his arrival time secret.

As the governor moves down South America's Atlantic Coast he will witness more of the paradoxes which complicate U.S. relations with Latin America.

In Brazil he felt it incumbent upon him to warn President Arturo da Costa e Silva that the United States has little love for dictators.

But it is difficult to criticize success.

The Brazilians reminded him that they had repaid $500 million in debts to the United States this year. New investment in industry had jumped ahead by $3.1 billion, more than 15 per cent above a year ago.

The gross national product was up. Inflation was down. Industry showed a growth rate of more than 12 per cent, the construction industry one of 15 per cent.

Economic Growth

But to do it the regime had stilled the voices of its critics by stiff repressive action and as the country achieved new highs in economic growth the government's popularity hit new lows.

In Paraguay Rockefeller would find a poor country of 2.2 million people, overwhelmingly Mestizo (Spanish and Indian descent), ruled for the last 14 years by a military dictatorship which only recently has permitted a modest opposition to exist. Two thirds of its people work in agriculture but its biggest business is smuggling.

But, like Brazil, it has given steadfast support to the United States, toward Vietnam, Cuba and U.S. occupation of the Dominican Republic.

It has received some $60 million in U.S. aid.

Plans for SH 70 Improvement Are Placed on File

MIAMI—The Texas Highway Department is planning the improvement of State Hwy. 70 in Roberts County from Chicken Creek to the Canadian River. The improvements are for reconstruction of grading, structures, and surfacing.

Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and geometric design and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the resident engineer's office in Pampa.

Information about the state's relocation assistance program, the benefits and services or displaces and the relocation assistance as well as information about the tentative schedules for acquisition of right of way and construction can be obtained at the resident engineer's office.

Any interested citizen may request that a public hearing be held covering the social, economic and environmental effects of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the resident engineer's office on or before July 3.

In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be publicized about the date and location of the hearing.

Pampa Schools Urged To Join In TB Program

"Too many students sit in too many classrooms throughout this country, harboring undiscovered tuberculosis germs," said Top of Texas TB Association's executive director, Charles McIntosh, during an address to the Pampa Lions Club Thursday noon.

"A simple, inexpensive skin test would reveal their infections, and prophylactic treatment to prevent the development of active tuberculosis could be instituted," McIntosh said. "If Pampa has positive reactors, they should know of their infection—otherwise, the infected person has no knowledge by which to protect himself."

McIntosh said he hoped Pampa schools would participate in the Health Department TB program this coming year.

Speaking of his own experiences as a TB patient, McIntosh said, "The years I spent trying to get over my tuberculosis could have been avoided, if I had known in time that I was infected. Unfortunately, nobody gave me the test. There may have been an excuse for this failure in those days, but I can't seem to find much reason for such failure now, when we have such excellent diagnostic tools and preventive medications."

The speaker urged public support of the Christmas Seal Campaign which supports the Association's educational program, which will include an area-wide physicians' symposium on Aug. 9.

McIntosh mentioned that the symposium will include treatment of emphysema and other smoking-related diseases.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—When I took a typing course as a kid, I used to practice by copying an article by Groucho Marx just so I wouldn't go nuts from the drudgery of the finger exercises. Memories, therefore, came back when I ran across another article by Groucho in the latest issue of the Producers Guild Journal.

Groucho's piece starts like this:

"I don't know what the problems of today's kids are. I'm sure the older generation had problems too, but we didn't burn down the schoolhouses to remedy our complaints. I'm not much in sympathy with the kids. I sympathize with the parents. I happen to be one, and I think it's nonsense to blame the parents when kids take LSD. Kids today are detestable, and thank God mine are grown up."

"What you should do with kids is slug hell out of them when they're small. Explain to them what life is about, and if they don't obey give them the cat o' nine tails. I read a piece about Ruskin or maybe it was Racine, who had ten kids, and every time he passed them he took a swing at them. And they named a town after him."

Well, anyway, Groucho swings a mean typewriter, and although I don't know exactly what he was doing in the Journal's issue on television violence, he wrote the best piece there. Actually, more to the subject was an article by George Edwards, chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit. Edwards, formerly on the Supreme Court of Michigan, made his remarks, adapted into the article at a discussion held by the Television Academy in Beverly Hills.

"I spent a term," he said, "as a judge of the Juvenile Court for four years in the city where I live, Detroit, and I never managed to get around to thinking, from what I saw of Juvenile Court, that television, movies or the pulp magazines were producers of juvenile delinquency in any direct or casually related sense."

Touching on violence in the context of news broadcasts, Edwards said: "I do not think television creates violence in our society, or rather I do not think it originated violence in our society. The human race has had a capacity for violence since the dawn of recorded history. There is nothing to indicate that we are necessarily to subside into peaceful quietude."

"...But it is also true that news can be made by emphasis, and that the cheapest thing to package in the way of news is violence, and the more difficult things to package in the way of news are the things which are not violent."

Fall Causes Death

DALLAS (UPI)—Mary Lou Venuto, who lived more than a week after she fell from a seventh floor balcony to a concrete pavement, died early today.

Miss Venuto, 20, suffered numerous fractures and internal injuries. She lost a leg in surgery, and doctors also performed head surgery. She remained in critical condition in Parkland Hospital from the time of the fall June 3.

REFUSES APOLOGY

LONDON (UPI)—Rider Ted Edgar called his horse a "big, idle bastard" during a television program on show jumping. The British Show Jumping Association promptly demanded an apology, and Edgar just as promptly refused.

The association finally withdrew the demand, explaining "every show jumper has at some time delivered some oath to his horse."

STATUS REMAINS QUO

CLARKSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Doyle McGuire, who hacked his way to freedom through a jail window last month, escaped from the same jail, the same cell, the same way Wednesday.

McGuire, 46, is charged with a variety of offenses including bootlegging. Police haven't caught up with him yet this time.

WIDE CHOICE

PETERBOROUGH, England (UPI)—Widower Victor Jaunce, 51, says he has received 81 offers of marriage since he posted a notice in his window appealing for a bride.

Guide To Morality

Now, we have outlined our convictions in fundamental moral law, or fact.

Next, it is incumbent upon us to state a single universal law or fact as we believe it:

Persons, groups and governments ought not threaten to initiate force or use it to attain their ends. This would certainly mean, Thou shalt not steal individually or collectively. If no person or group stole, there would be no murder, no false witness, no adultery.

To express the belief positively, all individuals or groups should get what they get in a manner that would be profitable to all. Then all would respect the private property of others 100%. That would be true liberty and voluntarism.

That is our interpretation of the Declaration of Independence. This is the universal single standard of right we use as our measuring device of morality—a yardstick of ethics.

Thus we believe:

1. That every man is born with equal-unalienable rights to take moral action to make more secure his property which includes first his life, then his liberty and all he produces.
2. That these rights are the endowment of the Creator and not the gift of any government.

Since we believe these facts are expressed in this guide of human conduct, we do not believe any man has the moral right to curtail the rights of his brother. That is, no man has the right to initiate force against his brother. Every man, to be sure, has the right to resist the initiation of force, but should not initiate it.

In all of recorded history, men have banded together for certain reasons—to hunt, to play, to trade, to build. In a voluntary association, such as the one that publishes this newspaper, each man exercises his rights through the group. BUT, simply because each man is a member of a group, he cannot morally assume rights he did not possess as an individual. And, neither does the group possess rights which the individuals in that group do not possess as individuals.

An example—John Doe is a shoe salesman. He does not have a right to sell shoes at gunpoint. Even if 10,000 John Does in the shoe business form an organization, that organization does not have the right to sell shoes at gunpoint.

"Hey Rocky, You think you had it rough. Let me tell you about my trip to South America in '38..."

HERE ARE THE CONVICTIONS THAT LED TO OUR BELIEF IN A UNIVERSAL SINGLE STANDARD OF RIGHT

Want Information

We believe that most of our political trouble comes from putting confidence in persons who continue to advocate government economic planning even though they can neither rationally answer questions about what they advocate, nor find anyone who can.

We know of no better way to learn and develop, and thus be able to be useful, than have our convictions questioned either privately or publicly.

The Pampa News believes in a system of universal natural law.

It is our belief that every fact of existence—it is a fact—is immutable, irrevocable and eternal.

That is—we believe that moral facts are no less concrete and timeless than physical facts. The law of gravity does not change with seasons; atomic behavior is not subject to the good intentions of man. For physical facts are not capable of change; else they would not be facts.

And so we believe it is with moral facts which stem from the same source as physical laws.

Let's take two facts, one physical and one moral.

1. Water seeks its level.
2. Stealing is wrong.

It is commonly accepted that the first fact is not subject to amendment. A change in political administration, a vote of the people, a petition of the Society of Learned Mathematicians of the World cannot change it. It exists as a fact.

The second law, we believe, is no more subject to amendment than the first. The majority might wink at it, try to reconcile it with some base or unsound conviction. But that does not affect the law—only the people who must live by it. Jumping out of a five-story building to flout the law of gravity will hardly bring about a suspension of that law. Neither will disregarding moral law bring about its abolition.

Single Standard of Conduct

Our belief in a single standard of conduct, and in the existence of individual rights, and in the fact of universal Natural law, brings us to oppose all things in which an individual or group seeks to initiate force—that is, curtail the just rights of any other individual or group.

We must oppose each brand of socialism, whether it is called Communism, Fascism, Fabian Socialism, or New Dealism or New Frontiersism.

We oppose socialism in factories, schools, churches and in the market place.

We do not believe there is any such animal as "good political socialism," either on a local, national or international scale. We do not believe in initiating force for any reason, even though the cause is a "good" one.

We believe it is violating the rights of the individual to force him to support a school, church, industry, business or profession if he does not choose to do so.

Two men out of a hundred have no moral right to force the 98 to support a school or church. Neither do the 98 have the moral right to force the remaining two men to support that school or church.

If that belief is contrary to the above standards we want to be convinced. Repeatedly we have offered as much as $1,000 to prominent persons who advocate using collective initiated force to examine publicly the morality of using such force where each person would agree to answer questions as he would before a court. We earnestly seek to be shown any errors in our reasoning.

If six, 26 or 6,000,000 individuals voluntarily get together to establish a church, school, business or club—and if those people do not curtail the rights of anyone inside or outside their own group—we have no argument with them.

The majority cannot write moral law. Neither can the minority. But, neither does the majority enjoy any moral advantages denied the minority, or the individual.

We believe, therefore, in a voluntarily supported government. The state, at best, exercises those powers which the individuals in that state voluntarily have turned over to the state for administration. An example: We prefer a private police force because we'd rather support a police force than wear a gun. But if some do not want to support a police force, they should not be forced to do so. Nor should they receive its services. The police force should have no powers denied any individual, and neither should the existence of a police force abridge the right of any citizen to defend himself.

We do not believe the state has any rights simply because it is a state.

Governments should exist only to try to protect the rights of EVERY individual—not to redistribute the property, manipulate the economy or establish the pattern of a society.

These are the basic elements in our belief and of our editorial convictions.

Regrettably, we do not always follow this principle. We fall into error. Our humility, perhaps, is not sufficient to the effort. But it is our belief to the degree a universal single standard of right is followed you will have a deeper understanding of your religion, greater freedom and security and more happiness and a higher standard of living. This belief will also benefit every person in the community, the state, the nation and the world. That is the reason it is our belief.

RIGHTS AND MORALITY ARE INDIVIDUAL MATTERS. THESE MORAL LAWS DO NOT MAKE EXCEPTIONS FOR GROUPS. THEY DO NOT SAY, "THOU SHALT NOT STEAL EXCEPT AT THE DESIRE OF THE MAJORITY." THEY SAY, "THOU SHALT NOT STEAL" PERIOD. AND A MAN'S ASSOCIATION WITH A GROUP DOES NOT RELIEVE HIM OF THE BURDEN OF THESE LAWS.

We believe, therefore, in a single standard of conduct. Thomas Jefferson stated the matter. He wrote: "I know of but one code of morality, whether it be for men or for nations."

Immanuel Kant, another great student of morals, in his "Metaphysics of Morals" wrote: "...I ask myself only: Can I will that my maxim become a universal law?"

These are the basic elements in our belief and of our editorial convictions.

Regrettably, we do not always follow this principle. We fall into error. Our humility, perhaps, is not sufficient to the effort. But it is our belief to the degree a universal single standard of right is followed you will have a deeper understanding of your religion, greater freedom and security and more happiness and a higher standard of living. This belief will also benefit every person in the community, the state, the nation and the world. That is the reason it is our belief.

Guide To Morality

Now, we have outlined our convictions in fundamental moral law, or fact.

Next, it is incumbent upon us to state a single universal law or fact as we believe it:

Persons, groups and governments ought not threaten to initiate force or use it to attain their ends. This would certainly mean, Thou shalt not steal individually or collectively. If no person or group stole, there would be no murder, no false witness, no adultery.

To express the belief positively, all individuals or groups should get what they get in a manner that would be profitable to all. Then all would respect the private property of others 100%. That would be true liberty and voluntarism.

That is our interpretation of the Declaration of Independence. This is the universal single standard of right we use as our measuring device of morality—a yardstick of ethics.

Thus we believe:

1. That every man is born with equal-unalienable rights to take moral action to make more secure his property which includes first his life, then his liberty and all he produces.
2. That these rights are the endowment of the Creator and not the gift of any government.

Since we believe these facts are expressed in this guide of human conduct, we do not believe any man has the moral right to curtail the rights of his brother. That is, no man has the right to initiate force against his brother. Every man, to be sure, has the right to resist the initiation of force, but should not initiate it.

In all of recorded history, men have banded together for certain reasons—to hunt, to play, to trade, to build. In a voluntary association, such as the one that publishes this newspaper, each man exercises his rights through the group. BUT, simply because each man is a member of a group, he cannot morally assume rights he did not possess as an individual. And, neither does the group possess rights which the individuals in that group do not possess as individuals.

An example—John Doe is a shoe salesman. He does not have a right to sell shoes at gunpoint. Even if 10,000 John Does in the shoe business form an organization, that organization does not have the right to sell shoes at gunpoint.

Single Standard of Conduct

Our belief in a single standard of conduct, and in the existence of individual rights, and in the fact of universal Natural law, brings us to oppose all things in which an individual or group seeks to initiate force—that is, curtail the just rights of any other individual or group.

We must oppose each brand of socialism, whether it is called Communism, Fascism, Fabian Socialism, or New Dealism or New Frontiersism.

We oppose socialism in factories, schools, churches and in the market place.

We do not believe there is any such animal as "good political socialism," either on a local, national or international scale. We do not believe in initiating force for any reason, even though the cause is a "good" one.

We believe it is violating the rights of the individual to force him to support a school, church, industry, business or profession if he does not choose to do so.

Two men out of a hundred have no moral right to force the 98 to support a school or church. Neither do the 98 have the moral right to force the remaining two men to support that school or church.

If that belief is contrary to the above standards we want to be convinced. Repeatedly we have offered as much as $1,000 to prominent persons who advocate using collective initiated force to examine publicly the morality of using such force where each person would agree to answer questions as he would before a court. We earnestly seek to be shown any errors in our reasoning.

If six, 26 or 6,000,000 individuals voluntarily get together to establish a church, school, business or club—and if those people do not curtail the rights of anyone inside or outside their own group—we have no argument with them.

The majority cannot write moral law. Neither can the minority. But, neither does the majority enjoy any moral advantages denied the minority, or the individual.

We believe, therefore, in a voluntarily supported government. The state, at best, exercises those powers which the individuals in that state voluntarily have turned over to the state for administration. An example: We prefer a private police force because we'd rather support a police force than wear a gun. But if some do not want to support a police force, they should not be forced to do so. Nor should they receive its services. The police force should have no powers denied any individual, and neither should the existence of a police force abridge the right of any citizen to defend himself.

We do not believe the state has any rights simply because it is a state.

Governments should exist only to try to protect the rights of EVERY individual—not to redistribute the property, manipulate the economy or establish the pattern of a society.

These are the basic elements in our belief and of our editorial convictions.

Regrettably, we do not always follow this principle. We fall into error. Our humility, perhaps, is not sufficient to the effort. But it is our belief to the degree a universal single standard of right is followed you will have a deeper understanding of your religion, greater freedom and security and more happiness and a higher standard of living. Computer Aid Is Offered Towns for Industry Search Communities throughout Texas are being offered the new technology of computers in their search for industries. It is disclosed by the Texas Industrial Commission.

George B. Cree Jr., president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, said today he had not heard of the statewide computer service, "but if it's available we certainly are interested."

E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, said the service had been considered at a recent workshop for managers which he attended at Brownsville.

Described by its proponents as "a rifle rather than a shotgun approach," the four-phase program is being made available to chambers of commerce throughout the state, according to Chester Wine, Corpus Christi, commission chairman.

Local leaders will have the opportunity to get a comprehensive look at the program being developed before its introduction late this year, Wine added.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hayden Stone Inc. advises investors to follow a policy of "extreme caution" while waiting "more conclusive" evidence that the market has reached a final bottom among the encouraging factors in the market decline, the analyst adds, are a lack of "aggressive" follow-up selling pressure, the strength of airlines, apparel, off-shore drilling firms and other good quality stocks, and the "impressive latent buying power available to institutional investors."

The market is "very deeply oversold and a rally is considered imminent," Glore Forgan, Wm. R. Staats Inc. says. It adds, however, that such a rally should not go past the 935 level of the Dow Jones industrial average without a pause for "consolidation or retracement." The analyst says it "may be too late...now" to sell stocks, but apparently is a "good time" to shop for issues which have held up through the decline and seek bargains among oversold issues.

The market has "passed its selling point" and investors should now begin buying selected stocks, according to Filor, Bullard & Smyth. Says the analyst: "Fundamentals look terrible...money is tight...the Vietnam War drags on...corporate earnings are 'poor'—yet, money for the purchase of stocks has not run out and a summer rally could be around the corner."

According to the police report, the stolen articles were an RCA stereo phonograph, five records, a Westinghouse duophonic tape player and three tape cartridges.

Agriculture Committee Writes Stamp Program

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Agriculture Committee sat down today to write a new food stamp program today with its chairman opposing two liberal proposals—free food stamps for the poorest families and a federal rule to make sure no needy families are excluded.

The chairman, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., called for a bill boosting food stamp spending from this year's $340 million to $750 million next year and $1.5 billion in 1971.

President Nixon has proposed spending $661 million for food stamps next year and $1.6 billion a year thereafter, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who chaired widely publicized hearings and field trips on hunger in America, said Nixon's proposal "is probably less than a third of what is needed."
