Soviet Leaders Call Off Trip To Romania

MOSCOW (UPI)—East European sources said today Soviet leaders have called off a planned visit this month to Romania to sign a friendship treaty because of the visit there next month of President Nixon.

The Soviets officially never have confirmed Monday's announcement by the Romanians

Final Rehearsal Set For Apollo 11 Moon Pilots

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Apollo 11's three moon pilots rehearse their role in the final countdown as if today were July 16 and they were embarking on man's greatest space adventure.

Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin were following their launch-day timetable which calls for them to be awakened and dressed in their spacesuits well before dawn and to board their spaceship at sunrise.

Today's exercise was an abbreviated, dry run of the major trial countdown successfully completed Wednesday with a simulated blastoff.

The three astronauts did not take part in that test because of the risks involved with a Saturn 5 rocket loaded with nearly one million gallons of explosive propellants.

Launch crews drained 783,000 gallons of frigid liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen from the rocket late Wednesday to give the astronauts a chance to run through their part of the countdown today.

The test count Wednesday was delayed 3 hours and 18 minutes by a leaky fuel valve. (See APOLLO, Page 2) of their scheduled July 14 trip to Bucharest and remained silent on the reported cancellation.

In Bucharest, informed Communist sources said no word of the cancellation had been received by Romanian officials and so far as they knew, the visit by Kremlin leaders was still on.

Soviet Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin were to make the ceremonial trip to Bucharest to sign a 20-year extension of their friendship pact with Romania, which expired Feb. 8, 1968.

The Soviet leaders apparently did not count on the extent to which Romania's president and party secretary, Nicolae Ceausescu, would go on an independent path in inviting Nixon.

It would be the first visit in almost 25 years of a U.S. president to a Communist country.

The Soviets were not consulted or informed in advance about Ceausescu's invitation to Nixon, according to reliable diplomatic sources.

Their displeasure was shown immediately when they virtually ignored the Nixon visit. Announcement of the trip was given 10 words without comment in the official Soviet press.

This time the Soviets, who quietly had accepted Romania's voting against Soviet resolutions at the United Nations, its refusal to break diplomatic relations with Israel and its recognition of West Germany, apparently balked at Ceausescu's new act of defiance.

Unless the new Soviet-Romanian crisis is somehow solved within the next few days, it may also result in Brezhnev's boycotting the Romanian party-congress scheduled Aug. 4, an event the Soviet general secretary normally would attend.

Foundation Has $800,000 Available For Auditorium

PAVING WORK GETS UNDERWAY — Workmen are busy filling in the playground area at Pampa Junior High as the first step toward paving the corner lot. Downtown merchants are paying part of the cost of the

Trustees Say Action Necessary This Year

By TEX DeWEESE
Executive Editor

Cash and properties aggregating approximately $800,000 have been made available for assisting in the construction and furnishing of a municipal auditorium for Pampa. It was announced today by Atty. William Jarrel Smith, secretary of the M. K. Brown Foundation.

Smith, member of the law firm of Smith, Wade, Teed & Waters, said he had received word by telephone from officials of the U.S. Treasury Department that the Foundation has been authorized to make the cash and property available to aid the City of Pampa or other municipal or quasi-municipal organization in setting up the auditorium project.

Smith pointed out in the announcement that the Gray-Pampa Foundation, Inc., created out of the estate of Fannie Lovett, deceased, has already arranged for a site for the auditorium in the Coronado Center area just south and west of the Center and to the north and west of the Coronado Inn.

The Foundation trustees agreed, Smith said, that the City of Pampa or some other agency, in order to receive the assistance from the M. K. Brown Foundation, "would have to have funds available or satisfactory arrangements made to obtain funds in the sum of $1,000,000 in addition to the contribution of the M. K. Brown Foundation and the Gray-Pampa Foundation."

The trustees also agreed at their meeting yesterday in the Foundation offices to consider the project, that a satisfactory auditorium could not be built and furnished for less than $1,800,000.

One stipulation under the terms of the Treasury Department mandate to the Brown Foundation is that the $800,000 cash and property will be available only during the current year of 1969.

Smith, who also is one of the trustees and secretary of the Gray-Pampa Foundation, stated he was not speaking for that group but it was his belief the Foundation would be able to furnish the auditorium site which it already owns, but probably would not have funds which could be used either for construction or maintenance of the new auditorium.

It was stated further in the M. K. Brown Foundation secretary's announcement today that "there must be a plan and a program under way satisfactory (See TRUSTEES, Page 2)

Humphrey Considering Plans For Next Presidential Race

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—Hubert H. Humphrey isn't hiding the fact that he still hopes to step up to the nation's No. 1 job.

But eight months after losing to Richard M. Nixon in one of the closest elections in U.S. history, Humphrey is fatalistic about his chances of moving into the White House in 1972.

"Events are going to affect elections more than personalities now," he said. "I think we're in a very volatile period of American life."

The former U.S. Vice president sat talking in a high-backed, black leather swivel chair in his brightly remodeled office on the campus of MacAlester College.

At 58 he knows he has only one chance left to be President. He knows, too, there are others in his party, younger men, waiting to try and seize the nomination themselves if Richard Nixon should falter between now and 1972.

But if fate is kind to Nixon, Humphrey feels there is little hope for any Democrat before 1976.

"For example if Mr. Nixon should be able to settle the war in Vietnam on some terms that are acceptable to the American people," Humphrey said. "If he is able to curb the rising tide of inflation, even to settle it, if we can maintain a strong and growing economy."

"Just take those three things. I think he'd be very difficult to defeat for anybody. Anybody!" But if events "kick back" on Nixon, "then I think he'd be easy to beat," Humphrey said. "And there will be a greater scramble for the (Democratic) nomination."

"So you just can't predict about 1972."

But first there is 1970.

Humphrey must decide in the next six months whether to make a political comeback next year and seek the Senate seat now held by fellow Democrat Eugene McCarthy.

But state Democratic farm and labor leaders think there is a good chance McCarthy will run as an independent to test his strength as a possible third-party presidential candidate in 1972.

Humphrey said he has not yet made up his mind. But when he does, he said McCarthy's possible entry into the race will not deter him.

Most observers agree, too, that he could be governor if he wanted to.

"My feeling about it is this way. If, in my own mind, I had foreclosed, once and for all, any possibility of '72 and I looked at the Senate thing and saw it was more complicated than I would like it, then the privilege of serving in this state would be a wonderful opportunity," he said.

In an effort to "decompress" from the pressure of top-level Washington and to keep his mind off the past Humphrey has plunged into private life at a hectic pace.

Picasso Found In Deserted London Cellar

LONDON (UPI)—Two workmen clearing out a cellar found a stack of paintings under a split bag of plaster. First they thought it was just another pile of junk, and they took one of the pictures out, propped it up and threw tacks at it.

Then they decided maybe their find was worth a few dollars so they took one of the canvases to Marcus Taylor's Art Shop to find out.

Taylor was out and his wife said she didn't think the painting was valuable but gave carpenter Eddie Mitchell and painter Aubrey Worman a receipt and promised to have her husband appraise the art.

Mitchell and Worman were hardly home before Taylor was calling them with the news: The painting they had found was a Picasso, "Weeping Woman," worth $192,000 and stolen three months ago from the home of its owner.

Iowa Community To Quit Smoking

GREENFIELD, Iowa (UPI)—This Central Iowa community may quit smoking. The whole town. For fun.

Even Mayor Dale Yount, a chain smoker of cigars and cigarettes, is going to give it a whirl.

"It seems kind of laughable at first glance," Edwin J. Sidey, editor of the Adair County Free Press, said Wednesday. "But then you think about it and you think it might be done."

Sidey said the idea caught on when Greenfield was chosen as one of the sites for filming a movie called "Cold Turkey." The film's plot involves a multimillionaire who promises a small town $25 million if all the residents kick the tobacco habit.

Two city councilmen who already have given up smoking agitated for the drive, Sidey said. They "kind of rode the others although one of them went from cigarettes to chewing tobacco and he's trying to get over that, now."

The drive will begin officially in August with a mammoth bonfire fueled by tobacco. Then everyone is expected to quit.

Sidey admits there are some skeptics among the city's 2,200 residents.

Fireworks Display Set For Tomorrow

One of the best — if not the best — fireworks displays to be seen in the Panhandle will be part of Pampa's annual Independence Day celebration.

An invitation has been extended to all Top O' Texas residents to participate in an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration at recreation park Friday evening.

"As in years past the program will be very informal," E. O. Wedgeworth, Chamber manager said.

The festivities begin at 7:30 p.m. in front of the grandstands with entertainment provided by the Pampa Roping Club.

There will be a steer roping contest between eight roping teams each consisting of two men.

"They will be heading and heeling," Wedgeworth said. "One of the ropers ropes the head and the other ropes the heels. You won't see it in a rodeo. It's a very popular event among real cowboys."

Following the heeling and heeling will be riding events, such as barrel racing for younger boys and girls.

The formal part of the program begins at about 9:45 p.m. when the colors will be presented by Boy Scout Troop 16 under the direction of Doug Adkins, scoutmaster.

SAFETY IN TIME OF STORM — Churches are supposed to be a place of safety in time of storm but anything can happen at other times. Such was the case Wednesday night when part of the suspended ceiling at the Fellowship Baptist Church fell into the back part of the church. Luckily, evening services had been dismissed earlier. Rev. Earl Maddux was busy Thursday morning trying to get the church cleaned. (Photo By Bob Kelly)

News In Brief

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Stinger Johnny Cash, who was accused of touching off a 506-acre fire because of a defective exhaust system on his camper, has agreed to pay the federal government $82,000 damages.

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Gov. Preston Smith, who vetoed a bill earlier this year which would add new courts in Texas, gets a chance today to expand on his action before the 87th annual meeting of the Texas Bar Association.

TAIPEI (UPI)—Nationalist Chinese warships raided a Communist Chinese naval base Wednesday night and returned safely today reporting one Peking gunboat and two supply ships sunk and another gunboat damaged.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President and Mrs. Nixon flew to Florida today for a long holiday weekend. The Nixons will spend their 4th of July weekend at their home at Key Biscayne.

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI)—Fires started by molotov cocktails extensively damaged a warehouse and a clothing store late Wednesday night during a series of disturbances in a 10-block Negro section.

Suit Asked In Justice Appointment

NEW YORK (UPI)—Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was asked today to file suit against Warren E. Burger on grounds the chief justice assumed office illegally.

Randolph G. Phillips, a former New York reporter, is chairman of the Committee in Opposition to the Confirmation of Hon. Warren E. Burger as Chief Justice of the United States.

He said today Burger was confirmed unconstitutionally because Sen. James O. Eastland, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, had "excluded from giving testimony opponents to Chief Justice Burger."

Before the June 8 Senate ratification of President Nixon's choice for chief justice, Phillips, and his lawyer Robert L. Brobrick claimed that Eastland allowed 65 pro-Burger witnesses but no opponents to the nomination to testify before the Judiciary Committee.

State Rests In Case Against San Antonio Man

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI)—Prosecutors, with a pistol they received just last week, spent the final day of the testimony Wednesday attempting to convince a jury the weapon belonged to a Texan who used it to kill one teen-age hitchhiker and wound another.

The state then rested its case against Richard C. Welch, 26, of San Antonio, accused of murdering Randy Jenkins, 17, of Salt Lake City and wounding Diane Bradford, 18, of Campbell, Calif.

Kern County, Calif., criminologist Herbert Irvin testified he believed the bullets removed from Jenkins and Miss Bradford were fired from the same gun as the one the prosecution attempted to link with Welch.

The weapon was brought to the attention of the state last week. A San Bernardino County mag said the gun was given to him by his brother who found it along Highway 58 near the desert town of Mojave, Calif.

Jenkins was killed and Miss Bradford was wounded near Mojave. The man said he believed the pistol was the murder weapon and so he turned it over to the coast.

Dr. Gerard J. Voelkers, a Bakergfield neurosurgeon who removed the bullet fragments from Miss Bradford's head, said the bullet entered the rear of the girl's skull just to the left of the mid-line. He said if the wound had been anywhere else in this region, altered by just a fraction of an inch—it would have been fatal.

As it was, Miss Bradford was able to crawl to Highway 58 and summon help. Through testimony presented earlier in the trial, the prosecution attempted to prove Welch and his wife, Anita, 18, were driving from a relative's California farm to their home in San Antonio.

They picked up Jenkins and Miss Bradford, who were hitchhiking to Salt Lake City in Bakersfield and drove to Mojave. The prosecution tried to prove Welch shot Jenkins near Mojave and forced Miss Bradford to get out of the car and partially disrobe before he shot her.

Obituaries

MRS. BESSIE BARKLEY

Funeral services for Mrs. Bessie Barkley, 75, sister of Lee Ray, of Pampa, were held at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Charles V. Steed Memorial Chapel. Burial was in a Clovis cemetery.

Mrs. Barkley, a Clovis resident since 1918, died Monday at Memorial Hospital. Other survivors are a son, Leonard, Clovis; three daughters, Mrs. Odame Purkiser and Mrs. Gladys Marchman, both of Clovis, and Mrs. Dorothy Crawford, Lubbock; two sisters, Mrs. Liddie Justus and Mrs. Maggie Crawford, both of Crosbyton, and eight grandchildren.

REV. JOHN G. POWELL

MCLEAN—Funeral services for Rev. John George Powell, 104, who died Tuesday in Highland General Hospital, will be held in the Lefors Assembly of God Church at 2 p.m. Friday with burial in Lefors Cemetery directed by Lamb Funeral Home, McLean.

Rev. A. T. Kersey, retired Pentecostal Holiness minister, Thorpe, and Rev. Elbert Meggett, pastor of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, Pampa, will officiate.

Rev. Powell will lie in state at the Lefors church from 10 a.m. until service time. A native of Johnson County, Ill., Rev. Powell celebrated his 104th birthday June 23. He is survived by his wife, the former Ellen Harbison; a daughter, Mrs. Sula Ellsworth, San Diego, Calif.; 12 grandchildren, 39 great-grandchildren, 27 great-great-grandchildren and three great-great-great-grandchildren.

He and Miss Harbison were married in Pampa in 1942. He had lived in Lefors after moving there from Snyder, Okla., in 1929. He was ordained a minister in Carnegie, Okla.

Hughes Tool Co. Burglarized

Hughes Tool Co., 737 S. Cuyler, was burglarized late Wednesday night or early this morning. The extent of the theft had not been determined by press time.

This far only drill bits are known to be missing according to Texas Ranger Bill Baten. The burglary is being investigated by Baten and Deputy Sheriff D. L. Day.

ATOMIC ENERGY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House passed and sent to the White House Tuesday a $2.4 billion authorization for operation of the Atomic Energy Commission in the 1970 fiscal year just ended.

Lost Billfold, Clock, Head Police Blotter

Pampa police investigated several minor incidents Wednesday including a lost billfold, stolen paint and a missing cuckoo clock.

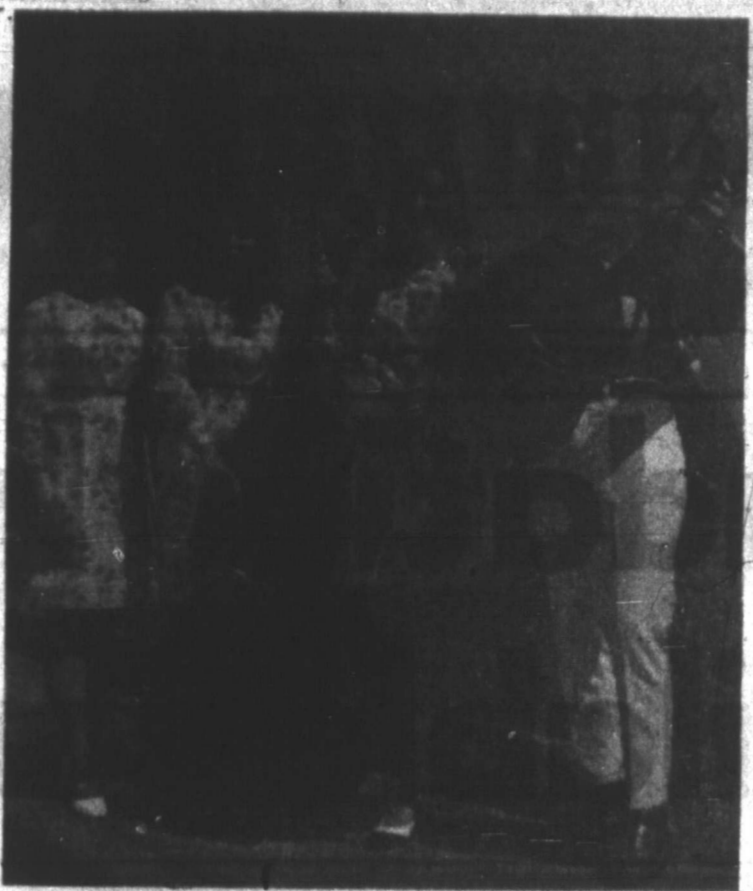

Mrs. G. W. Taylor, 2500 Aspen, told police she put her billfold in a grocery cart while shopping, forgot it and when she returned the billfold was missing.

The woman said she had $60 in cash and credit cards in the billfold.

Ted Erickson, 933 Barnard, said he had his car parked in the 500 block of W. Brown and when he returned from shopping two cans of paint thinner were missing.

Police also received a report from C. W. Huffine, 1129 Wilcox, that someone had entered his house and taken a cuckoo clock off the kitchen wall.

Nick Reyes Vows To Win Battle For Mexican-American Identity

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The battle lines are about to be drawn. On one side is Nick Reyes who hopes he will be joined by Lee Trevino, Trini Lopez and Cesar Chavez. On the other side is the "Frito Bandito" and the "Jellow Pages Man."

Reyes vows to win the battle of eliminating symbols that defame Mexican-Americans. He also vows to win the war to "develop a positive national identity" for the Mexican-surnamed population, to do research into the media impact on Mexican-Americans, "strengthen curricula" (through suggestions for courses and textbook content), promote scholarships for Mexican-American youngsters, and work with the Mexican-American community and its organizations.

Reyes is the executive director of the National Mexican-American Anti-Defamation Committee. The committee's chairman is Armando Rodriguez, who, like Reyes, is from Washington, D.C.

Albert Pena of San Antonio, Tex., and a Bezar County commissioner, is the committee's vice chairman. "We are going to try the negotiation approach, and the educational approach," Rodriguez said Wednesday.

"Then, if no other recourse remains, we will go to legal means to bring pressure. Right now, the expenses are out of our own pockets, but we have talked to some foundations and industry support," he said.

Although Reyes wants to do away with symbols which suggest Mexican-Americans are slow or stupid or lazy, he said part of the problem will be with Mexican-Americans themselves. "Just for example, there is a Dallas restaurant, owned by a Mexican-American, and it has a two-bit kind of character in its symbol," Reyes said. "You know, such a business-man may think he has to operate with all the old clichés—the siesta, the man in the sombrero leaning against a cactus. So we have to get to him in addition to the national problem," he said.

According to Reyes, the national problem starts with such things as the "Frito Bandito" image projected in advertisements and programs.

"I talked to the Frito people in Dallas. I felt like David going up to a Goliath. They were very diplomatic, but they thought it was very funny," Reyes said.

When all this laughter subsided, he said, the committee might turn to boycotts against certain products whose managers will not go along with the effort.

Trustees

There must be assured additional financial arrangements at least contractually available within that same period, the announcement said.

Chairman E. L. Green, Jr., chairman of the Audit Board Committee, when contacted at his office today, said he would call a meeting of the group immediately following the July Fourth holiday period.

"That's wonderful news," Green said, "we will go into immediate action to get the plans rolling."

Smith stated that if the arrangements are not complete in the time limited, the accumulated income (perhaps as much as $300,000 of the above amount) must be immediately allocated and spent in accordance with the charter provisions of the Foundation and the laws governing charitable foundations. It is believed Smith stated, that the current Congress will enact some very burdensome and stringent regulations governing foundations effective on Jan. 1, 1970. Possibly, according to the recommendations of some Congressmen, foundations will be abolished. It is almost certain, he added, that some of their powers and activities will be substantially curtailed.

Smith said that the Brown Foundation contemplated that for the present, so far as its limited resources would permit, the trustees would still endeavor to carry out the directions given them by the late M. K. Brown, including the completion of the equipping of the Brown Museum on South Cuyler Street and the educational scholarship plan "so dear to the heart of the late philanthropist."

Smith advised that the details of the financing plan and the plans and specifications of the auditorium are wholly in the hands of the Municipal Auditorium Committee headed by E. L. Green, Jr., chairman, together with officials of the City or other municipal organization which will own the new auditorium.

Thomas L. Wade and Bill W. Waters, respectively chairman and vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Brown Foundation, concurred in Smith's statement today to the press.

Pampa Accidents, Injuries Up In Month Of June

Accidents and injuries showed an increase in Pampa during the month of June according to a Pampa police report.

During last month police investigated 50 accidents with 11 injuries. In 1968 for the same month there were 46 accidents and only five injuries.

For the first six months of 1969 police have investigated 371 accidents involving 60 injuries, with 375 accidents and 74 injuries for the same period a year ago.

Total property damage to date is estimated at $19,435.

Majority of the accidents occurred between the hours of 6-7 p.m. with seven, and six collisions occurred between the hours of 4-5 p.m. Most of the accidents happened on Wednesday (12) with 11 occurring on Friday.

Drivers between the ages 25-34 had 18 of the accidents and drivers in the 20-24 and 35-44 age groups had 15 accidents in each group.

Male drivers had more accidents (55) than female drivers who were involved in only 33.

Board Reopens Probe, Calls New Witness

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (UPI)—A U.S.-Australian Board of Inquiry announced today it will reopen hearings Saturday into the collision of the USS Frank E. Evans and the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne.

The board announced last week it had completed hearings and would begin drafting its report Monday on the accident that killed 74 American sailors.

Chief Of Police Gives Warning

Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner reminded youngsters today that setting off fireworks in the city limits, even on the Fourth of July, is prohibited by a city ordinance.

Conner said that grass is dry in this area and a fire could be set off by firecrackers or other type fireworks.

"We hope parents will work with us on this and help keep their youngsters from shooting off fireworks in the city," Conner said.

City Poundmaster Busy During Month Of June

Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner released figures today on dog work done by the city's poundmaster.

For the month of June a total of 68 dogs were picked up in Pampa. Thus far this year a total of 743 dogs have been impounded.

Apparently not too many people missed their pets for only three were paid out during June and 75 have been paid out for the year.

A total of 70 dogs were destroyed in June.

All dogs are picked up and impounded that are not in a fenced yard and persons wanting to recover their pets must pay a $2 pound fee plus $2 per day or for the part of a day the dogs are kept in the city pound.

Southern or Northern Cooks Serve Traditional 'Hot Dogs for July 4th'

You may not be a Yankee Doodle Dandy born on the Fourth of July, but you'll probably celebrate this national holiday. One really dandy way to observe the occasion is with hot dogs presented with special flair.

Hot dogs can be given a different twist by nesting them in folded over slices of bread instead of buns. Foldovers contain corn relish and mustard as well as frankfurters for tasty eating. Before toasting, two corners of each slice of bread are overlapped and secured with a relish garnish providing a small dress-up for the occasion.

Hot dogs are especially popular throughout all July, which is the biggest consumption month, August being runnerup. Last year a new hot dog eating record was set — 1,575 million pounds, an average of about 80 frankfurters per person.

Hot dogs are a handy item for the homemaker to stock since they are already cooked when they come from the store. Of course, most people do prefer their hot dogs hot except when they're just that hungry they can't wait the few minutes needed for heating.

Generally, the spicing is mild. This pleases most people, particularly small fry who are not accustomed to highly spiced foods. Some manufacturers use more seasoning for franks designed to cater to sophisticated tastes.

The most usual way to serve a hot dog is in the elongated bun devised for holding it early in the 1900's. It solved the problem of keeping fingers from getting burned. Favorite accompaniments like mustard, catsup and relish are held tidily in a bun-wrapped wiener. For variety substitute bread foldover for bun.

VITAMIN-FED CANTALOUPE — Bill Baker, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Baker, 303 E. Browning, displays the two-centered cantaloupe which his mother bought recently at a Pampa fruit stand. Warm summer days are the season for cantaloupe, watermelon and other cool fruit, but two-centered ones don't come along every season.

FRANKFURTER FOLDOVERS
1 pound (8 to 10 Frankfurters)
8 to 10 slices sandwich bread
Butter or margarine
Prepared mustard
1/4 cup corn relish
8 to 10 wooden picks
Radish roses,
pickles and olives
Roll each slice of bread with a rolling pin until half its original thickness. Spread one side of each slice with butter or margarine. Cut each frankfurter, lengthwise, almost through. Place 1 frankfurter cut side up, diagonally on unbuttered side of each slice of bread. Spread each frankfurter with 1/2 teaspoon mustard and fill with 1 tablespoon corn relish. Fold 2 opposite corners of bread over frankfurter and secure with a pick. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a very hot oven (450°F.) 8 to 10 minutes, or until lightly toasted. Place a radish rose, pickle or olive on the pick closing each "foldover." Yield: 8 to 10 sandwiches.

Beans for Slimming
Drained canned green beans, at only 15 calories for 1/2 cup, are a good vegetable to serve during the months of swimsuits and tennis dresses.

Nectarine Bun for Breakfast on the Run
Make it the night before: Tuck sliced bacon and sliced fresh nectarines into a buttered soft bun; wrap in foil. Next morning, warm it in the oven while you're getting dressed.

Food Buying Guide

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The following guide to the nation's food buys for the weekend was prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service reports that food shoppers will find good supplies of meat and poultry and some choices in fresh vegetables and fruit in food stores and supermarkets for the holiday weekend.

Heading the list of meats are broiler-fryer chickens and turkeys. Beef cuts in best supply are roasts, steaks, and ground beef. Pork items in best supply are bacon, chops, and hams. Some areas may feature smoked picnics and spareribs. Fish buys to consider are canned tuna, Maine sardines, and fish sticks and portions, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Fresh vegetables in more than ample supply are cabbage, cucumbers, endive-escarole, lettuce, onions, and potatoes. The most abundant fresh fruits are bananas, cantaloupes, and watermelons.

USDA's plentiful foods list for July features peaches, but marketing of this fruit seems to be slower than expected. Other foods on the plentiful list are rice and summer vegetables, as well as watermelons.

Kabobs to perk up any appetite.

Help Yourself, Cool Picnics Give Mom A Holiday From Kitchen Fire

Pack a picnic cooler for a lazy summer holiday lunch that the entire family can enjoy, most especially Mom. She likes to take it easy, too. The modern insulated bag, hamper, and refrigerated box or chest all keep cold food cold on the way to the picnic.

For a help-yourself kind of picnic, plan to pack plenty of franks, a variety of cheeses and spreads, pickles and some prepared vegetables. The franks, cheese and pickles go from the grocery bag right into the picnic carrier with no preparation stop in the kitchen. All are in tightly sealed wrappers, sanitary and neat.

Into a plastic bag or container go sliced cucumbers, radish roses, and carrot and celery sticks for finger salads. The chilled beverages can go into another cooler or the same cooler, if it isn't getting crowded or too heavy to carry with ease. Left in the brown paper bag for carrying may be the buns, corn chips and the closed jars of spreads.

As the menu is planned, keep in mind that energy-rich franks are plumper, juicy, and fully cooked so can be made into sandwiches without heating. Or if some like the franks hot, take along a small thermos of very hot water. Drop the franks into the water and in a few minutes they are hot.

Here are the suggested combinations and groceries needed for a cool picnic. Franks in buns with mustard-mayonnaise and sliced sweet pickles. Franks in buns with sliced cheese and mustard, relishes. Franks in buns with 1000 Island Dressing, shredded Cheddar cheese and sweet pickles. Corn or potato chips add a crunchy touch to all.

To speed browning when roasting meats in a rotisserie, add a teaspoon of sugar to the fat used for basting, during the last half hour of cooking.

Milk is a perishable food. Keep the containers out of the refrigerator just long enough to pour the amount you plan to use. When in the refrigerator, be sure to cover or close the container to prevent the milk from absorbing odors of other foods. Milk removed from the original container should not be returned to it.

College Queens Suggest Beef With Lamb Kabobs

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor

One from each of our states, 50 college girls have just competed in several events in the 14th annual College Queen Pageant.

For the Best Foods Cook-in, the best was the preparation of a main dish and decorating a cake.

BEEF AND LAMB KABOBS

- 6 small white onions, peeled
  - 1/2 pound boned lamb (1 1/2-inch cubes)
  - 1 recipe Marinade
  - 6 small tomatoes or 6 tomato wedges
  - 6 small fresh mushrooms
  - 2 small summer squash (zucchini or crookneck) cut into 1/2 inch pieces
  - 1 medium green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
  - 1 recipe Parsley Rice
- Precook onions in lightly salted boiling water until almost tender. Drain and set aside. Mix meat cubes in large bowl or pan with marinade and let stand at least 15 minutes, preferably 2 to 3 hours. Drain meat, reserving marinade for basting. Arrange meat cubes, onions, tomatoes, mushrooms, squash and green pepper alternately on skewers. Brush vegetables with marinade. Place skewers on greased, preheated grill or broiler, following manufacturer's directions. Broil, turning skewers occasionally and brushing with remaining marinade, 15 to 25 minutes or until meat is cooked to desired doneness and vegetables are tender. Serve with parsley rice. Makes 4 servings.

Marinade: Mix 1/2-cup oil and 1/4-cup cider vinegar. Stir in 1 1/2 teaspoons dry mustard, 1/2-teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon each crushed basil, oregano and thyme leaves, 1-teaspoon pepper. I finely chopped medium onion and 1 finely chopped clove garlic.

Parsley Rice: Melt 4 tablespoons margarine in small saucepan. Pour over 4 cups cooked hot rice. Add 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, toss.

Potato salad—an old standby.

Potato Salad Dish Makes A Delicacy

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

The delicatessen, or place where delicacies or fine foods are sold, is an East Coast, big city phenomenon still finding its way into smaller U. S. communities. A major supermarket chain reports that stores in larger southern cities, for example, only recently accepted the "deli" idea.

Wherever a deli exists, one of the mainstays will be potato salad. A man responsible for the takeout salad business celebrated his 93rd birthday in June. He is Richard Hellmann, who started selling mayonnaise he used in his delicatessen potato salad for home use in small, wooden, boatlike containers in the '20s. Prior to that all mayonnaise was homemade, as was potato salad. Only in cities with delis was potato salad storebought.

HEARTY POTATO SALAD

- 2 pounds potatoes (5 cups cubed, cooked)
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 8 slices bacon, cooked, drained and crumbled
- 1/2 cup real mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/4 cup tarragon vinegar
- Salt and pepper
- Iceberg lettuce
- Deviled eggs
- Roiled hard salami slices

Cook potatoes in salted boiling water until tender but not mushy. Drain. Cool; peel and cube. Toss together potatoes, celery, onion, eggs and bacon. Mix mayonnaise, sour cream and vinegar. Toss with potato mixture. Taste; add salt and pepper. Chill. Core, rinse and drain lettuce. Crisp in refrigerator. Line salad bowl with dark green outer leaves. Fill bowl with potato salad. Garnish top with eggs and salami rolls. Makes about 6 (1/4-cup) servings.

Cookouts Require Corn on the Cob

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Fresh corn, like watermelon, is a go-along food for any first-class barbecue. Here are some suggestions for cooking it.

ROASTED CORN IN HUSK: Loosen husk on ears of fresh corn only enough to remove silks. Pull husks back in place. Place over grill and cook 20 to 25 minutes, turning to cook uniformly. If desired, corn may be roasted by this method in moderate oven (350 degrees). The baking time is the same as for barbecue grill.

BOILED: Place ears of husked corn in boiling water to cover. Cook, covered, only until milk is set, 5 to 8 minutes.

IN FOIL: Place each ear of husked corn on a square of aluminum foil. Top with a 1/2-inch slice butter or margarine. Wrap securely. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until tender over grill.

These are the exciting new Polaroid Countdown Cameras that you have seen demonstrated on television. They have built-in development timers that tell you when your picture is ready. The Model 350 has a built-in electronic timer that is automatically activated when you pull your picture out of the camera. When it is ready to peel apart, the timer "beeps" and a light blinks out. It can save you lots of money in spoiled pictures, make your instant color pictures more beautiful than ever. The Models 340 and 330 have mechanical timers that "buzz" until your picture is ready.

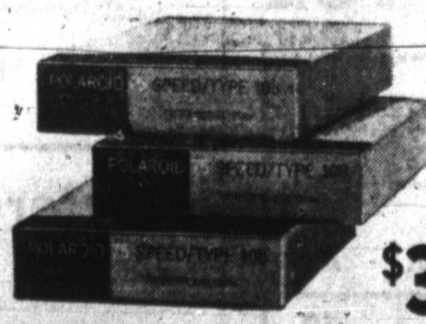

All of these models have range and viewfinders for sharp, accurate pictures. They all have Polaroid's famous electric eye and electronic shutter combination that sets the exposure automatically in any light, even for indoor flash pictures. They fold up for compact, easy carrying and have detachable covers and carrying straps. These are the classic Polaroid Color Pack cameras. We have them now. Why wait?

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The technical rally is beginning to gather steam and, with a few more advances and heavier volume, could well dislodge the large reservoir of investment funds on the sidelines, Bache & Co. said.

On the other hand, the firm cautioned, steadily rising pressure for tax reform creates new uncertainty as the investment community tries to guess which direction reform will take.

The day of the stock market bargain hunter is approaching for, when important bearish developments are consistently ignored by the market, that is normally the time to look for bargains, according to Thomson & McKinnon Inc.

The Gross National Product, corporate profits, personal income, and the Standard & Poor Industrial Index all could double in the next 10 years, said Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis. On average, the firm noted, stock prices appreciated at the same rate as profits—which doubled over the past decade—and could double again in the 1970's.

The signs are unmistakable that fiscal restraint and Federal Reserve credit restrictions are about to produce sharp cutbacks in corporate earnings and economic activity, according to Wright Investors Service. The downturn will be so pronounced by the end of the year that monetary restrictions will be eased, interest rates will decline, and bond prices will rise, the firm said.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

While most individuals agree with Frank's P. Adam's "quip" about his boys, "Gentlemen, I love and like you, caring little for your IQ," the Army, schools and industry base their "liking" on how well a candidate does on an intelligence test. The French psychologist, Alfred Binet, introduced the first standard test of intelligence in 1905.

An Affluent New Europe Greet Pilgrims

By BOYD LEWIS
PARIS —(NEA)—Twenty-five years. A quarter of a century. What does it mean to you, to me? A few gray hairs, a little more stiffness in that old injury. A thin cloud of forgetfulness mixed with sentimentality over those memories of years before. But what does it mean to Europe? To the Europe we knew in 1944 when it was wracked and blackened by shellfire and bombing, when a mad little house painter named Hitler held a torch to humanity—in Germany and all of Europe, and good men died to quench the flames? An outraged European lady exclaims: "My little German maid told me she came from Dachau—and she had never heard of the concentration camp!"
The story is only partially here, the story which Pan American World Airways brought the World War II anniversary of D-Day has enabled some fine old generals like Omar Bradley and Pete Quesada and Jake Denvers and Lightning Joe Collins to salute the graves—the oh, so many graves. And we to witness with trembling lips. There was beauty in the services at the great military cemeteries behind Omaha and Beach and a bitter awareness that man should have climbed highways and airways, in the smoke of 100,000 chimneys beyond the necessity to leave his bones on a foreign shore. Americans, British, Canadians, French—yes, even Germans. The German cemeteries are well-tended here in France and Germans come often to stand in them with their families. No, not here amid the visiting souvenirs of war is the story we flew the ocean to find. The real story exists in the booming cities, on the heavily travelled highways and airways, in the smoke of 100,000 chimneys beokening a lushness of civilian economy never known on this continent. It is told with exquisite beauty in the round little healthy faces of the children, a generation growing up, perhaps for the first time in Europe's ages, almost totally without the fear of war. The story is in men like Jean Key, diminutive dynamic head of the European Economic Community with its headquarters in the beehive which is modern Brussels. He daily sees the dream of a united Europe come closer as trade barriers dissolve. And now that De Gaulle is gone, he sees Britain as part of it before too many months.

FRIDAY, JULY 4
YOUR BIRTHDAY FRIDAY: Now is the time to pursue a course of action that is really a manifestation of your faith. Outworn habits should be thrust out of your life. Friday's natives are almost all natural students, seekers of knowledge, and industrious people.

ARIES (March 21-April 20): Take the liberty and opportunity to exploit your personal connections. (Keep your methods orthodox.)

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Personal matters can be advanced quite handsly. Financial affairs tend to run into difficulty, misunderstandings, confusion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Things go well considering all factors. Enjoy the companionship of old friends and kin. Avoid the temptation to say too much.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friday your emotional orientation may change subtly. Give yourself time to catch a good balance before making important moves.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make as bold and emphatic an impression as your means and circumstances allow. Just remember to do it gracefully and thoughtfully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Partners have something to say too; give them a chance.

Neighbors may impress you and your mate with something big.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can think of so many ways to spend money Friday. Where you have choices, keep your health in mind. Travel conditions are apt to be wilder.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unreal expectations complicate relationships. Pressure, demands are not the answer. Wait for the story!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You encounter disapproval without being able to get at the causes. Nothing to do but wait, while avoiding any squabble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You find your friends suggesting all sorts of useless actions. Be patient with them while you work out your own pattern of self-expression.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Information on financial matters should be regarded as incomplete. Differences of opinion with mate or family are par for the course Friday.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fatigue is a factor to be taken into account. Conserve your money and strength.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law is paying $35 an hour to a doctor who must be as crazy as she is. This psychiatrist told her that in order to build her "self-respect" she must always say exactly what she thinks. She must be his star pupil because she is following his orders to the letter.

Not only that, but he told her to encourage her children to say exactly what THEY think, too. That is bad enough, but he also told her that words are only words and they don't "mean" anything, so not to react with horror or disgust if her kids talk dirty. Just ignore it.

Can you imagine what it's like at their house? Thank God my husband is dead, or this would kill him.

My son tells me not to pay attention to all this, but how can you ignore such uncivilized behavior? Since you are always plugging psychiatry I would like to hear your views on the subject.

CONFUSED IN PHILA.
DEAR CONFUSED: Anyone who is seeing a psychiatrist has my profound respect because it's proof that he is trying to help himself.

Be patient, and don't judge so early in the game. The whole family could be better off eventually for what appears at the moment to be an overdose of honesty.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin, who recently was married, accepted a baby-sitting job for a family with 10 children while the parents went off on a week's vacation. My cousin and her husband stayed at the house and took complete charge of these children whose ages ranged from 5 months old to 15 years old, feeding, dressing, supervising play, cleaning the house and doing at least two loads of washing every single day.

Well, when the parents came home, they figured out that the "sitters" should be paid the grand total of $64!

My cousin was furious. What is your opinion?

INTERESTED
DEAR INTERESTED: This should be a good lesson to your cousin (and others who read this) to have a meeting of minds concerning the pay for any kind of job before it's accepted.

DEAR ABBY: I am facing a problem which is keeping me up nights and I don't know what to do about it.

First, let me explain that my husband and I have been married for five years and have two lovely little children. My husband recently made out his will, which states that if the two of us should be killed at one time, HIS parents would become legal guardians of our children. Abby, his folks are much better off financially than mine are, and if this ever happens I know his folks would never let our children even get to SEE my parents.

I am not saying that MY parents should be the guardians, but I would like to be assured that my parents would not become strangers to our children. If they surely would be with my parents in control. I don't want to make trouble, but I want to know if I should make my feelings known.

HURT AND SILENT
DEAR HURT: Yes. Tell your husband how you feel. It is highly unlikely that both you and your husband will "be killed" at the same time, but if it cases your mind, have revision. In your husband's will stating that if his parents are to be the legal guardians of your children.

Pace-Setting Designers Advise Footlockers for Giant Jewelry

NEW YORK (UPI)—Put your little velvet-lined jewelry box in moth balls.

Replace it with a foot locker—if you're to keep step with the trend to huge trinkets.

The same are being ordered into fashion's front-ranks for fall and winter as the nation's pace-setting designers unbox their newest during a nine-day fashion marathon under way in Manhattan.

Consider giant-sized jewelry shown at the Accessorama, a highlight of the "New York Couture Business Council's" splash for the nation's fashion press corps in attendance nearly 300 strong.

Hagler's "Body Jewel"

Award-winning designer Stanley Hagler turned out a neck-to-waist "body jewel" of rhinestones and crystals, accented with a fringe of rhinestone tassels. Some crystal chandeliers have less sparkle.

Hagler, holder of 11 Swarovski Great Designs in Jewelry Awards, said the piece weighs about six pounds and costs around $100 a pound.

"The weight is distributed," he said in an interview. "There may be some slight discomfort but women put up with uncomfortable girdles for fashion's sake, so why not jewelry?"

For the few who can afford it and have muscular stamina to wear it, he's also offered a 16-pound rhinestone and aluminum dress—er, body jewel, the head-to-toe type. This is for Jan Hackett, Miss Maid of Metal, of Cleveland, Ohio. Price? $200 a pound!

The longest accessories: Strings of pearls. Some reach to shoetop and are meant to be looped and twisted to hem-length so you don't trip yourself to the Pearly Gates.

Other accessories to watch for:

- The gypsy look of gobs of chains. (If worried about them getting tangled in your foot locker, jewelry box, hammer some nails into the wallboard in the closet and hang the things on them.)
- Jeweled hosiery or large masses of curls concocted with the aid of a dygel fall.
- Jewelry and accessories inspired by knights. Sample: Ornate metal bras to wear over or under see-through clothes.
- Long scarves and stoles to wear any way you wish.

Feminine Fashion Industry Revives 1930 Era

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—The new hats for fall offer a study of contrasts—the small versus the big head.

The small hats, neat little head buggers, are part of the 1930's revival going on in the whole feminine fashion industry. They're caps, catlets, pillboxes, worn well down on the hair, topping simple and straight hairdos. Many of them have the classic coq or ostrich cluster at the side.

The large hats come in both felt and fur and go with the swinging look to all fashion, says the millinery industry. The swingers are for ready-to-wear's softer fabrics, a plethora of pleated, skirts, long rectangular scarves and boas. Many of these wide brims in felts are feminized versions of men's fedoras, copies of the Austria hat with one side of the wide brim turned up, and the girly versions of the cowboy's Stetson.

In furs, lynx, mink, sable and silver fox (another 30's revival) are the leaders and some of the largest come with matching fur scarves six to eight feet long. Let the scarves swing or wrap them several times around the throat.

The firm of Amrose, New York, does a lynx hood and scarf all in one, for a wrapped up look. Wear it with the new, floor length coats. Mr. John used fabulous Russian sable for one of his largest coverups.

And Adolfo designed a wide brimmed hat in mink, dyed into a black and white free form spotted pattern, with matching scarf initialed with a big "A"—another way to show off the label you've paid for.

Highlights of what's new in fall hats were shown recently at the Millinery Institute of America's semiannual fashion show for visiting editors.

The institute doesn't just show hats on a runway. It puts on a show produced as well as one on Broadway. This time, the industry did a takeoff on the Huntley-Brinkley television news show, with faces of David Blumenthal and Chet Hinkley, plus those of newsmakers flashing on a giant television screen to comment on that trends.

Newsmakers flashing on the screen included Senator Lrksome (Everett Dirksen's face appeared), Mayor Lindley (for Mayor Lindsay of New York), and a fictitious French hairdresser named Andre Fromage. Voices of offstage did perfect imitations of Huntley, Brinkley, et al.

Lindley announced, for instance, that hats this fall "will put the fun back in fun city." Irksome, noting the assorted hemline lengths in fall collections, remarked in stentorian tones that with the mink, the CANADIAN (SPL)—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Newton and son, Jon, of Jacksonville, Fla., have been visiting here in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Newton.

Mrs. Othello Miller and daughters, Colette, Mrs. Billy Mahan and daughter, and Mrs. Mary Helen Scarbrough and children returned home Monday evening from Marble Falls where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ruel B. Miller and their daughter, Linda.

They attended Linda's wedding there on the 20th when she was married to Jimmy Awalt of Kingsland. Colette registered guests. Ruel Miller is a brother of the late Othello Miller. Both he and his wife, the former Billie Aileen Parker, are former employees of The Hemphill County News.

Before returning home they visited Johnson City, the birthplace and the boyhood home of Lyndon B. Johnson, the Johnson family burial plot, and the L. B. J. Ranch; toured the Longhorn Caverns, visited the Capitol building in Austin and the Alamo and other places of interest in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Hand and baby of McLean were in town last week enroute to New Mexico on a vacation trip.

Kenneth R. Harrell, USN, has been promoted to Postal Clerk. His advancement was made during recent ceremonies aboard the USS Mount McKinley. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Harrell of Canadian. His promotion was based on time in service, rate, military appearance, performance of duties and his score on the Navy-wide test for promotion. The Mount McKinley is operating off the coast of Vietnam as flagship for the Amphibious Force Commander of the Seventh Fleet.

Betty Andrews graduated from the Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing in Amarillo June 19. The commencement exercises were held in the Polk Street Methodist Church. The school graduated 52 nurses this year, the largest class since the school was established in 1942. Betty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Andrews and a graduate of Canadian High School.

Rhonda and Dwight Mahan of Pampa are visiting here this week with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Mahan, and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clark of Dallas visited here recently with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Regan, and renewed old acquaintances. Earl was employed by the late Othello Miller on The News when it was established in 1936. His mother, Mrs. Myrtle Clark, a Canadian resident for many years, now resides in Amarillo.

R. B. Haynes, publisher of The Miami Chief, was a recent visitor in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hedgecock.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ratliff attended the Hancock family reunion in Miami last Sunday. Boilerman Second Class Wesley Godden has returned to San Diego after spending seven months in the Western Pacific, aboard the USS Duncan. He is the son of Mrs. Ruth Godden of Canadian. His crew participated in gunfire support actions against enemy coastal positions in South Vietnam and in plane guard duty in the Gulf of Tonkin and radar picket duty in the water's off Korea.

Answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q—Why can't I save money? I get an allowance and make money babysitting, but I can't seem to bank towards the day when I'll go to college.

A. First, find out what's biting into your dollar. For one month, write down all your expenses in a small notebook. Don't forget lipsticks, pizzas, and other little extras. After your diary of dollars is complete, start a monthly or weekly budget. First, itemize your total income. Then list your expenses, either fixed or flexible. Fixed expenses are necessities like school lunches. Flexible expenses, like movies and sodas, are the things that you have to cut down to save money. Set a limit on these luxuries, and you'll soon be toting a bundle to the bank!

Q—My mother says that I can start wearing make-up on two conditions! Not too heavy and, I have to wash every bit off at night. Can you give me some tips on removing make-up? A. Go to the head of the beauty class! At the end of the day remove your make-up with cleansing cream and tissues. Wipe away extra traces of cream with tissues soaked in skin freshener. Then work up a rich lather of soap and water. Using a circular motion, rub the suds into your skin. Begin at the collarbone and work your way up to your forehead. Take extra care of your chin and nose where pores produce more oil. Rinse several times with warm water, then splash with cool. Blot skin dry with a towel. Rubbing can stretch the skin. Another good washing when you get up in the morning, and you'll be set to powder your nose again.

Remember the adage, "A place for everything and everything in its place"? Well, a manufacturer finally come up with some designs to help organize a homemaker in her kitchen. A wall-hung unit provides a tilt-out desk that fits into a 25-inch area between kitchen door and window. A suburban housewife in the Chicago area placed the unit below her wall phone and added a blackboard above for family messages and shopping reminders. The unit is only three inches deep with a drop-down writing surface, space for phone directory and bins for bills or correspondence. Top unit is a tilt-out chest for storing tools, gloves, hair accessories or anything else that will fit. In walnut-patterned panels with antique gold or white accents.

NUTRITION A LA CARTE

Older people who have become less active need the same foods as other people but smaller portions. They'll get less calories that way. Studies show the meals of older people usually are low in some of the nutrients furnished by milk, citrus fruits, and other fruits and vegetables. If you have older adults at home, see that they get these foods.

The best diet for arthritis is simply a good, balanced diet of a wide variety of foods from the four food groups — the meat group, the milk group, fruits and vegetables, and enriched or whole grain breads and cereals. No food causes or cures arthritis. But good general nutrition and sufficient rest will help you to manage your arthritis more successfully.

Regularly I suggest that people would feel better if they stopped skipping breakfast. To save arguments in the family, have your breakfast "skippers" try eating breakfast for two or three weeks — and let them appraise for themselves whether they do or do not feel better in the morning and accomplish more at school or at work.

How do we get energy from the sun? Plants make carbohydrates by photosynthesis. Part of this process involves interaction between sunlight and the green plant pigment, chlorophyll. Energy from sunlight is trapped by chlorophyll and this energy sets in motion a series of intricate chemical reactions that result in the production of carbohydrates.

Is fat essential in your diet? The answer is "yes." Some fat is necessary for good nutrition. Some fats provide vitamins A, D, E, and K, and some are important as sources of essential fatty acids. Fat is a concentrated source of calories. The fats you use up for energy will save other nutrients for body building and repair.

The hamburger is said to have been popular in Germany before immigrants brought the idea to the United States. But Americans were the first to put it in a bun. This happened in 1904 at the St. Louis World's Fair, where the ice cream cone also was invented, and iced tea served.

Your best sources of protein include eggs, meat, milk, cheese, poultry, fish — plants and their seeds such as beans, peas, nuts and cereal grains. Mix them all together in varied meals and you'll get many other nutrients, too, such as carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals and you'll be well on your way toward good nutrition.

GA Sure Cure for Wandering Golfing Husband and

Golf has flooded the country bigger than booze and where the wife once had a problem with her better half's partaking of the spirits she finds it's golf.

With the advent of Alcoholics Anonymous, the brave little woman (some of them) got some relief.

So what better way to serve sweet motherhood than a Golfers Anonymous Association.

At a recent meeting one member told his story.

E. A. "Slice" Duffer said no one can help. "You just have to want to help yourself," he said. "It takes a heap of willpower, even then."

They say Mr. Duffer will be cured. For more than 40 years it had hold of him. He would go entire weekends without seeing his family. The children managed somehow and now they are grown and have moved away. "I never really got to know them," says Hook, and he looks the other way to hide the tears in his eyes.

"I'm too old to undo what has been done," he said, "but if you think some publicity might help the younger guys go right ahead. I plan to devote the rest of my life to working with the GA's."

He was like most young men who were taken with golf.

At first, he'd maybe just go out to the driving range on a pretty Saturday. "You know, I'd hit one bucket of balls and that was enough for me. But I couldn't quit. Soon I began hitting two buckets of balls and finally I'd not only do that but go putt for awhile."

"Well, I guess I was like all the guys who take up golf. We think we can control it. We see other guys who're never at home on weekends

You Don't Say ...

By RON CROSS

but we never think it can happen to us."

Mr. Duffer is 63. When he was 40 he had built up a promising business but his handicap was 19. Within seven years he'd lowered his handicap to six—but he had lost his business.

"Of course, none of that really mattered," he says. "I was determined to be a scratch player. Nothing could stop me. My dear wife, bless her heart, what she went through. I can see it now. How well I remember her holding up dinner until well after dark while I was out with the fellows. I know now how desperate she was I never will forget that afternoon she sent the children out to the course to find me."

Mr. Duffer choked up again.

Those who have known him well say Slice never missed a trick. He would keep his golf balls hidden in a chandelier in the dining room and would tie his putter to a string and hang it out the window. In time, he began slipping out to the course on Thursday afternoons. Then on Tuesdays, sometimes. It got to be every day. And the weather didn't prevent him going. He bought a rain suit and a windbreaker and a handwarmer for each hand. Some days he would even get up and play golf before breakfast. And it got to the point he'd even go play by himself.

"I had heard of the GA's," he said. "But I never really thought I needed them. Oh, I did know it, but I just wouldn't admit it to myself."

Now Slice Duffer is on the way back.

"Anytime I feel this urge to play golf I just phone one of the other GA's and he comes over and has a drink with me."

Allen Gone, Not Phils

Richie Allen may be gone but his teachings live on among the Philadelphia Phillies.

Johnny Briggs and Larry Hise started for Philadelphia Wednesday night as the Phils beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 14-4, for their ninth consecutive victory. Briggs drove in three runs and scored four runs as the Phils strobed the streak begun the night after Allen jumped the team in New York.

And Hise gives most of the credit for his recent success to Allen. "He taught me to get the head of the bat out first and swing down," said the young outfielder.

Elsewhere, Chicago downed Montreal, 4-2. Houston ripped Los Angeles, 8-2. Atlanta beat Cincinnati, 9-4. New York outlasted St. Louis, 6-4, in 14 innings and San Francisco defeated San Diego, 6-3.

Reliever Al Razzo drove in three runs for the Phils with a two-run single and a squeeze bunt. Briggs homered in the third and drove in two more runs with a single in the five-run eighth. Hise had two singles and a triple, scoring after each hit.

Rookie Jim Qualls had two doubles and a triple, drove in two runs and scored another to lead the Cubs over the Expos. With the score 1-1 in the fourth, Qualls tripled after Willie Smith singled and Randy Humdiey walked. He scored Chicago's fourth run on Don Kessinger's sacrifice fly.

Bill Hands scattered nine hits in registering his ninth victory against six losses.

Orlando Cepeda smashed a three-run double in the second inning and Claude Raymond, who drove in two runs, pitched 6.2-3 strong innings of relief as the Braves downed the Reds for the third straight time to move into first place in the Western Division.

Reds' pitchers set a modern National League record by hitting five batters with pitches, all within the first three innings.

Curt Blefary had a solo homer and Doug Rader cracked a two-run double to lead the Astros over the Dodgers and snap a four-game losing streak. Rader hit the first of his three doubles in the second and scored from third on a groundout. Blefary homered leading off the fifth and Rader doubled home two more runs in the ninth, dropping the Dodgers out of first place in the West.

Ken Boswell singled in the tie-breaking run with two out in the top of the 14th inning as the Mets beat the Cardinals. Wayne Garrett then walked with the bases filled to force in another run, his fourth RBI of the night.

Jim Hart hit his first homer of the season to give Jug Muehleisen and the Giants their triumph over the Padres. Hart, who had 23 homers last season, followed Willie McCovey's walk in the fourth inning with his homer, giving Muehleisen his 10th victory of the season.

Reggie's Magic Number is 29

MEL STOTTEMYRE ... wins 11th

By United Press International

All of a sudden Reggie Jackson has a realistic magic number — one which would mean fame and fortune unprecedented in baseball history for a player of his age.

The number is 29, the number of home runs he must hit in the Oakland Athletics' remaining 90 games to surpass Roger Maris' record of 61 homers in 162 games in 1961 and Babe Ruth's still partly recognized mark of 60 homers in a 154-game schedule in 1927.

Jackson moved into a strong position for a run at both records Wednesday night when he hit three homers to raise his season total to 33 in the Athletics' 5-0 victory over the Seattle Pilots. The three homers put Jackson 10 games ahead of Maris' 1961 pace and 23 ahead of Ruth's 1927 pace.

At 23, Jackson is thus in a position to wipe both records off the books and eliminate the confusion which resulted among baseball statisticians when Maris hit his 61 homers in 1961.

Traditionalists pointed out that Maris did not reach 60 until after his 154th game and, therefore, have perpetuated Ruth's "record."

Has Early Jump

Jackson now has such a big early jump on the paces of his two predecessors that he can realistically reach 60 before his 154th game and also top 61. In any event, it is significant that Ruth didn't set his 60 until he was 33 years old and Maris was 27 when he hit his 61.

Jackson, who never before hit three homers in one game, connected in the first, sixth and eighth innings. Pitcher John Odom also homered for the Athletics, raising his record to 11-3 and recording his third shutout. Odom has pitched 19 consecutive shutout innings.

The Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox, 7-0, the Minnesota Twins downed the Chicago White Sox, 4-2, the Kansas City Royals edged the California Angels, 1-0, the Washington Senators beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-1, and the New York Yankees topped the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2.

Tom Tresh drove in three runs with his third homer in two games and his seventh straight hit and Don Wert also homered — as Denny McLain raised his record to 12-5 for the Tigers. Tresh, who went 4-for-4 in the previous game, is now hitting .340 since being acquired from the Yankees.

Relief pitcher Ron Perranoski chalked up his 14th save and Harmon Killebrew hit his 19th homer for the Twins in a game halted by rain after 8 1/2 innings. Dave Boswell received credit for his 10th victory against eight losses while Tommie John was the loser.

Rookie Bill Butler pitched a four-hitter for his fourth victory and Bob Oliver drove in the only run of the Kansas City-California game with an infield out in the first inning. Butler, 22, struck out six and walked two in raising his record to 4-3.

Matson, his wife and youngster is in Pampa visiting his parents and Mrs. Matson's parents. Matson will leave Friday for Dayton, Ohio where he will appear in an exhibition at the Women's National AAU meet.

According to United Press International Matson will probably give up track until next season to concentrate on his job.

"It's tough going to school, studying at night and also trying to train," Matson said. "It would have been tougher in a large city like New York,

Many Names Miss Buick

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI) — Many of golf's top stars traded a chance for prize money for a chance for prestige this week, passing up the $125,000 Buick Open, beginning today at Warwick Hills Country Club to practice for the British Open.

Only eight of pro golf's top 25 money winners were among the 144 players who began the chase for top money of $25,000, and there was a good chance the tourney on the 7,001-yard links would produce the season's 10th first-time winner.

Ashe Has Try At Wimbledon Tennis Title

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Two weeks ago Arthur Ashe said he thought he could win the Wimbledon tennis title. Today he has a chance to make his prophecy come true when he takes on defending champion Rod Laver for a place in Saturday's final.

As he, the bespectacled U.S. Open and amateur champion from Gum Spring, Va., stands between Australia and the title, if he fails, it will go "Down Under" for the sixth successive time since 1963, when Chuck McKinley defeated Fred Stolle, because the other semifinal pits Tony Roche, last year's runner-up against John Newcombe, the 1967 champion.

Roche, the second seed, will have his work cut out against his doubles partner, Newcombe, who beat him in the Italian final at the start of the European circuit.

Rebels Host Berger Saturday

The Pampa Rebels will seek their fourth straight victory and fifth of the season Saturday night when they host Berger in a district legion contest.

The Rebels, shooting for the 500 mark, and Hubers will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Optimist Club Park.

Pampa then closes out regular season play Sunday at Amarillo in a 4:30 p.m. contest.

Mahan, Brown Battling for Rodeo Title

DENVER (UPI) — The all-around cowboy rodeo championship trophy has wound up in Oregon for the past three years. It appears headed for the same state again this year, but no one is guessing just which city.

Larry Mahan of Brooks, Ore., who has captured the title three straight years, holds the lead again this year with $22,543, but Doug Brown—a fellow Oregonian from Silverton—is close behind with $21,794.

The all-around championship title is decided on money earned in two or more events.

The nearest competitor to Mahan and Brown is Bobby Berger, 24, a 130-pound cowboy from Halstead, Kan., who has picked up $16,318 in prize money for the year.

The 5-6 Berger, who travels the nationwide rodeo circuit in a pickup camper, won $792 in bull riding at Reno, Nev., last week 69 1/2 slip into third place in the all-around standings ahead of Dean Oliver, of Boise, Idaho, and Ronny Sewalt of Chico, Tex.

Berger, state all-around cowboy in Kansas high school rodeo competition in 1962 and 1963, leads the saddle bronc riding competition with $10,588 in prize money, narrowly ahead of Mahan with $10,306 in that event.

Other event leaders include: Gary Tucker, Carlsbad, N.M., bareback bronc riding, $12,484; Brown, bull riding, $14,947; Oliver, calf roping, $15,261; Roy Duvall, Boynton, Okla., steer wrestling, $17,290, and Tiny Bradford, Tucson, Ariz., team roping $5,145.

The standings: All-around championship — 1. Mahan, 2. Brown, 3. Berger, 4. Oliver $16,224. 5. Sewall $15,765. Saddle broncs — 1. Berger, 2. Mahan, 3. Bill Smith, Cody, Wyo., $9,736.

Bareback broncs — 1. Tucker, 2. Jim Ivory, Pampa, Tex., $9,083. 3. Royce Smith, Iona, Idaho, $8,792. 4. Clyde Vanvoras, Burk Burnett, Tex., $8,645.

Bull riding — 1. Brown, 2. David Glover, Clarksville, Tex.,

$8,850. 3. Freddie Greer, Dallas, $7,665.

Profitable School Upsets Educational Establishment

It would appear that those in control of the "educational" establishment are frightened terribly by the idea of anyone except the politicians making money out of the schools. We reached that conclusion after reading in the June 23 National Observer, weekly Down-Jones newspaper, about Marjorie Webster Junior College in Washington, D.C. Marjorie Webster Junior College is a profit-making institution. Last year the owners, all members of the Webster Family, turned in a gross profit of $300,000 and took in $115,000 in salaries. It also pays taxes—more than a million dollars in the past seven years. It neither seeks nor obtains financial assistance from governments, philanthropies or alumnae. Any attempt to donate money is rejected.

It charges fairly stiff fees—this year $2,900 for tuition, room and board—but "about $300 to $400 less than comparably plush private junior colleges in the East," according to the Observer. Receipts from the fees, plus earnings on investments of profits, finance the school.

There seems to be nothing wrong with the college except that its owners make a profit by providing what people want. Therefore, the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Inc., one of the six regional agencies accrediting schools, has refused even to consider the school for accreditation.

The Webster family has filed suit in federal court charging Middle States with restraint of trade under the Sherman Antitrust Act and denial of a constitutional right to a hearing. Sherwood Webster, a vice president of the school, said the college started its lawsuit because it was becoming increasingly difficult for Marjorie Webster's graduates to transfer to four-year institutions.

"Our girls were being accepted without question at many colleges and were being absolutely blackballed at others because we lacked regional accreditation," Webster was quoted as saying. "I could transfer a girl to the University of Pennsylvania, but I couldn't go to Penn State. I could transfer a girl to Columbia University, but I couldn't get the first girl into Syracuse University."

Regarding the school being a profit maker, Webster says it is an example of how free enterprise can provide excellent education fully competitive with nonprofit institutions. "Free enterprise has methods of running institutions economically which the higher education scene has been avoiding all these years," he asserted. He added that nonprofit institutions receive government funds, alumni donations and other philanthropy and still cry for more money. "They're noted for their inefficiency and their lack of financial reports. Most colleges in this country have never even been audited. Where the money goes nobody knows. All you get is the alumni donation sheet, which shows that so much came in and it wasn't enough."

Marjorie Webster has some support among the academic community, including Frank G. Dickey, executive director of the National Commission on Accrediting, and Christopher Jencks, executive director of Harvard University's Center for Education Policy Research. Dr. John H. Fischer, president of Teachers College at Columbia University, said: "The mere fact that the institution is privately owned and that a profit is realized on its operations should not, in my view, disqualify it if those operations meet the educational standards by which nonprofit institutions are judged and if in addition its corporate business affairs meet relevant standards of legality and ethics."

But the accrediting agency rejects these ideas only because the Webster family is making a profit. One of the agency's witnesses, Dr. John Stoops, dean of the school of education at Lehigh University, said: "Desire for pecuniary gain has no place in the operation of an academic community." Our answer to that statement would be to ask if Dr. Stoops is working for "pecuniary gain" or if he is working for nothing.

It is unfortunate that an institution that is serving its customers in a satisfactory manner, should be subjected to the requirement that it receive accreditation from its competitors. The case smacks of a "closed shop" union keeping out those who do not meet the union's requirements. But, the fact is that a great deal of emphasis is placed on whether a school is "acceptable" with the members of the "union."

We can but hope that Marjorie Webster Junior College wins the current court action and thus demonstrates that private, voluntarily supported schools can give the public adequate, even superior training if artificial barriers are removed.

Protection From Ourselves

Who wants to be pushed around and told what he must do? There is hardly an individual from tots to students to adult citizens who will not bristle at the thought.

But a very popular camouflage is being painted over the pushing around effort. So-called experts white-wash such phrases and letter over them such alluring terms as "protection" or "human rights."

Expected to be completed before fall 1970 is a report on a "comprehensive" study to determine how much protection is the consumer's "right," a task of the National Commission on Product Safety.

But according to a recent Southern States Industrial Council Bulletin, initial hearings already have exposed the main issue: whether manufacturers will continue to have exclusive power over the standards that apply to a vast variety of products.

As we rush headlong into added regulations for daily living or against it?—who can help but agree with General Counsel Tyre Taylor's concluding question about the study? He asks:

"Is it desirable, practicable or even possible to require that every product must be subjected to government premarketing clearance for safety, as medicines have been since 1938?"

Instead of demanding so much imposed "protection" against an individual's own fallible nature, thus weakening his capacity for decision-making, we would hope for a trend to trust the people's ability to decide their own acts (and purchases) and an encouragement of opportunities to learn wisdom from doing so.

SOME LIKE IT HOT

A minister who was very fond of pure, hot horse-radish always kept a bottle of it on his dining room table. He offered some to a guest, who took a big bite.

When the guest finally was able to speak, he said, reproachfully:

Mr. Webb—I've heard many preach hellfire, but you are the first one I've met who passed out samples of it.

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

One of America's all-time great cartoonists, Mr. Al Capp of L'il Abner fame, recently gave a tremendous graduation address at Franklin Pierce College in Rindge, N.H. Following are the highlights of Mr. Capp's inspiring speech.

I live in Cambridge, Mass., a stone's throw from Harvard—but if you duck you aren't hurt much—and I know you'll believe me when I tell you I'd rather be speaking here today. It's safer, and it's at your sort of college that I can use the commencement speaker's traditional phrase.

I can say you're the hope of the future without bursting out laughing, as I would if I said it at a Harvard commencement—assuming, of course, that there will be a commencement there this year. They haven't heard from the Afros or the SDS yet.

Three of four of the Afros may decide that commencements are a CIA plot, and then, of course, the entire faculty, administration and student body of Harvard, with courage that has made them a legend, will replace its commencement by some sort of ceremony more acceptable—something they know the boys will approve of—say, a book-burning, they loved that at Columbia, or a dean-killing they never quite accomplished that at University Hall. Dean Ford let them down by having recuperative powers they didn't count on.

But the fact that you can have a commencement here without getting down on your knees to a student wrecking crew, or without calling up the riot squad, is mainly luck. You enjoy advantages Harvard doesn't.

For one thing, you have the advantage of not being so revered for the wisdom and courage of past generations of administrators that you have noticed the moral flabbiness and intellectual flatulence of the majority of your present generation of administrators and faculty. You show me any institution with such a glorious past that anyone presently employed by it is regarded as retroactively infallible, and I'll show you a collection of sanctimonious fat-heads.

We all watched Harvard for the last few years educate its young in the rewards of criminality. We had watched Harvard become an ivy-covered Fagin. We saw it begin a couple of years ago when Secretary of Defense McNamara was invited to speak at Harvard. Now, it is true that McNamara was a member of a despised minority group, the President's Cabinet, but under the law he had the same rights as Mark Rudd. Harvard's Students for a Democratic Society howled obscenities at McNamara until he could not be heard.

He attempted to leave the campus. The SDS stopped his car, milled around it, tried to tip it over. McNamara left the car. The SDS began to club him on the head with the poles on which their peace posters were nailed. If it hadn't been for the arrival of the Cambridge police, who formed a protective cordon around McNamara and escorted him through a series of interconnecting cellars of university buildings to safety, he might have been killed.

The next morning Dean Monroe was asked if he would punish the SDS. And he said—and if you want to know where the malignancy started that has made a basket case of Harvard, it started with this—Dean Monroe said that he saw no reason to punish students for what was purely a political activity.

Now, if depriving a man of his freedom to speak, if depriving him of his freedom to move, if damn nearly depriving him of his life—if that's political activity, then rape is a social event and sticking up a gas station is a financial transaction.

Let me repeat, I certainly appreciate that the Lovett Library is doing a very fine job. It is probably true that if the community responds, the library can in turn provide a wider range of series to a broader segment of the population.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT
Wide Age Variation
In Menstruation Start
Q — My daughter, 15, has not begun to menstruate. Is this abnormal? Should anything be done?
A — There is a wide variation in the age at which girls start to menstruate. Many do not start until they are 16. This in no way affects their ability to have children later. If your daughter has not started to menstruate by the time she is 17, she should be examined for evidence of glandular deficiency.

Q — My daughter, 15, has had severe cramps and nausea with her periods for the last three years. The doctor gave her some pills to take but these have not helped. What do you advise?
A — Menstrual discomfort or dysmenorrhea is very common. In most cases aspirin is helpful. Edrisal, a prescription drug, is a little stronger and may be needed in some cases. Girls who are athletically inclined and those who have been taught to look upon menstruation as a normal physiological process rather than a "curse" seem to have less of this sort of trouble than the others. In any case, the discomfort will gradually decrease over the years.

Q — Our son, 17, recently had a partial collapse of his left lung while playing football. After recovery, the doctor said he could play football again. A few months later, the collapse recurred. The doctor said it was due to overwork and that the next time it would be necessary to operate. Our son has chest pains whenever he overexerts. Shouldn't he be restricted in his work and play?
A — In some persons the walls of the small air sacs near the outer surface of the lungs are weak and a fit of coughing, sneezing or straining may cause a blowout, accompanied by a partial collapse of the lung. The victim should avoid the strains that precipitate a collapse but, if he has three spontaneous attacks, an operation to remove the weak spot is advisable.

Q — What is a greenstick fracture? What treatment is best?
A — This is an incomplete break that is split along only one side of a long bone—like trying to break a sapling over your knee. It is seen only in children. The only treatment required is rest—no weight bearing if a leg and a sling if an arm is involved—for four or five weeks.

By ROBERT ALLEN and JOHN GOLDSMITH

Safeguard Boosted
By 'First Strike' SS-9
WASHINGTON — While it may have caused "semantic difficulty" for Sen. H. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird's sobering appraisal of Russia's SS-9 nuclear missile comes through loud and clear to some members of the House and Senate.

As a result, the odds are improving for congressional approval of President Nixon's Safeguard anti-ballistic-missile system. Even in the Senate, where the issue is still in doubt, ABM supporters think their prospects are brighter.

Laird testified in closed-door session for House and Senate Foreign relations committees last week. After the Senate session, Chairman Fulbright complained of the semantic problem which, he said, stems from Laird's earlier assertion that the Russians are "going for the first strike capability."

Fulbright said he originally understood that to mean that the Russians were building a force which could mount an attack on the United States without taking unacceptable damage from a retaliatory blow. Now, said Fulbright, Laird's first strike thesis is keyed entirely to the SS-9.

Fulbright and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said Laird's present position adds up to a retreat. They said it further diminishes the meager justification for the President's ABM deployment plan.

Others in Congress have reached a different conclusion, however, from this SS-9 profile, as presented by Laird and Undersecretary David Packard behind closed doors.

The rocket: The SS-9 is a liquid-fueled intercontinental missile, like the U. S. Titan ICBM. Firing requires extensive preparations and takes time. The Defense Department spokesmen are saying that, while the SS-9 is fired from a protective silo, it would be slow to respond as a retaliatory, second-strike weapon.

Laird says its use is "possible" in a second strike.
The range: The SS-9 has a range of slightly over 5,000 miles. That means it could reach the missile bases along the northern tier of the United States, but it could not reach some of the nation's major industrial centers.

The warheads: In recent multiple-warhead tests, the powerful SS-9 has flown with only three warheads. Each of the warheads, under actual wartime conditions, could pack a nuclear punch of up to 25 megatons—more than 1,000 times the power of the Hiroshima weapon.

Packard says such superpower warheads are inefficient—more damage could result from a larger number of smaller warheads—unless the SS-9s were to be aimed at "hardened" fortified targets, such as the U. S. Minuteman silos.

— The "footprint": As President Nixon disclosed in his June 19th news conference, the SS-9 multiple warhead tests showed a "footprint" on impact which corresponds closely with the pattern in which Minuteman silos are dispersed at U. S. strategic missile bases.

Laird says that means each SS-9 missile could knock out three Minuteman silos, whether the missiles are independently targeted like ours, or not.

— The accuracy: Pentagon experts have, in the past, sometimes downgraded the accuracy of Soviet missiles. That is not true, now, of the SS-9. Packard says we expect to achieve the accuracies necessary for an SS-9 to destroy missile silos—and we assume the Russians can do so too.

In their testimony on the SS-9, Laird and Packard have been talking about history too. They report that President Johnson's experts believed, through 1967, that the Russians would stop deploying the SS-9, as we had stopped deploying the Titan.

That did not happen. In fact as Laird told one congressional group, "We just in December learned that they started deployment of more of these SS-9 missiles with a warhead of up to 25 megatons."

After Laird and CIA Director Richard Helms met with his committee last week, Fulbright confirmed that point. Fulbright said the intelligence showed there was a very slight change in the numbers of the SS-9 that were being made. It was somewhat greater, but there didn't seem to be anything unusual about it.

Packard has testified that, at present rates, the Russians can have as many as 400 of the SS-9s in the mid-70s.

Laird and Packard may not have shown, to the semantic satisfaction of Fulbright, Gore & Co., that the Russians are "going for a first strike capability." Many lawmakers are persuaded, however, that the Russians are investing large sums in a missile which has little value except for a "first strike," a weapon, targeted to take out Minuteman silos before the U. S. missiles have been fired.

"You don't fire nuclear missiles at empty silos," says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the Senate expert on nuclear weapons who is leading the fight for Safeguard.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Sweep Post Office

The reporter from the Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch thought he saw what he saw the other day but, just to be sure, he photographed it.

There are two mailboxes in front of the Dispatch Building, 34 S. 3rd St. One box is designated for "Out-of-Town" mail; the other is plainly marked for in-town mail.

Sure enough, day after day, the postman comes along and empties the contents of both boxes—into the same bag.

The Post Office, of all departments of government, is most susceptible to mismanagement.

For generations, postmasterships have been passed out as rewards to party faithful with no consideration for administrative qualifications.

The postmaster general has, in fact, been selected from among party wheel horses further to insure political patronage.

Any possibility of progress in modernizing, streamlining, improving postal service has been further inhibited by the entrenched Civil Service System, which frequently freezes the least-efficient in their jobs.

Since 1838, the Post Office has operated in the black only 17 years.

administrator, Winton Blount. "Red" Blount would like nothing better than to abolish his own job. He is pleading with Congress to approve creation of a government-run corporation to handle the mail, similar to the manner in which AT&T provides telephone service.

Under efficient private management the cost of a coast-to-coast phone call has been reduced in recent years from $16.50 to $1. Postal rates have gone steadily up.

Postal workers represent a mammoth bloc of 750,000 voters, at least twice that many votes. Congressmen would be disinclined to oppose those workers and their union except that the mail service has so deteriorated in recent years that members of Congress may have more to lose from their irate constituents if they reject reorganization.

Typical of the opponents to the idea, however, is Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, who will not support reorganization unless all postal workers are assured they will not lose their jobs.

It will not make a used car new to repaint it. A minor tune-up won't help. This has to be a major overhaul.

A government corporation would be expected to draw upon the experience and training of the most present employees of the Post Office, but must not be precommitted to perpetuate inefficient personnel or discredited practices.

'Abortion Factories' Begin To Spring Up In Gallant England

By TOM CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) — "If an American comes in with a crocodile handbag and matching shoes, I charge 200 guineas, which works out at $480 American," a London consultant who specializes in abortions said, explaining how he arrives at his fee.

Not all the American women who come here to have their pregnancies terminated are expensively dressed. Some have the operation performed free under Britain's National Health Service, for abortions have been perfectly legal in this country since April, 1968, when a law to this effect was passed by Parliament. The average fee at a private clinic, however, is $190.

Americans and other foreigners who come here to take advantage of Britain's liberalized abortion law constitute only 5 per cent of the 22,213 women who had this operation performed during the first year of the Abortion Act. However, the unexpected influx from abroad has put an additional burden on Britain's medical resources, already strained.

The truth is that no one dreamed there would be such a rush-office business when abortion became legal. Although 60 per cent of abortions are now performed free under Britain's socialized medical set-up, many state hospitals have had to ration the beds kept for this purpose, as their facilities are needed for other cases.

The result has been a mushroom growth of private clinics, particularly in London, which are little more than "abortion factories." To its former reputation as the swinging city, London has now added the unenviable title of abortion capital of the world.

The government admits that it is worried over the lack of supervision of these private clinics, and already there have been tragic consequences. In May, Mrs. Jo Ann Marie Michael, age 18, of Bay Village, Ohio, died in a London abortion clinic, which now faces possible charges of criminal negligence.

Mrs. Michael, who was separated from her husband, flew here from New York, paid $350 in travelers' checks to have the operation performed on the grounds that having the child might endanger her mental health. But at the inquest on her death the coroner maintained that prior to the operation Mrs. Michael had not been properly certified for abortion or by two doctors, as is required by law.

Although British law requires the opinion of two doctors before a pregnancy can be legally terminated, the doctors are given the utmost latitude in ordering the operation. For example, the fact that the arrival of a baby might disturb another child or children of the same family is "considered grounds for abortion under the present law. No other country in Western Europe takes such a lenient attitude.

Although the number of therapeutic abortions jumped from 7,610 in 1967 to over 32,000 in the year ending in April, 1968, no one knows how many operations are performed in the backstreets. An intelligent guess is that there is one criminal abortion performed for every legal one.

A surprising finding is that while abortion is easy to obtain in some British cities, notably London, it is almost impossible to obtain in others. The result is that women from Birmingham, Glasgow and Leeds, all "hardluck" centers, trek to London, Newcastle and Aberdeen, known as "easy marks." This has led to overcrowding at the 20 private clinics in London which specialize in abortion. At the nursing home where the 18-year-old Ohio girl died, for example, 600 abortions were performed during the first three months of this year.

At another busy London nursing home, the Langham Street Clinic, the 87 beds are used on an average by 74 patients a day. Some women stay overnight after the operation, but others leave after as little as two hours in the recuperating room. "If that's the case," says a doctor, "we insist that they leave by taxi or other private means of transportation. Otherwise they would be out in the street thumbing a ride back to Birmingham."

This same doctor limits himself to 12 operations a day ("Over 15 and you're taking a risk"), but one of his colleagues works at two London Clinics, and has performed as many as 41 abortions in a single day, working from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Each operation takes from eight to 10 minutes, for which he charges from $140 to $360, depending upon ability to pay.

With the present operation of Britain's Abortion Act in a chaotic state, medical opposition to it is hardening. Many doctors look upon abortion with disfavor, as a violation of their oath to preserve life.

In a recent survey, nearly two-thirds of the 5,000 doctors questioned said they would like to see the Abortion Act either modified or repealed. Only 38 per cent of the doctors are in favor of the law as it now stands. Main opposition is to the so-called "social clause" in the law which permits abortion on environmental grounds.

Third Court Of Appeals Rules Against TLCB

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas Liquor Control Board cannot prevent managers of private "locker" clubs from buying liquor for club members, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled today.

The TLCB had contended that members of locker clubs must buy their own liquor and take it to the club themselves. The board tried to suspend permits of two Dallas area country clubs where the members had authorized the club managers to buy liquor for them.

The appeals court said the TLCB had no legal authority for such a policy. The court upheld Dist. Judge James R. Meyers of Austin, who had ordered the TLCB to stop trying to implement the policy.

"Member of a club operating under the locker system may authorize an agent to buy and transport liquor from a place where its purchase is legal to his locker in the club," Associate Justice Robert G. Hughes said in the court's unanimous opinion.

Locker clubs are the kind of private clubs that operate in dry areas of Texas. Liquor is purchased in wet areas and stored in lockers at the club for the use of members.

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI)—A young Marine who disarmed a police officer was found shot to death today, a victim of a self-inflicted wound from the officer's gun.

Officer C. Q. Ellings said his gun was taken from him when he stopped to help a man who appeared to be having car trouble. Billings said the man suddenly grabbed his .38-caliber pistol and fled.

The body of Dean Phillips, a Marine on leave, was found in the back seat of the car about 8:30 a.m. today.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It is a supreme irony that the power of advertising, which for so long generated phony glamor around cigarette-smoking, now is making it seem a truly unpleasant habit.

For who can deny that, in the past year or so, the anti-smoking commercials on television—sponsored by Heart and Cancer associations, and other organizations—have been mightily effective in changing the mood of the market?

All of the campaign stems basically from the report of the U.S. surgeon general's office. But regardless of the specific facts concerning dangers from cigarette smoking, it was really up to the ingenuity of American advertising to make this message of latent harm effective.

And no one can say that American advertising is lacking—even when it goes out against a product rather than for one.

I think I like best the anti-cigarette commercial that has a Western setting, and some mean-looking apparent gunmen heading for a showdown. What happens, of course, is that everyone starts coughing from the cigarette-smoking. It is funny and sharply done, but the message is crystal clear that the real killers are cigarettes.

Just about as effective in its advertising style is the commercial that uses the song "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" as a background, and, while showing scenes that parody glamor-cigarette ads, recites facts about smoking that put a chill through you.

One of the wisest types of anti-cigarette commercials has been the kind that uses athletes speaking up against smoking. These ads have usually been simple and direct, without much of the sophistication of the more clever commercials—but for that reason, they seem a perfect way to address youngsters listening to their sports heroes.

For the real aim of most of the anti-cigarette commercials has been to scare off youngsters not yet taken up with the habit. If some hooked smokers also decided to quit, that's all right with the advertisers also, but realistically this is a secondary aim.

It kind of makes you feel warm all over about American advertising.

Introducing ENCORE.

What began as an experiment in the art of brewing has ended in the discovery of a beer with a flavor never before achieved.

Our brewmaster created it as his own private-recipe beer. And since he never intended that it be sold to the public, he added a few refinements—like slow-lager ageing. A time-consuming, rather costly way to make beer.

Only recently have we been able to make enough to offer it for sale.

Today, you'll find ENCORE in certain fine restaurants, good bars, and in leading take-home stores. Discover it soon, and see what sets ENCORE apart from all other beers.

What is "Quality"?

Quality is the loving accumulation of little things, in which each part is as important as the whole. It is the unique combination of care, concern, and craftsmanship. It is a quiet, invisible something that need not call attention to itself—that exists even when it is ignored by those who know no better. Quality is the attitude that nothing is too unimportant to be good.

By PHIL NEWSOM

LPI Foreign News Analyst

Students throwing rocks and police battling back with clubs and tear gas are bringing to the streets of Seoul and other large South Korean cities scenes reminiscent of 1960.

More than 180 persons died in those street battles which ended with the ouster of South Korea's first president, Dr. Syngman Rhee.

Today's students are battling to prevent a third term for President Park Chung Hee, the austere and stern-faced former general, who headed the military junta that seized power in 1961 from the weak successor government to Rhee.

The 1960 protests were against a government which had grown old, autocratic and corrupt.

The Park regime has given South Korea eight years of tranquility and unprecedented if uneven prosperity. Opponents of the third term—currently banned by the Korean Constitution which Park himself drew up—claim it would be the end of Korean democracy and open the way to a totalitarian state.

Park himself has remained apart from the fray but is said to wish to continue in office.

A constitutional amendment to permit a third term would require either a two-thirds vote in the national assembly or a majority in a public referendum.

An early public opinion poll taken by the president's Democratic Republican party is said to have shown 60 per cent of the voters opposed to the amendment. A later poll is said to have shown the figure reduced to 51 per cent in the face of a growing threat from the Communist North.

Park's supporters claim it since has declined still further, and cite American history to back their contention that now more than ever the country needs a strong leader.

They point to the example of President Franklin D. Roosevelt who was elected to unprecedented third and fourth terms to lead the United States through World War II.

Whatever the outcome of the controversy, even Park's opponents admit the tangible results of his government's energetic leadership.

Man's Age-Old Yearning to Set Foot On The Moon is About to be Realized

By EDWARD K. DELONG

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (UPI)—Man's age-old yearning to set foot on the moon seems about to be realized.

If all goes as planned, Apollo 11 commander Neil A. Armstrong will place the first human footprint on the moon's surface at precisely 2:19 a.m. (EDT), Monday, July 21.

Never before will man have taken such a giant step. For the first time he will have journeyed to another world—an accomplishment that only a few years ago seemed a crazy, impossible dream.

How has it been done? Why has it been done?

The moon, shimmering so invitingly in the night sky, has drawn man like a golden magnet since the dawn of his life on earth. Through the aeons men have worshipped the moon through such deities as the Greek goddess Artemis. They have written poems and songs with the moon as their theme.

And, since at least the second century A.D., men have sprinkled their literature with stories of travel to the moon.

It was fine stuff for fictions and fables—and dreaming.

Then President John F. Kennedy—with a single sentence spoke May 25, 1961—challenged this nation to turn the dream into reality.

"I believe," he said in a special message to Congress, "this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to earth."

"No single space project in this period will be more impressive to mankind, or more important for the long-range exploration of space; and none will be so difficult or expensive to accomplish."

Just 62 words. Yet they stirred the Congress, won speedy acceptance of a moon-landing as a national goal that would cost $20 billion or more, and set in motion the greatest mobilization of a nation's effort ever seen outside wartime.

Kennedy was not the first man to seriously propose a moon landing.

Rocket genius Dr. Werner von Braun, father of the Saturn launcher that will speed Apollo 11 toward the moon, had seriously considered manned lunar landings since 1952.

On Jan. 2, 1959, the original Select House Space Committee issued a report quoting 200 experts saying such a goal could be reached by 1968—if the nation was willing to pay the price.

In July of 1960 the House Space Committee—controlled by Democrats—demanded that the Republican administration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower commit the nation to placing a man on the moon by 1970.

National space plans at that time included unmanned exploration of the moon and a series of one-man Mercury flights in earth orbit to see if man could survive in space.

The fledgling space agency had on its drawing boards a plan, code-named "Apollo," to fly a three-man spaceship in earth orbit for up to 14 days and ultimately to hurl it nonstop around the moon. But it was just, in one congressman's words, a "designer's dream."

Eisenhower's advisers such as Vannevar Bush (who once told a congressional committee rockets could not span the ocean), James Killian (who felt instruments could do more than man in space), and Lee Dubridge (now President Nixon's chief science adviser, and more committed now than then to man-in-space projects) advised the President to adopt a go-slow policy.

He did, but he kept the program alive. In September of 1960 "Apollo" was upgraded to full study status, and industry was asked to propose ways it could be carried out.

That was the space program Kennedy adopted when he took the presidency.

Man had yet to fly in space, but on April 12, 1961, Russia announced it had flown a man, cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, once around the globe. He was the first man in space and the Soviets had chalked up another first.

America's Alan B. Shepard made his suborbital Mercury flight 23 days later, on May 5, but in the interim—on April 17, just five days after Gagarin's flight—the Cuban Bay of Pigs invasion started and ended in disastrous failure.

The United States needed something that could capture the imagination of the world and present the nation in a good light.

Kennedy turned to space and technology, where Russia had grabbed so many propaganda points. He knew the existing Russian arsenal of rockets was far more powerful than anything the United States possessed. So he asked his advisers to find a space goal where the two nations would have to start as equals, and where American technology could likely win.

The experts suggested a moon landing. All the necessary equipment existed or had been designed, they said. But it would take rockets more powerful than either nation possessed.

Famous Speech

Kennedy liked the idea. Three weeks later he started his famous May 25 speech with the words: "Now is the time... for this nation to take a clearly leading role in space achievement, which in many ways holds the key to our future on earth."

Opponents of the moon goal from that day have criticized it bitterly as an overly expensive "crash program." They have said it takes money away from more worthy causes here on earth, that it is a spectacular more valuable for political and propaganda purposes than for science.

Those who favor the program disagree with the critics. They point to the rapid technological advance the Apollo program has fostered, including much technology that has been applied outside the space program. They also point to the burning scientific interest in the moon, and to the potential military advantage of being "on the moon."

"The perils will be successfully navigated. There will be footprints in the lunar dust," the late Hugh L. Dryden, deputy space agency administrator, predicted with confidence in 1964, as he viewed the almost complete plans for Apollo.

This month his words, and Kennedy's goal, are put to the test of fulfillment.

Nurses Needed For Service With Navy

Registered nurses and seniors in nursing schools who may be interested in a direct appointment for a commission in the U.S. Navy were asked today to contact the Navy recruiting office at 115 N. Cuyler in Pampa.

A trip to Pensacola, Fla., is planned with a tour of the hospital and Aero Space center there Aug. 1 through Aug. 3. Nurses will attend a formal ball at the OCS Aviation training center and will have a beach party and picnic.

The Navy will provide transportation, meals and lodging. Navy recruiting office phone number in Pampa is Me. 5-3922.

In 1966 President Theodore Roosevelt signed the Pure Food and Drug Act, a law making illegal the shipment in interstate commerce of adulterated foods and drugs.

"Read the label before using a pesticide!"

How often have you heard that statement? Probably many times, but have you paid any heed when using pesticides around your home and garden or in your greenhouse or field?

The information on the label of a pesticide is put there for a specific purpose," emphasizes Dr. Bill Clymer, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "It tells you how to use a particular pesticide safely to avoid injury to yourself or your fellow man."

Reading the label is the most important step toward eliminating hazards from agricultural chemical usage, points out the entomologist. Information on the label includes the name and address of manufacturer, distributor or person for whom manufactured, statement of active and inactive ingredients present, completed directions for use, registration number, antidote statement when applicable and precautionary information for safe use.

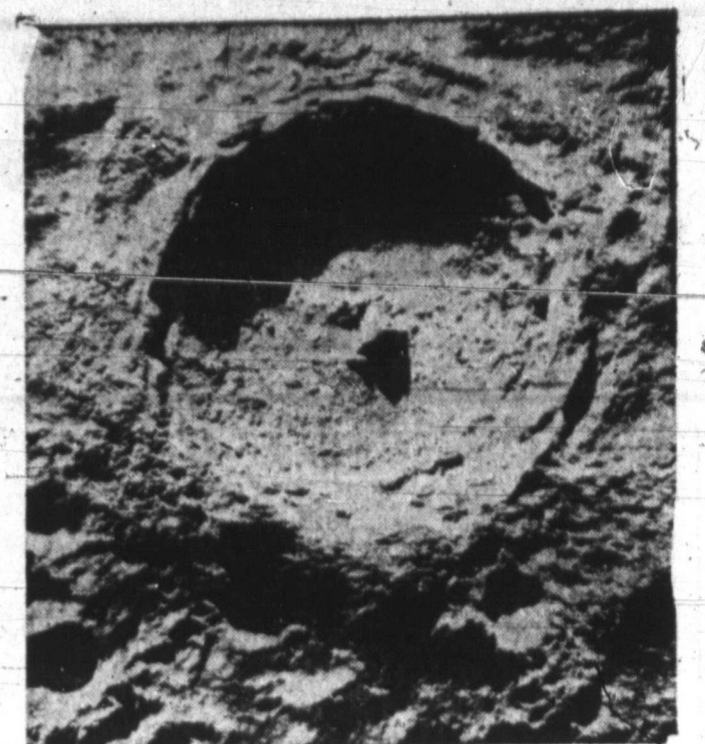

"This information represents some of the most expensive words in literature," says

Clymer. "Research and registration of a pesticide takes three to five years and costs millions of dollars."

Each individual is responsible for learning the safety precautions when using a particular pesticide. He is responsible for selecting the right chemical for the job, transporting, storing, handling, mixing and applying the chemical, using safety equipment, cleaning equipment and disposing unused material or empty containers. When the job is completed, a bath and a change of clothes should follow. A knowledge of first-aid treatment is also essential.

Keep the telephone number of your physician or Poison Control Center handy cautions Clymer. There are 22 Poison Control Centers located throughout the state in the major cities. West Texas cities include Lubbock, Amarillo, Wichita Falls, San Angelo, Abilene, El Paso and Odessa.

"Safety first" has been a longtime watchword and it can't be emphasized enough when using pesticides," says the entomologist. "And the best way to be safe is to read the label and follow directions."

Father Of Six Kills Wife, Sister

HOUSTON (UPI)—With his six kids in tow, a former mental patient led police on a four-hour chase around Harris County today before he was apprehended, 30 miles from the spot roadblocks were posted, in connection with the murder of his estranged wife and his sister.

Minnie Gamba, 36, and Maria Gamba, 35, were shot in the head with a .22-caliber pistol Monday, shortly before midnight, and killed.

The apprehended suspect was identified as Manuel Gamba, 37, a laborer and former mental patient and the estranged husband of Maria.

Several of the suspect's six children told police Gamba killed the two women then threatened to kill two other children in the house unless they went to bed before midnight. Gamba then allegedly took his six children with him and left the house in northeast Houston.

Threatens Driver

Police said Gamba admitted he placed a pistol between the eyes of a driver of a security truck, disarmed the driver and took his truck.

The two children who were left in the home said Gamba told them he was taking the children to Richmond, Tex., in southwest Harris County. One of the remaining children went to a neighbor's house and phoned police.

Police organized a massive manhunt near Stafford, Tex., immediately southwest of the Houston city limits and spotted the stolen truck.
