Charges Of Cheating Against Citrus Workers Are Withdrawn

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI)—Tony Orendain, of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC), backed away a bit Thursday from his earlier charge that Mexican-American workers were being cheated out of their legal wage by labor contractors hired to recruit them during citrus harvest.

He said he could cite no specific instances of such a practice in Hidalgo County, and that he could not name contractors alleged to be paying their recruits less than the federal minimum wage. He added, however, that his organization was gathering evidence, and that "we should have more concrete information within the next 30 days."

Orendain, an organizer for the Valley branch of the farm union founded by California's Cesar Chavez, made the charge Wednesday at a Texas Employment Commission hearing called to investigate a critical labor shortage which pinched this year's citrus harvest and left hundreds of tons of grapefruit rotting in lower Rio Grande Valley groves.

Orendain said labor contractors, given a minimum wage payroll by citrus packing firms for which they work, were paying their crews as little as 95 cents an hour, and pocketing the balance of the $1.30 an hour provided for each man.

"The hungrier you are, the less they pay you," he said.

Thursday, he said his farm union group never has filed a complaint, or asked for an investigation by the wage and hour commission.

"It's very difficult," he said. "It takes so long to get a hearing that the farm worker involved usually has migrated to California or someplace by the time it comes up."

"Then, too," he added, "our people are very apathetic. No one ever has paid any attention to them and they don't know what channels to file a complaint through. That's what the farm union is for—to change that attitude."

Packer Jay Bogue, manager of Rio Tex Citrus Assn., in Edinburg, scoffed at Orendain's charge.

Bogue said the packer, not the labor contractor, is held responsible by the wage and hour commission if it can be proven that workers are not receiving the minimum wage.

"We're looking over their shoulders all the time," he said. "We spot check groves. We check wage books, and we make sure that even workers doing piece work average at least the minimum wage."

38 Allied Targets Attacked Overnight

SAIGON (UPI) North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces are preparing for a substantial new offensive before the end of July, U.S. military sources said today.

"The indications are they are preparing for a high point of substantial intensity," the sources said. Both shelling and ground attacks are expected, they said.

Thirty-eight Allied targets, including six provincial capitals, came under rocket and mortar attack overnight and the Viet Cong promised more of the same.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong probably will try to get their new offensive going late in July and use both shelling attacks and ground assaults, the informed sources said.

They said they expected the campaign to last 7 to 10 days with activity falling off as Communist troops regroup and resupply.

Communiques reported Allied troops killed 190 Communist soldiers in more than a dozen battles Thursday, but none of the engagements was large.

The Communists stepped up their shelling attacks, pounding 38 targets compared with 33 the previous night.

Heaviest casualties came at Tan An, 23 miles southwest of Saigon, where a barrage of 107mm rockets killed one Vietnamese and wounded three at a center for Communist defectors.

Terrorists bombed a restaurant near a bus station in Can Tho in the Mekong Delta Thursday night, killing four Vietnamese civilians and wounding 10.

Other terrorists bombed a U.S. enlisted men's billet, wounding 11 American servicemen, 21 Vietnamese civilians, and one of their own.

The American Command listed seven skirmishes on Thursday that killed a total of 99 Viet Cong or North Vietnamese. U.S. troops were involved in five of the clashes but lost no one killed or injured, the announcement said.

Heaviest of the firefighting listed in the morning communique was a skirmish 80 miles north of Saigon in which U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Div. soldiers killed 17 guerrillas with American artillery support.

For the second successive night, Communist artillerymen fired concentrated barrages into Allied targets, including the two biggest cities in the Mekong Delta—Can Tho and My Tho, spokesmen said.

One civilian died in the bombardment of Can Tho and another delta provincial capital, 25 miles southwest of Saigon. No fatalities were reported in the other province towns.

By United Press International Egyptian commandos killed four Israeli soldiers and captured another Thursday night in the United Arab Republic's most successful raid across the Suez Canal since the 1967 Middle East war, an Israeli military spokesman admitted today.

The Tel Aviv spokesman said the raid on the Port Tewfik area also wounded four Israeli soldiers and damaged two Israeli tanks.

In other action Arab guerrillas killed two Israelis at an Israeli jeep in Gaza City Thursday night, injuring a soldier. Guerrillas also blew up a pump house 14 miles south of the Sea of Galilee. Two miles away Arab mortar fire blasted a farm settlement. Guerrillas fired bazookas at Israeli troops along the Lebanese border near Hasbaya. There was no casualty report.

Israel said the Egyptian commandos who attacked Port Tewfik were repulsed after "a short battle."

It was the fifth Egyptian raid across the canal in the last 23 days, Israeli army sources said.

Architect Draws New City Auditorium Plan

TO FIT MONEY

An architect's answer to how much city auditorium can be built in Pampa for $800,000 will be forthcoming next week, according to Deane Heckman, chairman of the architectural subcommittee of the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium executive board.

Heckman said he and Jim O'Connor, another committee member, flew to Dallas Wednesday and conferred with George Dahl, employed a year ago to draw plans for the auditorium.

They were authorized to make the trip following announcement by M.K. Brown Foundation trustees that an $800,000 gift was available for construction of the auditorium building.

The foundation trustees indicated belief a satisfactory structure could not be built for less than $1,800,000. The general building committee then decided to ask what could be built for $800,000 and to explore other avenues of raising additional money to implement the $800,000.

Heckman said his committee, after discussing with architect Dahl the difficulties of raising additional money at this time and the emergency of finalizing plans before next Dec. 31, was told that new plans which would pare down the original hopes would be sent to the committee by next Friday, one week from today.

Tentative guessing at the Dallas meeting indicated that a building with 30,000 to 35,000 square feet floor space was all that could be built and furnished for $800,000. This plan possibly could provide seating for about 1,200 in the theater plus 700 for banquet seating.

Heckman said the architect's new plans would be presented to the executive board for study as soon as they are received next week.

During the afternoon, Heckman stated, a discussion was held with J. O. Newberry of the Community Service Bureau, Inc., of Dallas, a fund-raising organization.

The bureau has handled United Fund campaigns for Hospital in Amarillo, and the ill-fated Salvation Army building campaign in Pampa. Heckman said information obtained in the interview will be passed on to the executive board.

It was also learned Congressman Bob Price is exploring one or two avenues in Washington which possibly could result in financial aid for the auditorium project.

At a meeting of the general Building committee here last week there was little support for a proposal that a general obligation bond issue be floated to raise an additional $1,000,000 to build the auditorium.

The consensus at the meeting seemed to be that the bond issue would not carry because of recent hospital and school bond issues and the fact that the city is facing financial difficulties for fiscal 1969-70 and is expected to ask the voters soon to approve a one-cent city sales tax.

The Pampa Independent School District also is preparing to announce an increase in the school tax rate to take care of a raise in teachers' salaries authorized recently by the State Legislature.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is the second in a two-part series explaining changes in Pampa Independent School district in 1968-69. The changes, initiated after the Texas Education Agency accreditation visit in 1967, were submitted to school trustees Thursday. The first section of the series explaining physical plant deficiencies, appeared in Thursday's edition of The News.

By WANDA MAE HUFF
School administrators' two-year study of Pampa School District needs, which were submitted to trustees Thursday, explained changes in the district's curriculum and organizational patterns for 1969-70.

The study was initiated after a Texas Education Agency accreditation team visited the school and named areas needing improvements to meet accreditation standards.

According to the TEA report, accreditation standards in curriculum and organization of the district were not met because of unbalanced educational opportunities between the two junior high schools, lack of a physical education program or centralized libraries for elementary schools, lack of centralized visual aid resources, and lack of physical education requirements for seventh and eighth grade band students.

TEA evaluators also suggested in 1967, Pampa administrators change the district's organizational pattern to 5-3-4, or five grades elementary, three junior high and four high school; offer junior high school vocational agriculture; offer more seventh and eighth grade electives, offer four years of

School Board Sets Date For Budget Hearing

During Thursday's school board meeting, trustees set Aug. 21, as the official budget hearing and planned another meeting next week to discuss a possible tax rate increase to pay for the state raise in teachers' salaries.

Trustees agreed to meet at 8 p.m. Aug. 21, in Carver Educational Services Center to present the 1969-70 budget to the public.

In a called meeting—next week, the board will consider raising the tax rate from its present $1.86 rate to $1.90 to pay for the state increase in teachers' salaries, according to Supt. Dr. James F. Malone.

"The possible increase would not have to be acted on until August, but the board doesn't have much choice if it is going to pay for the state raise in teachers' salaries. The raise is not because of local costs, but only because of the state raise," Dr. Malone said.

"The present rate of $1.86 includes the $1.46, local maintenance and 40 cent bonds tax. The proposed rate could not be more than $1.90, or the limit of $1.50, local maintenance and 40 cent bonds tax," he said.

In other action, the board accepted four resignations, reassigned one teacher and employed three faculty members. Those resigning were Mrs. Paul Dudit, Lamar Elementary sixth grade teacher; Clinton Forbes, Pampa High School distributive education teacher; Mrs. Clinton Forbes, Pampa Junior High School clerical assistant, and G. H. Thompson, custodian, Lamar Elementary School.

Mrs. Dona Cornutt was reassigned from registrar at Pampa High School to teacher of distributive education.

New faculty members are Mrs. C. E. Johnston, choral music director, Lee Junior High School; Mike Stone, eighth grade science teacher, Lee Junior High School, and Don Nelson, secondary schools coordinator. Nelson has a B.A. degree from West Texas State University and 10 years experience in the teaching field.

The board also accepted Gulf Oil Co.'s low bid of .1130 cents (See SCHOOL, Page 2).

Unprecedented Success Gives U.S. Assurance

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)—Space scientist Werner von Braun says the United States has had such an unprecedented string of space successes "the public may not be prepared for the shock" if something goes wrong.

The German-born scientist, now director of the Marshall Flight Center here, said at a press conference Thursday he is confident "the Apollo 11 mission will be successful. It blasts off from Cape Kennedy Wednesday."

Noting the careful preparation, von Braun said there is no "wild blue yonder" about the voyage. But since there has been a steady string of near-perfect flights, he said, "if anything happens the public may not be prepared for the shock."

Von Braun said "representatives of the Soviet Union have been secretly invited to Cape Kennedy and they have declined because they cannot reciprocate."

In answer to a question, he said he is looking forward to space travel. "Yes, I'll be looking forward to the opportunity to thumb a ride."

Correction

It was mistakenly stated in a Page 1 story in Thursday's Pampa News that the House Agriculture Committee would visit the Texas Panhandle during the June 18-19 weekend. The name of the month, of course, should have been July.

The committee, hosted by Congressman Bob Price, will arrive in Pampa at 8:15 p.m. Friday, July 18. A reception and dinner will be held at 8:45 p.m. in Coronado Inn.

Soviet Ships Edge Closer To The United States Than Ever Before

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A Navy destroyer escort and an undiscovered number of patrol planes are keeping watch on the course of a Russian navy task force that has extended the Soviet Union's naval operations closer to the U.S. East Coast than ever before.

The Navy refused to disclose exactly how many planes or how many military personnel are involved in the surveillance of the task force as it steams toward Cuba for a courtesy call.

But the destroyer escort Thomas J. Gary was assigned to the watch and U.S. patrol aircraft were taking off at least once a day from Key West to keep up with the surveillance. The Gary had orders not to get too close to the Russians.

The Navy planned to take a group of newsmen and television film crews over the area today for a first-hand look at the warships, which at last report were located 450 miles off the Florida coast.

The U.S. Navy regards the voyage as one more step in a gradual expansion of Russian naval presence into the world's major oceans.

The United States also contends the Soviet ships have every right to be where they are going as part of freedom of the high seas. The U.S. jealously exercises its own right to operate in international waters, regularly sending destroyer patrols into the Black Sea—about as close to the Russian homeland as if the Russians sent their ships into the Gulf of Mexico.

The Soviet ships are modern, though not the most modern in the Russian navy. The biggest is a Kynda class guided missile cruiser of 5,600 tons. It is 465 feet long, with a maximum speed of 35 knots and heavily armed with antishipping missiles, antiaircraft missiles, guns, rocket launchers and torpedoes.

Pacifist Enters Into Peace Talks

PARIS (UPI)—American pacifist David T. Dellinger told North Vietnamese officials today the United States has promised to let three U.S. prisoners of war freely express their opinions on the war when Hanoi releases them.

North Vietnam said last week the three men would be freed as an American Independence Day gesture.

The Hanoi officials called on Dellinger, chairman of the Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, to arrange the release.

Dellinger was to meet again today with the North Vietnamese before returning to New York.

He told newsmen Thursday night he had assurance from Henry Cabot Lodge, chief, U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, that "there would be no interference by the government with the free transport of the prisoners."

Dellinger said Hanoi was concerned that the U.S. military might "whisk away" the prisoners and prevent them from freely telling their views on the war in public.

The last group of three U.S. prisoners of war to come out of Hanoi were freed in August of 1968 and their release was arranged by a group of pacifists. When the prisoners reached Vientiane, Laos, U.S. officials whisked them away from the pacifist group.

Dellinger's job in Paris was to work out with the North Vietnamese the composition of the American antiwar group which will go to Hanoi to pick up the prisoners.

TAC Expected To Make Decision On Rio Airways

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas Aeronautics Commission is expected to take about a month to decide whether Rio Airways will be allowed to start commuter service to eight South Texas cities.

At the final session of a four-day hearing into the airlines' request to begin service, officials of Braniff International and Texas International testified they might have to limit their flights in the Lower Rio Grande Valley if the new airlines is allowed to serve that area.

Rio Airways' application asks permission to fly between Brownsville, McAllen, Harlingen, Laredo, Corpus Christi, San Antonio, Houston and Austin. Either Braniff or Texas International fly to all of those points.

Clint Y. McCutcheon, vice president of Texas International, testified Thursday TI was considering a type of commuter service Rio Airways proposes, using the same kind of planes Rio has ordered.

He said that because TI is already suffering from third-level competition such as Hood and Fleetway airlines.

IRS Publishes Income Data By Zip Code Areas

DALLAS — Taxpayers in Pampa, Amarillo and other towns in the 790 Zip Code area covering the northern high plains, reported income totaling $460,824,000 on their Federal individual income tax returns, according to a new Internal Revenue Service publication.

The booklet makes available for the first time income and tax data by major postal ZIP Code classification. Ellis Campbell, Jr., district director of Internal Revenue for North Texas, said today.

The district director added that 12,015 of 72,144 returns filed were in the $10,000 or more adjusted gross income level.

The statistical information, based on 1966 tax returns and covering every city and geographic area in Texas as well as throughout the United States, is contained in the new IRS publication, "Statistics of Income — 1966, Supplemental Report, ZIP Code Area Data from Individual Income Tax Returns."

Campbell said that the new booklet marks the first publication by the Federal Government of financial statistics for small areas in which the postal ZIP Code system has been used for geographic classifications. Previously such IRS data were available only for each state and the 100 largest standard metropolitan areas.

Other data relating to the High Plains, excluding the city of Amarillo show that 72,144 returns were filed, including 48,300 joint returns. The new IRS publication also reports that in 1966 taxpayers claimed 214,641 exemptions, including 131,688 for themselves and 82,953 for their dependents, according to Campbell.

On a state-wide basis, individual income tax liability totaled $2,548,632,000 on adjusted gross income of $21,359,490,000. On a district-wide basis, individual income tax liability totaled $1,211,186,000 on adjusted gross income of $10,036,946,000. This includes a small amount of Austin District's tax since the ZIP Codes in Central Texas tend to overlap.

Since the ZIP Code system tends to reflect transportation patterns and patterns of commerce, the statistical material in the new publication will be especially useful in approximating the Pampa — Amarillo Area's marketing or commuting areas, Mr. Campbell said.

All of the area tabulations in the publication are identified by the first three digits of the five digit ZIP Code. Of the 837 listings, 199 are for large cities and the other 638 for suburban or rural areas.

Among the other North Texas areas covered by the publication are Dallas suburban areas, Fort Worth suburban areas, and strictly rural areas such as Childress, etc.

For each ZIP Code area listing, the IRS publication includes a tabulation, by size of income, of the number of returns filed, number of joint returns filed by husbands and wives, number of exemptions claimed for taxpayers and their families, adjusted gross income, and total tax liability.

Mr. Campbell said that the publication breaks the size of income down into three groupings for each ZIP Code area: Under $3,000; $3,000 to $10,000; and $10,000 or more.

C Of C Officials Attend Amarillo PEP Session

E. O. Wedgeworth, Chamber of Commerce manager, Foster Whaley, Gray County agricultural agent, and Gene Hanks of the PCA, who attended the Panhandle Economic Program (PEP) sessions at Amarillo Thursday, report that specific projects for the organization were discussed by representatives of 26 area counties.

Among these are marketing, agricultural policy and agribusiness. Maximum utilization of natural human and capital resources was noted as a goal by which an annual income of $500 million is envisioned.

The 26 counties included in the organization are: Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Childress, Collingsworth, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Donley, Gray, Hall, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Moore, Ochiltree, Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Sherman, Swisher and Wheeler.

With these areas working together, the Pampa delegation noted, "the Panhandle area can abound with economic growth."

PEP is one of several economic organizations in Texas designed to assist individual counties by working on a regional basis.

After receiving only one bid for construction of the athletic building at Pampa High School, trustees tabled action on the bid until after re-negotiation with the bidder, Hallmark Builders Inc., Dr. Malone, Athletic Director Swede Lee, and the district's architect, Herbert Brasher, of Lubbock.

In Dr. Malone's report of summer school costs, he reported a deficit of $4,697, with expenditures of $21,607 and receipts from tuitions at $16,910. The board considered raising tuition rates to $42 for driver education and $20 for academic courses to eliminate a deficit next year. No action on rates was taken until further study.

In other action the board approved tax roll adjustments, approved continued membership in Texas Association of School Boards, and approved out-of-district student transfers.

720 Students In Top O' Texas Get Aid

There are 720 students between the ages of 18 and 22 in the Panhandle area receiving social security benefits, according to Howard L. Weatherly, Pampa social security branch manager. Many of them were high school graduates last spring, planning to continue school in the fall.

Weatherly said under certain conditions, benefit payments can continue during the summer vacation. A student in full-time attendance this fall can continue receiving his benefits. This is true whether or not the 18 to 22 year old student is a high school senior. Benefits for the summer break cannot exceed four months.

However, Weatherly stated, the student needs to take two specific actions to see that the benefits continue. He must have applied for admission or been accepted by the school he plans to attend and must make an "end of school year" report to the Social Security Administration indicating his intention to stay in school full time.

Weatherly urged all high school seniors between 18 and 22 and receiving student social security benefits who have not already done so to call or visit the nearest social security office.

Hughes Burglary Totals $5,000

Gray County Sheriff's deputies are investigating the theft of four Rotary Drill Bits valued at $5,000 from Hughes Tool Co.

The theft occurred last week when burglars entered the building on south Cuyler through an unlocked window.

According to the investigation report the subjects opened an overhead door, backed some type of vehicle to the building and loaded the bits.

When the theft was first discovered it was not known just what was missing and the amount of the theft has just come to light.

An FBI agent was in Pampa Thursday also investigating the theft due to the fact that it could involve interstate commerce laws.

Suit Filed

A personal injury suit in the amount of $50,000 has been filed in District Clerk Helen Sprinkle's office by Mae Bell Robbins.

The suit, according to the petition, was filed in connection with an automobile accident in Pampa, Feb. 1, 1969, at the intersection of Hobart and Francis Streets.

"Trustees eventually will switch to a Kindergarten through fifth grade plan for elementary schools, sixth through eighth for junior high school and ninth through 12th for high school, but this plan would not come until the Phase II school program," Dr. Malone said.

"It is expected all elementary schools will have centralized library locations during the 1969-70 school year," he said.

James Trusty's new position as Administrative assistant gives him the responsibility of budget control, and inventory control of all instructional materials and capital outlay items for all schools. A complete inventory of all instructional materials is being carried out, Dr. Malone said.

"A division of education services has been established with a director and authorization granted to employ full-time coordinators for elementary and secondary schools," Dr. Malone said. "This will allow for detailed curriculum planning, grade level meetings, and in-service education to begin the 1969-70 school year."

"The administrative center at Carver will provide space for in-service meetings, audio-visual training lab, conference rooms, professional library, and curriculum guide services. A new secondary coordinator, Don Nelson, has been hired to coordinate all junior and senior high school curriculum." A summary of this report to trustees has been submitted to TEA officials, Dr. Malone said.

In 1963 opposition to the Federal Conscription Act led to an outbreak of riots in New York City. More than 1,000 persons were killed and several Negroes were lynched.

The Homeowner Does Not Face Many Moving Problems In 1969

By RUTH LEWIS

Homeowners and householders in general used to throw up their hands in despair at the very thought of moving. But no more.

In the past decade or two moving agencies have made the process both simple and quick. Even pleasant, if both movers and moved cooperate, says Harold Dean Blackmon.

Blackmon is a driver for Pampa Warehouse & Transfer Co., which in turn is an agent for United Van Lines. The latter's slogan is "Moving with care, everywhere."

Blackmon enjoys his work. He likes driving the big moving vans cross-country, a job for which one must be suited physically and mentally. Drivers are required to undergo physical examinations at regular intervals. Eyes, ears, nerves must be normal. They must carry a commercial license authorizing the holder as a certified van lines driver.

The Pampa driver, who has been in the business four years, is a muscular, sturdily built man to whom heavy loads are no handicap. And some are really heavy. Books for instance. Refrigerators. Stoves.

Most moves are made by employees of large corporations which usually schedule such transfers for the summer vacation period. The movers should be advised in advance when their services are to be needed, Blackmon says.

When the van line's services are engaged the driver goes to the clients' home, lists all furniture to be moved and makes an estimate of the cost and the time required for packing. All pieces are examined before loading. If damaged the fact is brought to the owners' attention.

There are special packs for clothing, which is hung on racks. Otherwise goods are packed in boxes or cartons. Dishes are placed in special boxes or barrels with dividers to keep them separated. The company here uses newsprint for stuffing and wrapping.

Blackmon suggests that fragile items and small appliances he kept in the same cartons in which they were originally received for safety.

Moving companies have rules concerning payment. Before a van may be unloaded the driver must collect the fee which is based upon weight. Payment may be by certified check or cash.

When the van is unloaded the movers place everything in its intended location in the house. They replace mirrors on dressers, set refrigerators and stoves in kitchens — "but we do not hook them up," Blackmon says — and even set up swings in the yard.

There are three restrictions as to cargo. The company moves no "live" flowers — or if it does the risk is the owners and carries no animal pets. Usually Fido or the potted plants go along in the owners' automobile if at all.

The longest trip he has made as a mover was to Rio (call it Rio-o) Wis., says Blackmon. "Don't call it 'Ree-o' Blackmon adds. "Up there they'll say, 'Where are you from Texas?'"

The biggest load he has carried was 14,000 pounds. But he assisted another driver in moving two separate families at the same time — from Amarillo and Dallas to Mississippi. The weight was 18,000 pounds.

Blackmon has lived here since the age of 17 months. Paul Musgrave is owner of the Pampa Warehouse & Transfer Co., whose address is 733 Lefors.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors who follow fundamentals would like to see more signs that inflation really has been checked because the Federal Reserve is not likely to loose monetary restraints until victory is in sight, said Harris, Upham & Co.

Further stock market declines to "correct the distortions caused by the speculative trading to recent years" are likely to be seen until there is peace in Vietnam and the battle against inflation is won, the firm said.

This week's decline indicates that we are in a short term, trading-turn type of market that is not going to bail out those making poor tactical moves, said Bache & Co. Given some favorable news, or even a diminution of adverse news, the market could be ripe for a bounce again...it's going to be an interesting summer," Bache said.

The recent market plunge, as it charts out today, "looks as if it will only amount to an important interruption in a big bull market," Spear & Staff, Inc. believes.

TOO MUCH BOOZE

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—The Iowa Liquor Commission has $11 million worth of liquor in its warehouses and stores enough to last into the 22nd century.

"The inventories that they have far exceed anything you would expect," Gov. Robert D. Ray said Wednesday. He asked the commission to get rid of the surplus.

The governor, whose tastes run more to ginger ale anyway, suggested the commission try to sell some of the less popular brands back to the manufacturers. Otherwise, he said, he would consider a price reduction to help clear the warehouses.

The disinflationary period is creating investment opportunities and prices of many investment-grade securities have retreated to the lower end of their value ranges, said Dean Witter & Co.

ENVOY ARRIVES

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—J. William Middendorf, the new U.S. ambassador to the Netherlands, arrived here Tuesday to present his credentials to Queen Juliana. He succeeds William R. Tyler, who is leaving the foreign service to become director of the Dumbarton Oaks Foundation in Washington.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

If Italian politicians are not fiddling while Rome burns, at least they are coming perilously close.

As the center-left coalition government of Premier Mariano Rumor dawdled over long-promised but never carried-out reforms and finally fell to party bickering, Italy moved ever closer to paralysis in the worst series of strikes in 20 years.

This was the record for the first four months of 1969:

Jan. 9—100 lawyers and 500 sympathizers demonstrate in Rome demanding a complete reform of Italy's legal system.

Jan. 29—Nationwide strike of gas station attendants begins.

Trieste factory workers lay down their tools. Palermo lawyers boycott trials. Secondary school teachers continue three-day strike.

Feb. 3—Strikers block train service between Rome and Naples. Toll collectors on superhighways begin a 72-hour strike.

Feb. 5—Nationwide 24-hour general strike hits heavy industry.

Feb. 21—Students occupy Rome University.

April 9—Some 4,000 demonstrators in Battipaglia in southern Italy overturn and burn buses, set fire to city hall and police headquarters. Two are reported killed.

April 11—A three-hour general strike in sympathy with the citizens of Battipaglia paralyzes all of Italy.

April 12—Prison riots wreck the prisons in Turin and Milan.

April 20—One million state employees stage 24-hour strike.

And that was neither the beginning nor the end. For a year and a half Italian workers and students had been showing increasing dissatisfaction with inept and wasteful governments.

In the succeeding months since April, sporadic strikes by government workers have continued to disrupt essential services.

These were some of the factors back of the unrest.

The educational system had not been overhauled for more than 100 years.

The penal system dates back to Mussolini and Italian Fascism.

Between the north and the impoverished south wages for the same job differed by as much as 25 per cent.

Despite prosperity, unemployment mounted and money continued to flee the country.

In the morass of an ill-divided national prosperity, outdated laws and a visibly impatient electorate, the parties of the government coalition bickered, mostly internally.

Within the dominating Christian Democrats, former Premier Aldo Moro, leader of the first Italian left-of-center government, fought the rightists and announced his withdrawal from the majority to lead a separate faction.

The Socialists also divided into factions from right, left to center and finally split on the issue of cooperation with the Communists. This is what brought about the fall of the Rumor government.

Of the big parties in Italy, only the Communists remain undivided. Eventually new elections must be called and the Communists will have their biggest chance since World War II to move into a constitutional Italian government.

Nixon Says U. S. Faces 'Crisis'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon said today the country faces a "massive crisis" in proper distribution of health care and announced an action program aimed at holding down medical costs.

The report issued following a meeting by Nixon with his chief advisers in the health field was critical of the Medicaid program, saying the plan for federal-state financing of health care to the poor had contributed heavily to rising medical costs.

Nixon told reporters that when he entered office he knew there was a serious national problem in delivery of health care.

However, after receiving the health report under preparation for months—the President said he realized the situation was "much worse than I realized in January."

"We face a major crisis in this area. In the next two or three years unless something is done about it immediately," the President said.

The report said the nation faces "a breakdown in the delivery of health care unless immediate concerted action is taken by government and the private sector."

The situation was blamed on "expansion of private and public financing for health services" which the report said created a demand for these services "far in excess of the capacity of our health system to respond."

Peter Lawford's Home Ransacked

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Peter Lawford's apartment was ransacked this week while he was vacationing in Europe. Sheriff's deputies said a ladder was used

SATURDAY, JULY 12 YOUR BIRTHDAY Saturday: — Now is the time to push ahead for higher earnings, better percentages. Put in the first three months preparing your new program or finding a better job, then take advantage of the rising tide in the latter part of the year. Saturday's natives tend to attract trial and tribulation by their impulsive actions, restless minds, and willingness to question authority.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): — Saturday the shortcomings of your community come strongly to your attention. Take yourself and your friends for a short journey to get a different perspective. Pay no attention to rumors, but leave no opening for comments about yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): — For once, settle back and plan, and leave the physical chores to others. Try new skills. Review your health. Clear up all correspondence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — Avoid financial moves. Neglected tasks are up for review and perhaps now you can do something effective about them. Keep in mind your favorite charity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Pressure builds up for some far-reaching decisions on your part. Later you will find that the issues revolve on what seem now to be trivial points.

Garden Club Has Program On Roses

Pampa Garden Club members met with Mrs. Milo Carlson, 2211 Charles, recently with 19 members attending the program on procedures for growing roses.

Four guests attending were Mrs. Thomas A. Morgan, Mrs. Henry Gruben, Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer, all of Pampa, and Mrs. J. R. Reise, Dallas.

Speaking on procedures to grow roses, Carlson said preparing the soil with a mixture of peat moss, humus and sand is most important. The next step is to dig a hole 18 inches by one foot deep, place the plant in the hole and add prepared rose soil and pack well. Have bud union level with the ground. Plants should be three feet apart.

The next meeting will be a workshop at 9:15 a.m. Aug. 18 at the Court House Annex. Judges will assist with flower arranging in preparation for the annual flower show Oct. 23.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal wedding gown of bridal satin and lace fashioned with a boat neckline. A petal coil secured her veil of illusion. She carried an arrangement of white roses atop a Bible.

Maid of honor was Miss Carolyn Stephenson, Groom. Bridesmaids were Miss Jean Franklin, Pampa, and Miss Debbie South, Bakersfield, Calif. Miss Darla Chavez, Bakersfield, lighted tapers. Flower girls were Andrea Lamb, Groom, and Laurie Blackstone, Amarillo.

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are going 'round and 'round because our 17-year-old daughter has said that after she graduates from high school she wants to get a job and move into an apartment with another girl.

My husband hits the ceiling whenever she mentions it. He thinks that girls want to live alone so they can entertain boyfriends without parental supervision, stay up until all hours, and go wild in general.

I don't feel that way. I think our daughter has good sense, good moral values, and her choice of friends has always been to her credit. I think parents can teach their children only so much. The rest they have to learn by standing on their own two feet.

How do you feel about this, Abby?

MOTHER IN THE MIDDLE DEAR MOTHER: I think you are right. By the time a girl graduates from high school, the twig is bent the way it will grow, and from the sound of your letter, I would say your daughter will not disappoint you.

DEAR ABBY: Is the bridegroom responsible for paying the doctor bills for his bride-to-be just because she wanted a physical examination and contraceptive pills?

This happened to my son and I say he was not responsible for any bills his wife-to-be ran up. Am I right or not? If I'm wrong I'll apologize to his wife.

DEAR NEW: Technically, the bridegroom is not responsible for bills his bride-to-be "ran up" before their marriage, but if your son willingly paid the bill and you made an issue of it, apologize.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married 43 years. We live modestly and have never been big spenders. We have a comfortable income.

Groom Club Has Pinocle Games

GROOM (Sp1) —The Nightingale Club met recently in the Hospitality Room at the State National Bank Building. Games of pinocle were played with high score going to Mrs. Bob Milton and low score to Mrs. Charley Hermesmeier.

Guests present were Mrs. John Hickox and Mrs. Mattie McAdams. Mrs. Ernest Lamberson and Mrs. Walter Garmon served as hostesses for members—Mmes. Bob P. O. I. Mike Homer, John Quirk, Glynn D. Harrell, Ruby Denton, Lucille West, Stella Patterson, Charley Fields, Velma Evans, Carl Homer, Charley Hermesmeier, Robert Milton, Joe Davis and Miss Eulalia Shockley.

Mrs. Hall Honored At Wedding Coffee

GROOM (Sp1) Mrs. Myrtle Frances Hall, recent bride of Dr. Richard Hall, was honored with a coffee recently at the home of Mrs. John L. Witt. The serving table was covered with a blue embroidered cloth, decorated with a centerpiece of a flower encircled candelabra. Mrs. Robert Clayton and Mrs. David Lacy poured coffee for the 50 guests who attended during the receiving hours.

Hostesses were Mmes. Lee Kirk, Bob Newton, Henry Merrick, Robert Clayton, Roben Hanes, Lester Pair, David Levy and John L. Witt.

and bank account and my husband is an honest and decent man, but here is my problem: He hides money all over the house. I find it when housecleaning.

Last month I found a surprising amount in the cellar. I asked him why. He never answered. I tried to get him to put that money in the bank as the bills were already getting moldy, but he wouldn't do it. He just took them to hide somewhere else.

Today I found some more money under the sofa cushions, and I am feeling very depressed.

Please don't write me a personal letter as my husband gets the mail first since he is now retired. Thank you.

WORRIED DEAR WORRIED: Get your husband to a doctor for a "routine" checkup as soon as possible. Be sure to tell the doctor (quietly in advance) what you have told me. Your husband needs help.

DEAR ABBY: I think you were a bit negative with "HATES SAILING." A seaisick, frightened wife is no fun for a husband who loves to sail, but neither does she pose insurmountable problems.

Having solved that problem, may I offer this advice:

1. I had to woo my wife in sailing, slowly, and carefully, and here are the steps.
1. Use seasickness pills — but sparingly, as they can make one drowsy.
2. Short sails at first.
3. Give her something to do so she won't be bored. (Colling ropes, or managing one of the sails. Even swabbing the deck. Women love to clean!)
4. No bickering, arguing, or squabbling on board. (This induces seasickness.)
5. Teach her to sail. If you make her feel welcome and useful, she'll be much more fun than the most glamorous passenger.

I don't say this will work for everyone, but it worked for me. Regards, "LOVES SAILING WIFE, TOO"

CONFIDENTIAL TO SCORPIO (I have a seven-letter, one word "solution" to your problem. FORGIVE! For forgiveness is the fragrance of a violet on the heel of the one who crushed it.)

Texas Legislators Are Asking Voters To Grant Them Raise

AUSTIN (UPI) — For the third time in four years, Texas legislators will go to the polls to ask voters to grant them a raise.

The 1965 ballot would permit the legislature to set the salaries of its members at any figure that does not exceed the state salary of district judges.

That is not a firm limit, however, since the legislature also sets district judges' salaries. Judges now get $18,000 a year.

The amendment would allow the legislature to raise salaries of the lieutenant governor and speaker to not more than half the governor's pay. Again, the limit would be flexible because the governor's salary is set by the legislature, currently at $40,000.

The lieutenant governor, speaker and the 180 other members of the legislature now get $4,800 a year.

In May legislators passed anticipatory legislation setting their pay at $6,800 a year if the amendment passes. They could vote themselves additional increases at future sessions without seeking voter approval again.

The anticipatory legislation also was supposed to include salaries of $20,000 a year for the speaker and lieutenant governor, but though an error that section was dropped from the bill.

In 1965 and again in 1968, voters rejected amendments that would have increased legislators' pay. The 1965 amendment would have increased their expense allowances by $1,300 per biennium and that amendment that was voted for last year called for a raise to $4,400 a year plus additional expense allowances.

Legislators tend their offices to have full-time jobs for which a month is inadequate pay.

Sen. Jac Hightower, D-Vernon, sponsor of the pay raise legislation, said accountability to the voters would be an adequate safeguard against excessive increases in the future.

"I have evidence in the political judgment of the members of the legislature," he said, "they're going to go hog wild on salaries."

Amendment No. 3 has the support of the Texas State Teachers association, which is urging its 22,740 members to "reciprocate" for the pay raise the legislature gave teachers this year supporting the legislative raise.

TSTA president Claude A. Hearn Jr. has urged local TSTA units to buy advertising on behalf of the legislative pay raise.

The demand for more pay for lawmakers is often coupled with the argument that the legislature should meet every year.

That issue also will be on the Aug. 5 ballot, but it is not tied to the pay raise.

Amendment No. 9 would initiate annual legislative sessions by requiring the legislature to meet in a 60-day budget session in even-numbered years in addition to the regular 130-day session now held in odd-numbered years.

The budget session would be limited to appropriations, taxes and emergency measures submitted by the governor.

The amendment would require the legislature to finance state government one year at a time instead of the present biennial financing.

Gov. Preston Smith, who vetoed the legislature's attempt this year to adopt one-year budgeting without changing the constitution, opposes annual sessions.

Time Too Limited

Li. Gov. Ben Barnes, Speaker Gus F. Mutscher and most legislators favor annual sessions. They contend 140 days every two years does not give them enough time. They point to the fact that governors have had to call special sessions five times in the past 10 years.

The legislature rejected proposals to make higher pay and annual sessions part of a comprehensive revision of the state constitution.

Instead, the legislature submitted those issues separately and proposed a very limited revision of the constitution designed only to remove obsolete provisions.

That amendment, No. 4 on the Aug. 5 ballot, would remove such sections as one granting pensions to veterans of the Texas revolution against Mexico.

Sections that have been ruled invalid, such as those requiring segregated schools, also would be repealed.

The amendment would make no substantive changes in the constitution and has not generated any controversy.

Teachers Have Exciting Time During Their Summer Vacation

By RUTH LEWIS

The assignment read: "Just because school is out for the summer is no reason the school system can't be a source of news. Why not get some information about what teachers are doing this summer for a feature..."

This is the sort of thing that United Press International helpfully suggests to its subscribers.

So why not?

Pampa teachers, as well as office workers in the school system, are having an interesting holiday, it develops, as well as in some cases lucrative.

There is Mrs. Billie M. Davis who teaches history at Lee Junior High School. Her husband is a director at Senior High. The family includes also two daughters Kim and Alison, and a son Paul, ages in order, 13, 10 and seven.

The Davises have been spending a week's holiday here and there at Texas lakes, trying out the fishing and camping facilities. The best fishing found thus far has been at Lake Leon, situated between Eastland and Ranger.

"We are especially fond of catfish and the fishing there is superb," Mrs. Davis says. She and her husband make filets of the fish and fry them. No bones.

After camping a week or two the family returns for a refresher at home—also getting the lawn in shape and working in the garden—then away again. Young Paul comes in nearly every day to report on what's new in the vegetable department out of doors, his mother notes. Paul will be in second grade at Austin School next fall.

Davis, as a director of music, finds the work here especially interesting. There are some excellent voices here, he agrees, but more important even than talent is the student's willingness to work, he believes. This sets Pampa students apart, it is thought, and most of the credit goes to the parents, Davis says.

As between a group of gifted children without motivation and another with moderate talent but a desire to work he would take the latter, Davis asserts. And parents are largely responsible for the latter situation.

The family came here from Abilene two years ago. Mrs. Davis's first teaching experience was in Pampa, she having completed her necessary courses just before the family move.

Mrs. Bill Eads (Pat), registrar at Lee JHS, is "trying to catch up on work undone for nine months," she admits.

"I try not to make plans for the summer because I have found the summer often makes its own demands upon me," she said. "For instance, my husband's mother just broke her hip and is hospitalized at Amarillo, so we are going there."

The Eads couple has a son at Rice University and a daughter at McMurry College, both now in summer school.

"After spending nine months at work I take the first month of vacation to catch up as well as to rest. (Rest being, as someone says, a change of occupation.) But I enjoy summer though for me it lasts only two months."

Barbara Casey, the blithe young lady who answers the superintendent's telephone, so exuberantly, is a part-time worker this summer. The other half of each day is spent at summer school. She expects to enroll at Stephen F. Austin School next fall and guess what? She will major in business administration. Busy? Yes. And happy too.

Mrs. Charles Elliott is a cafeteria assistant at William B. Travis Elementary school. This summer she has had surgery from which she is now recuperating with the help of her husband and their four children, Dennis, 18, soon to be on his way to Vietnam; Judy, 16, who will be a junior next fall; Gary, 15, a sophomore; and Sherry, 11, who will be in sixth grade.

In Greece Military Gives And Takes Away

In Greece, the military junta gives and the military junta takes away.

In April, in an apparent move to forestall pressure from Greece's NATO partners for a restoration of constitutional government, Premier George Papadopoulos restored by decree three basic constitutional rights.

They dealt with the inviolability of citizen's homes, the right of association and the right of assembly.

At the same time, the premier also announced some liberalization of press curbs and the government attitude toward exiles and military court convictions.

But in late June the regime destroyed the one institution capable of curbing government excesses.

This was the Council of State, which in effect is the Greek supreme court.

It forced the resignation of the council's president, who held the appointment for life, and announced it would ignore future council rulings which went against government policy.

In the resulting revolt of Greek judges, the government exiled prominent judge and three laers to remote mountain villages for renewable terms six months each.

The absence of continuing and ev mounting opposition to the reek military regime and their measures it must take to remain in power has a direct bearing on the United States and Western Europe.

Latest year the United States agreed to resume shipments to Greece of military aircraft and some other heavy equipment banned after the April, 1967, coup that toppled the elected government.

It is, however, to send tanks, presumably on the theory that they not only could be of for strictly military purposes but also could be turned against street demonstrators.

The Nixon Administration has reassured the American Congress expressed directly to the Greek government its concern not only with reports of tortu of persons jailed by the regime but also over continued denial of civil liberties.

Science Inseparable From Faith, Von Braun's Belief

Dr. Werner von Braun, German-born scientist who has played a major role in America's space program, is baffled by persons who suggest that modern science has discredited belief in God.

So far as he is concerned the opposite is true, the scientist says. Since he became director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's George C. Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala., Von Braun has joined the Episcopal Church and has become an avid reader of theology.

Von Braun says he finds it difficult to understand a scientist who doesn't acknowledge the presence of a superior rationality behind the existence of the universe, as it is to comprehend a theologian who would deny the advances of science.

Episcopal Plan To Fill Vacancy Told

The Episcopal Church is taking steps to improve the means by which its clergymen find new pulpits by establishing a national "clergy deployment office."

Such an office would maintain a central data bank on Episcopal clergymen of all dioceses. The bank would supply bishops and vestrys with reliable, up-to-date information on candidates and potential candidates for vacancies.

Vestrys would retain the power of election but bishops would take the initiative in suggesting two or more suitable candidates. The bishop would have the right to refuse to nominate any clergyman, however ardently supported by a vestry, that he considered unsuitable for a job.

A striking feature of the plan is a provision that clergymen would have to be reelected at prescribed intervals in order to retain their jobs.

The first reelection would come at the end of seven years and subsequent reelections would be at five-year intervals.

fundamental principle to the most minute and insignificant parts of His universe, doesn't it make sense to assume that He applies it also to the masterpiece of His creation — the human soul?

Deaf Teenagers' Needs Explored

GLORIETA, N.M. — Workers with deaf Southern Baptist teenagers are adapting publications of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn., for use with their pupils.

Both deaf students and hearing workers with the deaf gathered at Glorieta Baptist Assembly for the first Sunday School Week, to discuss methods of adaptation. Conference leader W. E. Davis, minister to the deaf at First Baptist Church, Knoxville, Tenn., used weekday Bible study materials, filmstrips, and books to illustrate the process of simplification.

Davis explained the special need of vocabulary and sentence structure simplification. "Deaf children enter schools for the deaf with no vocabulary unless they live in a metropolitan area where there is a center for teaching pre-school deaf children," he said.

"The first three years in schools for the deaf are spent in doing pre-school work. First grade work begins at age 10 for deaf children. This handicap is not completely alleviated usually."

For this reason deaf teenagers do not have the ability to understand materials written in teenage language because of reading level, slang, and idioms, Davis explained.

Through the adaptation of such Broadman Press books as "Bible Personalities" by Mary Jane Haley, "The Life of Jesus" by Robbie Trent, and "Great Passages of the Bible" by William N. McElrath, deaf teenagers can learn from the same materials available to their hearing peers.

The use of picture sets, films, and dramatic presentation is an effective means of religious education for the deaf when used with a simplified "signing" of the story.

Throughout the conference, Davis emphasized that regardless of the teaching methods used, the lesson presented teaches three things: appreciation of the Bible, Bible facts, and the relationships of Bible facts to the lives of the teenagers.

Rev. Hager's Sermon Topic Building Tower

"Building a Tower" will be the sermon topic for the Rev. Martin Hager, First Presbyterian Church pastor, at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services, Sunday.

Ruling Elder David Tucker will serve at the pulpit assistant. The Rev. Hager will use Jeremiah 2:1-13 and Luke 14:25-33 as the textual basis of his sermon.

At the 11 worship hour, Mrs. Elaine Whittell will sing the solo, "Hold Thou My Hand" by Curran. Mrs. Fideia Yoder, church organist, will present, "Take My Life and Let It Be," by Malan as the offertory, as well as prelude and postlude music.

Sacrament SC Topic

All Christian Science churches will observe communion this Sunday, it is disclosed by H.E. Skaggs of the Pampa church.

"Subject of the Lesson-Sermon is 'Sacrament' and includes Jesus' words, 'Neither pray I for these alone but for them also which shall believe on me through their word'."

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, is situated at 901 N. Frost. Services are at 11 a.m.

Passages related to Sunday's topic include: "That he might liberally pour his dear-bought treasures into empty or sin-filled human storehouses be the inspiration of Jesus' intense human sacrifice. The purpose of his great life-work extends through time and includes universal humanity."

Fighting For Freedom-Its Own, Says David Poling Of Church

The church is fighting for freedom — its own.

So says David Poling, president of the Christian Herald Association.

Poling, writing for Newspaper Enterprise Association, was referring to the Black Power movement and its Black Manifesto, recently presented to the Christian community.

The first target of the black radical confrontation was the organized church, Poling notes, when James Forman, mastermind of the Manifesto, presented it to the Riverside Drive headquarters of the Church. The manifesto read: "We must boldly go out and attack the white Western world at its power centers. The white Christian churches are another form of government in the country and they are used by the government of this country to exploit the people of Latin America, Asia and Africa, but the day is soon coming to an end..."

"To win our demands from the church, which is linked with the United States government, we must not forget that it will ultimately be by force and power that we will win."

The Rev. Poling goes on, "How you handle the above paragraph will pretty well decide how the racial scene in America unfolds in the next 12 months."

When the black radical confrontation occurred at the church's headquarters, Poling goes on, the occupation of certain floors and offices was outlined in the manifesto. It stated: "We call for the total disruption of select church-sponsored agencies operating anywhere in the United States and the world. It casts serious doubt upon the national denominations and their appointed leaders to handle crises. It is one thing to enter into dialogue with angry and frustrated minorities. But to abdicate control and yield a national office is a shocking indication of immaturity and irresponsibility."

Poling finishes, "At a time when the nation needs all the openness of communication, the broad acceptance of honest dissent and legitimate protest, the Church must not permit the freedom of worship or speech to be shut down by any person, group or cause."

"The Church is quickly learning that if you don't control dissent you invite disaster. If you don't regulate confrontation you will encourage confinement. And if there are no ground rules for protest you will unleash a groundswell of punishment that will be severe and savage, even on the innocent."

Blacks Urge Large Concessions Prodded by a Negro clergy group, a minority segment of the United Church of Christ, the denomination recently embarked upon a broad new course to bolster black influence in the church. It will also back large-scale black development projects in America, a spokesman said.

"We have come together from poles apart," said the Rev. Lawrence L. Durgin, white minister from New York, at the church's Boston convention this week.

Blacks Urge Large Concessions

The 700 members of the 2-million-member church's assembly adopted a series of new programs to augment black decision-making power in the church and to upgrade conditions among black people.

A mostly Negro faction called Ministers for Racial and Social Justice, urged the measures. Included were these provisions: That blacks be given predominant supervision of the church arm for aiding minorities — called The American Missionary Association — with $1 million a year to spend.

That a black-controlled Commission on Racial Justice be set up with immediate income from sources that last year totaled $401,000; and that black be given a firmer budget begetting next year.

That the church's for national agencies give a "significant role" in decision-making to black representatives, as recommended by black clergy group, led by Edwin Edmonds of New Haven, Conn.

That the church, with other denominations, explore possibilities for establishing top-grade black college, big publishing industries, big communications training, big southern land bank for undewriting cooperative farms for Negroes. A group led by the black militant, James Forman, has been pressuring religious bodies for large-scale financial grants to blacks.

"As Arrows in the Hand of a Mighty Man"
 By GUY V. CASKEY

"Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord; and the fruit of the womb is his reward. As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man; so are children of the youth. Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them." Ps. 127:3-5.

Hunting in David's time was the means of securing necessary food, and the tool by which this was accomplished was the bow and arrow. It was also an instrument of war. In our own time, in many countries, it is still used. The African uses it with poisoned arrow to bring down his game. As a sport it is used in the Western world today. Howard Hill is probably the greatest archer, or Bowman, of all time. He's killed about every species of animal on the African continent with bow and arrow—including the Big Five.

Solomon, in this psalm, draws an analogy between children and arrows in the hand of a mighty man (bowman). Success in which we are pointing. In what direction are you pointing your children? What do you want them to be? With them depends upon four things:

- 1. In What Direction We Are Pointing Them.
 There is not anything more important than the direction where do you want them to go? What do you wish them to become? And what do you expect them to accomplish? Are you pointing them toward worldly success and honor? Is the physical, the economic, the social in which you are primarily interested for your children? Most generally an arrow will go in the direction in which you point it.
- 2. The straightness of the aim.
 Are you aiming straight? Are there distractions? Are there other targets we want for them in life? While we want our children to be Christians, do we advise that there are other and greater values in life? Are we by our teaching and example telling them:
 "Get ahead — by hook or by crook?"
 "Do not start anything, but don't take anything off anyone?"
 "Look out after number one. Charity begins at home?"
 "Assert your rights; stand up for yourself?"
 "Go to the top by pushing your way. You are young and live only once?"
- 3. How Hard One Pulls On The Bow.
 Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom. He pointed his children in the wrong direction. He lost his wife and his daughters were very far from what they ought to have been. So, there are those today who, instead of pointing their children toward God, the church, true spirituality and the real values of life, point them toward certain failure, misery, trouble, unhappiness. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 22:6.
- 4. Knowing Exactly When To Let Go.
 Many parents turn their children loose far too soon — almost at birth. They let them go where they want to go. They let them do what they want to do. They exercise no restraint, Eli was a good man but he exercised no discipline upon his children. "He restrained them not." I Sam. 3:13. He lost his wife and his children.

Then it is possible to hold the bowstring too long; and some parents do that. There develops problems. They lack maturity. They are unable to make a way for themselves. Parents intrude themselves into their children's affairs and hence the children never come to a stage of independence, decision and good judgment. It's very important that we know exactly when to let go!

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Our Capsule Policy

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Everyone's Expert On War

There was a time when every man who ever had put on a military uniform considered himself an expert on war and an authority on tactics and strategy. That feeling is no longer confined to the ex-union wide-spread among the general population. And why not? People can sit in their living rooms or dens and watch a present-day war actually being waged and hear volumes of commentary by correspondents. And doesn't everyone read all the pros and cons of every defense issue the nation faces? Who can't speak with authority on the anti-ballistic-missile system or the capability of nuclear weapons—carrying submarines? And who does not know what the country ought to decide about tactical nuclear weapons in minor wars?

Mathematicians who never saw a hand grenade explode can calculate the millions of deaths and the billions of dollars in property damage from a nuclear attack, and can deduce all the consequences to follow. Everybody is an authority on all military matters. Except one:

The chemical and biological weapons.

We hear things from time to time — like that the Defense Department is budgeting $350 million for chemical-biological weapons, that some research institute somewhere has come up with a new gas or a new strain of germ or virus, or that the Red Chinese or the Russians are known to have perfected a new weapon or means of delivering it. Then we push the thought out of mind as one too terrible to think about.

Blowing up the world is one thing, but contaminating the earth with poison and inflicting who knows what horrible disease upon humanity is just too dreadful.

But then came a cheerful thought from one writer who deplores the secrecy surrounding chemical and biological weapons and thinks people would be better able to face up if they had all the facts. It's not all that bad. "Some are among the most humane of weapons. All they would do is temporarily immobilize large populations for a sufficient period of time to permit their capture. They would produce no lasting effects and destroy no property."

Isn't that nice? If a country is going to lose a war, that's just about the best possible way to do it. Would save the winner a great deal of effort, too.

So, if humanity is very lucky, that is the direction military research and planning will take, each country striving to find and master means to win without wholesale death and destruction.

What might such a weapon be? A gas which would harmlessly put populations into an insensible state, or perhaps even a pleasant, dope-like dream? Or might it work better to put something into the water or food supply, powerful drug or virus which runs its course like the flu in a week's time or so?

Something does seem to be lacking, though. What happens after the "capture" if everybody becomes his former self again? There is going to have to be some kind of control, continuing indefinitely.

Otherwise, if the Russians, to take a hypothetical case, attacked America with a don't care gas and took over without resistance, the Americans, upon recovering, might find they are not happy and become downright ugly about it.

Back to rifles and bayonets. The "something lacking" appears to be a way to make the conquered people want to be conquered or not know they have been conquered, or perhaps a combination of both.

That would require a great deal of advance planning and careful work over a period of time. It would depend not upon a few big booms within a few seconds, or upon some silent paralysis for a week, but upon artfully deceptive persuasion for many years.

And it would make "humane" weapons quite as unnecessary as they make unnecessary the horrible weapons.

Those defense planners of ours are thinking every minute, though. Give them another 52 years and they may catch up to right now.

Process Of Influence

Strange reading these days. For instance: "Human relations training fits into a context of institutional influence procedures which includes coercive persuasion in the form of thought reform or brainwashing as well as a multitude of less coercive, informal patterns."

That's how an editor of Issues in Training (series No. 5) 1962, National Training Laboratories of the National Education Association, Washington, D.C., prefaced an article.

The article was Edgar H. Schein's adaptation of "Management Development as a Process of Influence," originally in Industrial Management Review.

It makes no bones about thought reform, for it commences. "In the present paper I would like to cast management as the problem of how an organization can influence the beliefs, attitudes, and values (hereafter simply called attitudes) of an individual for the purpose of 'developing' him, i.e., changing him in a direction which the organization regards to be in his own and the organization's best interest."

Now, just the idea of training people to do a better job and teaching them to undertake new tasks and responsibilities where the individual is aware of the training effort and accepts it voluntarily, the idea of thus "changing him" does not sound so alarming. The trainee and employer do have interests in common, and if an individual begins to think the training is not in his best interest, he can always get out.

But the above quotes are from a training manual for group leaders. The manual is put out by the National Education Association and those to be managed are children. Children are captive subjects to the experimentation of the group leaders of the state-controlled school system who will "change him in a direction which the organization regards to be in his own and the organization's best interest." If a parent does not want someone else deciding to change his child and is opposed to the direction in which he is changed, he must think of alternatives.

Repeat the editor's words "... institutional influence procedures which includes coercive persuasion..." It does not seem far off the mark to think, with a shudder, of Orwell's "1984."

It is interesting that the manual's editor admits the coercive aspect of this type of training. If this is what some teachers, the NEA, and the tax-supported school system have in store for us, we are surprised there is not a mass exodus from the tax-supported schools into private schools, which would not dare utilize such processes without the knowledge and consent of parents for fear of losing business once the practice became known.

If we remember rightly a guy named Adolf Schicklgruber once had something like this going for him in the 1930s and 1940s in Germany.

The American Way

By D. R. SEGAL
I should like to chat with you, if I may, about Gupton Vogt, a fellow I have known for some years. Gupton Vogt is a name W. C. Fields would have cherished, but I can vouch for the authenticity of this fellow. He's for real.

Gupton Vogt is a salesman of flags, out of St. Louis, Mo. He shares with me an enthusiasm for South Padre Island, a 120-mile sandspit off the shore of extreme south Texas, but we also have a business association. The newspapers with which I'm connected have sold many of his fine flags. So if you want to pursue some conflict-of-interest action, I plead no contest, Abe.

My association with Gupton Vogt has been educational because I never thought a whole lot about flags one way or the other, to tell you the truth. As a kid I remember doing something called "pledge allegiance-to-the-flag" as if it were all one word, with liberty and justice for all. We used to follow that with a little prayer, which — come to think of it — has some real bearing on the matter of church and state separation. But that is for another time.

The newspaper for which I then toiled, 15 years ago, had never got involved in the flag-selling business and I confess to a certain spookiness about the whole thing. Frankly, I didn't think there was much market for flags.

But, two things, became apparent: a) there is a good demand for flags and b) it's often difficult to buy one. Where in your town would you go about buying a half dozen flags? It's one of those items which ought to be readily available, but where?

We went through our first couple of hundred flags with astonishing speed. One local merchant got sore because he had had an American flag in stock for 10 years and he said we were cutting in on his territory. You figure it.

We sold some state flags, too. The state suddenly had said that every school receiving state support had to fly a state flag, and there just were not enough state flags to go around. All the states support "local" schools, you know. I figured it might serve to wake up the local populace when they saw the required state flag flying over their "local" schools, but it did not raise a flicker of pulse. We are getting numb.

At the time of my first flag-selling venture, I was in the vineyard of the newspaper in Brownsville, Tex., E.E.U., which is on the Mexican border. We thought it would be a good idea to lay in a supply of Mexican flags, but we got shot out of the saddle on that one. Most flags are made of cotton and you can't import cotton products from Mexico into the United States so we couldn't wait.

But what I started to say was that flag-selling has given me an educational view of nationalism. People can get quite emotional about the flag, and I'm among that number. Each of us sees, in the flag, whatever we cherish most in the traditions of our country; and it's a worthwhile exercise to reflect that what we honor is not paternalism but freedom.

The pledge of allegiance contains no reference to the infallibility of the majority or the mystic powers of the state. It memorializes, instead, the wisdom and foresight of our earliest commitment to freedom.

It's a good feeling.

Today is Friday, July 11, the 192nd day of 1969 with 173 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history: In 1864, America's economists claimed that Civil War inflation had cut the value of the dollar to 39 cents.

In 1933 all school teachers in Germany were ordered to read Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf" to become familiar with the Nazi creed.

In 1952 Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was nominated as Republican presidential candidate with Richard Nixon as his running mate.

In 1955 the U.S. Air Force Academy was dedicated with 306 cadets in its first class.

A thought for the day: John Calhoun said: "The surrender of life is nothing compared to acknowledgement of inferiority."

The Manion Forum

By MARILYN MANION

In Church: Religion Or Politics? Communist Party. One example:

Some weeks ago in this column, we reviewed the remarks of Major Edgar C. Bundy, who is the Executive Secretary of the Church League of America. Bundy, in two interviews on the Manion Forum radio program, discussed the subject of Communism in our churches.

The response to the radio interviews and this column was enormous. Many persons have challenged Major Bundy to verify what he said over the program. Therefore, Dean Clarence Manion invited him back for a return engagement on the Manion Forum. (Our space is too limited to include the complete testimony. For copies of all three Bundy broadcasts, send 30 cents to the Manion Forum, South Bend, Ind.)

On his latest radio interview, Bundy reminded his audience that he had not made any unfounded charges; he had quoted from public sources, such as the

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and proper function of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION:—Do you think unions should have more power than the President of the U.S.A? —E. W.

ANSWER: We presume Mr. E. W. means to ask if we believe some labor union officials should have more power than the President of the United States. Our answer is no. We believe no individual should have more power than another.

The News believes the individual is supreme and should have power only to regulate his own actions, so long as he harms no other.

Granted, under the present political system, the President of the United States seems to have been ceded a great deal of power to control the lives of other individuals, and politically motivated union officials have similar powers over their fellows; we deny they have any right to such powers.

In his explanatory comments to us, Mr. E. W. says he thinks union officials now have more power than the President, and that he believes they should not have such power. We agree. But we do not believe either should have power to control others' lives and actions.

The cession of power to politicians and union officials stems from a lack of willingness on the part of too many individuals to stand on their own feet and to be self-reliant and self-responsible. They have turned over too many of their activities to government or to unions because they apparently fear to be independent. Through the process of majority decisions, they have attempted to deprive individuals in the minority of their natural right to make their own decisions.

The Doctor Says

Several Causes Of Double Vision

Q—What causes a person to see double? When I watch television I see two pictures instead of one.

A—Double vision in one eye may be due to a dislocation of the crystalline lens, corneal irregularities or partial retinal detachment. With both eyes open, double vision normally occurs if you hold a finger close to your eyes and look into the distance, and abnormally when one of the muscles that controls the movements of the eyeballs is paralyzed. If it occurs only when you watch TV, your antenna may need adjusting. (TV antenna, that is).

Q—Is nearsightedness inherited?

A—Nearsightedness may be hereditary or acquired through excessive use of your eyes for close work with poor illumination.

Q—Would reading while lying down or in a moving vehicle harm one's eyes? If so, how?

A—Reading while lying on your back or in a moving vehicle will probably do no permanent damage but will cause ocular fatigue and should not be done for prolonged periods.

Q—If the eyes are failing, would it help to have my glasses changed?

A—Since there are several causes for failing vision, you should have a complete eye examination, including ocular tension. A need for new glasses is only one of the possible causes.

Q—I lived in India for two years and contracted trachoma. Although I have been treating it for 18 months, it is not cured. What do you advise?

A—Such antibiotics as penicillin, tetracycline and erythromycin in eye drops usually cures this potentially blinding disease.

Q—With all the advances made in medical science, why is a broken hip still a permanent injury?

A—Great advances have been made in the treatment of all fractures, including those of the hip, so that in most victims the disability is far from permanent. In elderly and occasionally younger patients, however, such complications as non-union, demineralization of the bone and infection in the marrow canal may cause an imperfect result.

Q—In a recent column you said that excessive coffee drinking could damage the heart. Is this due entirely to the caffeine in the coffee? Would drinking decaffeinated coffee eliminate the danger?

A—Yes to both questions.

Border Battles, Not Wars, Best Bet on Sino-Soviet

WASHINGTON — Hostilities on the Sino-Soviet border and their angry and continuing propaganda aftermath have prompted an exhaustive reappraisal here of the possibility of a full-scale military confrontation between Russia and China.

For the present, the odds do NOT appear to favor any such major conflict between the two Communist giants. Recurrent border fighting is quite likely, however, and any such incident could be pressed to the point where it could reverse those current odds.

In its review, the intelligence community here is well aware that all the final judgments may not have been made, in Moscow and Peking, with respect to the clashes which erupted this spring and resulted in fatalities on both sides.

It's assumed, for example, that some Soviet hard-liners are favoring further action to teach the Chinese a lesson. That attitude strengthens the hand of the Kremlin leaders who want to deal with the China problem now, before Peking achieves a readily deliverable nuclear punch.

In the eyes of the experts, a disciplinary move by Russia could involve no more than a major action, localized at the border. It might, however, involve much more: an intrusion of Russian forces into China or an air strike against Peking's nuclear production facilities in Sinkiang province.

In that connection, the recent closing of the trans-Siberian railway to civilian traffic has been the subject of much speculation by China watchers and Kremlinologists. The action suggested, of course, that the Kremlin was trying to hide major troop movements.

The reopening of the railway for civilian travelers, which is now reported, may mean only that redeployment of troop units has been completed.

FORCES DOUBLED — Since 1965, when Russia began strengthening its defenses along the 4,000 mile border with China, the strength of Soviet forces there is believed to have doubled.

Recent estimates indicate that between 25 and 30 Russian divisions have been assigned to border duties. That would mean a force of perhaps 250,000 men, depending on whether the divisions were generally at full strength.

Border troubles have occasionally been reported over the years. This time, however, Moscow and Peking have given maximum publicity to charges and counter-charges arising from two armed clashes between border units.

It's generally believed here that the Chinese started the first of the clashes in the Ussuri River area, which killed 30 Russians, at the beginning of March. There's some question whether the action was locally provoked or ordered by authorities in Peking. However, the then impending Moscow meeting of world Communist leaders suggests that the incident was a Peking-inspired embarrassment.

In mid-March there was a second clash, and this one is thought to have been a Russian ambush which trapped a sizable Chinese force. Some two hundred Chinese are believed to have been killed.

TWO FRONTS — Sino-Soviet talks on boundary river navigation problems are currently in progress. Russia has proposed that the more explosive border problems be discussed in early autumn, and each side is now trying to make the other appear to be the unbending aggressor.

In this maneuvering, the Chinese want Russia to admit that the old boundary treaties between the two nations is unfair. If Russia makes an admission of that sort however, it's saying that large chunks of Russian real estate are being unfairly held.

The experts who feel that a full-scale confrontation will not grow out of the border differences see the Kremlin heavily engaged on two fronts — and free to move boldly on neither of them. Besides the Chinese Communists now seeking territorial aggrandizement, there is the long struggle with the bourgeois free world.

In this context, the border hostility could even mean that the Kremlin will bargain seriously in the strategic armistice talks now scheduled to begin in August between the U.S. and USSR.

Not infrequently in discussing Sino-Soviet hostilities, the experts here are reminded that a similar sort of self-serving logic clearly dictated that Russia should not invade Czechoslovakia. That bit of logic was clearly ignored.

The experts reply, however, that there is a vast difference between moving against a small European satellite, vastly outnumbered, and moving against the all but unlimited manpower resources of mainland China.

A LOOK AT THE BOOK

By DR. BOB JONES

Christ said to Peter, "Feed My sheep" (John 21:15). That was a strange command to give Peter. Peter was not a shepherd. He was a fisherman. He was to follow Jesus and be a soul winner, an evangelist.

Christ's call to Peter had been to follow Him and be a fisher of men (Matthew 4:19); but the Saviour, just before ascending to heaven, gave to Peter this command to feed His sheep — the duty of the pastor, the shepherd.

The inference here is plain, indeed. No disciple of the Lord is ever called to just one task and is completely free from the responsibility of every other. A real child of God has the obligation of performing any service which he may find at hand.

The Bible plainly teaches that God has called every Christian to certain specific tasks and has given him the gifts and talents necessary for the successful performance of those tasks, but this does not relieve the Christian from obligations and duties outside of his own particular field. Every Christian should be a soul winner, though.

I have known Christians who were so interested in foreign missions that they neglected the opportunities at their own front door. I have known Christian men, occupied with the effort of earning a living and providing material comforts for their families, who allowed their own boys to grow up practically strangers to them, without the companionship which every son has a right to expect of his father.

Modern life is complex. No Christian in this day has only one responsibility. In using the particular gifts with which God has endowed us and in following the path of service to which we have been called, we sometimes forget that we have an obligation to take advantage of every opportunity for service and testimony which God sends our way in whatever field of endeavor it may lie.

Car In Pool Proves As Problem

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)—Mrs. Helen Howe has a small problem—an automobile in her swimming pool. And some of the suggestions on how to get it out are as off-beat as the way it got in.

Last Saturday the unoccupied 1968 Austin America rolled over a cliff above her house and plunged down into the pool.

"One person thought we might be able to get it out by buying an inflatable raft and placing it under the car in an attempt to float it up," Mrs. Howe said.

"And some scuba divers called and offered to dismantle it under water," she added.

A troop of Boy Scouts wanted to make a summer project out of removing the car from the swimming pool. All Mrs. Howe had to do was pay for the cost of materials.

"They were really sincere about it, but I don't think I could take a full summer of boy scouts working in my back yard," she said.

Mrs. Howe has three small children, one of whom is charging five cents admission to look at the car on the bottom of the pool.

In 1943 American, Canadian and British forces invaded Sicily.

MORE PROTECTION

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House is considering more police protection for embassies in Washington because "some problems have arisen relating to the well being of those who work in the embassies." Presidential spokesman Ronald Ziegler did not specify whether the added protection would be needed because of political demonstrations or local crime conditions. On Monday, shortly before the arrival of Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, a group of demonstrators claiming to be Ethiopian students ransacked the Ethiopian Embassy.

Sunday the city's 14-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars host Borger's Pony League stars in a 2:30 p.m. game at Optimist Club Park.

The same two teams will meet July 17 in a return game at 7:30 p.m. in Borger.

Trio's Play Indicates Choice On Star Team

The Pampa Daily News

By United Press International

Willie McCovey, Hank Aaron and Ron Santo were named to the National League's All-Star team today and if any justification is needed, they showed why Thursday.

McCovey, chosen at first base, doubled in two runs as the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-0. Aaron, the right fielder, also doubled in two runs as the Atlanta Braves edged the San Diego Padres, 3-1. Santo, the third baseman, had a two-run homer to cap a five-run fifth inning in the Chicago Cubs' 6-2 victory over the New York Mets and Bench, the catcher, singled in two runs in the 10th inning to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros.

In other scheduled games: Pittsburgh shaded Montreal, 2-1, in 11 innings and St. Louis ripped Philadelphia 9-3. McCovey's double came in the third inning after Ron Hunt

American League Roundup

Everybody A Star On Orioles Team

By United Press International

Frank Robinson subscribes to the general club feeling that there are no individual stars on the Baltimore Orioles.

The Baltimore slugger hit his 20th homer Thursday night in the first inning and drove in the winning run with a single in the ninth to beat the Boston Red Sox, 5-4, and increase the Orioles' Eastern Division lead to 13 games.

Robinson pointed to several outstanding efforts by his Baltimore teammates. There was Paul Blair's 14th stolen base in 16 attempts that preceded Frank's game-winning hit. There was Jim Hardin's first complete game since May 4 to even his record at 4-4. There was Andy Etchebarren's seventh-inning homer which broke a 3-3 tie.

Detroit lost ground when Cleveland beat the Tigers 7-5, in 11 innings, Oakland routed Chicago, 12-2 and Minnesota edged Kansas City, 6-5. The only other scheduled game, California at Seattle, was rained out.

Tony Horfan stroked a two-out bases-loaded single that beat Detroit and made reliever Tom Timmerman's first major league decision a losing one. Ken Harrelson also drove in two runs for Cleveland with his 14th homer. Norm Cash and Jim Price connected for the Tigers.

Oakland staged its biggest rally of the season with an eight-run fourth inning against Chicago, capped by All-Star third baseman Sal Bando's three-run homer. Five singles and a double accounted for the other five runs as John Odom recorded his 12th victory. Chicago was limited to three hits, including homers by Luis Aparicio and Buddy Bradford. Minnesota received heavy batting support in the early innings and then had to hang on to edge Kansas City. Rod Laver tripled and doubled in the first two innings to account for two Twins runs and Harmon Killebrew hit his 25th homer in the third frame. The Royals rallied for four runs in the seventh inning, but reliever Ron Perranoski closed out the threat for his 17th save and Dave Boswell's 11th win.

Irishman Moves Close to Lead In British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI)—Veteran Irishman Christy O'Connor displayed putting magic Thursday to crack the course record here and challenge for the lead in the British Open golf championship.

The craggy-faced, fiery Irishman holed out from 20 feet on the 18th green to finish the second round of the 72-hole championship with a record 65, and get within one stroke of leader Bob Charles at 136.

Seventy-three players made the cutoff mark of 151 for today's third round, including 11 of the 13 American challengers, and in all 25 overseas players will be in action. Rich Basset, of upper Montclair, N.J., was the only American eliminated.

Australia has four survivors, South Africa and Spain three each and New Zealand, na, Belgium, France and Holland all have one representative.

Leading the American challenge are former and current U.S. Open champion Billy Casper, with a two-under-par 140, and Orville Moody who is at 141.

Between them and the leading pair are young Englishmen: Tony Jacklin, who now plays out of the Sea Island club, Ga., and Alex Caygill. Both have four-under-par totals of 138.

Leading the American challenge are former and current U.S. Open champion Billy Casper, with a two-under-par 140, and Orville Moody who is at 141.

Manny Sanguillen's bases-loaded single with one out in the 11th gave the Pirates their victory over the Expos. The Pirates loaded the bases on a walk, an error and another walk before Sanguillen singled off loser Dan McGinn.

Julian Javier drove in four runs with a double and a two-run homer to power the Cardinals over the Phillies. Javier doubled in the fourth after Vada Pinson walked and Joe Torre doubled and hit his fifth homer of the season in the sixth following Tim McCarver's single.

Nervous Golfer Leads Way In Public Links

ERIE, Pa. (UPI)—Fidgety Steve Cook stopped biting his fingernails a couple of months ago because "I just thought it was a ridiculous habit."

"I'm a nervous person," explained the 20-year-old Cook, who has paced, snapped his fingers and hummed his way to a three-stroke lead at the halfway point of the National Public Links golf tournament.

Cook shot a 73 Thursday to give him an even par 142 after two rounds.

Art Fujita of Honolulu and Fred Lufkin of Spokane, Wash., were tied for second place with 145. Close behind with 146 were Gene Towry of Austin, Tex., the defending champion, and 17-year-old Larry Zee of Tonawanda, N.Y.

Aaron Named To Play In 15th Star Game

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves was named to his 15th All-Star assignment today in the National League's bid to counter the home-run punch assembled by the American League for the July 22 mid-season classic in Washington.

The 35-year-old Aaron, No. 5 on the all-time homer list with 533, drew 295 votes from players and coaches, one short of the top 296 collected by Willie McCovey of San Francisco as first base.

Atlanta and Chicago each had two representatives named to the starting lineup as the NL goes after its seventh straight All-Star victory.

Felix Milan of the Braves beat out Glenn Beckert of Chicago, 137-110, at second base. The Cubs have an infield entry of Don Kessinger at shortstop and Ron Santo at third base.

Rounding out the starting outfield are Matty Alou of Pittsburgh (232 votes) and Cleon Jones of New York (152). Johnny Bench of Cincinnati was selected as catcher.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television movies have kept alive the memory of many a veteran actor who deserved praise for solid work, but might otherwise have been forgotten.

This is particularly true of some of the lesser leading men, and also of character actors who were overshadowed in the presence of stars.

Randolph Scott, for instance, was known pretty much as a Western star, and that's really what he was, of course, even if he did look great in white tie and tails.

But just because he appeared in B-Westerns, that doesn't mean he wasn't—and isn't—a pleasure to watch. He holds up well over the long haul, one of the more courtly and attractive headliners in pioneer epics.

George Raft really was terrific in a movie way that counts—nobody was ever like him. He represented a whole era and an entire milieu, and he is easy to take in reruns.

Victor Mature was known through publicity, for his beefcake photos and his excellent build. But forget those epics he appeared in—biblical and the like—and get a load of him as a sympathetic tough guy—in those earthy, wordy little dramas set in New York, in the Broadway scene of promoters, characters and caps. He was good. Plenty good.

Jack Oakie and Jack Carson were probably two of the most pleasant, and peculiarly American, performers ever to hit the screen. Both gregarious, both great bluffers, both eminently vulnerable, they were everybody's best friends.

When it came to accented character acting, Oscar Homolka and Akim Tamiroff and Gregory Ratoff picked up countless movies by the bootstraps and rescued them from the blandness of countless forgotten leading men.

John Wayne. Well, he was a pretty underrated performer for years too, despite being a star. Just catch him on those countless reruns, and watch a pro at work. And if you want to see a piece of star-like character acting that rates with the most memorable in movie history, go see him in "True Grit." I mean, it is a beautiful sight to see what he does in this picture.

The Crazy World That Is Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Odds and ends from the nation's capital—mostly odd.

Workmen are gouging a big hole just off Pennsylvania Avenue. Washington's main drag for all these years, wherein will rest the foundation of a new FBI headquarters.

People from the Smithsonian Institution, which collects things, have been nosing around the site, collecting artifacts.

"Interest in the site dates back to 1791," the Smithsonian reports. "When Andrew Ellicott and James Banneker surveyed the future District of Columbia."

The release went on to describe what has been found—old wine bottles, remains of privies and such. It reported in closing:

"The most modern article dug up at the site is certainly not going to be of any less historical interest. It is a collection of several dozen round metal discs with the letters 'LBI' painted in red on the front."

Another goody from the parade of press releases ("handouts," if you don't prefer the euphemism):

—Kolkov's structure functions for the longitudinal and transverse components of locally homogeneous isotropic turbulence are combined vectorially to obtain an expression which permits the evaluation of E (atmospheric dissipation rate) from climatological data.

One of the nation's least known controversies must have been that one over definition of motel rooms.

It now comes to light that Genevieve Anderson, president of the Washington-based Motel Association of America, has undertaken to solve the problem. She announced a "recommended formula":

"Single—1 person, 1 bed.
"Double—2 persons, 1 bed.
"Twins—2 persons, 2 single beds.
"Double double—1 room, 2 double beds.
"Suite—2 rooms: 1 for sleeping; 1 for parlor.
"Efficiency—to contain some type of kitchen activities."
Nice to have that all settled.

FOLLOWING IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS is not an usual in-business, so why not in politics? Both major parties have father-son combinations in Congress this year. For the Republicans there are Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and his son, Barry Jr., who is California's 27th District House Representative, top photo. On the Democratic side, Missouri's Sen. Stuart Symington and his son, James, who is in the House.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — Not only the permanent residents of Cheyenne, but servicemen stationed at Warren Air Force Base here, are involved in the annual Cheyenne Frontier Days celebration set this year for July 22 through 27.

Col. Ben Murphy of Warren is a member of the 5-man volunteer committee which heads the planning and producing of "Daddy of 'em All."

He also is responsible for the coronation ball, first event of the week-long gala.

About 300 servicemen are involved with plans for Frontier Days, together with hundreds of civilians. Service bands also will enliven the performance and street parades this year.

Most famous of the military groups will be the Thunderbirds who have scheduled a flyover of the base at 9:30 a.m. July 23. Also highlighting the celebration will be the 61-member 31st Naval Scabbe Regiment. The band will perform at every parade.

Other groups include the Ellsworth Air Force Band, Rabid City, S.D.; the Pendleton Marine Band, Calif.; Marine Corps Drum and Bugle Corps, Arlington, Va.; Fort Carson Mounted Color Guard, Fort Carson, Colo.; and Lowry Air Force Base Drum and Bugle Corps, Denver.

Hollywood Reports

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Author Norman Zierold has written a book titled "The Moguls" dealing with the giants who built the motion picture empires, and their sons who watched them crumble.

Zierold interviewed hundreds of persons in his research on Louis B. Meyer, Adolph Zukor, Sam Goldwyn, Carl Laemmle, Cecil B. DeMille, the Warner Brothers, Harry Cohn, William Fox and Darryl Zanuck.

Most Jewish
Writer Zierold concluded that these tough, shrewd men, none of whom sprang from the arts, were successful because of the exception of Zanuck—they were Jewish or partly Jewish.

"They understood the great immigration during the turn of the century," Zierold explained. "They or their parents were part of it.

"They had great instinct for what immigrants would enjoy on the screen. They were gamblers. And they combined guts with showmanship."

Whereas many a star's day of the mogul is dead.

The FBI Has Means Of Capturing Its Men

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The FBI has one surefire means of capturing the men on its "10 most wanted" list: A television show.

Producer Quinn Martin, guiding "The FBI" show into its fifth year, has the star, Eileen Zumbalst Jr., appear at the end of every fourth show to announce that a particular felon is being sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A mug shot of the miscreant is flashed on millions of sets across the country accompanied by Zumbalst's description of the wanted man.

And presto! Within a short time tips begin arriving at various FBI offices and the desperado is apprehended.

"We've been running those most-wanted tags for more than two years now," Martin said with a measure of pride. "And so far they've captured every single one of them."

Thus far Martin has produced 2,114 episodes in the series involving kidnaping, murder, Communist espionage, ultra-left militants, right wing crackpots, extortionists and every sort of criminal.

All cases are taken from the FBI files.

"It should be noted we are given access only to closed cases," Martin said. "And the bureau has been helpful in giving us technical advice so that we don't run anything that would distort its work."

Martin said that in four years

reprisal.
