

Proposed Tax Bill To Cost $328 Million

Thorough Rewriting By Senate Almost Certain

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A House tax bill that would cost Texans $328 million in new sales, cigarette and amusement taxes goes today to the state Senate, which is almost certain to give it a thorough rewriting.

Directors Say Rodeo Financial Success In Pampa

Pampa's 25th annual rodeo last month at Recreation Park was a financial success, it was revealed at Thursday night's meeting of Top O' Texas Rodeo Association directors.

Officers and directors met to review the 1969 rodeo and heard reports from various committee chairmen.

Rex McAnelly, association president, stated that while attendance was slightly under last year, this year's show broke better than even.

"Since we are a non-profit organization," McAnelly said, "we're always happy when the gate receipts exceed the expenses."

Any money over actual expenses always is turned back to improve rodeo facilities, the association president added.

Reports showed there were 11,876 paid admissions to this year's rodeo compared to 12,250 last year. Ticket sales totaled $20,859. The figure was $2,017 under last year's $22,017.50.

The amount of money which this year's show was under last year's was practically all made up by a sizeable reduction in 1969 expenses, it was stated.

McAnelly also named a nominating committee, headed by Bill Tidwell, to pick a slate of 22 names from which 11 new directors will be elected to 3-year terms in October.

Raw Courage Displayed In Nude Sky Dive

LYON, Wis. (UPI)—Nine male members of the Milwaukee Sky Divers Club plan to parachute into a nudist camp Sunday—naked.

The exhibition of raw courage, club president, Ray Maguire, 31, said Thursday, will be the second nude sky dive made by club members. A nude dive was made last year but kept under wraps, he said.

Maguire said no female members of the club would make the jump because "we couldn't talk them into it."

Walworth County Sheriff William Cummings said that if he sees any naked bodies suspended from billowing parachutes he will arrest them on charges of indecent exposure or disorderly conduct. Maguire said the jump would go on anyway.

"It's a legal jump because we'll be landing in the camp," Maguire said. "Besides, we'll be coming in high enough that people on the ground outside the camp won't be able to see us with the naked eye."

Councilmen Seek Solution For New Financial Dilemma

City's Money Problem Has Two Alternatives

By TEX DEWEESE News Staff Writer

Pampa city councilmen met for two hours and a half yesterday afternoon to study City Manager Charles Hill's recommendations on the proposed 1969-70 budget, but wound up spending most of their time figuring how to get the city out of its upcoming financial impasse.

No matter what direction the discussion took it always came back to the starting point at which the councilmen agreed Pampa was faced with two alternatives to keep from going broke and eliminating some public services. These alternatives were:

1. Voter approval of a one-cent city sales tax.
2. Increasing the city's overall ad valorem tax rate from the current $1.72 to $2.12.

In either event, there appears to be a solid probability of a 25 or 50-cent increase in the monthly charge for trash collection by the city sanitation department.

While nothing was actually finalized at yesterday's special meeting, it became clear it would be a better than safe bet that legislation will be introduced at next Tuesday's regular city commission meeting setting a date for a late September election on the one-cent sales tax.

Testimony Heard On Charges Against Attorney

Testimony was being heard in Justice of Peace E. L. Anderson's court Friday morning on charges of disorderly conduct against Pampa attorney James R. Bowers, his wife Linda and brother-in-law, Tommy Henley.

All three had been released without bond Thursday by Judge Anderson. Charges against Bowers and his wife were brought by Mrs. Harley Woods, manager of the Rustic Inn and charges against Henley were brought by Pampa police officer Jimmy Woods.

First to be heard by Anderson Friday was Diana Swinford, 22, a waitress at the restaurant where the trouble took place. The woman said Henley had admitted to the commission meeting setting a date for a late September election on the one-cent sales tax.

There was much talk among Pampa councilmen about the recommendation of a citizens' committee at Amarillo urging adoption of the sales tax there. A Pampa citizens' finance committee also has recommended its adoption locally.

The Amarillo committee also urged a 10-cent reduction in the city tax rate if the sales tax is approved by voters. A tax rate reduction in Pampa is not in the cards, but it was indicated yesterday a 50-cent property tax rate hike is anticipated if the sales tax proposal is turned down by local voters.

In all probability the Pampa sales tax election will be set for Sept. 22 or Sept. 24. Amarillo is expected to vote on it Sept. 22. Although the date has not yet been set, it is believed the election will be called by the Amarillo city commission next Tuesday.

Best educated guess among city officials and councilmen at yesterday's meeting was that a one-cent city sales tax would result in annual revenue of $200,000 to $225,000. The figures are based on the general pattern in cities which already have the tax that it amounts to around $8 to $10 per capita.

Setting Pampa's population at 25,000 this would mean $200,000 at $8 per person. In other words, each Pampa would spend about $800 a year under

Pampan Charged With Murder Without Malice

Mandred Edward Davis, 630 N. Banks, was charged with murder without malice by a Potter County grand jury yesterday afternoon.

Refiling of charges against Davis, a 46-year-old double amputee, were made following the death of Mrs. Sherri Gwen Dodson, 24, 309 Maryland, Wednesday night.

Davis, arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol following the July 31 accident, which claimed the lives of Mrs. Dodson and her two unborn twins, was charged with assault with a motor vehicle, July 1 and is still being held under $5000 bond set on that charge.

The accident occurred about 5:15 p.m., July 31 when Mrs. Dodson's car collided head-on with the hard-control equipped station wagon driven by Davis.

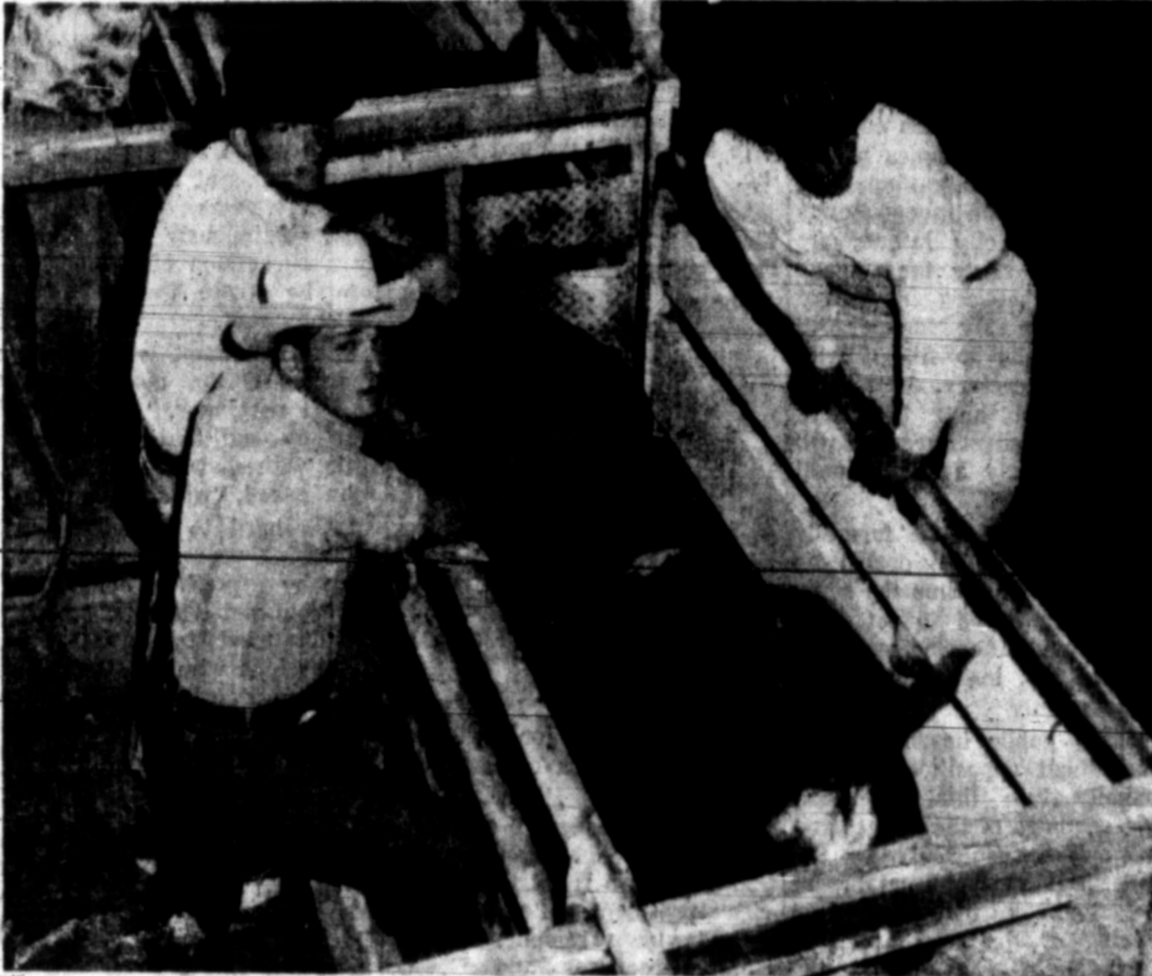

The station wagon was traveling east in west bound traffic at the time of the accident.

Twin girls were delivered stillborn from Mrs. Dodson in the emergency room of St. Anthony's Hospital shortly after the accident. Neither Scott Dodson, 6, nor Becky Dodson, 2, who were also in the crash, received serious injury.

Davis, who had received a broken arm in the crash, was transferred from Potter County jail to the Veteran's Administration Hospital following treatment.

He was returned to the custody of the Potter County sheriff's department Wednesday afternoon.

Results of a blood test given Davis immediately following the accident to determine the alcohol content of his blood, will not be made known immediately. (See PAMPAN, Page 2)

Spirit, Grit Highlight WD Rodeo

By DORIS E. WILSON News Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — Grit, spirit and plenty of hair-raising action highlighted Thursday's opening night performance of the annual White Deer Rodeo.

Cowboys, large and small from all over the Panhandle area are competing at 8 nightly through Saturday for purses that total $3,500.

First night rodeo fans were well-pleased with the Wild Mare Race, a nightly feature, that saw a team of three cowboys saddling and mounting a wild bucking mare, riding her to the far end of the arena, returning to the finish line and then unsaddling the still much-spirited animal.

Fast times were clocked in the saddle and bareback bronc riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, bull riding, barrel racing, team roping and Pony Express relays.

An added filip to the first night events was a free barbecue served to more than 2,000 rodeo fans preceding the first event.

Riding in the Grand Entry with Grady Milton, president of the White Deer Riding Club, was the White Deer Rodeo Queen, Nancy Harlan, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Harlan, Skellytown.

The attractive, brown-eyed brunette, a White Deer High School junior, was named rodeo queen in a contest held July 28.

Rodeo clowns Tommy Wethington of Nazareth, a student at Texas Tech and Pat Turk of Pampa are providing more than the usual amount of rodeo fun and daring action.

A rodeo parade at 5 p.m. Saturday will lead off the final performance at 8 p.m. in the rodeo arena located 12 miles west of Pampa on U.S. Highway 17.

Stock for the rodeo is provided by Rajen Rodeo Co. of Happy. Sponsors are The

Five More Businesses Enter Show This Year

If increased participation reflects improvement in quality then the second annual Fall Festival Style Show and Miss Top O' Texas Pageant should be at least one and one-fourth times as good as last year's.

Five more businesses have entered beauty contestants in this year's pageant than in last year's show.

Miss Hi-land Young Fashions for this year's contest is Susan Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Lowe, 408 Lowry, whose picture was in Thursday's edition of The News.

Miss Lowe, like many of the contestants was surprised when she was asked to compete.

The West Texas State sophomore was asked to represent Hi-land Young Fashions where she is employed for the summer. She enjoys spectator sports and water sports, swimming and skiing. During high school, the 1968 Pampa High School graduate was a member of choir and the Distributive Education program.

She has retained her interest in business and is majoring in it at WTSU. When she graduates her plans are to go into business management. Describing her reaction to being asked to enter the pageant, Jean Skaggs, Miss Montgomery Ward, said, "I was shocked when they asked me, but I'm thrilled to be in it."

Miss Skaggs is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Skaggs, who live east of the city. The 1968 Pampa High School graduate is a sophomore elementary education major at West Texas State University. She enjoys poetry and is majoring in English.

While in Pampa High, the 19-year-old co-ed was a member of the National Honor Society, Latin Club Future Teachers of America and the Order of the Rainbow for Girls, received the Office Award and was named Business and Professional Women's Girl of the Month.

This summer she is working at Montgomery Ward, but in her spare time, Miss Skaggs enjoys cooking, playing tennis and just "being around people."

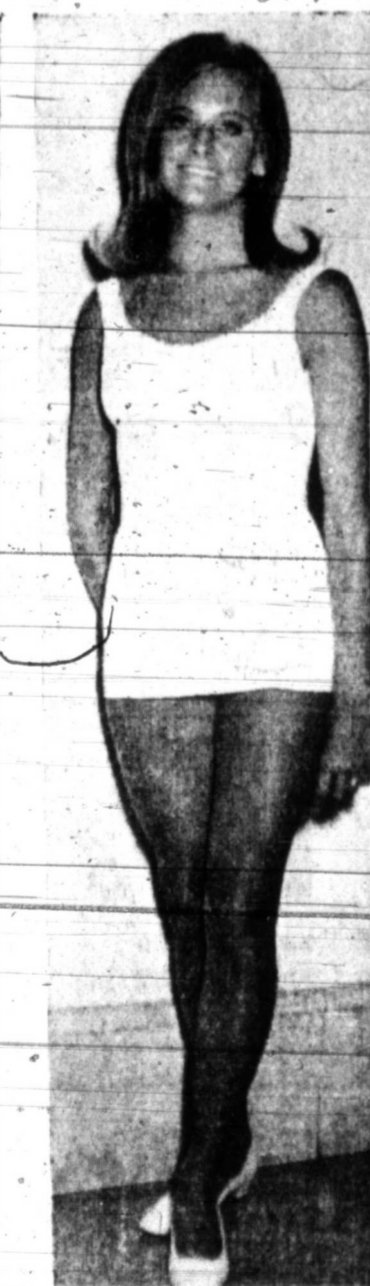

Surfing is the main hobby of Pam Martin. Miss Brown and Freeman's Mens Wear, since her family returned from a Hawaiian vacation.

But Miss Martin, 17-year-old daughter of G. M. Martin, 2417 Duncan, also likes water skiing, snow skiing, playing volleyball, spectator sports—in fact almost

Heat, Humidity Stay In Pampa

The weekend is expected to remain hot and dry for Pampans—with temperatures in the high 90s and humidity hovering in the 20s.

Fair skies and southwest winds at 15 to 25 mph will not offer much relief. Low tonight should be in the upper 60s, and the high for Saturday should be in the upper 90s.

Yesterday Pampa had a high of 96-69. The lakes will probably be full around all of Texas this weekend. Clear skies and warm temperatures prevailed over Texas Thursday night. A large area of showers and thundershowers was reported off the lower gulf Coast moving landward.

Early morning cloudiness was reported in South Central Texas and along the coast. Overnight temperatures ranged in the mid to upper 70s and lower 80s. Thursday's readings were in the 90s to around 100.

SATURDAY, AUG. 9

YOUR BIRTHDAY SATURDAY: Achievement this year can be much greater than last; people now offer more cooperation and you rise to higher levels. All emotional interests should improve. Saturday's natives take an expansive approach to life, often pursuing diverse interests at the same time (with results). The temptation this year is to take on one too many.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make a bright and early start either for business or pleasure, but do not mix! Serious issues of a romantic nature can be talked about now without frivolity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get right into the weekend chores and clear the way for an interesting tomorrow. Relatives and neighbors are exceptionally pleasant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Older people are full of advice. Feel free to make use of public institutions and services Saturday. Quizzes of precaution are still worth pounds of cures.

CANCER (June 21-July 20): Coincidence steps in and all detailed plans are off balance. Impraise, don't stand on ceremony. This can be a lively and interesting day of person-to-person communication.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Build strength; think of a better tomorrow. There are so many things to do now that you must choose which is first in importance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your positive side manifests itself as people share much good news with you. Take your SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The reappearance of long-lost friends is likely to bring a surprise. Youngsters demand much of your energy now. Creative efforts come to a favorable attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are the focus of much attention. Young people are full of surprises. Secrets are disclosed unexpectedly and fun is had by all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you will put up with some early complaints, the day provides interesting new experience. Some tall tales can be heard by detouring slightly from your usual weekend travels.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Start early (and at a fairly heavy pace) - there is much to do and you must get through without fatigue.

Health care is amenable to improvement Saturday. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Saturday is no problem; people around are so alive and amusing that you haven't time to fret over anything. Enjoy yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I think there is something wrong with my husband. He was a Marine in World War II and was always very proud of that, but lately he has been sleeping in his uniform, with all his medals, cap and even his sword.

Should I watch him for other signs of peculiarity? He's not old enough to be getting senile.

WORRIED IN CLEVELAND
DEAR WORRIED: Don't try to diagnose your husband's case. He needs professional help. Get him to a doctor. In or out of uniform.

DEAR ABBY: A couple my husband I have known for many years suddenly up and got a divorce. All their friends were shocked at the news because no one suspected they weren't getting along and there was certainly no hint of divorce. It still doesn't make much sense as there seems to be nobody else in the picture and this couple have married children.

Well, they are living apart now which creates some sticky problems for their friends. Would it be proper to invite them both to the same party - but individually?

If not, and a choice is made, should the hostess ask the invited one to bring his (or her) own "date"? Or is it proper to pair up a not-yet-divorced person with another single person at the party?

This couple did a lot of entertaining when they were together and it doesn't seem right to ignore them now, but it's so awkward making a choice, and could be worse having them together.

Abby, you could make a fortune if you wrote a new book on divorce etiquette. There is so much of it today and nobody knows exactly what to do.

STUMPED IN PALO ALTO
DEAR STUMPED: When couples split up, unless their friends know positively that there would be no embarrassment or strain, it's best not to invite them to the same party. If one is invited without the other, it's better to pair him up with a "single" partner at the party; but don't suggest a not-yet-divorced person bring his own "date."

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been missing in action in Viet Nam for two years. I have two small children. I want to know what is the code of conduct for a wife in my situation? My friends have been wonderful to me. And so have my parents, and his, too.

Am I free to date? I mean go out to dinner or maybe see a movie with another man? It has been two years now, and I am so tired being the odd one. I am not considered a widow, and yet I'm not really married, and I'm not single either.

I pray that my husband will return, but this can drag on for another two years, or maybe longer.

If you print this letter maybe other wives in the same situation will write in and give me a clue as to what to do. I don't want to give my name or address because someone in my husband's family might be hurt, but please print this and try to help me.

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: I would say that you are married until you are officially notified that you are a widow. And I would conduct myself accordingly. If others in your boat have a better solution I hope they'll write to me so that I can share it with you.

New 'Kick' Repel Glue Sniffers

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK (NEA) - Many teens are getting an extra jolt from their glue sniffing these days. And makers of the specific model cements doing the trick hope the kick is so effective it will spread to other inhalable solvents. The reason: the added zip is turning the youngsters off rather than on.

James L. Badinghaus, an authority on juvenile delinquency and drug abuse, prefers to call glue sniffing "inhalation of toxic vapors," since the items sniffed include many household products such as nail-polish remover, paint thinner, cleaning fluid, gasoline and even propellants in pressurized hair sprays, cocktail glass chillers and nonstick sprays for pots and pans.

"Sniffing" as a cheap way to take a trip is not new to the American scene. It is just more alarming now as part of the total drug addiction picture. And it has taken years of study and research to mount a potentially effective counter-weapon. The hobby industry recognized solvent inhalation as a health problem shortly after World War I.

The Hobby Industry Association of America in 1962 commissioned an independent laboratory study for possible additives to discourage "glue sniffing." The report turned up 94 possible additives.

Badinghaus revealed here that a chance remark by one of six youths before a judge in Cincinnati uncovered the fact that one manufacturer had whipped the additive problem. The youths admitted that one particular item made them sick before they got high. They turned to other solvents, which had led to their arrest.

According to Badinghaus, an assistant administrator of the Hamilton County Juvenile Court in Cincinnati, a study of all 11th-grade students of Hamilton County schools showed approximately 10 per cent of those polled had experimented with solvent inhalation and other drugs.

"We first thought glue sniffing or solvent inhalation was a poor boy's way of getting a kick," he said. "Now they come from all strata. There are more boys than girls, although girls seem to join in with a mixed group." Badinghaus prefers to think of solvent inhalation as "habituating" rather than addictive and mainly touches the 13-to-16 age group, although recently an 8-year-old was picked up in Cincinnati. Often police pick up the youths and refer them to juvenile authorities for intoxication, he explained, since the symptoms are similar—they are dizzy, disoriented and glassy-eyed.

Laymen Asked To Transmit Joy

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod urged delegates to the 32nd annual Lutheran Laymen's League convention here to "transmit the joy and enthusiasm we show here to our churches back home." A record 1,712 persons registered for the convention, topping the previous mark of 1,634 set in Calgary, Alberta, last year.

Dr. J.A.O. Preus, newly elected head of the synod, spoke at the opening session of the LLL and the Americana Hotel. The league is the lay auxiliary of the church.

"I feel much at home with the LLL," he said. "I think of myself as a layman."

The former president of Concordia Seminary in Springfield, Ill., said he is "tired of the calamities in our society. There is a certain grimmness about our age which is very discouraging."

But he pointed out that "if there is any one people who can look at the world and smile, it is the Lutherans who have God to rely on."

The delegates were welcomed by Dade County Mayor Chuck Hall who said "I think we ought to send our children to Russia so they can see what it is like to live in a godless country."

He referred to a recent trip he made to Russia where "I never saw a person under the age of 15 with a smile on his face. They are taught that this is very serious life and their's is a drab existence."

About today's youth, Hall said "it is easy for us to turn our backs on our young people, but the time has reached a critical point where we have to stand up and be counted, especially to your children and to the children in your church. It is your responsibility to stand up and tell them they are wrong."

when you feel they are in the wrong."

Dr. August Bernthal, president of the synod's Florida-Georgia District and convention keynote speaker, said that despite skepticism and talk of social change in the world there is a "thirst for God."

Citing the achievements of the astronauts on the moon, Dr. Bernthal said "we should stand up in marvelous admiration of our great God. There men are showing there is a God."

He said he had seen all the space shots at Cape Kennedy except the last one and during those visits to the cape he was able to witness many persons praying as space craft left their launching pads. "Even groups of hippies, standing about, held hands and took turns in prayer. What is this but a reflection of man's natural thirst for God?"

Dr. Bernthal said "the layman must carry the load if the church is to become an effective force in our world today."

He added that all of Jesus Christ's disciples were laymen. "That's the way Christianity began — as a layman's movement," he said.

Dr. Oswald Hoffmann, the Lutheran Hour speaker, told a Bringing Christ to the Nations rally on the eve of the convention that man's space feats do not shrink God's power.

He said the moon walk is a "marvelous achievement for the technology of man."

Dr. Hoffmann added, "Yet, we are men. That is something we must remember if we are to continue to live on this planet. We are men, and must get the part — the part of men given by God Himself."

"Above all, this is no time to forget God. Only the idiots forget God; we have had too many idiots around for too long now. This is the time to remember God — now more than ever before."

Nearly 5,500 persons heard Dr. Hoffmann in Miami's Marine Stadium.

President Thomas D. McDougall, of Grand Forks, N. D., president of the league, said "We're offering the opportunity for people to participate in telling the story about the crucified and risen Christ The Lord does the rest..."

McDougall, in his president's address, said the record of the league during the last year has shown the "abundant blessings of the Lord."

He noted that "our membership is the greatest ever and our dollar income for spreading the gospel in our mass media projects is the highest in history."

McDougall said that 17 years ago he did not know about the LLL and church did not fit into his daily living. "I was active in my business, the lodge and other things," he said. "But then I started to become active in the Laymen's League and I accepted the hand offered by Christ and sought to offer that hand to others through the LLL."

The league gave its approval to Tulsa, Oklahoma as being convention site for the 1973 convention. The convention site next year will be San Francisco. In 1971, the delegates will meet in Washington and in 1972 they will be in St. Louis.

The delegates also adopted by a standing vote a resolution pledging the continued support of the LLL to the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and urged the league's Board of Governors to work in "close cooperation" with President Preus and other leaders of the church.

Woman Offers Answer To Hunger Problem

Religion in America
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

A woman economist has come up with what seems like a thoroughly practical solution to a problem that is weighing heavily on the consciences of many Americans.

The problem is how to provide an adequate diet for millions of poor people who are chronically hungry in this land of plenty.

Churches have been taking an active interest in relieving hunger. Up till now they have focused their attention primarily on proposals for expanding the existing federal food stamp and surplus food distribution programs.

Dr. Ruth Logue, an economist who works in Washington, D.C., has worked out a plan to insure adequate food supplies for every family in America. She estimates the cost at a maximum of $1 billion a year — which is only one half of one per cent of the total federal spending budget.

Her proposal is breathtakingly simple: Let the federal government distribute a small number of staple foods free of charge to anyone who wants them, through regular retail grocery stores.

The essence of the plan is that the free foods must be what economists call "inferior goods."

The commodities she proposes for free distribution are bulgur wheat, nonfat dry milk, dry beans and lard.

(Bulgur wheat is wheat that has been parboiled, dried, husked and cracked. It is rarely consumed in America but has been a staple food in the Middle East for thousands of years.)

Those four products are "inferior goods" in the economist's sense, she says, but they are all high in nutritional value, relatively cheap, easy to store, easy to ship and easy to store. Together they provide a fairly adequate basic diet with high protein content.

Experts may find hidden flaws in Dr. Logue's logic, but in an area where creative new ideas are altogether too rare, her proposal certainly deserves careful consideration. If it appeals to you, you may clip this article and mail it to your congressman with a personal note. You may find that he shares your concern for the hungry and is looking for a fresh solution.

Christian Church Teens Take Action On Relations Problem

FORT WORTH — The 875 teen-agers attending the 25th annual Texas Youth Convention of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) here last week "put their money where their mouths were" in dealing with the nation's crisis in human relations.

Following up on a resolution calling for action rather than "simply . . . study" of the crisis, the youth pledged $5,308 and plunked down $1,302 of it in cash for "Reconciliation," the "Disciples" nationwide program coping with such problems as poverty and racism.

They dropped their money and pledge cards in white cardboard buckets as they moved forward to receive Communion in an early-morning service Saturday that ended the assembly on the Texas Christian University campus.

After the Lord's Supper they linked arms and sang "We Shall Overcome," the well-known hymn of the civil rights movement.

In their resolution, passed the previous night, the youth cited the need of the church "to deal actively with the pertinent issues of our day."

"We are not only asking the adult community of our church to act," they declared, "but we hereby covenant with them in study, active concern, and response with money and program."

The resolution commended the international General Board of the Christian Church for its "dynamic stand" last May on the so-called "Black Manifesto," the widely-publicized document that demands "reparations" from white churches and Jewish synagogues.

(While the General Board rejected the "methodology" of the Black Manifesto, it affirmed the need of the church to respond to the crisis in the nation with "constructive actions" and to double — from $2 million to $4 million — the amount being sought for the Reconciliation program.)

By a lopsided vote, but after floor discussion, the assembly defeated a second resolution which would have called the General Board's response to the Black Manifesto "far inadequate to the needs of our times."

From the opening session on Wednesday night, a large empty vase, which normally would have held flowers sent by the home congregations of convention officers, stood in front of the speakers' pulpit. Letters read to the youth said the churches will contribute to Reconciliation the money that would have been spent on flowers.

The only adult speaker was K. David Cole, a Negro minister from Dallas. He's pastor of Denley Drive Christian Church and director of Southfield Christian Community Center, both in Dallas, and a consultant to the Christian Church in Texas.

Friday night, in the second of his two addresses, Cole asked the teen-agers to "dare to be human." That, he said, will require them to "seek the highest, to be tall."

But to be human also is to "be vulnerable, to risk being hurt," he warned, pointing out that one lesson from the life of Jesus Christ

Preacher Enters Time Of Troubles

United Press International

The Rev. Dr. Carl McIntire, fundamentalist radio preacher of Collingswood, N.J., has come into a time of troubles.

This news will give numerous Christians an opportunity to practice one of Christ's most difficult teachings: His command to "love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you."

During the past three decades, McIntire has heaped vituperation upon thousands of people including liberal Protestants, conservative Protestants, fundamentalist Protestants, Roman Catholics, public officials who cross him, and some journalists.

Organizes Campaigns

To those who oppose him, McIntire often imputes atheism, pro-Communist leanings, dishonesty, cowardice or venality.

Through his half-hour radio program, broadcast each week-day over more than 600 stations, he organizes letter-writing campaigns to bring pressure on religious bodies, public agencies or news organizations to fire those he disapproves.

McIntire's operations are financed mainly by contributions from his radio listeners, totaling millions of dollars a year. Some of this money goes to buy time on the stations carrying the program. Some is invested in other McIntire projects.

His far-ranging interests include a weekly newspaper, the Christian Beacon; a resort town, Cape May, N.J., where he now controls about $3 million worth of real estate; a four-year liberal arts school, Shelton College in Cape May; and the International Council of Christian Churches, which he founded in 1948 as a fundamentalist alternative to the World Council of Churches.

Until recently, McIntire also was the dominant figure in the American Council of Churches.

Maggard To Attend 16th Conference

Rev. and Mrs. Albert Maggard of Pampa will attend the 16th quadrennial general conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Memphis, Tenn., beginning Aug. 21 as delegates. They will represent the Great Plains Conference which includes churches in the Oklahoma Panhandle, New Mexico and West Texas.

Rev. Maggard, pastor of the local Pentecostal Holiness Church at 1700 Alcock Street, has been appointed by the General Executive Board to serve on the Resolutions Committee for this conference.

Headquarters of the denomination are in Franklin Springs, Ga., home of the general officials of the church, its publishing house, and one of its colleges.

Bishop J. A. Synan, the general superintendent, will preside over the week-long general conference where problems of administration, programs for the next quadrennium and church policies will be determined.

Official delegates to the general conference will number approximately 500, but the overall attendance will exceed 1,500 persons for this meeting. The general conference met in Memphis in 1953. The last session, in 1955, met in Greensboro, N.C.

Having joined the staff of Southwestern in July, 1967, Mr. Johnson directs public relations work and coordinates with the ex-Students' Association, the Laymen's Council, and the various areas of fund raising and student recruitment at the College.

Johnson attended Wharton Junior College, Southern Bible College, and Southwestern Assemblies of God College. He holds the Associate of Arts degree and the Bachelor of Science degree in two fields and is presently working on his Masters of Arts in Education at Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

The Weekly Message of Inspiration...

HAROLD STARBUCK

THE MESSAGE AND MEANING OF ISAIAH
If we are to comprehend the message of Isaiah it is first necessary to consider the time in which he lived and preached. Isaiah's lifetime was spent under the threat of Assyrian power. He would have been a young man in the Southern Kingdom at the time Assyria carried away the Northern Kingdom. As we read Isaiah 1:1, the prophet preached during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, being contemporary with the prophets Hosea and Micah.

Uzziah died the same year Isaiah received his call and was succeeded by his son Jotham, who "did that which was right in the sight of the Lord," and so for the first sixteen years of the ministry of Isaiah he at least had the support of the throne. But, when Jotham died and his son Ahaz took the throne the affairs of the state took a different turn. Ahaz instead of searching out the sins of the nation which were the real reason for the chastisement that they were receiving, formed an alliance with the King of Assyria, an alliance which in the days of Hezekiah proved almost fatal. God's altar was set aside and idolatry was introduced. Hezekiah honored Jehovah and brought the people back to a measure of obedience, yet all the time, though the outward form of ceremony of Temple worship was kept up, there was going on among the people all kinds of sins, idolatry, covetousness, impurity, injustice and oppression. The conditions were aggravated by the political corruption. Their economy seemingly prospered, but taxes were out of reason, and inflation was excessive. The knowledge of God was scarce in the land. Against all of this the prophet Isaiah must lift his divinely inspired word. Isaiah wrote and spoke as he was moved of the Holy Spirit and was well assured of his message (Isa. 50:7). He was the mouthpiece of God—reflecting His feelings toward sin, and also toward His people. Sometimes his message was stern and uncompromising, he did not hesitate to speak to his nation in plain language, and to show them how they looked in God's sight. He went before a sinful people, and plainly told them that they were insulting God, and that unless they changed, repented, that a certain awful judgment was coming. Yet as occasion demanded he at times was surprisingly tender. Sometimes he frightened with threats of coming judgment, at other times he comforted as gently as a nurse with a child and told them of better days ahead. I see in all of his preaching a relevance to his day. Isaiah was a statesman who knew what was going on in his nation and his world, therefore he was able to give wise counsel. You might even say that in all of his preaching he was "meeting the needs of his people". Even in his prophetic utterances he is meeting their need for hope in the future as being God-directed. I find it difficult to separate the message from the man, for I feel that there is much to be learned from him about preaching God's word today! First, he was a highly spiritual man who was willing to listen to the voice of God as evidenced by his call and vision in the sixth chapter. He was a man with deep convictions concerning social injustices, cruelty, oppression and immorality. Not once did he condone the unrighteous acts of any individual. Rather he called upon people to see themselves as they really are, contrasted to the holiness of God. Next to the holiness of God he reports His mighty power over all nations, Babylon, Assyria, Moab and others. He spells out in clear words that God is the "Lord of History". He contrasts the power of God with the power of idols. He shows the folly of trusting the power of other nations instead of trusting in God.

Isaiah not only preached the holiness of God and the power of His might, he also held out to his day and ours words of hope and grace. He said "though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as wool". He talked of the hope of the remnant of Judah and of the coming Christ. He invited his people to take comfort in that Jehovah, their God was superior over idols; in the ministry of the Messiah, in the suffering Saviour who should bear their iniquities and remove their sin, thus making it possible for God to bless. They were to be comforted because of the eternal life that was soon to come into fruition. —Harold Starbuck, Minister —Hi-Land Christian Church

Child's Mind Seeks Simple Solutions Of Hitting Enemy On The Head

NEW YORK (UPI)—The mind of a child seeks simple solutions. If there's somebody you don't like why not hit him on the head?

That's the sort of television viewing the little darlings apparently hoped for and what they used to get in the days before the television code began to frown on gratuitous violence even in the cartoons of the rich Saturday morning kiddie market.

Children may not have much purchasing power individually but there are millions of them and behind nearly every child stand two indulgent parents (and perhaps four even more indulgent grandparents).

White said NBC was not, of course, giving up cartoons, simply changing the content and emotional direction. One of the new cartoon shows, "Here Comes the Grunch" will be a fantasy adventure in the land of the gnome-like Grunch.

White conceded it was difficult to know what children will accept though the fact they liked the comedy of "The Banana Splits," one of the returning shows, last season was a good pointer.
