Stage Comeback For Sporty Men

Increased leisure here and abroad makes sports fans of usall. Apparel today is meant to be worn outdoors for casual, fun and play by the sporty-set, football buffs, even skiers.

Sweaters for spectator and active sportswear are perennial favorites sought after by men everywhere - not only because they're comfortable but they meet the needs of today's active man who in addition to a fastpaced business life, is enjoying more leisure time for casual and sports than ever before.

In line with his needs, knit sweaters are handsome examples of garments with style and functional features such as ease of care - they hold their shape washing after washing - and maintain their color elarity. What's more, these knits are so lightweight and packable they travel well, go from climate to climate - and hold a one-year guarantee for weara-

Therefore, the sweater still holds its important place in men's wear as a source of new, creative and interesting ideas Stocking fashions are going for fresh-air sporting men "nude" in the sheerest of who'll look handsome, healthy textures, with the blushing shade and comfortable, in town or of peach as the predominant

Ellis Or Hickey Good Bet In Pamcel Tourney

You could almost bet your best bonnet that either Max Hickey or Richard Ellis will win the Seventh annual Pamcel golf tournament Sunday at Celanese golf

Hickey and Ellis are twotime winners of the affair and one or the other has won it the past three years. Hickey has also been runner up twice and Ellis once. You can also be almost assured that whichever one of them doesn't win it, will be

The first tournament, played in 1963, was won by Jerry Keel of Borger and Hickey was runnerup. finishing two shots behind Keel's winning total of 103.

Hickey tied with four-over par 109's and Max had to go two extra holes before claiming the title. In 1965 another Borger resident, Don Lackey, slipped in to win the tournament with Jerry Crier, also of Borger, second, seven shots behind Lackey's winning 102 total.

Ellis won his first Pamcel tournament by forfeit, from Malcom Douglass, after the pair had tied for first with (no relation to Richard) and he has watched it grow into one of the best in the Panhandle. In the inauguration meet a total of 77 golfers showed up, then in 1964 there were 88. The field slipped to 84 in '65 but came back strong with 102 in 1966 and 110, the largest field ever, in 1967. Unless something out of the ordinary happens Sunday will probably be wiped out for this year's meet.

Bill Ellis formed his idea with a little public relations in mind.

It was he and several other Celanese engineers who designed the course and talked Johnny Austin into doing the greens work.

Ellis then decided it would be nice to let the people, or golfers, of the community come out and play the Celanese course once a year to see what the course was like: "Our course is for our employes only and you can play on it by invitation only," Bill said, "We've always had people who want this would be a way of letting them come out and try our course." The course was built by volunteer labor at the plant and the initial membership has grown from 75 members to between 110-115. The course is not what you'd call tough, tough. But neither would you say its easy, easy. The greens are tricky and probably, the toughest hole will be No. 13, according to Bill, anyway. Its a par 3, 187 yards long and you must drive in the southwest winds. There are water hazards surrounding the green. But it probably won't be tough for Ellis or Hickey.
