

Nixon Honors LBJ At Party

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—The Nixons and the Johnsons get together today for a 61st birthday party for the former president at the western White House.

The busy day includes a special luncheon-birthday celebration here and then an afternoon trip to the Redwood National Forest in Northern California to dedicate the Lady Bird Johnson Grove.

The Johnson family was scheduled to arrive at Nixon's villa on the Pacific at about 10:30 a.m. today.

Awaiting the former President was a three-layer white cake with lemon cream filling and decorated with the Texas flowers—bluebonnets and yellow roses. "Happy Birthday" is appropriately inscribed on the frosting.

The Nixons and the Johnsons were to fly to Arcata in Northern California at 1 p.m. for the redwood grove dedication ceremony. Traveling with the two first families were the Johnsons' daughters, Lynda Bird Robb and Luci Nugent, and their husbands.

While Nixon confers privately with Johnson at the western White House prior to the luncheon, the President's daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, will help Mrs. Nixon show her Texas guests around her $340,000 summer home.

Absent from the festivities was the President's other daughter, Tricia, 23, who was confined to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington after a complicated abdominal operation.

The grove of redwood trees was dedicated to the former first lady in recognition of her efforts to beautify America and in honor of her "Last Hurrah" tour across the nation last November.

Nixon will place a plaque on one of the mammoth trees honoring Mrs. Johnson "in recognition of her devoted service to the cause of preserving and enhancing natural beauty for the enjoyment of all people."

The two presidents have been political foes in past years but friends say they grew closer during the transition of power and that the first families found they share experiences unique to the presidency.

Umbrellas May Be Proved Good Investment

If windproof umbrellas were a reality they would be worth investing in as sprinkles continue to sprinkle and thunderstorms threaten in the Panhandle area.

The rain and clouds have provided quite a contrast in temperatures for the month of August. Earlier in the month, high temperatures did not seem to be able to stay below the century mark. Recently the mercury has been struggling to cross the 80 degree line.

Another rainy day was forecast today for Texas, the fourth in a row for most areas, and temperatures were expected to be slightly below normal for this time of year.

Austin received more than five inches of rain in a 24-hour period ended Tuesday. Virtually every major city in the state reported at least .02 of an inch of rain.

Abilene measured 1.32 inches overnight, and widely scattered thundershowers left lighter amounts in South Central Texas and along the upper coastal plains.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the 60s in the Panhandle and areas of West Texas to the 70s elsewhere.

Soviets Silent On Plane Crash With 112 Aboard

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet officials and news outlets kept a strict silence today on the flaming crash landing outside Moscow of a Soviet commercial air liner with 112 persons believed aboard.

The Foreign Ministry, in the only official comment on the crash, said there were no foreigners on the flight.

That was all the official information available. Casualties were not known.

Only firetrucks and ambulances with sirens screaming as they raced out of Moscow toward Vnukovo Airport 15 miles away gave any clue to the seriousness of the accident Tuesday night.

Unofficial sources said the turboprop IL 18 of the National Aeroflot Airline was carrying tourists to Moscow from the Black Sea resort at Sochi.

One employee at Vnukovo said from a distance, witnesses could see ambulances leaving the scene for Moscow, their blue lights flashing.

IMPRISONED OFFICER SAYS:

Berets Held On 'Political Reasons'

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—A Special forces officer says he and seven other Green Berets charged with killing a Vietnamese national are being held for "political reasons" by the Army.

Capt. Budge E. Williams wrote his father from an Army stockade in South Vietnam that their first hearing "looked like the Nuernberg War Trials all over again."

"I did not get a lawyer until three days after I asked for one. There were lawyers available on post.

"Charges are supposed to be read in 24 hours. We waited a week.

"It was two weeks before the hearings started.

"Definite coercion was used in getting a statement from a witness."

Williams and his companions were lodged in solitary confinement for 30 days in the U.S. Army headquarters stockade at Long Binh near Saigon, GIs refer to the jail as Camp LBJ for Long Bin Jail.

Williams' cell at Camp LBJ filled an area approximately five by seven feet. He was in solitary from July 19 until Aug. 18 before being shifted to confinement in a barracks.

While in solitary, Williams wrote, there was only one opening in his sealed room, and the roof was made of tin.

Because of the heat the temperatures inside the box soared.

To go to the bathroom, Williams said he had to bang on his cell door to raise a guard, and then he might or might not gain a response.

First on Williams' mind was keeping the situation from his mother.

"Don't tell mother," he instructed his father, "unless you have to."

But two weeks later, he wrote, "I have just been informed that there will be a news release. I guess you better tell mother before she gets it on TV."

He said the Army promised a telegram would be delivered in advance of the news release.

The telegram did not arrive in time.

A neighbor watching television called and told Mrs. Williams her son had been charged with murder.

KOPECHNE INQUEST

Ground Rules, Date May Be Set

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (UPI)—Ground rules—and perhaps a new date—were to be set today for the inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, the 28-year-old secretary killed in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's automobile accident.

District Court Judge James A. Boyle summoned attorneys concerned with the inquest to a preliminary hearing to consider "procedural matters which may arise."

Dist. Atty. Edmund S. Dinis said Tuesday he will decide today whether to open the inquest on schedule next Wednesday or to wait in hopes of getting an autopsy report.

Miss Kopechne was killed July 18 when a car driven by Kennedy plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island.

Most of the witnesses scheduled to testify at the inquest, including the five young women who attended a party on Chappaquiddick Island that preceded the accident, have hired attorneys, who have been invited to the hearing.

Dinis' decision on a date apparently will hinge on how a Pennsylvania judge rules on his request for exhumation of Miss Kopechne's body for an autopsy.

Youths Return From Northland Trip

By DON TURNER
News Staff Writer

Four 1968 graduates of Pampa High School and a camper truck returned Sunday from a Tom Sawyer-ish trip to Alaska.

In three and one-half weeks, the youths saw five states and two provinces, passed up a chance to fight a forest fire and floated 60 miles on rafts.

The four boys were Eugene Key, son of Dr. and Mrs. Julian Key, 1840 Fir; Ralph Barnett, son of Mrs. Leona Barnett and the late Ralph Barnett, 2416 Charles; Leonard Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Taylor Jr., north of the city; and Lee Waters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill W. Waters, 2112 Christine.

Plans for the trip began last spring at the suggestion of Key's father. The four boys who had known each other since seventh or eighth grade liked the idea.

"It was a chance for us to take a vacation before school," Taylor said. "It was also a chance to get together again since we wouldn't be seeing each other for a while."

During the first two months of the summer the boys worked while they made preparations for the trip.

They secured a halfton and a fourteen-foot camper and decided on how much money and what supplies they would need, where they would go and what they would do.

On July 30 they left.

Their path took them through New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Alberta, British Columbia, and finally Alaska. The 4,000 mile trip took them six days.

Once in Alaska, the group fished and camped in campgrounds close to residential areas.

When they were camping near Anchorage, however, they did make one trip 80 miles inland. They were taken by a float plane to a spot on the Tawshlita River.

"From there we floated down the river on two four-man rafts," Key said. "We floated 50 miles to a landing strip where the pilot picked us up in a smaller plane. It took us four days."

"We stopped at sand bars and spent the night in the open," Waters said.

"It was cold, too."

"Some mornings we found frost on our sleeping bags," Key said.

During the river ride the boys had their best fishing, catching

How To Stay Alive This Labor Day Weekend

NEW YORK (UPI)—Something like 700 Americans who could read this today won't be around reading anything come Tuesday. They'll be dead.

This is the projection of the National Safety Council in Chicago which notes: 57 men, women and children died on the nation's highways during this year's Memorial Day holiday, and 609 died during the July 4th weekend.

Most of the accidents are attributed by the experts to driver errors and carelessness. If you are not a nut yourself—and look out for the nuts who never learn—you'll have a good chance of coming home from your weekend alive and in one piece.

First, of course, you will have made sure your car is in top shape before setting out. You'll have checked, or had a mechanic check, your car's brakes and the tires, including the spare, the windshield washers and wipers, headlights, stop lights and tail lights, and the battery.

You won't block your view through the rear window—particularly with golf clubs, fishing rods, skis or similar objects which can become deadly projectiles if you have to brake suddenly.

You won't ride without the seat or chest belts fastened. If you have a baby riding in one of those detachable seats, you'll make sure it is firmly fixed won't tear loose on sudden stops.

Here are some other lifesaving tips:

—Never stop suddenly on a highway unless in an emergency. If you miss your turnoff, it is safer to continue to the next exit than to back up or cut across traffic. If you must stop, get off the highway if possible.

If you can't, open the hood and trunk and set up flares a safe distance away—never, never stand in the road behind your car and try to wave off oncoming drivers.

—Don't tailgate, particularly at high speed. Leave plenty of space between you and the car ahead but without disrupting the stream of traffic. Be doubly cautious during the early morning and late evening hours when mist or dew can make the roads slick.

—Yield—don't fight road hogs and weavers. And be ready at all times to make allowances for—and anticipate—"honest" driving errors by other drivers.

—Allow cars pulling onto the highway in front of you ample time and space to move into the flow of traffic. Don't cut across the white lines on approach or exit lanes unless they are free of cars.

—If you are driving long distances, take a break every two hours.

—Shift your position behind the wheel from time to time so as not to get too comfortable and become drowsy.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am soon to become the proud mother of an adopted infant, and here is my problem: I want more than anything in the world to breast-feed this child. I have heard that there are hormone shots which will manufacture milk in women whether they are pregnant or not. My hairdresser says she knows for a fact that many of the women who belong to the La Leche Society do this to keep themselves in milk all the time.

When I told my doctor about my great desire to nurse my adopted baby he said I should forget it, and he would not give me any hormone shots for this purpose. He also tried to convince me that bottle babies are just as healthy as breast-fed babies, which shows you how much he knows.

Abby, I still have my heart set on nursing my adopted baby. Can you put me in touch with a doctor in the Cleveland area who will give me those hormone shots?

WANTS TO NURSE BABY
DEAR WANTS: Don't rely on medical advice from your hairdresser. She is all wet. I advise you to listen to your own doctor, and don't fool around with hormone shots or you're apt to wind up with no milk and a mustache.

DEAR ABBY: Before Bob and I were married (six months ago) he went through his wallet and made quite a ceremony of throwing all the girls' telephone numbers away. He did this voluntarily.

This is the second marriage for both of us, although we're both in our middle twenties. I'll be honest with you, Abby, I snooped through his wallet about a month ago to see if he had any new numbers, and I found three! I was hurt but didn't say anything.

Last night I went snooping again and I found five more numbers, all written in his own handwriting.

I am so hurt. I was under the impression that he was satisfied with me. I hate to believe that he has strayed so soon after our marriage. He's a good man, and he has been wonderful to me and my children. He has to go out of town on business about twice a month on overnight trips, and this is what worries me.

What should I do? If I bring it up it might drive a wedge between us. I trusted my first husband and he broke my heart. This morning Bob left early, and when I got up, I found a note on his pillow which read, "I love you, Baby."

HURT
DEAR HURT: Judge Bob by the way he treats you, and quit snooping! Maybe he just likes to collect telephone numbers.

DEAR ABBY: I just received an invitation to a bridal shower. It is being given by the cousins of the bridegroom who happens to be a very nice fellow and a good friend of mine.

The prospective bride is still married to another man and she will not be officially divorced until after the date of the bridal shower.

As I understand it, the bride's divorce will be final on Sept. 1, and her wedding will take place on Sept. 2. All this split-second timing has really got me wondering. How should I treat an invitation of this kind?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: Since the bridegroom is a very nice fellow and a good friend of yours, go to the shower and don't split hairs over the split-second timing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HONEY: No woman has to be "rented out" like a floor polisher unless she wants to be. There are laws, you know.

For a casual, neat look-for fun or school, try the pinafore jumper culotte (left) worn with the newest look in shirts. The dog-eared collar and long, full sleeves make the Dublin cloth shirt and jumper a frisky outfit. Double-ring top short-in-Dorcan and wool doubleknit (right) has two tortoise-shell rings accentuating the waist. Long-sleeved, shirred-yoke shirt in wool jersey flatters the top.

Your Horoscope
JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, AUG. 28, 1969
Your birthday Thursday: Your intuitive judgment will lead you outside the crowd and into solitary paths this coming year. The distance you achieve from others offers a better perspective. You are tempted, however, to exaggerate the tendency to go it alone. Whatever your situation, you have a better chance now to write it or to have it written. Thursday's natives: noted for efficiency and thoroughness.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Calm your reckless mood and use soft words on your mate or associates. Some of the incidents today are subtle, but wild (when you see the inner meanings). Take time to meditate—you need stronger intuition for the coming stress period.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you will just go along with the drift of Thursday, sensitive relationships become gentle, rewarding times, long remembered. Hit the high spots, leave the tough ones for a less rushed moment Friday.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress now develops between home life and career. Focus attention on building connections to expand and improve your career—the home situation will fall into place.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Bring a placid surface to the turbulent moods of today. Forgive those who offer such strident behavior; they will learn by and by (and your example teaches them well).

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Still more consideration is necessary over the choice among trends to follow. Get expert counsel, each in his own competence. Particularly important where property is involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you will concentrate on your opinions Thursday you will learn things beyond price! Competition is stronger than usual, but people will shed their tension and wariness later and be open to communicate when you do speak.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your latent powers rise to a maximum Thursday. This trend is fleeting. A wistful thought, a hunch should be written and checked for symbolic meaning. You may hear of an interesting, primitive diet scheme which possibly could suit your personal use.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Creative work is featured strongly Thursday. Project humor and forgiveness, so your friends can come back on some sensible level of behavior. Just watch your spending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Younger people deserve your respect the same as adults. The day lends itself to clearing of accounts, repayment of loans and borrowings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The limitations of your neighborhood and its resources are clear for all to see. You might consider moving if you are personally involved in the problem. Care in driving, tools is essential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Conservative business methods, again, pay off. Quit as soon as conditions permit and pursue an evening of good entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dress up, do everything you know how to enhance your personality. Project happiness, optimism; it works. Accept an invitation or give a small party in the evening.

Shave whenever hair on legs and underarms becomes noticeable. Many girls do so three times a week, according to a recent study.

Fall Rugs Explode With Color, Design

Area rugs are like punctuation marks, only more glamorous. Just as commas and periods work in sentences, rugs help define and make sense of furniture arrangements.

However, in addition to their practical usefulness, they have become excitingly interesting as well, thanks to their newly audacious designs and dashing colors.

Today's uninhibited area rugs are all over the place, creating islands of soft comfort on vinyl, tile or wood floors, or on top of plain wall-to-wall carpeting.

Whatever floor you have, it can be emphasized with an accent rug. A stroke of boldness heightens the appeal of an entryway or foyer.

A large shaggy circle of color in the center of a conversation grouping sets it apart from the rest of the room.

When every inch within a room must count, as in many round-the-clock rooms, one small but brilliant show of rug color will define dining, music or study area.

Beside the bed, rugs can provide soothing comfort under bare feet. And, of course, and rugs were really made for each other.

One of the most popular types of rugs available now are the Scandinavian rya rugs. In fact, the great increase in interest in rugs can be traced to their appearance on the American decorating scene only within the last few years, especially those from a Denmar Company, which is the largest rya manufacturer in the world.

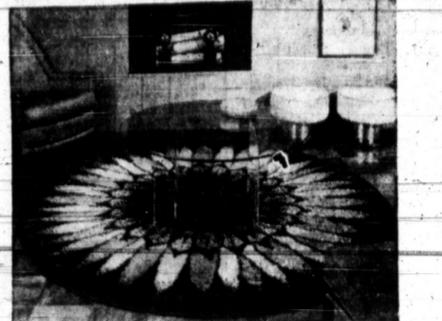

The word "rya" comes from an ancient Norse word for rough, long-yarned rya which characteristic is to be shaggy. The modern rya are far from the rough, long-yarned rya which the Vikings wore to warm both their homes and themselves. Today's rya rugs are thickly-woven of brilliantly-colored wool yarns in patterns which combine the old heritage with the most modern designs. Their texture and their colors have double appeal both to the eye and to the touch.

The colors, textures and designs of area rugs today make them truly small gems. Without a rug, a room can fall very flat. With a rug, a room assumes an entirely individual personality.

Sometimes a rug dictates the room decor, especially if it is a small work-of-art design.

Woman's Page
Wanda Mae Huff, Women's Editor

A BRILLIANT SUNFLOWER-BURST of color creates an inviting circle of warmth on this new round rya rug from Denmark. The bold, colorful pattern is in tones of red, orange, brown and blue with the typical deep-pile surface of the Scandinavian rya rugs.

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY— I would like to tell Virginia that she should get a pair of corduroy heel grippers at her favorite shoe or shoe repair shop. Shape them with scissors to outline her shoe back. They are self-adhesive and always did the trick in our shoe store. Also a cork insole under the lining often makes sling pumps stay put. Your idea-loaded column is great—even for us men folks.

DEAR POLLY— Every time we had a wiener roast there was the problem of finding sticks to roast wieners on. We solved this by straightening out wire coat hangers, then gluing two or three empty thread spools together for handles. To make the hanger wire fit tightly in the handles, bend about two inches of the wire up and put into the hole in the handle. Paint the handles bright colors and you will have some pretty wiener roast sticks that are always ready.

HARRY
DEAR POLLY and Virginia, who cannot keep her sling pumps on—I have found that a small piece of foam glued on the heel of my shoe helps. Molekin that comes with foot plaster can also be fitted on. It sticks by itself and works great.

PAT
When asked the secret of his enthusiasm and the unending freshness with which he viewed life, a great poet once said simply, "I perceive beauty." The same possibility is open to anyone who loves and handles fresh flowers, says the Society of American Florists. A newly creative way of looking at every growing thing is one of the life-enriching pleasures that flower arranging brings.

PATTI
DEAR POLLY— What causes food to blacken as it goes through a heavy metal meat grinder and how do I prevent that? I always wash and dry mine thoroughly after each use. But each time I reuse it the first batch of food continues to come out black.

Wives Seek Action On 'Missing In Action'

WASHINGTON (NEA)— On Nov. 11, 1966, Air Force Maj. Arthur S. Mearns was shot down while flying a bombing mission over North Vietnam. Since that time, more than two and a half years, his wife Pat and his three children have not known whether he survived or not. The Hanoi government has never said. The U.S. government lists him only "missing in action."

Every day the major's family hopes. Every night it prays. Every week it sends him a couple pages of cheerful and optimistic correspondence. Still, no clue.

Says Mrs. Mearns: "It's so bad not knowing. And every day it's the same—we worry. The telephone rings or the doorbell sounds and we jump. It could be good news or bad news—but it's always just no news at all."

Sadly, Pat Mearns and children are not the only ones so suffering in the United States today. Most of the families of the nation's nearly 1,400 missing Vietnam troops are in a similar fix. There is some indication, usually from propaganda photographs, that about 350 of these men are alive. But for the rest there is no indication at all. The situation has been the same for many of these families for years—in one case, five years, the time since the first American (Lt. Everett Alvarez Jr.) was captured in the Southeast Asian war.

For most of this time the families have remained silent and anonymous, fearing perhaps, Hanoi retaliation for anything public they might say or do.

But lately, some of the wives and parents of the missing men are reaching out in the open for any help they can get.

Pat Mearns is one of the latter. She's from California, the state with the greatest number of missing soldiers (350) and she has recently been making the rounds of congressional offices, trying to solicit top-level sympathy.

"I'm trying not to be a pest," she says. "I'm not button-holing the senators, or hiding behind their doors like a kook. I'm just a housewife; I'm not a lobbyist. I've got a problem and I'm trying to get it solved."

How, on Capitol Hill?

"I've talked this over with many other women in my situation. We've decided that the American public just doesn't really know about our prisoners of war. We don't think they realize that Hanoi will not publish a list of prisoner names to relieve families here of uncertainty. We don't think they realize that Hanoi seldom allows prisoners to send letters home.

"So what I've been trying to do in Washington is get senators and congressmen to put the facts before the public—and keep them there. I've been asking them to stand on the floor of Congress, publicly demand humane treatment of the POWs—and tell about the refusal of the North Vietnamese to abide by any of the articles of the Geneva Convention. That's all. I just want them to stand up to let people know."

Before they recessed for summer holidays, only about 70 had responded to the major's wife—some favorably, but others with an "after all, madam, what can I do?" attitude.

City Budget Faces Deficit Unless Revenues Are Found

By DORIS E. WILSON
News Staff Writer

It has been a long, hot summer for the planners of Pampa's city budget.

And the days ahead will probably be just as hot and long until the city's deficit is made up either with the passage of a one-cent city sales tax on Sept. 24; or the adoption of a 50-cent property tax increase by city councilmen on September 25, one day after the city sales tax issue is resolved.

If the city tax is adopted, the property tax ordinance will be waived.

The city budget has been placed on file with these two avenues open for escape from operating in the red.

Mayor Ilo Carlson has said inflation, payment on the Canadian River Water debt, and installation of a sanitary landfill, decreed by the state, is responsible for the city's ailing finances.

The council elected to go the route of a revised city budget of $1,917,878 rather than accept the city manager's proposed budget of $1,855,302.

The manager's budget would have used up all cash reserves at the end of the 1969-70 fiscal year.

Rather than use reserves, the council has elected to create current revenues through property or city sales taxes.

In explaining the two charts pictured opposite this article, City Manager Hill said "The Four Year Summary of All Expenditures" indicates the only increases in the operating budget this year to be in personal services and debt services.

"The personal services account was increased some $55,000 of which $48,000 were for merit increases for city employees in accordance with the current Classification-Compensation Plan. This increase in salary for employees does not take into account any cost-of-living consideration. The remaining increases in the personnel services account were principally longevity for fire and police and over time."

"Maintaining an experienced work force is imperative for the city to carry out services proposed in this budget."

"The other area of increase is the debt service, which is paid from water and sewer revenues.

developed as soon as possible in order that existing services This debt service is for water and sewer improvements, which now totals approximately $300,000 annually. This requirement will increase at least $50,000 each year for the retirement of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority requirement for the next several years.

Hill said, "It is important to note the contractual services category has decreased in total amount of dollars expended for the coming fiscal year, as well as commodities and capital outlay."

Hill emphasized: "These two accounts provide the raw material by which the City forces maintain the streets, parks, and other facilities, as well as replacement of worn out equipment, which must be used in these services."

The Operating Expense-Revenue Analysis indicates declining revenue in relationship to increasing expenditures since fiscal year 1966-67.

"As shown on the graph, the reserves which have been accumulated in the water and sewer fund will have been completely exhausted by the end of fiscal year 1969-70," Hill stated.

Items not included in the budget:

—Again this year, a request for the fire department personnel to be placed on a 56-hour work-week, which would cost $37,000;

—The repair and needed maintenance of the municipal swimming pool;

—Additional two-way radios costing approximately $1,200, which would make personnel more efficient in field work;

—Renovation or moving of the municipal dog pound to a more appropriate site, which would have cost approximately $4,000.

In summarizing his budget message, Hill said: "It is imperative that some manner of reconciling the revenues and expenditures for current services in the city government be may continue into fiscal year 1970-71.

"Special mention," he said, should be made of the difficult task which faced department heads in preparing their budgets as proposed. Without a doubt, a most conscientious effort was made to reduce expenditures for current services in order that this office could propose to the Mayor and Councilmen a fiscally-balanced budget, excluding the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority debt requirement.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Flor, Bullard & Smyth suggests that investors get ready for a resurgence of volume and higher stock prices. "From where we sit," the firm said, "the market has turned the corner. It is starting slowly back up; momentum takes time to build. Just as we wake up some spring morning and find everything turned green, so will we find the new bull market upon us."

Since late July when the Dow Industrial crossed 800 going in the wrong direction, the market has reversed itself and done just about everything right, according to Shearson, Hammill & Co. The firm looks for "a bit more consolidation," but thinks the market should begin to do well again given a glimmer of good news.

The Philip R. Gould market commentary, discussing the difficulty of operating in a market where many participants "can be caused to run in and out of hiding in accordance with the utterances of public figures," suggests that when "skitterish types run into hiding because of frightening pronouncements, the equities they leave behind must be checked over for bargains. When these same headline-activated specimens come flocking out again because news and projections are bullish, it becomes technically risky to remain heavily invested in stocks which suddenly appeal to them as buys. It must be realized equally nebulous bearish influences can drive them back out again."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ever since the Apollo 11 moon landing, there has been a great deal of hallooing and call-thumping over setting national priorities for the coming decade.

Variations on the theme abound, but in general the priority-setters are divided into three categories:

- (1) Those who want to follow Vice President Agnew on to Mars, and hang the expense;
- (2) those who favor an all-out war on poverty, and hang the expense, and (3) those who feel first consideration should be given to solving environmental problems, and hang the expense.

Branching out from them is a subspecies of optimists who insist America's resources are sufficient to pursue all three of these goals simultaneously with equal vigor—that is, to explore the heavens while creating a sort of heaven on earth. To my knowledge, however, no one has yet proposed combining the three goals. So I shall do so now.

Gets Idea
I got the idea for this approach from recent congressional hearings on business "conglomerates" that have been formed in the past few years.

The beauty of a three-priority merger is that it avoids a bitter struggle for funds among the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) and the various agencies concerned with environmental pollution.

What we do instead is lump them all together in a new agency to be called the National Antipoverty, Space and Antipollution Administration (NAPSAPA).

At first glance, this might seem a rather incongruous arrangement. Upon closer examination, however, you will see that the pieces fit quite nicely.

One Main Problem
One of the main environmental problems, for example, is the disposal of garbage and other waste materials that are presently befouling our air, water and landscape.

The Crazy World That Is Washington

By LEON BURNETT
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Odds and ends from the nation's capital—mostly odd:

Wayward words:
—From the weather bureau teletype: "Flash flood this evening may cause locally heavy rains and strong gusty winds with chance of some local flooding."

—From a news release: "The Republican task force on education and training of the House of Representatives today..."

The Bureau of Customs office in Washington, ever good for a tidbit, reports:

"After a large family departed from the Treasury Customs office at Portal, North Dakota, it was discovered that one of the children had been left behind."

"When inspectors delivered their to the family they found that she had not been missed!"

The headline on the news release said, "Two NIT-NET Series to Help Children Understand World."

Highlights And Sidelights From The State Capitol

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association
AUSTIN, Tex. — Sharp division between the Texas Senate and House was responsible for the tough tax fight in the final days of the special session of the Legislature.

It was not possible to get a majority of the Senate to agree on a tax bill tilted toward sales taxes, while House majority favored that route.

In past years, it has been the other way around, with the Senate sales-tax minded and the House reluctant.

This attitude goes back to the 1930's, when 59 members of the House blocked the "transactions tax" proposed as a constitutional amendment by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, and approved by the Senate.

But the one-man, one-vote decision of the U.S. Supreme Court made the Senate more city-minded, and switched the role of the two houses.

Gov. Gen. Barnes, Speaker Gus Mutscher and Gov. Preston Smith all were anxious to get the tax-and-spend issues settled by Tuesday's adjournment, because they had other engagements.

Barnes is president of the National Legislative Council, which opened its annual meeting in St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday.

Mutscher planned to head a delegation of House members to the same conference.

And Governor Smith was ready for the National Governor's Conference in Colorado Springs, Colo., starting Sept. 1.

ANTI-CRIME PROJECTS FUNDED—Criminal Justice Council of the governor's office has recommended $252,499 in action grants for new local programs to fight crime.

Council voted funds from $1.1 million allocated Texas by the federal government under the Omnibus Crime Control and Streets Act of 1968. State and local matching funds also must be provided.

Largest of grants, $127,000 would go to Houston for an area-wide information and communication system to be tied into a computer and connected with a state and national system.

Fort Worth will receive $60,000 for a police-community relations program; Travis County $35,000 to expand its model adult probation project; North Central Texas Council of Governments $21,000 for a police training program.

San Antonio police department $19,680 for a police-community relations seminar program and $7,339 for a Bexar County juvenile delinquency prevention project; Galveston $9,360 for a police department management survey; Houston $6,530 for a state school for prosecutors; and Alamo Area Council of Governments $1,500 for a four-week course offered to police officers in the region.

Council also accepted a study and report by Systems Science Corporation on a proposed information system to link the criminal justice system including police, courts, corrections and rehabilitation services.

OIL ALLOWABLE TRIMMED—For third straight month, Railroad Commission cut statewide oil allowable, setting it at 52.1 per cent of potential.

September allowable allows maximum per day of 3,237,997 barrels. This compares with 3,284,263 barrels daily under August 53.1 per cent order.

Six of 14 major crude purchasers sought more oil next month than in August, three wanted less and five the same amount.

Allowable reached 21-year peak in June when it rose to 63.5 per cent, but was cut to 54.7 per cent in July and 53.1 per cent for August. Railroad Commission Chairman Ben Ramsey said Texas crude oil stocks early this month totalled 104 million barrels, 200,000 more than in June. Hondo told the Commission several items not reported on the log of Platoro Inc., the exploration firm which brought up artifacts, were recovered.

Burke predicted Platoro will win its lawsuit claiming title to the treasure and "open the door for every treasure hunter in the country."

Secretary of State Martin Dies said Platoro had no license for exploration from the state, and its find belongs to Texas.

Meanwhile, Rep. Frances Farenthold of Corpus Christi offered a House resolution proposing censure of Sadler for his handling of legislative committees and legislators seeking to probe the treasure case.

U.S. Bureau of Customs jumped into the controversy with a demand for an inventory of items salvaged, and claimed they are the property of the U.S. until matters in controversy (including processing of entry forms) are resolved.

Committee conducted its first hearing in a scheduled year-and-a-half-long interim study of how to improve and modernize the state's court system.

District Judge Truman Robert of Hamilton said some judges are "lazy" and need to be stirred up by Judicial Qualifications Commission.

Danger Fails To Stem Tourist Tide

TEL AVIV, Israel (NEA) — At a time when Toral Moshe Abraham, 18, was killed by an artillery shell at Port Tewfik on the Sinai peninsula, and Toral Yitzhak Varsano, 18, died in ambush on the Golan Heights, there wasn't an empty hotel room in Tel Aviv or Jerusalem.

It is an anomaly of the "hot" war this summer. The Jerusalem Post reports a tractor driver injured by a mine in Kibbutz Neve Ur. And the pool around the Tel Aviv Hilton is jammed by both Israelis and visitors from abroad.

Tourism in July set an all-time record of 67,700 visitors to the Holy Land, unswerving by bombing reports.

Open now to tourists in Israel since the Six-Day War of 1967 are such sacred religious sites as Bethlehem, Hebron and Jericho. And no matter where he stops, the visitor is hustled by little Arab kids who want to show him the way to the religious shrines, sell him gum, guard his car and will take dimes, Israeli pounds, agora, shillings or even Jordanian money. Right behind the kids are the adults with their insistent huckstering.

Jerusalem is also an open city and the Via Dolorosa, where Jesus stopped at 14 marked gates, leads to the famous Wailing Wall, through a bazaar of grime and barter and narrow, stench-filled alleys. At the final alley to the Wailing Wall, Israeli soldiers search the handbags of women for concealed weapons and on a rooftop they stand guard over the piazza which faces the Wall.

Yet, curiously, at no time here, or any other place in the country, does one sense danger.

A kiosk in Tel Aviv is fragmented by a crude bomb in an old paint can; a 14-year-old boy in Haifa unwittingly dismantles a booby trap in a watermelon outside a circus tent; an Arab working in a field east of the Gaza strip is killed when he steps on a mine.

But these are stories you read. You spend a night in a hotel in the all-Arab section of Jerusalem, and it feels no different than a night on the Mediterranean in Tel Aviv, which is an Asiatic transplant of Miami Beach.

Instead, the chief feeling in Israel is a determination to persist, no matter what, the harassment.

Beer Sheva is a settlement at the head of the Negev desert in an area as desolate as our own Death Valley in California. But there is one long avenue in which row after row of modern, highrise apartments thrust out of the hazy, almost colorless, vista-like Fantasyland.

"All these," explains a Moroccan Jew, in French, at a corner cafe, "were built in the last four years." Beer Sheva, the capital of the Negev, is now a bustling city of 80,000 people.

The road from it leads north through rocky hills to Jerusalem. The area was formerly a part of Jordan. Agriculturally, it is worthless and politically it is a headache because 650,000 Arabs continue to live there under Israeli rule.

But the new boundaries, militarily, comprise "strategic security borders," in the words of Moshe Dayan, the charismatic defense minister. (Before 1967, the neck of Israel north of Tel Aviv was only 10 miles wide, making the country vulnerable to a split.)

The Israelis are committed to defend themselves aggressively; there is a national psyche which sustains them in a hostile environment.

"I have two children," says a taxi driver in Tel Aviv, an Iraqi Jew. "They'll grow up to be soldiers, too — just like I was."

The ocelot, a species of wild cat in tropical America, averages about three feet long.

The Pacific Ocean includes about three-eighths of the total sea area of the globe.

Field Full For Top O' Texas

By RON CROSS
Sports Editor

Here it is only Wednesday and the field is full for the 32nd annual Top O' Texas golf tournament, scheduled Saturday through Monday at Pampa Country Club.

Club professional Hart Warren, who is Golf Professional of the Year for West Texas, announced Tuesday afternoon that he now has a waiting list in case any of the 206 entrants decide to withdraw.

There will be 10 flights in this year's tournament with at least 37 golfers in the championship flight. Championship and first flight will be cut after 36 holes, probably to the low 20's and ties.

"This is the first time in the history of the tournament that we've had the field full this early," Warren said.

There are some good golfers missing from the 1968 tournament but there are some better ones who'll be here to battle it out in the championship flight's 72 holes of medal play.

The championship flight golfers will conclude the event Monday with 36 holes.

First flight golfers will play

SPORTS

54 holes medal play and flights two through 10 will play match play Saturday and Sunday and 18 holes of medal play Monday.

Cosmopolitan by his absence is defending champion John Farquhar who will be playing his golf in the national amateur tournament. Should Farquhar fail to make the cut in the national tournament he probably will fly back here in time for Saturday's first round.

But even if he should show Farquhar would be no cinch.

Former Pampa Richard Ellis, who now plays his golf for Texas A&M, has been installed as the favorite and the home-town product will be under plenty of pressure.

Ellis has won several tournaments this summer, including two prestigious events in Amarillo.

Three other home-town favorites are expected to give Ellis a run for his money including Buster Carter, who's just got to win this tournament sometime; David Parker, who won the Pamcel tournament last week and Max Hickey, a threat anytime he steps on the course.

Some of the other top golfers entered in the championship flight include the only former champion in the big flight field, Steve LeCrons of Amarillo;

Jimmy Deaton and Jim Young of the Oklahoma State University golf team, Men's West Texas champion Robert McKinney of Lubbock, Ladd Larson of Tulsa; Skip Graham of Kansas; Jerry Hrncliar of Shamrock who finished second in the 1967 event.

There is one other former champion in the field, C.F. Ginnis, who will be in the first flight this year.

LeCrons won the tournament in 1966 with a 274, 10-under par and was fourth in 1967.

McGinnis won the tournament in 1945.

Fry Moaning Over Team's First Scrimmage

By United Press International
"Ohhhhhhhhh, we've got problems."

The lament on the college football coach after watching his team's first scrimmage of the season is a plaintive cry. In this case the moan comes from Hayden Fry of Southern Methodist University.

The Mustangs began practice a week earlier than the other seven Southwest Conference teams because their schedule begins a week earlier than the other seven conference teams.

But the cry is just the same. It can be expected from coaches of the other seven conference teams.

Harvester Fans, Players Meet To View Offense

Approximately 300 persons, way short of the number of football fans in Pampa, attended an ice cream social in "chill" weather Tuesday night in Harvester stadium.

The occasion was brought on by the Harvester Club, the official boosters of Pampa High School Athletics.

The assembly met the Pampa coaches and the varsity squadmen who have been working out since Monday.

Coach Swede Lee also gave fans a preview of the new offense he has installed and the defense the Harvesters will run. For some it was their first viewing of the "Veer Option" or Wing-T.

After all this the Harvester Club passed out ice cream to anybody who cared for it.

Hart Warren Selected Pro Of Year In WT

Pampa Country Club professional Hart Warren has been named Golf Professional of the Year for the West Texas Chapter of the Professional Golfer's Association.

Warren, club professional here for 14 years, was selected for the honor by his fellow chapter members and now is eligible for the same honor for the state of Texas and the national honor which will become known Nov. 11 when PGA members meet in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Texas PGA members meet Sept. 29 in Bridgeport.

Warren, who is president of the West Texas chapter, won the honor over a wide field of fellow professionals and the area over which he was named is east of Wichita Falls, south to San Angelo, west to the New Mexico border and north to the Oklahoma border.

There are 59 recognized golf professionals in the West Texas chapter.

Warren served as vice president of the Kentucky PGA section in 1954 and is one of three vice-presidents in Texas.

He has been a member of the PGA for 20 years and is the defending seniors champion of the West Texas section. He

Dallas Eyes Oiler Game

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys learned their upcoming game will not only decide the unofficial pro football championship of Texas, but the recipient of the Governor's Cup as well.

Gov. Preston Smith will make two appearances at Thursday's game in the Houston Astrodome between the Cowboys of the NFL and the Houston Oilers of the AFL.

Smith will be the official coin-tosser at the beginning of the contest and he will present the Governor's Cup to the winner at game's end.

Cowboy coach Tom Landry said Tuesday he hoped the Governor's Cup would give his team some incentive for the game.

"We're having trouble getting over Green Bay," Landry said. "The players reached a high emotional pitch for the Packers. It's been very noticeable our last two mornings that we're not sharp. We seem a little sluggish."

The Cowboys pulled off a rare victory over the Packers Saturday in the Dallas Cotton Bowl, beating Green Bay 31-13. It was only the third Cowboy win in 18 contests between the two teams.

How Governments Are Born

Governments of the past claimed the Divine Right of Kings, staking out their "right to rule on the works of St. Paul in the Book of Romans. Well, the Declaration of Independence demolished that myth and grasped the truth: Kings and thrones, one after another, began to tumble like tenpins. Slowly, over the years, men grasped the truth: Kings and would-be kings were fallible, often frightened, mere mortals; even as you and I and Teddy Kennedy.

But, still, the aura of divinity persisted, with the mantle of omnipotence being transferred from the shoulders of nobility to those holding elected and appointed positions of authority under constitutional governments in the name of "the people." Society, "represented" by the Almighty State, became the new object of veneration. Custom and the passage of time added credence to the new myth.

Our own U.S. Constitution, and the federal government given birth by it, are instructive cases in point. Although the reasoning mind should tell one that both the document and the bureaucracy which arose out of it were created out of thin air by mortals like ourselves, the overwhelming majority of people appear to regard them with reverence and awe as if possessed of Divine authority.

As thought tools instrumental in helping us to grasp the fact that political governments, regardless of their claims and origins, are nothing but human instruments designed to permit some people to impose their ideas, beliefs and values upon other people, it will be enlightening to compare two such entities: one old and based in Washington, D.C., the other new and based here in Southern California, Orange County.

The first such entity is the federal government, of course, and the second is the Southern California Assn. of Government Prayers Up In The Air From hornet's nest to the U.S.S. Hornet the subject of prayer has buzzed. When Madeline Murray O'Hair opened up a hornet's nest, calling for a ban of prayer in schools because a few people who did not choose to believe in God might be offended, voices were raised throughout the land in protest to such a ban.

The latest controversy has been raised over President Nixon's asking Lt. Cmdr. John A. Pirtto of the U.S.S. Hornet to offer a "prayer of thanksgiving" after the Apollo 11 astronauts were brought safely aboard.

Thoughtful people everywhere will agree that there are moments of exultance, moments of trial, moments of gratitude, moments of mercy, which stir them. Usually they are linked to the scheme of things outside the limits of human ken. And in such moments individuals are moved to commune with the principle of harmony of the universe, whether they wholly understand it or not. They must express themselves, because they have faith and renewed evidence that principle is there.

Why there should be so much rancor over what type of expression is made at such moments is baffling. It seems better that individual say thank you and feel communion with a source of power outside his meager allotment of protoplasm than to bar such expression because it does not follow the form an opposer would desire. Far too few thanks are uttered these days.

The government, highly regulatory of men's lives in the military services, still permits voluntary religious services to be conducted. But there is no regulation which requires men or SCAG. The origin of the first aided by the passage of time and the whimsy of government-oriented historians, is shrouded in obscurity. No person now living was around when the federal government was born.

Yet, if one studies the Constitution of the United States, within the added insight of the Federalist Papers and then compares what transpired then since with newspaper accounts of SCAG's creation and growth, it quickly becomes apparent that both governmental entities came into being in almost exactly the same way.

In both instances they were created by men claiming to represent all the people involved, in the case of the Constitution and the federal government by men claiming to represent all the people of the original federated states; in the case of SCAG, by men claiming to represent all of the people residing in the municipalities and counties involved and now falling under SCAG's sway.

In both instances the so-called representatives got together and formed a new governmental entity under false pretenses. The alleged purpose, in the case of the Constitution and the federal government, was to amend the original articles of confederation; instead an entirely new government was formed. In like manner, the alleged purpose of the "representatives," in the case of SCAG, was to form a "coordinating council," instead, out of that first beginning, came a new government full blown.

And, finally, in each case the new governmental entity was superimposed upon the then existing governing bodies; with the new body, in each case, possessed of the authority to impose its views.

Yet, cognizant of how it came into being, no one attaches any particle of Divine authority to SCAG. Why, then, to the federal bureaucracy?

Both were formed in almost precisely the same way.

Prayer in schools? Attend any religious service. U.S. News and World Report editor David Lawrence, in his current editorial, "Let Us Pray," expressed the opinion that similar to the military policy, the government schools should permit children an opportunity to pray if they wished, allowing youngsters whose parents did not wish them to participate to leave the classroom during prayer time, be golden.

Mrs. O'Hair stated in a recent television broadcast, "I will work for the astronauts, but I will not pray for them." Good works might be construed as prayer. Be that as it may, there are no doubt many tax payers who might, because of her hornet's nest, say "I'll pray for Mrs. O'Hair," but I resent working for her."

A POSITIVE POSITION

In March of this year at California State College, at Dominguez Hills, a group of revolutionary students, led by the Students for a Democratic Society, conducted a week-long boycott of classes.

In response to this disruption of their education, a group of constructive students organized a group which they call Students for Education. These students believe that they are in college to obtain an education, and that farleft radicals should not be allowed to deprive them of this.

To counterbalance the destructive demands of the boycotting group, the Students for Education presented a list of "demands," which are actually a statement of the rights of Students on a college campus.

The Students for Education requested the administration not to allow any organization "to disrupt any normally scheduled classes in any manner," to require teachers to hold regularly scheduled classes for the students that wished to attend, and to encourage discussions of problems, so long as they were scheduled so as not to disrupt any regular classes.

The Students for Education were basically describing the situation that should exist on any properly run college or university campus. Yet on far too many campuses, small groups of militants have been allowed to destroy others' opportunities for meaningful education for weeks at a time.

These disruptions have taken place because too often administrators have not been willing to protect the rights of the serious students. To meet this situation, students on campuses throughout the country should follow the example of the Students for an Education and politely but firmly request that their right to an education be respected.

Simple Surgery Corrects Gap Between Front Teeth

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: My granddaughter, 7, has a wide space between her two front permanent teeth. I've been told that the muscle in her upper lip must be cut or her teeth will never grow close together. Do you agree with that? If so, when should it be done? At what age?

Mrs. Sylvia S.

ANSWER: The name given to the space between the two front teeth is diastema. It's probably genetic in origin although thumb-sucking and early loss of baby teeth are also causes.

The "muscle" mentioned above is really a frenum or "ligament," which is attached to the gum and the lip and helps control movements of the lip. When this frenum is thick and wide, and firmly attached between the two front teeth, it prevents them from coming together. Surgical removal of the gum section of the frenum allows the teeth to be moved together. It's a simple operation with minimal pain.

When should this be done? Newly erupting front teeth are often separated by wide spaces. Normally, as the jaws develop and other teeth erupt, they push the front teeth toward the midline and spaces are eliminated.

But waiting for age to close the space is not safe. The degree of abnormality is the best determinant and this evaluation should be made by your orthodontist.

Just to keep the record straight, it must be mentioned that a few orthodontists don't agree that enlarged frenums are causes of separation of front teeth. They even say that surgical removal is not only unnecessary but quite improper. But again, your own dentist, in consultation with your orthodontist, should make the final decision.

I don't see how you can withdraw funds from institutions without punishing the innocent.

—California Gov. Ronald Reagan, opposing the cutting off of federal funds to colleges which fail to control student demonstrations.

Nixon And The Sore Losers

By PAUL HARVEY

To a liberal colleague the other day I said, "How do you now evaluate President Nixon?" He said, "Well, I didn't like the way he scuttled Dr. Knowles' nomination. I don't approve his abandonment of ADC. I don't agree with his modification of school desegregation guidelines."

I said, "Bob, hold on a minute. Richard Nixon was elected President because he was less liberal than Hubert Humphrey. Now you are objecting because he, Nixon, has not adopted Humphrey's platform."

Bob said he'd not thought of it like that.

This is a paradox of the American political system. The American majority elects a President because they approve his politics and policies, then his critics continue to try to change his mind.

President Nixon was elected mostly because he promised to firm up the soft dollar, counteract rampant crime, disengage from Vietnam, and, thereafter, end the military draft.

Since the election, with his considerable energies, he has moved forward on all four of those fronts.

Yet we read surveys (for what they are worth) suggesting that President Nixon's popularity is diminishing.

My friend, Bob, was in fact criticizing President Nixon for doing "his thing." And Bob is fairly representative of a very large number of Americans who, without realizing it, are sore losers.

If these surveys have any validity, President Nixon is going to have to fight back. Campaigning for GOP candidates next year, he will be effective only if he is at that time enjoying the continuing enthusiasm of the people who elected him.

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

Kennedy "confessed" approximately 140 hours after the tragedy, that attorney Markham and Kennedy's cousin Joseph Gargan, at risk of their own lives, dove repeatedly to try to rescue the drowned girl.

Were they, too in such a daze they couldn't report it to the police? Why can't they be prosecuted?

Nobody has been found who will say that he saw Senator Edward M. Kennedy in wet clothes on the night of or the morning after he fell off the bridge. The co-owner of the Shiretown Inn (where Kennedy returned before reporting the accident) and another man say they saw the Senator. Both say he was in dry clothes. Another witness saw Kennedy having breakfast at the inn, in dry clothes. The best explanation may be that he simply walked on the water. Perhaps he didn't report the accident and all the diving and swimming not because he was "dazed" but because he needed time to get his hair done.

Obsessed with trying to save himself, Ted Kennedy may have destroyed himself politically, the coldly calculated living easiness, double-talk and extreme selfishness were too much for anybody but a Kennedy fanatic.

He lacked what it took to stand up like a man and tell the truth regardless of personal consequences. No, he didn't do it on TV either. He told part of the truth, sitting down and reading the soap opera which had been laboriously concocted by his brain trust.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 27, the 230th day of 1969 with 136 follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history: In 1859 the first oil well in the United States was drilled near Titusville, Pennsylvania.

In 1928 the Kellogg-Briand Pact to outlaw war was signed by 15 nations in Paris.

In 1939 Adolf Hitler served notice on England and France that Germany wanted Danzig and the Polish corridor.

In 1963 miners David Fellin and Henry Throne were rescued after being trapped for 14 days in a mine at Shepperton, Pa.

Galbraith, McNamara, Goodwin, Sorenson and others of the Kennedy-Mafia reportedly convened at the Kennedy compound Thursday, 15 days after the tragedy, presumably to determine how much of the truth Ted Kennedy date tell and wrote the script.

Senator Kennedy's driving license was suspended for two months. His license to get the Democrat Presidential nomination was suspended for considerably longer.

If Kennedy was "too exhausted," in a "state of shock" to notify the police, how was he able to walk 13 miles of country road and then swim the 250-yard channel to Edgartown?

JOHN GOLDSMITH Peace Corps Research Called Costly 'Boondoggling' ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The Peace Corps spent $639,491 last year for a series of studies and polls to find out what it's doing and how it's doing it.

In addition, the agency employed some 400 so-called "experts" and "consultants" for varying periods of time at from $50 to $75 a day. Of this number, 78 received the top compensation of $75 per diem.

These unpublished facts were brought to light by Rep. Vernon Thompson, R-Wis., member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, during a hearing on the Peace Corps' $101 million budget. That is $90,000 less than last year's budget.

Notable among the Peace Corps' list of "research" projects were two conducted by the Louis Harris polling organization at a cost of $82,500. One Harris project, with a $58,000 price tag, was a study of the social attitudes, career patterns and readjustment problems of returned volunteers. The other, for $24,500, was "to measure the current attitudes toward the Peace Corps among college seniors."

Rep. Thompson sharply criticized the $639,000 outlay as "an unwarranted waste of taxpayers' money."

"This so-called research," the former Wisconsin governor told William Whelan, Peace Corps budget director, "has all the earmarks of high-faloot boondoggling. Going over the list of these studies, analysis and polls, I can't find a single one that on its very face doesn't appear useless."

In some instances Thompson pointed out the studies are patently contradictory. He also stressed that, as far as the record shows, nothing has ever come of the reports produced by these studies.

"If there is any evidence that anyone in the Peace Corps read them and did anything about them," said Thompson, "I never heard of it and neither has any other member of this committee. Apparently, hundreds of thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money were spent on studies, reports were filed and that was the end of it."

Among the expensive "research" projects uncovered by Thompson are the following: "Analysis of the completion of service questionnaire," by the Oregon-REsearch Institute, $61,000; "Development of Peace Corps research," by the Human Development Foundation, $26,000; "Direct mail study," by Benson, Slagg & Associates, $16,000; "To determine attractions and deterrents to Peace Corps service among married and single teachers and blue-collar workers," by Roper Associates, $36,000.

Also, "To develop a programing guide for agricultural projects in Latin America in order to increase the effectiveness of Peace Corps agriculture programs," by BASICO, Inc., $81,000; "To measure the attitudes of college seniors from five California schools by a new personal interview technique," by Decisionmaking Information, $5,100; "To develop a rating form for evaluating the overseas performance of each Peace Corps volunteer," by Oregon Research Institute, $44,000; "To develop a practical and workable system for routinely collecting information about the effectiveness and impact of PC cooperative development and rural community development programs," by American Technical Assistance Corp., $107,000.

QUESTION: One previous Question Box demonstrated either a lack of information or a reckless disregard for journalistic integrity. The answer to the inquiry about the functions of the State Bar apparently adopted as applying equally to the American Bar Assn., the nameless inquirer's reference to "the AMA as an association" whose main purpose is to protect and whitewash their paid-up members - whether applicable to the AMA or not, the charge is clearly unfair when leveled against either the State Bar or the ABA.

The facts are that the ABA has raised the standards of American legal education, formulated and is presently modernizing the canons of professional ethics and has led the crusade for such worthwhile judicial reforms as the non-judicial selection of judges and the better administration of municipal courts.

The Question Box reply likewise accuses the State Bar of limiting competition and protecting its members at public expense under the guise of determining qualifications of those permitted to practice law, and draws an analogy to "a closed shop union." Of course there is no analogy, since any citizen is always free to defend himself in court, just as he is equally free to minister to his own medical needs. The results of such misguided self-reliance will also unfortunately be visited on bankrupt dependents or on a surviving spouse. All that the State Bar (or State Board of Medical Examiners, which also came under your attack) attempts to do is to regulate those who would accept fees and represent themselves to be experts. Does The News really feel that public good would be advanced by allowing anyone who desires to do so to practice law or medicine on his unsuspecting fellows?

It would seem that the public interest is better served by a professional self-regulating (and not governmental, as you implied) organization of practitioners that both trains its aspirants and then impartially tests their qualifications to properly serve their clients or patients. Did you even bother to inquire about the State Bar's machinery to handle public complaints about its members? Its failure to do so indicative of fair play and responsible journalism?

—Peter M. Callahan, 121 N. La Reina Cir., Anaheim, Calif. 92801

EDITOR'S RESPONSE: The answer demonstrated neither lack of information nor disregard for journalistic integrity. It merely pointed out the facts. It did say the American Medical Assn. and the American Bar Assn. were comparable and that the State Bar is comparable to the State Board of Medical Examiners. The two first named are national associations which, as far as we know, are non-compulsory; the latter two are state-created agencies which have control over licensing of practitioners. As such, the state bar and state medical examiners are even more powerful than are closed shop unions, since it is impossible to expel anyone in these fields unless they have state approval.

We are familiar with the ARA activities, some of which we would consider beneficial and some of which we believe to be injurious. As long as it remains a voluntary association without using the power of government to enforce its ideas on others than its own membership, we can have little objections. The State Bar does clearly limit competition through legislation. Mr. Callahan's statement that a citizen can defend himself in court or minister to his own medical needs is not comparable to other closed-shop operations. A man can still build his own home; he can even hire a non-union worker there without a law prohibiting it, although some unions have attempted to get prohibitions, and some building inspectors make it more difficult for non-union workers.

Television In Review

By ROBERT MUSEL
NEW YORK (UPI)—The world, said Frank Sinatra, Jr., isn't exactly breaking down my door.

A wry smile went with the admission for the son of one of the greatest stars of them all knows he has chosen the hard way to the top.

In an age when young record buyers prefer their idols unshorn he sports a neat haircut. Even worse he wears a jacket and tie. And instead of extorting a few simple chords from a guitar he works with a band of good musicians.

So instead of armies of screaming teen-agers he plays to more sedate audiences at county fairs, in theaters, night clubs and hotel lounges. It is hard life that has made him, at 25, an impressive young man secure in his own experience and convinced that he, too, will in his own time achieve his goals in the family business.

These are, first stardom, as an entertainer and then a career as a director.

There are two high roads to the heights—a hit record (sister Nancy Sinatra's route) or a television special (Barbra Streisand's springboard). CBS-TV is just completing the final touches on a special, "Frank Sinatra, Jr.—His Family and His Friends," which millions of people will be watching Oct. 19 to decide whether the magic will strike yet again.

"I couldn't believe it when I was offered the special," Frank said, savoring the moment once again. "I said 'What do you guys want me for?' You see, I knew it would happen some day but I couldn't believe it would happen so soon."

Jack Haley, Jr., decided to produce a show about Las Vegas," he said. "I play there often. He'd seen something I'd done and remembered it. I was flattered. The original premise was to feature the city but there were complaints about concentrating wholly on a gambling town and it was decided other cities might object it was getting too much publicity.

Bayonets Won't Bring Peace

BELFAST (NEA) — Even homemade fire bomb have an especially vicious quality in Northern Ireland's religious conflict.

The Irish fill milk bottles with a mixture consisting of two parts gasoline to one part oil, with a generous helping of washing powder added. The oil ensures that the flaming gasoline will cling to any surface, while the washing powder produces a chemical explosive effect.

Over 500 such fire bombs were thrown in recent street battles between Protestants and Catholics in Belfast and Londonderry, according to police estimates. Some were hurled from the tops of tall blocks of flats onto the police themselves; others were slithered along the streets to set fire to police vehicles or to buildings.

Rioters found that they could extend their range to 60 yards by attaching a piece of cord around the neck of the milk bottle and thus swinging the Molotov cocktail over their heads before throwing it.

Strike-torn Northern Ireland is no nearer a solution to its bitter internal problems than it was when the religious rioting first broke out in the Bogside area of Londonderry on Aug. 12. The presence of British troops in Belfast streets is momentarily all that keeps Protestant and Catholic from leaping at each other's throat.

However, it will take more than British bayonets to prevent civil war in Northern Ireland. The trouble dates back to the partition of Ireland by the British government in 1920. At that time, southern Ireland, which was 95 per cent Catholic, opted for independence and home rule, becoming eventually the Republic of Eire.

Northern Ireland, which is predominantly Protestant, agreed to remain loyal to the British crown. It was given a separate Parliament, but its finances remained firmly in the hands of the British government at Westminster.

It looked like an acceptable compromise 50 years ago, but partition of Ireland has, in reality, created an impossible situation. Although two-thirds of its 1.5 million population is Protestant, Northern Ireland feels itself threatened by the independent Republic of Eire to the south, and by the explosive birthrate of the Catholics in its midst.

DENIES REPORT
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department has denied a Soviet press report that U.S. Green Berets had a hand in the 1968 Czechoslovakia crisis. The Soviet Communist party newspaper, "Pravda," published an article citing Italian newspaper accounts of an alleged "plan" involving the Berets. State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said: "That is not true" and those who printed it know that it is not true.

In 1968, there were an estimated 82.2 million automobiles in the United States, compared with 194,000 in 1968.

IT'S OUR CHOICE!

The Choice Will Be Made By The Voters of Pampa!

Will we take advantage of the one-cent city sales tax available to us or will we accept a 50c per hundred dollar valuation increase in "Ad Valorem" or property taxes?

There are many questions to be answered regarding the Penny for Pampa - some of which are answered here:

- Q: What items are subject to the 1% municipal sales tax?
- A: The 1% city sales tax is applicable only to those sales now taxed under the State Sales & Use Tax act.
- Q: There is a 2% State tax on automobiles. Would the city tax also apply to automobile sales?
- A: No. The 2% State tax on automobiles is an excise tax; the municipal sales tax would not apply to automobile sales.
- Q: Does a person residing outside of the city limits pay the 1% municipal sales tax?
- A: Yes, when he makes a purchase of personal property subject to the tax in city which has adopted the local sales tax. In return, he enjoys the city's street facilities, police protection and other advantages of the city for which residents pay the major share.
- Q: Is the local sales tax regressive—that is, will it cause a particular hardship for lower-income families?
- A: A sales tax has more elements of equity than any other type of tax, and this is particularly true in Texas, since so many essential items are exempt from the sales tax.
- Q: Are city sales tax payments deductible from our Federal income tax reports?
- A: Yes.
- Q: Who can vote on the 1% local sales tax?
- A: Any registered voter in the city. A simple majority is required to put the sales tax into effect.

We want to answer your questions, too — If you have a question regarding the city sales tax, please use the attached coupon or a letter and mail to Citizen's Information Committee for City Sales Tax, c/o J. M. Nation—Box 658, Pampa, Texas.
