Says Cotton Forecasts Cost Texas Over $500,000,000

HOUSTON, May 3.—(P)—Governor Dan Moody attacked the presidential candidacy of Governor Al Smith and called for the Democracy of Texas to fight for a dry plank, a dry candidate and an undivided delegation in sympathy with those aims in a speech before more than 2,000 persons at the city auditorium here Wednesday night.

"So far as Governor Smith is concerned," he said, "I am not against him. I am just not for him for president. I am for somebody who can measure up to the situation."

Attacks Administration
After attacking Republican corruption, charging that Republican cotton forecasts cost Texas farmers $500,000,000 and declaring that the Republican administration holds "you and me and the other people of this section of the country in practical bondage," the governor said:

"Thousands belong to the Democratic party who are opposed to prohibition. There was a sharp burst of applause but the governor didn't heed it. "But in my opinion the great majority are for enforcement of the 18th amendment, which is to me the greatest moral and economic development in our country since the civil war."

Consistency Urged
"It is inconsistent to offer one kind of a platform and another kind of a candidate. It gives our party the appearance of being simply a party of place hunters."

"Now some people seem to think Al Smith can be nominated anyway. "He was interrupted by a great wave of applause which broke out from every part of the crowd. Men cheered and waved their hats. "California, here I come," sang one exuberant spectator. "Governor Moody flushed. "Al Smith may be nominated and he may be elected. If he is, the State of Texas will not be responsible for his nomination and election in my opinion."

Rotarians Told of Scout Plans

Rotarians Wednesday heard Scout plans for the new council discussed by E. D. McIver, recently employed executive. Rotarians assured him of their co-operation in the work. Short talks were made by Frank Klein, Scott Barcus, Neil McCullough and Joe Smith, who spoke on phase of the recent Lubbock convention. Lynn Boyd was in charge of the program.

J. E. Murfee and C. P. Buckler were added to the program committee to work with DeLea Vicars and Joe M. Smith during the absence of M. K. Brown, chairman. New members whose names will stand before the club for ten days are Da. J. A. Odom, F. W. Owen, and D. W. Osborne.

Visiting Rotarians present were Ed Enoch and Emil Myers of Amarillo; C. H. McClellan of Wichita Falls, and J. A. Odom, formerly of Memphis, Texas. Other visitors included W. C. Upton, H. W. Park, George W. Briggs, and H. K. Hoffberger, the latter of Oklahoma City.

GIRL DECLINES HONORS OF PHI BETA KAPPA

Michael Arlen and Bride Declare They Have Quit "Society"

MADISON, Wis., May 3.—(P)—Miss Olga Robinson of Philadelphia has refused election to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society, because she believes high grades are not a genuine criterion of true scholarship and intellectual achievement.

In a letter declining the honor, Miss Robinson said she was opposed to the bestowal of formal honors on the basis of high grades. "The distinction," she added, "is often conferred upon the unworthy as well as the worthy. A large part of the worthy who do not happen to excel in grades are excluded."

Vice-Presidency Goes Begging in Early Search

ANOTHER SPILT WOULD RESULT

Republican Corruption Is Cited in Contrast to Smith

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(P)—Disapproval of the proposals of Wilbur Legette of California, for a third party in the event Governor Smith of New York is nominated for president by the Democrats was expressed today by Senator Reed of Missouri, suggested as a possible head of the ticket.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(P)—A third party movement among democrats unfriendly to Governor Alfred E. Smith had peaked its head into the political spotlight today following the New York executive's decisive victory in the California presidential primaries.

What success the effort will achieve remains to be seen. Its first attempt to find candidates has failed. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the Navy under President Wilson, put his foot down hard on a move made by Wilbur Legette, California manager for Senator Reed of Missouri, to have the former cabinet officer run for vice-president on a third party ticket headed by Reed or Senator Borah Republican, Idaho. If Smith is nominated and either Reed or Borah agree to make the race.

Daniels for Nominees
Neither Reed nor Borah have been heard from. It was not stated in the Los Angeles dispatches carrying the Legette appeal to Daniels whether either Senator had been consulted. Daniels, however, at his Raleigh, N. C. home, refused flatly to accept a third party nomination, declared he would support the nominees at Houston, and saw little chance to "wrest the government from the hands of privilege and corruption" unless the Democratic party won at the polls.

Legette directed the Reed campaign in California which culminated in the Missouriian's crushing defeat, along with Senator Walsh of Montana, at the hands of Smith, now leading by far in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Majority vote in Southern California against Smith," said his telegram to Daniels, "shows that the best element of Democratic party is not for Smith. If Smith nominated at Houston, will you consent to run on third party ticket for vice-president headed by Senator James A. Reed or Borah?"

Hope That Bible Gives Inspires Premier Baldwin to Keep at Work

British Statesman Asserts He Would Resign But for This Assurance—Says Book Is High Explosive

LONDON, May 3.—(P)—But for the hope the Bible gives of a better world Premier Baldwin would resign. Addressing the annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible society, he said: "The work of all others who hold the same faith and ideals, whether in politics or civic work, was done in the faith and hope that some day—nearly a million years hence—the Kingdom of God would spread over the whole world, then I should have no hope. I could do no work and I would deliver my office to anyone who would take it."

The Bible, he continued, "is not only above that it always has been and is in the nature of a high explosive in the world."

Musical Program and Speaking Arranged—Ladies Invited—Lavender Is Chairman—Bennett to Be Present
The Chamber of Commerce membership banquet tonight at the Pla-Mor auditorium will commence at 8 o'clock with the speaking and entertainment at 9 o'clock. The ladies are invited to be present.

J. H. Lavender, chairman of the occasion, is anxious that a large membership be present to welcome the new manager of the Chamber and to hear the fine program arranged. B. Frank Bennett, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will make the address of the evening. A musical program also will be given.

George W. Briggs of Eastland the new manager, will be officially welcomed at the banquet tonight. Scott Barcus, former secretary, will tell the accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce during the last year.

In a statement to a News reporter this morning Mr. Barcus said, "during the year I have served as secretary of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce I enjoyed unusual co-operation from the people of this city. I hope that a large attendance will be present at the banquet tonight to welcome the new manager." "Mr. Briggs is a capable man and it is necessary that he have the same co-operation if Pampa is to build herself into the city that she may and will indicate that Mr. Briggs will be should become. A record attendance and hearty co-operation for the coming year in the great work of the Chamber of Commerce. He has a wonderful program before him and a beneficial one."

NOVELIST NOW THROUGH WITH MODERN LIFE

Says Election Not Measure of True Scholarship and Achievement

CANNES, France, May 3.—(P)—Michael Arlen novelist, and his bride Countess Meroni, today explained that their reception yesterday because they hurriedly departed from the wedding were through with society. They left Villa Fiorantina home of Princess Karsgeorgevitch the Bride's grandmother, while 300 Riviera society people were still on their way to reception.

The couple was snugly installed in their new home today and both said they wanted to begin housekeeping without publicity and ostentation. Both insisted that they were through with society. The novelist said he had seen through the foolishness of what he once termed "modern life."

They will remain on the Riviera for four months and then visit London before making a tour of the world by way of America.

Sandino Claims Crushing Victory Over U. S. Marines

EL PASO, May 3.—(P)—El Central (Central Spanish language newspaper here, says it is in receipt of reports that Dr. Pedro Cepeda, Nicaraguan representative in Mexico City, has received a letter from General Sandino, relating an encounter that took place in "El Bramadero" on April 25.

It says according to the newspaper, Simeon Mentoya and backed by cavalry detachments under General Luis that an infantry column headed by Espinosa, having two batteries of machine guns, encountered a regiment of 80 American soldiers who were going to Ticonderoga and engaged in battle with them, killing or wounding 700 Marines. The battle lasted five hours, the report says. Sandino claims he captured 400 rifles, 16 machine guns, 180 miles loaded with provisions and ammunition, sixty pistols, eleven photographic cameras, four pairs of field glasses, two medicine cabinets, a number of tents and kitchen utensils.

The Nicaraguan casualties included General Luis Espinosa killed and Colonel Carlos Quesada seriously wounded. The letter states that a United States army plane was brought down, killing the pilot, Captain William Bird and Sergeant Rodolph Frankforter.

Legion Raises Membership Quota for Further Work

The Legion membership quota of 275 memberships was passed Tuesday night at the joint meeting of the Legion and the Auxiliary With 286 members already received, the quota was raised to 325 and the drive is still going on. The membership team captained by Lewis Cox, past commander, won the team contest and will be banquered by the losing team, captained by C. E. Cary.

Reports were received from the rodeo committee and the prospects for the largest rodeo in the Panhandle looks bright. The Legion, in co-operation with the fire department, is sponsoring the J. George shows every next week and the Miss Pampa contest. Post Commander R. A. Webb congratulated the ladies on their response regarding the Auxiliary work. He also outlined coming events and called a joint meeting of the Legion and fire department for Tuesday night. The 40 and 8 group will have a banquet at the Schneider hotel tonight at 8 o'clock. Other house committees hold hearings on proposed increases in large lien facilities and amendment to federal reserve act.

KANSAS CITY ROBBERY NEAR POLICE STATION

PATROLMAN IS EASILY DISARMED

Fast Auto Quickly Leaves Officers Behind

KANSAS CITY, Kans., May 3.—Six bandits today held up the Healy Diamond Shop, at 628 Minnesota Avenue, and escaped with diamonds valued by the company at $17,800. The staff of clerks in the store was forced to lie on the floor while three of the men who entered the store looted the cash cases.

Three of the men remained outside the store in a motor car. The Diamond Shop is in the heart of the downtown district, two blocks from police headquarters. When the men entered, the alarm was turned in by an employee on the second floor.

Homer Lucas, motorcycle patrolman, responded to the call, arriving while the robbery was in progress. He was stopped by the men in front, who disarmed him, and forced him to stand aside, hands in the air, while the three men inside the store came out and got into the motor car.

Two car loads of patrolmen arrived in time to see the large bandit car speed away. It easily outdistanced the police cars and later was found abandoned under 154 Twelfth street viaduct.

COLUMBIA, Miss., May 3.—(P)—Two young well dressed young men walked into the Columbia bank shortly after noon today, forced two clerks into a vault, scooped up all the money in sight and escaped in a sedan.

Pampa Gets Shower Last Night—Rains Over West Texas

Rain which fell here last night amounted to 17 of an inch. Roads were seen passably dry for the usual speedy traffic, although the day dawned cool and cloudy.

SAN ANGELO, May 3.—(P)—Rain, breaking an extensive drought, fell last night in a large portion of West Texas, from Ballinger to Alpins. At San Angelo the precipitation was 35 of an inch, while some points got as much as two inches. The moisture is expected to be beneficial as a driving range was reported to have mild, misty eyes desert their lambs.

WICHITA FALLS, May 3.—(P)—General rains ranging from a light sprinkle to more than half an inch were reported from practically all points in North Texas and Southern Oklahoma Thursday morning.

Senior Play to Be Presented at Theatre May 9

The Senior play will be enacted at the Rex theatre, Wednesday, May 9. The play, which is entitled, "Come Out of the Kitchen," is a three-act comedy written about a Virginia family of the old aristocracy, by the name of Daingerfield, who, finding themselves temporarily "financially" embarrassed decide to rent their magnificent home to a rich Yankee. The Yank rents the place and orders a full staff of white servants.

This question about the servants presents great difficulties and one daughter proposes that the four children make up as servants. Oliva Daingerfield appoints herself cook, Elizabeth as housemaid, Paul as butler, and Charlie as boot boy. When Burton Crane arrives from the North, accompanied by Mrs. Faulkner, her daughter, and Crane's attorney they find the staff to possess many methods of behavior that are out of the ordinary. Oliva's charm and beauty impress Crane above anything else, but her identity is not disclosed until Crane has professed his love for the charming cook. The play ends with the brightest of prospects for the two young people.

List of Characters:
Burton Crane, Thomas Clayton.
Mrs. Faulkner, Mildred Fahy.
Cora Faulkner (her daughter), Thelma Qualis.
Mr. Tucker (Crane's attorney), Floyd Coffin.
Mandy (a negro servant), Lottie Schafer.

First "Harvester" Is Dedicated to Supt. R. C. Campbell

We, the Annual Staff, wish to take this opportunity to announce that the first volume of the "Harvester" is dedicated to our Superintendent, R. C. Campbell, for his faithful and untiring service to the students of Pampa high school.

ED HERLACHER, Business manager.

OUR APPRECIATION

Dear Mr. Buckler we appreciate All the things you've tried to do, And as a member of our school-board We send our many thanks to you.

Mr. Hunky you've been with us, On the field and in your store, And you've been so kind and generous To you we offer thanks once more.

Mr. Joe Smith you've been faithful For our success you've been true, And as we prize in our old High School, Our hearts o'er fill in thanks to you.

Yes, Mr. Cook you've been for us, As much at heart as any one, Through-out the year we've felt your influence, Thanks to you for what you've done.

Mr. McConnell we're very grateful For the service that you freely give, Men like you make us thankful, For the land in which we live.

Thanks to you, dear Mr. Daugherty, For your efforts that have passed, To you and to each one before you, We are indebted to the last.

Before we close, young Mr. Fletcher There's just one thing we wish to do, For our emblem and our annual, We give our sincere thanks to you. —Elmer Hardin.

THE HARVESTER

The Seniors of P. H. S. are putting out an annual this year—perhaps you already knew that, but have you bought yours yet? The annual will contain a review of the activities of P. H. S. this year up until the time the book went to press. There is a picture of nearly every student in school, which will endear the annual to many, because of the memories which such reminders bring. Accounts of the athletic events, the pictures of the team and the coach compose the greater part of the athletic section. There are scenes taken from various plays presented in the auditorium, club pictures, and accounts of parties in the vicinity of school. Do you have a child in P. H. S.? Are you a student in P. H. S.? Are you a teacher in P. H. S.? Have you advertised in the "Harvester"? Then buy an Annual, our Annual—"The Harvester" of '28.

JUNIOR-SENIOR PARTY IS ENJOYABLE OCCASION

An enjoyable evening was spent April 28 when the Seniors honored the Juniors with a party at the Methodist church. The church was decorated with the colors of both classes. Games and games were enjoyed throughout the evening. Prizes were awarded Archie Lee, winner of a potato contest, and Harvey, winner of a peanut race.

At a late hour refreshments of chicken salad sandwiches, punch, and ice-cream were served to practically all the Juniors and Seniors, Miss Reed, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Campbell, and Mrs. Dickey.

GOOD-BY ALGEBRA

I have studied Algebra II without release. I think it is time for a little peace; I'm tired of Algebra; that's the truth it is a bore, take that for sooth.

One year I've had, this makes two; Formulas I worked through and through I've solved—X plus Y is equal to one; After this year oil has been a waste.

Much midnight oil has been a waste Whole holding my book before my face; I hope never again an Algebra to see For after this year—no more for me. —Lillie McMillan.

HARVESTER GIRLS INITIATE

The Harvester Girls were given their initiation requirements Wednesday. They must not wear rouge, lip stick, nor powder, and they must not chew gum until Tuesday, May 10.

S-E-N-I-O-R

S—is for Senior, the beginning and end;
E—is for education we fought to win,
N—is for "knowledge" we have it—you bet!
I—is for ideas we still have them yet.
O—is for opinion—we'll climb to the top.
R—is for rank—from which we'll never drop.

"One for all and all for one" is a motto which shall not soon be forgotten by the Seniors of '28. Why? Because it is our class motto, and during this year we have really tried to "live up" to what the motto actually means.

The most enjoyable events of the years were caused by our belief in each other, in other words, the spirit of fellowship that prevailed among most of our students. In trials and joys, the motto of our class seemed to bring comfort, and inspire us to do bigger, better things for those who believed in us.

In future years the motto of our class will surely not be forgotten. When we are glad, when we are sad, when we aspire to do something worthwhile, then surely we will remember classmates of our glorious, last year of high school, and the words of our motto "One for all and all for one" will bring pleasant memories of work and play in dear old P. H. S. —Lillian Keahey.

Crops Backward, But Good Prices Are Anticipated

AUSTIN, May 3.—(AP)—Practically all crops, especially cotton, are backward, but price prospects are good. George B. Terrell, state commissioner of agriculture said Wednesday.

His review of the situation was based on a limited number of private reports and general weather conditions. The regular report of acreage and condition will not be made until June 15.

"The acreage of wheat and oats is supposed to show a very slight increase over last year and the general condition is poor, indicating a light yield," Mr. Terrell said. "The crop is late and backward because of cold weather and insufficient rain in the main grain belt. Cattle, sheep and swine were the winter crops, the condition is poor, acreage is probably not increased and the condition is poor as much corn was damaged by recent frosts, and will be later than usual in sections where frosts prevailed. Texas is about to reap some corn."

"The planting of grain, sorghum, will continue until late in June, and no correct estimate of acreage can be made but plenty of this feed will be planted in sections where it can be grown."

Texas will raise enough feed of this kind, if seasons are favorable.

"The movement of winter vegetables in the Beaver River Grande Valley, and in the Winter Garden district has been large and prices on some of these crops have been satisfactory, but too low for profit on other crops. The most of these crops are now off the market, but onions are just now in a good way of moving, and the prices, while not as good as expected, will justify the growing."

"The tomato acreage was considerably increased, but the late frosts damaged the crop considerably after the plants were transferred from the cold frames to the fields. The damage was probably as much as 25 per cent and this will offset the increased acreage and the total production may be less than last year. It is too early to tell whether the prices will be satisfactory. The crop will be later than last year, unless the seasons are very favorable during May."

"The peach crop is safe so far, and a very good crop is expected on orchards that have been well cared for."

"The cattle, sheep and goat industry is prosperous, and prices of cattle wool and mohair are good, and the business seems to be in a very healthy and prosperous condition though rains are expected to improve the prospects."

"Planting of cotton will continue until sometime in June, and it is impossible to estimate the acreage at

MRS. JOHN COOLIDGE?

Rumors That President's Son Will Wed Florence Trumbull Just Won't Die

Here is the latest photo of Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, who, according to Washington society rumor, is engaged to John Coolidge, 21, eldest of the president's only son. The wedding will not take place, it is said, until both finish school.

This time, indications are that the acreage will be slightly increased because of backward seasons, and the failure of some other crops.

cotton killed. These late plantings will make the production more uncertain.

"Reports from Georgia, Alabama, and some other states, indicate a serious damage to the cotton crop by heavy rains, and floods, which should reduce to some extent, but the use of fertilizer for cotton in those states has been increased, which will probably offset the losses from other causes."

"Considering the cotton outlook as a whole it seems that the acreage and production may be slightly increased over last year, and we can stand an increased production of two million bales without any reduction in present prices, because the future production of cotton is strong. Cotton has now reached 21c per pound and it may go higher, but we should not lose our senses because of this and plant all the unplanted land in cotton and break the price below the cost of production."

"What is now almost two dollars per bushel and corn is more than one dollar and the outlook for prices is very favorable. Let us hold to our present strategic position and reap a rich harvest this fall."

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Marble and daughter Vera Lucille and Mrs. J. E. Wright left today for Laredo, where they will attend the bakers' convention. They also expect to visit points in Old Mexico before returning home.

Collections Will Be Included in Local Association

The Pampa Business Men's association announces the opening of a collection department in connection with the other departments of the organization. The law firm of Wakeman and Gordon has been engaged to handle the legal and collection work of the department.

Many of the local business and professional houses have placed delinquent bills in the hands of the association for collection.

Mrs. Forrest McMillin has been confined to her home for several days but is doing nicely.

Jim Benton of Abilene is a business visitor here this week.

A. A. Gordon returned from a business trip to Dallas this morning.

SCHOOL PATRONS, who in include the entire citizenship in one form of interest or another, will read with much pleasure the details of the building project which a petition now being circulated will launch.

The need for ward buildings is acute. First, there is the need for schools nearer the smaller pupils second, the state inspectors have found and reported crowded conditions which the school must remedy. It is unfair to the teachers and pupils to place more than 40 students in one room.

As for the gymnasium, that is one of the outstanding needs. Physical education cannot be carried beyond the stage of competitive athletics without indoor facilities. It is dangerous, moreover, to conduct athletics without shower-bath facilities. A program of athletics for the girls is as necessary as for the boys, and Pampa should no longer remain in that obsolete group of schools which make no provision for their girls' physical welfare. And the gym would have many recreational uses in addition to the games and physical education classes.

The time is near when the Central campus should be used only for junior and senior high school purposes. It is too small and too near the center of the business section to be adequate for use as well. By taking the Central ward school out of the main building and putting in the junior high school instead, it would be possible to raze the flimsy Lamar building and to develop an adequate Central school plant. The first step toward that end is the building of ward schools elsewhere.

The tax angle will be raised, but this phase rarely enters into school bond elections. People will vote for the good of their schools when opposing all other projects of public nature. The Central ward addition and the Baker school were built without raising the school taxes, owing to the huge increase in valuation in the district.

Such a wealthy district will find it possible to build still more out of the funds pouring in from the oil properties. The school board could have made last summer's building program larger and avoided the proposed election, but it chose rather to build slowly as needs arose and to hold taxes down.

Support of the coming program, therefore, should be as whole-hearted as was the last, when the vote was practically unanimous.

Now, Let's See If There Are Any More Bad Ones to Come Out

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Out of all this distressing scandal about the way Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Doheny got the navy's oil reserves and the way other enterprising oil men obtained from the government the world's richest oil field at Salt Creek, comes one sweet, consoling thought:

The public lands, property of the people, offer little more to worry about. Enterprising pirates have long since looted by far the better part of them and if any of value remain, someone must have blundered.

Revelations of the Senate Public Lands Committee about the Fall-Doheny-Sinclair cases and the reasons for which it expects to investigate the Salt Creek leases apparently merely indicate the heart-breaking difficulties faced by any gentleman or group of gentlemen who now hope to amass huge land fortunes by defrauding the government. The well has been pumped almost dry.

The oil men, of course, came upon the scene rather late in the game. The land speculators, the railroads, the cattle men, the iron, coal and other mineral-digging pioneers and the timber looters had a head start on them.

In addition to the fact that not much is left to grab, the fact that Congress is probably more honest and certainly far less susceptible to bribes and that conservationists in this century have been better organized and more militant must also be taken into account.

Although the Democrats have consistently undertaken to make political capital of the looting of the public domain, the records of two great Republican conversationists, Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot, appear to provide the brightest page in the whole story. It is also true that, although the Republicans have generally been in power during the looting that has gone on since the Civil War, the Democrats were in power most of the time before that, when some of the best gouges were dealt the public domain.

The original public domain has been computed at 1,800,000,000 acres, more than five-sixths of the continental area of the United States. Vacant, unappropriated public lands now amount to about 190,000,000 acres, most of which is comparatively worthless, though more than 350,000,000 acres remain under jurisdiction of the General Land Office in one way or another. The government also retains more than 180,000,000 acres of national forest preserves, along with various lesser tracts held for government purposes.

The public lands now vacant are in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. Some of the public lands now in private hands were acquired legitimately. But tens of millions of acres, according to authorities, were acquired by fraud. The business of obtaining public lands by theft or bribery is almost as old as the reported impossibility of convicting a man with a million dollars.

In a succeeding story we will begin the history of the public domain from the time of the Revolution.

A couple in California stood on their heads all night when a folding bed locked up; the woman sues for $35,000 and the man for $5,000. Probably the man wants less because he's used to being stood on his head.

TWINKLES

Personalities are deplorable, but it looks like such rot has a better chance than issues to bring ordinarily antagonistic groups together this year.

The Harvester Girls have furs worn powder, paint, and gum for a season. Trying to look the part?

Now comes a Missouri furtive, and being duly sworn declares he spent 61 years in the corner stone of a Baptist church. The next thing we know some human will be trying to act like that.

Who knows what a U. S. silver dollar dated 1799 is worth? A nearly destitute couple hopes to realize its true value to keep them awhile, and Twink is asked to sell it for them if possible. Speak up, you numismatic fans.

Talking movies ought to clean up the films a bit, for the public would not tolerate in sound some of the expressions formed by the lips of the actors.

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE

ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "SMART AND SINNER"

CHAPTER XL
"My mother?" Sally echoed blankly. There is no mother here. I have a little face with a rosy air. "My mother?" David—Mrs. Stone oh, I can't think!"

David's arms had dropped slowly from about her shoulders and she stood, looking slightly. "But—you won't be my mother?" she gasped, shaking her head in childish negation. "You're not old enough, I'm sixteen."

"And I'm thirty-three," Enid Barr said gently. "There's no mistake, Sally, my darling. I'm really your mother, and I'd like, more than anything in the world, for you to let me kiss you now and to hear you call me 'mother.' She had advanced the few steps that separated them and was holding out her delicate, useless-looking little hands with such humility and timidity as no one who knew Enid Barr would have believed her capable of."

Sally's hands went out involuntarily, but before their fingers could interpenetrate, Enid flung her arms about the girl and held her—smotheringly close for a moment. Then she raised her small, slight body on tiptoes and pressed her quivering lips against Sally's cheek. At the carous, twelve years of loneliness and mother-need rushed across the girl's mind like a frantically unwinding reel of film.

"Oh, I've wanted a mother so terribly! Twelve years in the orphanage—Oh, why did you put me there?" she cried brokenly. "It's awful—not having anyone of your own—no family—and now, when I have David to be my family, and I don't need you—so much—you come—Why didn't you come before? Why? Why did you put me there?"

Her words were incoherent, and at the bitter reproach in them Enid tried to hold her more closely, but Sally, scarcely knowing what she did, struck the small, clinging arms from her shoulders and whirled upon David, her mouth twisting, tears running down her cheeks. "I don't want anyone but you now, David. Don't let them separate us. We're half married already! Make the preacher come back and finish marrying us, David!"

Enid Barr looked wonderingly upon her arms, as if expecting to see upon them the marks of her daughter's blows. A gust of anger swept over her, leaving her beautiful face quite white and darkening her eyes until they were almost as deep a blue as Sally's. "You cannot marry the boy, Sally! I'm sorry that almost my first words to you should be a reminder of my authority over you as your mother. Come here, Sally!" But almost in the moment of its returning the arrogance for which she was noted dropped from her, and humility and grief took its place. "Please forgive me, Sally. It's just that I'm jealous of your love for this boy and grieved that you want to leave me for him. But—oh, why should you love me? God knows I've done nothing yet to make you love me! I can't blame you for hating and reproaching me."

"Oh!" Sally burned from the shelter of David's arms and took an uncertain step toward her mother, pity fighting with rebellion and bitterness in her overcharged heart. "I'm sorry Mrs. Barr—Mother—"

"I think you'd better tell her your story as you told it to me, Mrs. Barr," Mrs. Stone could keep silent no longer. "Now, Sally, I want you to listen to every word your mother says and bear in mind that she is your mother and that she has been hunting for you for weeks, her heart full of love for you because you were her child."

For twelve years Sally had obeyed every command uttered in that harsh, emphatic voice and she obeyed—now, allowing herself to be led by Mrs. Stone to the sofa. Enid Barr took her seat on one side of the girl and David without asking permission of either of the two older women who watched him with hostile, jealous eyes, took his place on the other side, his hand clasp- ing lightly over Sally's.

Jealousy, Enid Barr reached for the girl's other hand and held it against her cheek for a moment before she began her story, her contralto voice low and controlled at first. Mrs. Stone sat rigidly erect in an old-fashioned Morris chair, her lips folded with an expression of grim patience, as if she regretted the necessity of once more hearing a story which affronted her fundamental principles.

"I was just your age, Sally," Enid began quietly, "just sixteen, when I met the man who became your father. He was Enid Halsted then. He was fifteen years older than I. I thought I loved him—very much. He was—very handsome."

Her eyes flickered toward the soft tendrils of black hair that showed under the brim of Sally's little blue felt hat. "My father, a proud man as well as a very rich one, forbade me to see the man, discharged him, but—it was too late."

She interrupted herself suddenly, leaning across Sally to challenge David with eyes which were again arrogant. "I'm permitting you to hear all this, Mr. Nash, because I know that Sally would not listen if I sent you from the room. But I must ask you promise never to tell anyone what you hear today."

"It concerns Sally, Mrs. Barr, and anything that concerns her, either her past, present or future," his eyes flicked a tiny smile at Sally as he repeated the familiar phrase from Gus, the barkeep's "ballyhoo"—"is sacred to me."

"Thank you," Enid said coldly, and was immediately punished by Sally's attempt to withdraw her hand. "I am sure I can trust you, David," Enid added, swallowing her pride, so that Sally's fingers would taste about her own again. "My mother was dead, had been dead for more than five years. I had to tell my father. There's no use in my going into all that happened then," she shivered, her free hand covering her eyes for a moment. "He—saw me through it, because he loved me more than I deserved. No one knew for he arranged for me to go to a private sanitarium, where no one but the doctor knew my real name. After my baby was born my father told me it had been born dead, and I—was glad at first. But afterwards I could hardly bear to look at a baby—I must try to make you sorry for me," she cried, brokenly, flicking her handkerchief at a tear that was sliding down her cheek.

Enid Barr drew a deep, quivering breath and cuddled Sally's hand against her cheek. "Father took me to Europe for a year and when we returned, I made my debut, as if nothing had happened. I was sixteen then, and thought I never wanted to be married, but when I met Courtney Barr my second season I changed my mind; when I was twenty I married him. I've been married thirteen years and—there's never been another baby. There couldn't be—because of the first one—you, Sally—though I didn't know, didn't dream you were alive."

"Poor Mother!" Sally whispered, tears slipping unnoticed down her own cheeks. It was all right—all right! Her mother hadn't meant to abandon her, even if she had been ashamed of bearing her—

"My father died when I was twenty-one, just four years after you were born, Sally. He died suddenly, and the lawyers couldn't find a will. He'd hidden it too well. Everything came to me, of course, all that he had meant you to have as well as my own share."

"He—my grandfather—sent Mrs. Ford money," Sally cried suddenly. Gramma Bangs told me she used to get money orders and that when the money stopped coming, Mrs. Ford had to put me in the orphanage, because she was sick—I understand now!"

"Yes, he sent her a liberal allowance for you, on condition that she never tell who you were and that she should never bring you to New York. She did not herself know who you were, who the man was who sent the money, who your mother was." Enid Barr went on, her voice more controlled now that she had passed over the telling of her own shame.

"It was not until May of this year that I found out all these things. A connoisseur of antiques was looking at my father desk and accidentally discovered a secret drawer, containing his will and a painstaking record of the whole affair. I told no one—but Court—my husband—and he agreed with me that I must try to find you at once. He was wonderful—about it all. Of course I had told him, or rather, my father had told him, the truth about me before I married him, but Court thought, as I did, that the baby had died. It was a great shock to him, but he's been wonderful!"

Her voice had the same quality in it as she spoke of Courtney Barr that enriched Sally's voice whenever she spoke David's name, and the girl could not help wondering why her mother, who had suffered and loved, could not understand the depth of her love for David. Maybe she would—in time.

"I found Mrs. Nora Ford's address among the papers, of course, and I went to Stanton immediately, but as I had feared, I found that she had left there years before and that no one in the neighborhood had the least idea where she had gone. One old lady—Mrs. Bangs—said that Nora had had a daughter, Sally, and I knew that she meant my daughter. I spent weeks and a great deal of money searching for some trace of Nora Ford and Sally Ford, but it was useless. I had almost lost hope of finding either of you when I read that terrible story in the papers about Sally Ford and David Nash."

"Carson lied," David interrupted, quietly. "His story was false from beginning to end. There was absolutely nothing between Sally and me but friendship. I knocked him through the window because he called her all names and was threatening to send her back to the orphanage in disgrace when she had done nothing wrong, except work herself almost to death on his farm."

"Thank you, David. I'm glad to hear the truth. I was sure of it the first time I looked into my daughter's eyes. But if it had not been for that story in the paper I would not, be here today, so I'm almost grateful to Carson for his villainy. I went to the orphanage, interviewed Mrs. Stone and after I had satisfied myself that Sally was really my daughter, I told her all that I'm telling you now and asked her to help me find her. That afternoon I took the children to the carnival, because it was the only way I could do anything for you, my darling."

"And, Betty recognized me!" Sally cried. "If Gus hadn't been trying so hard to protect David and me from the police—"

"Exactly!" Enid smiled at her through tears. "You've been running away from your mother ever since, not from the police! And what a chase you've led us, darling! That enormous old man, Winfield Bybee, had convinced us that we were on the wrong track, that Betsy had been mistaken, and the carnival had left town when Mrs. Stone got a letter from a woman who had said she'd been with the carnival—"

At the sudden realization of what this story meant to herself and David, Sally withdrew her arm from about her mother's shoulders and flung herself upon David's breast.

David says goodby, and Sally is heartbroken. In the next chapter.

Lefors, Texas

Lefors, Texas, is now undergoing radical changes—Completely surrounded by oil activities and in the center of the Panhandle's most fertile soil, Lefors has an unlimited future. Lefors is growing, growing, growing! Everything it takes to make a permanent city are at Lefors. Water is in abundance—in fact it flows out of the ground in places. Trees and shrubs thrive in this fertile little valley. Wild grapes are plentiful along the banks of the north fork of Red river on which Lefors is situated.

New businesses are moving in. Almost every day a new business house or residence is started.

Lefors is located in the center of one of the largest proven oil fields in this section. A birdseye view of Lefors and the surrounding country reveals a thrilling picture. Oil soaked derricks literally spot the ground in every direction. Oil men gather in the little city after the working hours and marvel at the volume of oil that is being produced at the gateway of Lefors.

New locations are made every day. Large crews of men are tapping the earth in every direction.

The large gasoline plant of the Coltexo Company is now under construction 2 miles east of Lefors. Scores of men are employed to rush the plant to completion.

Words cannot picture the activity of Lefors. We invite you down to the heart of the oil fields—COME TO LEFORS!

State League Meet Will Open This Afternoon

AUSTIN, May 3—(AP)—Three thousand young Texans will measure skill brawn and brain in the 18th annual University of Texas Interscholastic League meet which opens here today for three days. They come as the "cream" from about 5,000 public schools.

The first round of boys and girls tennis doubles was to begin this afternoon.

Track and field entrants have been called to assemble on the field of the Texas Memorial stadium Friday morning, the preliminaries to begin then.

The final girls' debate will be held Saturday morning and the final boys' debate Saturday eve, as the concluding event on the program. Finals in track and tennis are carded for Saturday afternoon and finals in tennis singles also come then.

Two Pampa high school athletes are among the 3,000 young Texans represented at the 18th annual University of Texas Interscholastic meet in Austin today, Friday and Saturday. The two boys carrying the honor of the Pampa school are Troy Stalls and Archie Lee Walstad, two of the greatest athletes of the school.

Stalls is entered in the shot-put and the discus throw and Walstad in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles. These two boys were instrumental in placing the Pampa schools in second place at the district meet in Canyon.

Leaders in "Miss Pampa" Contest on Nearly Even Terms

Mrs. Vera Johnson continues to lead the race for "Miss Pampa", but is closely followed by Miss Ruth Rittenhouse. Other contestants are following closely on the leaders.

The standing when the votes were counted last night were:

Mrs. Vera Johnson, 13,150.
Miss Ruth Rittenhouse, 12,050.
Mrs. Jack Dean, 12,000.
Miss Gladys Cooper, 10,450.
Miss Martha Bradford, 7,150.
Miss Fern McKee, 6,500.
Miss Lucille Mooney, 4,800.

Mrs. A. Cole was an Amarillo visitor Wednesday.

Mrs. J. T. Morrow is visiting relatives in Ft. Worth and Breckenridge.

Frank Young of Amarillo was a business visitor in Pampa today.

Baptists Of South To Report Progress At Annual Meeting

Leaders in the Southern Baptist convention which meets in Chattanooga, Tenn., May 16-20, include the president and corresponding secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union, Mrs. W. J. Cox (left), of Memphis and Miss Kathleen Mallory, Birmingham, and the president of the convention, Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Members of the Southern Baptist church are to hear from officials a story of remarkable progress, covering a period of seven years, at their annual convention here May 16-20.

Gains of 1,495,529 new church members and 854,469 in Sunday school enrollment, have been recorded. One thousand, seven hundred and sixty-six new Sunday schools have been added and the value of local church property has increased $98,150,384. Annual contributions to local church expenses advanced $11,270,000 while a gain of $6,131,876 in annual contributions to all objects was made.

Prominent among the important matters before the convention will be means for taking care of the financial obligations of the several missionary educational and benevolent enterprises of the church, recommendations of a special committee for more correlation of the activities of general boards and other agencies of the body, and the establishment of a special stewardship program for 1928.

Meeting in conjunction with the convention will be the Women's Missionary Union, which is planning to celebrate its fortieth anniversary this year by raising $4,000,000 for the church cooperative program. The union's sessions will begin May 14.

Indications are that there will be little opposition to the re-election of present officers of the convention and union. Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, is just completing his first year as president and will be re-elected without opposition if he permits his name to be presented again, leaders say. Dr. Hugh C. Moore, Nashville, Tenn., and J. Henry Burnett, Murfreesboro, Tenn., have been recording secretaries for many years.

Mrs. W. J. Cox, Memphis, Tenn., is president of the union having held the office three years. Miss Kathleen Mallory Birmingham, Ala., for a number of years has been corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Culberson Is Hostess to Royalty Bridge Club Tuesday

The Royalty Bridge club and guests were entertained in the home of Mrs. F. M. Culberson Tuesday afternoon. The charming color scheme of yellow and orchid was daintily used in the decorations, and the tables were graced with yellow baskets of orchid sweet peas. After the usual number of games of bridge, Mrs. A. C. Clark was awarded high club score, while Mrs. Ivy Duncan received high guest prize. Mrs. W. F. Clausing received consolation.

A delicious ice course was served the following: Mrs. Ralph Dunbar, Mrs. T. M. Smaller, Mrs. C. S. Boston, Mrs. Ed Guber, Mrs. W. P. Lewis, Mrs. I. E. Duncan, Mrs. George Canade, Mrs. Billie Lang, Mrs. R. A. Webb, Mrs. Loyd McConnell, Mrs. A. C. Clark, Mrs. W. F. Clausing, Mrs. H. W. Johns, Mrs. R. S. Vale
He had the soul of truth,
Strong with the strength of youth;
He had the gift of wit,
With love to sweeten it.
He knew not fear or shame:
When the destroyer came,
When death betrayed the fall,
He could surrender all.
Putting the world aside,
For time had proved him,
And the gods loved him.
That he died.
—Charles Warren Stoddard.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Harrah, Mrs. W. Purviance, and Joe Strother returned Wednesday from attending the Methodist district convention in Wellington.
