GROUP VOICES OBJECTIONS TO BUDGET PLANS

Civic Leaders Cite Accomplishments Of Board

Members of the city commission this afternoon were studying the budget of the city for the year ending March 31, 1939, with a view toward determining whether the commission should continue to support the present rate of 15 cents per $100 valuation or whether the need of financing other departments would curtail the BCD allotment to 9 cents per $100 valuation.

A copy of the revised budget, prepared by Cornell & Co., Amarillo auditors, was sent to the commission this morning. Final action on the budget, however, will not be taken until September 10, when the budget is to be submitted to the commission for final action.

At a meeting of the city commission last night, a group of ten men representing the Board of City Development, appeared in protest toward a reduction in the BCD allotment to 9 cents per $100 tax valuation.

Garnet Reeves, BCD manager, told the commission that the amounts received by the BCD from the city in 1938 was $3,937.83, in 1937 $4,794.41, and for 1936 to date, $5,595.41. Reduction to the 9-cent rate would net the BCD only $5,670, he estimated.

This amount, Rene Brown, BCD president, said would be sufficient only to operate the office and would not provide for the financing of BCD projects.

Highway Record Cited. Work of the BCD, past, present, and future, was outlined by the president in a talk to the commission.

"Our biggest work has been with the highways. One year ago the Pampa-Berger road was an undeveloped county road. Today, you can travel over it at 60 miles an hour.

"A survey has been started on the Sunnett-Dugas road, the Pampa-

Amarilloans Try To Sell Tires—Jailed

Two men, giving their home address as Amarillo, were arrested this morning by city police officers and are being held for Amarillo officers. The men were arrested by Officer Buel Robinson as they drove north on Gillespie Street.

The arrest followed a call to the police station that two men had tried to sell a tire. In the rear seat of their car was a new tire. Officers found another in the car trunk.

A call to Amarillo officers revealed that a tire answering the description of one found had been stolen in Amarillo last night. Amarillo officers also said that the car driven by the men was registered in a name other than theirs.

Both men are known to Amarillo officers, they told city police in a telephone conversation.

Japs Smash Thru Yangtze River City

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24 (AP)—A heavily reinforced Japanese army reported tonight it had smashed through the east gate of the strategic town of Julichang in its drive up the Yangtze river toward Hankow, China's provisional capital.

The Japanese said they were mopping up Chinese defenders remaining in the walled town and that a second Japanese column had encircled Julichang to cut off the Chinese retreat.

It had taken the Japanese nearly a month to advance the 21 miles from Kiukiang, important river port which fell July 26, to Julichang, near the south bank of the Yangtze 100 airline miles southeast of Hankow.

Corrigan Visits In Arkansas, Louisiana

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 24 (AP)—Receptions in Little Rock, Ark., and Shreveport, La., today awaited Douglas Corrigan, ocean-hopping Irishman, as he made preparations to leave Memphis after receiving one of the noisiest welcomes in this city's history.

The jovial little flier said last night he planned to arrive in Little Rock at 11:30 a. m. where during a two-hour stopover the city will welcome him with a luncheon and reception.

Boys In Blue

The U. S. Army's khaki-clad doughboys may once more become the boys in blue, at least during the winter, if the new uniform pictured above proves satisfactory. The War Department is testing it because its slate blue color has a lower visibility than the present olive drab. Tests are being made under varying conditions at different army posts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (AP)—The army has given some of its men a peek at the proposed slate-blue winter uniform, and many have pronounced it satisfactory after all.

When photographs of the suggested attire were displayed last week-end, there were criticisms from both officers and enlisted men that it resembled a prison garb.

But a glance at the informal uniform shows it doesn't have the washed-out look they had anticipated. Instead, the color is virtually the same as that worn by the army's flying cadets at Randolph and Kelly fields. Students at many military schools drill in much the same shade of blue.

Bi-swing shoulder pleats give as much freedom of action as is found in a golfer's jacket.

YOUTH DROWNS NEAR GROOM

Services will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Baptist church at Groom for Melvin Tipton, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Tipton of Groom, who drowned in the Morris Knorrp lake, five miles east of Groom, about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The body was taken to Amarillo in a Blackburn-Shaw ambulance. Tipton was one of a group of seven young men who had been swimming in the lake about an hour when the tragedy occurred. Tipton

By E. C. DANIEL. NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP)—George Weinberg, 36, ex-convict, and the state's star witness thus far in the conspiracy trial of Tammany District Leader James J. Hines, testified today that in October, 1933, Dutch Schultz ordered him to help Hines elect William Copeland Dodge as district attorney of Manhattan.

Dodge, a Tammany man, was elected. He had been accused by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of having been "intimidated, influenced or bribed" by Hines.

"Dutch Schultz told me to help Jimmy Hines with money and to get the policy-game crowd behind him," Weinberg said.

Weinberg testified that he met Dodge in the office of Hines' lawyer Joseph Shalleck, and after Hines had introduced him to Dodge as one of "Dutch Schultz' boys" he passed $3,000 to Hines as the Schultz mob's contribution to Dodge's campaign fund.

He said Dodge "grinned" as the money was passed to Hines. "We gave him other money for

Frank Hawks Dies As Plane Crashes, Burns

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—Death came last night to Lieut. Commander Frank M. Hawks, world famous speed flier, as he predicted—in an airplane.

The 41-year-old aviator who had turned a year ago from speed flying to the aviation business, struck some wires and crashed in flames on a polo field a few miles from Buffalo.

Hawks who told a friend some years ago "I expect to die in an airplane" and J. Hazard Campbell, upstate socialist and sportsman who had accepted an invitation for a trial spin in a small plane Hawks' company seats, were fatally injured.

Horrified friends, who had watched the take-off from the small field, heard the plane crash behind a clump of trees. They saw a flash as flame shot high in the air.

They pulled Hawks from the controls of the blazing ship and dragged Campbell from beneath a crumpled wing. The injured men were taken to a Buffalo hospital in ambulances. Neither regained consciousness.

Woman Cuts Off Hand And Gouges Out Her Eye

MERCED, Calif., Aug. 24 (AP)—A story of how his wife, obsessed with the idea she had "sinned, chopped off her left hand and gouged out her right eye was told from a jail cell here today by Woodrow Harwell, 20-year-old Texan cotton picker.

District Attorney F. A. Silveira quoted Harwell as saying he and his two young step-sons knelt in prayer yesterday afternoon in their one room cabin while his 26-year-old wife read from the Bible.

She read Matthew 18:8, 9: "And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee. It is good for thee to enter into life maimed or halt, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into the eternal fire.

"And if thine eye causeth thee to stumble, pluck it out, and cast it from thee; it is good for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into the hell of fire."

Mrs. Harwell rose from prayer, her husband related, saying her

MARVIN JONES SEEKS HIGHER WHEAT LOANS

Freight Rates Too Discriminatory, Says Texan

Petitions signed by wheat farmers of Gray county, along with similar petitions by other Panhandle wheat farmers, protesting the methods used in figuring wheat loans to farmers, bore fruit in Washington Tuesday when Marvin Jones, chairman of the House Agricultural committee, made an insistent demand upon the Secretary of Agriculture that he immediately appoint an assistant director of the freight division of the department.

Jones said discriminatory freight rates formed the basis for loans, denying to some growers, particularly in the Southwest, the same amount per bushel as that received by other farmers.

In Gray county, wheat loans are 48 cents a bushel, County Farm Agent Ralph R. Thomas reports. In Kansas the rate is 58 cents, North Dakota 65, Tennessee 81, Kentucky, 76, Ohio, 70.

A Panhandle-wide movement to protest of the amount the loans to the wheat growers in this section was started at Hereford on August 6. Petitions were prepared in the various Panhandle counties, addressed to and signed by Jones and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The petition of the Gray county farmers was mailed from Pampa on August 15. There were 69 signatures on the Gray county petition.

The loans, averaging about 60 cents a bushel, are being made by the government from a $100,000,000 fund provided by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Jones said farmers near his home city of Amarillo, Tex., are receiving a loan of 52 cents a bushel. This figure is reached, he said, by establishing 77 cents a bushel as the loan rate at Galveston, nearest port, and deducting 21 cents a bushel freight. Gray county is in the Kansas City

Fire Plug Smashed In Car Collision

City firemen installed a new fire plug at the intersection of South Cuyler and Thut streets, replacing one smashed when struck by a car following a wreck Monday night.

The fire plug was charged up to the drivers of the two cars involved in the accident, G. W. Jolly of McLean and Jesse Lemons, Pampa negro. The new fire plug cost the city $70.04 wholesale. Installation cost $15 making the plug cost the two $85.04.

Jolly was driving north on Cuyler street and Lemons was going east on Thut street when the accident happened, city police reported. One of the cars smashed into the fire plug, smashing it and bending the rods. The water was cut off under the ground.

Reading Faces At Hines Trial

Spectators at the sensational trial in New York of James J. Hines, who personifies Tammany Hall political power, watch with eagerness the play of emotions across the faces of the chief actors in the drama. Hines is being prosecuted by Manhattan's implacable, racket-busting District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey for complicity in the numbers racket. Throughout the preliminaries of the trial, the burly Tiger leader maintained an air of debonair confidence, continually flashing the genial smile shown at left upper. But the slit-mouthed mask and narrowed eyes in the next photo remind one of his reputation as a hard-bitten fighter who neither gives nor asks quarter. As seen below, his foe, the youthful Dewey, also boasts a smile—one that is partly responsible for his being called the "matinee idol" among District Attorneys. Many a cock caller has been awed by the suggestion of secret knowledge behind his large brown eyes, so often called "hypnotic."

Terrell Rally Will Begin At 8 Tonight

"The continued development of the Panhandle oil field depends on whether C. V. Terrell is reelected railroad commissioner," local supporters declared today in a statement urging citizens interested in the welfare of the oil industry in the Panhandle to attend the rally at 8 o'clock tonight at the north entrance of the court house.

"Election of Mr. Terrell's opponent would, I believe, result in opening up of the huge East Texas field and cutting the allowable of this field," said City Attorney Walter Rogers, one of the two speakers at the rally tonight. "Control of the commission, if Mr. Terrell is not reelected, will be in the hands of two men who live in the East Texas oil field."

Ennis Favors, Gray county manager of W. Lee O'Daniel's first primary campaign, will be the other speaker. Mr. Terrell is one of the six candidates whose election the gubernatorial nominee is urging.

Before and during the speaking, the Sons of the Saddle, KPND radio orchestra, will furnish hilarity and popular music. The two speeches which will be short and the music will be amplified through a loud speaker.

Speakers have announced they "want the people of Pampa to realize that the future prosperity of Pampa may depend on this election," and they declared they will cite "facts which will make it necessary for the Panhandle to vote for C. V. Terrell."

Mr. Terrell received a clear majority in Gray county over the five other candidates in the first primary.

KANSAN LANDS AFTER BEING FORCED DOWN

Warplanes Dive All Around Ship, He Reports

HONGKONG, Aug. 24 (AP)—The American pilot of a Chinese airliner reported today that Japanese warplanes had forced him to set his plane down near Canton and then machine-gunned it, killing or wounding at least 14 of the 17 persons aboard.

H. L. Woods of Winfield, Kansas, the pilot, reported unharmed. All others on the plane were Chinese. The forced landing was made on a small river between Canton and Macao, Portuguese colony 50 miles to the south.

Woods sent this message to the China National Aviation Corporation, owners of the plane:

"Landed on river okay. Japanese machine-gunned us, killing or wounding 12 passengers, also co-pilot and steward. Radio operator Loh, one passenger and myself survived. Other 14 unaccounted for. Ship sunk in river."

The United States gunboat Mindanao left Hongkong for Macao to aid survivors after hurriedly reloading to duty officers and men ashore here.

Forty-five per cent of the China National Aviation Corporation's capital is held by American interests, the rest by the Chinese government.

Lou, the passenger who reached that port with the pilot, had a bullet wound and was taken to a hospital for an operation. Still later two other passengers were reported admitted to a hospital at Chungshan, near the scene of the shooting, in grave condition.

BURGLARS GET $20 IN CASH

Burglars early this morning jimmied the lock on the front door of the Pampa Motor Freight company building on West Brown and stole $20 in cash, city police were notified. An immediate investigation was started. Chief J. I. Downs said.

The money was taken from a filing cabinet in which it had been placed when the office was closed shortly after midnight. Papers from the cabinet were scattered over the office as the burglars searched for the money. They left two $1 bills and a number of checks on the office desk.

Officers said the key hole had been cut out in order to reach the lock tumblers.

NOT CRITICISM; JUST A BRAINSTORM

That phases of insanity can be classified seems reasonable, if anything about insanity can be reasonable. There are schizophrenia, paranoia, and so on. But what seems queer is that a defendant can be a lunatic during the minute it takes to commit a crime and walk out perfectly sane and safe immediately after acquittal on the ground of insanity. And the experts for the State speak always on the losing end. Well, anyway, it is noteworthy that proof of perfect mental balance is furnished by consistent use of The

WMU ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

New officers were elected by the Women's Missionary Union of the First Baptist church, at their regular meeting at the church on Monday morning. Officers will be installed by District President Mrs. D. A. Grundy of Memphis on September 12.

The program will be in the form of a seated tea. Mrs. T. P. Morton was named chairman of the tea committee. Other members are Mrs. Ruth Beauchamp and Mrs. Joe R. Foster. All women of the church are invited.

New Schedule Adopted
At the meeting Monday, a new plan of work was adopted, with the first Monday of each month designated as W. M. S. day when the women are to meet for luncheon at 1 p. m. The luncheon is to be followed by a business meeting and a missionary program. Members of the executive board are to meet on the Friday night preceding W. M. S. day.

Work of the circles is to be effected through the adult organized Sunday school classes during the month. The Sunbeams are to meet from 11 to noon each Sunday morning. Children of from 3 to 8 years in age are eligible for the Sunbeams. Children under three are to be left in the church nursery under the care of Mrs. G. H. Covington.

Indian Missions Studied
The program of the meeting Monday opened with the devotional led by Mrs. C. Gordon Bayless. Mrs. T. B. Solomon, mission study chairman, presented the study of "Tepee Trails," assisted by Mrs. Harry Miner, Mrs. Henry Cox, Mrs. Bob Alford, and Mrs. Owen Johnson.

In connection with the study, decorations were Indian relics, and a table was laid showing beginning of work by Baptists among the Indians in Oklahoma, with a trail leading to the present work of Baptists.

Nominating Committee Reports
At noon, a paper sack lunch and ice cream were enjoyed. The nominating committee made its report, which was accepted, and the following officers were elected:

PREPARE FOR FAIRS

4-H groups in many sections are preparing for exhibits they will have in numerous state and county fairs this fall.

They are seeking to polish work done on projects in order to improve their chances of winning prizes for the best achievements.

Leaders have impressed boys and girls with the importance of persevering effort in the following: "Don't slacken the pace. At no time does it pay to lay down on the job" for even a well-cared-for project can be ruined by a poor finish. Consistent effort produces the best results. The quality of the finished project is the best measuring rod of your work."

MAKES SUIT FOR 10 CENTS
Making a suit for herself at a total cost of only 10 cents is the unusual achievement of a 4-H girl in Arkansas.

Ruth Robinson of Wilburn, Cleburne county, accomplished this feat by remodeling her father's 29-year-old wedding suit. Besides the goods she used the buttons and lining of the suit and the only cash expenditure was 10 cents for thread.

So far this year Ruth also has made three dresses, a luncheon set, pillow cases, slips and towels to prove the value of her 4-H project.

WIN HIGH HONORS
A family whose six sons and daughters are 4-H club members has won national recognition for achievements.

George J. Nixon of Harrison county, West Virginia, Mrs. Nixon and their daughter Beatrice and son Robert recently were honored by being presented on a national radio network program.

The six children of the Nixon family jointly have completed a total of 101 4-H projects and have won 88 prizes amounting to $1,351.

Their projects were valued at $7,491, making a total of $8,843 contributed to their home life by their 4-H club work.

There are now 497 junior colleges in the United States, with an attendance of more than 106,000.

BECOME MUSICAL
Formation of musical groups is becoming widely popular among 4-H clubs.

EATING FOR HEALTH
4-H members, mostly girls, who lament the fact that they are "too fat" are consoled by health instructions who say that growing youths who are above the average in weight may expect a longer life than those who are under-weight. Adolescents are warned against curbing their appetites or going on restrictive diets to reduce weight, and are advised to eat all the wholesome food they desire.

Modern Menus

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

You asked for it. Tomatoes that aren't a bore, a quick and easy Russian dressing, and something new for tea.

Forward march—into the kitchen.

Tomatoes Moderne
(Serves 6)

Six firm ripe tomatoes, 2 tablespoons each of the following, all finely diced: smoked salmon, smoked sturgeon, anchovies, tart apple, and celery, plus 1 tablespoon finely diced red cabbage, salt, pepper, cayenne and mayonnaise.

Scald tomatoes slightly. Loosen skin only partially so that you can then score tomatoes with a sharp knife and fold back the skin to form petals. Then chill the tomato.

Just before serving, cut off slices from top, scoop out center to form pocket, drain well, and fill with a mixture of the diced fish and vegetables mixed with mayonnaise.

Place each filled tomato on lettuce, replace cap and decorate with cream cheese puffs. Pass more mayonnaise in separate bowl.

Now for a quick and easy. If you must use short-cuts, this is as good as any. Best short-cuts aren't wholeheartedly recommended to gourmets.

Russian Dressing
(1 1/2 Cups)

Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, 1/4 cup vinegar or lemon juice, 1/4 cup salad oil or melted butter, 1 egg yolk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 5 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 teaspoon chopped chives or grated onion, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Place sweetened condensed milk, vinegar, salad oil, egg yolk, salt, cayenne and mustard in mixing bowl. Beat with rotary egg beater until mixture thickens. If thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill before serving. Just before serving, blend in chili sauce, chopped chives and lemon juice.

Marmalade-Almond Toast
White bread, butter, orange marmalade, unsalted toasted almonds. Cut crusts from bread and toast evenly to golden brown. Butter and then spread generously and evenly with marmalade. Have hot almonds ready to sprinkle over marmalade. Slice almonds lengthwise into long slivers. Place under broiler until hot but not burned. Scatter over toast and serve immediately.

All-Day Picnic Held Tuesday By True Blue Class

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

NEA Service Staff Writer

The fact that you have very little money to spend on expensive creams, lotions and professional treatments is no excuse for a bleached complexion, dingy hair and an unattractive figure. One or two good preparations, a little of the time you usually spend doing nothing, and enough stick-to-itiveness to do each planned routine each and every day will suffice. For example—

A thorough, nightly brushing is just about the best treatment for hair. And this is true whether it is too dry, too oily or just plain lifeless looking. One who brushes her hair every single night, using upward and outward strokes, of course, is sure to see an improvement within three months and a great deal of improvement within six.

The simplest, most painless way to lose weight is to take a long, brisk walk and do a few reducing exercises every single day. And to eat smaller portions of everything.

No fat diet, mind you—just smaller portions and, of course, no rich desserts.

Closing Large Pores
The easiest and, incidentally, the best way to get rid of blackheads is to give your face a little extra attention every other night for two or three weeks. Simply scrub with soap and water, cover the infected areas with a towel which has been dipped in very hot water and wrung until fairly dry. After the gentle steaming, cover forefingers with cotton, then press out a few of the blackheads. Pat the irritated spots with an antiseptic and let it dry. Unless your skin is quite dry, apply skin tonic or witch hazel instead of night cream.

And for nail health, see that your manicures are ever so gentle—no scraping of the surface with steel instruments—and drink quantities of milk and orange juice.

Retain A Good Employee

Voters, when they go to the polls for the run-off primary Saturday, cannot go wrong by casting their ballots for C. V. Terrell for railroad commissioner.

The News has no quarrel with his opponent, but it believes that Mr. Terrell has made a splendid official in his period of service on the state railroad commission.

As a member of this body, he has a direct hand in the supervision of the very thing that is the life blood of the city and region in which we live here in the Panhandle.

His record indicates that he has done a very splendid job of this supervision. Through his long experience he is thoroughly conversant with the problems of the oil and gas fields and is thoroughly qualified to attempt solution of these problems with the best interests of the whole people in mind.

The reward for this service should be a favorable vote for Mr. Terrell. When an employe faithfully carries out the duties to which he has been assigned, good business principles just naturally call for his retention on the job. We believe Mr. Terrell has been and is that kind of an employe.

Are You A Lamb?

The argument that government-owned business and privately-owned business can exist together in harmony may sound well—but in this practical world, it won't stand analysis, when highly taxed private business is forced to feed tax-exempt government business.

Every time government goes into one business it means that tomorrow government will go into another business. The rapacity of politicians is notorious. Give them an inch and they take a mile, until private property is eliminated.

In story, the lion and the lamb should lie side by side. In practice, the lion eats the lamb. And that's exactly what government business does to private business. We can have a socialistic nation, or we can have a nation based on free enterprise. We can't have both.

When a Congressional committee finds union spies on a board of directors, that'll be news.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—It becomes increasingly difficult for "joiners" to enter any organization which does not contain a few Communists, genuine or alleged. The Communists themselves have become "joiners."

And it's practically impossible to join a respectable organization with assurance Communists won't take credit for everything it does.

That's about all the "Un-American Committee" under Chairman Martin Dies of Texas has learned. Most members of organizations, especially those of liberal or labor character, were aware of it before. Dies would be doing a great service if he could reveal just who is a Communist and who isn't. But to date committee policy has been to listen bug-eyed to all volunteer witnesses who want to put the Communist tag on persons and organizations they don't like, with or without evidence.

Instead of demanding actual evidence of charges, Dies and other committee members have egged witnesses on to charges even more sensational than those they were making. Dies himself frequently has hastened to excuse conspicuous absence of corroborative evidence.

NO SHORTAGE OF CHARGES

No such loosely handled investigation has been covered previously by this generation of Washington correspondents. The Dies committee started with six investigators and now has three. It has no lawyer and no accountant. Its secretary, a nice young man named Stripling, has studied law while serving as a House doorkeeper.

A mass of information about Communists has been gathered from Communist publications and statements. No committee member has shown a disposition to question Communist claims of influence and achievements.

More may come later. But Dies' announced expectations of revealing Soviet or Nazi shipments of gold to organizations in this country are at this writing confined to statements by Chairman Walter S. Steele of the American Coalition Committee on National Security. Steele said an unnamed A. F. of L. leader once charged that a marine union had received $75,000 from Communists and that John L. Lewis 14 years ago charged that two or three hundred thousand dollars had been sent here from Russia.

Steele, who charged Communists started runs on banks in the Hoover administration, named 440 organizations he said were Communist or at least co-operating. "In various ways with the Communist movement." These included several C. I. O. unions, the League for Peace and Democracy, Women's League Against the High Cost of Living, American Dance Association, East Side Hungarian Singing Circle, Mothers' League, Psychology League, Save Our Schools Committee, Timely Recording Co., the Unattached Youth and the Egrotocrot club.

Steele claimed to represent almost as many groups—himself, including: Colonial Order of the Aton, New York chapter; Old Glory Club of Pittsburgh, Order of the Three Crusades, 1096-1192,

Sharing The Comforts Of Life...

By R. C. Hollis
CONTRASTING WASHINGTON WITH ROOSEVELT

Inasmuch as Roosevelt feels that it is his duty to help select Senators and Congressmen, it might be interesting to the readers to contrast the opinion of George Washington on this subject with that of Roosevelt.

A letter was written by George Washington when he was President for the first time and only a few weeks before he was elected President by a unanimous vote of the electoral college for the second time.

The letter is dated Sept. 26, 1792. It was written to John Francis Mercer, a candidate for re-election to Congress. Some of Mercer's friends had implied that President Washington was favorable to his election. When the President heard this, he wrote a letter directly to Mercer, from which I quote:

"I come now to another part of your letter, and in touching upon it, do not scruple to declare to you that I was not a little displeas'd to find by a letter from Capt. Campbell to a gentleman in this neighborhood, that my name had been freely used by you or your friends for electioneering purposes, when I had never associated your name and the election together; and when there had been the most scrupulous and pointed caution observed on my part, not to express a sentiment respecting the fitness or unfitness of any candidate for representative that could be construed, by the most violent torture of the words, into an interference in favor of one, or to the prejudice of another.

"Conceiving that the exercise of an influence (if I really possess any) however remote would be improper; as the people ought to be entirely at liberty to choose whom they pleased to represent them in Congress. Having pursued this line of conduct steadily, my surprise and consequent declaration can be a matter of no wonder...

"I instantly declared to the person who showed me the letter,—that to the best of my recollection, I never had exchanged a word to, or before Bushrod Washington on the subject of your election, much less to have given a decided opinion. That such a measure would have been incompatible with the rule I had prescribed to myself, and which I had invariably observed, of not interfering directly or indirectly, with suffrages of the people, in the choice of their representatives...

Washington had grievous experience, with the despotism of government and he realized the dangers of too much power being placed in the hands of any one man. It certainly is a striking contrast in beliefs and the use made of the position of President.

RISKS AND SECURITY

Probably one reason why Roosevelt is so anxious for security is that he never felt that he would be secure by what he could produce himself. It is generally reported and believed that his father attempted to make the son secure by establishing a trust fund so that he could not dissipate the wealth his father created.

It is only natural for people who are not willing to take risks to believe that the government can protect them. But all the progress that we, or any other people, have made came from some person being willing to take risks without thought of security.

THE MACHINE AND MANKIND
Condensed from an address by Dr. James Thomas, President Chrysler Institute of Engineering, Detroit, Michigan, before the Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., as appeared in Christmas Club Magazine.

Does the Machine Kill and Maim? Somebody said: "I don't like it because it is so full of accidents." Well, you kill more people in the homes than we do anywhere else, even on the roads, and certainly we kill too many. I am making safety speeches all over the country as fast as I can get to the places. We kill people in the horse and buggy days too. In spite of all the people the automobiles kill, if you could figure it out on the basis of miles traveled per passenger, the automobile is safer than the horse and buggy. In 1912, 4,083 people were killed by horse and buggy runways and nobody went anywhere. Now we kill a lot of people because everybody goes everywhere.

We are overlooking a lot of little interesting facts like this. People have always had trouble with that sort of thing. It isn't the machine's fault at all; it's the other man's fault who is driving that machine.

They got hold of this thing we call the industrial revolution first which only means a new technique for doing more work in less time.

Somebody said, "Well, I know, I might accept that, but it is unhealthy. Well, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, has recently given out the lowest death rate in all history. The lowest death rate in history is among the industrial policy holders of America.

Would it surprise you if I told you that the lowest rate of insanity in America is among the machine workers of America? That is true. You can't go crazy around a machine and stay that way long. There is something challenging about a machine. You ask what is the highest rate of insanity? Ah! among the women of the 14 southern states. Where are they from? Not in the cities, oh no; off of the farms. What are they there for? Ninety per cent of them from melancholia. The very loneliness of the farm life deranges them. This industrial civilization is making people young.

The machine does not make people sick, it chases them out of their minds, and we are making this machine tend to do so. Would it surprise you if I told you that less than four per cent of the working population of America work with or about machines? That is statistically true.

Do Machines Put Men Out of Work?

Somebody said, "It puts people out of work." Philosophically that is the glory of the machine, not that it puts men out of work numerically, but abolishes labor. That is all it does; it releases masses for cultural pursuits for the first time in the history of mankind. What is it Bertrand Russell says? "Any time prior to the invention of the steam engine, 90 per cent of the waking hours of 90 per cent of all populations on the planet devoted 90 per cent of those waking hours to the getting of food, clothing and shelter, scanty food, poor clothing, and miserable shelter at that. That was exactly what happened. Now that the machine has come, we have released masses all over this western civilization of ours for eight hours of leisure, for recreation and cultural life. But that it throws men out of work numerically just can't be proved. It is the other way around.

In England in 1790 it took 700 men to weave as much cloth as one man could weave in 1886. Somebody said, "What did you do with the 692? Well, that is a good question, but only a light-minded person would stop for the asking of it. I found that in 1770 there were 124,483 people working in the textile business in England. One hundred years later, in 1880, after Arkwright and Hargreaves had gotten busy and perfected the knitting and weaving machinery, while the population doubled, the number of people working in the textile industry in England quadrupled.

Somebody said, "That is just the textile industry." So I looked it up for the 14 major engineering trades in England, and I found the same thing, except that for some it went

Threads It drives me crazy!

"Threads it drives me crazy!" (Those are terms of the trade.) And Mildred Lloyd, Chet suspects, is another victim. "But Harold," he says genially, "is not so annoying as I am. He goes in for mental effects—a mind-reading stunt he's been developing for three years. This is much less wearing on the household than my specialties. The Morris," he chuckled, "are a house divided. Our Cynthia—she's 7—loves magic, already has mastered some tricks. Our boy Brook—he's 8—hates it."

And Chet can't see much hope for the Magic Widows. They can't even take up Magic in self defense. They can never get revenge in kind. "The male of the species," said Chet, "is more deadly in Magic than the female. Women have no gift for it."

Like all devotees, Chet keeps up on the new stunts, makes up new gadgets from blueprints, reads magic magazines, thinks it unethical to divulge trade secrets. In his workshop now is a monstrous device like a gullotine. The victim is to be clamped in tightly and the magician, nice guy, is to drive long spikes through his neck and wrists—the victim's, not his own.

"This," said Chet, looking speculatively at my neck, "is going to be fun when I finish it. I'm sorry it's not finished today."

The hollow laugh was mine.

Before I left I had to see the Morris. Aropro—silver, standing three or four feet in the living room. He won it at the recent coast convention of magicians. If he gives the best original magic presentation at this meeting two more years straight he can keep it.

"Talk about academy awards!" THOMAS said Magico Morris, "is SOMETHING!"

How's Your Health?

BY IAGO GARDSTON, M.D.
IMAGINARY PAIN

Few sensations are more intimate than pain. Hence to doubt the "reality" of a pain complained of by a patient is to that patient like casting doubt on his very existence.

Such "doubtings" are often deeply resented and a patient thus confronted is hard to placate. All of the physician's ingenuity, learning, and skill must be brought into play to convince the sufferer that his pain is imaginary.

If a patient believes that his arm or his heart hurts, that pain exists by virtue of the patient's belief.

To put the matter another way, even if a person is terribly afraid of something that does not exist, his fear is still a reality. His physical reactions, his pallor, tremor, sweat and other signs of anxiety, visibly bear witness to his emotional condition.

The physician who is called on to relieve pain or fear must determine how well grounded there complaints are and must treat them accordingly. "Imaginary" pain, if treated along the lines employed in dealing with a pain of organic origin, may be aggravated rather than relieved.

The unwarranted fear and the imagined pain are symptoms pointing to underlying morbid condition—and not the symptoms but the underlying morbid condition must be treated.

An individual who is confronted by it is faced to make some vital decision, and who is unwilling or unable to do what is necessary, may find escape from his dilemma in an imaginary malady, say heart disease.

Such a patient may complain of heart shortness of breath, an palpitation. Should the physician accept his complaints at their face value and proceed to treat him as if he did have heart disease, the condition is likely to become fixed.

The patient may be made a permanent invalid by the adoption of physical disability to the already present emotional or psychological disability.

There is a precious saying among medical men to the effect that "it is far easier to rub a disease into a limb than to rub it out of the mind." This is a great responsibility upon the examining physician, for it is no easy matter to differentiate between imaginary pain and that due to organic or functional disease.

Tex's Topix

Tex Topix
Dear Sir:

Your "editorial fashion flashes" seems to be gaining fame as a "fashion criterion" judging from your prediction for "futuristic styles" for furniture and "feminine styles" too, dating back to the "Ice and Stone ages." Originally men wore skirts and women wore trousers because the women had to do the rough work in life but women gradually got the reins of government into their own hands. They beguiled the men into doing the mental tasks; they donned skirts, as more becoming, as well as to show they were not compelled to work.

You seem especially interested in the type of "skirts" designed for feminine wear for this season, and FUTURE SEASONS, so I thought I would mention this little bit of "historical fact," about skirts in general.

Carlyle says "the first want of primitive man was decoration." For instance, not only the famous beauties of history, but some of the famous characters of the Old Testament like Sarah, Ruth, Esther, and Esther were dressed, doubtless, in oriental splendor, and they probably weren't censured for so arraying themselves though their tastings probably run to anklets as well as bracelets, and they wore enormous earrings and any sort of pendants in great profusion.

And, so the primitive savages bedecked themselves in a gaudy array of paint, feathers and fantastic jewelry, torturing themselves with grotesque rings in their noses, forehead, arms and ankles.

As for vanity, I really think men are vainier than women. For instance, "citing" the English pop "Beat Brummel" for an illustration, would spend two hours each day arranging his tie. Was it worth it? Probably not, but his fame as a "dandy" and "pop," will live forever and Herbert Kealey will go down in history as the man who set the fashion of having trousers pressed in front. This style still prevails although the Prince of Wales (now the Duke of Windsor) tried in 1920 to restore the style of having them pressed on the side.

If a woman wants to get a compliment from a man, she should wear a red dress. Though red is the color of violence and anger, the danger signal of hate and rage. The "Scarlet woman" spoken of in the Bible, and Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" shows that it has always been the symbol of "Mephistophiles," himself, clad in all the regalia of horns, tail, spear and scimitar.

While blue is chaste and pure and supposed to be symbolic of Heaven, we aren't supposed to be interested in colors, just now, only the width, length, and general style of the "skirts."

So, getting back to my "theme song" of how certain styles originated, I'll have to hasten to the dawn of civilization when we climbed down out of trees and were beginning to build camps on the ground, had ceased to throw mere cocoanut at each other, and had started to practice with knives. The "bow and arrow society" was formed later on as we adopted more modern implements of war, such as the "rolling pin," etc.

***

But let me explain to the "puzzled opposite sex" that at that time the men were the warriors and hunters of the tribe, nothing more. For "Man rules the earth, but woman rules the man." And so the epochs of history still march on, "leaving behind foot prints on the sands of time," but in this sophisticated age, of 1938 man, with all his conceits and "superiority complex," is ruled by woman in all minor details of life.

An leaving in a few days for an indefinite vacation in the "Arkansas Ozarks" ("Ozarkadia" to me).

Then later on will be going to Phoenix, Ariz., and palm on the Pacific coast. But while in Arkansas, I think I will see if I can find "Van Buren" and call on some of Bob Burn's many fictitious relatives. Will probably send news of them back to the News.

***

I have a long list of "shut-ins," boys at the various government hospitals to write, too. I try to bring a little sunshine into their lives, but some are so maimed and suffer such tortures they would be better off if they were sleeping "neath the poppies" in Flanders Field. They tell me I would look grand in a cap and uniform, but I just never had the "nerve" to finish my training as a nurse.

It has been great fun inflicting these letters on you and in conclusion, I want to tell the entire staff how much I have enjoyed the Pampa News, and especially the editorial page.

Some time ago I sent a marked copy of the News to a friend (a native of Hawaii). The other day I received a letter from him saying he was lying on the sands of Waikiki reading the editorial page of the Pampa Daily News. He was educated in the United States, at Georgia Tech.

***

Have been intensely interested in the history of the early Texas pioneers, the buffalo herds, and Indian tribes that used to wander over the vicinity of Gray county, near Pampa.

I want to throw an orchid (a whole armful) to station KPND. I have enjoyed the program so much, in fact, haven't even missed "Grand Opera," and other attractions of the "bright lights."

Will miss your fashion notes.

The Nation's Press

HYDRAMANIA IN TEXAS
By Edward C. Krause in the Los Angeles Times

Texas authorities have started an investigation of recent severe floods on the Colorado River in that state—not the Colorado of Hoover Dam fame, but a large stream nevertheless—and have developed at least a preliminary opinion that this year's flood was due less to the operations of nature than to those of the New Deal.

The charge is made, according to the Texas Weekly, that negligent operation of the Buchanan Dam, above Austin, greatly aggravated the flood situation, and that damage estimated at between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 which was caused by a two-week high water period is directly attributable to holding the Buchanan Dam full of water for power purposes, instead of releasing it so as to have the reservoir available for flood control.

The Buchanan Dam is one of those joint flood-control and power projects of which the New Deal is so fond and was built from a P.W.A. loan and grant under the supervision of Secretary Ickes. The people of the Colorado River Valley say they understand that the primary purpose of the dam was to protect them from floods; but the Colorado River Authority says (also according to the Texas Weekly) that its directors "cannot agree" that the reservoirs "should be emptied after each flood and its appliances operated for flood-control alone." They added they feel an obligation "to the people to see that the cheap power which may be generated from stored flood waters is made available without intervention of private profit and that the authority should not be driven from the field of public service."

It seems to be a strange conception of "public service" that, for the sake of a few dollars saved to power users, would risk the flooding of a fertile valley and the drowning of its inhabitants.

"The Colorado River Authority," notes the Texas Weekly, "purports to be both a power project and a flood-control project. But the plain truth is that, under its present set-up, it cannot be both."

It might have added that the cost of the damage done to the Colorado Valley farmers would pay for a lot of electric power, even at very high rates; and that holding the water in the Buchanan Dam up to within a few feet of the spillway, as it is asserted was done, until word was received that a flood was headed toward the dam, appears to be a form of what might be called hydromania. The Texas constitution cited by the C.R.A., requires conservation, but it certainly does not require insanity.

There is small "private profit" in a flood, and only a mentality sponsored by an Ickes could refer to flood creation as a "public service."

"Only the uninformed or the unreliable person," says the Texas Weekly, "will assert that the indignation of residents of the Colorado Valley is based on opposition to use of the river's waters for generating power in competition to private enterprises. The farmers who gathered in Austin did not meet there to debate the merits of public-owned generating projects...."

"They are not concerned with fine speeches or high-sounding statements... if both flood control and power generation cannot be had at the same time, they have their choice already made... it is not that they are against the generation of power by the C.R.A., but that simply they are for flood control by the C.R.A. They were told the project would control floods. They have been fooled, once and don't want to be fooled again."

There appears to be sound logic on the side of the farmers' position.

They abound in Hollywood. Each is the victim of circumstance. She married a man who means something definite when he says "How's tricks?" He means just that: how's tricks? He means have you any new mysteries, any new gadgets, any new legerdemain in stock?

It was Chester Morris who told me about this hapless sisterhood. He told me about it between tricks out at his Beverly Hills shanty, beside the swimming pool.

It seems Chester's misadventure is one of the foremost sufferers. She bears up patiently, however. Probably because she knew, when she married Chester, that he was nuts about Magic. He has been, ever since he was 14.

The magicians of Hollywood meet regularly. One organization—Los Magicians—includes in its select membership such noted names as Harold Lloyd, Bert Kalmar, the songwriter Max Terhune and Morris. He is not a vice peculiar to movie actors, and their wives go along. There is a program of magic, but it doesn't end there. The meeting place becomes a bedlam of tricks.

There is a dog situation out at the I. C. Huff home at 1229 East Francis that is a "scary thought" to be human. About two months ago the Jimmy Wheeler's dog took up with a female police dog whose owners are still a mystery. The two dogs' devotion to one another became so remarkable that people who didn't know either dog began to notice. The dogs played together incessantly. Whenever you saw one you saw the other. About a month before the pups were born, the Wheeler dog began hunting for his mate. The employes out at Danciger plant could see him chasing rabbits, and often he's run until he was exhausted. When he caught the rabbit he would take it to the other dog. Never did he eat his catch himself. He would take other food to the police dog. The first of this week the police dog crawled away back under the I. C. Huff house, which is located next to the Wheelers. The next morning she had a litter of pups around her—you cannot count these because you can't get that close to her, and that's the point—she won't let anybody even start under that house, and she growls fiercely. Well, yesterday the dog-catcher came out and said he was going to get her and the pups, but Mrs. Huff said wait-a-day or two—maybe her owner will show up. If he doesn't the dog-catcher will have his way... Oh, yes, the Wheeler dog has quit coming around—the mother under the house is too ferocious... Whoever owns that dog or whoever wants it should not delay

Cranium Crackers

Mr. Hill and Mr. Dale were looking over some vacant land they had purchased. Standing talking together, face to face, each then turned and walked away from the other for 50 feet.

Then, turning to the right, Mr. Hill walks 200 feet straight ahead, then turned to the right again, and walked 50 feet straight ahead.

In the meantime, Mr. Dale, after walking the first 50 feet, turned to the left and walked 100 feet ahead, then turned to the left again, and walked 50 feet ahead, then turned to the right and walked 100 feet ahead.

If all corners turned were exact right angles, where were the men now in relation to each other, and what was the shape for their property?

IMAGINARY PAIN

Few sensations are more intimate than pain. Hence to doubt the "reality" of a pain complained of by a patient is to that patient like casting doubt on his very existence.

Such "doubtings" are often deeply resented and a patient thus confronted is hard to placate. All of the physician's ingenuity, learning, and skill must be brought into play to convince the sufferer that his pain is imaginary.

If a patient believes that his arm or his heart hurts, that pain exists by virtue of the patient's belief.

To put the matter another way, even if a person is terribly afraid of something that does not exist, his fear is still a reality. His physical reactions, his pallor, tremor, sweat and other signs of anxiety, visibly bear witness to his emotional condition.

The physician who is called on to relieve pain or fear must determine how well grounded there complaints are and must treat them accordingly. "Imaginary" pain, if treated along the lines employed in dealing with a pain of organic origin, may be aggravated rather than relieved.

The unwarranted fear and the imagined pain are symptoms pointing to underlying morbid condition—and not the symptoms but the underlying morbid condition must be treated.

An individual who is confronted by it is faced to make some vital decision, and who is unwilling or unable to do what is necessary, may find escape from his dilemma in an imaginary malady, say heart disease.

Such a patient may complain of heart shortness of breath, an palpitation. Should the physician accept his complaints at their face value and proceed to treat him as if he did have heart disease, the condition is likely to become fixed.

The patient may be made a permanent invalid by the adoption of physical disability to the already present emotional or psychological disability.

There is a precious saying among medical men to the effect that "it is far easier to rub a disease into a limb than to rub it out of the mind." This is a great responsibility upon the examining physician, for it is no easy matter to differentiate between imaginary pain and that due to organic or functional disease.

The Life Story of W. LEE O'DANIEL

A Saga of American Success

CHAPTER 13

THEM HILLBILLYS ARE POLITICIANS NOW

By C. L. DOUGLAS and FRANCES MILLER

(Copyright, 1938, by the Scripps-Howard Newspapers of Texas. Reproduction in whole or in part expressly prohibited.)

In the little town of Arlington, up in the Kansas hard wheat belt, Mrs. Effie Hiller sat beside her radio.

Sister Effie always listened when Brother Wilbert's Hillbilly Boys were on the air, but today—April 12, 1938—she was a little worried and perplexed by what she heard.

Could Brother Wilbert really mean it? Yes, that's what he was saying—that he had, from time to time, received many requests that he offer himself as a candidate for the Texas governorship, and that he was seriously considering the race.

"I want all you folks to tell me what you think about it?" his voice was saying over the radio.

Top left: W. Lee O'Daniel punctuated his campaign speeches with many wisecracks, but here he is during one of his serious moments before the microphone atop his bus.

Sister Effie jumped to her feet.

"No, Wilbert, no!" she cried.

"No, Don't do it!"

But of course, Wilbert Lee O'Daniel, down in Fort Worth, didn't hear.

He went right ahead—and judging from the stacks of mail he received during the next week it would seem that Mrs. Hiller was a decided minority of one on the negative side of the question.

BROTHER-IN-LAW FORECAST VICTORY FOUR YEARS AGO

As she explained later, she was afraid that he might lose and that defeat at the polls would hurt his flour business. But when Justice of the Peace Will Sims, also of Arlington and a brother-in-law of Mr. O'Daniel, heard the news, he expressed no such qualms.

"When he was in Kansas four years ago Wilbert told me that he might run for governor some day," said Mr. Sims, "and I say if he runs, he'll win."

Anyhow, as a result of that broadcast in which he put out the feeler, W. Lee announced for office and a few days later Sister Effie and the rest of the country heard him again on the radio.

"Friends," he said, "in speaking of fighting the good fight, let me remind you that I am offering myself at the request of 54,499 common citizens who have written me—that I have not been approached by any clique or organization or their representative—that I have no campaign manager, no political advisor, and no attorney to tell me what to do. Perhaps those experienced in these matters are scoffing at me. Perhaps their scoffing is justified. Perhaps there are those who scoffed at David when he faced Goliath."

O'DANIEL AND HILLBILLY BOYS ENTER CAMPAIGN

And so saying, W. Lee O'Daniel and his Hillbilly Boys took the field against a dozen opponents, with the Ten Commandments as his platform, with a newly written hosiannah for his battle song:

"Been hangin' round the mountains all these years Singin' songs bout the train-wrecked engineers, They've been pavin' all the cities. With their pretty corned ditties, And they've got the politicians all in tears. They come to town with their guitars, And now they're smoking big cigars— Them Hillbillys are politicians."

Now his campaign on a lively criticism for professional politicians, the Hillbilly candidate took a stand on only a few issues.

His platform mainly was a plea to bring business methods to government, ease the tax load by bringing new industries to Texas, and a pledge to pay a $30 a month pension to every man and woman over 65 years of age.

Texas political circles not only chuckled but laughed out loud as O'Daniel and his boys climbed aboard a long white bus, which had a platform on its top, and set out to beat the bushes.

He opened his campaign at Waco telling the McLennan county voters that "the people of Texas voted the old age pension into the Constitution, and the people in Austin have handled it so as to hand out political patronage."

But he had scarcely fired his first shots before someone up in Fort Worth, discovered that Mr. O'Daniel himself had neglected to pay his poll tax.

The Hillbilly candidate couldn't even vote for himself!

Of course, this news was received with great elation by Attorney General William McCraw, Railroad Commissioner Ernest Thompson, and Karl Crowley, the three principal contenders for the Democratic nomination.

It was utterly ridiculous, they said, that any man who didn't have a vote of his own should have the nerve to run for high office. But they added that it didn't make any difference; that O'Daniel didn't have a chance anyway—not even a Republican's chance.

POLL TAX STORM FAILS TO BOTHER CANDIDATE

The newspapers made much of the matter. It gave them something to laugh about editorially.

Said the El Paso Herald Post: "He can't even vote for himself, yet he comes before us asking to be made governor of Texas. He has a crust, all right, and it's not light crust. It's hard and tough and indigestible."

Said the conservative Dallas News: "It would be no sound theory to democracy to prohibit office holding to any delinquent taxpayer. No man who is unwilling to be a taxpayer can justify his position as a taxpayer. A delinquent poll tax is just another delinquent tax."

Candidate O'Daniel, with his musicians crooning "I left my home for a microphone," was sound-trucking in Sherman when the poll tax storm broke, but he was unperturbed by the tumult.

BIG JOKE GOES ON: O'DANIEL SELLS FLOUR

His explanation was simple and to the point.

"Fort Worth is full of spies trying to get something on me and start a whispering campaign," he said. "I didn't pay my poll tax because I was fed up with crooked politics in Austin and hadn't intended to vote for anyone this year. I didn't know I was going to be called on to run. Anyway, there's only one thing I'm losing. That's one vote."

The "big joke" went on, with Texans having more fun than she ever had in a political campaign. Sure O'Daniel was drawing crowds, said his opponents, reminding the electorate it was all pretty much like going to the circus—you stopped to hear the music, if it was free, and then went on and forgot all about it.

But it wasn't all politics to W. Lee. He was selling flour, car loads of it, as he went about the country. There were few speeches that he made from the bus that he didn't get in a number of plugs for his Hillbilly Flour.

"All right, boys, give 'em a tune," he would say. "Just like you did when we were selling Hillbilly Flour? CARPET-BAGGER, ITINERANT YANKEE CHARGES HURLED

He had been on tour scarcely more than a couple of weeks before the various political camps, sizing up the situation, suddenly began to view it with alarm. Maybe the man had something after all.

The attacks started.

Karl Crowley, the former solicitor of the Post Office Department, charged that O'Daniel is from Ohio, "a carpet-bagger and an itinerant Yankee."

Attorney General Bill McCraw said he thought the same.

Lower left: A typical street scene in one of the towns at the time of a campaign visit by O'Daniel. The huge crowds he drew were liberally sprinkled with children, who came out to see and hear the man they'd been hearing for years over the radio.

Lower right: Mrs. Effie Hiller, O'Daniel's half-sister, brings her brother's campaign to her Kansas home over the radio. She always listened in when Wilbert and the Hillbillys were on the air.

O'Daniel, speaking at Gonzales, the Lexington of Texas liberty, replied that 100 years ago, when the Texans rose in revolt against Mexico, it was a little group of Ohioans who presented General Sam Houston with the famous Twin Sisters, the only two pieces of artillery the Texans had at the decisive battle of San Jacinto.

"The great attorney general," he said, "is attempting to rekindle the fires of sectionalism because I was born in another state. Say to him on election day: 'Little Willie, shame on you, and while we hate to do it, the citizens are going to give you a good spanking.'"

HILL BENT FOR ELECTION; DISTANT RUMBLES IN THE AIR

McCraw and Thompson wondered from the stump why it was that O'Daniel, known in Kansas as "Wilbert" had come to Texas as "W. Lee."

Pappy was passing the biscuits about that time in Decatur, and in much the same style employed by the post who wrote "a soldier of the Legion dying in Algiers," he made explanation:

"How I received my name was

BUSINESS WELFARE OF TEXAS HINGES ON RACE, SAYS TERRELL

GEORGETOWN, Aug. 24.—C. V. Terrell, railroad commission chairman, started here Saturday for another day of vigorous campaigning for re-election with a declaration that "the entire business welfare of Texas hinges upon my race."

Mr. Terrell had later speaking engagements at Belton, Temple, Rosebud, Cameron and Marlin. From Marlin he will speak over the Texas Quality network at 8:15 p. m. before addressing a big outdoor "Re-elect Terrell" rally.

"The time for pussyfooting around has passed," Mr. Terrell said, "and the leaders of all sections of our great state, the people who are best informed on the importance of the Texas Railroad commission to our daily lives, show that they realize it plainly by the way they are flocking in to support me."

"What other explanation than that my re-election is the best interest of all is there for the flood of endorsements given me?"

"What good doctor would turn his patients over to unproven hands for treatment?"

"What successful business man would call in an unknown and untested person and give them direction of their business?"

"Those questions state plainly the situation in the railroad commission race. The people of Texas each and every one is a stockholder in the railroad commission. On August 27, we will have a stockholders meeting and elect officers. With the eight great industries the railroad commission regulates in such good condition, in so much better condition than any others not only in this state but in the nation, is now the time to make a change?"

"If you think so, but don't quite know for sure, just ask a business leader in whom you have confidence. His answer most probably will a family story in my home that always brought tears to my mother's eyes," he said. "My mother was a very young girl during the Civil War but her favorite brother was a Yankee soldier. When he was wounded and dying on the battle field, a Southern family took him in and nursed him. Before his death he wrote to my mother, his sister, and told her of their kindness. He asked her, if she ever had a son, to give him the name of Lee in tribute to Southern kindness to a wounded, homesick, Northern boy."

The campaign rocked on, hill-bent for election. Politicians, with their ears to the ground, heard a distant rumble—obviously Lee O'Daniel's sound truck bringing his Hillbilly Boys round the mountain. Straw polls were taken. O'Daniel leading six to two.

And then the dozen political camps realized that W. Lee was getting away with one of the most impossible things of all. He was taking up collections at his rallies!

He was permitting the voters to pay for his campaign. Preposterous! But nonetheless, true!

But come along—let's hop aboard the O'Daniel sound truck and visit a typical rally, say in Rosenberg, in South Texas.

FDR Flays GOP For Voting Democratic

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt, condemning reported Republican intervention in Democratic primaries, cleared the way today for administration support of an independent senatorial campaign in Idaho.

The President said yesterday that decent political morality demanded that members of one party stay out of the primary elections of another party.

His statement was precipitated by a question regarding the political situation in Idaho where Senator James P. Pope, a down-the-line administration supporter, recently was defeated for renomination by D. Worth Clark, who pledged he would not be a yes-man for the White House.

There has been talk that Pope—who charged he was defeated in the Democratic primary by Republican votes—might run for re-election as an independent.

The President said he did not know what Pope would do, or whether he would have administration backing if he should make an independent race.

Besides Idaho, the President referred to Georgia and Maryland. In Georgia, he said, the Republican state chairman has asked his followers to enter the Democratic primary. In Maryland, he added, Republicans are being begged to vote as Democrats.

Jaycee Picnic To Be Next Tuesday

The annual picnic of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held next Tuesday evening on the Saunders ranch, three miles east of LeFors. It was announced at the regular meeting of Jaycees at noon Tuesday.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and their guests will attend the outing.

Vice President Wayland B. Weatherhead appointed these four as members of the picnic committee: Jack Dunn, chairman, Judge Parker, W. C. Wilson, and Ed Tracey.

Baseball and other sports are included in the picnic plans, and there'll be plenty of food, Chairman Dunn said yesterday.

The picnic will be substituted for the regular Jaycee Tuesday luncheon. Members and their guests will gather at the Pampa city hall Tuesday afternoon, and leave promptly for the picnic grounds at 5 o'clock.

GIANT FLYING BOAT TURNED OVER TO NAVY

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 24 (AP)—A giant flying boat, estimated capable of a 5,000-mile flight to Paris or bomb, was ready for tests today by the United States navy after manufacturers had flown the $1,000,000 craft to their own satisfaction.

Rigid inspection and test flights for the next week lay ahead of the four-motored "air dreadnaught" before the navy accepts it as perhaps the most powerful unit of the naval air force.

Specifications of the plane, which resembles the transpacific clipper-ships, are closely guarded naval secrets, and officials of Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, which built the air giant, refused to elaborate on yesterday's test flights.

Executives said they were more than satisfied with the way the plane performed for Test Pilot William C. Wheatley in flights over the city, but beyond that they would not comment.

The plane was designed to supplant the present twin-motored PBY type bombers, many of which have been flown more than 2,500 miles from here to Hawaii, and over 3,000 miles to Coco Solo, Canal Zone.

Observers trained in aviation made the following unofficial estimates concerning the ship's specifications:

Wingspread, 115 feet; overall length, 80 feet; height, on beach landing gear, 22 feet; top speed, 240 miles an hour; weight, 30 tons; range, 5,000 miles.

Armament of the new fighter also was a secret, but reports said it would be projected by large caliber machine guns in the turret nose, turret tail and fuselage, top and bottom, permitting destructive fire in any direction.

If the 5,000-mile range is correct, the craft could carry a devastating load of bombs, drop them on an objective over 2,000 miles away, and return to its base non-stop.

Yesterday's Newspaper Boys Are Today's Leaders

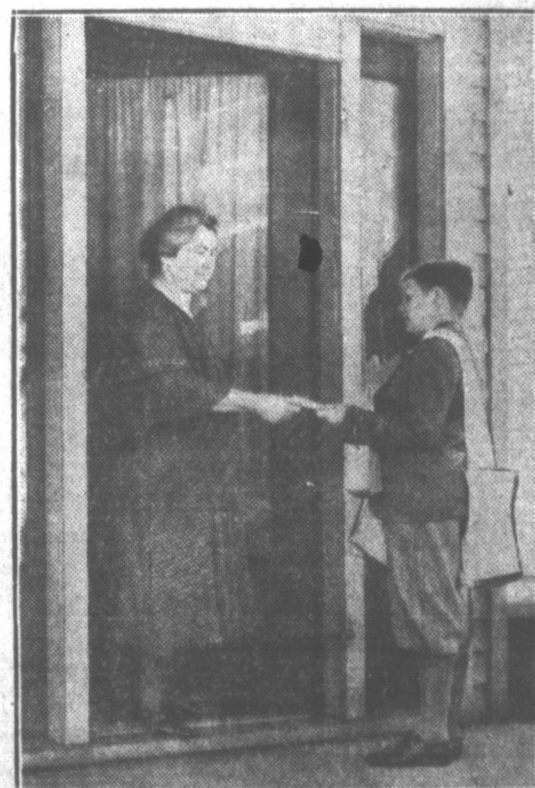

"This training as a newspaper boy was most helpful when it was necessary to make my own way," says the President of the Erie Railroad Company

Training in Fundamentals of Success

Scores of America's foremost leaders in business, professional and civic circles can and do point with pride to their "first job" as a Newspaper boy. Many have publicly said that in their youth was laid the foundation for their future success.

Newspaper boys, more than a half million in America, are daily being trained in the fundamentals of successful citizenship, such as Self-Reliance—Honesty—Thrift—Punctuality—Tact—Regularity—Discipline—Courtesy—Salesmanship!

In a letter to his "hometown newspapers" Chas. E. Denney, now President of one of America's Great Railroad Systems, the Erie Railroad Company, writes:

"I entered High School at the age of thirteen. About that time I secured a job as 'carrier' of the New Era. I do not know how much the boys are paid now, but my earnings were $1.50 per week. Shortly after starting to carry the evening route, I was fortunate in securing a route for the Morning News which paid $1.00 per week. To me this was a lot of money.

At sixteen, when I entered Pennsylvania State College, I measured just under six feet, and was sufficiently husky to demonstrate that a boy's health is not injured by getting up early in the morning and walking a few miles morning and evening.

The foregoing is not mentioned in any spirit of boasting about working while going to school but because of the pleasant recollections I have had for more than forty years of the many incidents connected with the press rooms and patrons on my routes. This training was most helpful when at the age of nineteen it was necessary to make my own way."

CANDIDATES TO BROADCAST ON FRIDAY NIGHT

(By The Associated Press) The majority of candidates concentrated their campaign in East and Northeast Texas today, old age pensions and oil the chief topics of the waning stages of a second Democratic primary drawn out by the doldrums of gubernatorial nominee W. Lee O'Daniel's unprecedented endorsements.

Meanwhile the Democratic gubernatorial nominee planned radio broadcasts Thursday, Friday and Saturday to bolster his plea for election of six candidates. Nine of the twelve in the running for state office will make last appeals for votes via radio at Dallas Friday night, four of them being among those passed by when O'Daniel made his endorsements. Pierce Brooks, candidate for lieutenant governor; Gerald C. Mann, for attorney general; Jerry Sadler, for railroad commissioner, and William H. McDonald, for land commissioner, are the four.

Graves Makes Tour Brooks' opponent, Coke Stevenson; Walter Woodell, running against Mann; C. V. Terrell, in the race against Sadler; Bascom Giles, McDonald's opponent, and Judge Richard Critz, candidate for associate justice of the supreme court, each favored by O'Daniel, will also be heard from the same station.

Judge Harry N. Graves of the court of criminal appeals, the other candidate endorsed by the governor designate, campaigned at Bagwell, Clarksville and Texarkana yesterday and today visited Marshall, Center and Carthage, then drove on to Beaumont. After conferring with Graves supporters there and at Port Arthur, he will return to his home at Georgetown to vote Saturday.

Giles Promises Honesty Giles, speaking over the radio at Dallas last night, said he would "restore confidence in the state land office" by awarding leases to the highest bidders "in order that the public school fund will gain hundreds of thousands of dollars which I charge it has been losing under the administration of the present land commissioner."

McDonald, at Fort Worth, discussed lease rentals and referring to the Van Mex Oil company's holdings in the big Wichita riverbed said: "You have been told that the state collected $1,000 in back rentals on this lease. The fact is that William H. McDonald required the holders of the lease to pay $4,000."

Terrell, speaking at Mount Vernon, declared the railroad commission can take pride in the way it has conserved natural gas for industrial fuel. "We also have one of the finest, cheapest transportation systems in the nation, truck, bus, railroads and water facilities all included, and this, too, is the result of my two terms of work on the railroad commission," he said. Terrell was at Emory, Canton, Athens, and Palestine today.

Mann Claims Frameup Stevenson, in a radio speech at Dallas last night, contended he would be elected. Brooks paused in his stump-making tour of Southwest Texas to make a radio speech from Corpus Christi. He was in the lower Rio Grande valley today for talks at Edinburg, McAllen, Harlingen, San Benito and Brownsville.

Speaking at Paris, Mann branded a recently circulated letter regarding the alleged raising of campaign funds a "gigantic frameup" and declared "this evilevoh hour attempt to slander me and hurt my campaign has proved a boomerang."

Mann was at Henry Grove, Bonham, Leonard and Denison today.

Brooklyn College Called Communist

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (AP)—Congressional investigators heard testimony Tuesday that Brooklyn college, New York, "might quite properly be labeled a hotbed of propaganda" and Communist activity. Professor Edward I. Fenlon of the college's department of philosophy made the assertion before the House committee investigating un-American activities. The committee opened a study of Communism in education preparatory to closing its public sessions here.

The witness added that in many opinion there was widespread Communist activity in many other colleges and universities. Professor Fenlon, who formerly was connected with St. Mary's college in California, said professors and students were "deluged" with Communist propaganda which at times littered stairways and sidewalks in places "perhaps a half inch thick."

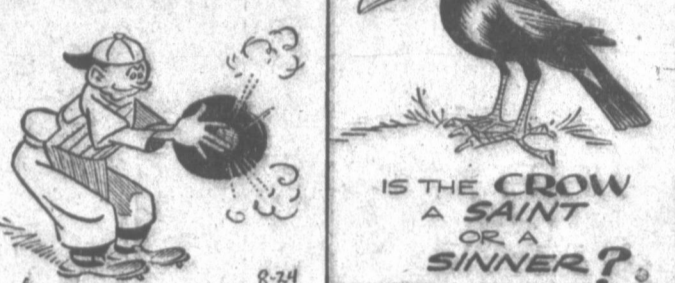

He added "the teachers union," a CIO affiliate active at Brooklyn college, was in his opinion "Communist controlled."

(Question on editorial page.) The men were together. They had walked around the outside of three lots, each 80 x 100 feet, which lay two adjoining facing the street where they were at first. The third lay behind the lot where Mr. Hill walked, and faced the next street back, where the two men now stood, at the corner of this lot.

HOW WILL LEE O'DANIEL PAY FOR PENSIONS

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL, FORT WORTH, Aug. 24 (AP)—Where will W. Lee O'Daniel find the money to pay for his liberalized old age pension program and how much will he have to find?

These are questions that are being asked at the headquarters of the new Democratic nominee for governor as well as all over the capital in Austin and most other places in Texas.

O'Daniel is not answering them at present. He didn't go into detail concerning them during his campaign. In effect he says there will be plenty of time after the primary election Saturday when he will begin an intensive study of the old age assistance problem.

But he adds he believes the legislature will discover the "ways and means" for consummating this all-important pledge which he made to the people of Texas.

In his speeches and statements, there is no deviation from his campaign declaration the full amount of pensions authorized by the constitution should be paid to everyone over 65 years of age, however, that he always said differentiated between state aid and federal matching money. The constitution says $15 a month is the maximum which may be paid.

The federal government has promised to match state payments under a program which it approves. At this point, that of maximum state payments and a possible federal matching, observers

SERIAL STORY

HAYWIRE HOUSE

BY EDWIN RUTT

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, The Little Cheese comes to help out Bull Griffin, sees snakes and tries to escape, has a great to-do sounds upstairs.

CHAPTER XV

MISS CLARA FENIMORE was a born snooper. And since coming to the Pennington-Parker Restorium she had successfully snooped in the room of everyone except the Great Pierre, Master of Magic. Up until that memorable Friday, entrance to that fortress of privacy had been denied her.

The reason for this was that the Great Pierre spent almost all his time in his room. He had come to this place to rest and, with true French practicality, he was doing what he had paid to do.

This state of affairs had driven Miss Fenimore insane with curiosity. On several occasions she had peeped through Pierre's half-open door and glimpsed a heterogeneous collection of trunks, bags, and bundles. They intrigued her beyond belief. And then on Friday, when Pierre announced his intention of remaining away overnight, Miss Fenimore had heard Opportunity knocking.

Accordingly, when convinced that the household slept, she had slipped downstairs. And Wolfgang, the dachshund, had slipped with her, to the ultimate confusion of the Little Cheese.

The first of the Great Pierre's cases that Miss Fenimore opened proved disappointing. It contained a number of gadgets whose purpose she did not understand. But, casting about, she found a long, wooden box with perforations all over it. It interested her immediately. She unfastened the catch.

The next instant Miss Fenimore recoiled in horror and uttered the shriek to end shrieks. And just as she did so a wild man with a gun in his hand hurried through the door, leapt over a cascade of snakes that poured from the box and covered himself up with the bedclothes.

It was all very puzzling to Miss Fenimore. But she had no time to consider. Too many snakes were festooning the floor at her feet.

Passed a moment in which Miss Clara Fenimore made a monkey out of the most nimble-throated coloratura soprano that ever lived. Then Kinks Parker rushed into the room. He was closely followed by Sally Pennington, in bare feet. Bull Griffin, a gun in either hand, placed third. Behind him, similarly armed, came Mr. Spaldini, just out of the money. Mr. and Mrs. Harkness were in the ruck, simply also-rans.

The Little Cheese

Kinks took the floor. "What the devil's going on?" he demanded.

Miss Fenimore pointed shakily under the bed.

"S-s-snakes," she quavered. "Yes, I know," said Kinks. "They're probably harmless. Pierre uses them in his act, I guess."

"I must have been sleep-walking," panted Miss Fenimore guiltily. "And all at once I came in here with a box of s-s-snakes."

Sally and Kinks exchanged glances. Then, suddenly, Bull Griffin stepped past Kinks and stripped the covers from the bed.

THE movement brought to light a pitiful object. The Little Cheese, white as a ghost, lay on his back. One hand covered his eyes. His face was convulsed with terror. And the nerveless fingers of his other hand still held his gun. His lips were working loosely, but he uttered no sound.

"Well, Elbridge," said Bull Griffin, "so you wuz gonna git me, wuz you?"

"B-Bull," he stuttered weakly. "I ain't meself. You wouldn't shoot a sick man, would you, Bull?"

"Cheese," said Bull darkly, "you bin astin' fer it." He waved his guns. "Just give me room, ladeeze an' gents. Elbridge here is gonna git da works."

"Fer gossakes, Bull, take it easy," pleaded the Little Cheese. "Wuzn't we pals once? T'ink when we wuz big shots in da old Bushwick Avenue gang. Remember all dem clambakes we used to go to. Wid Mary an' Mottle. An' now we're in da same racket, Bull.

Da same racket. An' anodder t'ing! I gotta wife an' five kids. You didn' ought to shoo' a family man Bull?"

MR. GRIFFIN was a man of sentiment. He blinked now and his gun wavered. The Little Cheese saw that he was making progress.

"I couldn' leave me little May-belle," he groaned in anguish. "Wot would she do wifout her paw? An' Jake! You'd ought to see Jake! Bull. Da cutest little devil on da block. Chukles' dead fish at a taxicab last week, he did."

Bull Griffin was touched. The corners of his mouth twitched. "Cheese," said Bull, "sein you got a wife an' five kids, I'm gonna leave you go dis time. But keep outa da Bronx. Or else."

"I will," promised the Little Cheese eagerly. "Honest to Gawd, I will. You're a white guy, Bull. You an' yer whole family is white. You . . ."

At this point Sally interposed. "Listen, she said, 'we're going to leave you two to sob it out in each other's arms. Bull'—she extended a stern finger at the Little Cheese. "If you're not out of this house by morning, Mr.—Mr. Elbridge it will cost you $6. That's our usual rate."

WITH the exception of the representatives from gangdom, the company filed out. And as they went they heard the dulcet voice of Bull Griffin.

"Geez," Mr. Griffin was saying, "you should of seen yerself in da bed, Elbridge. You wuz da funnies' t'ing goin'! I like to died laffin. Haw, haw!"

"Haw, haw," echoed the Little Cheese, palely.

"What about the snakes?" Kinks ask, as he followed Sally up the stairs.

"If they're harmless," said Sally, "they can stay where they are till morning for all of me. Pierre can collect them when he gets back."

For a moment they lingered at the top step.

"Gosh," said Kinks, "wouldn't it be something if a sane, sensible person showed up here sometime? One. Just one."

"Don't bring up impossibilities at this hour, my dear," said Sally. "Good night."

She was wrong. It wasn't impossible for a person in full possession of his senses to visit the Pennington-Parker Restorium. Such a one appeared on the following morning.

WPA Will Re-Open Panhandle Surveys.

AMARILLO, Aug. 24 (AP)—Works Progress Administration will open a new state-wide project for the continuation of water-well surveys which were started about two years ago under the sponsorship of the Texas Board of Water Engineers, A. Meredith, administrative officer, announced today. Cooperating with the sponsors are the U. S. Geological Survey and the Texas Bureau of Industrial Chemistry.

The purpose of the survey is to determine so far as possible, the amount and quality of water available to Texas for municipal, farm, and industrial uses. The project is operated with the county as a unit and with trained geologists in charge of the work. The information thus obtained is put in the form of pamphlets and is available to those interested. Copies are also sent to various libraries throughout the state and to schools and colleges for reference and future study.

Corrigan Declines To Sell 'Old Crate'

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24 (AP)—Douglas Corrigan, the aviator who missed California but found Ireland, thinks there's plenty of good flying left in his $900 "crate."

After Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann renewed his suggestion last night that the flier sell his 9-year-old St. Louis-built plane to the city for a museum piece, Corrigan replied that it was too early to decide.

"I want to fly it for several months," Corrigan said. "I can't say now what I will do with it after I get through flying it around."

The diminutive flier is en route to California in the jalopy that took him on his unannounced transatlantic flight.

Arriving here late yesterday from Springfield, Ill., the smiling Irishman was paraded downtown and given a banquet.

A visit to the plant where the "Corrigan clipper" was built was planned today.

Corrigan said he would leave at noon for Memphis, Tenn., and Shreveport, La., his next stops.

Crude Production Shows An Increase

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 24 (AP)—Production of crude petroleum in the United States increased 46,086 barrels daily during the week ending Aug. 20, during which the daily average was 3,397,056 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

All the major producing areas shared in the increase.

Oklahoma's production jumped 3,225 barrels daily to a total of 443,400. East Texas up 798 barrels daily to 440,798 and the total State of Texas has an increase of 5,503 barrels daily, making the average production 1,393,547 barrels daily.

Louisiana had an increase of 5,050 barrels daily and an average of 261,075. California's output was up 10,750 for a total of 683,250 barrels daily and Kansas had an increase of 2,875 barrels daily to 168,075.

Eastern States including Illinois and Michigan showed an increase of 8,427 barrels daily and an average of 207,958. In the Rocky Mountain section production increased 9,780 barrels daily to 77,050.

Men of the First Presbyterian Church will meet in the church dining room at 7 o'clock tonight for their regular monthly Fellowship luncheon, prepared by women of the church.

NO. 1-- Continued From Page One

Whether road has been paved and the Pampa-McLean road designated as a state highway.

"We have appeared before the Texas Highway commission many times asking for a survey to be made of the Highway 88-18, the straight north-and-south route across the state that will connect Perryton, Pampa, Clarendon, and Del Rio.

"Some may ask why we concentrate on highways. The reason is that one of the first things industries that we are seeking to have located here want to know: our transportation, what roads we have.

"All this has required considerable time and money, without which most of the roads around Pampa would still be only county roads."

"The Gray county lake, promotion of retail trade, aviation, entertainment, such as goodwill trips, appearances before the Texas railroad commission in the interest of oil producers of the Panhandle in the matter of proration, were other accomplishments cited by Mr. Stinson.

"We think it absolutely necessary that this work go along with the other work the city is doing," Mr. Stinson said.

"A letter signed by County Judge Sherman White and the four Gray county commissioners, expressing appreciation for the BCD's work in securing state designation for the Pampa-McLean road" was read to the city commission by Fred Thompson.

Ed Dunigan said: "I think all business men realize the work done by the BCD. The approximate amount of money spent in the past must be spent in the future if we are to get anywhere."

"Buckler Favors Tax." That work of the BCD was just as important as any other was the opinion expressed by C. P. Buckler. "Although I am not a director in the organization, I think taxation is the fairest method to secure funds for the Board of City Development."

M. A. Graham mentioned a meeting of representative Pampa citizens a year ago, when the same question of the BCD's allotment came up. At that meeting, he said, the group endorsed the maintenance of the same rate for the allotment.

Farris Oden, BCD vice president, urged that the commissions give the BCD the same rate as this year.

Fred Cullum declared the work done by the BCD on the Pampa-Perryton road alone was worth its allotment from the city, and said he would like to see the rate remain the same, or even be raised.

The maximum amount the city can allot to the Board of City Development is 20 cents per $100 valuation, under the charter of 1927.

In 1937, expenditures of the BCD totaled $12,000. This amount included work done in securing state designation of the Pampa-Borger road. This year the amount expended will be about the same, it was estimated, and the same will apply to 1939.

Of the money spent by the BCD, two-thirds would come from the tax allotment and one-third from memberships and subscriptions if the 15-cent rate is maintained.

Amount of the city's current budget is estimated at $250,000 from the amount coming to the BCD representing 3 per cent of the total.

The city's present tax rate is $1.40 while the average tax rate for Texas cities is $2.20. Pampa's highest tax rate was $1.60 in 1932, W. M. Craven, city tax assessor-collector, said.

Carr Explains Position. Mayor E. S. Carr explained the city's position. "I don't want you men (the BCD representatives) to think for a minute that we don't appreciate the fine work you are doing, but with the city's many other projects underway at the present time, we must stretch somewhere. Therefore, we ask that you go along with us for a while, as we have gone along with you in the past."

Members of the BCD held a meeting in the BCD committee room Monday to discuss the question of the rate to be allotted under the budget. A second meeting was held last night, preceding the representatives meeting with the city commission.

A proposal to raise the tax rate to $1.50 was also discussed at some length at the meeting.

Present at the meeting of the city commission last night were City Manager W. T. Williamson, Mayor E. S. Carr, Commissioner D. W. Osborne, City Attorney Walter E. Rogers, City Secretary W. M. Craven, and the BCD representatives: Reno Stinson, president, Garnet Reeves, manager, Fred Cullum, Ed Dunigan, C. P. Buckler, Mack Graham, Dan Williams, Farris C. Oden, and Fred Thompson.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Aug. 24. (AP)—A forward party in the stock market came to a halt today just short of the peaks attained a month ago in the mid-year bull drive.

Before the advance played out, further gains of fractions to around 2 points had been recorded throughout the list. These were shaved 1/2 point before the close but the selling was not urgent. Transactions, in fact, became extremely slow after brisk trading around the opening when a few more moving ahead.

Brokers regarded the pause as natural in view of the close approach to the July barriers on the uptick and the inevitable climb the last fortnight. Reluctance to sell among traders was attributed chiefly to expectations of further business improvement after Labor Day, resting partly on forecasts of a busy Autumn stretch of automobile production in the manufacture of 1939 cars.

Showing small losses near the close were John Manville, International Nickel, Phillips Petroleum and Texas Corp.

drowned in about 12 to 15 feet of water while attempting to swim across the lake.

"I don't believe I can make it," he told Byron Lingo when he was about 12 feet from the bank, Lingo said. Lingo, who had already swam across the lake once and to the mid-land and back again just before his friend went down, said he was too exhausted to rescue Tipton.

Other members of the party were at widely separated points about the lake.

With Morris Knorrp, Lingo searched the lake at the spot where Tipton was last seen but was unable to find his body. He was recovered about three-quarters of an hour later.

Members of the swimming party, besides Tipton and Lingo, were Albert Lambert, Junior Morrow, Webb Smith, and James Johnson, all of Groom, and Buster Wilkerson, of Pampa.

tember 2 and visit the following towns: Deer, Panhandle, Claude, Clarendon, Hedley, Memphis, Wellington, Shamrock, McLean, Alarred and Groom. These towns are almost in a circle around the new McClellan Creek Lake.

Goodwill chairman of the Board of City Development and Junior Chamber of Commerce have expressed their willingness to work with their committees to make this one of the most successful goodwill gestures. This will be a Pampa citizens' motorcade to visit these various towns in Pampa's true territory.

The community picnic, at which 12,000 attended last year, is held in order to cement the bonds of community neighborliness between the Top of Texas communities, which have so much in common.

It permits capital and labor from all the various towns to meet at a chosen spot and greet each other on common ground. An event of this type makes for goodwill and brings everyone closer together.

the election of Dodge," the witness continued.

"How much?" snapped Dewey. "Donated $30,000."

"All told, about $30,000," the former Schultz henchman replied. "And after the election, we gave him $2,000 or $3,000 more we had promised."

Weinberg said that after he was introduced to Dodge, Hines remarked:

"This is where we're getting the money for the campaign." All of the contributions, he said, were assessed against policy banks controlled by the multi-million dollar Schultz Syndicate.

Aircar, a plane designed for private flying. He carried a four-leaf clover a friend had given him for "good luck" a few minutes before the take-off.

Edmund P. Rogers, from whose estate Hawks and Campbell took off, described the crash:

"Commander Hawks landed on our field about 5 p. m. and offered to take myself or any of our guests for a ride. Campbell climbed in first.

Strikes Wires. "The plane lifted in the air and Hawks tilted it 50 feet above the ground to enable it to pass between two tall trees. As he passed out of sight it looked as though he had not been able to gain sufficient altitude and was trying to bring the plane down."

"Just as the plane disappeared we heard a loud crash and a flash of flame shot up behind the trees. We knew he had struck the electric wires and telephone poles.

"We ran to the plane and found Hawks inside the burning machine on the seat. His clothes were on fire so we stripped him and pulled him away."

Rogers said Campbell was thrown from the plane and pinned under a crumpled and blazing wing.

The crash had ripped down all telephone and light wires serving the community and Rogers and his friends had to go several miles to summon aid.

territory. The figure of 48 cents is reached by establishing 72 cents as the loan rate at Kansas City and deducting 24 cents a bushel freight. If Gray county was in the Galveston territory, the loans in this county on wheat would be increased to 51 cents, County Farm Agent Ralph R. Thomas said.

In some sections where the port rate is approximately the same, farmers receive 6 cents a bushel more in loans because their freight rate is only 15 cents a bushel, Jones pointed out.

Experts said the effect of the government loan was to peg the price of wheat to the farmer at a higher level than he would receive if he sold on the cash market in his locality.

Jones said his dissatisfaction with the wheat loans did not extend to other sections of the new farm program.

be toastmaster and will present a brief program.

Reservations may be secured at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce for $1.25 a plate. Highway enthusiasts from the 19 Panhandle counties over which Van London had supervision are expected to attend the banquet.

Letters of invitation have been mailed to E. L. Bobbit, chairman, Harry Hines and John Woods of the Texas Highway commission and to Julian Montgomery, state engineer.

"Mr. Van London has been a friend to the Panhandle," local Chamber of Commerce officials said today. "He has many friends in every county who will attend the dinner in the hope that he has been to give the Panhandle good roads and he has worked with everyone alike."

Present at yesterday's meeting were: Sam Braswell, Homer Mulkey, Clarence, Elmer Elliott, Tom Brighton of Dalhart; Van Stewart, Perryton; John Roby, Reno Stinson, Garnet Reeves of Pampa; Homer Fruit, Dale Johnson, J. B. Eppling, El Clayton, Bob Bradshaw, Borger; Noel McDade, El Willis of Dumas; P. S. Bailey of Amarillo.

40 And 8 To Meet Thursday Evening

The regular meeting of the Pampa Voture No. 953 of the 40 and 8 will be held at the Legion hut tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock. Delegates and alternates to the national promenade will be elected.

This voture is entitled, due to its large membership to delegate to sit in the executive sessions of the National Promenade, which will be held in Los Angeles during the National Convention of the American Legion.

All members of the voture are urged to be present, as a report on the "wreck" held August 7 will be given. Dan Kennedy is Chief of Gate of the local voture.

"This is where we're getting the money for the campaign." All of the contributions, he said, were assessed against policy banks controlled by the multi-million dollar Schultz Syndicate.

"The Dutchman," he said, referring to Schultz, "was a fugitive from justice at the time, hiding out from the federal in New York and he told me:

"You will have to help Jimmy Hines elect Dodge because I'm a fugitive and can't get around."

Weinberg had resumed the stand after a verbal clash between Dewey and Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker had delayed the day's session for one hour and 35 minutes.

The delay arose over Dewey's attempt to bring in testimony portraying as a political boniface distributing free turkeys and food baskets to the poor families of his district.

She went outside the cabin, Harwell said, and gouged out her eye with a pair of scissors. Then she placed her hand against a cement pipe and hacked it off with an axe. Harwell said she struck her wrist three times before she severed the offending hand.

The cotton picker said his wife came back into the cabin "apparently without pain." He bound her wrist and two hours later summoned an ambulance. At Mercy hospital doctors said the woman was in good condition and would survive.

The wrist was so badly mutilated surgeons had to sever the arm further up.

ances planes southwest of Canton while it was flying from Hongkong to Wuchow, in Kwangsi province, en route to Chungking, present seat of civilian branches of the Chinese government.

Officials of the C. N. A. C. said the Japanese probably thought one of the passengers was Dr. Sun Fo, head of the legislative council of China, just returned from Europe, where he tried to enlist Soviet Russian, British and other foreign aid for China's fight against Japan. He had made reservations but cancelled them.

A British gunboat and Chinese troops set out from Canton to search for any further survivors of the attack.

Woods brought Lou and his radio operator to Macao after a difficult journey in a sampan along narrow, winding creeks. He reported he had to bring his plane down when the Japanese persisted in diving threateningly all around it.

Chased By Japanese. The airliner left Hongkong at 8:05 a. m. and 30 minutes later Woods radioed: "Japanese planes chasing us." Only three minutes later this message was received: "Forced land river. All safe." No further word was received from Woods until he reached Macao.

A C. N. A. C. official said: "There is no doubt that the attack was entirely premeditated. The plane was clearly marked and was on a regular scheduled run.

It was disclosed that Dr. Sun, changing his plans overnight, went to Hankow, China's military capital, instead of Chungking.

Dr. Sun reached Hankow safely at noon today, but members of his staff were aboard the machine-gunned airliner.

Among the passengers reported missing were Hsu Sing-Loh, member of the Shanghai municipal council, governing body of the international settlement.
