Israel Loses Plane

By United Press International
Egyptian missiles shot down an Israeli reconnaissance plane over the tense Suez front Saturday.

An Israeli military spokesman accused Cairo of fomenting an "eve of war" atmosphere in an effort to pressure concessions at the Geneva talks and impose a strain on the Israeli economy.

As the Israeli charge was aired, Egyptian officials said that high tension continues on the front lines as a result of Egypt's policy of "steady harassment" and "attrition of the enemy."

A U.N. spokesman in Cairo reported 40 shooting incidents between Egyptian and Israeli forces and five cases of air activity in violation of the cease-fire on Thursday.

An Egyptian military communique Saturday said that "an enemy plane attempted a reconnaissance flight over our troops stationed in the southern sector of the front. Our air defense systems engaged the enemy plane and destroyed it."

The plane "was seen falling in flames east of Lake Timsah," just south of the city of Ismailia, and the wreckage is now in Egyptian hands, the communique said.

The Israeli military command confirmed that Egyptian surface-to-air missiles shot down one of its unmanned spy planes Saturday. The plane, said to have been radio-controlled, was over Israeli-held ground when it was hit by a missile launched from Egyptian territory, according to a spokesman.

Egypt said Friday it had shot down an Israeli plane—identified by the authoritative newspaper Al-Ahram as a Phantom—flying in a formation over the canal's southern sector, but Israel, while admitting missiles were fired, denied any losses.

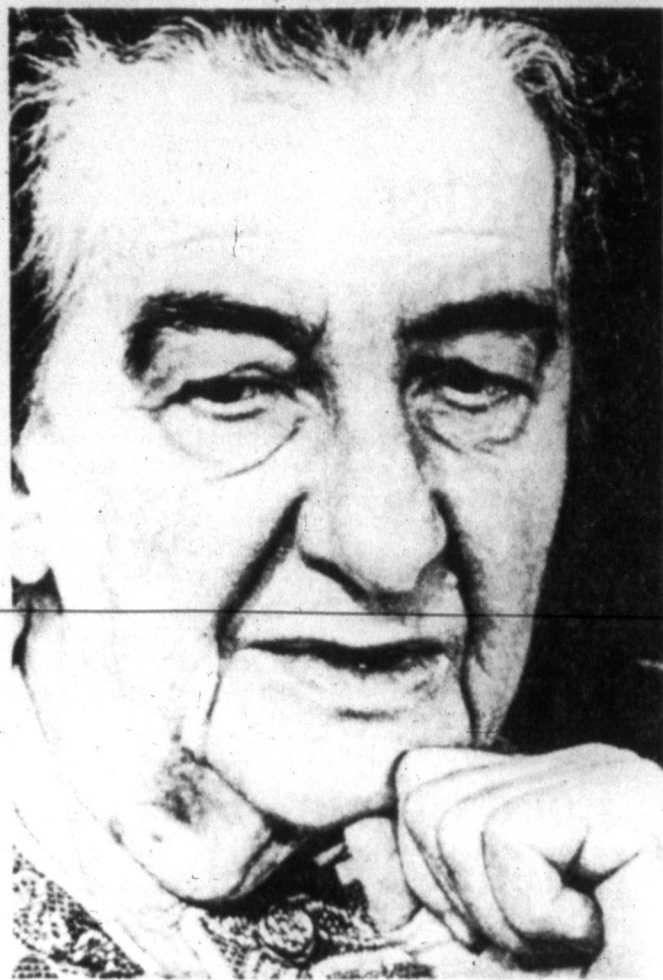

SINCE OCTOBER Turkey Having Trouble In Forming Government

ANKARA (UPI) — President Fahri Koruturk refused Saturday to accept Prime Minister Naim Talu's resignation and directed him to renew his efforts to form a new government.

Koruturk acted at the end of the ninth week of a political crisis which has left Turkey without a government since the Oct. 14 national elections.

Government sources said Koruturk instructed Talu to work in close cooperation with Republican Peoples Party (RPP) leader Bulent Ecevit and Justice Party chairman Suleyman Demirel in a new effort to form a national coalition government.

Koruturk told Talu to submit

GOLDA MEIR...appeals for votes

Golda Meir Seeks To Keep Her Post

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir appealed Saturday for re-election votes as the leader of a government that would bargain firmly with the Arabs but leave room in a Middle East peace agreement for territorial compromise.

Beginning the last 24 hours of campaigning before Monday's voting for the Knesset (parliament), Mrs. Meir told a rally of new Soviet immigrants that "never has our fate depended more on the outcome of an election."

A last-minute flurry of newspaper advertisements and broadcast appearances by 21 party slates concentrated on Israel's bargaining position at the Geneva Middle East peace conference and how much occupied Arab land could be safely returned in the framework of a settlement.

Incomplete public opinion polls showed Mrs. Meir's Labor Front variously standing to lose five to 10 seats in the 120-seat Knesset, or else holding its own against the center-right Likud bloc.

Both lists were fighting hard for the ballots of the undecided electorate, said by the polls to range from 20 to 40 per cent. For the first time since 1949, large numbers of mobilized reserve soldiers—who have not been polled in the surveys—will vote at polling places in frontline positions.

Mrs. Meir's address before the Russian-speaking audience was the climax of efforts by both major lists to recruit votes from the nation's single largest ethnic voting bloc. Most of the immigrants, she reminded them, received permission to reach Israel since she took office in 1969.

Mrs. Meir said Sharm el-Sheikh, at the southern tip of the Sinai peninsula, would not be returned to Egypt "or handed over to someone else to guard the Straits of Tiran for us."

At the same time, "the new borders will have to be different," she said, while Likud opposes withdrawal from any of the post-1967 lines.

"If Likud is in the government," Mrs. Meir said, "then it would be a waste to spend the travel fare to Geneva because they won't achieve anything there."

Mrs. Meir said the hard-line opposition, led by Menahem Begin, proved by his resignation from the 1970 government coalition that it would ruin Israel's good relations with the United States. Begin withdrew in opposition to the terms of the prior Middle East cease-fire, fashioned by former U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

subject to a public drawing to be held at the Gray County Court House under the supervision of Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

Explaining the reason for the change in the membership arrangement, Mrs. Arrington said:

"For the first time in the history of the concert association, we are facing a unique situation in that we have more people desiring membership than we are able to accommodate."

"It is the desire of the board of directors that those who have supported the community concerts in the past have first opportunity to obtain memberships for the coming season. So we have decided to set aside the two-week period of Jan. 5-19 in which they may renew their memberships by mail."

The concert association will present four top-notch attractions in the coming season.

Nixon Okays New Health Care Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed a law Saturday which offers families a less costly way of receiving good medical attention from doctors.

The measure provides $250 million in direct subsidies over the next four years to demonstrate the feasibility of a national network of Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO), the formal name for prepaid group health plans.

These are centers where for a single annual fee a family is assured of receiving a year's health care no matter how frequently a doctor's services are required.

Backers believe HMO's promote better health since people no longer need to be wary of the cost of seeing a doctor at the first sign of illness.

The HMO's also have a profit motive to practice preventive medicine—looking after patients when they are well so that they are less apt to become ill.

The chief drawback from the viewpoint of many laymen is that they are not certain to see the same doctor on every visit.

Those HMO's now in existence often are staffed by a large number of specialists so patients on each visit are sent to the doctor best qualified to treat their ailments.

In a statement released here and in San Clemente, Calif., where the bill was signed, Nixon said the HMO method "represents one response to the challenge of finding new and better ways to improve health care for the people of this country."

Caspar Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a White House briefing that on the average families could expect to spend less for their health care under HMO's than they do under the existing system of a fee for every visit to the doctor.

Dr. Charles Edwards, assistant HEO secretary, said HMO's could provide "the continuity of care that a lot of people don't have on today's health scene."

The bill was pushed through Congress by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate health subcommittee. Nixon said it was welcome though "somewhat broader than the administration's proposal."

The measure provides funds for planning studies and the heavy start-up costs for creating HMO's and subsidies to meet deficits for their first three years of operation.

It lists benefits any HMO must offer which go beyond what most now in operation provide. These include preventive dental care for children, treatment for alcohol and drug abuse and "crisis intervention mental health services."

The bill also authorizes loan guarantees for profitable HMO's in "medically underserved" areas. It authorizes HEO to contract for HMO-type health services for Indians and migratory workers.

Nixon said that the national health insurance bill he will submit to Congress next year will allow patients to use their health insurance to join HMO's.

Simon, said the key to avoiding the black markets and administrative troubles that plagued gasoline rationing in World War II is the negotiability of coupons. Motorists who don't need all they get will be able to sell their surplus coupons for whatever price they can command.

Simon announced Friday that the standby rationing plan could take effect by March 1 if needed. He also announced an allocation plan which would give filling stations about 80 per cent of gasoline demand and would, in effect, amount to a "moderate form of rationing," he said.

The question of exemptions and exceptions should be largely settled by the "white market" system under which rationing coupons could be sold or exchanged freely by those who receive them.

The reason for having transferable coupons is to reduce the black market, and avoid having the government

France Hunting Assassins Of Spanish Leader

BORDEAUX, France (UPI) — French police Saturday were trying to track down the four hooded men who told a midnight news conference they were responsible for the Dec. 20 bomb assassination of Spanish Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco.

Newsmen, led blindfolded to a midnight rendezvous in a house near Bordeaux, Saturday heard the four men detail how they allegedly assassinated the second most powerful man in Spain last week.

The men also said they would return to Spain to carry out further attacks.

French police sources said Saturday attempts to track down the four self-proclaimed Basque assassins had been unsuccessful.

The midnight news conference began Friday evening when 20 newsmen, wearing blackened glasses, were taken by unidentified persons to a villa near Bordeaux. The four men sat behind a table decorated with the Basque nationalist flag and told the newsmen they killed Carrero on Dec. 20 "for Basque independence and for socialism."

Carrero, 70, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's number two man, was killed when a violent explosion hurled his limousine over a five-story building.

The men said they not only placed 99 pounds of explosives underneath Claudio Coello street in Madrid, but also another 55 pounds in a car parked along the blast site. The second bomb, they said, apparently failed to go off.

Britons Facing Unemployment

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's unemployment rolls may rise to one million persons by Monday—the start of the emergency three-day work week—as a result of layoffs caused by fuel shortages, industry sources said Saturday.

The economic crisis the government has described as the country's gravest since World War II showed no signs of easing as leaders of Britain's 260,000 coal miners postponed further talks on their overtime ban until next Wednesday.

Government figures published Friday showed 544,000 persons eligible for unemployment benefits have been laid off because of the energy crisis. A Department of Employment spokesman said many others have been put out of work but are not counted because they had their own guaranteed income agreement with employers and were not eligible for government benefits.

Greece Sends Prisoners To Aegean Island

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government Saturday sent a number of political detainees to the prison island of Yura, relatives of those sent there said.

The detainees, numbering more than 30, included former Center Union member of parliament Ioannis Charalambopoulos, 54; left wing trade unionist George Sterghiou, 68; and journalist Nikos Kiasos, 30, relatives said.

They said the detainees, under police guard, were put on a special boat to Yura early Saturday.

The 20-square-mile island in the center of the Aegean, which was used as a site of exile since the time of the Roman Empire, is a treeless, waterless formation of volcanic rock.

Greek authorities built a prison for Communist detainees during the civil war of the late 1940s. The prison, abandoned after the end of the civil war, was re-activated following the military takeover of April, 1967, for the detention of 2,000 alleged Communists.

Yura was closed down in 1969 after the International Red Cross condemned it for not completing the acceptable minimum of requirements as a detention place.

Opposition sources said Greek authorities are also preparing two more detention sites on the islands of Leros and Anafi in the Aegean.

These sources said the government intends to hold Communists on one island, students on the second and other opposition personalities on the third. Detention on the islands will be described as exile or displacement, which the government can order without the intervention of judicial authorities, for persons dangerous to public security.

After the military coup of Nov. 25, which replaced the regime of President George Papadopoulos with an administration under General Phaedon Guzikis, authorities said they released most of the persons arrested during the student riots at Athens Polytechnic.

Government Would Grant Few Coupon Exemptions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal energy official said Saturday the government anticipates granting very few exemptions if gasoline rationing is imposed.

Doctors, clergymen — even congressmen — will have to buy coupons from other drivers if they cannot live within their ration, the official, John Hill, told UPI.

Hill, an assistant to presidential energy adviser William E.

Simon, said the key to avoiding the black markets and administrative troubles that plagued gasoline rationing in World War II is the negotiability of coupons. Motorists who don't need all they get will be able to sell their surplus coupons for whatever price they can command.

Simon announced Friday that the standby rationing plan could take effect by March 1 if needed. He also announced an allocation plan which would give filling stations about 80 per cent of gasoline demand and would, in effect, amount to a "moderate form of rationing," he said.

The question of exemptions and exceptions should be largely settled by the "white market" system under which rationing coupons could be sold or exchanged freely by those who receive them.

The reason for having transferable coupons is to reduce the black market, and avoid having the government make all those distinctions between professional classes," Hill added.

"In World War II, you had to have a large administrative force just deciding special appeals and such."

Hill said "We just really want to take care of health matters and emergencies."

There may be some exemptions or higher allotments of coupons for health or emergency reasons, but not many, he said.

Foreign diplomats will probably get an extra allotment of coupons. They might not speak English well, and car pooling may be difficult, so theirs would be a special burden," Hill said.

Although the rationing plan envisions giving coupons only to licensed drivers 18 and over, Hill said there would be exemptions on a case-by-case basis for younger teenagers who are their family's major breadwinners "or have jobs critical to their support."

IN WESTERN STATES

Minuteman Missile Plan Gains Stormy Opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Air Force plan to test fire Minuteman missiles from a Montana base over five states produced stormy opposition from Western politicians Saturday.

The negative reaction included a statement by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., normally a supporter of Air Force missile operations, who said "I have a serious question in my mind that this is really necessary."

That seemed to raise the possibility the Air Force might not get the congressional approval needed for the tests since Jackson is a high-ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Meantime the Air Force acknowledged Saturday that the missiles can be and are fired from silos at Vandenberg Air Force Base on the California coast that are identical in all major respects to those at Malmstrom AFB outside Great Falls, Mont., where it wants to conduct the operational tests.

The Army also said Saturday it has taken the precaution of evacuating about 1,200 residents of western Utah from their homes on about 200 occasions over the past 13 years when it wanted to conduct overland tests of its short-range Pershing missile. The Air Force has said it plans to evacuate those families living 5.2 miles downrange from the silos chosen for launch.

Jackson said in San Francisco Friday night that "if the fail-safe system (to destroy the missile in flight) is operated, the missile will come down in 100 pound bits and this will be a dangerous thing if it should fall over a populated area."

Sens. Frank Church, a Democrat and James McClure, a Republican, and Gov. Cecil Andrus, all of Idaho, also opposed the tests. McClure said "all alternatives must be explored before anything like this can even be considered."

Andrus said that "the Idaho skies will be raining parts. Chicken Little couldn't be so lucky."

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon said the Air Force plan should go into "the same dubious category as the one-time Defense Department plan to ship nerve gas into Oregon. It's a $27 million exercise to prove what the Air Force already knows."

The Air Force says the main reason for the Minuteman test, called "Giant Patriot," is "to demonstrate its capabilities under the most realistic condition possible." The Vandenberg firings have frequently been criticized as unrealistic.

The crews dismantle the missiles and install a string of explosives to blow them up if they go awry.

In moving the missiles out of their regular silos they also disconnect them from the mechanical and electrical gear that would be used in a real launch.

In the Montana tests, the mechanical and electronic gear would not be touched.

The nuclear warhead would be removed, but the Air Force said it has designed an explosive self-destruct charge that fits in the dummy warhead. Thus the missile itself wouldn't be tampered with.

In the background of the Air Force plan are continuing questions on the reliability of the Minuteman. The Air Force a few years ago put seven seconds of fuel into four Minutemen—just enough to pop them out of their silos. But only one worked successfully, and that simply stoked the fires of criticism.

Venezuela May Seize Oil Firms

CARACAS (UPI) — Early nationalization of foreign oil companies was the subject of speculation Saturday following visits to President Rafael Caldera by the heads of Exxon's and Shell's Venezuelan subsidiaries.

Both Robert Dolph, president of Exxon's Creole Petroleum Corp., and Kenneth Wetherell, president of Shell de Venezuela, told newsmen they were sure there would be a role for the foreign companies to play in the future. They said they made their separate visits to Caldera, who leaves office March 11, to deliver New Year's greetings.

"The relationship between the companies and the governments is changing everywhere in the world and you can't expect that Venezuela will be an exception," said Dolph, who went to the presidential palace Friday night. "It's necessary to carefully study all alternatives."

Speculation about nationalization before 1983, when the current long-term oil leases start to expire, was touched off by a speech this week by Enrique Tejera Paris, a former ambassador to the United States who is expected to assume a high post in the government of President-elect Carlos Andres Perez.

All 12 presidential candidates in the Dec. 9 elections favored nationalizing the industry before 1983, when all oil company facilities revert to the state without compensation with the expiration of the leases. The oil companies have privately said they favor a speed-up in order to clarify their role and to enable them to plan future investments.

Venezuela currently exports 3.1 million barrels a day, virtually its limit. More than half its exports go to the U.S. east coast.

Venezuela on New Year's Day will increase its oil prices to an average of $14.00 per barrel, the highest rate in the world.

Foreign diplomats will probably get an extra allotment of coupons. They might not speak English well, and car pooling may be difficult, so theirs would be a special burden," Hill said.

Although the rationing plan envisions giving coupons only to licensed drivers 18 and over, Hill said there would be exemptions on a case-by-case basis for younger teenagers who are their family's major breadwinners "or have jobs critical to their support."

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon said the Air Force plan should go into "the same dubious category as the one-time Defense Department plan to ship nerve gas into Oregon. It's a $27 million exercise to prove what the Air Force already knows."

Death Tolls For Holiday

By United Press International
The nation headed into a 102-hour New Year's holiday period Saturday with traffic reports almost as notable for lack of travel as for a light number of fatal accidents.

New England states reported traffic very light. Some portions of the Midwest found motorists few and far between, although other sections of the nation, including California and Pennsylvania, found traffic about normal for a Saturday.

But fatal accident reports were low.

A United Press International count at 6 p.m. CST showed 73 traffic deaths throughout the nation.

A breakdown:
Traffic 73
Fire 5
Plane 0
Other 6
Total 84

The National Safety Council on Dec. 22 issued an estimate of 470 to 570 deaths on the highways during the New Year's weekend, saying it took into consideration lower speeds being observed on highways, and lighter traffic because of the gasoline shortages.

In a comparable nonholiday period at the end of December, council statistics showed about 400 deaths could be expected.

Several grocery stores plan to remain open on that date and many service stations and convenience stores also will keep their doors open.

Pampa school students will find their holiday over Wednesday when classes resume, but most college students in town do not have to go back to school until the middle of January.

Community Concert Assn. Opens Membership Drive

Pampa Community Concert Association officials announced yesterday that starting Saturday they will conduct a two-week membership renewal campaign by mail for the 74-75 concert season and at the end of that two-week period, memberships will be opened to a waiting list.

Letters explaining the new membership drive plan will be mailed Wednesday to all current members of the association.

Those wishing to renew will be asked to fill out a form, included with the letter, and return it with a check to Mrs. J. Kirk Duncan, membership secretary, 1101 E. Harvester before 5 p.m. Jan. 29.

After the two-week period, memberships not renewed will be opened to persons on the waiting list.

According to Mrs. William L. Arrington, 1974 drive chairman, if more applications are received that can be filled, names of all applicants will be

The final attraction of the 1974-75 concert season will bring the New York Ballet Ensemble to Pampa for an evening of classical ballet featuring internationally acclaimed stars.

Memberships again will be $12 for adults and $6 for students.

People Need More Power, Temple Says

AUSTIN (UPI) — Initiative, referendum and recall — provisions which would allow Texas voters to write their own laws and fire elected officials — should be included in the new state constitution, Rep. Arthur Temple, D-Diboll, said Saturday.

Temple called a capitol news conference to announce formation of a statewide committee to push for the adoption of the provisions when the legislature sits at a constitutional convention beginning Jan. 8.

"The inclusion of initiative, referendum and recall would immeasurably enhance the ratification of the new constitution," Temple said, referring to the 1974 general election at which the voters will decide whether to accept the constitution to be proposed by the convention.

Would Temper Arrogance
Temple said the inclusion of a recall provision, with which 25 per cent of the electorate could petition for a vote on whether to fire an elected official, "would go a long way to temper the arrogance of politicians today."

Under initiative, Temple said the voters could propose legislation or constitutional amendments by submitting the signatures of 10 per cent of the electorate. A vote would then be taken on the proposals.

Referendum would allow the voters to reject already enacted laws of amendments in approximately the same way as referendum, he said.

None of the provisions are in the 98-year-old Texas Constitution nor in the draft constitution submitted to the convention by the 37-member constitutional revision commission.

Other States Use Little
Presently about 10 states have initiative provisions, 22 have referendum and 13 have recall, Temple said. He said in these states all three have been used "sparingly" through the years.

"Such devices may help to keep constitutions short, a characteristic often described as desirable," Temple said. "That is, by providing the voters with these instruments of direct action, they may be inclined to forego many of the limits on state legislatures which are often stated in the basic document."

"I think it would not only be politically disastrous to the adoption of a new constitution, but also morally and philosophically wrong to ask the citizens of this state to abrogate a great amount of political power to state and local officials without giving them corresponding power in the form of initiative, referendum and recall."

Temple said he will begin organizing a statewide steering committee to push the provisions during the convention. He said he would personally contact every delegate to the convention and personally campaign across the state for the measures.

Palace Denies Romance Tales

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, and Lady Jane Welleley were at Sandringham Saturday, spending the weekend at a royal house party. But Buckingham Palace officials refused to comment on rumors of a romance.

The palace press office refused to give any details, saying it was a private royal party.

The palace has dismissed previous rumors of a romance as "pure speculation" and Lady Jane's father, the Duke of Wellington, denied Friday there were any plans for a royal engagement between his daughter and Prince Charles.

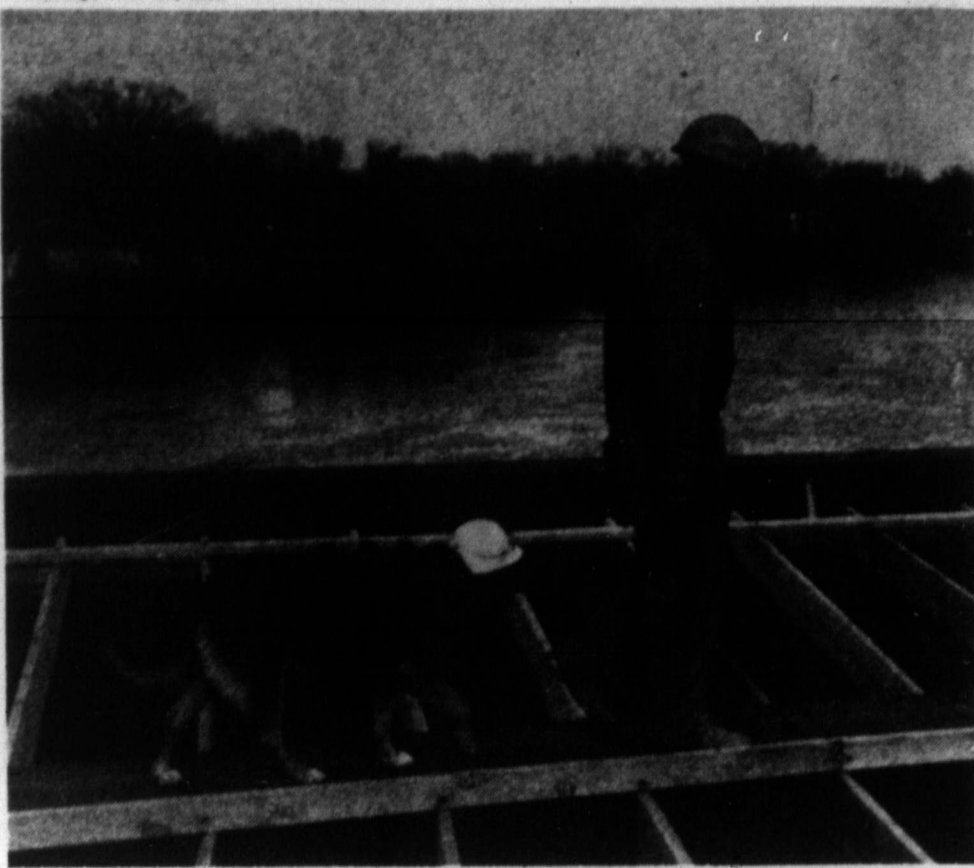

Queen Elizabeth II and her immediate family went to Sandringham, her country estate, Thursday after spending Christmas at Windsor Castle.

Prince Charles was already at Sandringham when Lady Jane, 22, joined the party which will continue over the New Year holiday.

Skylab 3 Crewmen Study Comet Kohoutek's Actions

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 crewmen stepped outside their eight-room orbiting research ship Saturday for the second time in a week, taking a relatively short and simple spacewalk to learn all they can about Comet Kohoutek.

Commander Gerald P. Carr and flight scientist Edward G. Gibson donned their cumbersome spacesuits, opened the ship's hatch at 1:29 a.m. CST and lugged three special cameras outside for 3½ hours of comet photography. Pilot William R. Pogue stayed just inside the lab to keep the instruments pointed precisely.

The pilots depended primarily on thrusting gas instead of the spaceship's two working gyroscopes to get into position for the comet watching, a departure from procedures for the last spacewalk Christmas Day.

Kiwanians Hear Of Russia Trip

Russians like Americans and hate the Germans, C.M. White, markets manager for Cabot Corp. Machinery Division, told Pampa Kiwanians Friday as he reviewed his trip to Russia for Cabot's participation in the Moscow Oil Show.

Russia needs all kinds of U.S. equipment and the United States needs Russian raw materials and oil, he stated.

Intourist, the Russian travel agency, takes care of tourists first class for virtually 24 hours a day.

There is no comparison, though," White said, "between Russian and American first class hotels.

The language, without an interpreter, is a terrific barrier. The food is different, but excellent."

Traffic in Moscow is something else, according to White. The people are well-dressed and friendly.

He said many of the older men he saw on the streets were amputees, pointing up the heavy Russian casualties in World War II.

Explaining his visit to the Russian Oil Exposition, White said Cabot goes where the oil is and in that connection added he was most favorable impressed with Russia's vice premier of energy and the Russian people's great sense of humor.

Gibson spotted the streaking Kohoutek a few minutes after stepping into the void of space and told Pogue to turn off a set of outside lights.

"Holy cow, yeah!" Carried yelled when Gibson pointed Kohoutek out to him. "Oh yeah, beautiful. A very wide, broad tail, but not very long as well as I can see."

The astronauts used the same three cameras that Carr and Pogue aimed at the streaking comet four days ago during their record seven-hour holiday spacewalk.

The two research pilots probably collected the best data man has ever had on a comet during that outside venture, made just as Kohoutek was soaring toward its closest approach to the sun.

The frozen ball of gases and space dust was propelled around the sun by solar gravity and sent back toward its origin in deep space Friday morning.

Flight Director Milton Windler said the decision to use only the ship's gas thrusters to point the comet cameras correctly was made after strain was put on the gyros because of the astronauts' movements during the last spacewalk.

Police Studying Theft, Mischief

Pampa police are investigating one case of theft and another of malicious mischief Friday.

Mrs. Donna McDowell, 431 Warren, reported the theft of two stereo speakers from her car while it was parked in front of her residence.

Larry Hadley, 1017 Huff Rd., told officers a beer bottle had been thrown through the windshield of his automobile while it was parked at his house Thursday night. Damages were estimated at $150.

President Nixon Signs Legislation

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon, spending a quiet weekend at home, brought in top aides Saturday to review some of the legislation on his desk and signed five of the 40-odd bills awaiting action.

The most significant bill Nixon signed Saturday will give the "prepaid" medical care movement a major lift. It authorized $325 million in federal aid for expansion and testing of health maintenance organizations (HMO's) over a five-year period.

Briscoe's Daughter Weds At Mansion

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — More than 1,000 people crowded into a white tent Saturday night to watch Janey Briscoe become the fifth daughter of a Texas governor to be married at the governor's mansion.

Miss Briscoe, 23, exchanged vows with Edward Gibson Vaughan, 25, of Hillsboro, in a 7 p.m. candlelight ceremony in the mansion Rose Garden. Vaughan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Vaughan III of Hillsboro.

Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe hosted 1,000 to 1,500 "close family friends" at a reception in the mansion afterwards. Cake and champagne punch were served — the first time alcoholic beverages have been served at the mansion since Briscoe became governor, according to aides.

Chapel Length Train
The bride wore a long dress with a high collar and long sleeves of French lace over silk satin designed by Oscar De La Renta. The a-line skirt featured a chapel length train and she wore a chapel length veil of Gossamer silk net.

The Rev. Al Cummings of Georgetown, longtime family friend and the minister who baptized all three Briscoe children in the Frio River near Uvalde, officiated.

Earlier, State Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell had said if Texas issued food stamps to the needy after Jan. 1 the state would be liable for any overpayments resulting from a new Social Security program that overlaps state assistance programs.

Rather than risk stiff fines for overpayments, Vowell announced Texas would suspend the food stamp program.

But, Saturday welfare department spokesman Bill Woods said a telephone call from the U.S. Department of "The establishment of HMO's will allow people to select for themselves either a prepaid system for obtaining health services or the more traditional approach which has served the American people so well over the years," Nixon said in a statement.

Nixon spent part of the day meeting with Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and Alexander M. Haig, the White House chief of staff. A presidential spokesman said the meetings were devoted to study of other key bills which Congress passed before adjourning last week.

Topping the list of legislation still awaiting action are measures to increase Social Security benefits by 11 per cent, to provide appropriations of $5.8 billion for foreign aid and $73.7 billion for defense, and to consolidate seven financially ailing northeastern railroads.

A White House spokesman said Nixon also conferred by telephone with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Washington. Reporters were given no clue to the subjects discussed.

In another phone call disclosed Saturday, a presidential spokesman said Nixon had contacted President Johnson's widow on Friday to tell her that he had just signed a bill creating a memorial grove of trees in the Lady Bird Johnson Park along the Potomac River.

During his stay in California, Nixon also planned to work on the State of the Union address which he will send to Congress next month and the White House said speechwriter Ray Price was in San Clemente.

Three other bills signed Saturday by Nixon authorized: — Adjustment of the Central Intelligence Agency's retirement system to conform with protection given other government employees against rapid increases in the cost of living.

— Broadened travel and transportation allowances for military servicemen given consecutive overseas assignments.

— Naming of a new U.S. courthouse in New Orleans for former Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., who was killed in an Alaskan plane crash a year ago.

Nixon also issued an executive order to permit inmates of state prisons to work on projects contracted by the federal government. The order replaced one issued in 1965 by then President Theodore Roosevelt, which prohibited such employment for persons imprisoned in nonfederal facilities.

Commissioners To Consider School Request

Ten items are on the agenda for the Gray County Commissioners' Court when it meets Tuesday in a 9 a.m. session.

Among the items to be considered are a request by the Pampa Independent School District for County Available School Funds distribution, the continuance of the $3,000 residence homestead exemption to persons over 65 years of age for the 1974 tax year and a request for oil and gas mineral lease options of Gray County school lands in Gaines County.

Also to be studied is a request from the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District for $2,000 to secure $3,000 in matching funds from the state for watershed projects and operations (amending the budget).

In other business, the commissioners will consider a request by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission for a resolution approving a water and sewer survey, approval of a bond for the purchase of a public weigher for Precinct 2, approval of continued participation in the county retirement program of those county officials and employees over 70 years of age and the authorization of the County Judge to execute a lease for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office at the Courthouse annex.

In routine business, the commissioners will pay salaries and bills as approved by the County Auditor and consider any time deposits and transfers of funds as may be recommended by the County Auditor.

Woods said an amendment to the Social Security Act, pushed through Congress on the last day before holiday recess, would give state officials six months to crosscheck to be sure there were no overpayments.

"That's what we hear, at least," Woods said. "We haven't seen it (the amendment) yet and I don't know if the President has signed it."

Youth Hospitalized With Gun Wound

A 16-year-old Pampa youth was in good condition yesterday in Highland General Hospital being treated for a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the stomach.

The investigating officer said in his report the victim's mother said the boy had been having trouble with his girl friend. A .25 caliber pistol was believed to have been the weapon used.

FOR 300,000 TEXANS Food Stamps Program Extended Into January

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The 300,000 Texans who have been getting food stamps apparently are going to continue to get them in January after all.

Earlier, State Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell had said if Texas issued food stamps to the needy after Jan. 1 the state would be liable for any overpayments resulting from a new Social Security program that overlaps state assistance programs.

Rather than risk stiff fines for overpayments, Vowell announced Texas would suspend the food stamp program.

But, Saturday welfare department spokesman Bill Woods said a telephone call from the U.S. Department of

PRPC To Get Project Grant

AUSTIN — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has awarded a grant of $9,728 to the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission at Amarillo for the organization of a regional law enforcement civil disorder project.

The money will come from the governor's office, Criminal Justice Division. CJD administers the state's block grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration under the Crime Control Act of 1973.

Funding will provide for the purchase of riot-control equipment including protective wear for officers, chemical agents, various nonlethal weapons and a limited amount of lethal weapons. Riot-control training will also be provided for law enforcement officers in participating agencies.

Four county police agencies and two county sheriffs' departments included in the project will provide a cash match totaling $1,717.

The PRPC award was among $2.4 million of $3,766,578, considered by the CJD Executive Committee at its Dec. 14 meeting.

Born April 28, 1908 at Decatur, she was the widow of John Wesley Passons, who died Dec. 8, 1971. She was a member of the Faith Church of the Nazarene.

Survivors other than her daughter include six sons, James Floyd, Amarillo; Kenneth Earl, Glendon, Calif.; John Wesley, Jr., Grand Prairie; Billy, Amarillo; Leroy, Shamrock, and Dennis Malcolm, Minneapolis, Minn.; a brother, Fred Lamb, Rockwall; a sister, Mrs. Edna Harrison, Wiley; 17 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH
Now that we've all turned our thermostats back six or more degrees (as requested by the President), many of us are beginning to understand why the English customarily wear sweaters in the house.

Perhaps — understanding as we now do the logic behind that idea — it's time we adopted another cold weather trick from the British Isles: the trick of stoking our bodies with some of the solid dishes that sustain the natives of England through that nation's bone-chilling winters.

Robies. How well I remember smacking my lips over some of those dishes in London, during the dead of winter, some six or seven years ago!

First, You Get Your Suet

According to another devotee of British meat puddings, Bill Johnston, you can buy beef kidneys — with the fat still on — at frozen-food locker plants for practically nothing. Then again, for a somewhat higher price, you can pick up the same thing at most meat markets.

Kidneys have traditionally fat... and discard any specks and blotches of blood at the same time, or the fat will spoil.

Chop your suet fairly fine and mix it with a little flour so it won't stick together in a mass. You can then store the fat in the refrigerator (where it'll keep for months) and use it as needed in the following recipes.

Suet Mix for Puddings

To prepare the basic foundation for some memorable suet dishes mix together one and a half cups of the cleaned fat, two cups of flour and salt to taste. Combine these ingredients with enough cold water to form a stiff dough. The results will serve as the base for several different puddings.

Steak and Kidney Pudding

Moisten one batch of your basic suet mix until you have a dough that can be rolled. Then line a small bowl with a cloth table napkin sprinkled with a little flour. (Leave the corners of the lining outside the dish. They'll be tied later.) Roll out the pastry until it fits the lined container and be sure to save a piece for a lid.

Now fill the crust with alternative layers of sliced onion, lean beef (you'll need one-half pound cut into half-inch pieces) and well-cleaned kidney (again, one-half pound cut small). Sprinkle these ingredients with salt and pepper and add a little water to make gravy.

Top the pudding with its dough lid and pinch the edges together to seal them exactly as you would if you were making a pie.

Finally, gather up the corners of the napkin and tie them tightly with a piece of string. Remove the pudding from the bowl, cloth and all, and set the whole business in boiling water that is deep enough to cover your creation. Boil it steadily for three hours, making sure the bag stays submerged. Unwrap the finished product and serve it hot.

Leftovers, you'll find, are good when fried the next day.

Bacon Pudding

Moisten the basic mix with cold water and roll it into a rectangle about an half an inch thick. Lay slices of bacon on the dough and sprinkle the meat with sage, salt, pepper and a little onion. Then roll the pudding up like a jelly roll. Spread out a table napkin and dust it with flour. Lay the filled dough in the center and fold the edge of the cloth nearest you over the pudding. Turn up the sides, roll the whole mass into a package and fasten down the top edge with safety pins.

Place the bundle into a saucepan of boiling water and cook it for about an hour and a half. Serve the pudding in one-inch slices... or let it cool and fry it the next day.

Suet Dumplings

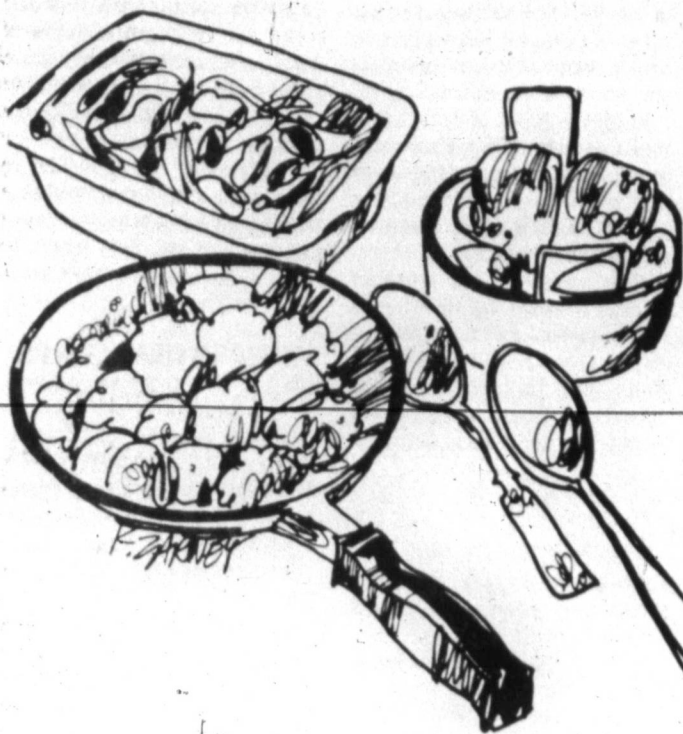

Moisten your basic mix and roll it into balls which you'll boil like regular dumplings. The result will be solid rather than fluffy and won't break up as the breadlike version often does.

Plain Suet Patties

Make chopped suet into cakes shaped like hamburgers and cook them in boiling water for 15 minutes. The patties can be eaten with jam or honey.

There's nothing dainty about suet dishes... that's for sure. That's also their special virtue when you're looking for stick-to-the-ribs meals to get you through this long, cold winter.

If you're looking for more inexpensive, yet filling, meals, Mother Earth News can help. Ask for Reprint No. 126, "Cheap Meat." Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mother Earth News in care of Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Well, it just so happens that a goodly number of those recipes are based on something that few Americans have ever willingly eaten: Suet. The hard fat found around beef kidneys. The stuff that we (sometimes) feed to birds in this country.

More's the pity. Suet, is held in much higher regard on the other side of the Atlantic, is a primary — and entirely necessary — ingredient in the hearty meat puddings with which the British ward off terminal cases of the Cold been sold as "pet food" in the United States... but, as the price of "real" edibles continues to inch up, I imagine that more and more people will discover the delights of English meat pudding dishes. Which, in turn, is sure to push the cost of kidneys and suet up too. Better get in on this low-cost eating idea while the getting is still good!

Make sure your suet is clean, fresh, and free of membranes. Remove any stringy tissue (membranes) as you cut up the

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A number of prime time television series deserve an end-of-the-year nod for accomplishing the difficult task of providing lively entertainment on a weekly basis.

"Gunsmoke" is one such entry. The remarkable long-lasting Western is a rock-solid, superior example of professional craftsmanship.

"All in the Family" is another all-around winner, a rare combination of nerve, ideas, quality and popular appeal. "The Waltons," meanwhile, has shown that there is a place for gentleness on commercial television, and, in its own way, has also demonstrated nerve by sticking to its values.

"Maude" is abrasive and aggressive, but, like "All in the Family," has conviction in its comedy approach, and that's what really socks the show across.

"Police Story" tells its law enforcement tales with more gritty and human realism than is usually found in such series on the home screen.

And "Love Story" has been a fine idea with its tales of contemporary romance. "They Get Better and Better" "The Odd Couple" is simply good, light comedy entertainment with a pair of excellent farceurs in Tony Randall and Jack Klugman—and they seem to get better and better as a duo the longer they work together.

"Kung Fu" is an engagingly offbeat Western, going against the grain of traditional oaters with its peace-seeking fugitive hero who is a Buddhist. "Cannon" and "Barnaby Jones" are private eye series that are amiable escapism—and proof that the better fictional detectives are usually not pretty boys. William Conrad is the rotund Cannon and Buddy Ebsen the folksy Jones.

"Sanford and Son" is a showcase for the ingratiating and wily talents of the gifted veteran comedian Redd Foxx, whose mastery of timing makes him a formidable actor. "The Walt Disney hour continues to be a reliable television oasis of programming that pleases youngsters as well as parents who would like more shows in a "family" vein.

Expert Comedy Performers
Lucille Ball and Dick Van Dyke have series whose episodes do not always have a secure premise, but the two stars are such expert comedy performers that to watch them is a pleasure—and a lesson in show business know-how.

And then there is Carol Burnett's variety program, which displays an unusual consistency of enjoyable humor and music.

There are several "Movie of the Week" anthologies offering various kinds of teleplays, and the surprising thing is that a reasonable number of these stories are worth a look.

Then, of course, there are video's regular motion picture series.

Mary Tyler Moore and Bob Newhart have shows that are cleverly constructed. And there have been other lively weekly entries such as "Room 22" and "Adam's Rib."

Television also has quite a few occasional series, and among the best of these is "Columbo," which stars Peter Falk as another fictional detective who looks as though he's had his face pushed in now and then. Is anyone interested in pretty-boy heroes any more?

Radar Car
NEW YORK (UPI) — James Bond's Aston Martin was equipped for almost every occasion, but now scientists at the Sperry Research Center have come up with the radar-equipped automobile.

The ultimate in defense driving, the car with its low-power radar system attached to the nose, can detect impending collisions. This system then activates protective air bags, which soon may be mandatory.

Known as the BARBI sensor, it can determine an imminent collision more than 10 feet in front of a moving vehicle—allowing enough time to inflate an air bag even at speeds over 30 mph.

Home for Swans

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (UPI) — Trumpeter swans, a rare species once facing extinction, have migrated from the southern Alaskan coast to Shoemaker Bay, a refuge across the Alberni Inlet on Canada's West Coast, for the past 40 years.

As nearly 200 trumpeter swans and 46 other bird species begin arriving at the bay this year, they will find themselves in a newly created 80-acre sanctuary set up by MacMillan Bloedel, Canada's largest forest products company.

The company plans to establish public parking and observation sites at the refuge so residents of Port Alberni and vicinity can watch the swans during the winter.

Save Energy

NEW YORK (UPI) — To save energy, do not overload your refrigerator with a lot of warm food at one time.

Rotate the foods as you store them so that you place in the front and use the items that have been in the unit longest.

Local Woman Selected For 'Who's Who'

Mrs. Walter (Nina) Spoonemore, 1200 Hamilton, recently received notice she had been selected to appear in the 1973-74 edition of "Who's Who in Texas," a compilation of biographical information on outstanding citizens of the state.

The annual volume will be filed in libraries throughout the state, in the Texas Archives and in the Library of Congress.

Mrs. Spoonemore came to Pampa in 1935 when her husband, a rig-building contractor who passed away in January, 1973, moved here from the East Texas oil fields. She has since developed an active role in civic affairs in Pampa for many years.

She has held various government positions after beginning her career as a secretary at the Pampa Army Air Field in 1942. She later transferred to the Office of Price Administration and Rationing Board, where she supervised Gray, Roberts, Hemphill and Wheeler Counties.

She has also served as director of Gray County Welfare Department for nine years. She is presently employed by the Texas State Department of Public Welfare as a financial services worker, which she has held since 1963.

Mrs. Spoonemore attended the President's Conference on Employment of the Handicapped by special White House invitation in May, 1973.

Cited as "Citizen of the Week" this year by Radio Station KPND, she was presented honorary Air Force Cadet Wings by the Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Assn. at a meeting earlier this year.

MRS. NINA SPOONEMORE

She has also received honorable mention for oil painting in The Forty Best of the Southwest Art Exhibit at Amarillo in 1970.

Mrs. Spoonemore is a member of the First United Methodist Church and served on its official board for four years. She was a charter member of the American Cancer Society, Gray County Chapter, and was recently presented an award for 20 years of service of its board of directors.

A member of the Chamber of Commerce since 1955, she is also a charter member of the Texas Society on Aging, serving on the board of governors for four years. She is a founding member and secretary of the Gray County Genealogical Society.

Other activities include membership in the Panhandle District of Texas Public Employees Assn. (chapter president in 1970-71), American Business Women's Assn., Pampa Fine Arts Assn. (charter member), and Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Assn. (charter member and current first vice president).

Spoonemore, Spearman, Mrs. Bernice Tew Tyler, Mrs. Jaunita Covington Corpus Christi, Mrs. Maxine Phillips, Amarillo, and Mitchell M. Spoonemore, Vista, Calif. She also has several grandchildren.

Women Sharing Veteran Status

Women comprise 1.9 per cent of the nation's 29 million veterans, the Veterans Administration reported today. The figure includes 8,500 separated from military service in fiscal year 1973.

VA Regional Office Director Jack Coker said there are 542,000 women veterans, 305,000 of whom are credited with World War II service. Nurses who served during the Spanish-American War and World War I women veterans total 15,000. Vietnam-era women veterans numbered 91,000 through June 30, 1973.

During World War I, women served as military nurses. Navy Yeoman Marines.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Pros And Cons Of Impeachment

Both the supporters of Richard Nixon and those who believe him no longer fit to govern the country seem to be uniting on a common theme.

It is that impeachment of the President, rather than his resignation, may be the wisest and most proper way to resolve the continuing Watergate crisis.

Either impeach the man or get off his back, says Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, a sentiment no doubt shared by many Americans who are confident that a trial of the President on the available evidence would result in his vindication once and for all.

Impeachment is recommended for a different reason by others who are convinced either of the President's guilt in Watergate or of a variety of other breaches of faith with the Constitution and the people. It has perhaps been best expressed by columnist Tom Wicker:

Resignation would in no way resolve the question of Mr. Nixon's guilt or innocence, he says. It would not even leave a clear sense of what the charges were, or should have been; and while resignation would remove him from office, it would not necessarily terminate his case.

Many supporters of the President are convinced that his troubles stem in large part from a determination by the political left and the press to get him out of office. A forced resignation would feed this conspiracy theory for years to come.

Lending impetus to demands for the President's resignation, however, is the fear that the nation could not endure the uncertainty of the impeachment process that could take months, with accompanying paralysis of the government. In a very real way, impeachment might be a national trauma more rending than the death or even assassination of a president.

The answer given to this is that if the nation is in that bad a shape, if it cannot employ constitutional process to meet this crisis of constitutional government, then Mr. Nixon's resignation would not be of much help to it.

A more persuasive argument in favor of resignation is the feeling that the time is not yet ripe for impeachment — but how is the administration to function in the meantime in the state of disarray it is in, lacking the public trust and confidence that it does?

The President's resignation would at least spare the country a prolongation of this situation and enable his successor immediately to take up the reins of government and initiate a much-needed healing of wounds.

It is clear that the nation must soon choose one course or the other, and one thing is certain, whatever the future holds, whether it comes to impeachment or resignation, millions of Americans are going to be unhappy with either one.

Whether the President leaves office voluntarily or involuntarily, or whether he is cleared of all charges by the Senate and is permitted to finish his term, a residue of doubt, suspicion, bitterness and distrust will remain that will remain that could poison the American political process for the next generation.

It is a distressing commentary on the condition of these United States in 1973 that such thoughts and fears are active in the minds of Americans.

But despite what the man in the White House keeps telling himself, the ordeal of Richard Nixon, and of America, is not just going to go away.

Value Of Skepticism

Something that radio does very well is the man-in-the-street type of interview. When you hear Joe Lunchbucket and Sadie Housewife vocalize their opinions, you find out what communication is all about. As a sample, one station broadcast the reaction of a woman to the energy crisis. The announcer asked her what she thought about it. "I don't know what to think," she replied. "I haven't heard one sensible solution yet."

We don't know whether that one straw in the wind signifies a direction or not. An impression is growing on us that people aren't going to be easily hoodwinked on gasoline rationing and other attempts to immobilize the population.

Even fewer, we believe, will fall for the parking tax imposed by the Environmental Protection Agency. Perhaps with a lot of expensive ballyhoo, the proposers of such controls will accomplish whatever ultimate objective they have in mind. But they will have to work at it. A certain amount of public skepticism — if it doesn't swing too far — is a safety factor. Nobody was ever hurt by being just a little hard to convince. The woman on the radio was asking to see some proof.

Teddy Kennedy accusing Nixon of trying to hide the facts from the public is like a goose telling a bird dog that he walks funny.

Enigmatic Sheikhs Of Araby Put Heavy Pressure On U. S.

By WILLIAM R. RUSHER

In somewhat similar fashion — unexpectedly, dramatically — with an unsettling air of authority — the sheikhs of Araby strode this autumn into the consciousness of the American people as a whole. Suddenly we learned that America in part, and our European and Japanese allies in far greater part, are dependent on the vast reserves of oil controlled by these princes of the Middle Eastern desert. Whether we ride and fly or walk, whether we stay warm in winter or freeze, depends in substantial measure on these powerful, remote and enigmatic men.

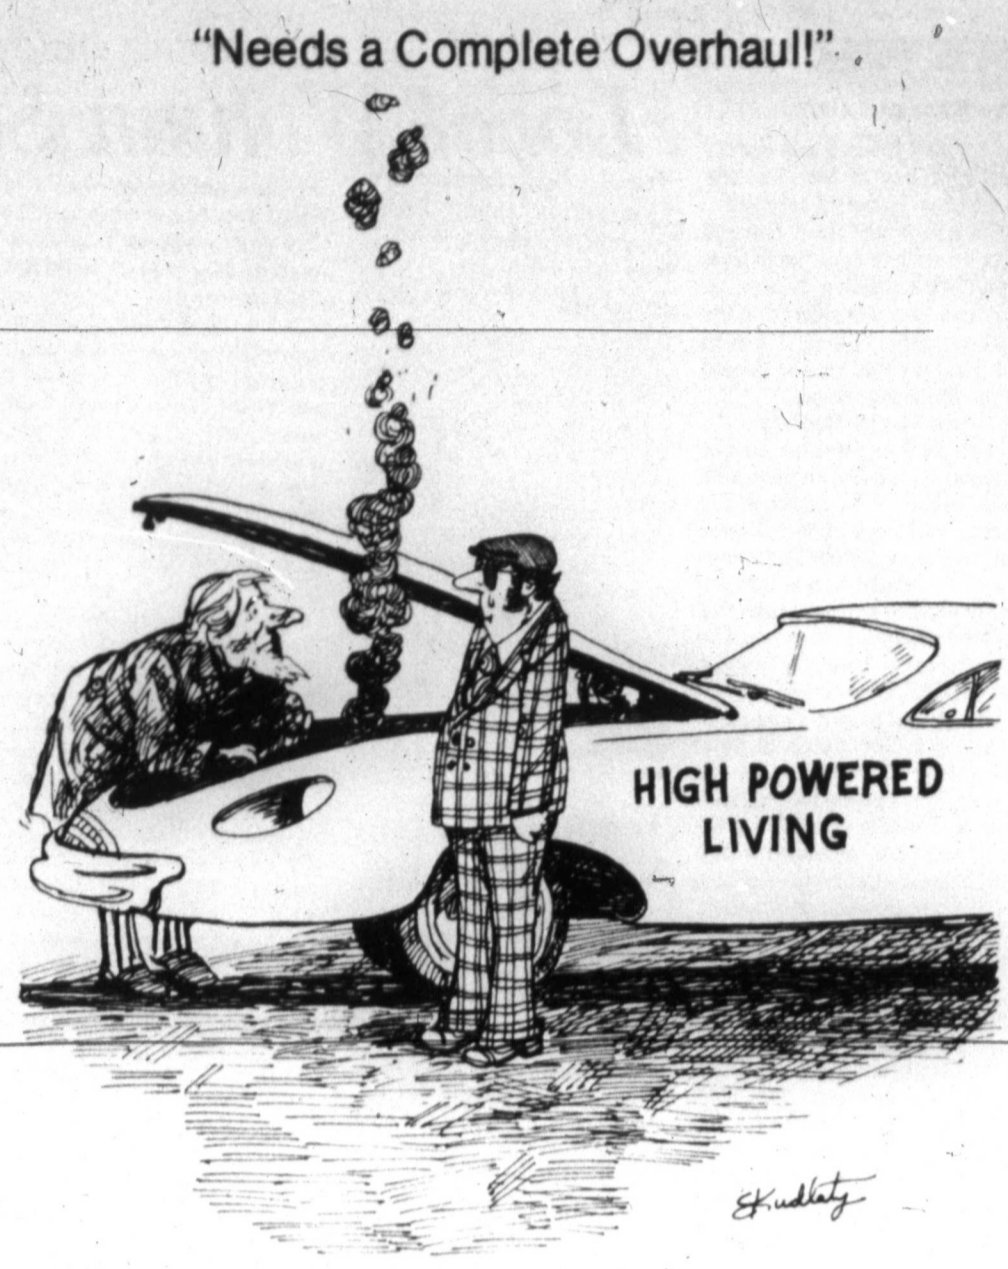

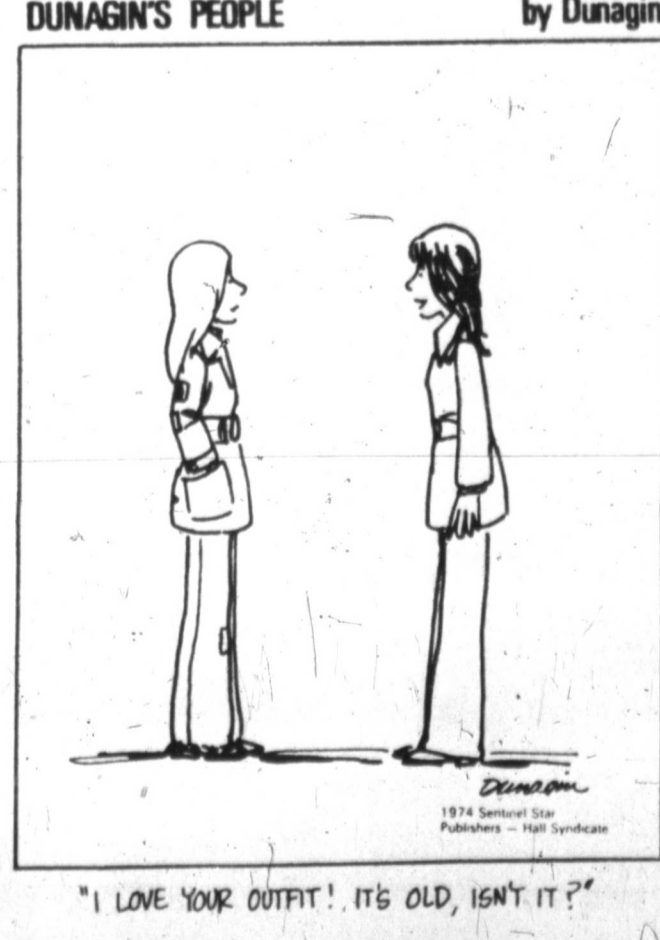

What are they like? In many ways they are harder to understand than the peoples of the notoriously inscrutable East. The typical Chinese, at any rate, has always seemed to me to have many thoroughly American characteristics: A great sense of humor, a love of family feasts, and a work ethic that only history and geography prevent us from calling puritan. And surely the average Japanese businessman, for all the Oriental subtleties that lurk behind his smile, would feel quite at home at a Rotary lunch. The sheikhs are something else again.

Perhaps first and foremost we had better learn that these are deeply religious men. The word "fanatical" is tempting, but from what elevation of thought or sentiment do you and I presume to prescribe the proper degree of intensity for someone else's religious convictions?

Out of the burning deserts, near the end of the sixth century, came a great religious teacher, Mohammed, whose monotheistic belief in God, or Allah, caught fire among the nomadic tribes and Arab settlements of the Middle East and welded them, for a time, into a crusading and all-conquering faith. Under the green silk banners of the new religion, its believers swept westward along the whole coast of North Africa, then north across Spain and over the Pyrenees into France. If the Franks had not stopped them in 732 A.D. in the Battle of Tours, you and I might be saying our prayers in Arabic five times a day, kneeling and bowing in the direction of Mecca.

We should also remember that, rightly or not, these sheikhs and the many millions they lead consider that their Palestinian/co-religionists have been gravely wronged by Israel — and by the United States, as Israel's chief supporter and supplier. The dispute is thus not only territorial but, at bottom, religious; and as the tragic case of Northern Ireland illustrates, there are no enmities more profound than religious ones.

Nixon now has an air-conditioned fireplace at Camp David. Maybe he recalls the FDR strategy and plans to give us fireside chats next summer.

'Early Warning System' Cuts Down Fuel-Shortage Jobless

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — How many fuel-shortage jobless are there? How can they be freed from the fright of unemployment and the dark visions of a 1930-depression nightmare? Will $2 billion really help retrain those bumped from steady income by the energy crunch? Can a 1933-type public employment program, not leaf-raking, but in jobs as sanitation workers, hospital help, etc., absorb them?

All these questions and more were on the table along with a swiftly improvised breakfast of scrambled eggs, ham, muffins and coffee early Wednesday morning in Secretary of Labor Pete Brennan's office as he played host to Vice President Jerry Ford.

While most of the District and suburbs slept through the slush, the Vice President and two key aides drove to the Labor Dept., got there by 7:30 a.m. (an hour after Brennan's super-executive secretary Joan Hall had made certain there'd be a hearty repast) and plunged into a two-hour review of the problems and workings of Brennan's huge operation.

For the few insiders who knew of this unreported session, there was considerable national significance. The quiet conference was evidence of President Nixon's decision to give Ford considerable command decision authority on the domestic front. One of Ford's priorities is energy crunch unemployment.

Further, both the President and Vice President were turning over to Pete Brennan the actual operational responsibility for jobless prevention. There is no doubt of their confidence in the No. 1 hard hat.

On Monday morning in the Oval Room Dick Nixon had made that clear to Pete. As I gathered it from Brennan after that session, the President instructed him to work with labor and management to prevent or shorten layoffs.

"The President asked me to keep in touch with both sides and I have," Brennan said.

There have been a series of meetings between Brennan and the leaders of airline unions, pilots, Teamsters (Frank Fitzsimmons) and maritime workers, soon to be followed with hard-nosed talks with construction union chiefs.

To get action instead of rhetoric, Brennan and his under secretary Richard Schubert, who has a passion for self-made anonymity, have set up an "early warning system."

This is based on the department's network of 2,400 federal and state employment service offices. These are in 10 Labor Dept. regions. They feed information into a pipeline which flows from the neighborhoods to the department's Energy Coordinating Committee, which analyzes the data and signals and passes it on, through Brennan, to the Special Economic Impact Office — a section of Bill Simon's new Federal Energy Office.

This "early warning system" should give the Labor Dept. — and thus the fuel distribution

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Lindsay Will Bow Out As Mayor Of New York

By VIC GOLD

It's been a bad political year, all right, but there are signs that things may be looking up. Small straws in the wind. Not enough to move Henry Kissinger into declaring 1974 the Year of America, but hopeful portents nonetheless.

In my old hometown of New Orleans, little more than two weeks ago, the voters, as a Christmas gift to the lady of justice, threw District Attorney Jim Garrison out of office. Scratch one demagogue and folk hero of the radical kooks who thrive off revising the history of the John F. Kennedy assassination to suit their ideological bias.

Garrison will officially leave office in March. But his good news on other political fronts scheduled to take place before then. For openers, this coming Tuesday, at the stroke of midnight, Abe Beame will be sworn in as mayor of the nation's biggest urban disaster.

New York's new mayor, these cynics predict, isn't simply going to run a caretaker government. Undertaker would be more like it. But there are those optimists who view that inaugural ceremony in Manhattan New Year's morning in a more sanguine light.

Indeed, from the vantage point of a frequent visitor to New York who, despite the crime, smog, traffic and sleaze, still likes the city, I say the coming of Abe Beame is a fine omen as omens go these days. Any year that begins with the departure of John Vliet Lindsay from high office isn't going to be all bad.

It's been eight years since Ersatz John, the imitation Kennedy, swept into New York City's mayoralty on the strength of blazing white teeth and the beguiling Madison avenue slogan. "He is fresh and the others are tired."

He was fresh all right. Lindsay, in fact, was the paradigm of a new breed of telegenic urban demagogue that mouths platitudes aimed at a constituency patronizingly called "the young, the black and the poor."

Whether New York City's problems were solvable when Lindsay first took office is now beside the point. No one disputes the fact that he inherited a city government in deep trouble. But then, no one promised him a rose garden when he went after the job. On the contrary, it was Lindsay who held out promise that he had all the answers.

All problems are solvable, insist the new breed demagogues, given only "charismatic" leadership and huge government spending. Thus, Lindsay walked Harlem in shirt-sleeves and rolled out the rhetoric — television cameras ever present. He increased the municipal budget by quantum fiscal leaps, and called on Albany and Washington for more money. When all this failed, he informed those who had elected him that the only way he could provide a solution was by running for President himself.

New Year's Day, 1974, the cameras will be gone, along with the echoes of all the rhetoric. But the problems of New York City persist, worse than ever. And now that the city is buried in fiscal problems, the bookkeeper — one of those "tired" men which fresh John Lindsay defeated eight years ago — is coming in to pick up the pieces.

Legacy of a new breed demagogue. Goodbye, John Lindsay, may your tribe decrease. And good luck, Nebbish Abe Beame. True, your showbiz appeal may register .002 on Earl Wilson's scale of 10. But if there's anything those of us who like New York City should have learned these past eight years, it's that an ounce of bookkeeping may be worth an ton of charisma.

Rearview Mirror

By TEX DEWESE
Editor Of The News

MANY WERE saddened by the devastating fire that swept through the sanctuary of First Baptist Church here last Sunday night.

Coming at the height of the Christmas holiday season made the shock even greater.

But knowing Pampa Baptists as we do, they will lose no time in going ahead with plans to build an even more beautiful and serviceable edifice.

In fact, a group of churchmen met the day after Christmas and began formulating ways and means of reconstructing the church to its place in Pampa's religious community.

Fortunately, the work of Pampa firemen kept the flames from spreading to the educational buildings and Fellowship Hall where regular church activities will be carried on until the sanctuary is rebuilt.

BEFORE GETTING too far down in the dumps let's cheer up a bit, now, and look with optimism as we see that diaper-clad young fellow 1974 coming down the road full of vim and vigor to take over come tomorrow night.

He says anybody who thinks next Dec. 25 isn't going to be a wonderful Christmas, like those we used to have, is full of baloney and should be ushered to the city limits with a no-return ticket.

Let's hope he is as right as he can be. Let's all make a New Year's resolution to do our very best to prove he is right and that those conducting the mid-type of joy-killing that's going on across the country today will be forced to fold their tents and silently sink off into the night.

AND NOW we'll end the Rearview Mirror year of 1973 on a happy note.

It's a story about a letter received by Mayor R.D. Wilkerson from an Amarillo woman. She and her husband started on an auto trip from Amarillo to Minnesota. Their car broke down after dark in Pampa-Garages repair shops; etc., were closed. However, someone gave them the name of the owner of a certain auto repair shop on E. Brown St. He was contacted, listened to their predicament and promptly came down, opened up, made the necessary repairs and sent Mr. and Mrs. Howard Steeden, 1919 Currie Ln., Amarillo, happily on their way.

"We feel you and your city," Mrs. Steeden wrote to the Mayor, "should know how pleased we were with the honest and thoughtful service rendered by this most accommodating young man."

ALL THAT'S left now is the sincere wish that you have a happy New Year and that Christmas 1974 will be the best ever.

Today is Sunday, Dec. 30, the 364th day of 1973 with one to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Mercury. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn. British novelist Rudyard Kipling was born Dec. 30, 1865.

On this day in history:
In 1853, the United States bought some 45,000 square miles of land south of the Gila River from Mexico for $10 million. It now is the southern areas of Arizona and New Mexico.

—Mrs. R.Y.D.
ANSWER—You are certainly correct, and we have suggested this several times, but it deserves repeating. Plumbers are not usually awarded gold medals for speed, even though in an emergency most of them will get there as soon as possible. A ruptured pipe or water heater can defy the efforts of the best organized mop and bucket brigade, so every member of your family should know what to do in such an emergency.

The water supply to every home includes a valve that can be closed to shut off the water to the entire house. There is no set rule as to the location of these valves, although they are usually close to the point where the pipe enters the house.

In the colder climates, these valves are frequently located in the cellar. The water meter may be there also to protect from freezing.

These valves are often located inside attached garages or utility rooms, although this location is most often found in homes built on a concrete slab.

In some instances, particularly where freezing is not a serious threat, the valve may be located on the outside of the house, close to the building wall. It may be in a covered pit, or even exposed.

In many communities, water meters are located inside a metal enclosure near the curb so as to be more accessible to meter readers. There is always a valve in the line on the street side of the meter. This valve is the property of the utility company, but you can always operate it in an emergency.

A special wrench is required for turning the valve, and you can either buy or make one. The homemade variety consists of two pieces of three-quarter-inch pipe, one piece about 30

THE HOUSE DOCTOR

Know How To Turn Off Water

By HERMAN BAUM
Dear House Doctor:

A water heater in a neighbor's house sprung a leak. Only the wife was home and she did not know how to turn off the water. Before the plumber arrived, the entire first floor was covered with water and the hardwood floors warped so badly that much of them had to be replaced. Every occupant of the home should know how to turn off the water supply to prevent such a catastrophe.

ANSWER—You can test the paint on the outside of your house by applying a spot of the older type benzol paint remover. This will soften oil paint but it has no effect on latex paint.

Damaged Floor
Dear House Doctor:
There is a marble floor in the inches long, and the other about half this length. The two are connected by a 90-degree elbow. A notch is cut in the end of the longer piece to fit over the valve stem.

All valves have a tendency to become difficult to turn if they are not used. It is recommended

Fuel Conservation
Dear House Doctor:

To conserve fuel this winter, we would like to do something about the disappearing stair in our home. The attic is covered with six inches of blown-in insulation.

ANSWER—The plywood panel that seals the opening is very thin and there is heat loss through it. Cover the upper surface with insulating blankets, tacked in place. It is also a good idea to place weatherstripping around the edges of the opening.

More on Fuel Conservation
Dear House Doctor:
Our home has aluminum casement windows that crank open from the inside. Does anyone make storm windows for these that will help conserve fuel this winter?

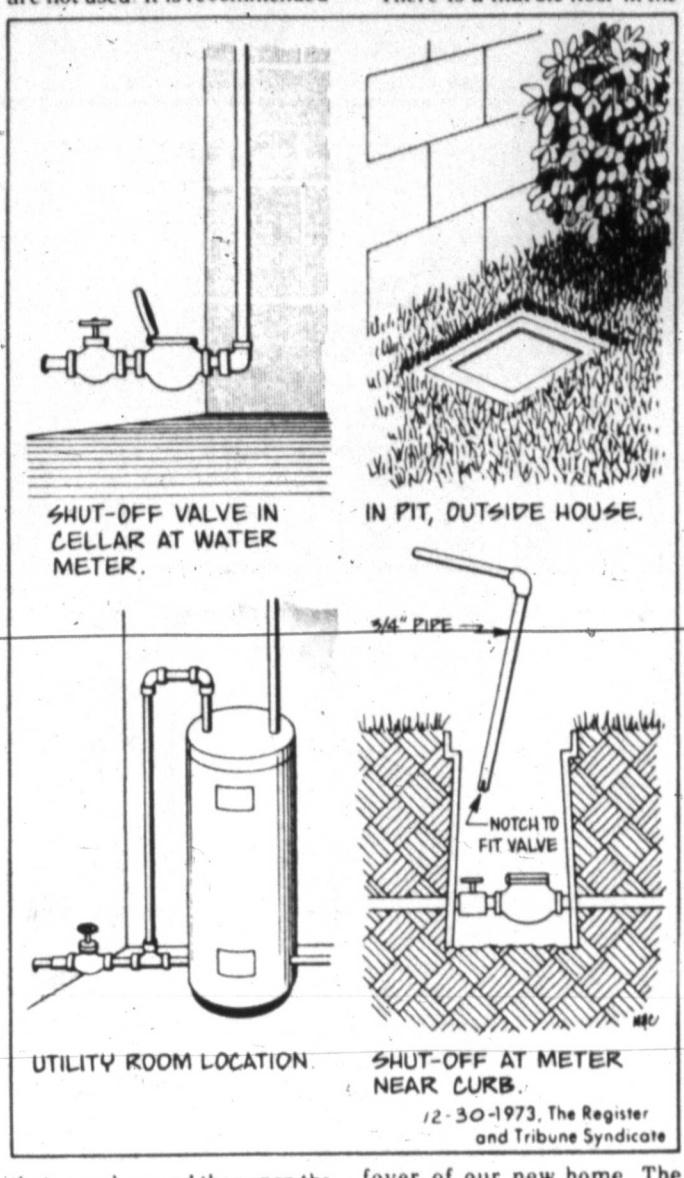

ANSWER—Most cities have concerns that will make storm windows for casement windows. These replace the screens on the inside of the windows. They are covered with a heavy grade of clear plastic.

Hardware stores sell aluminum extrusions that you can use to make your own storm windows, but I have never been able to find at retail the heavier and more practical aluminum material that these window companies use.

To Paint Knotty Pine
Dear House Doctor:
There is knotty pine in the den of the home we bought. We think it was treated with a sealer. We would like to paint the walls with a semi-gloss enamel. Must we remove the sealer first?

ANSWER—A sealer penetrates into the surface and cannot be removed. Enamel does not adhere well over some sealers. All that I can suggest is that you experiment on a small area first to determine if the enamel holds.

that you close and then open the valve in your home every six months so that it will operate easily when needed.

layer of our new home. The movers stained it with mud when they moved us in. We tried to remove the mud with acid and this cut ridges in the marble. Must we cover the floor with carpet?

Rusting Nails
Dear House Doctor:
I am planning on cleaning the outside of my house. What do I do about the rusting nails that are showing through the old paint?

ANSWER—I cannot promise this as a sure cure, but consult a terrazzo flooring company. They have equipment that could grind and resurface the marble.

Youth Center Report

Swim Lessons — The Center's swim lesson program is a unique one in that the program is taught the year round. The swimming pool is indoors and is heated so it provides a place whereby we can offer swim lessons the year round.

Listed below is the new swim lesson schedule for 1974 beginning in January. All lessons are taught in the afternoons after school is out either from 4-5 or 5-6 p.m.

Classes meet on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for 10 meeting dates. Each class is taught by our resident Water Safety Instructor, Ruth Carter. She has been our instructor for several years and is one of the best teachers in the Panhandle area.

Classes are offered free to Youth Center members as a part of the membership or if you are a non-member the cost is $4 for 10 lessons. Youth Center memberships are always available for purchase.

Dolphin Swim Team — The Center has not publicized this much, but we do have a swim team for young boys and girls who are interested in competitive swimming. If you are 8-18 years of age and know how to swim, you are invited to join the Dolphin Swim Club.

The Club works out each Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 6-7 p.m. and at other times when scheduled. They attend several weekend meets during the school year which are usually on Saturdays and Sundays. No swim lessons are given on the swim club, but instruction is given on how to swim the various strokes.

If you are interested in joining or learning more about this competitive swim club, drop by the Center some workout day and talk to Malcolm Douglas or Mrs. Ruth Steger.

Holiday Schedule — With school being out we will open more hours to the young people will have a place to play. Most days we will be open from 1-5 and 7-10 except Monday, Dec. 31, when we will close at 5 p.m.

To make sure of the Center's open hours, just call the front desk and ask for the schedule for that particular day. We will be closed New Years Day.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — I've been asked by Roll Call, the Capitol Hill weekly, to take part in a poll to pick the 10 top congressional news stories of 1973.

Here are my nominations:
1. Congressional leaders set Oct. 15 as target date for adjournment.

(The importance of this story may not be readily apparent to persons unversed in the ways of Congress. For their benefit let me explain that setting Oct. 15 as the target date is the only way Congress manages to adjourn by Christmas.)

(Without the Oct. 15 target date, the 1973 session would have slopped over into the first couple of months of 1974, compounding the confusion caused by the mid-winter return to Daylight Saving Time.)

2. U.S. Senate loses its chief presiding officer as Spiro Agnew resigns to avoid going on trial and possibly to jail.

(To appreciate the importance of this story one must realize that the vice president casts the deciding vote when a Senate rollcall ends in a tie.)

(With Agnew out, the Senate had no way of breaking ties until his successor was appointed and confirmed.)

3. Appointment of Agnew's successor delayed as top choices vow they would go to jail to avoid presiding over Senate.

4. Nixon conducts search on Capitol Hill to find loyal supporter as Agnew's successor. GOP members of Congress refuse to rat on each other publicly but several give White House secret lists containing the names of suspected Nixon-ophiles.

5. Major scandal rocks House of Representatives as GOP leader Jerry Ford pleads guilty to being loyal Nixon supporter. He resigns congressional seat and is sentenced to serve three years as vice president.

Worry Clinic

Henry wonders how long the stutter complex will enslave its victim. Note my stuttering right hand re the coffee cup at a banquet! It started in 1938, in Brooklyn and often reappears. So I use that "Stutter Triangle" to free myself from it!

CASE Z-512: Henry G., aged 22, is the medical student who had been afflicted with functional stuttering since the 4th grade.

"Dr. Crane," he told me several months later, "nobody else had ever explained your 'Stutter Triangle' to me before. It seemed so simple that I didn't even try it for a couple of weeks."

"For I had previously spent a lot of time and my Dad's money on lengthy psychiatric and speech treatments, but without much benefit."

"So my Dad finally urged me to test your 3-cornered 'Stutter Triangle.'"

"It certainly works like a charm!"

"Now I routinely bite down on the side of my tongue and hold it imprisoned till I launch my first few words."

"And I don't stutter at all!"

"But will I ever be able to speak easily without such a gimmick?"

HABIT SLAVES

Back in 1938, I gave the banquet address before the Brooklyn Dental Society.

Admiral Wells, of the Navy Dental Corps, sat on my left and we were conversing in animated fashion, when the waiter filled my half empty coffee cup.

Alas, the coffee was boiling hot!

And I didn't notice the waiter's action.

So I casually lifted the cup to my mouth and started to take a sip.

It burned my lips and my right hand started shaking till it spilled coffee into my dinner plate.

A couple of weeks later I was the speaker at another banquet.

And when I lifted my coffee cup to my mouth, my right hand started shaking uncontrollably. I looked at my own trembling hand in surprise, for it seemed as if a demon had taken possession of those muscles.

My coffee even spilled into my plate.

So, I deliberately lifted the cup a second time and the same wild tremor occurred.

Puzzled, I used my left hand and then the cup didn't quiver at all.

So I knew something must have fastened this tremor on my right hand.

Finally, I remembered the episode at the Brooklyn Dental Banquet.

Knowing that I was thus the victim of "hand stuttering" I decided to test that typical "Stutter Triangle."

Again, I lifted the cup with my left hand and everything was O.K.

But when I tried the right hand, it shook so violently coffee again spilled upon my plate.

That meant I had to change the muscular pattern in some way when using my right hand!

And I did it by hooking my middle finger into the handle of the cup.

This "fooled" my right hand's stutter pattern so I was able to bring the cup to my mouth without spilling a drop.

If I'd also ignore the handle and grasp the bowl of the cup, I could stop the stuttering!

Even to this day, as at a banquet, I may occasionally have a return of this stuttering of my right hand, so I may push my cup and saucer over to the left and drink, left handedly!

Muscles that are operating when we are burned, not only by fire but by psychological shame, embarrassment, etc., seem to remember the "burn" for many years.

So use that "Stutter Triangle" for quick freedom from such slavery to nuisance and involuntary muscle spasms!

So send for my booklet "Psychology of Stuttering and Stammering," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melbott, Indiana 47558. Enclose a long stamped, return envelope and 25 cents to cover mailing and printing costs when you send for one of my booklets.)

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH
Too Much Vitamin A Not Good

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your column about vitamin A. I was having headaches that were unbelievable. The bottoms of my feet peeled. Skin rolled off my face when I applied shaving lotion. Sometimes I was dizzy, had spots before my eyes, ringing in my ears and also a bad body odor.

After I read your column I stopped eating anything high in vitamin A. The headaches stopped, and the skin peeling, and in fact everything except the spots before my eyes. I asked a doctor about it and he didn't say anything except to put me on vitamin B-C tablets. Is the proper treatment for the vitamin A syndrome just avoiding that vitamin or is there more to it?

—R.M.
You don't mention it, but I gather that you had been taking vitamin A in large quantities in vitamin tablets.

Vitamin A poisoning occurs often enough so the College of Physicians had a discussion of it at a recent meeting.

Prolonged use of this vitamin in amounts of 50,000 units a day or more can cause a variety of symptoms — most of those you experienced, some you may not have. Blood calcium can be elevated, and there can be pain from changes in bone structure. Such changes can even be seen on X-ray. Liver function also can be impaired.

All these possibilities, of course, are why the Food and Drug Administration is clamping down on preparations containing large doses of vitamin A, except on prescription.

Treatment of such poisoning is to stop taking vitamin A in large doses, and the situation gradually corrects itself. That's why your doctor didn't do anything except tell you to take vitamin mixtures that did not contain any A.

From here on, I would not be inclined to worry about vitamin A in your food — yellow vegetables, milk, butter, fats. The amounts in such foods, while ample for your needs, are not concentrated enough to cause vitamin accumulation.

One thing that should be kept in mind: Children are more readily affected by excess vitamin A than adults are. Something to remember.

As to the spots before your eyes — they may not have anything to do with the vitamin A. I'd discuss this with an eye specialist.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a psychiatrist determine by reading an individual's handwritten letters whether the individual is mentally or emotionally disturbed? I have always contended that handwriting analysis alone cannot be used for this purpose.

—F.R.B.
You're right — but what the person says in the letters may indicate the answer with considerable validity. Just as what a person says often can be a significant part of psychiatric diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter has type O blood. She was told that she could never have a healthy child. Is this true?

—Mrs. A.P.
Either there is more to the story than having type O blood, or her informant was talking through his (or her) hat. Type O is the commonest of all the blood types, so obviously it is not true that having that type blood prevents having healthy children.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If you were treating a patient with severe arthritis, would you prescribe hot towels, heating pad, hot water bottle, or cold treatments like ice pack, cold wet towels or cold water bottle?

—F.R.
I'd prescribe heat in any form, but would not prescribe cold of any kind.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis" write to him in care of Publishers - Hall Syndicate, 401 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Year Filled With Nixon Jokes

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — In my more than 20 years of publishing annual joke roundups, I've never found so many Presidential gags as this year — and most of them are unprintable.

There were jokes over the years about FDR, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and LBJ, and some of them were rough, but the Nixon jokes were the roughest. A gentle one was: "The Republicans claim Nixon doesn't know the meaning of the word quit and the Democrats say that's the trouble."

The Marine Band playing for White House functions was supposed to be rehearsing "Bail to the Chief." Liz Carpenter said Washington was a city divided into two parts: "Who's Who and Who's Through." Comedy writer Eli Basse said Spiro Agnew had been absolved of all innocence. And how is a bikini like Watergate? Sooner or later everything is bound to come out.

David Frye, impersonating the President, said, "My administration has taken crime out of the streets and put it in the White House where I can watch it." When the World Series was due, it was suggested that Nixon would throw out the first Vice President — and he did. Nixon would have sworn on a stack of Bibles — but the Bibles were missing.

A good secretary was one who could erase 120 words a minute. "President Nixon asked us to cut down on our use of power and we asked him to do likewise," Bob Orben said. "There was a shortage of everything but shortages." "Remember when people were vegetarians because they wanted to be?" (Marty Ragaway) "If you think the meat situation is tough now, well, you ain't seen mutton yet."

The fuel shortage was having its effect. Robert Scull said a bank robber made his getaway in a Volkswagen. Nowadays when someone yells "Get a horse" you can't tell whether they're conserving gas or ordering dinner (Robert Landau). Remember when people made fun of Lyndon Johnson going around the White House turning off lights?

With a brownout rumored,

Morty Gunty thought the government attitude was "The public be dimmed." Dean Martin, asked what actress he'd like to play opposite him, said, "Linda Lovelace." Don Rickles was surprised to see Frank Sinatra at a Hollywood banquet: "I thought he'd be playing golf with Jerry Ford." At a luncheon for Howard Cosell, Milton Berle said, "This man has been sworn at, spat upon, maligned — and rightly so." When Donald Nixon got in the news, somebody decided the President was his brother's keeper.

Seventy-three was the year of sexplicit pictures. Headline writers said "Deep Throat" was hard to swallow and Larry Storch found it "a ridiculous picture — and it got more ridiculous the second and third time I saw it." Joey Adams ribbed Mayor Lindsay: "I like a Mayor who doesn't meddle in city affairs." When Marlon Brando belted photographer Ron Galella, the latter asked, "Why does he talk about everybody mistreating the Indians? How about him mistreating photographers?"

"You can be on the cover of Time one year and be doing it the next year," commented Marty Allen. In July it seemed funny that Vice President Agnew could say he was delighted to eat his grapefruit for breakfast and find it wasn't ticking. It wasn't so funny in December. Massage parlors were now rap parlors or "relaxation parlors" and it was reported that one visitor went to a massage parlor and all he could get was a massage. With the skyjackings, Bob Hope claimed the security guards were very conscientious, and in the Los Angeles airport "they frisked Raquel Welch for two hours — and she was just seeing somebody off."

The year started out with "Peace" and the question by Eli Basse was, "Say, this peace isn't going to stop the war, is it?" George Jessel was still wearing his uniform and medals and some friend commented, "Nobody has the heart to tell him the war's over.

The Friar's Club "roasts" that had become stag entertainment in New York and Hollywood were copied for TV by Dean Martin, very effectively. Henny Youngman was roasted (off TV) with Pat Henry saying, "Henny Youngman's the only guy who, when he opens his violin case, everybody hopes he's got a machine gun in there."

Dean took out after Kirk Douglas in an early show: "Kirk has made 90 pictures and he has great taste — he's never seen any of them." They claimed that early in life Kirk said he wanted to be a thespian and his father said, "Sure, son, anything to keep you out of the army."

The other big news was the bustup, the reconciliation, the bustup and the reconciliation of Richard Burton and Liz Taylor. When they got back together again in December, it was suggested that they were going to co-spar in another movie. (All Rights Reserved)

COUNTRYMUSIC

The Best Albums of 1973
By PETER McCABE

We bring them home, tear off the shrink wrapping, slap 'em on the turntable, sit back and soak up fiddles, steel and golden tones.

A new album seems so hot, it could burn a hole in the back seat of the car. It is played solidly for a week, in spite of protests from less enthusiastic members of the family, and it assumes a prominent position on top of the pile of records.

A few weeks go by. New sounds are heard. It is time to play last month's big favorite again. Suddenly, unaccountably, it is less impressive than at first hearing.

As with all music, only some country records stand the test of time. Many of our seemingly favorite albums have little or no longevity; others find their way into the classics pile.

An old music industry pro used to tell me how proud he was that he'd used discrimination when accumulating records. "That's why I have a collection," he would say. "Not just an amassment."

Here's a few country records from 1973 that may make the classics pile.

Early in the year, Tom T. Hall's "Old Dogs, Children and Watermelon Wine" was riding high in the charts. The single was a classic, but the album probably didn't measure up to previous efforts such as "Homecoming."

Also in January, a most unusual album appeared on the market, and was widely hailed as a breakthrough record, especially on college campuses. It was called "Will The Circle Be Unbroken" by the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. It may be a classic, not so much for the Dirt Band's performance, but because it featured such greats as Roy Acuff, Earl Scruggs, Mother Maybelle Carter, Doc Watson, Merle Travis and Jimmy Martin all on the same record.

The Dirt Band, however, are still more or less orphans in the country music world. They make the country charts, but they're more at home in front of a "hip" audience.

Dick Curless, on stage in front of 5,000 truck drivers at the Wheeling, W. Va. truck drivers' jamboree, is a much more "country" experience, and so is the live album recorded at this event. The same goes for Dolly Parton singing about her "Tennessee Mountain Home" and for Waylon Jennings' album "Lonesome, Onry and Mean."

These three albums are very different, but they have two features in common: they're all good, honest, satisfying country and they all have the potential to become classics.

Two of this year's great albums that didn't make the charts in a big way were "The History of Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys" and "The Best of Elton Britt." Any country collection could benefit from the addition of both these records.

Wills, now an old, sick man, will almost certainly enjoy the stature afforded Jimmie Rodgers and Hank Williams. Elton Britt probably will not, but if you want to hear where Eddy Arnold, Red Foley and Glen Campbell learned a few tricks, pick up Elton's album and listen to him sing his 1942 hit of "There's A Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere."

Merle Haggard gave us two excellent albums in 1973. Early in the year he released "It's Not Love (But It's Not Bad)" which contained, aside from the title tune, such excellent songs as "A Shoulder To Cry On," "Dad's Old Fiddle" and "New York City Blues." And more recently, Capitol Records issued what might be the most imaginative and thoroughly researched Haggard album to date: "Love Dixie Blues," recorded with The Dixieland Express.

Haggard would probably have ranked in any country fan's "Best Of" selection for the last few years, but for many fans, this year provided them their first real exposure to Charlie Rich. It wasn't until April that "Behind Closed Doors" burst onto the charts, and the world at large started to discover Charlie Rich through the album named after the hit song.

Earlier in the year, however, another Charlie Rich album was released. It went nowhere in spite of good reviews, because "Behind Closed Doors" was still under wraps. But for anyone who wants to catch up with what Charlie Rich was doing before "Behind Closed Doors," this album, "The Best of Charlie Rich," is a must. It contains such songs as "Nice 'n' Easy," "Life's Little Ups and Downs," "Big Boss Man" and "I Do My Swinging At Home."

And among this talent and album classics, there emerged a 14-year-old girl named Tanya Tucker, who followed up her first album, "Delta Dawn," with a second number one record, "What's Your Mama's Name." The album of the same name contained a song called "Blood Red and Goin' Down," and the record buying public soon decided where that song was headed.

Tanya Tucker's face seems destined to be staring at us from the top of the record pile for a long time.

A Wintry Night Becomes One Filled With Flames

FIREMEN battle the blaze as it breaks through the roof

Winter had arrived just a couple of days earlier, and Christmas was still a couple of days away.

A cold front had swept into the area, with a wind blowing through the streets. Just before the sun went down, temperatures had dipped below the freezing mark.

The evening service was still an hour away when First Baptist Church custodian Paul Barrett discovered a fire in the choir loft about 5 p.m. He called the Pampa Fire Department and then Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, who was at home studying his sermon for the scheduled service.

Before the evening was through, the sanctuary was ablaze with flames pushing back the coldness of the winter night, firemen were battling the inferno and crowds were lining the streets to watch the city's worst fire in many years.

The flames spread out from the loft and attacked the sanctuary and various offices. Fire broke through the roof around 6 o'clock and smoke billowed upwards as firemen pulled up trucks and hosed down the area with water.

But despite the efforts of the 34 firemen at the scene working with eight pieces of equipment, including an aerial ladder truck, the roof began to cave in piece by piece. The stained glass windows lost their color, with much of the glass melting and breaking under the intense heat.

The blaze was kept from the adjacent buildings, although they did suffer some water and smoke damages. The floor of the sanctuary remained intact despite the heavy pieces of roof which crashed down onto it.

Hundreds gathered to view the burning structure. Police, other city personnel and volunteers were kept busy directing traffic which clogged the area. The on-lookers were later pushed back and blockaded from the immediate area as danger arose from the weakened walls and flames.

Most of the church records and library material were unharmed, but Rev. Cone lost all of his personal records and most of his library and correspondence. Also destroyed was the chapel organ.

In all, damages could exceed the $1 million mark.

Members had contributed funds only a few years ago for extensive remodeling in 1966 at a cost of $350,000 for the original structure built at the 203 N. West site in 1929.

Officials later ruled the fire began from a candle burning in a floral arrangement for the holiday season.

Church members plan to continue meetings using the two remaining buildings of the church. And plans are already being made to rebuild. The building may have been destroyed — but not the church itself.

WIN AT BRIDGE Toughest hand of the year?

By Oswald & James Jacoby

West opened the four of clubs to his partner's ace. East led the eight of clubs back. The Professor who was declarer turned to the student who was watching him and remarked, "This may be one of the toughest hands of the year to play."

Then he discarded his ten of hearts. West was in with the queen of clubs and for want of anything better to do led a third club.

The Professor discarded his jack of hearts on dummy's 10 of clubs and proceeded to cash dummy's nine and queen of trumps. If both opponents had followed he would have played a third trump, discarded his queen of hearts on the jack of clubs and conceded a trick to the ace of

The professor promptly led dummy's king of diamonds. East thought a while and played low whereupon the Professor led a low diamond. East ducked again and declarer's jack held the trick. A third diamond knocked out East's ace and there was no way to keep the Professor from discarding his queen of hearts on the last diamond.

As the Professor said at the start, it was a tough hand. Just try and find any simple way to bring home 10 tricks against good defense.

Allen had better get Helen off his chest

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Allen and I are planning on getting married soon, but something about Allen bothers me. He has "Helen" tattooed on his chest, and my name is Rosemary.

Allen knew Helen years ago and says he doesn't even know where she is now, but Abby, how would you like to rest your head on your husband's chest every night and see another girl's name staring you in the face?

Allen says he doesn't think it's possible to remove a tattoo, but a tattoo artist says he can add some art work to the "Helen" so it will look like "Rosemary."

What do you think of this idea? Before I tell him to go ahead, I want to be sure he can't get the "Helen" off completely.

ROSEMARY

DEAR ROSEMARY: There are many different methods of removing tattoos. Some doctors recommend skin grafting, others prefer a method called "dermabrasion." Allen should investigate all the known methods and make his choice. He'll feel a lot better when he gets "Helen" off his chest. And so will you.

DEAR ABBY: This is a question many young men must have on their minds and your answer will be very beneficial to hundreds of thousands of fellows.

MUST a male be circumcised? And if so, why?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Altho some disagree, the overwhelming majority of medical authorities agree that circumcision is necessary for hygienic reasons. And it is a fact that the wives of circumcised men are far less likely to have cancer of the cervix than wives of men who have not been circumcised. [P. S. Contrary to what many believe, circumcision originated with the Egyptians. The Jews later made it a religious rite.]

DEAR ABBY: When you spoke to our high school in St. Louis, when I was a teen-ager, you gave us your definition for maturity. I kept it for all these years, and now it's lost. Will you please give it to me again? Thank you.

STILL READ YOU

DEAR STILL: Maturity is the ability to do a job whether you're supervised or not; finish a job once it's started; carry money without spending it. And last, but not least, the ability to bear an injustice without wanting to get even.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SICK OF BEING SICK IN ELIZABETH, N. J.: Try this: "Talk health. The dreary never ending tale of moral maladies is worn and stale. You cannot hope to charm or please by harping on that minor chord 'disease.' So, say that you are well, and all is well with you, and God will hear your words and make them true." [Ella Wheeler Wilcox.]

Miss Mary Ruth White became the bride of Randall Carter Reeve Saturday, Dec. 29 at 10 a.m. in St. Luke's Catholic Church of San Antonio, Tex.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. White of San Antonio. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Reeve, 1811 Dogwood, Pampa, are parents of the bridegroom.

THE CEREMONY

Officiating for the double ring ceremony was the Rev. James Conway, assistant pastor. Mark Marty was organist and Candice Perkins was vocalist. Wedding selections were "Chorale Improvisations" by Manz; "Herr Jesu Christ, Chorale" by Bach, and "Panis Angelicus" Palestrina.

Christmas trees and bouquets of white pom poms flanked the altar and the kneelers bench. Traditional candles completed the church decorations.

THE BRIDE

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore her mother's wedding dress of candlelight satin styled with a wide berth and a yoke of Alencon lace reembroidered with crystals. The long sleeves ended in points with a cuff of Alencon and crystals dropping over her hands. The full skirt terminated in a cathedral length train. Her veil of tulle was cathedral length and fell from a tiny bonnet of satin embroidered with rose point lace.

ATTENDANTS

Matron of honor was Mrs. Philip G. Baerries, III of Austin. Maid of honor was Miss Margaret Faye White and Jr. bridesmaid was Miss Maureen Adele White, both of San Antonio.

All three attendants are sisters of the bride and they wore identical dresses of deep forest green, ankle length jumpers and ivory blouses. They carried Bibles covered with green velvet and rosaries of silver and crystal.

NFC Clash Today

DALLAS (UPI) — It might be billed as the quarterback duel between "the winner" and "the loser."

Roger Staubach and Fran Tarkenton, the opposing quarterbacks in today's NFC title match at Texas Stadium, have similar styles on the field, but different reputations off it.

Staubach, the Cowboys' starting quarterback, has always had a winning aura about him. Granted, he's lost some big games (the 1964 Cotton Bowl and the 1972 NFC title game, for example) but he's noted for being a winner. He won the Heisman Trophy — as a junior — in his celebrated collegiate career at Navy and he's already quarterbacked the Cowboys to a Super Bowl crown.

Tarkenton, the Minnesota quarterback, has played on only three winning teams in his 13 pro seasons. This is the first year he's ever been in the playoffs.

The logical explanation for this is Tarkenton's played on a lot of bad teams. He joined the Vikings in 1961 in their first season as an expansion team and moved to the New York Giants in 1967, the year after they posted a 1-12 record.

But logic hasn't always entered into Tarkenton's reputation. His scrambling — the running that people take for granted when Staubach does it — infuriated his first pro coach, Norm Van Brocklin. He first hung the bum rap on Tarkenton for being a "loser." The absence of titles has made it difficult for Tarkenton to live it down.

He doesn't make excuses but he notes, "This is the first time I've played with a full deck."

Tarkenton's normal style is to poke fun at some of pro football's maxims with a tongue-in-cheek sense of humor.

Instead of bothering to defend his scrambling, he'll say, "I noticed the four quarterbacks still in the playoffs (Tarkenton, Staubach, Bob Griese and Ken Stabler) are mobile guys who can maneuver quite a bit."

Then he adds, "Or scramble, if you want to call it that."

After he threw a 28-yard touchdown pass against the Washington zone defense last week, he smiled and quipped, "Of course, everyone knows you can't throw long against the zone."

It is a bit of an irony that it was Tarkenton's success as a scrambler that made it easier for guys like Staubach to use that style.

But there are differences in the way Tarkenton and Staubach scramble.

Dallas coach Tom Landry notes, "Tarkenton is passing most of the time when he's moving. When he's on the move, he's looking to throw. Roger's not always doing that. He's moving to run. That makes them different."

It could be one of the reasons why Staubach is more injury-prone than Tarkenton, who's never missed a start because of an injury. He has an uncanny knack for curling himself up in an almost fetal position when he sees he's going to be hit.

Landry says, "It's very hard to get a solid lick on Tarkenton. He has a great ability to move at the last minute to keep from getting hit."

Landry didn't say it, but Staubach sometimes seems to confuse himself with Larry Csonka, banging into tacklers. He suffered a separated right shoulder last year that sidelined him much of the season. And last week, he was woody most of the game after suffering an early blow.

But Landry stuck with him — either displaying a lack of confidence in Staubach or a lack of it in Craig Morton — and Staubach came up with an 83-yard touchdown pass in the final period to save the game.

One of the most surprising differences between Tarkenton and Staubach is the slight difference in their ages. Most fans assume that Tarkenton is several years older, but he's 33 and Staubach is 31.

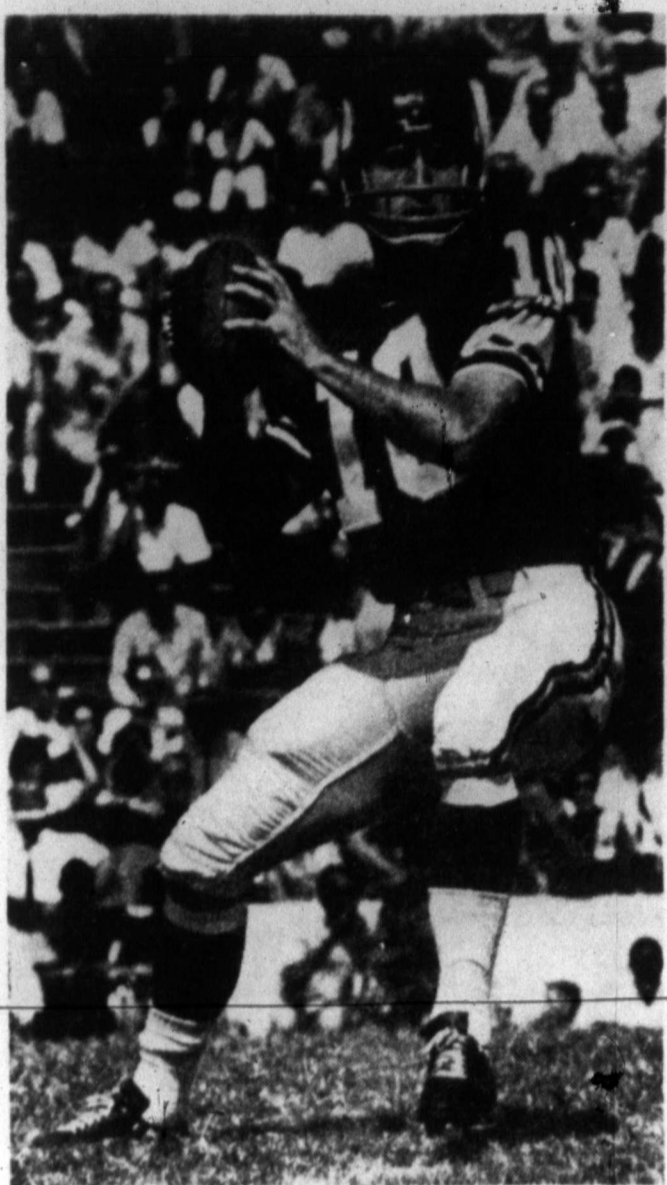

Of course, Staubach had to serve four years in the Navy and didn't join the Cowboys until he was 27 in 1969. Tarkenton came to the Vikings off the Georgia campus at age 21. That's why this is Staubach's fifth year and Tarkenton's 13th.

Staubach is expected to have the more difficult task today because he's lost his top runner, Calvin Hill, with a dislocated elbow.

That means the Vikings' defense will worry less about the run and think more about rushing Staubach. It isn't a pleasant prospect for Staubach.

But nothing will be easy for either quarterback. Both defenses are sound and it's expected to be a close, low-scoring game.

The success of these two scrambling quarterbacks today will determine whether Staubach will enhance his winning reputation or whether Tarkenton will shed his loser's label.

MINNESOTA QUARTERBACK Fran Tarkenton heads the NFC's number-one offense and the Vikings' hopes in the NFC championship game against the host Dallas Cowboys at 12 noon today. Tarkenton, running back Chuck Foreman and wide receiver John Gilliam (the latter two interviewed in It Sims To Me) should give the Dallas defense a tough test.

McPherson played his starters most of the contest but went to his bench often. Pampa post Billy Wilbon, the team's leading scorer with a 17.4 mark going into the game, did not play because of a turned ankle sustained Friday in practice.

The Harvesters out rebounded Perryton, 33-25. The Rangers' leading scorer and only player in double figures as 6-4 Jim Dear, with 14 points.

Pampa won the B-team game, 73-45, as Nick Slaymaker scored 18 points and Matiga Buntun and Chuck Pearce scored 12 each.

The Harvesters defeated the 1-AAA Rangers, 90-52, in Pampa's second game of the season.

Pampa's biggest lead came with 2:30 left in the contest as Young put in a six-footer to give Pampa a 63-38 lead.

The closest Perryton came to the lead after the first half ended (Pampa was ahead 39-23 at the half) was 14 points (39-25). Then field goals by Young and Lewis seemed to destroy the Rangers' hopes for a comeback.

Capelletti Heads Orange Bowl

MIAMI (UPI) — With Heisman Trophy winner John Capelletti as the star attraction, Penn State has overshadowed Louisiana State in the buildup for the 40th annual Orange Bowl football classic New Year's night.

And the LSU Tigers dimmed their own limelight by losing their final two regular season games after being invited to play in Miami. They dropped to 14th in UPI's national rankings while Penn State finished with a perfect 11-0 season and fifth place ranking.

LSU Coach Charlie McClendon loves being a five-point underdog. He's been playing the "pore country boy" role to the hilt in press encounters with Penn State Coach Joe Paterno.

"We're going to have to play with a little fear in our hearts," said big Mack. "They've got those big tall boys with the leverage. They've got the best offensive line blocking I've seen in a long, long time."

"Wait a minute," said Paterno, who is not often upstaged. "A lot of people may have lost sight of just how good they (LSU players) are. Looking at the films of the Alabama-LSU game, I got the impression LSU was the better team except for

Also There's The AFC...

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, who sidetracked history once this season, try again Sunday with the American Football Conference berth on the line this time as they face the world champion Miami Dolphins.

The Dolphins met Oakland with a record 18-game winning streak on Sept. 23 and saw it disappear when the Raiders turned in a superb defensive effort to win, 12-7.

Now the Dolphins have another shot at entering the history books and only the Raiders stand in the way. Miami, with a victory Sunday, would become the first team ever to appear in three Super Bowls and the first to win three consecutive AFC titles.

—Miami, which won the AFC East championship with a 12-2 record and then eliminated Central champion Cincinnati, 34-16, last week, is a seven-point favorite over the Raiders, the Western titlist with a 9-4-1 mark. Oakland ousted wild-card entry Pittsburgh, 33-14, last week to qualify for the final.

The winner plays the winner of Sunday's Dallas-Minnesota National Conference title game in the Super Bowl in Houston on Jan. 13.

Sunday's game will be played under sudden death in the event of a tie, with the first team scoring in overtime taking the title. Each member of the winning team will receive $5,500, while the losers each get $3,500. A sellout crowd of 80,010 will watch the game, to be televised nationally starting at 4 p.m. EST.

Both clubs enter the game relatively injury-free. Tight end Jim Mandich has a broken bone in his hand, but has been listed as probable by the Dolphins along with star defensive tackle Manny Fernandez, who missed last week's playoff game with a torn thigh muscle.

Phil Villapiano, Oakland's star linebacker, will play despite a twisted ankle and Bob Brown will see duty at offensive tackle.

The Raiders won the first meeting this season by shutting off wide receiver Paul Warfield and then controlling Miami's rushing game. Bob Griese, the Miami quarterback, who admits the Dolphins played poorly in their loss to Oakland, feels Sunday will be a different story.

"I don't think that first game will have much bearing on this one," Griese said. "Their defense played very well in that game and they shut out Paul. But one of the big reasons we lost was that we had poor field position all day. Ray Guy kept us backed up in our end of the field with his punting and they forced us into a lot of situations where they knew we had to throw and could double-cover Paul."

Griese, as emotionless a quarterback as there is in the NFL, said playoff pressure helped him prepare better.

"My concentration is better for the playoffs," he said. "It means so much more. You can lose a game during the regular season and still win your division. But this is one-game elimination. I find I don't have to read things more than once. It sticks right away."

Kenny Stabler, the Oakland quarterback, was cautious entering the game.

"I'm sure the Dolphins will remember us like we remembered Pittsburgh," said Stabler, referring to the Steelers' three straight upsets of Oakland. "Other than that, it's hard for me to say anything about it because I haven't played against them before. Right now, every game we play in a week-to-week thing and different."

ND, ALA MEET Who's Number 1

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — There could be two matchups at Tulane Stadium New Year's Eve — the Sugar Bowl football game between Notre Dame and Alabama and a civil rights confrontation between blacks and the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association.

The football game features the nation's No. 1 and No. 4 teams as well as two premiere coaches in Ara Parseghian and Paul "Bear" Bryant. The civil rights demonstrations were being led by Dr. Bernard Lee, vice president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Lee spoke to a rally of 350 persons last Wednesday to call for greater black representation in the administration of the Sugar Bowl, which is sponsored by the Mid-Winter Sports Association.

He spoke in place of Dr. Ralph Abernathy, SCLC president, who had been scheduled to lead the protests but backed out at the last minute.

Lee called for "peaceful" pickets outside the Tulane stadium to draw national attention to the situation, but predicted the Sugar Bowl would cave in to demands for more blacks before New Year's Eve.

There were no blacks in the sports group until earlier this month when six black leaders were named to an 83-member advisory board.

Advisory members are assigned to various committees, but are not eligible to join the executive committee—which selects the bowl teams—for at least two years.

Lee and Dr. Guy Gipson, head of the New Orleans NAACP chapter, say they want at least 10 blacks in the Sugar Bowl organization. They say the six advisory appointments are a step in the right direction, but four blacks should be named to the executive committee immediately.

There appeared to be growing support for the picket movement, but black athletes were turning their backs on calls for a possible boycott of the game.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS

"To me it's just another game, even though it is a championship game. I'm not going to change my style."

John Gilliam's style has made him one of the best in the game and if he doesn't change it, Dallas could be in for a long afternoon — the same kind of afternoon the Cowboys experienced in a 37-31 loss to the Los Angeles Rams a few weeks ago in a regular season contest.

In that Dallas loss, Ram receiver Harold Jackson burned the Dallas defense secondary with four touchdown catches. Gilliam, Minnesota's ace pass catcher, isn't quite as fast as Jackson and didn't get his hands on the ball as much as the LA flash this season but Gilliam's style (an adeptness at getting open and holding onto the ball) might very well put the Vikings in Super Bowl VIII and Dallas in the NFC's bridesmaid role for the second year in a row.

The Cowboy-Viking clash should be one (judging from season statistics) in which the team having the most success through the air will win. Dallas ranks second in the NFC defensively against the rush and Minnesota is fifth, so it looks like it'll be a Roger Staubach to Drew Pearson and Fran Tarkenton to Gilliam kind of game.

Dallas is eighth best in the NFC in defending the pass and Minnesota is sixth.

Gilliam, who caught 42 passes for 907 yards and eight touchdowns during the regular season, finished as the number-eight receiver in the conference, only because the Vikings are a run-oriented club (Tarkenton and backs Oscar Reed and Chuck Foreman make up nothing short of an explosive backfield).

"To me it's just another game... I went into the game last week (against Washington) worrying about it and I was tight for a whole half," said Gilliam, who dropped two crucial passes in the first half of last week's 27-20 Minnesota win over the Redskins.

Gilliam regained his regular-season form in the closing half and won the game for the Vikings in the fourth quarter with a pair of touchdown receptions (28 and six yards) from Tarkenton.

Gilliam and Tarkenton, who is number two in the NFC in passing (Staubach is first), give the Vikings one of the most feared pass threats in football, despite the fact that Minnesota doesn't throw the ball that much.

"Fran has meant a lot to the team, he's a great quarterback and he calls beautiful plays," said Gilliam. "He mixes it up and moves it around. If they (Dallas) take me out, he'll go to his other receivers — his backs and the tight end."

Gilliam doesn't think the Viking signal caller and Staubach possess similar attributes, even though both are notorious scramblers.

"Staubach isn't calling his plays and Fran calls all his plays. He doesn't scramble as much as Staubach either. And Staubach passes mostly from the pocket while Fran will move around until he finds a receiver open."

In last week's final Viking touchdown, Tarkenton was trapped behind the line of scrimmage but scrambled to his left, reversed his field and then noticed his receivers had found time to move into the end zone. Tarkenton hit Gilliam in the right corner for a six-yard TD to give the Vikings a 23-13 lead.

Naturally, Gilliam is more concerned with the Cowboy defense than the offense. "Dallas is a great defensive ball club, they have a good secondary and good linebackers. They're very basic."

"They don't try many trick plays; they have, but they don't do it that much. They may blitz... we have to be ready for everything."

Sunday's contest won't be the first time Gilliam has played against the Cowboys, as he started for St. Louis three years, and we played them twice a year.

Minnesota's rookie running sensation, Chuck Foreman, is another threat Dallas must contain. Foreman gained 801 yards on 182 carries for four touchdowns over the regular season.

He, unlike Gilliam, isn't looking at Sunday's clash as "just another game."

"It's hard to look at it as just another game," Foreman told the News Thursday. "I haven't felt any pressure yet, but tomorrow (Friday) and the day after maybe I will. We went in tight last week and that hurt us... it took us a half to get ready."

IN SUN BOWL

Missouri Blasts Auburn

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — The Missouri Tigers won their first six games this season by taking advantage of their opponents' mistakes and John Moseley's runbacks. Saturday that combination gave them a Sun Bowl victory.

It was Moseley's 84-yard kickoff return as time expired in the first half and Missouri's ability to take advantage of five Auburn turnovers that enabled the Big 8 team to post the 34-17 win.

Moseley, a 5-8 scooter who had never before run back a kickoff for a touchdown, credited his blocking for the run which broke Auburn's back.

"If you can get outside you can usually go," Moseley said. "I got some excellent blocking and when I cut back to the inside I knew I had it."

Moseley, who led the Big Eight in punt and kickoff returns in 1973, said 8-4 Missouri eliminated many of its frustrations by the bowl win.

"We won our first six and we wanted to make up for having lost our last three," he said. "We also wanted to beat Auburn because people tend to overrate the Southeast Conference."

Missouri coach Al Onofrio has often been criticized for failing to pass more. He got back at his critics Saturday by calling for a surprise pass on a fourth-and-one situation at the Auburn goal-line. The touchdown pass from Ray Smith to John Kelsey gave Missouri a 21-3 lead. Then Moseley's kickoff return following an Auburn score broke it open.

"It's nice when you can get the big play because that makes it easier to sustain your momentum," Onofrio said. "I felt the team had been prepared very well and the weeks we had off after losing our last three certainly helped."

Missouri capitalized on four fumble recoveries and one interception, and Onofrio said the turnovers were another key factor in the win.

"At the beginning of the year we won by taking advantage of our opponent's mistakes and that's what we did today," he said.

Defensesmen Bob McRoberts, Lynn Evans and Ken Downing recovered fumbles that led to Missouri scores while Bob Keeney intercepted an Auburn pass to thwart a late Auburn drive.

Auburn coach Shug Jordan said his team was "simply outplayed by a better team."

"If there had to be a turning point it was probably the kickoff return by Moseley," said Jordan. "I thought we'd gotten ourselves back into the game but that kickoff return really killed us."

Auburn's bright spot during the afternoon was the play of freshman quarterback Phil Gargis, who came off the bench in the second quarter to throw two touchdown passes to wingback Thomas Gossom.

"Jordan praised Gargis' efforts. 'I'd say he has a great future ahead of him at Auburn.'"

Nobles-Led Houston Dumps Green Wave In Astro Bowl

HOUSTON (UPI) — D. C. Nobles scored one and set up two more touchdowns with his precision passing Saturday to lead 13th-ranked Houston to a 47-7 win over outclassed Tulane in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Nobles rolled up 201 yards passing and scored on a two-yard sprint in the third quarter set up by a stunning 61-yard pass to favorite receiver Bryan Willingham.

Bullish Leonard Parker scored on plunges of one and three yards and fleet Donnie "Quick Draw" McGraw scored on runs of one and 32 yards. Marshall Johnson, a third-team back until the final week of practice, rambled 75 yards for a touchdown on the third play of the game.

Reserve quarterback David Hussmann reversed his field and scored on a seven-yard run with 6:53 left for the Cougars' final touchdown. Ricky Terrell hit five of seven conversions.

Houston, ranked fourth in total offense nationally, rolled up an Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl record of 656 yards total offense.

Ever wonder who "invented" the post-season football bowl games? ... A Pasadena, Calif., business man, James Wagner, is credited with the original idea ... To promote Pasadena's Tournament of Roses affair in 1902, he got the thought of staging a post-season football game ... And so, all of today's bowl games stem from Wagner's idea.

Did you know that many of today's post-season bowl games were known by different names in their early years? ... For instance, in the first two years of the Orange Bowl, it wasn't called the Orange Bowl at all ... It was known then as the "Festival of Palm Games" ... The Gator Bowl started as the "Alligator Bowl" ... And the forerunner of the Cotton Bowl was called the "Dixie Classic."

Of all the football bowl games, none is more appropriately named than the Sugar Bowl ... The Sugar Bowl stadium is actually located on the site of the old plantation where sugar was first granulated in this country!

We hope that you all had a nice Christmas and are ready for a good new year. For the bowler there is always the hope of a few good games and series as well as the good times with fellow bowlers. We are going to continue with information on balance and weight factors of the bowling ball.

BALANCE: Bowling balls shall be so constructed and drilled that no less than six sides shall be in proper balance.

The following tolerances shall be permissible in the balance of a bowling ball:

(1) a. 10 pounds or more—
—Not more than 3 ounces difference between top of ball (finger hole side) and the bottom (solid side opposite the finger holes).

b. Less than 10 pounds—
—Not more than 1/4 ounce difference between top of ball and the bottom.

(2) a. 10 pounds or more—
—Not more than 1 ounce difference between the sides to the right and left of the finger holes or between the sides in front and back of the finger holes.

b. Less than 10 pounds—
—Not more than 1/4 ounce difference between the sides to the right and left of the finger holes or between front and back of the finger holes.

TOP WEIGHT: What does top weight do for the bowler? In a full roller the track is directly over the top weight. Therefore, excessive top weight does nothing more than cause the ball to have a loping effect on the lanes.

In a semi-roller the track is below the thumb hole so top weight in essence is side weight and will tend to make the semi-roller hook more.

SIDE WEIGHT: What about side weight? Right side weight in either a semi or full roll will cause the ball to hook more on the lanes. Left side weight acts to curb the hooking of the ball.

THUMB WEIGHT: Thumb weight on the ball will cause an early hook but the ball may flatten out at the end of the roll.

WEIGHT FACTORS: It is important to know the type of ball rolled by a bowler before you determine the top and side weight. It is just as important to know whether he wants hook (having the ball hook more) or wants his ball to set (not hook as much at finish).

Any single weight factor: top, side, finger or thumb can affect the roll of the ball. A combination of these factors (and the number is endless) can produce varying results.

Top pros are always experimenting with these factors. However, unless you are sure of your suggestions during measurement and the outcome of drilling certain type weights and balances in a bowling ball, do not experiment.

Bowling has become more sophisticated, so it is natural that there are many more sophisticated ideas about measuring and drilling. Keep yourself as well informed as possible as to what the pros and the top bowlers in your area are using.

Some of the men had some good series and a few games this past couple of weeks. In the Caprock Men's League David Wortham a 549 series, Alvin Kalka a 553 series, Carroll Pettit a 558 series, James Hoskins a 561 series. Howard Musgrave rolled a 226 game and had a nice 579 series. Leon Harris a 531 series, James Evans a 532, Hank Benschel a 573 series, Ron Campbell a 586 series, Ted Erickson a 569 series. Dale Haynes rolled a 245 game and a great 610 series.

James Stansill picked up the 5-4-7 split recently during the Harvester Couples league. Others to have good scores during this league were Charlene Morris had a 216 game with a 540 series. David McNair in the past two weeks had a 547 & 548 series and a 221 & 225 game. Gil Wuest had a 583 series and a 223 game. Alvin Helms a 549 series and a 224 game.

Bea Wortham rolled a 546 series. Audie Dick had a 223 game and a 525 series. Jack McNeil rolled a 553.

Congratulations to you all. Again Happy-New Year and good bowling.

Penalty Helps Georgia To Peach Win

ATLANTA (UPI) — Late-blooming Georgia took the big play away from Maryland and resurrected a two-year-old screen pass for its big play to win the Peach Bowl Friday night.

But it was a critical fourth-quarter holding penalty which finally stopped rallying Maryland Friday in a 17-16 thriller at Atlanta Stadium.

"Maryland is a big play team," said Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "We felt if we could stop the big play, we could beat them."

Maryland did get one big play—a 68-yard touchdown on a halfback option pass from tailback Louis Carter to tight end Walter White. But three Maryland fumbles and the key holding penalty stymied the Terps and allowed Georgia to notch its fifth victory in its last six games.

The Bulldogs finished with a record of 7-4-1 while Maryland, playing in a bowl for the first time since 1956, wound up 8-4.

The Warmup

The Peach Bowl was the warmup to a heavy menu today of post-season contests which pitted Houston against Tulane in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, Tennessee and Texas Tech in the Gator Bowl, Missouri and Auburn in the Sun Bowl and East and West All-Star teams in the Shrine Bowl.

Bulldog quarterback Andy

Johnson lofted a second-quarter screen pass to running back Jimmy Poulos who booted 62 yards for a touchdown. "We put that play in for this game because of their strong rush," Dooley said after the game.

Johnson scored the other Georgia touchdown on a one-yard run and kicker Allan Leavitt booted a field goal and two extra points.

The Terps had three field goals by Steve Mike-Mayer and the touchdown-producing halfback option pass for their points.

Maryland was moving into Georgia territory in the final period when a holding penalty stopped the drive. The Terps completed a pass that would have given them a first down on the Georgia 35 but the play was nullified and the penalty pushed Maryland back to its 21.

Anti-Blackout Rule Twisted

DALLAS (UPI) — The National Football League's concern about the anti-blackout rule took a new direction this week.

A local discount store chain bought the last 1,400 tickets to the NFC title game at $12 each just before noon CST Thursday when the Dallas Cowboys-Minnesota Vikings contest a sellout so it will be shown on TV in the Dallas area Sunday.

But what the chain store didn't tell the league officials was that it planned to put the tickets on sale in its stores at a discount price of $10 each. The store put advertisements in the Dallas papers Saturday announcing the discount price.

Subject Came Up
Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne tried not to dwell on the penalty as he talked to newsmen, but the subject kept coming up.

"Every flag was thrown (against us) by a Southeastern Conference official," he said. Georgia is in the Southeastern Conference while Maryland was the Atlantic Coast Conference runnerup.

Defensive back Dick Conn of Georgia jumped on two Maryland fumbles—one stopping a Terp drive on the Georgia 3 and the other setting up Johnson's rushing touchdown.

Carter was named the outstanding offensive player in the game. He rushed for 126 yards and threw for the only Maryland touchdown.

"It doesn't mean much right now," Carter said in the Maryland dressing room. "Eventually maybe it will. But I don't feel I should have it. Someone on the winning team should. Winning means everything."

Lilly's Playing Chances Doubtful For Today's Viking-Dallas Contest

DALLAS (UPI) — With the NFC title game only hours away, the playing status of Bob Lilly—whose name was once synonymous with the stingiest rushing defense in pro football—was still doubtful.

The Cowboys and the Vikings meet at 1 p.m. today for the conference championship and a trip to the Super Bowl two weeks hence.

Like the Rams, whom the Cowboys disposed of in the divisional playoffs last Sunday, the Vikings are remarkably healthy for this point in the campaign.

But Lilly faces the very real possibility of missing his first game ever as a professional. He has appeared in 183 straight games, a stunning feat for someone who takes a certain degree of punishment every time the ball is snapped.

Lilly strained a leg muscle against Denver early this month—and has seen only limited first quarter action in each game since. Last week, against Los Angeles, he aggravated the injury.

In his place has moved Bill Gregory, in his third year with the Cowboys.

Gregory has been in for five weeks and has played very well," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "He has quick moves, he gives good pursuit of the quarterback and he gives 100 per cent on every play."

"You can't ask for any more than that."

Even if Lilly can start today, it will probably be only a token appearance, just to keep his record intact.

It will be Gregory who will be counted on to provide the rush on Fran Tarkenton from the right tackle position.

"Minnesota has a good offensive line," said Gregory. "But they can be beaten. Against Tarkenton you just have to stay in your rushing lanes and contain him."

Both the Cowboys and Vikings planned one last workout today in the tartan turf of Texas Stadium, which was sold out for the contest.

Today's workout will be the first time most of the Vikings have ever seen the stadium. The stadium opened midway through the 1971 season and the Vikings last played in Dallas in 1966.

Flanker John Gilliam—defensive back Paul Krause, defensive tackle Alan Page and offensive tackle Ron Yary in the stadium last January, however, in the Pro Bowl game.

The forecast for today called for mild and potentially cloudy weather with the temperature expected to be in the 50s. Rain was forecast for the area today, but no rain was predicted for game day.

SD Sold To LA Group

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Financier C. Arnholt Smith has sold the San Diego Padres to an apparently financially stable Los Angeles group, but baseball officials are not sure they like the idea.

Smith Friday announced the team had been sold to a group headed by Hollywood race track director Marjorie Everett, grocer Vernon Underwood and attorney Neil Papiano.

Composer Burt Bacharach and Dr. Robert Kerlan were two noted figures included in the list of owners.

"In accordance with terms of this agreement, we have sold all rights, title and interest in the Padres to this outstanding group," Smith said in a telegram to National League President Chub Feeney.

A spokesman for Feeney later said a meeting of club owners was being set up to decide the next step. He said no action could be expected until after the holiday weekend.

A spokesman for Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said, "he has the right to sell it to anyone he wants but nothing is official until the league sits down to vote on it. They'll have to go through the ritual of a vote."

Nine of the 12 National League owners would have to approve the sale to make it official.

Texas, Nebraska Have Lot To Prove

DALLAS (UPI) — The Texas Longhorns and Nebraska Cornhuskers will not be battling for any national championship Tuesday when they meet in the 38th Cotton Bowl.

But both teams have something to prove.

Cornhusker flanker Frosty Anderson says it pretty well for both sides.

"We have both lost two games so it means we are not fighting for a national title or anything like that," says Anderson. "But we are going to be trying to show our fans we can play good football."

"That is a big motivation."

"And we at Nebraska are not champions of anything this season. The Cotton Bowl is all we have left."

The Longhorns, ranked eighth in the nation, and the Cornhuskers, rated No. 11, will have at each other beginning at 2 p.m. EST New Year's Day.

The contest should revolve around how well the Cornhuskers can slow down Longhorn fullback Roosevelt Leaks and how well the Longhorns pass defense, which has had its problems on occasion this year, can stop quarterback David Humm and his favorite target—the articulate Anderson.

This has been a similar year for the two teams. Both were picked high in the preseason selections.

But Texas lost its opening game of the year, was demolished by Oklahoma and then resurged to win its sixth straight Southwest Conference crown and finish with an 8-2 season.

Nebraska played several close games this year, scoring three times in the final quarter to rally against North Carolina State, edging Wisconsin by four points and defeating Kansas by only one. The Cornhuskers fell by a point to Missouri, were tied by Oklahoma State and were shut out by Oklahoma.

"We regained some of our stature toward the end of the season," said Texas coach Darrell Royal.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS
Last week we carried a report on the Task Force on Water, appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. The Task Force will hold monthly meetings for the next six months in an effort to come up with some workable solutions to the water problems of the state.

The Committee in its first two meetings has come up with 15 developmental problems, six legal problems, five institutional problems and seven financial problems that will have to be solved if Texas is to solve its water problems.

In today's column we are carrying the developmental problems.

DEVELOPMENTAL
1. The Texas Water Developmental Board did an outstanding job in preparing the Texas Water Plan which can serve as a guideline for developing the water resources of the state. However, with the Federal Government now showing an uncompromising trend away from public work investment in water development, a looming problem would be the failure of the Water Development Board to finance needed water projects. A reexamination of the law governing the Water Development Board policies is indicated to facilitate implementing the Water Plan, which now appears to be stalled at a critical time when all systems should be going.

2. The constitutional limit of $400 million for the Water Development Fund and $100 million for Water Quality Enhancement Funds appears too low.

3. Where local benefits are so hard to identify that local interests are reluctant to participate in financing a project, the state should provide the funds if by so doing the state or a large region of the state will benefit. Examples of this are the projects needed to reduce natural salt water intrusion into the Red River.

4. Another developmental problem is the difficulty of getting the general public to pay "now" for a "future" project. This is a failure in the election process that must and can be overcome with proper education and a convincing selling program.

5. Objections of environmentalists and ecologists to dams and other water related projects constitute one of the most serious impediments to water development programs. Water leaders have failed to convince the public that water projects are a boon to the environment and not a detriment to it as many self-appointed environmental experts would have the public believe. Again, this calls for proper education of the public as the environmental and ecological benefits of water projects.

6. The search for supplies of surplus out-of-state waters should continue. Sources in states other than Louisiana (for example, Arkansas) should be explored.

7. Cities should exhaust all efforts to eliminate waste in their systems. Irrigators and industry must also reduce waste. Penalties should be imposed to deter waste where it is occurring. The public needs to be better informed as to methods of conserving water. Overuse of water should be discouraged. As an example, one common practice that encourages overuse is that of the cities reducing water rates in the summer months. Another wasteful practice is the one of selling un-metered or unmeasured water. Further, is it proper to allow the heavy user to pay a lower water rate than other consumers? Other examples could be mentioned but all activities leading to water waste and overuse should be identified and efforts made to eliminate them and to encourage conservation. Since overuse and waste are included in the users' present requirements for water need, they are also included in projections for future requirements. This leads to a distorted and inaccurate forecast of what the future requirements would be if water conservation were practiced. Objective and consistent population projections are needed if water requirements projections are to be valid.

8. Weather modification to produce precipitation and desalination of sea and brackish water show great promise as means of augmenting water supplies. Studies and research in these fields should not be impeded.

9. Reuse of water should be encouraged. Public reluctance and opposition of public health agencies regarding the use of recycled water is a problem that research and education can help overcome.

10. Should water resources be developed on a regional or a river basin concept? Present state policy encourages basin development and discourages transbasin diversions. Is such a policy now valid? Residents in some water-shed areas believe that some equitable means should be found to financially reimburse areas for losses incurred where reservoirs are constructed for storage or regulation of water for transfer to other basins or areas. Is this position sound?

11. How can the fresh water requirements of the bays and estuaries be met? How will such a program be financed?

12. Water supplies can be "stretched" through judicious blending of good quality water with poor quality water. A mixing of surface and ground water supplies is a development that often is ignored. Such practices often change the taste of water to the public's discomfort until they become accustomed to the change, but the long-range benefits far outweigh the short-term inconvenience. Conjunctive management of both surface and ground water sources can increase effective yields from each.

13. Flood plain management is long overdue. Many flooding problems could be eliminated and expensive flood control works made unnecessary — if improvements and developments were kept out of the flood plains.

14. Small local communities and rural areas need not only planning aid but also financial assistance that may not be repaid for a considerable period of time, if ever. The Water Development Board could give such planning aid and should do so. If the law on repayment is too strict to permit financial assistance to such communities and areas, then perhaps such legal strictures should be relaxed.

15. Emergency measures should now be prepared for the next drought. Just as we have civil defense plans for a national emergency, so should we now have contingency plans for the next drought emergency.

16. How can the fresh water requirements of the bays and estuaries be met? How will such a program be financed?

Justice Files Antitrust Suit Against Dairy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Justice Department has filed civil antitrust charges against a dairy cooperative which has been under investigation in connection with contributions to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

In a suit filed this week in U.S. District Court here, the government charged that Mid-America Dairymen Inc. attempted to monopolize milk sales and restrain trade in a 10 state area through practices that eliminated competition from independent producers.

It accused the company of entering into illegal agreements with milk haulers to restrain the ability of independents to transport their milk to processors.

Mid-America headquartered in Springfield, Mo. has about 19,000 milk producer members in Texas, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

It and two other large dairy cooperatives — Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) and Dairymen Inc. — are under investigation by the Senate Watergate Committee and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski's office.

They want to know whether contributions of $427,000 to Nixon's re-election campaign were tied to the administration's 1971 increase in dairy price supports.

Thursday's antitrust suit was the third filed by Justice against major dairy cooperatives in the past two years. AMPI and Dairymen had been named in previous antitrust actions.

The Justice Department said Mid-America virtually eliminated competition in its marketing area through a series of illegal contracts that were entered into as early as 1968. The contracts restricted the ability of Mid-America members to withdraw from the cooperative and hire independent transporters and producers, the suit said.

Agriculturally Speaking

1973 will soon pass off the calendar. This will be a year long talked about by farmers, ranchers, and cattle feeders.

Generally speaking it was an excellent year for those farmers and ranchers that were first owners of the products they produced. We are speaking of the cow-calf operator and the straight milo and wheat farmer who did not run cattle. For the cattle feeder that kept his pens full in the feedlot, it was a painful adjustment in a downward price spiral. For the straight stocker operator this was also true.

Even with prices at an all-time high, he had some other more important factors working against him. They were bad weather, heavy death loss, and poor and expensive gains. The cut-off of the old wheat program and Government-sponsored fence to fencing planting and harvesting were not in his interest.

High priced wheat for grain made less wheat available for grazing. $35.00 per acre wheat for pasture proved disastrous to both the wheat farmer and cattle man who bought the grazing. Nothing seemed to click for the average stocker-feeder operator.

The three weeks of high cattle prices on finished cattle in August did not cover enough span to have beneficial effects on very many people. For those that got in on this high price, most bought replacement cattle at an even higher price and gave up most, if not all, of their August profit.

When prices take a $21.00 tumble on finished cattle, a lot of people get hurt.

Even though there have been some painful adjustments made in 1973 for cattlemen, the overall gross income dollars for Gray County will break all records. We expect it to exceed forty million dollars in 1973. This does not mean the net income will rise in direct proportion.

It does mean that the Pampa business community is now on an agricultural boom. The Chamber of Commerce and the business people of this area have fully recognized this. A few short years back our agricultural income was ranging between three million and eight million dollars annually.

The new Cockrell feedlot made a very substantial addition to our agri-business complex.

Now Packerland Industries has moved to our city from Greenbay, Wis. They have a big expansion program in mind.

There is other new agri-industry you will soon be hearing about. There will be others.

Yes, agriculture, our oldest profession, is now emerging as Pampa's number one industry.

For each of you we wish the best in a most prosperous and happy New Year.

Akron Chamber Drops Support Of Boy's Derby

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — The president of the Akron Chamber of Commerce said Friday the All-American Soap Box Derby had become a victim of "cheating, fraud and hoax" and the chamber would no longer support the race.

Country Atmosphere

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, DEC. 30

Your birthday today: Introduces the most serene year anybody could expect to enjoy in these turbulent times. Intensity of your inner experience is reflected in unusual "luck" in gathering material resources, with little special effort. Relationships tend to drift along pleasantly enough. Today's natives have excellent memories for anything that intrigues them, often achieve positions of public trust.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Let well enough alone, once you have fulfilled your community's expectations. Your favorite hobby brings much enjoyment, relaxation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: There's no point in going out of your way or to special expense to please anybody but yourself, as your true friends are all willing to share things as they are.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Keep an open schedule and if little happens, fine. Time for prayer, meditation, and simple rest is well spent. Later hours bring rising energy.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: First things first: your obligations, any promises now due for redemption. Then take up unfinished business before you get into new and dubious pursuits.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Make a good appearance bright and early, help your home folks and neighborhood to see the message of Sunday. Otherwise, taking it easy is the thing to do.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Lay aside some of your customary attention to trivial details. In most of today's concerns, that is exactly what they are—trivial.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: What you must do should be done without complaint. Evening hours find you rickling merrily along in a social mood, preferably with a few old friends.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: It's time you stopped a moment to take a good look at where you are in your life, what you are becoming as you get from one day to another.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Make the rounds of your home and neighborhood seeking ways of making daily living fuller, more enjoyable. Gather good friends for an evening party.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Nostalgia is the typical mood of this easygoing Sunday. Just be sure the past was really what you now recall or realize that you are idealizing.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: An uneventful Sunday of genuine personal rest, generously inspired by prayer. Give others the freedom to pursue happiness in their particular styles.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Give some thought to planning the coming year, but let the resolutions be simple and feasible. It's better to make none than set yourself up an impossible goal.

MONDAY, DEC. 31

Your birthday today: Clearing a passage for yourself is one way of describing your main actions in the first part of the year. Much of the year's circumstances are not to be taken seriously; the challenge is to decide which. Relationships thrive, encounter interesting turns of coincidence. Today's natives display a strong sense of propriety, zeal in protecting anything in their care.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: If you celebrate, keep it simple and give great attention to the amenities. Moderation should begin early and continue late if you are to navigate successfully.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Review of your situation means inventory and a budget of expectations as well as cash. A revision will be needed soon, of course.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Celebration is to be kept mild and sincere, starting as late as your local conditions permit. Don't waste time fussing over details.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Troubleshooting is the most productive line available. Mixing social doings with business is more ticklish than ever.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Resolutions are to be lived, not merely proclaimed, thus should those which you are already fulfilling, with slight improvements.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Letting well enough alone works best now. Tidy up, if you haven't found any way of getting out altogether for a long weekend break.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: New Year's Eve this year is best done up quietly, without nostalgia. Those you love and a few close friends are plenty of company.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: A restless mood is normal. The challenge is directing the energy into constructive channels, most of which seem closed for the moment.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Extra expense isn't the solution now, whatever the temptation or persuasion, although some outlays are inevitable. Older people are not to be slighted.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: It's not so much what you do today as it is how you do it, what attitude you bring to the doing. There really is very little to work out, and it is just as well.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Steer clear of new experiments or last minute changes. Efforts to cover an error make it worse. Self-discipline now saves much confusion later.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Discard whatever is worn out or has lost its function. During the earlier hours conserve your energy for a long, lively evening.

A Happy New Year To All — J. D.

Red Cross News

By NELL CARTER

We hope everyone had a good time over the holidays. Mrs. Shotwell was in Fort Worth the week of Christmas visiting her family and enjoying Christmas with her 4-year-old great granddaughter. We hope she had a good time with her family.

Swim classes will resume at the Youth Center Jan. 7 with Ruth Carter. Red Cross WSI teaching these classes. Ruth Carter will be teaching an adult class at 9 a.m. starting Jan. 7.

You mothers get the kids back in school and make plans to be at the pool on this date. The water is warm and you will feel better if you exercise. There will be a baby sitter at the Center for those who have small children.

If you already know how to swim but want to improve your skills, get on out on the 7th and Ruth Carter will teach all the skills from Beginners to Advanced Swimmer. Any of you ladies who are thinking about taking the Water Safety Instructor Course in April should come out now and sharpen your skills.

Anyone interested in taking a First Aid course should call the office and talk to us about the date, as the First Aid Instructor would like to have 10 students for each class.

Our office will be closed New Year's Day but we will be on 24-hour call. You can reach the Red Cross by calling 665-8771. We hope 1974 will be a good year for all of you.

In the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's first 15 years, some 300 satellites have been sent into earth orbit and interplanetary space.
