

Dear Abby

Any bit part would help star struck's ego

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You seem to have all the answers so maybe you can help me. I want to get into show business. I know I don't have the talent to be a big star, but I'd be satisfied with bit parts as long as it's show business. How do I get started?

I'd gladly be an errand boy, or park cars, or run an elevator in a television or movie studio.

I'd do anything just to be where the action is. I don't have any contacts, but I've had this hangup about Hollywood ever since I can remember. I'm 18 now, and want to do something about it.

I live in New Jersey, but I'd be willing to move to California.

DEAR STRUCK: An 18-year-old with no talent, no contacts, no experience, and no special training shouldn't head West without a round-trip ticket and enough bread to keep him going for six months. But if you decide to go to Hollywood, buy yourself a Sunday Los Angeles Times. It has an enormous want ad section, and it's thick enough to use as a mattress, if necessary.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who really gets my goat. Sometimes when I've been on the phone for a long time she will call and shout in a very angry tone: "I have been trying to get you for an hour—who in the devil have you been yakking with for so long?" And like a fool, I apologetically tell her.

Or if I come home after having been gone all day, she'll phone and bark: "I've been trying to reach you all day—where the heck were you?" Not knowing what else to say, I tell her.

I don't think I have to account to her about where I've been or to whom I've been talking. Other than coming right out and telling her it's none of her business, can you suggest a more subtle way of telling her off?

DEAR ANNOYED: Say: "If anybody asks you... just tell 'em you don't know." She'll get the message.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Have a beautiful Christmas Eve. Call up an enemy and bury the hatchet.

Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JANUARY 1

Your birthday today: Nothing can casually be taken for granted in this coming year of changing directions, occasional detours, and many episodes of high interest. Those born this year have a mission in changing the world, and will need a broad education for a better understanding of it.

Today's natives who were born in previous years share a long memory and the knack for carrying responsibility for their social groups. Aries (March 21-April 19): It seems clear that the world is your oyster and you've got at least some of the tools for getting it open. Be there early and willing to work late.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In this early phase of your energy cycle it is important to make exact measurements, precise estimates of probability. Call your shot rather than just pushing ahead. Gemini (May 21-June 20): Recovery or replacement of working tools and useful habits is the first order of business all week. Later hours promise welcome news from far places.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): A competitor moving in involves himself with a limited goal [which doesn't mean all that much to you] and is not then free to compete elsewhere. Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your friends have oodles of bright ideas, most of which revolve around your doing something for them. The easier course is to be off before they can catch up with you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There is no minute to lose, no minute lacking some minor surprise or interesting detail, as you pursue a run of preparations and routines. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Creative effort is favored over all other ways of expressing yourself. In any case, you cannot play hooky from your responsibilities.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Whether it's official or not, today is the first in a tacitly accepted new status for you, the net result of past decisions and hard work on your part.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Another day in which you move on faith and incomplete information. The advice of friends continues to be slanted with their personal opinions.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The breaks come your way, if you will speak up and ask for what you've earned. Strive to bring all accounts to an even balance by the end of this week.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The temptation now is toward exaggerated views of your own importance—with probable repercussions in proportion to your overstatements.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Younger people pose somewhat of a problem by their tendency to imagine new mischief. Aside from this, you have no external difficulty.

RETIREE TEACHERS

The Pampa Retired Teachers Association met for their Christmas Party recently in the Flame Room of Pioneer Gas Co.

B. R. Nuckolls serves as president of the organization. From a Christmas decorated table, 65 members and guests were served cookies and coffee.

After Mrs. Fred Brook gave a review, "A Dash O' Spice," Mrs. W.H. Burden led the group in singing Christmas Carols.

The Rev. Ralph Palmer, guest, spoke on "No Room In The Inn."

Gifts were presented to the following who attended the event. Mrs. Lonnie Hood, Miss Chloe Darden, Mr. and Mrs. A.Z. Griffin, Miss Anna Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sullivan, Mrs. J.L. Holmes, and Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Williams.

Adequate rest and good nutrition will increase resistance to influenza and other infections during the winter months.

"AT WIT'S END"

By ERMA BOMBECK

In reading over the public opinion poll on the "most honest and trustworthy public servants" it came as quite a shock to me to see my trash collector in the No. 2 spot. (He followed my family physician, who after three drinks I wouldn't trust with my eye examination scores.)

I certainly don't mean to imply that my trashman is not honest and trustworthy. It's just that if other housewives share confidences with him, he must be taking out more than garbage. Ours has been an impersonal relationship, sparked only by an occasional wave and a plea, "Can you take eight cans?"

I mentioned this to my neighbor, Mayva, who said I was wrong. "Your garbage man knows you better than anyone in this world," she said. "After all, you are what you throw away."

"That is the most ridiculous thing I ever heard," I said. "I don't even know my garbage man's name, so what could he possibly know about me?"

"Everything," she said flatly. "He knew when you had that party for the Proctors by the big bag of empties and paper plates. He knows when you're on a diet because you have tons of yogurt boxes. He knew when you got your new portable TV set because he saw the box."

"That's incredible," I said. "I had no idea..."

"He knew when you went on a vacation last year because you only had 6 cans at the curb. He knew when you tried that new peanut butter-veal casserole that didn't turn out, and he knew when your bird died and when you shaved your legs."

"Good grief, is nothing sacred?"

Mayva leaned closer and continued in a whisper. "He knows when you file your income tax, when you pay your bills, when you're sick and when you get called to school to talk about your under-achiever."

He knows what book club you belong to, what magazines you read, when you're called for jury duty, how you feel about ecology, and that you use Brand X to save money. Your trash collector knows how often you clean.

"STOP!" I demanded. "I don't want to hear any more. And to think I never realized what a confidence this man has kept all through the years. Incidentally, Mayva, how did you know all that stuff?"

Your trash collector told me," she shrugged.

"Then how come he's No. 2?" I demanded hotly.

Mayva shrugged. "Because he isn't trying."

Highway Speeds

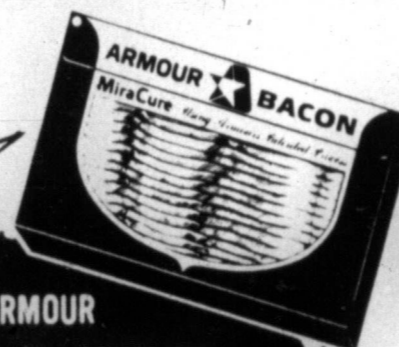

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — The chairman of the State Highway Commission says speed limits on Arkansas highways will remain the highest in the nation unless Congress decides otherwise.

Chairman Maurice Smith says he thought it would be too dangerous to lower the 75-mile-per-hour interstate speed limit to 50 because it couldn't be enforced and the people slowing down would be endangered by those drivers who refused to slow down.

Reminiscing With Dear Abby--Laughter, Worries And Tears

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a mother should cover up for Father so the children won't know what a louse he is?

I've made excuses for my husband ever since I can remember. It's "Daddy is sick." [Daddy was hung over.] Or, "Daddy didn't come home for supper because he had to work late." [Daddy didn't call to say he wouldn't be home. I don't know where he was, or what he was doing.]

I've said, "We can't afford a new car—or a vacation this year because Daddy needs the money to put back into his business." when the truth was, "Daddy likes to gamble."

I ask myself, why should I protect Daddy? When the kids get older they'll learn the truth anyway.

So, Dear Abby, you're supposed to have all the answers. Can you answer this one? PROTECTING DADDY

DEAR PROTECTING: At an age where children believe that Daddy is the greatest, what's to be gained by being brutally factual? I don't recommend crowning him with a halo—neither do I support your suggestion that he deserves a noose. Like the Santa Claus myth, children's illusions about Daddy [and Mama] vanish soon enough. Don't shove.

DEAR ABBY: How would you feel if you found your 16-year-old daughter and her 17-year-old boy friend asleep on her bed with the door closed? ROCKPORT, MASS.

DEAR ROCK: Nervous.

DEAR ABBY: Our next door neighbors are lovely people. They are both in their early sixties. Well, "Mister" loves to smoke cigars, and "Mrs." will not let him smoke cigars in the house, so he goes out in the backyard and smokes up a blue storm every evening after supper. Their backyard joins ours.

We have a picnic table in our backyard, and enjoy eating outside, but the fumes from his cigar drift to our dining area and spoil my appetite. [We live in Iowa, and there's not much of a breeze here.]

They are such nice neighbors, always giving us flowers and vegetables from their garden. Should we say anything? Or just eat indoors? I can't take that cigar smoke.

NEIGHBORS

DEAR NEIGHBORS: Try diverting the cigar pollution with an electric fan. I am no smoke-lover, but any man who enjoys his cigar so much he lets his wife chase him out of the house to smoke it needs sympathy and a little compassion.

DEAR ABBY: I recently became very much attracted to a gentleman who proudly admits to being 73. He's a snappy dresser and is full of fun. I am a middle-aged woman, but this man leaves me in the dust when it comes to dancing, tennis, golf, and any other physical exercise you can name.

He seems very much interested in me. My question: At his age, is he harmless?

JOYCE

DEAR JOYCE: If you mean what I think you mean, if he's "harmless" he won't be able to do you any good. But whether he can do you any good without doing you any harm will depend on YOUR condition.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old girl, living alone. I date a guy who is 20 and lives at home. He called and some relatives had come in from out of town and wanted to stay all night, but they were short of room at his house so he told his mother he would sleep at a friend's house. Well, the "friend" happened to be me.

When he asked if he could sleep here, I said, "Sure," thinking I'd put him up on the sofa. When it became apparent that he thought he was going to share my bed, I said, "Nothing doing."

He said I was "undersexed" and I threw him out of the house. He hasn't called me since.

LINDA

DEAR LINDA: No. He's over optimistic.

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a very embarrassing problem. I am a 20-year-old college junior at a large university. For a while I dated what seemed to be a nice guy [I'll call Bill. He attends the same "U," and is an art major.]

Bill took some harmless photographs of me on the beach in my two-piece bathing suit last summer. After that I sort of broke off with Bill and started seeing another fellow.

I recently learned thru friends that Bill is painting a nude portrait of me, using as a model the picture he took of me in the bathing suit. Of course, he's using his imagination, but I don't like the idea. He's planning to use this "nude" portrait of me in an art exhibit. I do have a great body, but I don't want half the world seeing me naked, in addition to which I don't want people to think that I am the kind of girl who would pose for a picture like that. It could destroy my reputation.

Is there anything I can do to stop him?

NO NUDE MODEL

DEAR NO NUDE: Since it's your "great body" Bill wants to immortalize on canvas, ask him to please use somebody-else's face. If he refuses, ask him to please leave the suit on, or you will see a lawyer about bringing another kind of "suit" into the picture.

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man check up on his wife to be sure he knows exactly where she is every minute? Do you think he suspects that she's playing around? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to know where SHE is while HE'S playing around.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who has been deeply involved with a married man for four years. He has children and so have I.

I divorced my husband thinking he would divorce his wife and marry me. I can't honestly say that he promised to divorce his wife, but he said so many things like: "If we were both free, I would marry you in a minute," and: "I have never loved anyone the way I love you. I took it to mean he would divorce his wife and marry me. I was wrong."

My husband never suspected a thing until I made a full confession. Now that he knows the truth he will have nothing to do with me. Was I foolish? VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: You were. Your mistake was taking pillow talk seriously. Actually, it's nothing more than a lot of horsefeathers.

DEAR ABBY: After 33 years of marriage, I believe I have discovered a cure for the common scold—sometimes known as the nagging wife. Tho I doubt that it ever has been tried, the best way to get a woman to shut her mouth is to cover it with kisses. HARRY O. LIBSON, N. Y. C.

DEAR HARRY: While your suggested cure is undoubtedly effective, it's extremely hazardous. It could lead to overpopulation.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old single girl and have my own apartment. When I go out on a date and we wind up the evening at a rather late hour, the fellow will start with, "Man, am I ever tired. You're lucky you don't have to drive clear across town to get home tonight."

I usually say something like, "I sure am," whereupon they feel snubbed and get even less subtle and start pressuring me to let them sleep on my couch, etc., etc.

Abby, that kind of situation makes me feel uncomfortable, but I really haven't hit upon a nice way of saying, "Sorry, but no." Then again I wonder what harm there would be in letting them sleep on my couch. I do feel sorry for them because they ARE tired, and it is a long drive across town. Can you help?

TURNING THEM OUT INTO THE COLD

DEAR TURNING: Don't let anyone get THAT tired. Before his indicator starts pointing toward a place to sleep, thank him for the lovely evening and turn in. Alone.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating an attractive gentleman who has a very annoying habit. He keeps looking at his watch every 15 minutes or so. What conclusions would you draw from this annoying habit? REDHEAD

DEAR RED: I would conclude that he is eager to go somewhere. [Possibly home.]

The American Automobile Association suggests you make sure your outside faucets do not contain water and leave the spigots open. Other suggestions: Hire someone to shovel your sidewalks in case of a heavy snow. Keep your thermostat set at 60 degrees to prevent inside water pipes from freezing. Four Reasons On Energy Use

NEW YORK (UPI) — Why take steps to conserve energy on the homefront? Consolidated Edison, the utility company that supplies watts and such to New York City, answers. To wit:

—First, the high costs of producing and delivering energy have forced our watts even higher. By saving electricity and gas, you also save on utility bills.

—Second, fuels to produce electricity are in short supply. So is natural gas.

—Third, there is no known way to produce and deliver electricity in the quantities people need without some adverse effect on the natural environment. By conserving electricity, we help protect the environment.

—Fourth, there is the problem of energy shortages during the periods of peak demand. We ask you to save watts at all seasons.

“By conserving energy, you help us ensure an adequate supply for all, most of all for the many life-support functions in the community—hospitals and other medical facilities, traffic control and others,” the utility company reminded.

Newsman Support Freedom Of Press

AUSTIN — A survey of the general public, the press, legislators, teachers and students reveals that “newsman are alone in their high regard for freedom of the press.”

The nationwide study of 1,361 persons was undertaken by Dr. Martin L. Gibson, University of Texas assistant professor of journalism, as part of his doctoral dissertation research.

Dr. Gibson set out to determine the differences, if any existed, between various groups' attitudes toward the press and its freedom.

His findings were that:

—There is solid agreement that the media sometimes slant the news.

—There is some support for a press council.

—Legislators (state legislators in Gibson's study) were nearer the newsman's position than any other group.

—Students (high school in the Gibson study) commonly take a stand different from newsmen.

The survey posed questions about creating laws to force newspapers to give equal space to opposing issues, whether journalists should be licensed, whether newspapers should be required to clear stories that might affect U.S. relations with other countries, and the influence of advertising on a newspaper.

“One cheering factor is that legislators, who work with laws more than most people, do not want to have the press restricted by laws, even though they disapprove much of the conduct of the press,” Dr. Gibson notes.

“Generally speaking, the people are not satisfied with the way the press is run. If they don't like it, they can change it, it may take a long time, but they can change it, and we won't have freedom of the press,” he continues.

“Most people want the press to be free, but they want more for it to be accurate and responsible,” Dr. Gibson adds.

“If it doesn't do what it is supposed to, many people will should sit down and gather his thoughts and realize that what the First Amendment gave, the next amendment can take away.”

“If the government runs the press, you may rest assured that the press will not be able to criticize the government or supply critical facts that the public needs in order to vote on the government's actions,” he concludes.

Dr. Gibson offers four suggestions for demonstrating the need to support freedom of the press:

—The press should demonstrate that press freedom is a right that benefits the public, not the press.

—The press should help people understand why it should enjoy the right to be wrong “because the alternative is a system in which the government decides what is right.”

—The press should do a better job of promoting itself as the public's guardian against evildoers in government, industry, labor and elsewhere.

Politicians And Panic

One of the tragic things about the declining economy is that actions of politicians hasten the decline and actually make it worse and more long lasting than it would otherwise be. The important factor in the national economy in the final analysis is the individual's own personal well being.

Long, Long Gravy Train

We supposed we were rid of former Vice President Spiro Agnew after he quit his office and took a dive in tax court. Now we learn that he has set up shop within a stone's throw of his old stomping grounds and that Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer have picked up a tab totaling nearly $100,000.

OUTRIDER Gasoline Shortage? Here Are Some Anti-Rationing Points

By GARRY WILLIS - Some oil firms have fixed prices and cordoned each other, squeezing out smaller competitors. No one wants to see such firms profiting by shortages they helped cause. But this motive should not override the many arguments against rationing.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT
Hunting For A So-So Singer

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — Movie director John Hancock is combing the nation for a girl singer who doesn't sing good.
"I know hundreds of them," I told him as he outlined his needs at Gallagher's.
"Wait," he said. "She must be luscious, and able to carry a tune just badly enough that we can understand why she never soared right to the top. If she happens to sing well, it won't be held against her, but it might be a handicap."
She'll become the star of "Ruby Red," about a country music vocalist from down Memphis and Nashville direction. And since she's unknown now, she might duplicate the career of others who were found in talent searches.

Vivien Leigh, for example, wasn't famous in America when David Selznick picked her for "Gone With the Wind" — though aulette Goddard and Bette Davis were leading candidates. Nancy Carroll was also found in a talent search, so were Tallulah Bankhead, Jennifer Jones and Millie Perkins.
John Hancock isn't making idle promises. He directed the much acclaimed "Bang the Drum Slowly." He's from Illinois, is Harvard-educated and lives in Sweden's Landing, N.Y., where he keeps bees. He puts on the masks and gloves and goes out and gets stung regularly.
"Bees are very moody," he says. "In weather like this you never know what a bee is going to do. I don't know why I keep bees and let them sting me."
"Probably more pleasure in it," he said, "than looking for girl singers who don't sing good."

TV In Review

By RICK DUBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the wonders of the television industry is ABC-TV, which manages to be consistently interesting in its programming despite having virtually no, smash hit weekly series.
What ABC-TV is shrewdly exploiting is the fact that the young urban audience it has long focused on is less habit-prone than other series, and probably more open to selecting one-shot programs than automatically seeking out weekly entries.
CBS-TV, the most successful network in the ratings, has a fistful of weekly series hits, among them: "All in the Family," "The Waltons," "MASH," "Maude," "The Mary Tyler Moore," Bob Newhart, Lucille Ball and Carol Burnett shows, "Hawaii Five-O," "Cannon" and "Gunsmoke."
NBC-TV also has some regularly scheduled programs it can count on to register solidly in the statistics, among them: "Sanford and Son," "The Walt Disney series "Adam-12" and "Columbo."
But ABC-TV has to scratch hard to make potent ratings impressions with its weekly shows. It does, of course, have some regularly scheduled entries it can generally count on to do well, or better than that at times, in the popularity rankings. And these shows include "Marcus Welby, M.D.," "Kung Fu," "The Rookies," "The FBI," "The Streets of San Francisco" and the Tuesday and Wednesday movies-of-the-week (televays which vary widely in their ratings impact).
No one at ABC-TV, however, would seriously argue that any of its series that are generally successful in the statistics have the knockout punch of, say, "All in the Family," "The Waltons" or "Sanford and Son." "Marcus Welby, M.D." used to be in this real powerhouse category, at one time ranking as television's most popular show. It still is a solid and successful program, but no longer has the same ratings potency.
How, then, does ABC-TV go about qualifying as a programming hit for selective viewers? As indicated, it all comes back to its one-shot specials, and its attitude toward broadcast content. The content of many of its shows, specials and regular series, has a very with-it feel. Win or lose in the ratings, ABC-TV seems tuned in to the vibrations of today. Of course it has its share of standard losers, but even its failures are often provocative, more so than some routine "hits."

"I'm going to read this speech," critic George Oppenheimer told the Dutch Treat, "because my memory isn't as good as it used to be. In fact, my memory's so bad, I can't remember HOW good it used to be."

The most requested song of the Watergate Committee was "Play It Again, Sam" (Robert L. Duncan, Tulsa)... Dean Martin, who opened the Las Vegas Grand Dec. 5, finished and Sheky Greene and Barbara Eden followed. The hotel says, "Dean holds our attendance record to date."
Ex-stripper Sherry Britton will title her autobiography, "What's a Nice Girl Like Me Doing On a Runway?" (Sherry says today's TV startles her: "When I see all those navel... I was just born too soon")... Joan Bennett and Bob Strauss'll co-star in "Never Too Late" at the Miami Beach Carillon.

Richard Harris, at The Cowboy with Ann Turkel, insists he's given up smoking and drinking... Xaviera Hollander, ex-"Happy Hooker," will have a cameo role in the movie version of the book; her scenes will be shot in Toronto — she's persona non grata here... Liberty magazine will rerun an article from its Aug. '42 issue, titled "How to Drive Without Gas."
David Selby of "Supercoops" will star on Broadway in the

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Tom wants advice on how to avoid breaking his New Year's Resolutions. Scrapbook this case, for you can free yourself immediately from slavery to bad habits by the advice below. And that booklet will offer additional help.
CASE Z-513: Tom R., aged 39, is very discouraged.
"Dr. Crane," he said, "I smoke too much.
"And my wife is 30 pounds too fat."
"So we'd both like to break our slavery to cigarettes and excess calories at the table."
"But how?"
"We've tried several times and always fail."
"So we have lost most of our fervor for making any new resolutions."
"Dr. Crane, can you show us how to become free from these bad habits?"

John Wayne was able to quit cigarettes when he found Death staring him in the face.
So was Arthur Godfrey - and others, who finally decide 100 percent to quit their slavery to nicotine.
(3) Avoid former associates who abetted your nuisance habits, and form a new circle of friends who will aid your good resolutions.
(4) Tobacco addiction means a craving to expend extra muscular energy, so twirl your key ring or place a tight rubber band on your thumb, then over the back of your hand and on the little finger. Toy with it instead of a cigarette.
For trying to dislodge this rubber band will occupy that "cigarette" hand.
(5) Drug addiction and alcoholism are typical symptoms of sexual inadequacy, whereby the victims try to hide from or camouflage their erotic inferiority complex.
If wives will furnish more cheesecake in the boudoir and spend less time on culinary recipes, they can soon banish their husband's basic reason for stopping at taverns.
(6) Get others to join you in your abstinence from the former bad habits.
Then, like Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.), you can bolster your own good resolutions by trying to "sell" others on remaining steadfast. Remember, a salesman thus sells himself every time he repeats his own sales talk!
(7) Have a contest within the family, for Tom can quit tobacco while his wife meanwhile remains on her diet.
For further advice, send for my booklet "How to Break the Tobacco and Liquor Habits," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47524. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for any of the booklets.)

Under Twenty

By JEANNE HARRISON
Of all the tunes in the top ten singles and top five albums, Elton John's "Goodbye, Yellow Brick Road" gets a big gold star for having stuck there consistently over the last several weeks, back again in first place among albums; still hanging in there at the number seven slot among singles.
Here's the score:
TOP TEN SINGLES (+)
1. "The Most Beautiful Girl" — Charlie Rich
2. "Leave Me Alone (Rudy Red Dress)" — Helen Reddy
3. "Time in a Bottle" — Jim Croce
4. "The Joker" — Steve Miller Band
5. "Hello It's Me" — Todd Rundgren
6. "Show & Tell" — Al Wilson
7. "Goodbye, Yellow Brick Road" — Elton John
8. "Leaving For The City" — Stevie Wonder
9. "If You're Ready" — Staple Singers
10. "Mind Game" — John Lennon
TOP FIVE ALBUMS (+)
1. "Goodbye, Yellow Brick Road" — Elton John
2. "The Joker" — Steve Miller Band
3. "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" — Neil Diamond
4. "The Singles 1969-73" — Carpenters
5. "Ringo" — Ringo Starr
There's some old and some new in Bob Dylan's latest album, "Dylan." The originals include "Mary Ann" and "Spanish Is The Loving Tongue." Still at it and strong is ex-Beatle Paul McCartney & Wings with "Band On The Run."
Jim Croce is sorely missed by his fans. His posthumous album, "I Got A Name," shows the loss suffered by his fatal accident. Diana Ross, always a winner, has a highly spinable offering in "Last Time I Saw Him."

 January is named for the god Janus who had eyes in the back of his head as well as the front, so that he could see the past as he viewed the future. In looking back at 1973, I'm not sure our nervous systems could stand another 12 months like those we have just completed.

The tough part about forecasting these days is the variables and uncertainties which can completely cancel out any forecast. Even though the Arab leaders are finding themselves increasingly embarrassed by the embargo and the fact that economic blackmail will inevitably fail, I will assume that the oil embargo against the U.S. will not be lifted until well into 1974.

Product during 1974. I believe we will see an increase of 7.8 percent in the GNP in 1974.

Experts have been making dire predictions about sharply rising demands of labor unions for wage increases in 1974 because of spiraling living costs. Do not expect this to be a major factor in labor costs this year. The number of workers under contracts that must be renegotiated in 1974 will be considerably less than it was in 1973, about 8 percent of the labor force.

The major area of concern for 1974 will be labor productivity, which is far more significant than increases in hourly wages. Remember, productivity improves sharply during economic recoveries, but slows dramatically during boom periods.

I'm sure you have read numerous articles about the prospects for substantial unemployment in 1974 due to the energy emergency (emergency sounds better than crisis). You should be in for a nice surprise. Unemployment rates will very likely decline in 1974 due to the need for additional workers to satisfy further increases in demands while plants are running at full capacity.

Last Week In Wall Street

Moreover, we should begin seeing a slowdown in the rate of growth of the labor force in 1974. This is why there will probably be more people employed in 1974 than in 1973.

A major economic consequence of the Mideast war is a change in the attitude of Congress toward defense spending. Defense spending should jump sharply throughout calendar 1974. This is good news for defense contractors for two reasons.

First, the Israeli hardware lost in the war will have to be replaced, presumably from U.S. producers. Second, the Administration can now make a strong case that the U.S. has slipped in terms of sophisticated military hardware. Defense spending, which has been relatively flat in recent years, will take a rise in calendar 1974, further reducing the possibility of a recession.

Since corporate profits will drop next year, an increase in defense spending will practically insure a Federal budget deficit in 1974. This will accentuate the Treasury's financing job in 1974. This means that short-term interest rates will stay at this level or slightly lower next year.

The Mideast conflict emphasizes the vulnerability of oil supplies from the Arabian countries. It is reasonable to assume that eventually crude oil will again be imported from the Arabian states, but that the price of such crude will be substantially higher over a period of time. Such price rises practically guarantee increases in fuel prices and a further push to inflation.

You should expect the Dow Jones Industrial Average to establish a base at the 750-800 level because the market has now adequately discounted the economic uncertainties confronting the nation. 1974 will be a rising stock market year for basic industry stocks. Autos, banks, insurance, steels and telephone stocks will be above average performers.
