Negroes Segregated Under Ordinance Passed Last Night

A city ordinance was passed by the city commission at its regular meeting last night separating the white residents of the city from the negro citizens. The ordinance will go into effect as soon as published.

It provides for a zone district for the negroes, which will be plot No. 177 in the original suburbs of Pampa in the southwest portion of the city, where most of the negroes are located. It also states that no person shall erect a building for the housing of colored people other than in the zone specified and that no negro shall reside in houses at the rear of lots in white section.

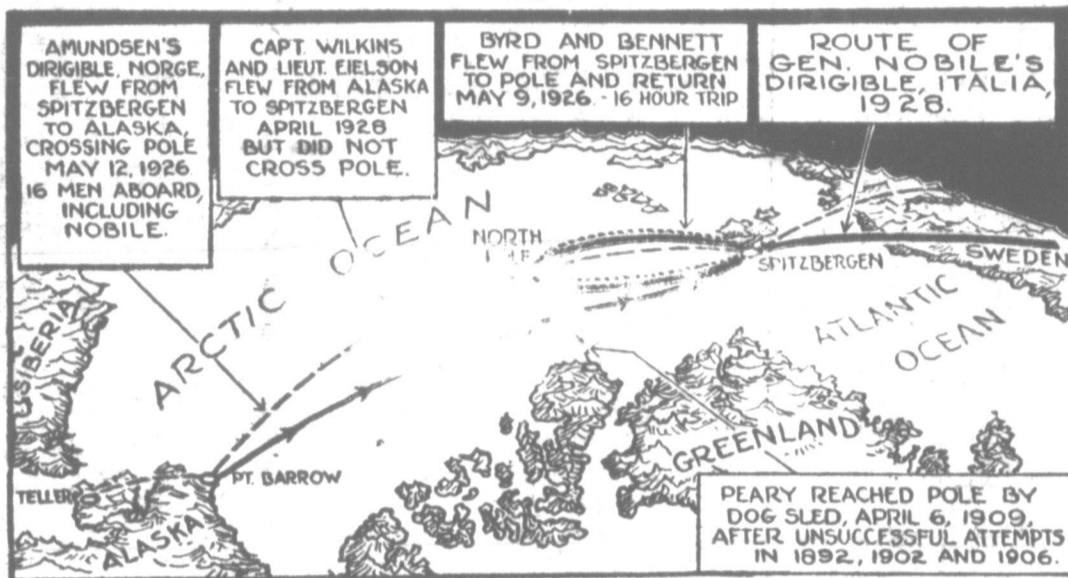

An ordinance also was passed requiring all plumbers to pass an examination before working on jobs in the City of Pampa. A new plumbing ordinance was passed to be put into effect in the near future.

A special meeting of the commission will be held Friday evening, to pass the assessment roll for the paving program.

Citizens Protest That Airport Is Playground For the Idle Rich

GRAFTON, Mass., May 8.—(P)—The establishment of an airport at Brigham Hill has not only affected the nerves of the citizens but has affected the cows and chickens to such an extent that the supply of milk and eggs has diminished to an alarming extent, according to the complaint made to the selectmen at a hearing which ended early today after being in session several hours.

Forty five tax-payers protested against low flying by aviators, the crossing of the highways by planes and the continuous roar of the motors.

One citizen told the selectmen of there was any more low flying which he considered a menace to his property he would bring his shotgun into use. Another declared that the airfield was nothing more than a plaything for the idle rich.

The airport management asserted its willingness to remedy conditions.

New Fair Board to Meet Today

A meeting of the new fair board has been called for this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Plans will be discussed for re-organizing the Gray county fair. The committee composed of J. S. Smith, F. H. Bell, R. G. Christie, W. B. Campbell and J. L. Lester, will probably act as a central committee and will appoint sub-committees at this afternoon's meeting.

The last fair was held in 1925, when a wind storm wrecked the tents and destroyed the moral of the association. More than $800 is in the treasury at the present time to be used for re-organization purposes.

His body was found in the river at Shanghai.

He was appointed a clerk in the Shanghai consulate in 1923 and later that year was made a vice-consul there. Prior to that he had served as an assistant paymaster for the shipping board.

Wildcat Gas Plans Attacked at Meeting of National Body

DALLAS, May 8.—(P)—A defensive war by the natural gas industry especially in the Southwest, against wildcatting gas companies and stock selling schemes which attempt to gain operating franchises in cities, was urged here today before the annual convention of the National Gas Association of America by the association's retiring president, N. C. McGowen of Shreveport.

In his annual address, Mr. McGowen declared that the industry should arm itself with information and technical data so that "when we are confronted with the proposition of irresponsible interests going before the people of a city seeking franchises for the introduction of our product we can act intelligently and fight effectively."

The center of natural gas growth has moved Southwestward, and Texas has moved into third place as a producing state, delegates were told by Mr. McGowen. Fifty years ago there was one state served with natural gas, Pennsylvania.

Newspaper Securities in Demand Over World—Nunn-Warren Firm Creates Department to Distribute Its Shares

Newspaper securities as investments are becoming more popular in the United States, Great Britain through the holdings of the late Lord Northcliffe, Lord Rothmere, Sir William Berry and others led in this form of investments.

When Lord Rothmere announced a few weeks ago that he desired several million dollars for the establishment of newspapers in Great Britain the subscription list was several times over-subscribed.

William Randolph Hearst has been the leader in newspaper securities in the United States. Shares totaling $12,000,000 were recently issued against the Chicago American by Mr. Hearst.

Hearst's Pacific Coast newspapers, including the Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles Evening Herald, San Francisco Examiner and Seattle Post-Intelligencer, were thrown into a unit. Securities totaling $20,000,000 to take care of expansion were issued and the public readily purchased them.

COUNTIES MEET OVER TEXAS

Little Rivalry Seen in Upper Panhandle Today

Gray county Republicans in convention here this afternoon voted to send an unimpaired delegate to the state convention in Dallas. Jot Montgomery of McLean, delegate, and Dr. V. E. von Brunow of Pampa, alternate, will attend the state meeting.

Dr. Brunow will be recommended at the state session to go as a delegate to the national convention in Kansas City.

Three Republican precinct conventions were held, it was revealed at a meeting of the county executive committee this morning. There was no Democratic convention, and reports from the North Plains indicated little interest and no controversy in the ranks of either party.

KANSAS CITY, May 8.—(P)—One man was slugged, four were kidnaped and a fifth was held up, incident to the municipal and county bond election here today. All were leaders in the Prodigal party in the first ward, formerly the fifth ward on the north side.

Anthony Divan, former alderman and now constable in the justice court of Frank Brown, was slugged and he resisted alleged kidnapers and was treated at his home for wounds on the head.

Justice Beaman was among those kidnaped. Others were Joe Galucci, Marion Nigro, precinct captain and Ben Ryan, city meat inspector. Ungelo Gerard, custodian of the city hall, was missing and reported kidnaped.

Harry Goldburgh, election judge, was warned to leave a polling place where he presided. He did.

The sum of money stolen had not been ascertained at press time.

Big Carnival Is Maze of Interests

The J. George Loos shows opened at their location in West Pampa last night under the auspices of the American Legion and the fire department.

The large organization, asserted to be the biggest of carnivals, received a large patronage in its initial showing. The midway was a riot of amusement and milling people. One of the most interesting shows in Alice, the mountain of flesh, and her tiny husband, Major Claude, said to be the smallest man ever born in Texas.

Rex, the big dog, and Tiny, the lithe horse, are here from Hollywood movie studio work. The Dixieland minstrels appear to be one of the best and largest of carnival companies.

Boxing and wrestling will be held by Pat Flynn, who places his imported talent against all comers. The shows and rides open each night at 7 o'clock. Free parking space is provided.

CHINESE ARE GATHERING FOR HEAVY ATTACK

Troops Rushed to Front By Both Nations Today

ONE AMERICAN REPORTED SHOT

Suggestion of Arbitration Is Made to United States

SHANGHAI, China, May 8.—(P)—Nationalist Chinese troops are reported in usually reliable sources to have surrounded the Japanese in Tsinan. Heavy fighting is proceeding.

PEKING, May 8.—(P)—A state of actual warfare in Shantung is indicated by official Japanese reports.

Latest word from Tsinan, capital of Shantung, states that heavy firing ensued at 8 o'clock this morning when a contingent of the thirteenth Japanese regiment reconnoitering in a northern suburb of Tsinan along the railway was fired upon by the Nationalists.

The Japanese are taking measures to enforce the proclamation of a neutral zone seven miles on either side of the Shantung railway where the Nationalists were last reported attacking in great numbers.

Today's fighting followed the issuing of an order by the Japanese general in command at Tsinan directing the Chinese Nationalist troops to withdraw outside the neutral zone. The Chinese refused and began to adopt offensive measures resulting in publication by the Japanese of a proclamation announcing recourse to active measures to enforce their demands.

Latest advices indicate that the Nationalists are gathering strength and are preparing to attack the Japanese from the northwest. Japanese reinforcements from Tsingtao were rushed to the defense line today immediately after detrainment.

TOKYO, May 8.—(P)—Premier Tanka today invited the heads of the diplomatic missions of Great Britain, United States, France and Italy to the foreign office and explained the general situation in Shantung, and the necessity for the dispatch of Japanese troops to China.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—The state department made it clear today that the United States could consider acting as mediator between Japan and the Nationalist government of China only if invited to do so by both sides.

PEKING, May 8.—(P)—Concern for Americans in Tsinan, where Chinese nationalists and Japanese troops clashed with heavy casualties was renewed today with the receipt of advices saying that fighting had been resumed. The Japanese chief of staff at Tsinan also sent a dispatch, dated yesterday, saying: "One American missionary killed."

IGNORANCE IS DANGEROUS in any form, but especially so when the masses of a country are dominated by it. It is not hard to find superstitious elements of the supernatural to support beliefs of the most absurd character.

For example, Moslem has suffered severely in the last three weeks from earthquakes of disaster calibre. Destruction of property has almost equalled that of certain Biblical examples.

It so happened that only a short time before the Turkish government had renounced Islam as the state religion. Now, it appearing to the ignorant peasantry that this act displeased God, the possibility of a religious revolt is becoming the subject for much concern. Religion is close to the hearts of ignorant masses, with nature second, hence any manifestation of the latter is almost certain to be interpreted in the former. Therefore get wisdom, and withal get understanding.

The New Banditry

The presence of portable machine guns in recent bank robberies in the Southwest is alarming the protective department of the American Bankers' Association.

There were 93 daylight robberies in the United States for the six-month period ending February 29, or more than double the figure of the year before. The approach of good weather will, it is feared, bring an increase of banditry.

Armed with machine guns, bandits are too dangerous for officers to handle, and a revival of the oldtime vigilante squads is being suggested. It is possible for counties to organize and be able to place a machine gun at every important road crossing within a few minutes after receiving the warning. Such drastic action likely will become necessary, especially in those sections having rough country adjacent to form a hiding place for the bad men.

Efficient robberies make efficient preventive steps imperative. The spread of Chicago gangster methods is an alarming trend to the six-shooter pastime of the bad men of the Southwest.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Sporadic attempts have been made to recover vast acreages of public lands obtained by crooked methods and to prevent further looting of the public domain.

President Cleveland and Roosevelt did most effective work, and since the Taft administration there have been no major land scandals except the Fall cases and the events of 1920 now leading to an investigation of the Salt Creek oil leases in Wyoming.

As a conservation measure, Cleveland withdrew from entry large timber tracts in the northwest. He recovered millions of acres from the looters and the Democratic platform of 1888 bragged, probably with exaggeration, that he had "reclaimed from corporations and syndicates, alien and domestic, and restored to the people nearly 100,000,000 acres of valuable lands, to be sacredly built as homesteads for our citizens."

Meanwhile the conservationist cause was growing stronger and in 1887 the first real conservation measure was achieved with the establishment of a division of forestry in the Department of Agriculture. In 1888 an irrigation division of the interior, who was given power to withdraw reservoir and irrigation sites from private entry.

Congress also granted funds for surveys of arid western lands which since have revealed that most of the plowlands on the great plains had passed into "private ownership, largely speculative".

Subsequent congresses often hampered these ventures, but they continued to wax in importance. Then in 1897, Gifford Pinchot was made chief forester and for 13 years led the National Conservation fight which gave him fame. In 1902 Senator Francis G. Newlands of Nevada at last put through his famous Reclamation Act, by which money derived from public lands was to be used for recovery of arid tracts for the benefit of home seekers.

In 1907 Roosevelt called a conference of governors to consider the best means of guarding and preserving the natural resources. All the important officials in Washington were summoned to it—and as many scientists as were within call. The result was the National Conservation Commission, composed of politicians, scientists and industrial leaders, which later recommended that remaining public lands be classified by mineral content and disposed of more intelligently. Congress provided opposition to the commission, even refusing Roosevelt's request for $25,000 for its expenses.

Theft of the public lands continued, but not so openly—and strong means were being taken to check it. In Roosevelt's administration, lands phosphate lands and water power sites were withdrawn most of this to become the nation's permanent property.

Taft, however, appointed Richard A. Ballinger secretary of the interior. The latter soon was in a bitter fight with the conservationists, who charged that he was wrecking the forest and reclamation services. Within a month he had restored 3,000,000 acres to entry, but the protest of Pinchot and his friends was so deafening that Taft withdrew them again.

Ballinger became the central figure of the big scandal in Taft's administration when Pinchot charged, among other things, that Ballinger was misusing his office to patent fraudulently-claimed Alaskan coal lands. Progressive Republicans united with Democrats to force a joint congressional investigation. The Aldrich machine, which then controlled the Senate, barely kept control of the committee and Ballinger gained a majority exonerated and a letter of endorsement from Taft. But the minority report was so bitter, based on a variety of sensational evidence against him, that Ballinger resigned.

GIRL ALONE

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY NEA SERVICE

AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER" ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Ward of the state orphanage since she was four, Sally Ford is "famed out" to Clem Carson the summer she is 18, and meets David Nash, athlete and student, who is working on the Carson farm during his vacation. David hits Carson when the farmer makes insulting remarks about his friendship for Sally. David and Sally run away and join a carnival, David as Cook's helper, and Sally, disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

In Capital City, location of the orphanage, Sally is recognized by one of a group of little orphans, chaperoned by a beautiful woman. Quick work on the part of the baker saves Sally. She learns from Arthur Van Horne, an engineer, who annoys her with his attentions, that the beautiful chaperone is Enid Barr, wealthy New York matron.

In another state Sally and David believe danger of police detection is over. One day Sally finds herself confronted with Mrs. Stone, matron of the orphanage, who has followed Sally to the distant state. David and Sally run away from the carnival and are "half-married" when Mrs. Stone and Enid Barr rush in and stop the ceremony.

Enid confesses she is Sally's mother and that she believes, until recently her child was dead. In Kansas City Sally meets Courtney Barr, the judicial-mannered husband of Enid, and she tells her that to protect Enid's reputation she must not enter their home for two years. These two years she spends in a fashionable southern finishing school and at a mountain camp learning all that a prospective debutante should know. Her heart yearns for David, and though she keeps her promise not to write to him, she does not forget her mother's agreement that David is to be invited to her coming-out party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

Periodically during the four months that the Barrs spent in wandering over the country, Enid's earnest reply to Sally's urgent question thrust itself trippingly through the new joys she was experiencing.

Enid had shrugged and said: "Remember me when we're making up the invitation list, this fall, Sally." She knew now that her mother had counted on her forgetting David, that Enid had told herself until she believed it, because she wanted to believe, that the girl who had remade into the kind of girl who could take her place in society as the daughter of Enid and Courtney Barr, would be a little ashamed of her 16-year-old infatuation for a penniless young farmer.

But Sally's heart had not changed, no matter how radically Enid's money, the finishing school and Europe had altered her mental and physical.

One morning in November Sally knocked at the door of the small pleasant room known to the Barr household as "Miss Rice's office." Linda Rice held the difficult, exacting but always exciting position of Enid Barr's social secretary. Sally liked Linda, envied her her independence, her tactful firm handling of her sometimes unreasonable employer. As she knocked, now, fear of her mother fluttered in the heart that was so full of love and admiration for her. For she knew that Enid and Linda were making up the invitation list for the long-postponed coming-out party.

"Come in," Enid's contralto voice called impatiently. "Oh, it's you, darling. How cunning you look! Turn around so I can see how that new bob looks from the back. Oh, charming! Max is a robber, but he does know the art of cutting hair. Isn't she precious, Linda?"

Sally dressed in a deceptively simple little frock of dark blue French crepe which half revealed her slender limbs, whirled obediently. The heavy silver masses of her black hair had long since been ruthlessly sacrificed to the shears, and now with the new Parisian cut, later to the rage in America and known as the "wind-blown bob," she looked like an "impudent" little dainty, amazingly pretty and pert.

Her clear white skin contradicted the effect of the impish hair-cut, however, and persisted in making her look appealingly, if not lovely.

"I think she can cut anything she wants, and still keep that figure!" Enid explained with humorous envy. "I'd like my soul to be able to eat bread and candy again." But she looked at the tiny body, no bigger than an average 12-year-old girl's, and smiled with satisfaction. "What did you want, Linda?"

"Linda and I are awfully awfully by the way, you mustn't forget to go to the store this afternoon, going to Bobby Proctor's luncheon at the club, too, aren't you?"

"Thank you, sweet." Sally looked at a slight shiver. "Mother, with a desperate attractiveness, you're sending an invitation, aren't you? You know—"

Enid and pretended to come of the long list which she was checking when Sally in David Nash's name on the list. Linda? Never mind, I'll look or it. And Linda will you please run down and tell Randall that Mrs. Barrington will be here for luncheon today? He'll have to have gluten bread for her. Thank you, dear. I don't know what I should do without you, Linda, you priceless thing!"

When the secretary had left the room, Enid turned to Sally, who was standing beside the desk, twisting her hands nervously. "Darling, I've counted so on your not holding me to that foolish promise I made two years ago. You must realize that David—dear and sweet and good as he undoubtedly is—belongs to your past, a past which I want you to forget as completely as if it had never existed."

Sally opened her lips to speak, but the utility of the retort, she was about to make overwhelmed her. How could she forget those 12 lovely, miserable years in a state orphanage? And how could her mother possibly expect her to forget David, who had been her only friend, her "perfect knight" when such dreadful trouble as Enid in her sheltered life, could hardly imagine, had made her a hunted, error-stricken fugitive from "justice," David to whom she was "half-married." David whom she would always, even if she never saw him again! But she would see him!

"Please don't get that sulky, stubborn look on your face, Sally," Enid spoke almost sharply. "I am, thinking of David, too. Do you really think it would be fair to him to ask him to come to New York merely for a party to see the girl he cannot hope to marry, make her debut in a society to which he could never belong? Don't be utterly selfish, darling! Think of me a little, too! David knows the truth. You must know it would be painful for me to see him after the story I told you in his presence. I want to forget Sally, and just be happy, now that I have my daughter with me—the lovely voice trembled with threatened tears, and the cornflower-blue eyes pleaded almost humbly with implacable sapphirine ones.

"I'm sorry, Mother," Sally answered steadily. "But you promised. I've done everything you asked me to do for more than two years. I kept my promise not to write to David, because all the time I was counting on you to keep yours."

Enid Barr flushed and tapped angrily with her pen against the edge of the desk. "Of course, if you put it that way, I have no choice! How shall Linda address the invitation?"

"Thank you, Mother," Sally cried, stopping swiftly to lay her lips against her mother's golden hair. "You've made me awfully happy." Her voice shook a little with awed delight as she gave her mother the only address she knew—David's grandfather's name and the R. F. D. route on which his farm lay.

"I suppose I'm having all this bother for nothing," Enid brightened. "The boy would be an idiot to spend the money on the trip—even if he has it to spend!"

A beautiful light glowed in Sally's wide, dreaming eyes. "David will come," she said softly. "He will come if he has to walk."

"A hiking costume would be so appropriate at a society girl's debut," Enid pointed out, a little maliciously, but she smiled then, a little secret, satisfied smile as if she hoped he would look a rube among the sleek young men who would be asked to view her daughter when she was officially put "on the market."

But Sally was too happy to notice. "May I write him, too, Mother? It would look so queer, just sending him an invitation, without a word—"

"Absolutely not!" Enid was stern. "The invitation is more than sufficient. Now run along, darling, and dress for Bobby's luncheon. It seems to me there were never so many, subtle parties as there are this year, but you simply must go to all of them, if your first season is to be a success. The list is going to be miles long, the worried."

"Please to have your party at the Ritz, as Mrs. Proctor and most of the other are doing, but there seems to be little reason to keep up an enormous establishment like this if you can't entertain in it."

"Coming out" seems so silly," Sally protested with sudden, unusual spirit. "Of course with me it's different. The crowd doesn't know me very well yet, but nearly all of the boys have been really out for two or three years. They've been prom-trotting and going to the opera and the theatre alone with me, even to night clubs—I can't see what real difference it will make to most of them—"

"Of course you can't," Enid said with unintentional cruelty. "You haven't been reared to this sort of thing. But you'll learn. Run along now, and look your prettiest. And by the way, if you have a minute, would you stop by the photographers to choose the poses to be released for publication? The society editors are calling up frantically. All they've had are snapshots of you, and I want them to print a picture that will do you justice. You're really the loveliest thing on the debut list this year, you know. But do run along! I shan't get a blessed thing done if you stay here gossiping with me."

Sally laughed, kissed her mother and ran from the room, bumping into Linda Rice, who was discreetly waiting outside the office until the interview between mother and daughter should be finished.

"Linda," she whispered, her face rosy with sweet embarrassment. "I gave Mother the name of a very special friend of mine, to put on the invitation list. You'll be a darling and mail it out today, won't you? You see, he lives in the Middle West and I want him to have plenty of time to plan to come. David Nash is the name." Her voice caressed the three beloved syllables more tenderly than she realized, and Linda Rice nodded her knowing smile.

"Of course, Sally. And I hope he comes. I'll mail it this very afternoon."

Sally ran up the broad, circular staircase to the third floor, scornful to use the "lift" which Courtney Barr had had installed in the Fifth Avenue mansion a few years before.

She never entered her own suite of rooms—sitting room, bedroom, dressing room and bath—without first an uneasy feeling that she was trespassing and then a shock of delight that it was hers indeed. Now she passed slowly through the rooms, trying to see them with David's eyes, or even with the eyes of the forlorn little Sally Ford who had slaved 16 hours a day on the Carson farm for her "board and keep."

Suddenly a picture flashed across her mind—the two-rooms-and-lean-to shack in which she and David had eaten what was to have been their wedding breakfast. A great nostalgia swept over her—not only for David, but for plain people working together to make a home and to support their children.

All her life in the orphanage she had dreamed of delicate foods, skin-caressing, lovely fabrics, spacious, gracious rooms. And now she had them—and she was frightened to nausea, because they were a barrier between her and David and all the realities of life and love which she had so nearly grasped when she was slaving on the farm, working as "Princess Lalla" in the carnival, fleeing from the pursuit of the law with only David to protect her.

She dressed listlessly for the sub-deb luncheon at the Ritz, chatted and laughed and pretended to be as frivolous and "wild" as any of her new friends; went to Clarie Bainbridge's tea that afternoon; went to the theatre with her mother and adopted father that night, went, went, went during the next few days, but her heart was concerned with only one question: would David come? She had been so sure, so arrogantly proud sure that he would come even if he had to walk—

On the fifth day after the invitation was despatched his telegram came. (To Be Continued)

Sally sees David—and gets a shock in the next installment.

Wife of Slain Sheriff Appointed in His Place

IRVINE, Ky., May 8.—(P)—Mrs. Arthur Brookshire was appointed sheriff of Estill county yesterday to fill out the unexpired term of her husband slain Sunday night when he attempted to search the home of a suspected bootlegger.

The slayer, Dave Estes, 30, was sent to Lexington when it was feared a mob might take him from jail here. He was indicted yesterday on a charge of willful murder and will be tried Friday. It is believed he will plead that he shot Sheriff Brookshire because the officer attempted to enter his home without a search warrant.

Announcing

Creation of a Security Sales Department...

In line with its program of conservative expansion this company has created a Security Sales Department to handle the distribution of its securities to the public in the communities which it serves.

Since the initial offering of its 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Shares last fall the response has been steady and generous, but only recently has this business reached proportions which would justify the creation of a separate department.

In charge of this work has been placed who has been for the past year and one-half Credit Manager of the Pampa Daily News. Mr. Melton's headquarters will be in Pampa. The Management is glad to recommend him to the general public as its personal representative in all matters pertaining to its securities.

SAYS TODAY'S CHILD HAS BETTER CHANCE

The New Parent-Teachers Head Praises Awakened Parents

By NEA Service

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—The growing child is getting more attention and better training now than ever before in all history, according to Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, newly elected president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers which held its annual convention here.

The result is that Mrs. Marrs looks on the future with optimism.

"The greatest force for child welfare today is an awakened parent-hood," she says. "We have it. Training the child is the parent's most important job."

"We hear much about things being bad and about the children going to the bow-wows, but there never was a time in the history of the world when interest was so focused on the child. The church is coming back to work with children. Sunday schools have increased."

"And look at her child welfare agencies. Notice how they have developed in the past 25 or 30 years. The schools are spending more money proportionately than they ever have in the history of the country."

Parents Are Awake

"In our educated parenthood, people are learning more about the schools than they ever knew before. They are also learning more about child hood. They are stressing recreation and paying more attention to leisure time, teaching children the use of libraries and wholesome play. The prosperity of the country makes possible more leisure."

"Take the question of the pre-school child and the problem that the mother of a child of six or under must solve. Our pre-school work is an education step for parents, which helps the mother to handle the physical and mental problems of that age. This pre-school age has been known for years as 'the neglected age.'"

"The next big problem is the adolescent child. In the past this was not considered a problem. It was never studied before as it is now. One has to learn to be gentle and understanding with the child in this difficult age, for if parents are not all of these things at this very important time they lose the confidence of their children. If, however, the pre-school age has been properly cared for, one does not feel so much fear for the adolescent."

Mrs. Marrs, a former school teacher of Denton, Texas is the wife of the state superintendent of public instruction in Texas. Her new office makes her spokesman for 1,250,000 parents and teachers.

Riley Wins, and Panther Lands His Sleep Producer

Sam Riley won a decision on Floyd Barnes last night with both on their feet at the last gong. It was without a doubt the greatest fight ever staged in the Pampa Athletic club. The final went three rounds with Dwyer knocking Doss out with a right to the heart after the Fort Worth boy had been down twice for counts.

Doss came out of his corner with fists flying and to end the fight in a hurry. He had the better of the first round by a large margin, having the Brown Panther down for a count of seven with a right and left to the head.

The Panther came back in the second strong and dropped Doss twice for counts before the bell. The fight ended early in the third round with a right to the heart.

The first main event was action from the opening to the last blow. Both boys came out cautious, Barnes using his reach, and Riley his ring knowledge and footwork.

Riley took the first, Barnes the second, Riley the third and the fourth was a draw. The action started in the fifth when Barnes took a count of two when the bell sounded.

The Pampa boy came out first to finish it in the sixth, but was caught on the head by a right cross and went down for the first time in his career. He came up strong and dropped Barnes for a count of nine at the gong.

Round seven was faster than the round before with both boys out on their feet. Barnes went down for counts of nine and seven before the bell. Early in the closing round Riley dropped Barnes for another nine count.

At the same Arkansas boxer came out fighting and Riley boxed enough left to knock him out. The boys both out on their feet when the gong sounded ending the fight.

Rusty Cahill again came back in the local ring last night when he beat Billie Springfield, substituting for Art Vilton. The pride of Pampa had the better of the fight, the entire eight rounds. Springfield was apparently not in the best of condition as Cahill was hurting him often and landing repeatedly to the head.

The main event of the evening was the opener between Jack Morrison of Borger and Jimmie Hudson of Amarillo. Things were fairly even until the third round, when Morrison connected to the jaw smashing Hudson's head against the corner post knocking him out for several minutes. The game Hudson was fighting an uphill battle all the way against the harder hitting Borger school boy.

Bridge work, weight lifting and a four-round exhibition was put on by Larry and Jerry McGee, 4 and 6 years old before the card began. The two children are clever and are over-developed physically doing almost impossible stunts.

Three Owners of Giants on Outs

JUDGE McQUADE

JOHN McGRAW

CHARLES A. STONEHAM

After going along for years as friends and pals and owners of the New York Giants, Charles A. Stoneham, John J. McGraw and Judge Francis X. McQuade are on the outs and about to star to court to settle their difficulties. The brew started with the trade of Rogers Hornsby to the Boston Braves by Stoneham and the encroachment upon the field domain of McGraw by Stoneham in appointing Jim Tierney, secretary of the club, with broad authority over the affairs of the team. McQuade was recently displaced as treasurer of the club and now charges he was fired without the consent of the partners and says he will expose Stoneham in court. McGraw plans to retire when his present contract expires.

Americans Safely Place in British Open Tournament

SANDWICH, England, May 8.—(AP)—Americans among the early finishers in the second qualifying rounds of the British open golf championship pointed with reasonable pride and viewed with extreme alarm at the same time. Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour and Jim Barnes were safely in, Bob Stupples was on the ragged edge, and Larry Nabholz seemed definitely eliminated. Silas M. Newton, amateur, in spite of a good round today, was out but he had little hope after a 93 yesterday, select circle. Armour had to work for his 79 but with 77 yesterday he had little to worry about and Barnes with a 78 today and 74 yesterday was in good position.

The sick Nabholz used up 84 strokes today, four more than he needed yesterday, while Stupples' 80 yesterday was a stroke under his score of the first round. It was thought that 100 might be the highest qualifying score with a bare chance that there might be lies at 101.

Longer Distance in Marathon Hard on Weary Racers

MISHAWAKA, Ind., May 8.—(AP)—Tired, weary and footsore, most of the surviving 64 trans-continental huncree, realized they were in an "iron man" marathon race today as they set out for their sixty-sixth control point Logansport, Ind., 40 miles east of here. Yesterday's lap or 66.2 mile stretch over heavily trafficked roads from Gary to Mishawaka, was the longest and one of the hardest of the 2,499.9 miles traversed thus far. Many cutters along the route for hours, cutting down their records, while one, Joe Wilson of Oakland, Calif., blistered his feet so severely he withdrew from the race.

Louis Perrella of Albany, N. Y., who is in eighth place, won the lap in 9:30:42, bringing his total elapsed time for the 2,499.9 miles to 446:57:09. John Salo, the Passaic, N. J. Finn, came in second in 10:15:35, climbing on the two leaders, Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, England, and Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla. Gavuzzi's total elapsed time is 406:14:02; Payne's is 412:23:25.

Real Champ to Wrestle Here in Thursday Event

A real acclaimed champion will be seen in action here Thursday night at the Pin-Mor Auditorium when Wally Maloude, welterweight wrestling champion, steps into the ring with Jack Smith, one of the clearest wrestlers in the northwest. The match is scheduled as the best two falls out of three, and is sure to be chunk full of action.

Maloude, a wily Jap who knows the wrestling game from every angle, will place his diamond studded belt in the hands of the management before the fight. He is clever, fast, and a professional wrestler of the old school. He has beaten the best in the country and held the belt for more than six years.

Jack Smith comes highly recommended out of the north as a prospect of Danny Gollins, who made such a hit in this country a few months ago. He has beaten all-comers to date and this will be his first try after the big belt.

Wally Maloude has accepted Joe Kopecky's challenge that he can throw any given number of boxes in three, three-minute rounds. Smith says he will take the big noise along and beat him at his own game and with gloves on. Joe, of course, has a different idea about the outcome of this strange affair.

Smith will enter the ring with light gloves on and will attempt to drop Kopecky before the Bechman can throw him.

The match will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Cats' Pitching Is Keeping Team at Top of Column

(By The Associated Press.)

The pitching staff of Fort Worth that before the season was rated by some as the strongest in the Texas league is making itself felt. It was this staff which did most perhaps to put the Cats at the top of the percentage column and it is keeping them there. Yesterday Paul Wachtel, veteran right hander, recorded his second shutout of the season as the Panthers defeated the Waco Cubs, 6 to 0.

Although outhit nine to twelve, the Houston Buffs falling fast ball behind the good pitching of Carlton defeated Shreveport 6 to 4, and, aided by Wichita Falls' 3 to 4 licking at the hands of the San Antonio Bears, moved into the post of runnerup to Fort Worth. Getting away to a two-run lead in the first inning, the Buffs added two more tallies in the second and their last two in the fifth.

Although the opposing hurler was a bit wild and Tut Jenkins hit a home run in the third inning with two on base, the Wichita Falls Spudders were defeated by San Antonio and pushed out of second place, the worst setback from the standpoint of position they have suffered this year. The Bears had to fight back after Jenkins came through with his mighty clout, but they pecked away at the offerings of Estel, benched their nine safeties in an able manner, and won the game in the ninth.

At Dallas, the Beaumont Exporters Cellular occupants, defeated the Steers 13 to 6, in a slugging match in which every Exporter except a pinch hitter and every Steer except a pitcher got at least one hit.

Magnolia Team to Play Cabot Nine at 6 p. m. Today

Tonight at the Magnolia field the second game of the new Industrial baseball league will be played. The game will commence at 6 o'clock between the Magnolia and the Cabot Co. teams. Both teams have been practicing for several weeks and are in good condition.

Six teams have officially entered the league and prospects of two more teams coming in are good. The company and the Southwestern Public Service company have signified their intentions of entering teams.

One of the largest crowds that has ever seen a ball game here witnessed the double-header Sunday afternoon but the collection was disappointing the average being 3 cents per spectator. The league is self-supporting and only collections will be taken up at the games.

THE RESALE value of your car six months hence depends to a great extent upon the care which you give it now. Scored cylinders, wrist pin knocks and badly worn bearings have very little market value. The surest way to keep your car valuable even through most strenuous service—is by using the proper oil always. That oil is Conoco Motor Oil—in the grade made especially for your particular motor. Conoco Motor Oil saves your car by doing a complete lubricating job. Protects each moving part, stands up under most intense cylinder heat, seals the pistons and thus conserves power, assures a minimum of wear and tear and hence a higher resale value. If you want extra life for your car stick to Conoco.

Robbery Suspect Found Shot to Death at Chicago

CHICAGO, May 8.—(P)—Willie Jackson, 28, sought by police and federal authorities as a suspect in the recent Evergreen park train robbery, was found shot to death beside a new automobile early today. His identity was established by fingerprint experts.

There were no marks of identification on the body and police at first believed him to be a victim of a bootlegging feud. His car carried a New York state registration plate, which led to the theory he was from that state.

Three members of the train robbery gang are now awaiting trial and the authorities were of the opinion that Jackson may have been slain for not playing square with the gang.

Dauer Test Is Spraying—Report on Well Untrue

The Empire Gas and Fuel company's No. 1 Dauer in section 236 block B-2, is drilling ahead this morning at 3,107 feet in granite wash with elevation 3,247 feet at that point. It was reported that the well was making 50 barrels a day yesterday afternoon, but nothing more than a slight spray was picked up.

The well started drilling yesterday after cementing casing at 3,010 feet, where the first show was encountered. Another show was picked up yesterday afternoon at 3,026 feet. Fourteen million feet of gas is cased off behind the 6-inch casing and the well is making about 1,000,000 feet with the spray of oil.

This location is south of the granite ridge and about eight miles southwest of production in the great Jackson pool. If brought in it will mean the opening of a new oil field and an epic of drilling.

Private Pagett, Jr. to Succeed Father as Marine Mascot

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—Private Pagett, Jr., three-month-old son of private Pagett, English bulldog mascot of the marine corps that died Saturday, will succeed his father in that post, but first must bark to establish his right.

The pup will be inducted into the service on the first day that he barks, says the Quantico, Va., Marines, custodians of the corps' mascot. The second sergeant since the death of Sergeant Jiggs a year ago, Pagett, Jr., is one of seven sons of the late Pagett and Countess the Fourth, a registered English bull.

The death of the Elder Pagett has been made known to his donors, the British Marines, by the corps headquarters here.

Big Stills Found By Berger Officers

BORGER, May 8.—(Special)—Officers of the sheriff's department assisted by Rangers, raided two stills near here Sunday. They made four arrests and confiscated much liquor, mash and equipment.

The first raid was on a cave near Stinnett, where two men were captured. In the cave was a 150-gallon still, not yet in operation, fifteen barrels of mash, and considerable equipment.

The second raid was made near Signal Hill, where two more arrests were made and a 40-gallon still, eight barrels of mash, six kegs of whiskey, and materials were found.

The men are being held pending the arrival of federal officers.

Veteran Editor Is Killed in Fall

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—George F. Dobson, former managing editor of the Brooklyn Eagle on which he had been employed for fifty years, was killed early today when he fell from a window of his seventh floor apartment in West 73rd street. He was 78 years old.

The body was found by a policeman. He notified Mrs. Dobson who was unaware of the accident. She said her husband had been in good health and appeared to be in the best of spirits. A lighted cigaret was found on the low window sill.

Many Locations in LeFors Area of Gray Field

Seven new locations in the LeFors district of the Gray county oil field indicate an opening of drilling operations in that territory. The Texas company has made four locations, while Baldrige Sherrin, and McSpadden have made three locations.

The Texas company locations are well scattered throughout the territory. The company will drill its No. 1 R. C. Mayberry in section 11, block A-6, H. and G. N. Survey. This location is four miles northeast of LeFors.

The Texas company's No. A-3, Chapman will be in section 51, block 25, H. and G. N. survey.

The Texas company will drill its No. B-1 Chapman in section 50, block A-9. The Texas company's No. A-2 McLarty-Lester will be drilled in section 1 block 1, A. C. H. and B. survey.

Baldrige, Sherrin and McSpadden have made three locations, one in the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 10, block 26, on the Chapman lease, and two on the E. N. Lynch survey in survey 9, block 8, five miles southeast of LeFors.

The Texas company has also made a location to drill a well in section 46, block 4, Carson county on the R. S. McConnel lease.

HOUSE OF DETROIT LEGISLATOR IS BOMBED

DETROIT, May 8.—(P)—The house of a member of the Michigan state legislature, Robert J. Teagan, was bombed here last night.

Although the lower section of the house was wrecked and windows of a score of homes in the block shattered by the explosion, no one was injured. Teagan and members of his family were sleeping upstairs, untouched by the blast.

Police after a preliminary investigation were unable to advance a theory as to the motive for the bombing.

Indiana Bank Loses $15,000 in Robbery Today

ANGOLA, Ind., May 8.—(P)—The first National bank here was robbed of $15,000 today by five men who escaped in a gray touring car.

The robbers appeared at the home of Ems. Cruxon, the bank president, about 3 o'clock this morning. They bound the bank official's wife and then escorted the prisoner to the bank and forced him to open the door. The robbers then sought to have him open the bank vault but he convinced them of his inability to do this.

The robbers and their victim then waited in the bank until 8 o'clock, when the cashier arrived. As soon as he entered, the robbers forced him to open up the vault. They scooped up all available currency and escaped.

EIGHTEEN SEAMEN MISSING

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—The list of missing in the collision in which the government steamer Navestank was struck by the Italian ship at sea today.

The big-ser-going and sucker, loaded with her night's crop of milk, said, went down four and a half miles after she was swung into the lampnet of a Holt twin Swinburne's strong rib tide.

The crew had been mostly recruited from the Seamen's Institute and had given no addresses.

West Texas Oil Production Leaps 34,494 Barrels

TULSA, Okla., May 8.—(P)—With the sensational West Texas fields taking the lead, daily average production of oil in several important areas increased during the week ending May 5, with the result that the total increase for the United States was 59,607 barrels. The Oil and Gas Journal will say today.

Production in the West Texas area increased 34,494 barrels during the week bringing the total for that section to about 400,000 barrels. The gain was in the great Hendricks field, with slight losses being sustained in the Yates and other fields of the area.

Seminole again set the pace in Oklahoma, increasing from 273,595 barrels for the week ending April 28, to 280,925 barrels last week. Northern Oklahoma fields increased about 2,000 barrels, with other Oklahoma areas just about holding their own.

Arkansas production also increased for the week, with a gain of nearly 4,000 barrels being shown in light oil production and a gain of about 2,000 in heavy production.

Increases were also shown in the Gulf Coast and Eastern fields.
