Tory Party On Defense

LONDON (UPI) — Disclosure that Britain has suffered its worst year of inflation since the Korean War sent the Conservative party on the defensive Saturday in the campaign for the Feb. 28 general election.

Prime Minister Edward Heath came under a barrage of questioning at his daily campaign news conference following the release Friday of government figures showing a 12 per cent increase in the cost of living over the past 12 months.

Heath, blamed the rising cost of world food prices, oil and other commodities and said both his administration and a Labor government would be powerless to deal with the problem.

"Labor leaders are now being forced to agree that the major cause of increases in prices is world prices over which we have no control," Heath said. "They are being forced to agree that they themselves could do nothing at all about it."

He refused to acknowledge the Labor party's contention that inflation has now become the major issue in the campaign. Heath said the Conservatives—with a nationwide coal miners strike now in its second week—would continue to fight the election on "who governs Britain—the government or the unions?"

Labor party leader Harold Wilson assailed Heath's explanation for the jump in the cost of living as "lame excuses" and said if Labor wins the election his government would introduce state food subsidies to check rising grocery prices.

"People want to know more than the flood of lame excuses pouring out of Tory party headquarters," Wilson said at his regular campaign news conference. "They want to know what Mr. Heath is going to do about the appalling facts he is now admitting."

DES Back On Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A cattle growth stimulant once banned as a suspected cancer causer is back on the market and, in at least one case, enjoying brisk sales to an industry desperate for cheaper ways to keep the nation's meat counters filled.

The future of the stimulant—DES—is still to be decided by a Food and Drug Administration hearing, but in the three weeks since a court ruled the FDA's earlier ban illegal, cattle growers have been buying DES and some suppliers are on the verge of resuming production.

The FDA ban, which the court threw out because no hearing had been held beforehand, covered both DES in cattle feed and in injections—called implants—which were placed in the ears of cattle. The FDA banned it because traces were showing up in the livers of slaughtered meat animals and the law forbids any carcinogen from being in the food supply. DES was found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Only the implants are being sold now because, industry spokesmen said, there is a shortage of raw DES for feed mixes. The shortage exists because the three major manufacturers stopped producing DES after the ban became effective in January of 1973.

Aaron Andrews, president of Hess & Clark, a major DES supplier headquartered in Ashland, Ohio, told UPI his firm has been marketing implants since Jan. 30 from its inventory. Initial sales, he said, are "very good"—equivalent to all the DES implants the firm had to recall when the ban was imposed. So far, he added, inventory has kept up with demand but he indicated production of new supplies would begin shortly.

GOV. SHAPP CLAIMS

Seriousness Of Situation Not Realized By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration failed to act quickly to solve the truckers' strike because the President and his aides did not realize how serious the situation was, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp said Saturday.

"Not once prior to the strike or during my stay in Washington was it apparent to me that either the President or his top aides were fully aware of the true dimensions of the truckers' strike," Shapp, a Democrat, said.

"Nor was it apparent that they were willing to take bold action needed to bring the strike to an end."

Shapp and Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., were given equal air time to reply to President Nixon's Feb. 9 radio speech on transportation and the truckers' strike which proposed a $19.9 billion, six-year program for urban and rural transit, a program to ease regulation of the railroads and $2 billion in loan guarantees to modernize rail lines.

McFall said "neither of these two proposals represents anything that could be described as a massive, broad-based assault on our nation's basic transportation problem."

Shapp, who took part in the talks between truckers and federal officials in Washington, said the administration "dragged its feet" even after it reached an agreement with the truckers.

It took a week for federal energy chief William Simon to order the oil companies to comply with an agreement guaranteeing the truckers all the fuel they needed, Shapp said.

Shapp objected to Nixon

Board Petition To Be Given To Judge Cain

First of the petitions being circulated to get the 7-man school board issue on the April 6 election ballot are expected to be presented to County Judge Don Cain Tuesday.

The first petition contains more than 450 signatures of voters asking that they be given an opportunity to decide whether the current 5-member school board should be enlarged to 7 members.

It is understood other petitions currently containing approximately 350 additional signatures will be presented to the county judge later.

That would be a total of around 750 signatures so far. Approximately 400 signatures are needed to get the issue on the ballot.

Judge Cain asked that the petitions be presented as early as possible to permit the County Clerk's office to go over the eligibility roll of voters to determine if petition signers are qualified.

Any qualified registered voter in the Pampa Independent School District is eligible to sign the petition.

Final deadline for filing the petitions and candidates for the school board is March 6.

calling the independent truckers a "handful of desperados." "Desperate they were—but if the President had taken the time to talk to them he would have found they were only desperate to earn a decent living for themselves and their families," Shapp said.

"Their desperation was really no different from the desperation felt by many other Americans... caught in today's squeeze created by the inability of the Nixon administration to deal with various economic crisis that are causing the rampant inflation now sweeping the nation."

Shapp said Nixon should not handle these problems by withdrawing further into the isolation of the White House.

"The only way to handle these problems is for the President and his aides to get out and listen to the people, to find out what is on their minds and to take positive action to alleviate their problems."

McFall said Nixon's proposal to spend federal money for mass transit subsidies "will be welcome news to our hard-pressed cities and states. In the past the administration has flatly opposed such legislation, including the operating assistance bill now pending in House-Senate conference."

White House, Jaworski Headed For Showdown?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House, which has flatly refused to give any more Watergate materials to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, may be heading toward a confrontation with the House Judiciary Committee over how to maintain the secrecy of documents requested for its impeachment inquiry.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., the Judiciary chairman, has made clear his committee would not seek approval nor even consult the White House about any procedures the committee adopts for handling the documents.

The potential for a conflict emerged from a meeting between James St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, and John M. Doar, special counsel for the committee investigation into possible grounds for impeaching Nixon, and Albert E. Jenner, the chief Republican counsel.

Doar and Jenner told committee members this week that St. Clair wanted to protect the confidentiality of all tapes, logs, documents and other records provided by the White House. Jenner said St. Clair's concern was "all-pervasive and overriding," and that he wanted to know what steps the committee would take.

Rodino responded the committee would not "present our rules to Mr. St. Clair for approval."

Doar said there was no discussion—and he would not speculate—about how St. Clair would react to a request or subpoena for materials if he were not satisfied committee procedures for maintaining their secrecy.

After the Doar-Jenner briefing, committee members did not express alarm but acknowledged that the divergent positions of the White House and the committee could lead to a confrontation.

Moreover, there could be an internal committee conflict over access to White House documents, similar to the infighting over which members could see FBI files on Gerald L. Ford during consideration of his vice presidential nomination.

OF OFFSHORE COMMISSION

Publicly Owned Superport Recommended By Chairman

AUSTIN (UPI) — The chairman of the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission Saturday recommended a publicly owned superport for Texas, saying it would better protect the environment and provide more economic savings than a privately owned port.

"In these days in which the credibility of so many institutions, public and private, are being seriously questioned, and history does not record that government and business integrity has been so questioned heretofore, the commission's recommendation puts the public's right to know in the forefront," Joe L. Allbritton of Houston told the Senate Committee on Economic Development.

Urges Fair Profit However, Allbritton said if private interests should operate the facility under a lease agreement with the state, they would be entitled to fair profits.

"But one sector operating solely to the exclusion of the other sector implies an unhealthy imbalance and could leave the deep suspicion that an unreasonably high rate of profit or inadequate protection to the environment could prevail, to the detriment of the public," Allbritton said.

Offshore Terminal Commission member George R. Brown of Houston disagreed with Allbritton, saying it as "risky business" for the state to have a moral obligation on $400 million in revenue bonds, which Allbritton recommended.

Brown said private business interests said they were willing to take the risk of financing the project and the state should let them

SLA Eases Demand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Kidnaped heiress Patricia Hearst told her parents in a tape recording delivered Saturday that the terrorist group holding her would not insist on its full $400 million free food ransom demand.

The Hearst family received a tape recording Saturday from the Rev. Cecil Williams of Glide Memorial Church in San Francisco, one of the intermediaries named by the terrorist group, the Symbionese Liberation Army.

"She says the SLA believes the effort I am making is a sincere one," said her father, publisher Randolph A. Hearst, who related the contents of the recording to reporters.

"They didn't expect me to meet all their demands," said Hearst. "She said they didn't expect me to feed the whole state."

"She'd like things speeded up," he said. Miss Hearst was taken from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4.

The publisher said his daughter apparently made the tape Wednesday.

"I'm sure it's from Patty," he said. "She's well. She's alive."

"I really thought she was all along," he added. Hearst said the SLA didn't make "any demand as such," but indicated it thought he was being honest in dealing with them.

"They'd like to release her," he said.

Asked what the purpose of the recording was, Hearst replied: "I think they feel possibly I am making an effort to go along with their original demand."

"They don't want to kill her."

Labor Leaders Meet Monday

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Organized labor's top hierarchy gathers here Monday for its annual winter meeting, with spiraling prices, rising unemployment and impeachment of President Nixon the top items on the agenda.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council headed by 79-year-old George Meany, will meet for more than a week making plans for this year and issuing broadsides against the administration and the White House.

Meany and the other 34 members of the labor council have, in effect, given up hope of getting any help for their causes and programs from the Nixon administration and instead are appealing to Congress.

First off, they're urging Congress to impeach Nixon for his part in the Watergate scandal and its coverup. The AFL-CIO launched its impeachment drive last November and expects to put it into high gear if and when the House Judiciary Committee returns a bill of impeachment against the President.

While planning to lobby members of the House to impeach Nixon, a spokesman for the AFL-CIO said it would keep hands off the Senate when it considers whether to convict Nixon. To lobby senators would be like trying to tamper with a jury, he said.

He told of the 16-year-old high school girl in New Jersey who was investigated by the FBI after she received printed material from the Socialist Workers Party for use in a school project.

"Many of the files in the national crime computer maintained by the FBI relate to so-called 'dangerous persons' or those involved in civil disorders, or presumably, someone who might write a leftwing organization for literature," he said.

"There are legitimate needs for much of this information, certainly. And there are, just as certainly, those who will abuse and misuse this growing collection of personal data."

"Safeguards are needed, on the national level and on the local level."

Stevenson urged that journalists "move out front... in making sure the public fully understands the dangers of computerized snooping."

"It is one way that the media can demonstrate that far from wanting to pry into the lives of the innocent, it is dedicated to protecting individual liberties."

they want to release her," Hearst said. "This is the feeling I got. We're encouraged. We're glad Patty is alive."

Last Wednesday the SLA, which claims to have kidnaped the girl, named Glide and five other groups as organizations which would administer the $400 million free food ransom it originally demanded as a down payment for the return of Miss Hearst.

The recording was received as publisher Randolph A. Hearst worked against a three-day deadline to make the free food handout. He was "working very hard to show a gesture of good will" in meeting the demands, the family said.

Family spokesman Jay Bosworth said earlier Saturday he did not know whether the publisher could meet the Tuesday deadline of giving away $70 worth of groceries to each of California's poor and elderly that could cost as much as $400 million.

The deadline set by the SLA falls the day before Patricia's 20th birthday.

"We can't give a specific date," said Bosworth, married to Patricia's sister, Virginia, 23.

"I can just say as soon as possible."

"He's working very hard to show a gesture of good will and go some way in meeting the demands of the SLA."

Hearst himself did not meet with newsmen for the first time in a week. A spokesman said he spent a sleepless night and was tense and tired.

Bosworth said the family and the FBI believed a third purported letter from the SLA was phony. It threatened to kill Patricia on her birthday Wednesday unless blacks were given control of Pepperdine College in Los Angeles.

Charles Bates, in charge of the FBI investigation, told the family Friday night there is "really not a great deal of new information."

After meeting with the family, Bates said the FBI was "making headway" in the search for the heiress, but had no definite information on her whereabouts.

He said the agency was checking with persons who knew Donald D. DeFreeze, 30, an escaped California convict identified by newspapers and television stations as one of the kidnapers.

Bates said the FOI didn't have "anything specific at all linking" DeFreeze or Thero M. Wheeler, 29, another black prison escapee named by the press, with the Feb. 4 abduction.

Hearst's own newspaper, the San Francisco Examiner, reported that at least three witnesses have identified a photograph of DeFreeze as one of the two men who kidnaped Miss Hearst from her apartment in Berkeley.

FEO Gives Gas Stations Cent Per Gallon Markup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Office acted Saturday to end service station shutdowns by giving most dealers a penny per gallon markup in the price of gasoline.

An FEO official said the action should end shutdown threats scattered from North Carolina to Washington State by giving owners higher profits.

The penny markup in the retail price of gasoline will apply to all stations receiving less than 85 per cent of their 1972 fuel supplies, according to deputy energy chief John C. Sawhill. He said these stations numbered well over half of all dealers.

The markup, effective March 1, will be in addition to "pass throughs" to consumers of the higher wholesale costs of gasoline.

"This penny increase for retail dealers is designed to offset increased dealer operating costs caused by reduced supplies," Sawhill said.

These operators have not only had to contend with reduced volumes, but also with corollary decreases in sales of nonpetroleum products such as tires, batteries and other items."

Sawhill said "people just don't buy those accessories they've been waiting in line for 45 minutes or an hour."

The last allowable markup for dealers was effective Jan. 1.

As Sawhill announced the markup, service stations were closed in Winton, N.C. and in much of the Tidewater area of Virginia. The operators said they wanted higher profits per gallon of gas and permission to pump gas for regular customers first.

Dealer associations in Pennsylvania and Washington State threatened to shut down next week if their demands were not met by the FEO.

Sawhill said a new advisory group of 12 service station operators from across the country agreed to the markup. They met in Washington last Thursday and were polled again by telephone Friday.

Another meeting was set for Feb. 28 to discuss further the problems of small operators, whom Sawhill called "the men in the trenches bearing the brunt of the shortage as much as anyone."

Kissinger, Envoys Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign ministers from Egypt and Saudi Arabia met Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Saturday night, expressing hope that they can help overcome obstacles to a Middle East peace agreement.

They were expected to discuss terms for lifting the Arab oil embargo.

Ismail Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia landed at a snowy Dulles International Airport at 6:24 p.m. EDT Saturday. They were met by Kissinger, who had conferred for about an hour with President Nixon earlier in the day at Key Biscayne, Fla.

Kissinger was scheduled to meet with a Syrian envoy Saturday evening and planned to host a dinner for Fahmy and Sakkaf later.

Welcoming the diplomats on Nixon's behalf, Kissinger said: "I don't know if we will answer any questions but I certainly hope so."

The two ministers, who left Paris in the morning after a conference among Arab leaders, are expected to ask for United States assurances that Israel will eventually withdraw from the Golan Heights. Israel captured the Golan Heights from Syria in 1967.

Fahmy had a talk with French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert before boarding the commercial airliner. Neither he nor Sakkaf made any statement to newsmen. U.S. Ambassador John Irwin was at the airport to see them off.

The French foreign ministry said Fahmy met Jobert this morning but gave no details of the meeting.

COUNTRY MUSIC

By PATRICK CARR
They're a sinister couple with a pair of hairy reputations; not quite your average Mr. Nice Guys.

They look more like a couple of first-generation rock 'n' rollers who somehow or other never made it into the slick showbiz world of Las Vegas and Johnny Carson, and the truth of the matter is that such was never their intention.

They may make you feel uneasy with all that hair and denim on their 40-year-old backs, but when Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson start playing their music, you just have to forget all the talk about "rebels" and "outcasts" and suchlike. They're too good for questions of lifestyle to matter.

There's a natural affinity between the two. They're both from Texas; they have the same manager; they're about the same age; they share an approach to music and the music life that owes more to blues, honky-tonk rock 'n' roll, and plain old stone country reality than it owes to the world of easy-listening ballads, sharp stage suits, and teams of accountants.

Willie and Waylon both have a permanent case of Texas Soul, and it shows.

In the last year or so they have grown closer together.

performing on the same bill, helping each other out on recordings, and just hanging out. They were together as the leading lights of a congregation of so-called "progressive" country artists at Dripping Springs, then again at Abbot, Tex., for Willie's musical homecoming party, and later for their ground-breaking (and most impressive) joint concert during the 1973 Disc Jockey Convention in Nashville.

And now they've come even closer together over two soon-to-be-released albums. First of all, there's Willie's new album, "Phases And Stages" (Atlantic SD 7291), which is a "concept" album built around the theme of the breakup of a marriage — one side from the man's view, the other from the woman's. All the songs are Willie Nelson originals.

Then there's a Waylon album (which probably won't be released until mid-March at the earliest), which features no less than four of the songs on "Phases And Stages." And Willie co-produced Waylon's album with Waylon.

The fact that the two artists are on different labels (Waylon is with RCA) makes this somewhat unusual occurrence quite startling. It's not at all unusual for Willie's songs to be recorded by other artists, nor is it unusual for Waylon to record other people's songs.

Willie used to be with RCA until he switched to Atlantic (a recent entry into the country field), and while he was there, he functioned primarily as a well-stocked trout pond from which other RCA artists could draw prime quality material. Willie never sold a lot of albums by himself.

In fact, it's quite amazing when you see him perform these days and realize that the guy has never "made it" as an artist in the commercial sense of the term. Atlantic is doing its best to remedy that failing.

Waylon, on the other hand, has a record of consistent success as a record-selling artist, and for that reason (and the fact that he's so good) he's always been a sought-after singer for a writer's songs. Therefore, what we have here is a combination of one of the most intelligent songwriting poets in the nation, and one of the most revered and sensitive performers.

And that combination — Willie's subtle, ironic realism and Waylon's worldly, broken-up baritone macho — turns out to be something quite special.

Apart from all these connections and similarities, the albums are quite different. Willie's, which was produced by Jerry Wexler (it's his first country album) in Muscle Shoals, Alabama, is a very well-conceived, complex performance, a true concept album highlighted by Willie's light but powerful tenor vocals and oodles of careful producer's effects.

Waylon's is starker, heavy on the baritone and bass guitar. It's about as laid-back, mournful as you're going to find, with plenty of guts and feeling. A classic Waylon produce, and probably his best album to date. It says a lot for Willie and Waylon's taste that the tracks Willie didn't write are right up there with the ones he did.

Both Waylon and Willie have spent an awfully long time waiting for the chance to make albums they could really be proud of. This time around, it sounds like they made it.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Sunday, Feb. 17, the 48th day of 1974 with 317 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American novelist Dorothy Canfield Fisher was born Feb. 17, 1878.

On this day in history:

In 1801, the U.S. House of Representatives named Thomas Jefferson as the third president of the United States. Aaron Burr, who tied with Jefferson in the electoral college, became vice president.

In 1817, Baltimore became the first American city to have gas-burning street lights.

In 1972, President Nixon left on his historic trip to Peking, the long-isolated Communist capital of mainland China.

In 1973, President Nixon nominated acting director L. Patrick Gray to be permanent director of the FBI.

A thought for the day: American philosopher William James said, "Man lives by habit, indeed, but what he lives for is thrills and excitement."

More Jobs in Panama

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — Unemployment, one of Panama's most persistent problems, dropped from 7.6 per cent of the "economically active population" in 1972 to 6.8 per cent in 1973, according to the Controller General's office.

IN SATURDAY SALE

Texas To Auction Off Surplus Property

AUSTIN — A Lincoln limousine owned by the State of Texas and used by several Texas governors will be auctioned to the highest bidder at the State of Texas 17th Surplus Property Sale at the Austin City Coliseum on Feb. 23, 1974.

Homer A. Foerster, executive director, Texas State Board of Control, announced the auction will include more than 100 other automobiles, pickups and trucks.

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety, who has been in charge of the maintenance on the 1966 executive limousine, stated the car is in good condition and has approximately 48,702 miles registered on the odometer. It has most of the optional equipment, but it is not a "bullet-proof" constructed vehicle.

One-owner State of Texas automobiles have in prior sales been the highlight of the auction. Foerster pointed out, and the cars, pickups and trucks offered in this auction should attract a large number of buyers.

Persons not interested in vehicles will find a vast assortment of office machines — manual typewriters to sophisticated calculators — office furniture, duplicator and an addressing machine, miscellaneous shop equipment, a paper cutter, dictating equipment, an unusual selection of filing cabinets, a concrete saw, rotary power mowers, and a miscellaneous offering of radio equipment.

All money collected from auction sales is returned to individual State agencies and used to buy replacement equipment. Surplus auctions are just one of the many activities supervised by the Texas State Board of Control.

Some of the principal areas of Board of Control administration include security for the Capitol Complex, License Development and Automated Services, Building and Property Services, which includes building maintenance, utility services, grounds and custodial services, sought-after parking spaces, office machine repairs, the State's central supply store, and a vast audit team; and the Purchasing Division which handles the final purchasing transaction for more than 30,000 items used by the various departments.

Nelson International of Dallas will again be in charge of the auction. All items may be inspected beginning at 7 a.m. on the day of the sale. Bidding will get under way at about 9 a.m.

Nelson auctioneers estimate one minute for each numbered item to be sold. Thus, if the item one is interested in bidding on is number 321, one may estimate 5 hours and 21 minutes or approximately 2:21 p.m.

Terms of the auction are cash on the day of the sale. Foerster reminded prospective bidders that merchandise must be removed the day of the sale because space and special protection in the Austin City Coliseum are not available on the following day.

Lists of agencies selling, type of items and location are available from the Texas State Board of Control, P. O. Box 13047, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

The Fate of the Economy

We were discussing the fate of America's economy the other day with a man whose career for more than 25 years has been in dealing with finance.

This was not a professor who has worked only with theory, but a professional whose commodity was currency, lending, borrowing, interest rates, investments and the like.

Our question to him was "What can happen to the American economy to prevent runaway inflation of the type which devastated Germany in the early 1920's?"

He didn't hedge. "Two things must happen," he said. "(a) Controls must be removed and the free enterprise system must be allowed to return to a pricing level regulated solely by supply and demand criteria and (b) artificial support to stave off the ill effects of (a) must not be established.

"Given our present set of rules," he continued, "this is not a pleasant solution. To accomplish the goal of staving off inflation or at least curtailing it to manageable levels (2-3 per cent per year) we must revert to a hard money concept and hold back capital expansion in a limited manner through restricted credit supply. This means a tighter qualification criteria for granting credit, that is higher down payment, shorter terms, increased cost of funds.

"Such restriction must not be universally adopted at all levels. The big capitalist and the wage earner alike must be aware of the fact that inflation places a burden on the entire community and not just to certain facets or special groups.

"If we are to avoid involuntary controls, (in 1947 law required one-third down payment on commodity purchases and maximum of 18 months pay the balance) the restrictions necessary will cause some discomfiture to some people. In cutting back any economy, there has been an amount of unemployment, temporary loss of income and a detrimental effect on those persons with fixed incomes.

"An attendant function of such a proposal would also require an armed truce between labor and management as pertains to wage demand and fringe benefit levels. More importantly, the government must not interfere in an attempt to subsidize or 'assist' those affected by the change. If the law of supply and demand is to prevail, artificial supports act in direct contravention and must not be permitted."

"This is not an advocacy of heartless lack of charity. It is a recognition that government subsidy wrecks the equation of supply and demand by proping up special privilege groups whether individuals in need or corporations who face rough sledding.

Subsidy is tax money spent without productivity, and without productivity for dollars expended, inflation is advanced.

We can't argue with his statements, but we have no illusions about the government's actions. We see no hope that politicians will get out of the way and let the solid, tried and true law of supply and demand take over.

It might happen if the American tax payer could fully grasp the fate in store for the economy. The choice is an early recession followed by a gradual recovery through increased productivity and solid hard currency, or runaway inflation followed by a depression or creeping inflation which eventually will lead to the same situation of runaway inflation followed by the crash. If the tax payers realize these are the only alternatives then it becomes a question of whether the present generation is willing to take the economic lumps now or leave it until the time when they themselves are on fixed income.

President Nixon in his state-of-the-Union message said emphatically that there would be no recession. That sounded like good news, but it really means that the administration is not willing to correct a long buildup of fiscal and monetary mistakes.

INSIDE LABOR

Court Dismisses Audubon Try To Kill Nuclear Construction

By VICTOR RIESEL
WASHINGTON — In construction circles the chuckle now making the rounds springs from the story of the moment the revered Moses, leading his people in their escape from Egyptian slavery, came to the sea. He cast his eyes skyward, raised his voice passionately and implored: "Lord, help us for behind us are enemy hosts, swords aflame on swift chariots."

Soon from the heavens a great voice rumbled: "Moses, there is good news and bad. Good news is the Red Sea will part. Bad news is we must await a permit from the Environmental Protection Administration."

Since it now is a matter of economic life and bread for their people, the building and construction trades labor leaders also have decided there is no time to wait and are preparing to sue as many environmentalist organizations as are found delaying construction work across the U.S.

Especially now that the Florida Audubon Society's effort to prevent construction of an assembly line "factory" for repetitive production of floating nuclear power plants has been beaten. Recently a Florida U.S. District Court judge killed with prejudice (permanently) the fish and bird fanciers' suit against the U.S. Army and its Corps of Engineers which had approved a dredging project on the man-made Blount Island in the St. Johns River, Jacksonville, Fla.

Though the Offshore Power Systems corporation already had spent $23.5 million on the project, and although virtually all agreed in the community that fish and wildlife would not be irreparably injured, and although the construction would provide $1.6 billion in economic benefits to the community, including 10,000 to 12,000 jobs, of which some 2,500 would go to minority workers, and although the new system of building floating nuclear power plants would ease the critical energy crunch in several years, the Florida Audubon Society sought and got a temporary restraining order last September which would have killed the construction.

Anger and bitterness spread through the community and in the employment-hungry unions over the Audubon Society's dubious defense of fish and wildlife while over $250 million in jobs were at stake. So the Northeast Florida Building and Construction Trades Council (AFL-CIO) countersued the Audubon organization asking for that sum in damages incurred when hiring was delayed.

Leslie, the latter heads the powerful operating engineers Local 25 with jurisdiction ranging from the Canadian border to the Gulf in the East.

With the Florida Audubon Society cases in mind, they decided to go North and sue "all" the environmentalist organizations they can find interfering with construction. There is double significance in the Florida cases: in addition to ending the restraint, the court ruled that the wildlife savors must pay court costs incurred by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Army itself, the Jacksonville Port Authority and the Offshore Power Systems Inc. (the consortium developing floating nuclear power plants which can be "sited" off the harbors or coast lines of big cities).

This comes just at the moment the Atomic Energy Commission's Atomic Safety and Licensing Board is holding prehearing conferences on the applications of Offshore Power Systems seeking a manufacturing license for this purpose.

After studying all this, Metz will return to his Hamden, Conn. (near New Haven) headquarters to consult with a labor coalition, acronymed

"LITE." This stands for Laborers, Iron Workers, Teamsters and Engineers. This isn't a corny play on "let there be light," though some do use it as a job-making slogan. Its significance is in the powerful unions it represents — some 50,000 construction workers. Many of them are out of work — displaced by lack of propane gas, diesel fuel and gasoline.

Metz's 6,000-member statewide union alone has some 2,000 jobs. They claim that at least $100 million in road construction has been prevented by environmental societies. They point to contracts for highways running from $10 million to $4 million which have been restrained by the ecological forces. In some cases considerable funds already had been spent on "tooling up," preliminary hiring and excavations.

So Metz and his group plan to sue not only to restrain the restrainers but to seek recompense from them for wages lost — just as in the employment discrimination cases. A counteroffensive, they say, will spread from coast to coast. Bread on the table is as vital as wildlife on the hoof. (All Rights Reserved)

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Time Goes In Circles; Only the Names Change

By PAUL HARVEY
The news I am about to relate is 100 years old. It won't sound like it.

Queen Victoria's early popularity with her people was desperately eroded in the 1870s. In 1874, George Gallup's surveyors would surely have discovered her approval rating less than 20 percent.

She found herself ringed round with disloyal ministers and misbehaving palace servants.

The crown was encumbered by rising controversy over income taxes and "women's rights."

She was publicly criticized for the expense of maintaining a multiplicity of personal retreats in sunny southern climates.

Sir Henry Ponsonby, implying that she was misusing public money, once said, "The middle and lower classes think she is hoarding."

Despite public reassurances by her physician, Dr. Jenner, members of Parliament raised suspicions about her health, alleging she was overburdened, suffering from nerves, emotionally unstable.

The queen had become conspicuously exhausted, irritable.

The London Telegraph asked, "Is the queen crazy?"

Her clergyman, the Rev. Norman Macleod, felt compelled to state publicly that the queen had never displayed the remotest trace of mental or moral weakness.

And then the talk of impeachment began.

Sir Charles Dilke, a Radical member of Parliament, accused Victoria of "dereliction of duty," demanded that she be deposed.

Between 1870 and 1874, there were six separate threats against the queen's life. More and more she spent her days in southern resorts, mostly in seclusion.

However, Queen Victoria was touched by the trials of the 1870s. Historian Lytton Strachey says the "ministers, the press and the public conspired to vex her and blame her and misinterpret her actions, to be in every way unsympathetic," but Victoria stubbornly "hung in there."

Had Victoria died in the 1870s the world would have pronounced her a failure.

Instead, she rallied her strength, and with the election of 1874 her Tory Party regained unquestioned supremacy in England.

Through her reign, which was to last another 27 years, Victoria became to the world a living symbol of peace and prosperity. Industry, science and literature flourished as never theretofore.

And the Victorian era engraved itself on the pages of history as the epitome of "private virtue and public honor."

Times don't change. Time goes in circles. Only the names change.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The first imperial harem was begun in Constantinople in the 1400s, and developed into a unique institution housing royal wives, concubines, female relatives, slaves, and eunuchs who were all subordinate to the sultan's mother. The World Almanac notes, Western influence, during the past century, has led to the discontinuance of harems which remain in only a few royal palaces in the Middle East.

Nothing makes people go into debt like trying to keep up with people who already are.

Rearview Mirror

By TEX DEWESE
Editor Of The News

SINCE TOMORROW is the day the Monday Holiday Bill passed by Congress says we are supposed to observe George Washington's birthday, let's talk about the Texas Open Meetings Law.

Washington, you already know, was the little fellow who told his father he could not tell a lie and confessed on the spot that he chopped down the cherry tree with his little hatchet.

Maybe tomorrow can also be a reminder to public servants, such as school boards, etc., that they should be careful about what takes place in those executive sessions they are so fond of convening.

Sometimes there is cause to wonder if members of the public bodies serving the taxpayers really are thoroughly familiar with the Texas Open Meetings Law.

There is an awareness that some local officials are not too happy with the law that pins them down to the point where they have to "toe the mark" when it comes to the public's right to know what they're doing.

One of them told us recently the law thwarts negotiations because it is now illegal for less than a quorum to get together for discussion — and then only in a public meeting. That, he says, is not always convenient.

Of course, the public has a right to be represented at such meetings and less than a quorum isn't kosher in the first place — and if there is delay because it isn't convenient to get a quorum, then perhaps the jobs should be held by persons who do not find it inconvenient to attend to the public's business in public.

ONE WONDERS if all public officials are aware of the provision in the Texas Public Meetings Law that defines a "meeting" in such a way that it does away with any pre-meeting (executive session) gathering of members of a governmental body to predetermine their vote on public business or policy.

There is sound basis to conclude that there was a violation of that provision of the law in Pampa during the past week.

Incidentally, the new law which took effect Jan. 1 stiffens penalties for officials who take part in an illegal meeting. First offense calls for a $100 to $500 fine and - or one to six months in the county jail.

THE PUBLIC may be interested in knowing that at least two Texas newspapers already are putting the new open meetings law to test.

In El Paso, the editor of the Herald-Post has charged the mayor illegally barred newsmen from a transportation study meeting between city and federal officials. Suit was threatened if the closed meetings continued.

The City of El Paso has filed suit seeking a declaratory judgment on whether or not the city violated the new statute.

In the North Texas city of McKinney (pop. 16,000), an official complaint has been filed with the Collin County district attorney against the Collin County Commissioners Court.

The suit was brought by the managing editor of the McKinney Courier-Gazette. It alleged the commissioners convened in an illegal closed executive session.

So, it will be interesting to watch the outcome of the court tests of the new law which for the first time puts teeth into Texas' requirement that the public's business be conducted in public.

NOW, FOR some background information:

The new Open Meetings Law is a direct result of a reform-minded 63rd Texas Legislature that was swept into office in 1972 on the reverberations of scandals and a loss of public confidence in Texas government officials.

The open meetings law was the first of a three-bill "freedom of information" package during the 1973 reform legislative session that was pushed by House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

Rep. Carl Parker of Port Arthur was the sponsor of the bill which was strongly endorsed by the Texas Managing Editors' Association, Texas Association of Broadcasters, Texas Press Association and the Texas Association of Sigma Delta Chi.

Legal counsel for many major school boards over the state have studied the law extensively with members of the school law section of the State Bar of Texas. Their interpretations provide and advise strict adherence to the law.

ONE OF the most important provisions of the Texas Open Meetings Law is that which provides that at the conclusion of any closed or "executive" session, the open meeting must be reconvened with the announcement of any decisions reached during the closed portion.

As that oil company says at the close of the teevee commercials: "We wanted you to know."

FINALLY, Rearview Mirror will observe Washington's birthday, not tomorrow — but next Friday, Feb. 22. We believe George would like it that way.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

'Dance of Death' Reportedly Is About To Begin in Peking

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
Reports filtering out of Red China suggest that the Dance of Death is about to begin again. How it will all end, only Chairman Mao knows.

It is Mao's avowed belief that the revolution which brought the Chinese Communists to power in 1949 must be a continuing proposition, each successive convulsion overthrowing the Communist power-structure brought into being by its predecessor. Only in that way, he argues, is revolutionary ardor kept pristine. Hence the shattering Cultural Revolution of 1966, and the downfall of Liu Shao-chi, whom Mao had raised to the presidency of the People's Republic of China. Hence too the vast purges which shook the armed forces in 1971 and culminated in the disgrace and death of Lin Biao, Mao's "closest comrade-in-arms" and designated heir, who had climbed to the top of the greasy pole after the disgrace of Liu.

In this whole grisly process, the only fixed reference point is Mao himself. His cunning strategy seems to be always to ally himself and his vast prestige with the "revolutionary" impulse and against his former colleagues. No doubt some day, when death has finally removed this bloodthirsty megalomaniac from the scene, his memory will be "downgraded" by his successors, as Stalin's was. Some Chinese Khrushchev who survived these years will tell a Party Congress that no one, however loyal, was safe from the old despot's fatal whims, and that constant and crippling social upheaval was the price China was forced to pay for them. Then we may expect the selfsame American apologists who have fawned over Mao, and excused or minimized the wholesale slaughters which have been his one immutable legacy to China, to fall all over each other hailing the posthumous denunciations of him as evidence that Red China is "maturing."

Meanwhile, in Peking, the wall posters are going up again — those billboard-type "newspapers" which, in times of turmoil, are the only indications anybody has of what is going on. In the eerie world of Chinese Communist politics indirection is of the essence, and statements that is sinner societies would have no political meaning whatever are often freighted with deadly significance. What, for example, was the implication behind that recent attack, in a Party newspaper, on the unnamed reactionaries who are allegedly trying to import Beethoven and other capitalist musical toadies into Red China? Last year Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's politically powerful wife, asked a visiting symphony orchestra to play Beethoven (probably, as a Nationalist Chinese friend of mine remarked, because he was the only Western composer she'd ever heard of). Is somebody nominating Chiang Ching for the water torture?

More ominous from the standpoint of Nixon and Kissinger, who have staked America's whole pile of chips on Chou En-lai, are the increasingly savage attacks, along the entire spectrum of Red Chinese propaganda organs, on Confucius. One might suppose that Confucius, who died in 479 B.C., is safe from even the wrath of Chairman Mao. But as a conservative philosopher of the old China he is fair game for ultra-Communist criticism. In recent weeks the propaganda drums have been throbbing, linking Confucius' name to that of the late Lin Biao, who is now of course publicly excoriated as a swinish betrayer of the Revolution.

Lin (so the new line goes) was "an out-and-out disciple" of Confucius — which has its comical side, since in fact Lin was an uneducated soldier who couldn't tell an analect from an abacus. Indeed, only one of the top figures in the Red Chinese hierarchy has any pretensions whatever to Confucian scholarship — and that, ominously enough, is Chiang Ching's old enemy Chou En-lai.

Not only does the government not have a right to lie, but in every situation that I have witnessed in 16 years in Washington, from top to bottom, lying has produced tragedy. You name it — the Bay of Pigs, the U-2 incident, Vietnam, Watergate. Lying is bad manners, bad politics, bad government, bad morals. — Journalist Hugh Sidney.

McLean Youth Wins Soil Essay Contest

There are many things that make people think. But there are so many things that are there every day, no thought is ever given the subject. One such subject is conservation.

The Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District sponsors an essay contest every year. It is simple, and students in Pampa, Lefors and McLean schools are eligible according to Curtis Schaffer, chairman of the Gray County SWCD.

So what? For one thing, the students think about conservation, a problem coming to light more and more. The real problem seems a long way off, but it is local in some form or fashion, and unless more thought is given in the future it will become a bigger problem.

The students writing may be getting their first touch in the conservation field, giving them an experience they will remember and, hopefully like other lessons, will be carried for life and expanded upon now that the student is aware of the problem.

Dollar Bread "Unbelievable"

COLLEGE STATION — A dollar for a loaf of bread was the prediction a few weeks ago, but closer study proves this statement somewhat unbelievable.

The inconsistency in the price climb tale is pointed out by Roland Smith, grain marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"About 10 cents worth of wheat — 1.2 pounds — is baked into the average one- and a-half pound loaf," says Smith. "For that 47-cent loaf to reach a dollar, the cost of a bushel of wheat would have to go to about $30, almost six times the current price to the farmer."

Bakers, of course, have suffered a reduction in profits due to price controls and increased competition with the milling industry, notes Smith. Many are caught in a price squeeze partly because they failed to buy wheat during the months that the price rose from $2.30 to $4.50 a bushel.

According to Smith, many bakers have blamed the millers for the failure to buy, rather than take the blame. The millers, in reply, have claimed they can't purchase wheat far in advance because bakers are unwilling to book flour in advance.

The bakers could be assisted by the government trying to maintain a 200 million bushel reserve, notes Smith. They have asked for export controls to keep the reserve intact and have recently convinced President Nixon to remove import quotas on wheat. The President has suspended for five months the annual quota limiting imports to 800,000 bushels of wheat and milled wheat products.

What about controls on wheat exports?

"Such controls would be an economic mistake because they would ruin the U.S. reputation as a dependable world source for wheat and other agricultural products," believes the specialist. "Texas farmers could be especially affected, since 80 per cent of the state's crop goes into export channels."

The forthcoming Texas crop will be about 78 million bushels.

The essay that won the Gray County SWCD contest for Art Rhine of McLean on the subject of "Our Soil — Our Strength" follows:

OUR SOIL — OUR STRENGTH

By ART RHINE
McLean

I am the Soil. I have been here ever since the beginning of time; without me it would not be possible for you to have cotton to make clothes to wear nor would you have soil to plant crops to make food to meet our nation's need. I happen to play a very important part in your life and every other life in the world. But I need you to help protect me from dust storms, erosion and loss of nutrients taken from me and not replaced. It will cause me to be worthless and crops will not grow and then you and I will grow weak.

Through the years man has used and abused me, then I turned on him to have a loss in crops and fiber. Though the use of conservation, such as soil banks, helps to let soil build up its strength over a number of years, rotating crops help to let soil build up its strength. Terracing helps to hold water and stops valuable soil from washing away. Strip farming is important in helping to save soil from blowing or wind damage.

No matter where we live we need to be concerned about our soil. Because soils have many uses, many classifications of soils are in use. Among them are those that guide long range land use planning so good soil can be reserved for farming and soil poorly suited for farming can be put to other uses. Fifteen percent of our nation's soils are covered with roads and highways, towns and factories. We need to route these where we can save our best soils for crops. If you will protect me the soils will be your strength.

Livestock Object Of Great Concern

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Continuing dry weather over the western and southwestern portions of Texas is causing concern for livestock owners, while producers in Northeast and East Texas have adequate to surplus moisture and need warm, sunny weather for outdoor activities.

In areas with adequate moisture, small grains are showing improvement and providing grazing, according to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. In the Panhandle, localized light snowfall was not adequate to improve stressed condition of dryland winter wheat or pastures.

Land preparation and fertilizer application is underway in many areas, although fertilizer prices continue high and supplies are short in some locations. In the High Plains area, some field-stored cotton is still being ginned in the southern portion of the district. Cotton planting began on a small scale in the Rio Grande Valley, but most growers are waiting for warmer weather.

Texas leads the nation in the number of oil refining plants with 47, 14 more than second-place California.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALLS

The recommendations of the National Water Commission were released just prior to the ill-fated report by the Bureau of Reclamation that the cost of importing water to West Texas from below New Orleans could not be justified in view of the economic returns.

The conclusions reached in the two reports, coming on the heels of the water bond election failure, was a big blow to the future hopes of the irrigation based economy of the Panhandle and High Plains area of Texas.

Following the Bureau of Reclamation report the water leaders of Texas have reassessed and reassembled themselves with a fresh determination to solve the "water short" problems of Texas.

The Governor, the Lt. Governor, the Texas Senate and House have come forward to back efforts to obtain water from any available source. The Bureau of Reclamation and the Corps of Engineers have also offered to assist wherever possible.

The Governor's Task Force meeting on Jan. 9 was addressed by Gen. Harry Griffith of the Corps of Engineers and by James A. Bradley, Regional Director of the Southwest Region, Bureau of Reclamation. The past two weeks this column carried the address by Gen. Griffith. Today we are carrying a portion of the address of Lester Bradley, who is stationed in Amarillo. "The Bureau of Reclamation's involvement in the development of the land and water resources of Texas goes back almost to the start of the Reclamation Service. The Rio Grande project, involving the development of irrigation in the vicinity of El Paso, was authorized by the Secretary of the Interior Dec. 2, 1905.

"Other projects followed at intervals through the years. Probably the most significant was the Canadian River Project which was authorized in 1950. That project supplies municipal and industrial water to 11 towns and cities in an area which is otherwise dependent upon a declining ground water supply. This project featured one of the largest repayment contracts ever entered into by the Bureau up until that time.

"Currently we are engaged in the construction of the Palmetto Bend Project near Edna, Tex. Project Investigation Activities has been carried on in Texas intermittently from 1905 to the mid-1930's and continuously since then. I have mentioned these items as testimony to reclamation's long and continuing interest in water resource development in Texas.

"I have been asked to give our views on the water development needs in Texas. This is a broad question and a complex one. Any comment, must of necessity, be general and somewhat 'iffy' depending upon the assumptions made.

"Assuming that growth continues at or near the present rate, it seems to us that some of the major high-priority problems center around the preservation of the irrigation development on the High Plains, in the lower Rio Grande Valley, in the El Paso area and around the municipal and industrial needs of population centers such as Corpus Christi, El Paso, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio and the lower Rio Grande Valley.

"Some of the problems we face relate to the management of ground water supplies. These manifest themselves by unpleasant circumstances, such as land subsidence in the Houston area, the loss of irrigation development on the High Plains, and in the potential competition for the waters of the Edwards Underground Reservoir.

"There is another problem which is having and will continue to have a great bearing on the future development of surface water supplies in Texas. It is the problem of the estuaries. What are the needs of the estuaries? How are these needs to be met? Who will pay for meeting these needs? What kind of priority should be given to the estuary? These are not easy questions to answer. Although there are no clear cut answers to many of these questions, a lot of research is presently being done in the estuaries seeking such answers."

Agriculturally Speaking

ALFALFA MEETING

We had a nice turnout for the meeting on alfalfa growing at McLean. I have some literature on the subject which was passed out at the meeting. If you would like, we would be happy to mail you copies of this literature. I am told alfalfa is bringing up to $60 per ton. Harvesting methods are changing very fast for alfalfa. Before you go into the production of alfalfa, take a long look and visit with the people now in the business. Alfalfa is a heavy water user. If you have a weak well, you don't need alfalfa. Here on the High Plains if you have a small acreage and a big irrigation well, it might be an economically feasible situation for alfalfa. Your gross and net return for alfalfa usually isn't competitive to milk.

WATER DEPLETION

A few weeks ago John Spearman, Felix Ryalls, and I met with representatives of the Internal Revenue Service. The purpose of our meeting was to establish value of water under the depletion allowance clause of the Internal Revenue Code. If any of you need more information on this subject, I suggest you check with Felix. He can tell you what the Internal Revenue Service agreed to accept. In my opinion the depletion allowance in water is hardly worth the effort on land that was acquired several years ago. If it was by inheritance several years ago, it is of little or no value.

However, if you purchased the land recently and it is being used for irrigation, there might be some advantage.

SOIL TESTING

We have had a few farmers call for information sheets and soil testing cartons... more should do so. The cost is two dollars per sample.

FEED LOT MANURE DEMONSTRATIONS

We are planning some feedlot manure demonstrations that will feature 20 tons per acre, 10 tons per acre, no fertilizer, and an equivalent amount of nitrogen from anhydrous ammonia. We plan to take soil samples and test these plots periodically throughout the test. This should prove both interesting and educational.

When applied properly, feed lot manure is very competitive with anhydrous ammonia based on nitrogen content alone. Several of you have called my office for these figures. Most farmers try to apply 10 tons of manure per acre. Here is the analysis on 10 tons of manure, nitrogen content - 268 pounds; phosphorus content - 244 pounds; potash content - 368 pounds.

You might want to compare this with what anhydrous ammonia would cost you. Keep in mind only 82 per cent of anhydrous ammonia is nitrogen.

Small Investors Needed

LOUISVILLE (UPI) - Individual investors must put more money into securities if American corporations reach the estimated $1.2 trillion they will need for new factories and machinery before 1980.

J. Henning Hilliard, chairman of the Securities Industry Association, said the money is needed to set up thousands of jobs for newcomers to the labor force and to develop advanced technology.

Hilliard said half of the estimated amount should come from corporate profits but that new capital from individual investors will be needed for the remainder.

Income Causes A Rise?

(Editor's Note: This the fourth of six weekly news articles on income tax management for farmers and ranchers.)

COLLEGE STATION - A higher farm and ranch income in 1973 does not necessarily mean a higher income tax bracket, says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"A technique called 'income averaging' can reduce taxes in situations where taxable income changes measurably from year to year," continues the Texas A&M University System specialist. "For the technique to apply, your taxable income must be at least $3,000 more than your yearly average income for the four immediately preceding tax years."

In addition to ordinary income, capital gains on the sale of livestock and other assets may also be included in income averaging.

In filing for income averaging, Schedule G must be completed and turned in along with Form 1040, advises Hayenga. It is not necessary to file amended returns for the four preceding years, but the tax returns from these years must be available to record the taxable income reported.

The economist suggests a simple check to determine if income averaging will save tax dollars. First, compute the "average taxable income" for the prior four years. Then multiply that figure by 120 per cent to get the "average base period income". The "averageable income" is determined by subtracting the average base period income from the current taxable income.

Wedding vows will be exchanged May 25 in the First Baptist Church of Clarendon. The bride-elect is a December graduate of West Texas State University having received a bachelor of science degree in elementary education. She is presently teaching kindergarten at Mobeetie. ## Mrs. Reeve Gives Program On 'White House Brides'

Illustrating her talk with exquisitely dressed dolls, Mrs. Glenn Reeve, Sr., of Friona, presented a program on "White House Brides" at a meeting of the Theta Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, Saturday afternoon, in the Hospitality Room of the Citizens Bank and Trust Company.

By hours of research and expert needlework, Mrs. Reeve not only has produced an accurate reproduction of the sixteen brides' wedding dresses, but has conveyed something of their personalities. As she pointed out the materials and details of the costumes, she related the age of each bride, her relationship to the occupant of the White House, unusual details of the ceremony, and, in some cases, the type and cost of the wedding gifts. For example, the gifts of Nellie Grant, daughter of President Ulysses S. Grant, were valued at $75,000, while another couple received such things as a bag of potatoes and a coal scuttle.

Eight of the brides were daughters of presidents; of the others, one, Lucy Payne, was married to a nephew of George Washington; another, to John Adams II, and one to Harry Hopkins, who was residing at the White House at the time; the others were relatives or wards of the presidents.

In addition to the sixteen brides, Mrs. Reeve's collection included one bridegroom, unique in that he, too, carried a bridal bouquet bearing a small banner inscribed "Love."

Most of Mrs. Reeve's materials came from much research; however, she does have in her display a letter from Alice Roosevelt Longworth, and letters, pictures, and press releases from Mrs. Lyndon Johnson and Mrs. Richard Nixon.

The speaker stated that her list included the sixteen recorded White House weddings; but that there have been occasions when bridal parties have joined the tours of the White House, stopping at some chosen place for a ceremony, so that they can say with some truth that they "were married in the White House."

Preceding Mrs. Reeve's talk, Mrs. W. K. Mackey led the group in songs of America: "This Is My Country," "This Land Is Your Land," and "God Bless America." Miss Mary Ewing led the Pledge to the Flag, and Mrs. John Vantine gave the invocation. Miss Mary Dean Dozier introduced the speaker.

In the business meeting, the members voted to make a contribution to the Stillwell Retirement Home in Waco and took an offering for the World Fellowship Fund. They also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Henry Gruben from membership in the chapter.

The refreshment table carried out a patriotic theme, with a centerpiece of red, white and blue carnations, a log cabin, and other patriotic symbols.

Hostesses were Meses Mackey, Edward Wiens, Elbert Walker and Jack C. Williams.

The Apache Indian tribe was given its name by a neighboring tribe, the Zuni. Their word Apache means "enemy."

Dinner Will Honor Panhandle Publishers

The Friends of the Amarillo Library are honoring authors of the Texas Panhandle who have published a book in the past year by sponsoring a Sixth Annual Book and Author Dinner March 2.

Eighteen names on the list of those who deserve this special recognition for significant achievement. "Because we look to our authors to help preserve our cultural heritage, the Friends take great pleasure in providing this annual occasion for the area. We look forward to an evening of good fellowship, good food and conversation with the authors and all lovers of good books," stated president, Dick Carter.

All area writers are invited to bring copies of their books for display. These should be picked up after the meeting.

The speaker for the evening will be a Texas author, Jimmy Banks of Austin. He is a newspaperman and the author of "The Darrell Royal Story" and "Money, Marbles and Chalk." He will speak on his experiences with libraries.

The dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday, March 2 at the Villa Inn, 3618 Interstate - 40 East. Please make your reservations by Wednesday, Feb. 27 or by telephoning Amarillo Public Library, Area Code 806-372-4211, Ext. 252.

Household Tips
MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Housewives are making their kitchens and bathrooms the glamor spots of their homes.

In modern decorating schemes the kitchen often determines the color and design patterns for the bathrooms, James T. Sledge, division president of Borg-Warner Plumbing Products, said recently.

He noted that bathrooms sport fixtures in stylish decorator colors and dramatic wall and curtain designs.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION — To help cut food costs, thrifty shoppers compare prices and quality at several different markets, according to one observer.

"This week, they'll find pork prices up a bit, with scattered values on advertised cuts," Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, noted.

"Watch for good values on Boston butt roasts, shoulder roasts and steaks, end-cut loin roasts and chops, sliced quarter loins, smoked picnics, ham portions, sausage and pork liver," she advised.

"We used to be pretty much a steak and roast country. But now we're discovering there's more to beef than just the glamorous cuts. Whole beef prices reflect this trend."

Ground beef and beef liver are the main beef values this week, the specialist said.

"Fryer chicken specials continue in some stores despite a cost increase — with both whole birds and fryer parts featured."

Grade A large-size eggs, on the other hand, offer the best combination of quality and economy for the egg money, Mrs. Clyatt added.

Turning to fruits and vegetables, the specialist noted that January is the month for peak orange and grapefruit supplies.

"Tangerines, tangelos and apples furnish additional good choices, with more apple stocks coming from controlled atmosphere (CA) storage."

"Other fruits and vegetables in best supply at the most economical prices include bananas, avocados, grapes, pineapples, collards, mustard, spinach and bulk turnips."

"Also rutabagas, lettuce, celery, cabbage, carrots, potatoes, broccoli and dry yellow onions."

Stockings take their cue from shoes. The idea is a continuous color below the hem, a monochromatic look.

Karpin On Bridge

By FRED KARPIN

Easley Blackwood is best known to the world's bridge players as the inventor of the Blackwood 4 NT-5 NT Slam Convention. In addition, however, he is also accepted as one of our nation's better players.

During the 1973 Fall Nationals, held in Las Vegas, the tournament director was called to Table 6 by the North player who stated, "I've got only eight cards and everybody else has 13." Back went the director to Table 7 (where the deal had been played on the previous round). He looked on the table and on the floor, but couldn't find the five missing cards.

Blackwood, who was sitting North at the table where the search was taking place, remarked: "I can't imagine what could have happened to them." This was followed by a "Whoops!" as he reached into his right-hand pocket. He pulled out the five cards, and the director, who evidently had played poker at Las Vegas, stated with a straight face, "I presume you're playing those."

Here is a deal that Blackwood once played in a tournament. He was the South declarer.

After West's king of spades had won the opening lead, he continued with the spade queen.

Both sides vulnerable.

which also won. A third spade lead was taken by Blackwood's ace.

It was rather obvious that the club suit had to be attacked; and it was equally obvious that West had to be kept out of the lead, to prevent West from cashing this established spades. The "normal" way of playing the club suit would have been to have led a club to the board's ace, and to then have finessed the club jack on the way back. Had this line of play been adopted, the contract would have been defeated.

At trick four, Blackwood led the club jack. No matter what would have won the trick. A club return would now have picked up East's ten; and, once again, five-club tricks would have been made.

West played, Blackwood was not home safely. Actually, West played low, as did dummy. With the jack winning, declarer now had himself five club tricks.

38-year-old bachelor thinks he loves Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I sure dig your column. Do you write all those answers yourself? Or have you got a whole mess of writers who do it for you?

And that picture of you is a gas! How old is it? Is that really you? I'll bet in real life you're a fat old maid who takes her frustrations out telling other people how to live.

I'm a 38-year-old bachelor. Never been married, but I've been around a lot. If that's really your picture and it's not more than 10 years old, I might even ask you to marry me. Do you think you could live in Fort Wayne, Ind.?

RUSTY

DEAR RUSTY: I write all these answers myself, that picture is ME, and it's a recent one. Anyone who lived in Sioux City, Ia., and Eau Claire, Wis., can live in Fort Wayne and love it. However, I'm still married to the same man I married 24 years ago, and I'm old enough to be your mother.

DEAR ABBY: This is my second marriage. His, also. Three years ago Carl won me over by pretending to love my two children. He took them on picnics, to the beach, etc. As soon as the honeymoon was over, he ignored them completely! He finally admitted he actually hates children! The boy, now 10, is under a doctor's care because of the tension at home. The girl, 15, ran away twice because she couldn't stand this "institution."

When Carl comes home from work he goes right to his bedroom and nobody sees him until dinner. At dinner, the extent of his conversation is: "Sit up straight, both you kids; and keep your elbows off the table!"

After dinner he retires to his bedroom to watch TV. We can be watching the same channel in another room, but Carl prefers to watch it alone.

We never visit anybody, and no one visits us.

He hasn't kissed me hello or goodby in two years. There is no sex, either. I am clean and neat and pleasant. I am 33. He's 42. He's a good provider, but what good is that when everything else is lacking?

Don't suggest counseling. My son's doctor suggested that, and Carl said: "No one has to tell me how to live my life."

Please help me.

DESPONDENT

DEAR DESPONDENT: Ask your husband what he is getting out of your marriage. (He can hire a cook and housekeeper.) Unless he agrees to counseling, talk to a lawyer about a separation or divorce. And I hope you're qualified to work outside your home, because you may have to.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm dumb, but I can't figure something out, and I hope you'll help me.

My husband sometimes likes a little change, so he goes out with another woman. Then he comes home and tells me the truth. He says that as long as he TELLS me about it I can't call that CHEATING on me.

In a way, I guess he's right. But I still don't think I should have to put up with it. Do it?

DELLA

DEAR DELIA: Not unless you want to. TELLING you that he has been unfaithful to you doesn't excuse his unfaithfulness. He's just one cut above most cheaters. They lie. He tells you the truth, but he's still a cheater.

CONFIDENTIAL FOR "YELLOW RIBBON": There is no situation as hopeless as a single girl who has got it bad for a married man who never had it so good.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 6706, L.A., Calif. 90068. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Attention Won't Spoil Baby

COLLEGE STATION — Picking up and soothing a crying baby won't spoil him, one authority says.

"Nor will it make him even fussier in the future," Dr. Jennie Kitching, specialist in family life education with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, added.

She cited results of studies by Ainsworth and Bell, child development researchers, who found that mothers who are unresponsive to the crying of tiny infants tend to have babies who cry more often later on.

"However, mothers who attend to infant crying almost every time and respond with little delay have babies whose non-crying communication has more variety, subtlety and clarity."

According to the Ainsworth and Bell studies, when a baby's signals (both crying and non-crying) are responded to promptly and appropriately, he builds up a sense of competence.

"In other words, he gains confidence that he can control what happens to him through his own activity."

"This confidence, in turn, carries over into his transaction with the physical environment — and affects the level and quality of his behavior and play," the specialist added.

Beautification Program Discussed at ABWA Meet

The Pampa Charter Chapter of The American Business Women's Association met recently at Coronado Inn for their monthly dinner meeting with Mrs. Homer McNeil, president, calling the meeting to order.

Mrs. Thelma Bray and Mrs. Darlene Birkes with the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation, were introduced as guest speakers by Mrs. Fred Richmond.

Mrs. Bray explained the purpose of the Foundation while Mrs. Birkes assisted in showing slides and telling of their beauty. The slides exhibited some of Pampa's Beautification program.

The Foundation was established last summer and has 85 members. Some of the areas which have been improved are the parks, school grounds and play grounds. Pampa Junior High School has an outdoor lab program which the students take care of the beautification program.

Mrs. Bray announced that plans are in the making for the landscaping of the M.K. Brown Auditorium grounds. This year the Foundation will plant masses of geraniums along the trails in the parks, and there will be a "cleaning alley" program soon.

Mrs. Bray mentioned the City Lake near the Rodeo Grounds has great potential for beautification, and the highway entrances to Pampa need improvement. She stated that delinquency increases when the distance from a residential area to a park increases.

Mrs. Bray concluded that Pampa should welcome all people, and that even the flowers can shape the character of people.

The Foundation meets the third Tuesday in each month in the City Commission Room at City Hall at 7:30 p.m. and would welcome new members.

Mrs. Don Elledge gave the vocational talk. She started her career at the age of 12 working in a grocery store during the war for two years. Later she worked in a drug store after school and on Saturdays. She finished high school, married, and later moved to Pampa. Since moving Pampa she has been employed by Beacon Supply, Hughes Investment, Wright's Fashions, Nolte Bookkeeping and Tax Service, and is now receptionist with Gordon & Gordon Attorneys. She has one son and two grandchildren.

Betty Mounce gave the reading of the minutes and the executive board report.

Mrs. James Culpepper read a letter from National Headquarters announcing the Regional Meeting of ABWA from March 22 to 24 at the Hilton Inn in Albuquerque, N.M. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Danny Malone.

The president announced that Glynda Schickedanz had moved to Amarillo.

Mrs. T.A. Mastin, chairman for the Boss Night Banquet being held in the Starlight Room at Coronado Inn Feb. 26, announced that all members should submit their guest list in the next few days, and that reservations to attend the event could be made by calling 665-2665 or 665-3701.

Mrs. John King, tea chairman, announced that the spring Hand of Friendship Tea would be held in the Flame Room, Pioneer Natural Gas Co., March 10 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Mrs. Don Elledge, James Quarry and David McNair will serve on the Woman of the Year Committee and Mrs. Eugene Franklin will serve as contact chairman for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Mrs. John King was installed as vice president to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. Fred Glick.

Mrs. C.A. Herd's name was drawn from the Rocket Fund. Guests of the Chapter were Mrs. Thelma Bray and Mrs. Darlene Birkes.

Magazine Applauds Creative Cooking School

RADNOR, Pa. — An author of two cookbooks who doesn't trust cookbooks ... who runs a cooking school without so much as one measuring spoon ... takes the spotlight in the February issue of Good Food Magazine. The charming paradox is Julie Dannenbaum who operates the highly praised Creative Cooking School out of her small carriage house in old Philadelphia.

In nine years, the Creative Cooking School has grown from a single class of twelve students to a thriving business. The secret of that success seems to be knowing what people really want from a cooking class. Most of them are housewives in search of something spectacular to serve company. While learning that, they also improve on their basic food skills, such as chopping vegetables and make a good white sauce. Preparing meals ahead is another important lesson, particularly since most women today have little help at home. The idea is to cook two or three days in advance and enjoy your guests when they arrive. Both men and women are welcome at the Creative Cooking School, but in separate classes. "I started a mixed night class," recalls Julie, "but found that I wasn't teaching cooking at all. I was running a lonely hearts club!" The men may be like a noisy bunch of kids, but they're Julie's favorites.

Most of the classes are demonstration classes where students watch rather than participate. The course in baking is an exception, because "... you can't really make bread until you get used to the feel of the dough," says Julie.

In addition to acquiring practical knowledge like running a well-ordered kitchen ... cooking by taste rather than by exact measurement ... and Don't try to conserve water when using a food waste disposer. This can cause a food waste build-up, resulting in plumbing problems and perhaps a service call. It's better to use too much water than too little, according to Janice Garrett, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

whipping up a wide variety of international recipes with ease. Julie Dannenbaum's students pick up plenty of subtle and ingenious culinary secrets. And they have a jolly good time along the way.

Book Review Will Highlight 'Friends' Informal Coffee

Mrs. David Holt will review Helen Hayes' autobiography, "On Reflection," at an informal coffee at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 19, in the large conference room of Lovett Memorial Library.

The Friends of the Pampa Library is presenting the review as the first in a series of programs to be offered by the Friends cultural and recreational committee headed by Mrs. Homer Johnson.

"The Friends would like to extend a special invitation to anyone who would like to join the group for coffee at 9:30 a.m. and Mrs. Holt's review at 10 a.m.," Mrs. Johnson said.

Following her best-selling book, "A Gift of Joy," Miss Hayes' autobiography gives the reader an intimate glimpse into the renowned actress' personal and family life.

"In 'On Reflection' the author puts aside her previous reluctance to discuss her private life," Mrs. Holt said, "and gives us a fascinating account of her girlhood, her relationship with her ambitious mother, and her marriage to Charles MacArthur."

The book also deals with Miss Hayes' work for the National Foundation (March of Dimes)

Serving with Mrs. Johnson on the arrangements committee for the review are Mrs. Jack Ward, Miss Elsie Cunningham and Mrs. Holt.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You See Some Results From Your Beauty Plan

This is the eleventh in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of WHY GROW OLD? and leading authority on health and beauty tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.

If your first three weeks are not yet over, stick with it! Soon you will be so happy you did. I will be rooting for you and will be back with more help next week.

If you missed the first part of this course and would like to lose from 15 to 20 pounds before spring clothes time you may want to start now. If so send for by Bip Kit, which gives you complete directions, and follow the course from here on. Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa

This is the fourth week of my eight week Beauty Improvement Plan (Bip for short). If you started at the beginning, the worst is over. The first few weeks are always the hardest when dieting.

By now you have become somewhat accustomed to eating less and bese that your muscles have probably lost all or most of the soreness which exercise usually causes at the beginning of an exercise program. Also, you are beginning to get some results, a few small encouraging signs of what is to come.

Most important, you have taken that first step toward a prettier figure, more energy and a more vibrant way of life. It is difficult to get started on a self improvement plan but once a woman adheres to one for as long as two weeks she is usually hooked. I hope you have been using the menus and doing the exercises I have given you.

Reducers always wish to know if it matters how they divide their food intake. Most authorities agree that it is a mistake to skip a meal. Study after study has shown this to be true. The dieter becomes tired, and often irritable, and then makes up for the skipped meal by overeating at the next one. However, one study in England indicated that some women are more likely to stay on a diet if their food is divided into two larger meals daily.

The women in that program were shown a list of 40 meals, each supplying 500 calories. They chose two for each day and reduced very successfully. The theory behind this is that they were better satisfied by two larger meals than by three smaller ones. The entrants were allowed drinks without sugar or milk or alcohol.

The "Nibble All Day" theory is popular with some. The allowable food for the day is distributed into four or even six smaller meals. There is some evidence that women lost most successfully with this plan. If you have been a habitual nibbler I think this might suit you best.

Danger! Be sure you do not nibble more than you should! This plan also seems to lower blood cholesterol.

You can choose a middle of the road policy. In this the food is divided into three meals daily but you can save a piece of fruit or a glass of juice or milk or some other item from the allowed menus and eat it in between meals. I suggest that you divide your daily allowance any way which seems best for you. The main thing is to be sure to keep within the daily calorie limit.

20th Century Club Speaker Tells Of Japanese Customs

The Twentieth Century Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Bob Andis, with Mrs. Jerry Bond, co-hostess.

Mrs. Gene Steele, president, conducted the business meeting. Plans for the entertainment of the Senior Citizens were made, with Mrs. Bob Campbell, chairman for this project.

Mrs. Frank Culbertson, leader of the program, opened with a quotation of John Donne "No man is an island, entire unto himself, every man is a piece of the continent."

She reminded club members that they should be prepared to live in "One-World," since multi-media communication and transportation have brought man together.

The book discussed by the members was the "Japanese" by Jack Seward. Each facet of the culture, homelife, language, customs, land, cuisine, and religion were discussed.

The hostesses added to the theme of the afternoon by greeting each member dressed in a geisha gown, and presented each member with a kimono to be worn during the afternoon.

Adding to the program, they served refreshments in the atmosphere of a Japanese tea-house. Sake, rice cakes, shrimp in soy sauce, tea and candied ginger were served to Mmes F. Culbertson, Bob Andis, J. Bond, R. Braswell, W. Campbell, L. Hamilton, David McGahney, E. Myatt, F. Neslage, J. Rankin, R. Rose, C.E. Steel, R. Stowers, C. Jones and C. Faganis, and Miss Elsie Cunningham.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, FEB. 17

Your birthday today: This year's progress requires a willingness to contend against competition and adversity, with multiple fringe benefits from even the slightest creative effort. Early in the year, relationships are under stress, but later all are relaxed and renewed almost spontaneously. It's up to you to make the first move in every case, however. Today's natives are willing to take extreme risks, should be trained to abstain from involving others in their adventures.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The challenge is to busy yourself sufficiently so that you aren't restless, while leaving your work and its spotlight out for the day.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Fill your Sunday with social activity. Self-indulgence is the temptation of the day. Govern yourself strictly and stay healthy and happier.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Take your normal share in the Sunday customs. Much more is learned now by listening than by showing off, regardless of how rebellious you feel.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Last minute changes of arrangements are probable, with some people insisting on special interests despite previous promises or schedules.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: If you are strongly assertive, somebody near is apt to turn contrary. Find something to do that does not involve social pressures or overleadership.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Like as not you'll be carried off your contemplated line of action by distractions and demands of those around you. Relax and enjoy it.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: If very little gets done today, it's all right. Your home benefits from the little chores you can do to keep yourself busy and away from dissension.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]:

PROGRESSIVE HD CLUB
The Progressive Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. D.A. Rife, 1901 Chestnut, Feb. 7. Mrs. J.A. King, president, opened the meeting with the club prayer. Roll call was answered with each member describing her wedding dress.

Mrs. J.A. King was nominated as delegate for the THDA district meeting to be held in Borger, Feb. 25.

Charlene Blakney from the Pampa College of Hair Dressing gave a demonstration on the basics of applying make-up. Pat Sellers was the speaker model for the demonstration.

After the business meeting, members were served angel food cake, cherry jello desert and coffee.

Guests were Mrs. Lee Jackson, F.L. Symonds and Leah Hoffman of Hayward, Calif.

Next meeting is to be February 21, 1974 at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room with Mrs. E.P. Templin hostess.

Social connections seem inconvenient but worthy of your initiative. You have items of information to pass along, correspondence to catch up.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Pull out of the center of public attention, seek the full attainment of serene home life. Practice economy where it counts.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Talk business—and see what arguments arise! Better to make Sunday a real rest; if you must deal with others, let them be people you haven't seen lately.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: A Sunday for quiet formality. Remember that those unfamiliar with your habits may not follow your suggestions, are thus not to be relied upon.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Stick to your budget even though it seems to keep you out of some elegant expedition. Social contacts offer their own non-material satisfactions.

superficial surfaces of reality. Symbolically, they are significant and help set the stage for serious advancement.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Emotional needs are more readily fulfilled, now. The affairs of younger people come to general notice. The pursuit of romance proceeds spontaneously.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Consultations with technical experts and heavy planning lie in the near future. For today, mainly preparations and making the best of a favorable climate.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Leave financial considerations strictly to business operations, expecting nothing from friends, offering no opening for extra spending.

MONDAY, FEB. 18

Your birthday today: The Sun moves from Aquarius to Pisces tonight at 8:59 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time. Both Aquarians and Pisceans born today face a year of many surprises. Other people's resources prove more vital than anticipated, and your own strengths emerge firmly. The search for efficiency becomes more important than anything else now. Today's natives all have strong literary aptitudes. The Aquarians are practical, thoughtful; the Pisceans persuasive.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: There are moments for broad humor, plus the chance to pursue a romantic interest. Home life is fraught with complications.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Sharing work and fun includes odd moments in which no comment is quite adequate. Avoid any sort of overindulgence in later hours.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Get details settled and your week's program under way. On the family scene, put off drastic changes or even small ones without asking cooperation.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: A sound performance based on definite motivation is your key to success today. It's essential to choose your direction and stick to it.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Promote your favorite projects—vigorously! Fresh cooperation is available on all sides, so you have to select and make specific terms.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Benefits begin at home; first yourself, next your possessions, then with those you cherish. Check budgets and unusual requests for money.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Restrict the errands and travels of the day to business hours. Home development schemes are largely in the planning stage, open to revision.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Level out any stress between yourself and friends and relatives. Travel brings extra benefits, but get finished and settled before night comes.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Pursue the relatively

Mrs. Teresa Reed was hostess for the Civic Culture Club, recently in the Pioneer Flame Room.

To open the meeting, Mrs. A.D. Hills, president, led in repeating the Pledge to the Flag and the American Creed — "I believe in the United States of America — whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed."

Mrs. Carl Smith, secretary, read the minutes, and the financial report was given.

Mrs. A.B. Cross and the nominating committee members, Mrs. George Neef and Mrs. Carl Smith, submitted names of the proposed 1974-75 slate of officers.

Mrs. D.A. Rife and committee members, Mrs. Irwin Cole and Mrs. Chester Williams, presented several revisions to the by-laws, which were accepted by the club with some minor changes, including a raise in membership dues.

The club regrettably accepted the resignation of Mrs. John McKerny.

Mrs. J.J. Rance, in her program on Abraham Lincoln, renewed recurring fascination with this uniquely American hero. "One of the three," she said, "along with Columbus and George Washington, who symbolize the New World to a majority of non-Americans, and the one not cloaked in legend." He was truly "the uncommon man among common men."

His lineage was traced no farther back than his grandfather. It is said his formal schooling did not exceed one year's work. But in his youth when working, he carried in his pocket a book or newspaper to read in any spare moment. At age 25 he took his seat in the legislature (many of this body could neither read nor write); in 1836 he received a license to practice law; at age 52 he was elected president, one of the youngest — and also commander-in-chief of the national armed forces, she told.

At age 18 he stood 6 feet 4 inches in his moccasins, ungainly, but sympathetic, courteous and a favorite with the village girls.

On the death of his fiancée, Miss Ann Rutledge, many thought his grief drove him to the borderline of sanity.

Mary Todd, whom he later married, was a "most remarkable and controversial" first lady in American history. She "became the very symbol of sorrow," losing her mother, three sons, and her husband. She was the first president's wife to lose a husband by assassination, almost a century before the same fate overtook Jacqueline Kennedy, the speaker continued.

Abraham Lincoln's last day was on Good Friday. At 10:10 p.m., he and Mrs. Lincoln were in the presidential box at Ford's Theatre. Booth, his assassin, fired one shot. The President slumped forward in his chair. He never regained consciousness.

On the sixth day after his death, a special train, bell tolling, slowly moved away with his body. At Springfield, Ill., the funeral train ended its 1700-mile journey. More than seven million people viewed its passing. President Lincoln was buried in Oakridge Cemetery, Springfield, Ill., she concluded.

"America" was first sung at a children's Fourth of July celebration in Boston in 1832.

'Rhoda' Eats A Garlicky Salad

By EARL WILSON NEW YORK — You see Valerie Harper on the Mary Tyler Moore show playing the eternally optimistic "Rhoda" always trying to find a nice guy but saying unsayable things. And you might even believe it, but the world's a lie and a deception: actually Valerie Harper's eating a very garlicky salad at Sardi's with which to horrify her leading man in a Broadway show "Thieves."

show and we decorated out apartment. Valerie's non-acting jobs included hatching at the expensive Lutece where the caviar is served in silver swans and telephone - canvassing for magazine subscriptions. "We'd call at dinner time when we'd be sure they were home and they'd come to the phone with their mouths full. It was such an encroachment on their privacy."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

'Free Acid' Found In Stomach

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is meant by "free acid"? What causes it? Is there any cure? How does one contract it or why? Mrs. J.P. This refers to acid content of the stomach, which occurs in two forms. Free acid is that which is present in the form of hydrochloric acid. Some more is combined with protein. The two forms together are "total acid," but the free acid represents the greater share.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a Teflon frying pan and now the bottom on the inside is peeling off. Is this dangerous if it gets into the food? I seldom fry anything because of my diet but use it when I have scrambled eggs. R.M.H. Teflon is a form of plastic and you wouldn't want it in food any more than you would want anything else with hard and perhaps sharp edges.

HOW TO DESIGN A CAR OF THE FUTURE... THAT RUNS ON WASTE!

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

So many charges and countercharges have been hurled about over the "energy crisis" during the past four months that it's now difficult to know who or what to believe when the subject is discussed.

In general, however, it does appear that the age of inexpensive and virtually unlimited petroleum products is a thing of the past. From now on, gasoline, oil and other distillates are going to be in shorter supply and are going to be more costly.

The average resident of the U.S. and Canada will probably bump up against this unpleasant fact most severely in the area of his or her life that deals with personal transportation. Gasoline and oil for the family car really is going to cost more money in the years ahead... maybe a lot more.

This means that most of us will do less driving. We're probably going to form more car pools. An increasing number of people will "trade down" to smaller automobiles, and will demand that those vehicles travel more miles for every gallon of fuel they burn.

A few individuals will even start looking for new — and less energy intensive — ways to design, build and power the family car.

As a matter of fact, we've begun a search of exactly that nature here at The Mother Earth News... as you know if you're a regular reader of this feature.

We've already shown that organic waste of any kind — plant, animal or human — can be composted in a special anaerobic (without free oxygen) digester to make methane gas. And this methane — which is the major component of natural gas — can then be burned as a fuel in any way that natural gas is used.

Methane can even power an over-the-road vehicle and, in some ways, is an ideal energy source for a car: (1) it's an easy fuel to "pipe" to an engine, (2) it leaves almost no carbon or other deposits in a powerplant as it burns and (3) compared to gasoline, it produces hardly any air pollution at all.

This wonder fuel does have one slight drawback, however: methane is the lightest of the gaseous hydrocarbons and — at atmospheric pressure — it takes approximately 135-160 cubic feet of pure methane (or 180-250 cubic feet of the homemade variety, which does contain some impurities) to equal one gallon of gasoline. This presents a problem of sheer bulk: unless you want to tow a dirigible around behind you, you're going to find your range severely limited if you try to operate the typical Detroit Juggernaut on natural gas that you produce in your own backyard.

There are, on the other hand, at least six or seven possible solutions to this problem and we're going to try them all.

1. Homemade methane can be "refined" so that each cubic foot of the vapor has the maximum possible Btu value.

2. A special lightweight (it takes less fuel to push less pounds around) mini-vehicle can be designed just for operation on methane.

3. That super-compact automobile can be fitted with as large a fuel tank as possible.

4. The ultra-light car's methane tank should be a pressure bottle able to withstand from 400 to 3,000 pounds per square inch, so that relatively large quantities of a fuel can be compressed into the container.

5. The vehicle's engine-transmission-drive-train assembly should be the smallest, most efficient combination possible. "Most efficient" — in this case — probably meaning a four-cycle, high-compression, air-cooled powerplant coupled to a stick shift.

6. The mini-car should be carefully conceived to deliver maximum utility when operated within a particular — and somewhat limited (by 1972, but certainly not 1980, standards) — performance envelope: two-place, minimum luggage, father leisurely acceleration, 55 mph top speed, 100- to 150-mile range.

7. The operator of the vehicle should be trained to drive the car for maximum fuel economy: easy starts, constant cruising speeds, etc.

If this all sounds like something of a drag... well, we're sorry about that. The alternative may well be no driving at all (unless you can afford that mythical $1 a gallon gasoline... which may not prove to be so mythical after all).

On the brighter side, the shuttlebug car (which we've just let the limitations of methane design for us) has some definite possibilities. First, it can be operated for almost nothing on "homemade gasoline" produced from the average family's grass clippings, vegetable discards and other organic waste.

Second, it will be a nearly ideal urban car because of its small size (two can be stashed in an ordinary parking spot) and its ultra-low pollution characteristics.

Third, it may well be simple enough for almost anyone to keep in running order and, fourth, we should be able to fabricate three of the little machines from the same amount of material that now goes into the average Detroit monster.

This seems to add up to a more ecologically and economically sound mode of personal transportation and we, at least, think the idea should be fully explored. Which is just what we're doing right now. By early summer, if our mini-car idea works at all, we should have three prototype models on the road... running on fuel that we manufacture ourselves!

For a more complete discussion of The Mother Earth News' methane experiments, send 19 cents and a stamped, self-addressed, long envelope to The Mother Earth News and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for reprint No. 172, Mother's Methane Maker.

B.M. BOYCE
...to present program

B.M. Boyce, director of production in the International Department of Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla., will discuss the Ekofish oil operation off the coast of Norway in the North Sea at the Panhandle Chapter API meeting Thursday evening, Feb. 21, 8:30 p.m. at the Pampa Country Club.

Phillips Petroleum Co. has been one of the leaders in developing North Sea oil production and is currently producing some 40,000 barrels of oil per day from four wells in the Ekofish field.

Recently a multi-million dollar storage facility has been towed to the producing area and oil and gas lines are being installed connecting the oil field to the mainland. Film and slides are included in the program. Members may bring a guest.

Serico Service Fracturing Co., (a new firm in the Panhandle) with Jerry Guinn as president, will furnish the door prize.

Army Offers Training Course For Surveyors

The Army's Stripes for Skills program has surveyed a course which many construction surveyors should align for personal benefit.

Two or three years of construction surveying training or experience qualify applicants for $377.70 a month initial pay, and promotion to 3-4 or E-5 (Specialist) after an eight-week basic training course and eight weeks of on-the-job training. That basic pay figure does not include meals, housing, medical care, 30 day paid annual leave, or twenty-year guaranteed retirement.

SFC Kenneth Baker, local Army recruiter, explained that under Stripes for Skills the applicant could also select duty location if a vacancy for a construction surveyor exists at that post.

"This is a great chance for skilled construction surveyors to fill an important national mission and at the same time improve their own position," remarked the sergeant.

Other jobs besides that of construction surveyor are included in the Stripes for Skills program. Sgt. Baker has all the details and he can be reached by calling 665-2022.

Floyd Watson, president of the First National Bank in Pampa Saturday announced the promotion of Mrs. Leora Rose to assistant vice president.

Along with her other duties, the board of directors has named her to head the Women's Banking Division of the bank.

In heading this department, Mrs. Rose will be available to assist women of the area with their banking needs.

Mrs. Rose began her career with the First National Bank in 1927 as secretary to B.E. Finley, president of the bank at that time.

Shopping Complex CHICAGO (UPI) — High-rise shopping centers with supermarkets or other large retail centers on the street level eventually may replace the sprawling shopping complex.

Esmark, Inc., a diversified company with interests in foods, chemicals and energy as well as business services, says the dwindling supply of land in and around major cities combined with the energy shortage may force developers to build medium and high-rise shopping centers.

"Shoppers could easily reach the stores without having to walk long distances, as is the case in many of today's widespread, single-level malls," Esmark notes.

Foreman To Be Ready For Norton In March

HOUSTON (UPI) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman said Saturday he would be ready for his March 26 title bout against Ken Norton in Caracas, Venezuela, despite a prolonged divorce proceeding that has interrupted his training schedule.

"I'm just preparing to box," Foreman said. "I have to box whether I go to court or not. But I'm not worried. I'll get in shape for the fight."

During a special Saturday session, Domestic Relations Court Judge Wells Stewart offered to delay the proceeding until after the fight but Foreman refused.

"I would rather fight it out now and go through the agony of it and possibly lose the fight," Foreman told the court.

"It's more than just this one fight," he said. "I have to be a man for a long time."

Foreman said the courts have a history of taking advantage of boxers. He said it would be better to finish the proceeding quickly.

"I would prefer to stay here," he said. "I don't want to take a chance of having to share my earnings."

Judge Stewart granted the divorce Wednesday, but Foreman and his ex-wife, Adrienne, have failed to reach an agreement on the division of property.

Foreman's attorneys contend their client is almost broke. They said it would be at least Monday before they could secure copies of necessary financial records to present to the court.

Because of a crowded court docket, Judge Stewart appointed a substitute to hear evidence on the property settlement.

Attorney Robert Lord said Foreman possibly could return to his California training camp while the proceeding continues.

The champion said he would prepare for the Norton fight no matter where he is.

"I'm staying in the best shape I can," he said. "I'm training in earnest now."

"I feel I could beat just about anybody in the country right now. I just have to cut down on a couple of those steaks a day."

GEORGE FOREMAN anybody in the country right now. I just have to cut down on a couple of those steaks a day.

HARVESTERS WIN, 60-47

Pampa Streak Dooms Sandies

By PAUL SIMS
A 10-footer by Howie Lewis, two free shots by Rick Beesley, a 20-footer by Beesley, a short jumper by Randy Warner, a free throw by Warner, a free throw by Lewis, an eight-foot jumper by Warner, a basket by Matiga Buntun and the Harvesters led 29-25.

But prior to the aforementioned 14-point scoring spree, the Harvesters trailed 23-15. And they never yielded the momentum, beating the Amarillo High Sandies, 60-47, Friday night in Harvester Fieldhouse to set up Tuesday's all-important clash with the Borger Bulldogs.

Pampa travels to Borger, 44, in both teams' district finale. Should Borger win, it will clinch the district championship outright and if Pampa wins, a district playoff contest will be played between the two schools. The Harvesters, 23-7 for the season and 3-1 this half in district play, started slowly against the Sandies, who are 2-25 and 0-4. The result of a very sluggish and cold first period for the Harvesters: Amarillo 17, Pampa 15. Perry Hughes, who led Sandie scorers with 14 points, got eight of those in the first quarter on four field goals.

Amarillo upped that lead to eight points (23-15) early in the second quarter. It was then that Pampa put on a torrid offensive show, scoring 14 consecutive points. The Harvesters held a 31-27 lead at the half.

Pampa's leading scorer in the game with 18 points, Billy Wilbon, scored 10 in the third quarter as Pampa took a 49-37 lead going into the final eight minutes. It was all Pampa in the last period as the Harvesters had possession for over six minutes, using a stall and deliberate offensive.

Pampa led by as many as 15

(57-42) in the quarter. "I can't believe they (Sandies) let us hold it that long in the fourth quarter. I don't know why they didn't go after the ball," said Harvester coach Robert McPherson following the game.

"I can't say we played inspired, but we played smart. We did a good job on defense. The Sandies played real well, too. We went to a pressure-type defense to get them to slow the game down. Not once did we lose our poise and not once did we let up on defense."

After Wilbon scoring for the Harvesters with 12, Ray Powell and Warner with nine each and Rick Beesley with eight, Lewis led Pampa on the boards with 12 rebounds.

In double figures for the Sandies were Hughes with 14 and Nelson Naylor with 13. Tom Davis grabbed eight rebounds as the Harvesters out rebounded the guests, 34-31.

Smith Just Signed To Cut Pressure

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI) — Schoolboy linebacker David Smith says he signed a Southwest Conference letter of intent with Southern Methodist just to keep other SWC schools from hounding him and plans to go to Oklahoma on a football scholarship.

Smith, 6-1, 215, originally signed a letter with North Texas State but signed with SMU at the opening of SWC recruiting at the suggestion of Oklahoma recruiter Jim Helms.

"We knew we were going to sign David Tuesday night and wanted to narrow the field down so we recommended that he go ahead and sign with SMU that morning," Helms said. "By doing this we stopped everyone but the Mustangs from trying to get his name on a national letter next month."

"At the time I hadn't been contacted by any of the bigger schools and it seemed like the best deal," Smith explained.

"Then SMU, Oklahoma and a lot of other big schools started calling and I knew that I wouldn't be going to NTS."

"SMU was really never seriously in the picture but I was getting pretty tired of everyone hounding me so I followed Helms' suggestion to sign and stop the others from calling."

"Actually I decided upon Oklahoma about two weeks ago and am still looking forward to hopefully starting for the Sooners in the fall. I will sign a national letter of intent with them March 15 and that will finally end the hassle."

Dennis Outduels Allen For Permatex Victory

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Bill Dennis of Glen Allen, Va., outduelled Lennie Pond of Petersburg, Va., Saturday to win the accident-marred Permatex 300 late model sportsmen race at Daytona International Speedway.

Dennis reached an average speed of 140.466 miles an hour over the 270-mile race, shortened 30 miles because of the gasoline shortage, to finish about 10 car lengths in front of Pond and win his third straight Permatex 300.

Dennis had qualified his 1969 Mercury at 171.576 m.p.h. over the 2.5 mile high-banked Daytona course to start eighth in the 40-car field.

Bobby Allison, the early leader, suffered brake trouble with his red 1966 Chevrolet and could not regain command.

Wayne Andrews of Siler City, N. C., finished third in a 1970 Chevrolet ahead of Jack Ingram of Asheville, N. C., in a 1968 Chevrolet.

The race was marred by four wrecks that resulted in caution flags over 18 laps of the 108-lap race. No one was hurt on the track where wind gusts up to 30 m.p.h. made driving difficult.

The first mishap occurred when Jimmy Means' 1970 Chevrolet was rammed by Darrell Waltrip's 1971 Mercury and spun out in turn three with the race only six laps old. Waltrip was taken to the speedway hospital suffering from minor abrasions on his hand. Means was only shaken up.

The fourth and most serious accident occurred on lap 90 when Francis Afflick of St. Lambert, Que., spun out in his 1971 Mercury and was hampered by Haskell Willingham of Columbia, S. C., in a 1968 Mercury. Both cars slid off the fourth turn at the entrance to pit row and came to a halt.

Afflick was taken to the hospital but later released.

The win was worth $8,525 for regional tournament.

Weiskopf, Three Others Tied For LA Golf Lead

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf equalled the course record with a sizzling six-under-par 65 Saturday to finish in a four-way tie for first place after three rounds of the $150,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open.

Weiskopf, the No. 3 money-winner on the tour last year but still seeking his first official money in 1974, is tied at 207, six under par, with half-way leader Dave Stockton, 61-year-old Sam Snead and young John Mahaffey.

Matching the Riviera Country Club course record set in the 1973 L.A. Open by Rod Funsteth and Gay Brewer, the 31-year-old Weiskopf blazed in with nines of 33-32, a round that included six birdies.

"I played just about as well as I've ever played," smiled Weiskopf, who had four tournament victories a year ago.

"I didn't miss a green today. I guess this puts me right back in it."

Snead, a winner here in 1945 and 1950, shot a five-under 66, while Stockton, who had a one-shot lead going into the day's play, bogeyed the final hole for an even-par 71.

Mahaffey, who was third in the Bob Hope Desert Classic last week, checked in with a 68.

One shot back at 208, five under par, were freckle-faced Tom Watson and Johnny Miller, bidding for his fourth victory of the young PGA season.

Miller had a 71 Saturday while Watson was three under with a 68.

Snead, the sentimental favorite here, said he wasn't thinking of winning tournament No. 85 in a four career that began in 1937. His last victory came in the 1965 Greensboro Open.

"I'm just out here to play," smiled Snead. "It's nice to play and see how the young kids are coming along, and see how much the game has changed. Let me tell you, these kids are stronger and they're better putters than they were in my heyday."

"I just hope I do well tomorrow. I'd like to shoot another 66 and see what happens."

Jack Nicklaus, who led the tournament after the first day with a 66, had a 71 for a 210 total, three under par. Jim Wiechers, who started the day in second place, one shot behind Stockton, shot a 73 and was also at 210.

Oregon State Shocks Bruins In Pac-8 Game

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Coach John Wooden has always admitted that this year's version of his UCLA basketball machine had a flaw. It turned out to be a fatal one.

His nationally top-rated Bruins lost for the second time this season Friday night, and this was a mostly costly one as it came at the hands of Pacific Eight rival Oregon State, who stunned the defending NCAA champs 61-57 here. It was the first UCLA loss in its last 60 conference games and it indicates that UCLA might have trouble even getting into the NCAA tournament to defend the title it has won for nine of the past 10 years.

UCLA, which had an 88-game winning streak snapped by Notre Dame earlier this season, led Oregon State 34-27 at the half, but suddenly turned cold in the early going of the second half as the Beavers roared to a 57-50 lead.

The Bruins fought back bravely and it was 59-57 with 17 seconds to go, but then Tommy Curtis of UCLA fouled freshman George Tucker, who calmly made the two free throws with 11 seconds to go that won it.

A look at the statistics showed that the Bruins outshot Oregon State 511 to 443 and out rebounded the Beavers 44-29. But the second half turnovers killed UCLA, who lost the ball 21 times to just eight for Oregon State.

A shaken coach John Wooden met only briefly with newsmen after the contest.

Rangers Sign 4

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers Saturday announced pitcher Jim Merritt and infielder season.

The Rangers also announced two second-line infielders, Don Castle and Mike Cabbage, had signed for this season.

Officials Hope For Stadium Settlement

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Officials hoped Saturday a long weekend would bring settlement in the latest labor dispute blocking construction on the $163 million Louisiana Superdome.

Pickets went up outside the downtown stadium site Friday in a controversy over which of two unions would be granted rights to handle certain assignments on the project.

A similar problem was delaying work on a multimillion dollar expansion at New Orleans International Airport.

The work stoppage was the latest problem threatening to prevent New Orleans from hosting the 1975 Super Bowl game.

"We'd like to have this thing settled by Monday," said a Superdome official. "Every day we lose is, of course, one day longer until the stadium is ready."

Superdome director Ben Levy had said several months ago that the construction was well behind schedule and could only be ready in time for the Super Bowl if the weather cooperated and there were "no more work stoppages."

National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle is due in town within weeks to evaluate progress on the Superdome and determine if it will be completed in time for next year's championship game or whether the Super Bowl should be moved to another city. He has said in the past the game would not be played in the 81,000-seat Tulane Stadium, site of two earlier Super Bowls, if the Superdome were not finished.

Groom Loses In Bi-District To Darrouzett

LEVELLAND — Groom's girls went farther than any area basketball team, winning the 3-B title and advancing to bi-district where they fell to defense-minded Darrouzett, 65-43, Friday night here.

High for Groom was Rose Kuehler with 25 points. She was followed by Marcia Krizan with 10. Joyce Gensman scored 34 points to lead Darrouzett, which will play Klondike in the Class B regional tournament.

The Pampa High School tennis team opened its season Saturday against Caprock in Amarillo and won only three of twenty-three matches played.

Pampa winners: E.B. Ellis def. Ben Brinkley 3-4, 6-2, 6-3.

Doug Hughes def. Mike Riley 8-1 in a pro set.

Donna Coufal def. Janet Newman 8-0.

PHS coach Alton Setliff said many of the members of the team did not make the trip because of illness. Those who went each played several matches.

Setliff said, "Caprock was a tough team to start with but the competition was good for us. We're showing more potential now than we did in the fall."

The tennis team travels to Hereford next Saturday for its second competition.

Interviews Reveal Startling Ideas About College Athletics

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — "What do you feel is the future of college athletics in America and why?" Last summer "The Christian Athlete," publication of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, posed this question to 153 men at a dozen FCA national conferences.

Seventy-eight were Christian coaches, (66) athletic directors, sports information directors, trainers, officials and newspapermen. The other 75 were current college Christian athletes.

The overall response developed into a broad plateau with most men huddled in the middle. A few were either totally optimistic or pessimistic.

THE OPTIMISTS
Gordon Stauffer, basketball coach, Indiana State — "Great! Can't see taking this human laboratory from the educational process."

Jim Bibb, assistant track coach, Michigan State — "Great! For every action there is an equal reaction. The overemphasis now will bring a de-emphasis which will cause college sports to balance out nicely."

THE PESSIMISTS
Gordon Burris, golf coach, University of Virginia — "I'm pessimistic because of the hypocrisy, cynicism and evils in the quest for money. College sports goes in cycles, and we're not in a favorable area of the cycle."

Herb Agoos, wrestling coach, University of Montana — "We're in for hard times. Finances are the main problem."

I'm not hopeful about the future."

CAMPUS AND COMMUNITY IDENTIFICATION

"I can't imagine college life without sports," said Furman football coach Art Baker. "Sports is the focal point of school pride."

John Pappa, track coach at the University of California at Davis said sports is "a way of life in the United States," and Oregon State track coach Bernie Wagner added, "Students need some way to identify with the school. Sports is it."

CLUB AND INTRAMURAL SPORTS

A number envision this as the most significant factor in the future of college sports.

Wayne State sports information director Bill Kreifeldt and Michigan baseball coach Moby Benedict see a trend on their campuses to club and intramural sports because, "we are becoming a community of doers rather than watchers."

Joe Donovan, AD, State University of New York, stated: "The kids at my school are turning out for intramurals because they're not getting anything out of intercollegiate sports... A guy needs more than a championship season on a win-at-all-cost basis to make sports worthwhile."

LEADERSHIP OF THE ATHLETE

"Leadership is going to come from kids who understand work, sacrifice and discipline," says University of Tennessee football assistant Jerry Elliott. "And sports is still the greatest way in our nation to teach this to kids."

Pacific Lutheran football coach Forsty Westering and Seattle Pacific College assistant basketball coach Keith Swagerty see a great future for sports on the Christian campus. Others see hope in coaches changing their outlooks in pace with the changing times. Stated University of Nevada assistant football coach Vince Zimmer, "Coaches were about five years behind. We were blaming the kids but we're just catching on and starting to catch up with the times in terms of treating athletes as whole individuals."

FINANCES

Of the 78, 40 refer specifically to finances — over-riding problem. "We're too fat financially," said U. of California at Santa Barbara baseball coach Dave Gorrie. Veteran University of Pittsburgh basketball coach Buzz Ridd said, "We must bring sanity back into collegiate sports by restricting finances."

Area Residents Must Plan Now For '76 Games

Area residents planning on attending the 21st Olympiad International Summer Olympic games in Montreal, Canada, in 1976 need to make preparations NOW.

The Summer Olympics will be held July 17 - Aug. 1, 1976, and over 60 percent of those who are expected to attend will probably be Americans. Accommodations for the multitudes is going to be a problem.

Joseph Brown, a public relations man for the Olympics, will send a list of hotels, motels and guest houses in and around Montreal to anyone who will write him. Brown says, "Hotel reservations by the individual or the visiting family must be made now as there are already signs that thousands of foreign visitors from other parts of the world will be in Montreal to see the games."

Going to the Olympics, especially since it is going to be held fairly close to home, would make an ideal vacation for Pampa and area residents. Brown can be contacted by writing to 640 Cathcart Street, Suite 101, Montreal III, Quebec, Canada.

We need first things first. Lots of things are being done which aren't beneficial to athletes. His sense of values is being destroyed."

RECRUITING

Finances was a runner-up to recruiting. The three-divisional setup of the NCAA was a solid move, according to the men. Representing big schools, Auburn assistant football coach Dr. Jim Hilyer said, "The problems of big and small schools are so different. Now different legislation can be passed for each size school. This will be healthy."

"Player procurement (i.e., recruiting) is going to blow up unless we do something about it," said Michigan State basketball coach Gus Ganakas.

ROLE OF THE ADMINISTRATION

"The coaches, administration and parents must gain control of the problem areas — recruiting abuses and finances — or we'll have college sports under a severely reduced level," said Casey Fredericks, Ohio State wrestling coach. "College sports must display integrity to survive," said John Lotz, Florida basketball coach. "And this must extend from the school president to the administration to the AD to the coach..."

Other problems — the affect of pro sports on collegiate athletics, oversaturation by television and declining fan interest, and football as having reached a spectator saturation point with future decreasing attendance a likelihood.

SPORTS BECOMING A JOB AND NO LONGER FUN

Ohio University basketball coach Jim Snyder stated, "We've gone too far toward professionalism. Fifteen years ago a boy thought about a college education first, not being a pro. Now it's the other way around..."

TOO MUCH STRESS ON WINNING

"I'm concerned and alarmed at the win-at-all-cost syndrome," said Tulsa cage coach Ken Hayes. "We must redefine and re-evaluate what we want sports to be. Sports will only be destroyed from within..."

Capturing the viewpoint of most of his colleagues was Eastern Illinois basketball coach Don Eddy — "I see a leveling off in college sports. We've probably overshot the mark in some ways and now we're coming to a balance point. And this is all right..."

Trevino To Bypass Masters This Year

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two-time U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino will skip this year's Masters Golf Tournament in favor of a fishing trip to Mexico.

The colorful Trevino, who fired a 69 in the opening round of the Los Angeles Open to tie for third place, said he returned his invitation a month ago to Clifford Roberts, chairman of the Masters.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you by B.F. Dorman

Here's a baseball riddle you can have some fun with... How can a team get three triples and three singles in one inning, and still not score a run? ... Answer: First two men triple and one out of the plate trying for an inside - the - park homer... Next man triples and stays at third... Next two men get infield singles with the runner holding third... Last man smacks a ground ball that hits runner going from first to second... Batter gets credit for a hit, but runner is out, making three triples, three singles, three outs... and no run!

Did you know there used to be big league baseball teams with the nicknames of "Spiders," "Boos" and "Blue Jays"? ... Do you know which teams had those names? "Spiders" was the early nickname for Cleveland's team... The Braves were known as "Boos" in the 1930's... And the Phillies changed their name to the "Blue Jays" one time in the 1940's.

Do you have any idea what was the smallest city every to have a big league baseball team? ... Answer is Troy, N.Y. ... Troy was in the National League from 1879 to 1882.

Do you know any more of MICHELIN TIRE'S COOL GET YOURS.

I bet you didn't know there's a safety belt of steel inside the MICHELIN tire... It carries a warranty of 40,000 miles of tread wear (many owners get more).

Youth Center Report

Health Club Memberships
If you are not acquainted with our health facility, now is the time to come by and let us show you around. The Center has one of the most complete health clubs in the Panhandle area. Hours are split between women users and men users.

The health club houses all the health exercise equipment such as the beauty bars, barrel rollers, vibrator belts, bicycles, sit-up boards, exercor machine, rowing machine, leg and thigh curl machine, leg press machine, barbells, dumbbells, multi-press machine, jungle pulley machine, sun lamp, two handball and racquetball courts, dressing room, showers, facial machine sauna.

The health club membership is called our unlimited membership. It is always available to individuals and to husbands and wives in a combination membership.

An individual membership for six months is only $65 total, which may be paid out on an installment plan for $15.50 the first month and $10.50 each of the other five months. On the installment plan this would be $23.87 the first month and $13.87 each of the other five months.

We have a one-visit tryout plan without any obligation, if you would like to try us out.

Regular youth center memberships for use of the gym, swimming pool and recreation hall is still available. The cost is only $5 for six months for an individual and $12 for a family. Yearly rates are $8 and $20 respectively.

Basketball League Plans
Pampa Rotary Club completed the league schedule with a perfect 11-0 record for first place during the 1973-74 season. Spearman followed close behind at 10-1 and Pampa Cougars at 9-2.

Fourth place went to Citizens Bank 8-3 and fifth place found First Baptist Church Men at 6-5. Others in order of finish were First National Bank, First Baptist Youth and Celanese at 5-4, Coronado Conoco 3-8, Pampa Independents and Pampa X's at 2-9 followed by Malcolm Hinkle at 0-11.

Swim Lessons
Parents remember that the Youth Center teaches a year round program of swim lessons because of the indoor heated pool. Lessons are usually scheduled every three weeks.

All classes meet after school on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. There are no Tuesday classes. Two lessons are given from 4-5 p.m. and 5-6 p.m. Classes that are periodically offered are polywogs, beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates and swimmers. Junior and Senior lifesaving is taught on a seasonal basis.

Instruction is through the American Red Cross program with a qualified water safety instructor teaching each class. Our resident instructor, Ruth Carter, teaches most of the Youth Center's classes. Enrollment is open to all the public. Lessons are free to Center members and $4 for non-members.

Dolphin Swim Team
The Youth Center offers a competitive swim club for persons 6-18 years of age both boys and girls. This is our A.A.U. Dolphin Swim Club. This club offers each boy and girl an opportunity to swim against other boys and girls in their own age bracket.

The Dolphins practice each open weekday from 6-7 p.m. and at other scheduled times. Coaches Ruth Steger and Malcolm Douglas would invite new prospects to join the club by coming to one of the workouts. The Dolphins compete in several weekend swimming meets during the year.

Calico Capers Square Dance
Another activity for the adults is the Calico Capers Square Dance Club. They meet on each Saturday night from 8-11 p.m. and dance to a guest caller. The Capers are currently giving new lessons to interested people on Tuesday nights from 8-10 p.m.

If you are interested in lessons or just joining the club, please contact Gerald McCabe at 669-9455.

Bensten's Not Decided
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bensten, D-Tex., says he is not well enough known nationally to consider running for the presidency in 1976, but this might change by the end of the year.

Bensten has said he plans to spend most of 1974 campaigning for Democratic senators and helping them raise money.

"Then, at the end of the year we'll see how we've done, and then decide whether it is a realistic thing or not to do. I know the place where a man can do the most for his country is right down at the White House... so we'll look at it then and decide what should be done."
