New Company To Manufacture Specialty Items

A new manufacturing company is now in operation in Pampa.

The company, known as B.D. Products, is owned and operated by Mrs. Billie Don Watkins. It specializes in school blankets, rugs, laundry bags, pillow cases and other related items.

The specialty items are designed by Mrs. Watkins and are manufactured in Pampa. B.D. Products has been in business only a short time and already the demand for the specialty products has become great in some of the colleges and universities.

The new business is scheduled to go into mass production in the very near future, Mrs. Watkins said.

B.D. Products, Inc. is located at 205 E. Kingsmill.

Area Receives More Moisture For Farmers

Skies over Pampa and the area are to continue fair through tonight with increasing cloudiness forecast for tomorrow.

No rain is predicted for the area from tomorrow's clouds although Pampa received more moisture from the mixed rain and snow which fell Monday than any other Panhandle town reporting.

The high today was expected to be in the lower 60s with more of the same forecast for Wednesday. Tonight's low should be near 30.

Winds today are from the southwest at 15-25 mph.

Yesterday's high was 45 and the low this morning was 26.

Dryland wheat farmers near Pampa got some relief yesterday as the city received .18 of an inch of moisture from the rain and light snow.

In UPI reports:

Roaring 62-mile an hour winds that carried a cold front across Texas gave way today to light winds as the threat of violent weather disappeared across the state.

With the exception of some cloudiness in Northeast Texas, skies were fair across Texas at 7 a.m. Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from the low 20s in the northern Panhandle to the mid 50s in the Rio Grande Valley.

Dalhart showed 25 degrees and it was 27 at both Lubbock and Amarillo for the coldest readings. Galveston, Victoria and Brownsville were the warmest cities in the state with 53 degree temperatures.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two high ranking Arab diplomats called on President Nixon today to bring him a "good news" message from last week's Big Four Arab summit meeting.

The President met in the Oval Office with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf. Sitting in on the

Britons To Face Elections

LONDON (UPI) — More than 2,000 candidates hit the campaign trail today after the final day of filing for crucial national elections centered on Britain's crippling economic crisis.

Opinion polls said Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative party was a slight favorite over former leader Harold Wilson's opposition Labor party in the Feb. 28 parliamentary elections.

"I have no doubt the people of Britain will return a Conservative government for the next five years," a smiling Heath told voters Monday on a quick, meet-the-people tour of Scotland.

As the election campaign heated up, however, a surging crowd of antigovernment demonstrators mobbed Heath when he tried to shake hands with Scottish voters in the Glasgow suburb of Johnstone. The crowd, shouting "Heath out" and "go home," forced the prime minister to take refuge in his car. He looked ruffled afterward, but was unharmed.

Candidates for the 635 seats in the House of Commons had until Monday afternoon to file for the vote. The candidates included 630 Conservatives, 625 Laborites, 516 Liberals and a grab bag of splinter party members.

Health dissolved Parliament and ordered a general election after Britain's 269,000 coal miners went on strike Feb. 10 following a 13-week slowdown. The coal strike, combined with Arab oil cutbacks and a temporarily suspended overtime ban by railroad trainmen, have combined to plunge the nation into what Heath has called Britain's worst industrial crisis since World War II.

Leaders of the National Union of Mineworkers met Monday with officials of the government's National Pay Board in an attempt to work out a compromise salary agreement to end the strike.

session were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Maj. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, deputy assistant for international security affairs at the White House.

Some observers said that they expected the President to be told that there might be a partial, gradual lifting of the Middle East oil embargo against the United States.

Informed sources said that the two diplomats were delivering a verbal message to Nixon from the Big Four—Egypt, Syria, Algeria and Saudi Arabia —on decisions reached at the summit conference in Algiers Feb. 13-14.

There was speculation that the Arab leaders were ready to discuss disengagement of Israeli-Syrian military forces in the Golan Heights.

Fahmy and Sakkaf met Monday with Kissinger and Fahmy was asked afterward if he would have "good news" for Nixon at today's meeting.

"Yes," he replied.

There was some speculation that the "good news" could also

U.S., Reds Return To Negotiations

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union went back to the negotiating table today in a drive to work out a permanent agreement by the end of the year on limiting the nuclear arms race.

U.S. negotiator U. Alexis Johnson and Soviet delegate Vladimir S. Semenov agreed to resume their discussions today following a three-month lull in the Strategic Arms Limitation (SALT) talks.

"We will do the best we can," Johnson said before the start of the 51st meeting in the current round of SALT talks. His previous negotiating session with Semenov was last Nov. 16.

President Nixon and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev agreed at their Washington summit meeting last June to work for a SALT pact before the end of 1974.

Western officials said, however, it would be extremely difficult to reach a permanent accord on restricting nuclear weapons in such a short time.

The officials said the Soviet Union was busy testing multiple warhead missiles (MIRVs) while the United States was embarking on new nuclear research, including plans for small, missile-firing submarines.

U.S. officials said the Soviet Union might have as many warheads as America in four to five years, giving the Russians nuclear superiority because of heavier Communist payloads.

SALT I, the first round of the arms talks, took from November, 1969, to May, 1972, to reach an agreement limiting each nation to two anti-missile (ABM) bases and the number of long-range missiles existing at the time.

ADOPTED BY COMMITTEE Attorney General Overrules Anti-Discrimination Provision

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — An anti-discrimination provision adopted by the constitutional convention's education committee could prohibit minority recruitment programs at state colleges and endanger the legality of bilingual education programs in public schools, Attorney General John L. Hill ruled today.

The measure had been adopted 16-0 by the education committee before staff members raised questions about its possible impact. It is included in the education article now being debated by the full convention.

The proposal, sponsored by Rep. Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston, provides that no funds set aside for the support of public education shall be restricted in any way on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin.

Authors of the proposed education article want their efforts to accomplish "equal educational opportunity" for all Texas school children. But other delegates say the committee's report means taking money from the rich school districts and giving it to the poor.

The confrontation between these opposing views resulted in four hours of fruitless debate at the constitutional convention Monday, and promised more political maneuvering toward a settlement of the issue today.

The convention was to return at 1:30 p.m. to face up debate on concern prospects for lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States. There have been persistent reports that an end to the oil embargo is tied directly to disengagement of Israeli-Syrian forces.

Fahmy was asked if that was true. He answered, "Not necessarily — the way you think."

There have been numerous clashes along the Golan Heights area between Israeli and Syrian troops since Kissinger helped arrange Israeli-Egyptian disengagement. Syria has made clear it wants to keep Israel off balance by the military incidents.

A new clash was reported today, with Damascus claiming to have inflicted casualties on an Israeli patrol.

The Arab Big Four disengagement proposal was said to have been agreed to at a meeting in Algiers last week. Without specifying details, Fahmy told reporters, "We believe it was a very positive decision."

He added that "everything is moving in the right direction... (with) progress on every front."

Fahmy said it was "most probable" that Kissinger would play a role in possible Israeli-Syrian disengagement talks, and an Israeli newspaper speculated that the secretary would be flying to the Mideast again in a few days.

Kissinger sidestepped questions about one peacemaking trip like the one that preceded Israeli-Egyptian disengagement. "The major problem now is to get the talks started," Kissinger said. "First we have to establish a framework."

Asked if he would be going to Syria soon, Kissinger said, "I have no such plans."

Some U.S. officials have been optimistic about an early end to the oil embargo. Vice President Gerald R. Ford said in Chattanooga, Tenn., Monday "we may—and I emphasize may—be over the hump for the short haul" in the energy crisis.

Kissinger said his discussions Monday, along with a Sunday conference with Fahmy, Sakkaf and Syrian diplomat Sabah Kabani, dealt with military disengagement between Israel and Syria.

FROM KIDNAPERS No Answer Yet For Food Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Publisher Randolph A. Hearst's "good will gesture" of a $2 million food giveaway plan brought no immediate response today from the kidnapers of his daughter, Patricia.

Hearst planned to reveal more details of the giveaway program for the needy demanded by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army before negotiations can begin for release of Miss Hearst, the granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst publishing empire.

The family waited at their Hillsborough mansion on the eve of their kidnapped daughter's 20th birthday, 15 days after she was taken from her Berkeley apartment, for an indication of whether the SLA would consider the $2 million plan, far short of the $400 million program originally demanded, to be adequate.

"The next move is up to them," Hearst said Monday after announcing the plan, the largest payment ever offered in a kidnapping in the United States. He said the $2 million would include $500,000 of his own money, which he said was "a substantial part of my personal assets."

Meanwhile, the Hearst family was presented with a petition signed by 6,000 welfare recipients who said they would refuse to accept any food or money offered by Hearst to meet the SLA demand.

The SLA, a small terrorist group which snatched the 19-year-old granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4, had demanded the food distribution as a "gesture of good faith" which would allow the start of negotiations for Miss Hearst's release.

"I consider this a good will gesture, particularly since there is no guarantee that my daughter will be released," Hearst told newsmen at the Hilton Hotel after a five-hour secret meeting with representatives of the American Indian Movement and other activist groups asked by the SLA to monitor the distribution.

He promised a fuller statement on the food plan today.

In its original demand a week ago, the SLA asked Hearst to provide 670 of free food for an estimated 4.7 million needy Californians, which the publisher said would cost about $400 million. Hearst said the demand was "impossible to meet" but he would make a counter proposal before today's SLA deadline for the start of food distribution. The kidnapers said later they would "accept a sincere effort" by Hearst.

"You're making a mistake in believing that this is a ransom demand," Hearst told reporters. "What they're saying is, you give an expression of good will and show a desire to respond to our needs and our problems and the problems of the poor and hopefully they will respond in the manner they see fit."

Hearst said $500,000 of the money would come from his personal funds and the rest from the Hearst Foundation.

7-Man Board Petition Being Checked Today

The first of several petitions seeking to have the 7-man school board issue placed on the ballot at the April 6 Pampa Independent School District election was being checked today in the Gray County clerk's office.

The petition, containing 487 signatures, was presented to County Judge Don Cain this forenoon.

Judge Cain turned it over to County Clerk Wanda Carter with a request that the names be checked to determine whether signers were qualified voters.

Several other petitions reportedly containing several hundred more names still are in circulation.

The names of approximately 400 qualified voters, representing ten percent of the total vote at the last school election, are required to get the 7-man school board issue on the April 6 ballot.

Mrs. Carter said the check for valid signatures would halt when names of 400 qualified have been checked off.

The petition presented to Judge Cain today contained the 487 names of persons who had signed it in the Coney Island Cafe, operated by the Gilkin brothers. John Gilkin is a former member of the Pampa school board.

Cheering Crowd Welcomes Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It almost seemed like one of the good old days for President Nixon—with thousands cheering to his clear delight as he talked of America's greatness and his desire to gain prosperity at home with peace abroad.

The outpouring of support for the President, at an "Honor America Day" rally in Huntsville, Ala., apparently put him in high spirits as he returned to the White House early Monday evening with plans to get back to business quickly today after a five-day "working trip" spent mostly at Key Biscayne, Fla.

First up on Nixon's schedule was an 11 a.m. meeting with the foreign ministers of Egypt and Saudi Arabia, who have been holding talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and promised "good news" for Nixon in a message from four Arab chiefs of state.

On the way back to Washington, Nixon also got an obvious lift when he stopped in Indianapolis to pick up his daughter, Julie Eisenhower, and escorted her from the hospital where she underwent emergency surgery last Thursday.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon "enjoyed the day," that he "was pleased with the reception" in Huntsville, and "he's glad Julie is coming home" to recuperate at the White House for several days.

Nixon's visit to the northern Alabama city, headquarters for much of the research in the U.S. space program, was seen as another attempt to counter the pressures of the Watergate scandal that has sent his popularity plummeting and even raised the threat of impeachment.

He got the welcome he wanted. Only a few in the crowd of about 20,000 at the rally in a big park carried signs proclaiming opposition to Nixon.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, speaking from a wheelchair when he introduced Nixon, said he wanted the President to know "you are among friends."

Nixon chose not to mention Watergate in his campaign-style speech, focusing instead on the rally's "what's right with America" theme.

"If you had to pick a country in which to be born, a country where you had the greatest freedom and the greatest opportunity to go as high as your talents will take you—believe me, you would all pick the United States of America," Nixon said, getting loud applause.

Chamber Directors Planning Activities

The February directors meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday in the chamber office with reports on activities underway or being planned.

Clyde Carruth, superintendent of the Junior Livestock Show, reported that 103 steers and 204 hogs had been entered in the show. He emphasized the importance of local support of the sale which will be held on Wednesday, March 6, 9:30 a.m.

The board voted to sponsor a Small Business Seminar to be conducted by the Small Business Administration. The seminar will be designed for the benefit of small business organizations that might be in need of advice and counsel in the operation of their business. More information will be forthcoming as soon as the date has been set and details received.

Mrs. Dona Cornutt, Distributive Education coordinator at the high school, reported on a recent survey on the shopping habits of Pampa people. A copy of the report is available at the Chamber office for the benefit of any business people that would like to see it. Chamber officials said.

Mrs. Clotilde Thompson, chairman of the Gray County Historical Survey Committee, gave a report on the Texas Panhandle Bicentennial Steering Committee that has been organized to coordinate plans for 1975 programs in the

IN TAPE ERASURES

Official Claims Machine Defect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House official says a defect in a tape recording machine, not a deliberate act, was responsible for obliteration of 18½ minutes of one of President Nixon's Watergate conversations.

A group of technical experts who examined the tape in question told Judge John J. Sirica a few weeks ago that a series of erasures, each manually done, were detected in the tape. This was interpreted to suggest a deliberate act.

White House lawyers took issue with the finding and said they would have a separate technical examination conducted.

The White House official, who refused to allow his name to be used, told newsmen Monday.

"The White House technical investigation suggests that the five to nine erasure marks within the gap were caused by a defect in the machine rather than by deliberate actions."

President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyers, James D. St. Clair, had said earlier that the gap could have been caused by a defective tape recorder. Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, used in listening to the tape last fall.

The New York Times quoted a Virginia electronics expert today as saying he was "probably the source" of the White House statements about accidental erasure.

Allan D. Bell Jr., president of Doktor Counterintelligence and Security Inc., Springfield, Va., said a defective part was found in the recorder Miss Woods used and that this might have produced tape marks that the other experts concluded were separate erasures.

Stolen Vehicle Found Parked Near Skellytown

A unit of the Texas Highway patrol found an automobile stolen from in front of a Pampa residence early yesterday parked by the side of the highway one mile west of Skellytown later in the day.

The manager of Marie Foundations, 800 E. Kingsmill, reported to police someone had broken the glass out of a gasoline pump at the factory over the weekend.

The pump is owned by a Pampa gas distributor. No estimate of damages to the pump were given.

Curtis Seeks Re-Election As Commissioner

Joe B. Curtis, Ward 2 city commissioner, announced today he will seek re-election to a full term at the April 2 city election.

Curtis was elected to fill the unexpired term of Jimmy Wilkerson when Wilkerson announced his candidacy for mayor in 1972.

"I will, if elected, do my best to see that the city gets full value for its tax dollars spent for services and improvements."

Two council seats for two-year terms are to be filled in the upcoming April 2 city election.

The other one will be the Ward 4 post currently held by Arthur Rohde, who has not yet announced whether he will be a candidate for re-election.

The terms of Ward 1 Commissioner Ray Thompson and Ward 3 Commissioner Leo Braswell will not expire until April of 1975.

Solzhenitsyn Working On Manuscripts

ZURICH (UPI) — Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn has begun working on manuscripts and answering letters while considering a host of offers for a permanent home.

The exiled writer received a hand-carried message Monday from his wife, who he left behind in Moscow Wednesday when Soviet authorities deported him to West Germany.

At the end of a busy morning, an American spokesman based in Moscow told Solzhenitsyn he had a message from his wife and personally delivered it to the author.

Solzhenitsyn's lawyer, Fritz Heeb, with whom he has stayed since arriving here Friday, said the author was "getting his manuscripts in order."

An Austrian friend of Solzhenitsyn said he was answering letters and "is considering offers from all over the world, including Ireland and Norway."

He did not specify if the offers were from individuals or official bodies.

The friend, identifying himself only as a writer, said Solzhenitsyn "has been overwhelmed," he needs rest.

AS KISSINGER PREPARES TRIP

Syria And Israel Clash Again

By United Press International
Syria reported a new clash with Israel today as press reports said U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may make another trip to the Middle East shortly to work out a disengagement of Syrian and Israeli troops.

A military spokesman in Damascus said Syria "inflicted casualties" on an Israeli patrol in a pre-dawn clash on the northern sector of the Golan Heights.

As the latest in almost daily incidents was reported, the Israeli newspaper Davar said, "the possibility is taken into account in Jerusalem that Kissinger will arrive within the next few days for talks on a separation agreement between Israel and Syria."

The newspaper Ma'ariv said that Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, who met with the secretary of state Monday, asked Kissinger to visit the Middle East before the scheduled April reconvening of the Geneva Arab-Isreali peace conference.

The Israeli national radio said, however, that conditions were not yet ripe for another visit by Kissinger, who has been to the Middle East three times since the October war.

Israeli troops, meanwhile, blew up captured military bases along the Suez Canal today in a push to complete the destruction of Arab outposts before abandoning Egyptian territory seized during the October Middle East War.

Explosives teams set off dynamite charges across Israel's shrinking hold on the West Bank of the canal in preparation for giving up the region Thursday evening and moving across the waterway into the Sinai Desert.

The frequent explosions sent columns of black smoke into the sky Monday as Israeli forces moved salvageable Egyptian weapons into the Sinai and destroyed all other military hardware.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Monday during a tour of Israel's West Bank positions Egypt was adhering to the troop separation agreement.

"The Egyptians have fulfilled their part of the disengagement agreement and we have not noted any violations," he said.

"The Israelis are also living up to their word, believe it or not."

Israel still held one-third of a 560-square-mile slice of West Bank territory seized by a drive across the waterway during the final days of the 17-day, 1973 Middle East War.

After giving up the West Bank, the Israelis will have until March 5 to pull back into the Sinai to a new defense line 13 miles east of the 102-mile-long waterway.

In Washington, Foreign Ministers Ismail Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia were to meet with President Nixon today following talks with Kissinger on the Middle East conflict.

Kissinger said he spoke with the two diplomats about the chances of working out a troop pullback agreement between Syria and Israel similar to the pact that brought about the separation of forces along the Suez Canal.

Harry Sears and former White House Counsel John W. Dean, 53, a New Jersey Republican and Nixon fund raiser, is a codefendant in the case and is portrayed in the indictment as an intermediary between Vecco and Mitchell and Stans. He will be tried later.

Dean was cited as a cocooner along with Vecco associates Laurence B. Richardson, Jr., and Howard F. Cemy.

If found guilty they would be the first cabinet officers convicted since the 1922 Teapot Dome oil leasing scandal.

Mitchell, President Nixon's former attorney general, his topcoat draped over his arm despite the chill 36 degree weather, appeared chipper as he arrived for the trial. His wife Martha did not accompany him.

Mitchell told waiting newsmen "you'd better believe it" when asked if he was optimistic about the outcome of the trial and also said he was glad the trial finally was under way.

Shortly after the two defendants arrived, jury selection got under way.

The trial before Judge Lee Gagliardi is expected to last at least a month.

Mitchell, 60, and Stans, 65, were charged with perjury, conspiracy and obstruction of justice last May in an indictment accusing each of a total of 10 counts. They could get up to 50 years in prison each if convicted.

Mitchell ran the President's 1968 and 1972 election campaigns, and Stans was Nixon's chief fund-raiser during both campaigns.

The government has accused the two men of trying to influence a federal fraud investigation of financier Robert L. Vecco in return for a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

The defense has argued that "massive prejudicial publicity" has made a fair trial impossible for Mitchell and Stans, who are under investigation in the June, 1972, Watergate break-in.

The two key prosecution witnesses are expected to be

McLean Slates Derby Jubilee

McLEAN — The McLean Band Boosters Club is sponsoring a Derby Town Jubilee to be held in the McLean High School Auditorium Saturday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m.

This will be a night of area amateur entertainment. A Derby Town Jubilee is a night of "good family amusement."

There is no fee for appearing on the show, and there are no prizes — just lots of friendly fun, officials said. The admission is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children.

The curriculum (all of the guided experiences of the child) not only embraces the content of courses of study but also makes provision through this content for development of correct attitudes, appreciations and ideals, officials said.

One of the most serious problems facing Twentieth-Century educators is to find ways in which to reduce the total content of the curriculum and still meet the needs of each child. What the curriculum contains and how it is applied in each school reflect the basic educational philosophy of the school system.

"The Catholic educators see the child as having obligations to God and to the community and uses the curriculum to equip him for this dual role as an individual," officials added.

Mrs. Stowers Seeks Post On School Board

Mrs. Dorothy Stowers, 2015 Charles, yesterday filed her candidacy for a position on the Pampa school board. She is currently filling the remainder of the term of Ben L. Sturgeon, who resigned from the board in January for business reasons.

Mrs. Stowers, the first woman to ever serve on the board of trustees of the Pampa Independent School District, is the second person to file for the upcoming April 6 election.

William L. "Bill" Arrington, Pampa businessman, rancher and farmer, announced earlier.

In announcing her intention to run, Mrs. Stowers said her main reason for filing was that she is "very interested that Pampa has the best school system possible so that when students graduate they are prepared for the future."

Two positions on the board will be voted on in this year's election as Sturgeon's term being served by Mrs. Stowers, and that of board member Warren Hasse expire.

Hasse has not yet formally stated whether he will be a candidate this year.

Mrs. Stowers and her husband, Dick, have three children: Susie, a junior at Texas Christian University; Richard, Texas A & M University freshman; and Frank, a freshman at Pampa Junior High.

Mitchell Optimistic At Start Of Trial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former cabinet member John N. Mitchell today pushed through scores of spectators and reporters to enter the federal courthouse in Foley Square for the start of his perjury and conspiracy trial. His codefendant, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, entered through a side door.

Mitchell, President Nixon's former attorney general, his topcoat draped over his arm despite the chill 36 degree weather, appeared chipper as he arrived for the trial. His wife Martha did not accompany him.

Mitchell told waiting newsmen "you'd better believe it" when asked if he was optimistic about the outcome of the trial and also said he was glad the trial finally was under way.

Shortly after the two defendants arrived, jury selection got under way.

The trial before Judge Lee Gagliardi is expected to last at least a month.

Mitchell, 60, and Stans, 65, were charged with perjury, conspiracy and obstruction of justice last May in an indictment accusing each of a total of 10 counts. They could get up to 50 years in prison each if convicted.

Mitchell ran the President's 1968 and 1972 election campaigns, and Stans was Nixon's chief fund-raiser during both campaigns.

The government has accused the two men of trying to influence a federal fraud investigation of financier Robert L. Vecco in return for a $200,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

The defense has argued that "massive prejudicial publicity" has made a fair trial impossible for Mitchell and Stans, who are under investigation in the June, 1972, Watergate break-in.

The two key prosecution witnesses are expected to be

Catholic School Marking Education Week Locally

Along with the Catholic schools of the nation, the private School of St. Vincent de Paul celebrates Education Week Feb. 18-22.

The establishment of the Catholic school system in the U.S.A. is based upon the conviction that "the purpose of human life is primarily spiritual and that religion is man's most treasured possession."

"As a preparation for life, education must be as full and complete as possible. Since all branches of learning lead to God, these should be integrated into a meaningful whole in which religion, morality and an understanding of man's true goal and ultimate end have their proper place."

Catholic officials said.

The first Catholic schools were set up by dedicated men and women of religious orders. Catholics were able to set up their own schools equal to and often surpassing the tax supported schools. These schools aided the Catholic people to meet the situation existing in the early public schools — forced protestant training and morals and values, as well as Bible study, officials claimed.

In spite of growing opposition and often without government support, Catholic schools continue to progress and to keep pace with educational advances and scientific methods of teaching and learning, officials claimed.

St. Vincent de Paul Elementary School provides a modern educational program. The quantity and quality of education is constantly adjusting according to the needs of society and based on the standards set up by the state and church boards of supervision.

The curriculum (all of the guided experiences of the child) not only embraces the content of courses of study but also makes provision through this content for development of correct attitudes, appreciations and ideals, officials said.

One of the most serious problems facing Twentieth-Century educators is to find ways in which to reduce the total content of the curriculum and still meet the needs of each child. What the curriculum contains and how it is applied in each school reflect the basic educational philosophy of the school system.

"The Catholic educators see the child as having obligations to God and to the community and uses the curriculum to equip him for this dual role as an individual," officials added.

St. Vincent de Paul Elementary children are

Trucking Assn. Gives Manuals To Boy Scouts

Troy Dunn of Merchants Past Motor Lines in Pampa will make a presentation to the Adobe Walls Council Boy Scout Executive Board at its meeting Thursday, Feb. 21.

Representing the entire organized truck and bus industry in Texas, he will present 25 manuals for the Merit Badge in Truck Transportation for use by Scouts throughout the Council.

Dunn is terminal manager of Merchants Past Motor Lines in Pampa and a member of Texas Motor Transportation Association, the organization which is supplying the merit badge manuals. He is making the presentation to promote the merit badge, as well as to demonstrate industry support for Scouting.

One of the newest merit badges developed by the Boy Scouts, the truck transportation badge includes requirements which promote awareness of the role trucking plays in the economy of a community.

To qualify, boys must, among other things, discuss the importance of trucks in providing freight service to communities served by no other means; know the difference between gasoline and diesel engines that power trucks; become familiar with the communications systems and maintenance programs of major truck lines; learn from a professional truck driver the safe - driving rules that he follows; become familiar with the regulatory agencies which govern the trucking industry, and study the different types of trucks and special services that they perform.

In addition to furnishing the merit badge manuals, members of Texas Motor Transportation Association are also acting as badge advisors to boys in Texas who are working toward this award.

TMTA is headquartered in Austin and has more than 920 company memberships throughout the state.

The Woman's View

NEW YORK (UPI) — The problem of the battered child takes a new turn.

This time, it's the matter of innocent injury, rather than the angry, explosive and deliberate battering which a parent does and which has been of increasing concern among medical and legal authorities.

"Don't rattle the baby", headlines the National Safety Council (NSC). Babies are more delicate than we realize and even a heavy-handed burping could damage permanently.

NSC refers to skeletal and brain damage, mental retardation, even death as too often sequels to some innocent things parents do with children.

"Many well-intentioned parents think nothing of giving a child a 'good shaking,'" says Dr. John Caffey of the University of Pittsburgh, "even though the cumulative brain-bruising may be grave."

He included as dangerous heavy-handed burping, tossing the youngster in the air, "riding the horse" on a grownup's shin, "cracking the whip", or somersaulting a baby by grasping its wrists from between the legs.

Also possibly harmful were too springy a baby-bouncer, the action of a powered rocking horse, or a jolting ride in car, on a motorcycle or bike.

Another possible cause of damage, said Caffey, is recurrent exposure to the snowmobile.

NSC quotes Caffey's writing in the current Good Housekeeping magazine.

The council, in its current newsletter from the women's department, also delves into effectiveness of the federal flame-retardant regulation for children's nightwear.

It is not a signal for parents to "sleep" on the job of safety, NSC says. It urges that parents study the sleepwear regulation, know its limitations, and "exercise vigilance" in selecting safe wardrobes.

The federal regulation covers only sleepwear in sizes 0 to 8X, manufactured after last July 29. Pajamas, nightgowns and robes made before that time still may be sold legally. Further, NSC says, "the vast majority of children's garments are still not flame resistant and care must be taken to keep the fabrics away from sources of ignition."

Lefors Board Sets Election For Trustees

The Board of Education of the Lefors Independent School District in its regular monthly meeting called an election for April 8 for the purpose of electing three board members. Each will serve a three-year term.

The terms of Edward Vincent, president, Walter Jackson and Billy Keith expire. Jackson and Vincent have filed for re-election. Those wishing to file for a position may do so in the school business office.

Mrs. Rene Dunnam was appointed election judge with Mrs. Opal Hall and Ruby Stanton serving as clerks. The election will be held in the high school library.

In other business the board appointed an Equalization Board of Fred Blackwell, Dale Garrett and Leonard Cain to serve as a Tax Board and as consultants for the school district.

The contracts of high school Principal Weldon Bates and elementary Principal Jesse Baker were extended until June, 1976. Superintendent Jerrel Julian's contract had been extended until July 1, 1976 in an earlier meeting.

In other business the board heard reports on school cafeterias, transportation, summer driver program and paid the current monthly bills. The contracts of teachers will be reviewed in the March meeting.

Key Clubbers Set Attendance At Convention

Several members of the Pampa High School Key Club will attend the Texas-Oklahoma District Convention in San Antonio April 4-4.

Sophomore Vincent DiCosimo and junior Billy Hagerman will enter competition. Others may enter later, PHS Key Club President Bert Casey said.

DiCosimo will enter the talent competition with a trombone solo and Hagerman will enter the oratorical contest, speaking on the Key Club International theme, "Commit Thyself."

The local club will also enter the achievement and scrapbook awards contests.

Dane Rasmussen of Pampa, current lieutenant of the Texas-Oklahoma district, will be a candidate for international vice president.

Dear Consumer

Finding the 'Bread' For College Bills

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Losing sleep over the problem of financing a college education for your children?

Even with savings, scrimping and the kids working part-time, it takes a lot of "bread"—to use the teenagers' term for money. And having sent two children to college, I know it always takes more "bread" than you expected when they were toddlers.

Help is available, however. Government agencies, private organizations and the schools themselves make funds available to certain students who cannot pay all their college expenses.

This column tells about government funds. Another column will give other sources.

Some government funds are loans that must be repaid; interest rates, however, are low. Others are grants and scholarships that are gifts—usually awarded on the basis of need, not for academic excellence. In many cases, Federal or state funds can be used for junior colleges, vocational or technical schools or for universities.

Five Federal programs of general student aid are supported by the U.S. Office of Education (USOE). All are given on the basis of financial need. These programs provide grants, loans and part-time jobs for college students. For a detailed fact sheet on all five USOE programs, write to Box G, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

Social Security payments are available, under certain conditions, to young people whose parents are entitled to Social Security payments. Your local Social Security office can tell you about eligibility.

For qualified veterans—and, in some cases, their spouses or children—the Veterans Administration (VA) provides certain tuition payments and allowances. Contact your nearest VA office or VA hospital, or write to VA, Washington, D.C. 20430.

For students planning to enter nursing schools, there is help through the Nursing Student Loan and Scholarship Program. Write to Student Loan and Scholarship Section, Bureau of Health Resources Development, Health Resources Administration, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, Md. 20814.

For American Indians, grants for college are available through the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA). Write to BIA, P.O. Box 1788, Albuquerque, N.M. 87103.

For qualified young people interested in military service, the armed forces offer scholarship help as part of their Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) programs. Details are available from high school guidance counselors and from local recruiting offices for different branches of the military.

In addition, your state government also has funds for scholarships, grants and loans. Be sure to look into this possibility. Write to the director of guidance, state department of education, in your state capital.

It's not too early to start applying for government aid. The sooner you find "bread" for those college bills, the sooner you'll start getting a good night's rest.

My next column will be a rundown of other possible sources of college funds—those provided by private organizations and the schools themselves.

People In America Are In A Sad Physical Shape

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The country is in sad shape.

Few try to deny it, especially on this particular day and in this particular city where telling a lie no longer is looked on so much as a sin as an absolute outrage.

When you get right down to it though, who really makes up the country?

The people in it, of course, and right there you have the nub of the whole problem.

Physically speaking, seven out of every 10 persons in the United States of America simply can't hack it, according to one survey conducted by a group of insurance companies. This is an astonishing figure, and it jumps to a fraction better than nine out of 10 when you count only those over 28.

Male and female both are included, so one can't point at the other.

Their stomachs protrude, their muscle tone generally is lousy, and all game long this fan kept shouting:

"Hey, whalebite, when are you gonna get in shape?"

I remember that making me laugh. So does James Brown, not the ex-football player, but the soul singer, who says:

"Anybody with a waistline bigger than 33 can't sing in my group."

Well, as a non-exercising, 52-year-old World War II retreat director who barely manages to get inside James Brown's legal limit, I ventured my opinion that the majority of Americans are out of shape to C. Carson Conrad, executive director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, and you know what he said?

He said: "I agree."

C. Carson Conrad is not Johnny-Come-Lately to this business of physical fitness.

Five Million Kids
He came here four years ago after spending 17 years as chief of California's program for physical education, health education and athletics involving five million school kids.

Conrad couples lack of exercise and smoking as two of the nation's chief drawbacks to physical fitness.

"If a person had any respect for himself, if he simply wanted to cut the risk of coronary heart somewhere between so-so and poor, they puff after walking up two flights and they couldn't run 500 yards, much less a mile, if their lives depended on it.

No World Beaters
Based strictly on their physical condition, Americans are far from world beaters. If standings were kept, we'd be trailing the Japanese Islanders, West German Giants, African Aces, Russian Red Wings and even the Arab Oilers at this point.

Most of the exercise many of our citizens get every day is switching on their TV sets or angling up their blood pressure against Richard Nixon and others in public office.

At least that's the way it looks to me.

The whole thing reminds me of this big, fat fellow I once saw so greatly agitated at a minor league ball game in Springfield, Mass.

He was hollering at the home plate umpire, who was also huge, but at least 50 pounds lighter, and all game long this fan kept shouting:

"Hey, whalebite, when are you gonna get in shape?"

I remember that making me laugh. So does James Brown, not the ex-football player, but the soul singer, who says:

"Anybody with a waistline bigger than 33 can't sing in my group."

Well, as a non-exercising, 52-year-old World War II retreat director who barely manages to get inside James Brown's legal limit, I ventured my opinion that the majority of Americans are out of shape to C. Conrad couples lack of exercise and smoking as two of the nation's chief drawbacks to physical fitness.

"If a person had any respect for himself, if he simply wanted to cut the risk of coronary heart disease in half, he could do it just by quitting smoking," Conrad says.

Much of the mail directed to the Council of Physical Fitness, however, addresses itself to another subject.

Cowboy Center Sponsors 'Fast Draw' Contests

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — The National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center and the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce announced today that it will host the 1974 World Fast Draw Championship on April 27 and 28.

Cash prizes and awards totaling $4,000 have been guaranteed for the event. Among those expected to compete will be the 1973 defending fast draw champion George Reese, 1972 winner Cal Eldridge and Stand Sweet, who owns the world's fastest time in a fast draw competition.

Helping sponsor the event with the Cowboy Hall and Chamber of Commerce will be the All Sports Association, Yukon Fast Draw Club and the Sooner Shooters Fast Draw Club.

Stanley Draper, Jr., executive at the Chamber and project officer and spokesman for the event, said he expects the turnout for this year's championship to be the largest in the history of the event.

PHS To Hold 'Talent Show'

Pampa High School's annual talent show will be conducted March 2 at the M.K. Brown Auditorium and besides local talent will feature show choirs from Amarillo and Dumas.

Proceeds from the show will be divided between the PHS Student Council and the choir department.

The American Field Service will receive the Student Council share and the choir will use its share to defray expenses of the annual spring choir tour.

Performance time and ticket prices have not been announced yet, according to Mrs. Betty Chamberlain, Student Council sponsor.

"We get 5,000 letters a week," says Conrad. "Most of those writing the letters are concerned with weight control. The women seem far more concerned about it than the men."

"I'd say our biggest problem, among the people in the country, I mean, is the lack of exercising to burn off the calories. It's really a simple arithmetical formula. You take in the calories by eating and then work them off by exercise, at least 30 minutes a day. "The point is you can't burn off the calories with a few minutes of isometric exercises or a few minutes of calisthenics each morning."

"I'm looking at it as a practitioner. I work at it every day and I'm 62. I find this — there are more people exercising the way they should than I've ever seen in my lifetime."

"Believe me," says Conrad, "if you want to really see some trouble in this country, just turn loose hordes of vigorous high school kids with no place to vent their energy."

C. Carson Conrad doesn't have to say any more. I'm fully convinced.

1040 U.S. Individual Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. My wife and I file a joint return. We disagree about checking off tax dollars to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund. Can she check off a dollar, even though I do not?

A. Yes. When filing a joint return, one spouse may designate $1 to the Fund even if the other does not. Or together you may designate a total of $2 or choose not to designate anything.

Remember, if you did not check off on your 1972 return, you can still do so on your 1973 return for 1972 as well as for 1973.

Q. In return for a good rate of interest, I agreed to leave several thousand dollars in my bank account for two years. I earned $300 in interest from this time-deposit account. But because I withdrew the principal before the two years expired, the bank forfeited a portion of the interest. Can I deduct the forfeited amount of interest on my tax return?

A. Yes. For individual taxpayers itemizing their deductions, such amounts are deductible as a miscellaneous deduction. However, you must report as income the entire amount of the interest credited to your account.

Q. Where can I get a copy of your official income tax guide?

A. A copy of "Your Federal Income Tax," Publication 17, may be purchased for $1.00 if picked up at IRS offices or many post offices throughout the country. If you wish to order a copy by mail from the Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C., the price is $1.25, postpaid.

Q. What are the rules for deducting finance charges on department store revolving charge accounts?

A. You may deduct the "finance charge" levied by retail stores on your revolving charge accounts if the charges are based on your unpaid balances and computed monthly. Also, in the case of bank credit card plans, you can deduct the finance charge if no part of this amount is for service charges, loan fees, credit investigation fees, etc.

However, if you buy items on the installment plan and the carrying charges are separately stated, but the interest charge cannot be ascertained, deduct the lower of (1) 6 percent of your average unpaid monthly balance or (2) the actual charge for the year. For more details, see IRS Publication-545, "Income Tax Deduction for Interest Expense." Use the order blank on the back of your 1040 tax forms package to obtain a free copy.

get my refund?

A. If you filed in January and there were no mistakes on your return, you should get your refund in 4 to 6 weeks. If you file later, it may take up to 8 weeks.

Q. Can you round off dollars on your Federal income tax return?

A. Yes. This means that amounts under 50 cents are eliminated and amounts from 50 cents to 99 cents are increased to the next dollar. If you choose to round off, you must do so consistently with all figures on the return.

Q. I pay a baby-sitter to take care of my children while I go to work. Are these amounts deductible?

A. Yes. If you meet the qualifications, you may deduct up to $400 for any calendar month for child care expenses incurred in your home. Expenses for the care of your dependents under the age of 15, if performed outside your household, are limited to $200 a month for one child; $300 a month for two children; or $400 a month for three or more children.

Your deductible expenses must be reduced by one-half of the amount by which your adjusted gross income exceeds $18,000 for one year. For more details, see your Form 1040 instructions or write your Internal Revenue district office for a free copy of IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care."

TV In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television programming is often underrated, but there is one area in which the networks are dismayingly second class: the art of enlightening conversation.

It is utterly amazing that a medium with video's impact has so many regularly-scheduled personalities who have almost nothing worthwhile to say on screen.

If you meet some of these people off-camera, they are often engaging and pointed conversationalists, so one has to conclude that they do not hold the viewing audience in very high regard.

Ari Is Sidestepping
They are, in short, safe on-camera. They know where their bread is buttered. They are not nervous puffyfooters. On the contrary, they radiate confidence. But their special art is sidestepping.

Here and there, we hear some exceptional words by television regulars: Perhaps an essay by Eric Sevareid or David Brinkley or Harry Ransom or Howard K. Smith.

And the talk shows—what is left of them have occasional guests who are provocative. In addition, Tom Snyder, host of the new, two-hours talk series entitled "Tomorrow" is an intriguing fellow who has ideas.

But generally there is a vast gap in the area of substantive conversation on the home screen—particularly on the commercial networks. Instead, there is much low-level talk that must surely affect viewers' minds.

It is bad enough that video has eliminated so much normal conversation in homes. But it is compounding the crime when most of the people who talk informally on television lower what is left of the art of discussion—and set dreadful examples for viewers.

With some video stations now broadcasting as much as 18 or 19 hours a day, it is terrifying to contemplate the millions of words of garbage that can pour forth in a relatively short time from the home screen.

A good conversationalist like Dick Cavett has had his talk series cut back to about one program every two weeks. Johnny Carson has a much more frequent show, but even though he is obviously an intelligent person he keeps his series basically on a frivolous entertainment level.

Conversational Gifts
Most of the news reporters we hear on the networks are extremely bright, honest and highly skilled, but the strict formats in which they operate do not give them much chance to display their conversational gifts.

And as for the prime time hours, commercial networks simply do not think in terms of serious, regularly-scheduled conversation series.

When you consider the minor place that American television has given to serious conversation over the years, you realize what an astounding view this is for the video industry to have.

We have been brainwashed into thinking that this is a natural course for television to follow.

It is not. It is a national mental disaster.

Dear Abby

He may be short, but he's still a man

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 19-year-old daughter is getting married in the spring. We are planning a large formal wedding which will take place in our synagogue. All the girls in the wedding party are tall, beautiful girls.

The problem is on the groom's side. He wants his 19-year-old brother to be an usher. This brother is very short and looks to be about 11 years old. I am afraid if he's an usher he will ruin the wedding.

I certainly don't want to cause any trouble between our families over this, but don't you think since we are going to a lot of expense to make this wedding perfect in every detail, we are within our rights to suggest they don't have this boy in the wedding party? I just know everyone will laugh because he will look like a midget.

PROBLEM IN BROOKLYN

DEAR PROBLEM: If you are Jewish, you should know that a 19-year-old male is considered a man, no matter how short he is. Let the groom select his own ushers and keep your lip zipped.

DEAR ABBY: I'm no kid. I'm 36 and a divorcee. Howie is 40, also divorced. We've been seeing each other regularly for six months and have a beautiful relationship. He is the man I'd like to spend the rest of my life with, but there is one problem. He doesn't mention marriage, and very carefully avoids saying: "I love you." He says: "I care for you, I adore you," and "You're the greatest," but he won't say those three little words I want to hear most. I say: "I love you," to him, but he still won't say it to me. There must be a reason for this. How do you interpret it?

LOVES HIM

DEAR LOVES: Howie is carefully avoiding the commitment that usually accompanies an admission of "love."

After a man says: "I love you," repeatedly, most women expect to hear: "Will you marry me?" Howie could be allergic to orange blossoms. Before you invest any more time in the relationship, if that's what you have in mind, ask him.

DEAR ABBY: Recently a massage parlor opened up in our town. It's strictly for men, but they get worked over by women—mostly young and pretty, or so I'm told.

Now, why should we women sit home steaming and wondering what we can do to combat this sort of thing? I wonder why some brilliant woman doesn't open up massage parlors for women only, and have young, good-looking men there to work the women over?

The same idea could be applied to "girlie shows" where the men flock. What would be wrong with having places where women could go and look at men's beautiful bodies?

FAIR PLAY

DEAR FAIR PLAY: Your "idea" is already a reality in many cities. But for some strange reason it hasn't enjoyed the success of its female counterpart.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NAMELESS PLEASE": Your situation reminds me of a story I once heard. It went like this: A college president told a coach [who was, at that time, turning out a winning team] that he could have his job as long as he lived. The team then lost three games in a row, so the president called the coach in, pronounced him "dead," and fired him.

Moral: Always get it in writing.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIS

At national tournaments, "breakish" (highly unbalanced) hands always produce a variety of results. Today's deal was no exception. The deal came up in the 1973 Fall National Championships.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The above was the bidding sequence at one of the tables. South's bidding was really optimistic, considering that North's initial response had been the negative two no-trump, showing a poor hand.

When North subsequently bid clubs and spades, South evidently hoped that North possessed the king of clubs and the ace of spades (the ace having been found out about via the bidding: pass, pass, pass).

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Follow Suggested Tips To Make Reducing Easy

This is the twelfth in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of WHY GROW OLD? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.

One week goes by so rapidly that eight weeks is a very small drop of time! However, the way you use this next eight weeks can make a terrific difference in your life. This is the fifth week of my eight week Beauty Improvement Plan. If you follow it you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds during that time and, literally, look like a different person!

See below what happens to the average woman. According to a chart prepared by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company the percentages of persons 10 percent or more above best weight are:

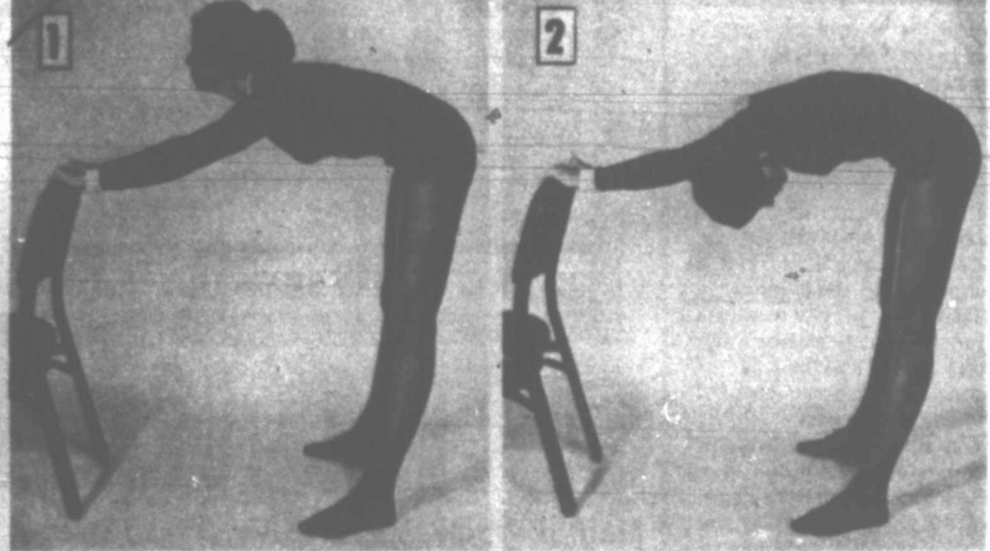

Age	Men	Women
20-29	31	23
30-39	33	41
40-49	60	59
50-59	63	67
60-69	67	68

Why not be different? You can see how overweight slips up on people. If this has happened to you why not change the picture? You can! Why not choose a good figure, a zest for living, more enjoyment of life, a new outlook and fine health, rather than bulges, fatigue, overweight, self-consciousness and the health hazards of extra pounds? Only you can make the choice.

I believe in making things as easy as possible so here are a few tricks to help you if you wish to reduce.

1. Do not keep rich items like candy or cookies in the house. Women would resist these if they had to go to a store for them when the urge hits. If you must have some in the house for family and friends hide them in a place not quickly accessible. If your friends think it unusual that you keep the cookies in a jar on a shelf in the garage, that's too bad! At least keep the items which tempt you on a high shelf so you will have time to reconsider.
2. Activation is essential. It does not matter whether it is the wish to be pretty for someone special or get a job or improve health or maybe just because you do not like the way you look and want to enjoy buying clothes again. Once activated you must keep the goal in mind. I think it will help if you paste a picture on the front of the refrigerator door. This could be you before you gained weight or you now or a shot of an extremely fat woman.
3. Do not read about new recipes while reducing or look at the pictures. Always go shopping after eating and not when you are hungry.
4. Keep busy. Perhaps you can adopt some new projects which take you out of the house as much as possible.
5. Serve plates in the kitchen. It is too tempting to look at the main dishes when they are on the table. Also use a smaller plate for yourself. It makes your serving look larger.
6. Keep such items as curled carrots, endive, celery sticks, radishes and cauliflower buds in the refrigerator in the crisper at all times. In this way you will not have to prepare them when the hollow feeling strikes.
7. Chewing gum helps some. The diet drinks can also fill the gap once in a while.
8. Eat very slowly.
9. Buy a dress in the size you would like to be or one at least a size or two smaller. Try it on every two weeks.

If you have missed some of BIP or would like to have the complete course to refer to, you may want my BIP Kit. It gives you all essential directions, slimming menus for two weeks, a calorie chart, 14 spot reducing exercises and a wall chart on which to plot your progress and watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops. If you want this kit send 50 cents and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to me in care of The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

FLATTEN YOUR TUMMY — Stand facing the back of a chair far enough away from it so that when you bend forward to take hold of it with your hands your back will be in a straight line. Head should be lifted. Now lower your head and chest as far as you can by contracting your abdominal muscles (still holding to chair). Relax and return to starting position. Continue for ten times. This exercise will strengthen your abdominal muscles and flatten your tummy.

Officers, Speech, Highlight Annual Quivira GS Meeting

The election of officers and a speech by a Big Spring educator and former professional Girl Scout worker highlighted the annual meeting of Quivira Girl Scout Council recently at the First United Methodist Church in Pampa.

Newly elected officers are Mrs. Vaden Fowler, Borger, president; Mrs. Gordon Brewer, Stinnett, first vice-president; Mrs. David Holt, Pampa, second vice-president; John English, Pampa, treasurer; and Mrs. Phil Londigan, Borger, secretary.

Members-at-large elected were Bill Zollars, Borger, George Berry, Memphis, Mrs. Jim Wheeler, Borger, Mrs. Wallace Birkes, Pampa, Dan Hiett, Wellington, Chester Beasley, Shamrock, Leon Davis, Memphis, Miss Karyn Keller, Fritch, Miss Janice Bean, Miami, and Miss Kim Hoover, Pampa.

Nominating committee members elected were Mrs. Kenneth Bolen, Borger, Mrs. Arthur Artgerut, Miss Geraldine Rampey, and Mrs. Carl Brugger, all of Pampa.

Mrs. Larson Lloyd, Big Spring, spoke on the Impact of Girl Scouting in a Woman's Life. Mrs. Lloyd based her talk on a study of 150 former Girl Scouts and their subsequent involvement in community concerns as a result of their Girl Scout training.

Mrs. Larson made the study for her master's thesis. So convinced is Mrs. Larson of the good influence Girl Scouting has on both girls and adults in the program that she concluded her talk by saying, "I hope each of you will feel that each hour spent in Girl Scouting is not an hour spent at an hour invested. It will pay dividends sooner than you think because the future is tomorrow."

Special awards for service to Girl Scouting were presented at the meeting. Don Thompson, Borger, retiring president, was presented with a marble desk set. The Pampa Kiwanis Club was given a plaque in special recognition for supplying the manpower to renovate the Pampa Little House. Dick Stowers accepted the award for the Kiwanis Club.

Archie Maness received a plaque for his donation of new aluminum screens for the Little House. Mrs. Elmont Branigan, retiring board member, received a silver tray in recognition of her many years of service to Girl Scouting.

Other special awards and recognitions also presented to Pampanans were to: Mrs. Dub Adkins, retiring neighborhood chairman; retiring board members, Hub Homer, Mrs. Maynard Johnson, Mrs. J.B. Maguire, Jr., Mrs. R.O. Linville, Mrs. Jewell Snider and Mrs. C.C. Hoover; retiring

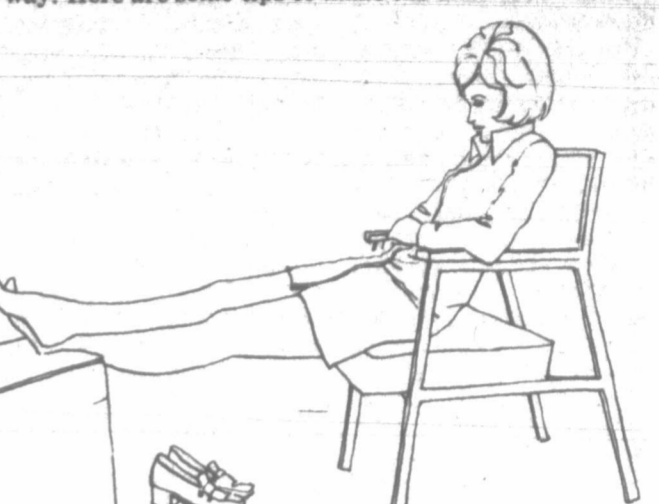

Massaging Moving Day Nerves

NEW YORK (ED)—Into each life, some frazzled nerves must fall. And for most of us, the chaos reaches a crescendo on moving day. Whether you're moving one block away or one hundred miles there are always a zillion last minute catastrophes. But it doesn't have to be that way. Here are some tips to make the transition easier.

"Plan Ahead" may be the oldest cliché, but it's especially true when you're moving a household. Whatever can be packed beforehand, should be. And never underestimate the power of a label. All cartons tend to look alike... if you label the contents, you'll find what you need when you need it.

Your tape measure can be your greatest ally. Measure your present furniture against your new rooms, so you'll know just what fits where. Don't wait until you're inside your new home to find there's no room for your furniture. And whatever furniture you can't use you best leave behind.

- Have moving nerves given you an upset stomach? Take a few moments, sit down and relax. Some fast-acting Di-Gel can help neutralize excess acid in your stomach and relieve gas distress. Eating habits usually suffer during a move. Make sure you eat something light and nourishing later on.
- Children can get under foot, so keeping them happy and busy is essential. Buy a few inexpensive toys, and present them with these gifts when the moving men arrive. With the children occupied, you'll have your hands free to deal with the business at hand.

One last but important suggestion: When you're finally in your new home and everything's packed away... take off your shoes, put your feet up... and indulge in a nice, relaxing nap. By the end of your moving day, you've certainly deserved it.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION — Meat prices continue to trend upward, so meat items should be selected with care, one observer noted this week.

"A larger cut of meat is frequently an economy," Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

"Also less demanded cuts of meat are often priced below average.

"Many larger cuts can be divided easily into smaller cuts and cooked at different times," she added.

Less popular cuts of meat, such as beef heart, are tasty and nutritious when properly prepared, the specialist said.

"Steaks and roasts from the pork shoulder offer very good eating at considerably less cost than the more popular pork chops."

Turning to poultry, she termed turkey, turkey parts and fryer chickens economical protein food choices.

"Egg prices are up — considerably higher than a year ago, with Grade A, large-size eggs offering the best value."

At fruit counters, grapefruit and oranges are priced attractively with several varieties of oranges available — Temple, Valencia and Navel oranges are a few, the specialist added.

"Tangelos and tangerines are still available, though supplies are on the decline. Apples, bananas and pears are other fruit choices, along with moderately priced fresh strawberries and pineapples.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 20
Your birthday today: You must fall back on your own resources this year. If you receive benefits from others, do everything you can to continue the setup, while making the fullest use of your ingenuity and the material you have to work with. Relationships run a little thin as you have much to do, some challenge to meet, all of which leaves less time than you'd like. Today's natures are versatile, capable of original thinking.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Slow down for social pleasures, paying little attention to wild stories, rumors. Much neglected work can be quietly picked up and disposed of today.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Continue along the lines of late yesterday, and improve on them a little. You have better perspective tomorrow and can make innovations then.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Monitor your facts and figures as you go—what you have must be incomplete at best, so assume nothing until the full story comes in later.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Important moves, particularly financial shuffling, are better postponed for further study, investigation. You have plenty to keep you busy, anyway.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Letting well enough alone is a good enough maxim for the day. The well-tried methods of the past continue producing if you will but work at them.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your questions tend more to hinder your search for details than they help. Listen carefully, keeping your nose out of the conversation, and learn more.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: It is time for you to teach something of what you know, especially to the young and to co-workers.

Concentration on details pays off handsomely.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Complete old projects in preference to new ones. In the process, your friends can well be left out; they all have other irons in the fire, anyway.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Study of the performance of others turns out very profitable or satisfying today. The less you translate your schemes into immediate action the better.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Quiet maneuvering finds you uncovering unsuspected and very useful information. You haven't got the kind of energy on tap for a big campaign.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Don't wait for associates to get moving. Start with things you can attend singlehanded with no great effort; get a lot of little chores done.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Use the relative calm of the day to proceed on well-tested lines of action. What worked before should be tried again with no major changes.

SAVE FUEL

A.N. Rogers, Perma-Balance Mean Good News For Tires

It's important to have balanced tires. Belting tires, when out of balance, tend to have the two ribs that protrude, cutting themselves out. Normally when these tires have 4,000-6,000 miles on them, and vibrations occur, it's too late to merely balance tires.

Radial tires, when out of balance, obtain flat spots, which if not detected in time, increase in size until the car vibrates.

All tires tend to slip around that wheel. It's usually necessary to rebalance them every 5,000 or 6,000 miles.

But a newly-developed wheel balancing technique compensates for slipping tires — Perma-Balance.

A.N. Rogers is Perma-Balance's representative in Pampa. Rogers has his office and home at 717 N. Christy and supplies to balance most wheels.

And Perma-Balance is what Pampa's drivers need! Perma-Balance is a scientifically engineered metal disc bonded to a circular tube of high-impact unbreakable plastic. The tube contains over 700 (eight and one half ounces) small ball bearings immersed in a special viscous fluid — all designed to be activated by centrifugal force to automatically and accurately oppose imbalance existing in both wheel and tire.

A.N. Rogers has been a part of Pampa for over 40 years. Rogers retired from Phillips Petroleum 10 years ago after working as an oil pumper for 30 years.

The result: longer tire life, better braking and road hold and better stability.

With the new energy conservation emphasis on saving fuel, especially on modern cars the demand for Roger's Perma-Balance is growing.

Tires that are properly balanced will create less friction wear on the road and naturally save on fuel. In fact, savings on fuel cost, at reduced speeds and properly balanced tires can very easily pay for the balancing when used with Roger's Perma-Balance.

Rogers and Perma-Balance are ready to serve you at 717 N. Christy. Perma-Balance your tires today!

Call for a demonstration.

REPAIR SERVICE — Glen T. Radcliff (left) and Randy Holt are on hand to repair your electric or motorized equipment or show you the line of mowers they have at Radcliff Electric, 519 S. Cuyler. (Staff Photo)

Radcliff Electric--Best In Equipment Service

Modern technology has brought many advancements to mankind by providing various types of electric and motorized equipment for use.

But even with all the great labor-saving devices, equipment will still break down and need repairs.

When trouble comes to your magnetos, take them to Radcliff Electric Co., 519 S. Cuyler, for prompt and efficient repair servicing.

Along with repairing magnetos, Radcliff's also repairs and installs electronic ignition systems. And they also offer complete diesel injection service, specializing in Rossmaster, Robert Bosch and American Bosch diesel pumps.

Radcliff's also services any pump for John Deere, International, Case and Minneapolis Moline tractors.

Their small engine repair service also extends to centrifugal water pumps and chain saws. A complete line of Homelite chain saws are in stock at the firm.

The household head who plans to save a little money by mowing the lawn himself can get awfully frustrated when he finds that his Acme Super-Duper Rotary doesn't click.

The frustration can be shortlived, however, if he will stick the mower in his car trunk and bring it down to Radcliff Electric Co., where lawn mower repair service is unequalled anywhere in the Top O' Texas area.

Growing Plants Reaps Relaxation

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — A harvest of new outlooks can be reaped by anyone through the simple joys of growing plants.

"Gardening and other horticultural activities more and more are being recognized as relaxing and satisfying," said Dr. George Tereshkovich, associate professor of park administration and horticulture at Texas Tech University.

"With the recognition of the therapeutic value of horticultural activity has come a need for people trained to bring the activity to those who need it," Tereshkovich said.

The Department of Park Administration and Horticulture of Texas Tech's College of Agricultural Sciences will offer, beginning in the fall, an interdisciplinary degree program in horticultural therapy designed to help meet the need for people with this training.

Needs Are Varied
"Horticultural therapists are needed in geriatric homes and retirement communities, rehabilitation centers, veterans hospitals, mental health and retardation centers, psychiatric institutions and correctional institutions," Tereshkovich said.

The program to be offered at Texas Tech will provide students with a broad background in horticulture supported by courses in psychology, sociology, special education, family relations and child development. A portion of the program is flexible and open to courses of the student's choice to allow for an amount of specialization in given areas.

Tereshkovich said horticultural therapy students also will serve an internship with professions, probably with

Lubbock organizations and institutions during regular semesters or during summer internship programs.

Leads to Degree
The program will lead to a bachelor of science degree in agriculture with emphasis in horticultural therapy.

"Some individuals have never had the opportunity to practice gardening, some have lost the ability and others have yet to discover how to release tensions by involving themselves in horticultural activity," Tereshkovich said.

"Horticultural therapy is not a new idea," he said. "One program in Pennsylvania has been in operation since the early 1800s. What is new is the application of horticultural therapy to a broader range of areas."

Among the people who can benefit from programs in horticultural therapy are the aging, many in geriatric homes and retirement communities. Whether working in a vegetable or flower garden — or with growing potted plants indoors — older people love the activity and sense of involvement gardening can provide.

Gain Many Benefits
Physically handicapped people gain multiple benefits from the muscular utilization involved in gardening, Tereshkovich said. The mentally retarded and mentally ill benefit from participation in gardening activities through being able to observe day to day progress and the satisfaction gained in producing flowers and vegetables.

NEWEST THING ON WHEELS — A.N. Rogers, 717 N. Christy, urges his customers to use this scientific driving marvel, Perma-Balance, the automatic permanent wheel balancing system, available at the address listed. This is the only true dynamic balancer that balances at all speeds.

Shoeless Waiters—Fad In Tropics

NEW YORK (UPI) — Would you be offended if you walked into the dining room of a swank hotel in the tropics and found all the waiters and even the maitre d' hotel BAREFOOT?

Although this question has been settled in favor of shoes for the present it still arouses uneasy feelings in Henry Ogden Barbour, vice president of manpower development of Pan American Airways' Inter-Continental Hotel chain which has 62 hotels in 42 countries.

The barefoot waiter problem came up at the Tahara Inter-Continental in Tahiti and at several of the company's luxury hotels in African and Asian countries where the populace normally goes barefoot.

"I didn't think we had much right to make the workers wear shoes, and I thought the bare feet, added a touch of local color," says Barbour, who formerly was director of Michigan State University's school of hotel and restaurant management. "But our hotel managers, who are mostly Swiss or French, disagreed. They insisted our hotels have a civilizing mission and that civilization includes shoes. I still have my fingers crossed."

Barbour encounters many bizarre problems in recruiting hotel workers in some foreign countries. In Karachi and in the Philippines when he advertised for maids most of those who applied were college graduates. But when they showed up on the job they wanted to sit around the corridors all day in their smart uniforms while the personal maids they had brought with them did the work.

Inter-Continental refused to go along with that. "Some of the college graduates promptly quit but most decided physical work wasn't so demeaning after all," Barbour said.

The most perplexing problem turned up in Moslem countries. "Various local Moslem sects have different customs regarding household service," Barbour explained. "In some areas it is considered improper for an unmarried maid to make a bed for a married couple."

No Leads Yet In Fort Worth Abduction Case

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Police Monday said they had found no trace of 18-year-old Carla Walker, abducted Sunday night, or the gunman who shot her date once in the head.

"We're becoming more and more concerned about this case and about her safety," a Fort Worth police homicide department spokesman said.

"We haven't found anything," he said. "And we don't even know what the motive for the abduction was."

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Let the Record Reflect

Almost everyone was surprised when the crimp in the oil supply came on. But the written record shows that petroleum producers had cried out far in advance that the world was consuming oil at a rate that could not be long sustained if production were not increased.

Pacific Northwest; and (2) the agitation against lumber logging from government-owned lands.

Another element that will tend to drive up lumber prices is the increased demand abroad for American forest products.

Finally tax policy has a great bearing on what you will pay for the lumber that goes into a new home or to improvement on an older home. Since the tax man comes around every year, you can see that taxation easily can devour the proceeds from a crop that takes 30 years to develop.

Forest land is compatible with grazing, mining, power plants, timbering, pipelines, oil drilling, and recreation. In short, forest land is compatible with people in all their manifold needs and pursuits. Environmentalism having become such a political football, we don't expect the extremists among them to be greatly influenced by any plea for moderation. Our highest hope is that the controversy will lead to a better understanding as to how men are related to their natural surroundings.

With understanding, we and our children's children can have abundant housing as long as trees grow. Without understanding, the environmentalists will paint us into a corner much as they did in domestic oil production and in the development of other forms of power.

Never has it been clear that understanding is the key to the future.

As they used to say in the army, "Let the record reflect."

The Unlucky Winner

You may have read about the chap who won $100,000 in the New York lottery six years ago and now is living off his unemployment check. It seems that the IRS and state income tax took the biggest chunk of his winnings, and he used the remainder to pay up some back bills.

At any rate, the lucky-unlucky victim in the New York case may as well have taken his lottery tickets over to the IRS after he had bought them. Those on the political payroll, who are served by the tax office, were the primary beneficiaries of the legalized numbers game. So it is only logical that tickets be kept in their possession. Thereafter they would have the options of returning any change to the unlucky winner in the amount that they deem fit.

A news item like this may do more to waken people to the burden that federal and state income taxes impose than if the victim had been deprived of earnings rather than winnings.

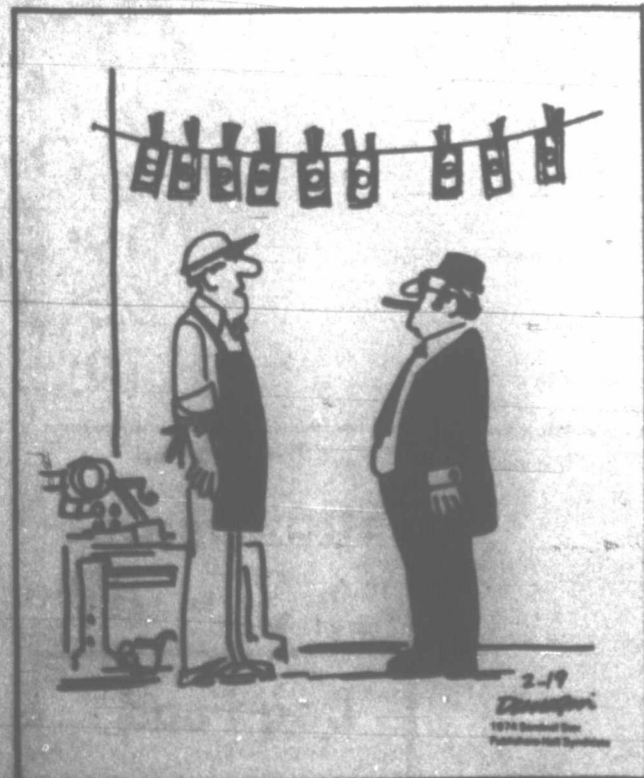

If this were to become the way for handling the taxation of lottery winnings, it would then more closely resemble the way of handling the larger share of the personal income tax. That is, before the individual gets his check, his gross earnings are withheld in legal custody and will be released only after the politicians cut out their share.

For some reason, perhaps a quirk in human nature, human beings find it easier to identify with an individual who was lucky rather than one who was industrious.

The inequity of having your good fortune taxed away is clearly visible in the instance of the poor guy in New York. But the unfairness of having the fruits of hard work taxed away is typically dismissed on the rationale that "those who earn more should pay more."

Rebel Truckers Cost Nation $100 Million in Recent Strike

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — Violin playing, musical comedy writing, money making Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp is a man of selected hobbies — not the least of which is cultivation of his distaste for Richard Nixon and virtually everything the President does or says.

The other day Mr. Nixon called some of the owner-driver truck highway rebels "desperados." Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, once a truck driver himself, dubbed some of the over-the-road muscle men "outlaws." Then Gov. Shapp, a devotee of the Kennedys and Eugene McCarthy, in effect, told Messrs. Nixon and Saxbe to shut up and not issue "provocative" statements during the truck rebellion.

So the question to the Governor, once an AFL-CIO Man of the Year, must be — why shouldn't rebel terrorists be called desperados? They issued statements boasting they would bring this nation "to its knees." Four of them dragged a woman driver from her truck and beat her practically unconscious. One flying squad hurled a concrete slab through a windshield. Others conspired to murder. This wasn't a strike. It was a siege.

In all, the rebellion in some areas led by rifle-toting drivers, cost this nation close to $100 million. If it had lasted a few days longer there might have been armed battling with the National Guard.

It got so bad that Saxbe said, "If the governors in this country do not have the guts to face up firmly to this situation, it'll get worse and people will be killed."

There were 50,000 layoffs in Gov. Shapp's Pennsylvania alone. Another 50,000 to 75,000 workers were furloughed elsewhere.

Not the least was the interference with the U.S. mails. Trucks carrying mail and important publications along the vital mail "transportation corridors" (postal star routes) were attacked, drivers terrorized, tires slashed, fired on, air hoses cut. Attacks got so bad the U.S. Postal Service had to shift the mail on these star routes (New York — New Jersey — Pennsylvania — West Virginia — Ohio) from swift night running to slower day time schedules. Tons of mail were delayed in key states and industrial centers.

The little known but truly ace Postal Inspection Service had to be deployed along the routes to protect the federal mails. Saxbe with all the data on his desk called the entire crisis mighty close to sedition and promised to go after the terrorists even "if it takes five years" and get them into the penitentiary. After all, the civil rights of those who wanted to work and drive were being violated by arsonists and Molotov bomb throwers, the only phrase for it.

Some Pennsylvania cities were in critical situations when it came to supplies of fuel — Johnstown and Pittsburgh, for example.

The war of the highways wasn't an easy one to settle. Actually, Mr. Nixon's top labor troubleshooter, 50-year-old Bill Usery, says it was the most complex in his career as assistant Secretary of Labor and now as chief of the federal mediation service.

Usery, a genial Georgian, breakfasted with Shapp and tried to cooperate with the Governor when the latter came to Washington to set up his own mediation parlor. But it wasn't easy.

There are 600,000 truck drivers in the land. Some 200,000 of them are independents and owner-drivers who lease their trucks. Most of the other 400,000 belong to the Teamsters union which was not on strike. And there are some 47 independent units claiming to represent dissident owner-driver rig operators. There were tens of thousands who were represented by no one.

Many sent word they didn't want a union or an association. They said they were small businessmen who own one truck and are heavily mortgaged. Further involved in the whole intricate chaos were the powerfully independent regulatory Interstate Commerce Commission, over which no one has control, the White House, the Congress and the Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Transportation and Labor, the Federal Energy Office, and the state governments most of which have different truck highway statutes and regulatory agencies of their own. Into the negotiations came strange words like back-haul, weights, links, speed limits, gateway problem routes, and regulations the non-specialist rarely encounters. This was a national problem — not just statewide.

And the cruelty of the violence is unbelievable. Some of the rebels went right for the jugular — of non-striking drivers as well as of the nation.

Small wonder Saxbe said it all got rather "seditious" — and if the owner-drivers wanted a confrontation they'd get one. Our national way of life is changing and it will be shared and share alike. Terror won't change that. Not for long. The owner-drivers have grievances. So have we all. Fortunately we don't all arm ourselves and go for the jugular.

A Word About Removing Anti-Pollution Devices

By PAUL HARVEY
The antipollution stuff on your new car costs you between $100 and $500.

Now, for $49 to $99 you can get it stripped off — if you want to.

Did we go too far too fast in demanding depollution? Already, in the interests of conserving fuel, many depollution directives are being modified or rescinded.

And some car owners are removing the emission-control devices from their new cars in the interest of saving four gallons every tankful.

Apparently, it's legal. The law says that manufacturers must install emission-control gadgets; manufacturers and/or dealers may not remove them.

But there's nothing in present EPA regulations which prohibits you or your neighborhood mechanic from removing the equipment.

A Columbus, Ohio, mechanical engineer estimates that 7 to 20 percent of a car's fuel goes to feed emission-control equipment. And he insists that a properly tuned car without emission-control devices causes no more pollution than an out-of-tune car with.

So he offers to remove the device and return your car for $49 to $99, guaranteeing that you'll get your money back by saving $2 on every tankful of gas.

Looking just at the mathematics of this subject, we've made a very costly boo-boo.

Antipollution devices for cars plus the research that went into them are adding $2 billion a year to consumer costs. That is a very high tax.

Additionally, they'll consume an additional 5 billion gallons of gasoline — costing consumers $2.5 billion a year.

pay, amounting to some $10 billion a year.

The paper industry, for example, is putting 43 percent of all new investment into "pollution control." For nonferrous metals, the figure is 22 percent, for oil 10 percent.

That much money is diverted from developing new productive capacity to "cleanup."

Now the passions which prodded Congress to overact in 1970 could cause an overreaction in 1974. That would be unfortunate.

An ecological housecleaning is necessary and overdue. What's required is a prebalance of passion and prudence so that we don't end up with pure air and clean water and little else.

MURPHY'S LAWS

Remember "Murphy's Laws?" They've been applicable since the dawn of time, and they still are valid today.

1. In any field of scientific endeavor, anything that can go wrong, will go wrong.
2. Left to themselves, things will always go from bad to worse.
3. If there is a possibility of several things going wrong, the one that will go wrong will do the most damage.
4. Nature always sides with the hidden flaw.
5. Mother Nature is a bitch.
6. If everything seems to be going well, you have obviously overlooked something.

All governments — indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act — is founded on compromise and barter. —Edmund Burke, English orator.

DESPITE ENERGY CRUNCH

Majority Of Commuters Still Driving to Work

By GEORGE GALLUP
(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J. — Much attention during the current energy crisis in the U.S. is being focused on the automobile, a device that consumes nearly one-third of the nation's petroleum. A recent Gallup survey, however, shows an overwhelming majority of U.S. commuters continuing to use the car as a means of getting to work.

Although 41 percent of Americans report they are driving less and 8 percent say they joined a car pool, as many as four out of five persons (79 percent) who work outside the home nevertheless drive to work. This is the same proportion as recorded in a survey conducted three years ago in 1971.

Only 7 percent in the current survey say they use the bus and 3 percent the train to get to work. Few of us walk to our jobs — in fact, only 5 percent. Again, these percentages closely parallel those recorded in the survey taken three years ago.

Even in the densely populated center-city areas, the car is far and away the chief means of getting to work. In these areas, 62 percent of persons who work outside their homes use the car, while 15 percent take the bus, 6 percent the train, and 7 percent walk.

England, Canada Differ From U.S.

America's commuting habits contrast sharply with those of the British and Canadian public, interviewed during the same period of time by Gallup-affiliated organizations in each nation.

In Great Britain, for example, nearly half (47 percent) of persons who work outside the home drive to work, while 23 percent take a bus, 5 percent a train, and 18 percent walk.

In Canada, seven in 10 drive while 14 percent go by bus, 1 percent take the train, and 11 percent walk.

One of the sharpest contrasts to America's commuter habits is furnished by results from Uruguay, recorded by the Gallup-affiliated organization in that nation. In that country, only 4 percent of those who work outside the home use the car, while more than 90 percent use the bus or some other mode of transportation.

Stressing the need for mass transit, President Nixon recently outlined a $16 billion, six-year federally backed program to improve railroads, subways, and bus lines. The President indicated one of the major objectives of the program is the conservation of energy.

Following is the question asked in the survey to measure commuting habits:

"If you travel to work, what means do you use to get to work — by car, train, bus, walk or how?"

Here are the national percentage results based on those who work outside their homes:

AMERICA'S COMMUTING HABITS (those who work outside home)

Car	79
Bus	7
Walk	5
Train	3
Bicycle-Motor Bike	1
Other-No Answer	5

H. L. Hunt Writes

SAVING WHAT?

The first casualties are in. Nearly a dozen children are dead in several states alone. The killer is not war, not a tornado or earthquake. The culprit is a bureaucratic monster called Daylight Saving Time, and more innocent victims are certain to be added to the rolls before the blunder can be corrected.

The logic, if any, behind the panic adoption of nationwide daylight saving time escaped many citizens at the time it was rushed through Congress, supposedly as a saver of energy. How, a few citizens asked, is it going to save energy to arise earlier in the coldest hours before dawn? Surely that would require more heat, not less.

The worst fears of the few voices raised in caution are now being realized. Not only is little or no energy being saved, school youngsters all across the land have been maimed and killed as they groped through the dark and the rain and the sleet to bus stops or schools. If we are saving neither lives nor energy, what are we saving is a good question.

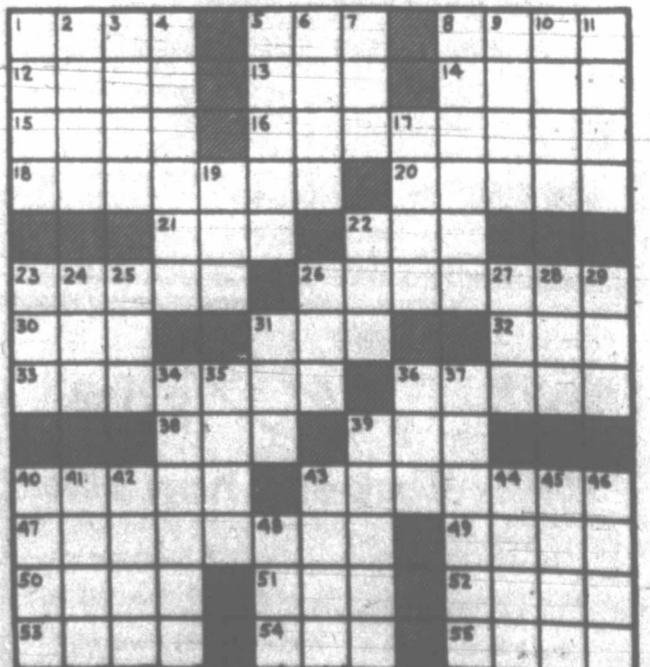

We should long ago have learned that what is appropriate for one region of our great country may do no good or actually do great harm to another section.

Panic is never a good legislator and the bureaucratic mania to "do something" even if it is wrong obviously intimidated otherwise thoughtful Senators and Congressmen into hasty, ill-conceived action.

The citizenry can cause this situation to be corrected, since the bureaucracy cannot easily circumvent a direct requirement to repeal compulsory daylight saving time.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Hernia Needs A Good Surgeon

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me about hiatus hernia. I don't know if that's the right spelling but you know what I mean. Is an operation for this dangerous? I don't get much information from my doctor.

-C.C.K.

Maybe you aren't getting much information because he is hoping that less drastic measures than surgery will be sufficient for you. That's true in most cases.

Either hiatus hernia or hiatal hernia is correct—it's a larger-than-ideal gap through which the esophagus passes to reach the stomach.

Surgery is the major undertaking, and requires the hand of a surgeon who thoroughly understands it if you are to have the best results, but I wouldn't call it a "dangerous" operation.

Why not send for my booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It?" It will answer a lot of your questions and, I trust, help keep it from bothering you. Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of Publishers - Hall Syndicate 401 N. Wabash Ave.

Chicago, Ill. 60611 for a copy of the booklet.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Four years ago my husband had cirrhosis of the liver—he drank for about 20 years. He is 48 now. After the cirrhosis he hadn't had a drink of anything until three weeks ago. He was ashamed to tell me until today.

He also is ashamed to tell his doctor, and that is why I am writing to you. After drinking 1 1/2 pints of whisky in three weeks, could he have redamaged his liver enough to kill him, or hurt him? I am so worried. He has sworn off drinking again for good.

ANY alcohol is harmful for a damaged liver, and when a cirrhosis patient goes back to drinking, my heart goes down to my boots.

But this case is different, not only because your husband was ashamed of slipping, but because he finally did "less up."

My estimate would be that his pint-and-a-half spree can't hurt him enough for you to worry about, since he's now off liquor again. And it's also my guess that this time he'll stay off.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a uterine fibroid tumor? How is it caused? Should it be treated or left alone? If treated, how?

It's a type of tumor (the "fibroid" refers to the type of tissue) which quite often develops in the uterus—maybe one, sometimes several. It occasionally a considerable number. Cause is not known.

Since they are as a rule not cancerous, the usual practice is to leave them alone, except for periodic checkups to make sure that they are not bothersome.

If they grow to such size as to be painful or otherwise a nuisance, the treatment is to remove them surgically. Depending on the patient's age (whether still of child-bearing age) usually the entire uterus is removed rather than trying to remove a single fibroid.

Such fibroids quite often recede spontaneously after menopause, in which case nothing needs to be done.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will food cooked in a microwave oven hurt a person if used for long periods of time? I recently purchased one, and neighbors say it might be harmful.

No harm has been reported from eating food so cooked—and I cannot see how it could be harmful. There has been in the past some concern about the rays harming people by striking them from leakages in the stoves, but it is my understanding this has by now been taken care of.

What causes "balance" trouble? What can be done to correct or overcome it? Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Dizzy Spells," discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea. Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to him in care of Publishers - Hall Syndicate, 401 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Cyd's Legs Aid Tony's Show

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Her beautiful legs go all the way up to her throat...

Cyd Charisse's legs were being discussed by the modern poet Sammy Cahn. Cyd's beautiful long sexy legs are co-starred with her husband Tony Martin's romantically husky voice in the new show at the Waldorf Empire Room.

I have frequently alluded to the bitchcraft of today when nearly all females put down other women.

But the exclamations about Cyd's beauty and figure were from other women who just sort of gasped, "What a figure!" Then they said, "But of course, she dances... gets her exercise that way."

"But she's had a couple of children," others said, and the conversation was all complimentary for Cyd, who weighs about 115 and wears a size 8. I hope this won't take some of the importance off husband Tony's 22 tuxedos, but I don't think he'll mind.

This is a Las Vegas act in New York, and it was millionaires at the ringside at the opening, led by Kirk Kerkorian, Greg Bautzer, William J. Levitt and George Barrie. Tony could have played to these rich folks—I think I would have—but he didn't. He mentioned having 14 gold records in his den—and I got the definite impression they were all his.

And then Cyd's legs would come flying through the air and I tell you...

In his first engagement in New York in several years, Tony had charm, presence, humility and dimples. I enjoyed his fiction about being told by an official at the hotel that he needed security at the Waldorf.

"I don't need security," he scoffed. "Yes, you do. You've no idea how crazy they are about you here, Mr. Bennett."

And as he gulped, the hotel official said, "And you will sing 'San Francisco,' won't you?"

Show Biz Quiz: What was unusual about the vaudeville act done by Viola and Daisy Hilton? Answer to yesterday's Ricardo Cortez played the Sam Spade role in the 31 version of "Maltese Falcon."

THE MIGHTY EARL... Peter Cook of "Good Evening" was busy-busy-busy on Valentine's Day getting married at 11:30 a.m., taping a TV show 1-5 p.m., doing his Broadway show at 8. (Producer Alex Cohen was his best man)

...Gloria Steinem, backstage at "Lorelei," told Carol Channing approvingly that "Lorelei Lee was one of the first Women's Libbers."

After much "misunderstanding" about the projected material "Mack and Mabel," concerning Mack Sennett and Mabel Normand, producer Joe Kipness advised lawyers to sue producer David Merrick. They haven't been able to agree on terms of jointly producing it. Kipness is arguing with Jerry Herman, Michael Stewart and the William Morris office, too.

Joan Edwards gets her divorce on her birthday—after 11 years of waiting. She'll have a divorce—and birthday party...

The producers of Tony Curtis' movie "Leper" should consult Rose Bigman, secretary to Walter Winchell, who was in on the surrender and kept a diary.

Jackie Sule, saw a Brinks truck pull up to a gas station—not to get gas but to deliver some...

"The Exorcist" doesn't bother Linda Hopkins who's returning to Reno Sweeney's Feb. 19. She says, "When I was a young girl, I had the devil in me all the time..."

Another hotel's flirting with Plaza entertainment director Bill Burnham.

Bob Crane says everybody thinks he looks like a talk show host, he's even been one on the Johnny Carson show as a substitute, and he understands you have to look like an American guy—next-door-for the job. So, in the Walt Disney "Superdad" at Radio City Music Hall, he plays a guy—next-door. Where's the talk show contract?

Comic Freddie Roman told Don Rickles, picked by the Frars as Man of the Year: "Do, it could happen to a neer guy..."

Producer James Niederlander'll give a dual party March 31—his birthday and the opening of his show "My Fat Friend" (with Lynn Redgrave)... Debbie Reynolds told an interviewer she never knew Marnie Nixon had dubbed some of her singing in "Singing in the Rain" till she bought the record and saw it on the label.

IT'D RATHER BE LIGHT... TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Rodney Dangerfield says that on the very first day of his marriage something happened that made him think he was in trouble: "My in-laws sent me a thank-you note."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The airlines plan another price increase, so even the price of going up is going up.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: James Thurber said it: "One martini is all right; two is too many; three are not enough."

EARL'S PEARLS: John Markus writes that his home town of London, Ohio, isn't a big place. "In fact, it's so small and quiet that we had to send away for a town drunk..."

Gas stations are flying green flags if they have fuel and red flags if they haven't—and Alan King says motorists are just flying the white flag. That's earl, brother. All Rights Reserved.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what has got to be one of the most bizarre crimes of this, or any other century, persons unknown recently broke into John Gardner's office and stole some of his old speeches.

Calling this bizarre is not to imply that the former HEW secretary and current chairman of Common Cause is lacking in eloquence.

To the contrary, his forensic utterances have both force and weight, as such things go. Nevertheless, the demand for old speeches, however spellbinding, is hardly on a level with, say, the demand for diesel fuel.

Yet it must have been the speeches the thieves were after.

For nothing else of value was taken. Or as Gardner Gardner himself more succinctly put it, "Nothing of value was taken."

There are two possible explanations for a break-in of this type:

1. The Watergate gang has struck again.
2. The thieves know something you and I and Gardner don't know.

Since some of the Watergate burglars were, at last report, still behind bars, I lean toward the latter theory.

It goes without saying that there are fortunes to be made if someone were to discover a practical use for old speeches.

"George? Yeah, he's right down there watching TV."

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

YOU CAN RAISE YOUR OWN CHICKENS... EVEN IN TOWN!

"The sound of the rooster is once more being heard in the Bay Area as rising food prices turn confirmed urbanites into backyard poultry farmers." That quote is from an article by Barbara Erickson and it appeared a few weeks ago in the San Francisco Sunday Examiner & Chronicle's California Living Magazine. The piece, however, could just as well have been written for almost any big-city newspaper in the country... because "urban farming" is now making a strong comeback in the United States.

Eighty to a hundred years ago, you know, great numbers of city dwellers routinely grew backyard gardens and raised rabbits, chickens and other small stock in little coops out beside the stable or garage. The practice died out over the years... but—fueled by today's demand for "real" food and skyrocketing supermarket prices—it is once again becoming popular.

Surprisingly enough, as Ms. Erickson pointed out in her article, it's a lot more legal to raise poultry inside some big-city limits than most folks think! For example, in San Francisco every household that wants to is allowed to keep four chickens (as long as they're housed 20 feet from any doors or windows on a human dwelling). Lincoln Park lets its families each maintain a flock of 50 of the birds and neither Berkeley nor Oakland sets any restrictions on the number of chickens that an individual can raise inside their boundaries.

Some other municipalities aren't so understanding on the other hand... so you'd be well advised to check out the appropriate local regulations before you attempt to start producing domestic and fresh eggs in your own backyard.

For a mini-manual that explains poultry raising from day-old chicks on, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 170, CHICKENS!

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Prof. Smiley's students include a barber who commutes from a village of 200 people. Note this deft use of Applied Psychology. We need far more people who are resourceful producers, instead of braintrusters. That's doubly true of Congress and state legislatures!

CASE Z-556: Robert Smiley teaches Marketing at Purdue University.

Recently, he stopped for a visit when I was down in Indiana at the newspaper syndicate office.

"Dr. Crane," he said, "one of my students is a barber from a little town of 200 population."

"He is a good Applied Psychologist, too, for he has set up a goal of $350 per week for his village barber shop."

"And last week he hit $370."

"For he is unusually alert and ambitious. He thus stresses hair styling for the older men of the community."

"Since the custom of long hair for the male sex has been in vogue, he offers a free hair styling job to key men just so they can publicize his tonsorial artistry."

"Then, as they are asked where they got the attractive hairdo, they mention this barber's name."

"Dr. Crane, don't you think he typifies the type of man who would be a success in almost any field?"

THINK AHEAD
Yes, I certainly appreciate this barber's ambition and practical psychology.

"You must first think ahead," runs a superb adage, "if you wish to get ahead."

That is similar to another business maxim which states:

"Plan your work; then work your plan!"

And I also salute Robert Smiley for his own demonstration of those axioms for success.

For he has had a versatile experience in our American "Free Enterprise" system, having worked in advertising and also been a radio announcer.

With his keen mind and business insights derived from his university teaching in the field of Marketing, he might very profitably end in the U. S. Congress.

For we certainly need versatile men as candidates of both the major political parties.

And by "versatile," I refer to men who not only know how to motivate voters so they can win elections.

But also candidates with "Horse Sense," who realize that government is really the major business of America and should be conducted efficiently, without boondoggling and waste of our taxes.

Perhaps we have far too many lawyers in our state and national legislatures.

Instead, we need more farmers, barbers, retail merchants, doctors and others who really are out creating new products and trying to merchandise them at a profit.

Our Watergate bunglers were chiefly lawyers!

And those who have complicated American business by braintruster laws about pollution of water, air and foodstuffs, have produced most of our economic chaos the past few years.

"Dad," my Congressman son, Philip, told me on the phone not long ago, "America would be much better off if Congress had taken a prolonged vacation the past couple of years!"

For legislators constantly want to concoct new laws and boost taxes—most of which merely complicate and retard the sound progress of American business.

Send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic and Political Tricks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Moline, Indiana 47118. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you need the use of his booklet.)
