Sealed Report Worrying Lawyers For President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's Watergate lawyers were reported Saturday to be deeply concerned that a sealed report from a federal grand jury might contain "inflammatory conclusions" about Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up.

For this reason, investigative sources told UPI, the lawyers may urge U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to deny a grand jury request that the report be turned over to the House Judiciary Committee, which is considering impeachment proceedings against Nixon.

The White House had no immediate comment on the report.

The grand jury gave the secret report to Sirica Friday after it indicted seven of Nixon's closest former White House and campaign associates for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up. UPI learned the report contained information about Nixon's role in the cover-up.

Quoting "several sources," The Washington Post said the report described the grand jury's belief that Nixon "was involved in the conspiracy to obstruct justice in the case."

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said more indictments would be forthcoming but he gave no timetable.

It was reported that indictments would be returned next week growing out of the burglary by the White House "plumbers" investigative unit of the office of the Los Angeles psychiatrist who once treated Daniel Ellsberg.

Indictments also were expected in cases concerning the administration's dealings with the milk industry and the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) and various campaign contribution irregularities.

Indicted on conspiracy and other charges were former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former top White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson, Gordon Strachan, Haldeman's assistant, former Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, a lawyer for the Nixon campaign committee.

The seven will be arraigned Saturday. No trial date was set. But Jaworski said he expected a lengthy trial of as long as four months. Sirica has assigned the trials to his courtroom.

Sources close to the investigation said the White House did not know what was in the grand jury's report, which remains locked in a safe under Sirica's custody.

But Nixon's lawyers are deeply concerned that the report might contain inflammatory conclusions about the President, "one source said."

They may well oppose any attempt to turn the report over to the House if it goes one step beyond the evidence in the case. Their feeling is that the House should draw its own conclusions, and not use the grand jury's.

The grand jury report made no direct reference to Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up. But it charged Haldeman with lying when he quoted the President as saying "it would be wrong" to pay hush money to the seven Watergate burglars who were tried in January 1973. Nixon had said Haldeman's Senate testimony on this point was accurate.

Mistrial Decision Monday

NEW YORK (UPI) — A "gravely concerned" federal judge Saturday pondered a request to declare a mistrial in the influence-peddling trial of former cabinet officers John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans.

U.S. District Court Judge Lee Gagliardi said he will announce his decision when court resumes at 10:30 a.m. Monday.

The latest snag in a long list of problems that has delayed the trial three times arose Friday during the opening remarks of prosecutor James W. Rayhill.

Rayhill told the jury of eight men and four women that as they listened to the witnesses they should put themselves "in the place of the grand jurors... citizens like yourselves... who indicted Mitchell and Stans last May."

Walter Bonner, Stans's attorney, objected, labelling the remark "outrageous," and calling for a mistrial and dismissal of the 10 charges of conspiracy, justice and perjury.

The judge directed the prosecution to submit a written explanation and told the defense to submit a brief supporting its motion for a mistrial.

Fire Damages Store Garage

A multi-car garage behind the S&J Mart, 600 E. Frederic, was partially destroyed by fire around 8:30 p.m. last night.

At present the origin of the fire, to which several units of the Pampa Fire Dept. were called, had not been determined.

Johnnie Preston, an employee, was alone at S&J Mart when she discovered the fire at the rear of the grocery and delicatessen and reported it to the fire department.

Owner Carroll Jones was not able to estimate damage to the garage or to the store last night, although the flames did not apparently reach the store itself.

No cars were parked in the garage when it caught on fire. The blaze was substantially under control by 9 p.m.

ON NEGOTIATIONS Hearst To Make Statement Today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Randolph A. Hearst will break more than a week of silence in the kidnaping of his 20-year-old daughter with a televised statement today. He is expected to ask the Symbionese Liberation Army to resume negotiations for her release.

A spokesman for Hearst informed reporters outside his Hillsborough home yesterday that he "will make a statement about 10:30 or 11 o'clock" this morning.

Hearst, editor of the San Francisco Examiner and son of newspaper tycoon William Randolph Hearst, did not indicate what he would discuss.

However, he is expected to ask the S.L.A., which abducted Patricia Hearst from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4 to resume negotiations for her release.

The S.L.A. sent its last communique on Feb. 21 and warned that it would break off talks if its demands were not met.

Hearst announced the next day that the S.L.A. demands for another $4 million in free groceries for the needy — in addition to the $2 million food ransom he had already arranged — was "far beyond my financial capabilities." The Hearst Corp. then agreed to provide the money, but only after Patricia's release.

FOR WASHINGTON MEETING

Israel And Syria Agree To Provide Negotiators

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Israel and Syria reached agreement with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to send top-level negotiators to Washington this month for indirect talks on troop withdrawals, a high U.S. official said Saturday.

But the official, travelling with Kissinger on a whirlwind

In two previous visits to Riyadh Nov. 8 and Dec. 14, Kissinger found the bearded king firmly opposed to lifting the embargo.

Arab press commentators said they believed progress toward obtaining an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory still was not sufficient for the Arabs to lift the embargo.

Furthermore Saudi Arabia, the Arab world's largest oil producer and a prime mover in development of the Arab "oil weapon" during the 1973 Middle East war, is not alone able to decide on lifting the embargo, the commentators said.

This must be decided by the ministers of the 10-nation Organization of Arab Oil Exporting Countries (OAPEC), who are expected to meet later this month.

The senior American official said when Kissinger returned to Damascus with the Israeli ideas on military disengagement Friday, he feared there was a

"50-50 chance" his attempt to get talks started might break down.

Under the plan approved by Israeli and Syrian leaders, the two sides will shuttle negotiators to Washington to present their proposals to Kissinger. The official said an Israeli negotiator would travel to Washington before March 16.

He said the meetings in Washington might last two or three weeks.

If a chance of agreement develops, he said, the two sides would have to meet face-to-face, probably in the military committee set up by the Geneva Middle East peace conference.

The procedure was basically the same principle that Kissinger used to win the Egyptian-Israeli disengagement agreement, due to be completed March 5.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has made Syrian-Israeli disengagement an essential condition for resuming the Geneva conference.

It's Those Old Postal Blues Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It costs 10 cents instead of 8 to mail an ordinary letter today, and 13 cents instead of 11 for an airmail letter.

The new rates went into effect at midnight local daylight time Friday. The Postal Service says any letters mailed after that moment stamped at the old rate are being delivered on a "postage due" basis.

Postmaster General E. T. Klassen said costs are going up and Congress has told the Postal Service it must try to break even.

Klassen said the Postal Service wanted to increase the rates last Jan. 5 but the Cost of Living Council ordered a delay. Klassen said the council action "had nothing to do with inflation" and "in my opinion was politically motivated."

The new increases are the first since May, 1971.

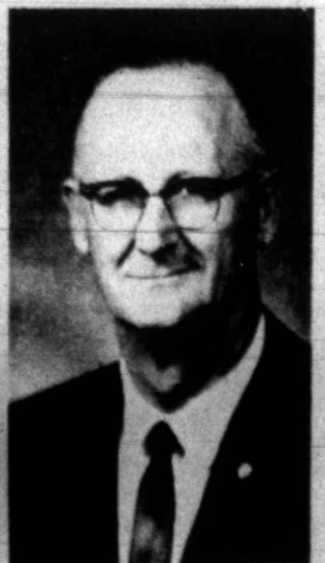

The rate for an ordinary letter was 2 cents per ounce from the 1880s to 1932, except for a brief interval during World War I when it was 3 cents.

City To Study Gas Rate Hike Proposal Again

City commissioners will meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday to consider second and final reading of an ordinance allowing Pioneer Natural Gas Co. to adjust its Pampa rates on a monthly basis instead of annual basis.

Gas company officials have stated the new rate, which is expected to take effect on March 6 billings, will increase the average monthly gas bill approximately $1.00 to $1.25 a year.

The legislation permits the company to adjust its rates up or down according to the rise or fall in the cost of gas production.

On first reading last Tuesday, the ordinance was approved by a 3 to 1 vote.

Other business on the Tuesday agenda will include a public hearing on the proposed removal of five abandoned buildings at 623 Roberts, 317 Perry and 534-36 Crawford.

Reports will be made by City Manager Mack Wofford on right-of-way purchase for the improvement of S. Cuyler from Brown to McCullough Sts. and the proposed program for replacement of 2-inch water distribution lines.

Commissioners will consider the investment of funds from the sale of Beatrice Food stock dedicated for retirement of some $800,000 of M.K. Brown Auditorium bonds.

Resident Held In Rape Case

A 22-year-old Pampa man was being held in Gray County jail for authorities from Tulsa, Okla., yesterday afternoon on a charge of second degree rape from the Oklahoma city.

Sheriff's deputy Shirley Nichols said the man, Terry Lee Branham, had waived extradition to Oklahoma but authorities had not arrived to pick him up yesterday afternoon.

Branham was arrested by Pampa police officers following a disturbance. His wife allegedly told officers about the warrant outstanding against Branham in Oklahoma. Bond was set at $5,000 in the case.

Youth Charged For Possession

A young Pampa man is free on $1,000 bond following his arrest for possession of marijuana Friday morning at a local recreation parlor.

City officers, acting on a tip, located Loil Glin Woodruff, Jr., 18, at the Big Six on W. Foster St. Reports said he then went to the police station of his own free will and there signed a consent to search form.

Police then reportedly searched the suspect's vehicle and found two baggies of suspected marijuana and five pipes.

Bond in the case was set and Woodruff made the bail Friday afternoon.

Choirs Perform For Kiwanis

The Boys and Girls Choirs of Pampa High School entertained Pampa Kiwanians at their Friday luncheon in First United Methodist Church.

Under the direction of John Woickowski, the choirs each sang numbers they will sing in Interscholastic League competition.

The program was concluded with two numbers by the combined choirs.

NO COMMITMENTS YET

Heath Seeking Liberals Support

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, clinging precariously to power despite his failure to win Thursday's general election, sought support Saturday from Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe. But both said afterward no commitments were made by either side.

The Prime Minister and the leader of the third-ranking Liberals met for 80 minutes at Heath's No. 10 Downing St. office, as Heath appealed to the Liberal party for an alliance to keep the Labor party out.

A statement from Heath's office said "they exchanged views on the current situation and on the urgent need for an administration which could carry on the business of government."

It said each agreed to report the other's views to members of their respective Conservative and Liberal parties "to see whether a basis exists for further discussions."

"No commitment was entered into on either side," the statement added.

Thorpe said he agreed to discuss "the matters that have arisen this afternoon" with other Liberal party leaders and the other 13 Liberal party members of parliament Monday.

"I repeat that there has been no agreement between us," Thorpe said. "Quite clearly it is in the interest of the country that some government should be formed. It should be one that will unite the nation on moderate policies. I represent 6 million people who voted for this kind of government."

Earlier, Heath held consultations with Lord Carrington and James Prior, chairman and deputy chairman of the Conservative party.

Final results for the 635 seats in the new House of Commons were 296 Conservatives, 301 seats for Labor, 14 for the Liberals.

The rest were divided among 7 Scottish Nationalists, 2 Welsh Nationalists, 11 Northern Ireland Protestant militants, one Northern Ireland Social Democratic and Labor Party, one Independent Labor, one Democratic Labor and the speaker who has no vote.

Even with Liberal support Heath still would fall short of an overall parliamentary majority. Political sources said he would have to seek some sort of deal with some of the smaller groups, too.

After a day of suspense and uncertainty, Heath drove to Buckingham Palace Friday evening and told Queen Elizabeth he had decided not to quit but would try to hang on with a minority government.

He reached the decision after the Labor Party, which has the largest number of seats, although not a majority in the new House of Commons, put in its bid to form a minority Labor government under party leader and former Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

But Conservative party officials said Heath acted constitutionally and within his rights in refusing to resign.

They argued that even if the Conservatives won fewer seats than Labor, they got nearly 250,000 more popular votes.

They argued that the combined Conservative and Liberal popular votes totalled about 18 million as against 11.6 million for Labor and that, therefore, there was no national mandate for a Labor government.

Sausage Dinner Planned By Knights Of Columbus

The 20th annual Knights of Columbus sausage dinner and supper will be served on Sunday, March 10.

Grand Knight Jerry Leger stated some 20 chairmen have been appointed by John Haesie and Hub Homer, co-chairmen, to plan and execute the various phases of another successful Polish Sausage dinner and supper.

At a meeting on Jan. 28th plans were finalized to make 1600 pounds of Polish sausage according to a closely guarded recipe, with several of the Knights mixing the special seasoning and overseeing the processing of the sausage from start to finish.

The sausage will be steamed and barbecued to serve, along with 400 pounds of potato salad and 350 pounds of cole slaw, both made by a recipe that has been used for years.

Willie Rapstine, chairman of the cooks, and an experienced crew of cooks will also prepare 20 gallons of apricots and 100 pounds of beans.

Women of the parish will provide home-made pies.

On Saturday, March 9, and Sunday, March 10, businessmen, farmers, painters, carpenters and others will become ticket takers, table waiters, cooks, dishwashers, pie cutters and sausage sellers in order to serve a sausage dinner and supper in a friendly atmosphere to many from the surrounding area.

The dinner and supper will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the Columbus Club Hall, at the corner of Ward and Buckler Sts., conducted by members of Frank Keim Council No. 2767.

Prices for the tickets are: adults, $2.75; children, $1.50 and under six, free. Advance tickets are available from any member of the Knights of Columbus Sausage cooked and uncooked will also be on sale to take out.

NBC-TV and Disney Productions will join forces to present four all-Disney "Saturday Night at the Movies" programs, encompassing NBC's entire prime-time schedule on four nights during the next two years.

Lacy Seeking School Board Trustee Post

The fourth candidate for one of two seats to be filled at the April 6 school board election entered the race during the weekend.

He is Charles C. Lacy, a Cabot Corp. instrument mechanic. Lacy is a former director of the Jaycees and currently a Webelo Scout leader.

Three others already have filed in the school board contest. They are Bill Arrington, rancher and oil man; Sam Anderson, shipping supervisor for Cabot Corp.; and Mrs. Richard Stowers, recently appointed to the board and now seeking election to a 3-year term.

The deadline for filing is Wednesday, March 6. Lacy said he is pleased with a majority of things in the schools but feels the people would like some changes. Among his goals, Lacy stated, would be a better sports program for girls and better distribution of funds among the various school departments.

Lacy resides at 2122 Mary Ellen with his wife, Rochelle, a high school drama teacher, and their children, Gail, Glenna and Greg.

In addition to electing two board trustees at the April 6 balloting, voters also will decide whether the board shall be increased to seven members instead of five.

Mother Earth News

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

Thanks to Euell Gibbons' TV commercials for a prepared breakfast cereal, his name has seemingly become the latest buzzword in this country. Comedians now tell jokes about Euell eating the Watergate tapes, articles on him pop up daily and his books are selling like mad.

But just who is Euell Gibbons anyway? Well, he's a pretty good fellow to become acquainted with in this age of rising prices, because Mr. Gibbons probably knows more about finding, preparing and eating "free" foraged foods than any other individual alive.

Euell is a big man (over six feet tall) with a hearty laugh and a ready sense of humor. He led a colorful life as a cowboy, Gibbons handles this topic with authority.

"I've been practicing foraging for over 50 years," he says. "I was first introduced to wild foods by my mother and maternal grandmother and I immediately started trying to learn everything I could about such edibles. I invented my first wild food recipe by pounding together hickory nuts and berries to make a candy bar when I was five years old."

That early training came in handy a few years later when the Gibbons family found themselves living in New Mexico on virtually no income at all. Young Euell and his mother kept the family alive through those hard times on the volunteer vegetables, fruits and wild game they searched out and prepared.

from free pickin' in New York City's Central Park, out of the bounty washed onto a tropical beach, from pothebs blooming in a Chicago vacant lot and from the wildings found during a "down east" canoe excursion. All were equally sumptuous. Once, Euell even gathered 25 varieties of volunteer edibles within 100 feet of a supermarket.

And why should anyone bother with foraged foods in the first place? Well, there's the nourishment of course. Did you know that wild strawberry leaves make a tea that's incredibly rich in vitamin C? Or that the common stinging nettle contains more protein than any domesticated leafy vegetable ever tested?

"Still, the way I see it, foraged fare has an even more important value. If you can get an individual to eat a wild food and find that he or she actually likes it, you're almost sure to help him or her develop a genuine interest in nature.

"You've let that person discover — on a personal basis — that he or she is really a part of nature. Until we accomplish that on a very broad scale, I don't think we're going to do much about saving the environment. The real value of foraging wild foods, then — at least to me — is educational aspect of the whole thing.

"Besides that," Euell grins, "it's just a lot of fun to find and crunch into one of nature's treats and know that you're enjoying a taste thrill that some of the wealthiest people in the world have never experienced."

"You don't have to be an 'expert' to begin foraging wild foods, according to Gibbons. "Just know the plant you intend to eat," he says. "It takes only about one minute to learn to positively identify, say, winter cress. After that, you can pick all the winter cress you want. Then you can learn a second wild food, and so on."

And, of course, although modest Euell Gibbons doesn't say so ... one of the best ways to teach yourself to identify and prepare those wild foods is by setting out into the field armed with one or more of his guidebooks. Or by catching Mr. Gibbons on one of his increasingly frequent TV appearances. Thanks to the wonders of modern communications, we can now all learn foraging "directly" from the acknowledged authority on the subject.

For an extensive interview with Euell Gibbons — in which he outlines additional wild food lore — send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed, long envelope to The Mother Earth News, in care of The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 176. Euell Gibbons.

As Gibbons rambled around the continent and other parts of the globe over the next several decades, he worked hard at adding to his storehouse of foraged food lore.

"I suppose this will sound pretty conceited," Euell said, "but I know more about the use of wild plants than any member of any one primitive tribe in this country ever knew. Not because I'm so smart, but for the simple reason that I have access to what they all learned."

"I've done practically no original research — primitive man did an extremely good job of learning what was edible and what was not — but I have compiled the knowledge that was available and now I use it." Use it he does! Gibbons has been known to assemble dinners

EUPELL GIBBONS

EUPELL GIBBONS CAN TEACH YOU TO FORAGE WILD FOODS farmer, hobo, alcoholic, carpenter, beachcomber and who - knows - what before finally settling — with his wife, Freda — in Pennsylvania.

Euell Gibbons has probably turned more people on to eating wild foods than any other living writer. His first book about foraged fare, "Stalking the Wild Asparagus," was (and continues to be) such a best seller that he's followed it with "Stalking the Blue-Eyed Scallop," "Stalking the Healthful Herbs," "Beachcomber's Handbook," "Stalking the Good Life," "Stalking the Far-Away Places" and "Feast on a Diabetic Diet." Most of his writing, as the titles suggest, is about food — especially wild food.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The technical strength of the market is measured by the fact that the daily advance-decline line has reached a new recovery high even though the popular averages remain below their early 1974 highs, says E.F. Hutton & Co. Any further advance of the Dow Jones Industrial average "would pave the way for an assault on the resistance in the 880 to 890 area where the 1973 year-end rally was halted," the firm continues. Although the market is somewhat overbought, "considerable buying power is still available and there is the potential for additional gains," it notes.

The bear market has reached bottom for most stocks since the great majority of issues have done their own damage over a period of years," according to Fraser Management Associates of Burlington, Vt. The Dow Jones Industrial average may dip to a new low, the firm says, but the broadly based averages indicate the market is not as bad as some fear. Although former glamor stocks may stage a recovery, it recommends other groups "that are in a better position to lead us out of the bear forest into the bull field."

The market's recent rebound was helped by sharply higher gold and silver prices and the strength of other commodities, says A.W. Zelomek Associates. "There is little doubt that the marked gain in inflation contributed to the latest more encouraging trend," the firm continues. It urges investors to maintain a long position in prime securities.

EPA Denies Impounding Texas Funds

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency has not yet impounded any antipollution funds intended for Texas, said Arthur W. Busch, regional administrator of the EPA.

But Busch met with Gov. Dolph Briscoe and other state officials for more than an hour last week to point out that the state can no longer qualify for the federal funds.

There had been reports that the federal agency had impounded $1.3 million in federal funds intended for the Texas Air Control Board because of a Texas suit contesting EPA transportation controls.

Busch told reporters after the meeting no funds are being withheld from Texas yet, and certainly not any because of the Texas legal action.

He said EPA grants to the air control board need to be reconsidered in view of an opinion by Attorney General John Hill that the air control board has no authority to enforce new EPA controls on indirect sources of air pollution.

Charles R. Barden, executive secretary of the air board, said the agency has received only $700,000 of an allotted $2 million in federal operating funds for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Hill said if any air board funds are withheld arbitrarily, he will file a second lawsuit against the federal agency.

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of "easy weight loss" while still eating almost as much as you want.

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or E-Protin "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

COUNTRY MUSIC

By PATRICK CARR

A few weeks ago in Nashville there was quite some audience at the Exit-In, the local hangout for pickers and stars alike. Waylon Jennings was there, as were Johnny Rodriguez, Kris Kristofferson, John Prine, Shel Silverstein, and other of the "progressive" Nashville crew too numerous to mention.

They all got up to do their bit, but it was a girl called Linda Hargrove who stole the show, earning thunderous applause from the distinguished company. And it's an understatement to say that she deserved it, because Linda Hargrove is one of the biggest talents to hit Nashville in a long, long time.

She's a thin, spare young lady who came to town from her native Tallahassee, where she's been playing and singing professionally with a variety of musical outfits — rock and roll bands, rhythm and blues combos, players of the British blues style — since she was 16.

She arrived in Nashville with a band which was recording seven of her songs. Oh yes, she writes songs, too.

She wrote songs for Sandy Posey, Jody Miller, Tanya Tucker, Tanya's hit, "What If We Were Running Out Of Love?" is a Linda Hargrove song. Then again, she also plays on sessions. That's how she's been making her money for the past year or so, working in the studios with all those revered male Nashville cats.

And she's an engineer. Nobody would be very surprised if all of a sudden she upped and started designing guitars or anything, for that matter.

Even though Linda is quite exceptionally talented, Nashville is notorious for being quite a town in which to gain recognition, and she could have gone on back to Tallahassee if she hadn't lucked out at the right moment and run into Billy Sherrill, Columbia's main man in Nashville. He was impressed, and it was he who placed her first songs.

Then she met Pete Drake, the holder of the King Steel Guitar crown, who has been producing people like Ringo Starr and George Harrison and running his own studio.

Pete took her under his wing, smoothed her introduction to the highly competitive world of session playing, and signed her to a management contract. Out of that came her first album, "Music Is Your Mistress" (Elektra 75063).

That album went relatively unnoticed by the public, but that wasn't Linda's fault. She wrote every one of the 12 songs, sang her heart out like precious few female country singers can, and filled it all out with some pretty high-style picking from the best sidemen Nashville has to offer — people like Grady Martin (guitar), Karl Himmel (drums), Hargrove's "Pig" Robbins (piano), Henry Strzelecki (bass), and of course Pete Drake himself on steel.

The album, produced by Pete Drake, will probably hang around until people begin to realize just how good this lady is.

It's pretty hard to hang a label on Linda Hargrove. Sure, she sings "country," but she seems just as comfortable with Gospel waltzers and rockabilly stompers, all of them delivered with a smooth, powerful low-register urgency fitting somewhere between Tracy Nelson and Linda Ronstadt.

Of all the cuts on the album, her version of "New York City Song" (previously recorded by Tanya Tucker) stands out. It's a beautiful song, and if there's any justice in this world it should end up as a country classic.

Linda is part of a new breed, that much is obvious. She's one of those youngsters who can't owe any allegiance to the dictates of what's "country" and what isn't, but somehow manage to produce country-style works as pure as you'd want them. She's one fine performer, picker, and writer, and she's going to go places fast.

BATTIN' AROUND

Government Actions Interfere With Profits

By C.R. BATTEN

"Our company objective — you might call it our contract with our stockholders — is to manage their company so as to produce the maximum profit consistent with maintaining maximum present worth. Any action or use of funds by management that is not directed toward that objective is fraud, pure and simple — but because he needs those young trees to make money.

The company does not preserve streams to satisfy Trout Unlimited, but "because a natural stream provides better fishing, and on our land, where we can control it, you pay to fish. We don't build quail guzzlers because we love wildlife, but because more quail means better hunting, and again, more money," Holes explained.

Please note, that at the beginning he said that the Company attempts to earn "maximum profit consistent with maintaining maximum present worth."

If present worth is to be maintained, then the productivity of the soil, the purity of the streams, and the wildlife habitat MUST be maintained or improved.

To some, such a cold-blooded policy may seem greedy and self-serving, but, Holes pointed out, "The fact is, that there is NO OTHER policy that would, in the long run, better serve the needs and desires of the public. In our scramble to maximize profits, we are providing society with those goods and services it is willing to pay for. We are fulfilling our search for profit and consumers are getting what they want."

"The greater the expectation of profit, the more wood will be grown and the more land use services will be offered to the public," said Holmes. "It therefore follows that any happening that increases the profitability of Tree Farming is in the general public interest and, conversely, any happening that reduces the profitability of Tree Farming is contrary to the public interest."

Turning to "responsibilities in meeting the public's environmental concerns," Holmes observed that "when we examine the term 'public concern,' we almost invariably find that we are involved in a situation where ONE segment of the public seeks to impose its will on ANOTHER segment of the public, usually at the expense of the second segment. In the political world, the segment with the most votes wins, and 'justice' is done in the 'public interest.'"

"This has all the moral justification of an armed robbery," he commented.

Noting that every presentation dealing with incentives for better forestry must have its suggested program for Government assistance, Holmes offered his own three-point government assistance program:

1. "Leave us alone ... Good forest management cannot be legislated, ... (and there ain't no such thing as a free lunch) ..."
2. "Stop messing up the operation of the free market with such nonsense as wage and price controls and log export quotas."
3. "Stop confiscating such a high percentage of Tree Farm income in the form of taxes ... Taxes reduce profitability, and profitability means more trees."

My hat is off to Bill Holmes. Just extend his remarks to any segment of land and natural resource use, and any part of our economy, and they apply just as well.

In one short talk, with humor and insight, he has said what I have been trying to say in the column for nigh on to four years.

Is anybody listening?

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Simon's memorial would have been superb. I'm sure Jesus would have approved it. But the local church frowned upon it. Yet Sunday School buses are the sign of a dynamic, modern church. Those without such buses are destined to decay. Test your own church accordingly!

CASE Z-566: Simon B., aged 35, was a handicapped man who was an inspiration to his neighbors.

"Dr. Crane," a friend informed me, "he never complained, though he had to spend more hours performing the same farm chores than a healthy man."

"And he was a faithful supporter of his church who contributed at least a tithe of his meager income."

"But he was killed in a tragic accident, so some of his friends wished to memorialize his sterling character."

"They decided Simon would be most appreciative of a donated bus, to haul kiddies to Sunday School on the Sabbath."

"When they approached some of the men in the little local church and suggested this plan, it didn't arouse enthusiasm."

"For the pillars of the church worried about who would drive the bus on Sunday morning to pick up the children."

"Yet that same church stresses the need for missionary activity. And half the children in the village go to no Sunday School at all!"

"Dr. Crane, you've said that a Sunday School bus is the mark of a dynamic, growing church."

"I've come to agree with you."

CHURCH BUS

Millions of Americans grumble at the idea of forcibly pulling both black and white kiddies out of their local public schools.

"It would demonstrate far more 'Horse Sense,' some parents protest, 'just to let the children stay in their neighborhood schools and get more competent teachers before them!'"

"Why force 300 kiddies to spend an extra 2 hours per day in school buses, when putting 10 competent teachers in their local school would do the job?"

"And meanwhile save millions of dollars in taxes?"

Well, this public school busing feud arouses much opposition from both the black and the white parents, plus the other local taxpayers.

But a Sunday School bus does not demand forced taxes!

And it doesn't uproot kiddies from their pals or home neighborhood.

Children also seem very favorable to such a Sunday bus.

When Mrs. Crane and I visit our daughter in a Chicago suburb, we accompany her to Sunday School in her car.

But the Sunday School bus arrives 10 minutes earlier and her 3 older children eagerly hop in that bus, instead of waiting to accompany us.

Yet they also travel 5 days per week to public school in taxpayer supported buses.

So they apparently aren't bored unduly by riding for 15 minutes in a church bus on Sunday.

Alas, Simon's church which was cool to the idea of a Sunday School bus, has dropped to only 75 each week in Sunday School.

Yet the average was 125 (and often hit 150) just 15 years ago.

The other local churches in the village also are dwindling.

But a new Community Bible Church out in the open country, uses buses to haul children from a radius of 10 miles around and now averages 185 on Sunday!

"I resent its buses coming into our town to take our children," snootily objected one housewife.

But the kiddies don't complain, and it is wise that SOMEBODY tries to offset TV by a little church indoctrination for 30 minutes each Sunday!

Many historians consider Sir George Cayley, a Yorkshire baronet, to have been the inventor of the modern airplane. Between 1804 and 1853 he established the basic configuration, in model gliders. In 1852-53 in the first man-carrying glider in history his coachman was flown successfully with locked controls.

Improvisation, Care Needed In Drilling Glass

By HERMAN BAUM
Dear House Doctor:

I would like to know how to drill holes in glass. What tools do I need?

ANSWER — Unfortunately, the tools you need are so difficult to obtain that it is easier to improvise as all amateurs do. The glass shops have access to special drills, some of which use industrial diamonds for the cutting edge, but you will probably never find one in a hardware store.

The method depends upon the size of hole that is required. If, for example, you are making lamp bases out of your excess supply of empty bottles, a small hole is needed for the lamp cord.

Larger holes require the use of a drill press and, since the largest chuck in common use is one-half inch, this is the largest hole that it is practical for you to drill unless you resort to the use of special devices.

You should understand that there is always some risk involved when a novice attempts to drill holes in glass.

If you really are drilling holes in liquor bottles, you have nothing to worry about, as the supply of raw material is endless, but have a second thought about things of real value.

The smallest holes require the use of a triangular file and a hand brace. You will need the use of a grinding wheel for cutting the blunt end of the file to a relatively flat three-sided point.

The angle of the three faces to the vertical should approximate that of the tip of a metal cutting twist drill. The cutting edges will be the intersections of the three faces, so be sure that these are sharp and not rounded.

The file is secured in the chuck of a hand brace and the brace is twirled with a very light pressure on the pressure handle. Use kerosene as a lubricant. The glass must remain cool. If it begins to heat, stop drilling until it cools. You will probably have to resharpen the drill at least once to cut a hole through a bottle.

A brass pipe is used as the cutting tool for larger holes. Select the size required and have one end cut square in a lathe. Cut or file four small notches in this end, and then secure the pipe in the chuck of a drill press. Use putty to make a dam around the spot where the hole is to be drilled and then place valve grinding compound inside the dam.

Set the drill for its lowest speed. Apply very little pressure to the pipe when it contacts the glass, and observe the precaution against overheating the glass, which is more apt to occur here than with the hand brace.

OUTPATIENTS' CLINIC
Z.U. — When you operate a humidifier and add moisture to the already damp air in your home, you can hardly complain when this moisture condenses and freezes on windows.

W.S.G. — Those small ceiling fans have permanently lubricated bearings. There is some mechanical trouble that is causing the noise. The fan must be dismantled to locate and correct the trouble.

M.G. — If you remove the lead paint with a chemical paint remover as you suggest, there will be no dust to contaminate the air.

RESURFACING CONCRETE
Dear House Doctor:

The floor in my basement is uneven and I would like to correct the condition by adding a half inch of sand-cement mix on top of it. Any suggestions on how to make the mortar stick to the concrete floor?

ANSWER — The new material should be not less than one inch thick so as to have proper strength. The mix should be composed of one part cement, 2 1/4 parts sand and 3 parts gravel.

If the floor is smooth, it should be roughened by chipping with a mason's hammer. Cover the concrete with a slurry of cement and water, and immediately place the fresh concrete over it.

CREAKING FLOOR
Dear House Doctor:

The floor in our living room creaks in certain areas when someone walks across it. What is the cause of this, and how do I stop it?

ANSWER — The usual cause of this trouble is that the top floor is not firmly nailed to the subfloor. When pressure is applied at these points, the boards rub together to produce the noise.

There are several ways to correct this trouble, all of which are simple. These are described in our illustrated leaflet C-24. A copy is available by sending 10 cents in coin to cover printing and handling costs and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to The House Doctor in care of the Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Please remember to place a stamp on the return envelope.

PLAN CONFUSION
Dear House Doctor:

About a year ago you published a plan for a workbench, and I would like to build one. However, there seems to be many discrepancies between the sizes of lumber you specify on the plan.

For example, the top is made of four 6-inch and one 4-inch board. According to my arithmetic, that makes the top width 28 inches, and not the 26 1/2 inches shown on the plan. Please clear up this confusion.

—E.E.D.

ANSWER — The confusion is caused by your inexperience with lumber. A 6-inch board is actually 5 1/2 inches wide, and a 4-inch board is 3 1/2 inches wide. Try this on your arithmetic.

CLOGGED DRAIN
Dear House Doctor:

Allow me to pass on to others an idea used by a friend to keep kitchen drains open. She simply turns on the hot water at the kitchen sink and allows it to run for a while. It melts away all the grease that causes the clog.

—Mrs. E.L.W.
ANSWER — Thanks for the suggestion, but with the current energy crisis, your friend should be ashamed to divulge her secret. She is wasting 25 or more gallons of very hot water to do a job that can be done by a small amount of drain cleaner and at a fraction of the cost.

Bob Price Assistant Planning 'Town Hall' Meetings Series

Congressman Bob Price is sending his district assistant, Gene Hanks, on a tour of communities throughout the 13th Congressional District to conduct non-partisan, open-to-the-public "Town Hall" meetings.

"Congressional business demands that I spend much of my time in Washington serving the people of the 13th District," Price commented, "but it is vital that I keep abreast of the concerns of the people in order to fully represent their views in the Congress."

"Since I am able to visit the many communities spread over the District less often than I would like, I am sending my assistant on tour to conduct "Town Hall" meetings where he will be able to hear the current views of the people. In turn, I am in contact with my assistant daily by telephone."

Price expressed the hope that many citizens who are interested in their federal government would attend the meetings conducted by Hanks.

Hanks will keep the following schedule of "Town Hall" meetings:

Monday March 4: 9 to 10 a.m., Lefors, Hilltop Cafe; 11 to 12:30, McLean, American National Bank; 1 to 3:30 p.m., Groom, State National Bank; and 4 to 5 p.m., White Deer, First Bank and Trust.

Tuesday, March 5: 9 to 10:30 a.m., Wheeler, Production Credit Association office; 11:30 to 2, Shamrock, Farmer's and Merchants Bank; and 3 to 5 p.m., Wellington, Community Center.

Wednesday, March 6: 9 to 11 a.m., Memphis, Fisher's Red River Agency office; Noon to 1 p.m., Turkey, Turkey High School; 2 to 3 p.m., Quitaque, First State Bank; and 3:30 to 4:30, Silverton, First State Bank.

Thursday, March 7: 9 to 11 a.m., Borger, City Hall; 11:15 to 12:15, Frank Phillips College, Student Center; 1:30 to 2:30, Fritch, Fritch State Bank; and 3:30 to 5 p.m., Panhandle, Carson County Courthouse, Commissioner's Courtroom.

Friday, March 8: 9 to 10 a.m., West Texas State University, Activity Center; Noon to 1:30 p.m., Canyon, 2nd New Annex, Commissioners Courtroom.

Constitutional Opinions Diverge

DALLAS — Seven out of ten Texas adults are aware that an effort is underway to rewrite the state's nearly hundred-year-old constitution, and six out of ten think this is a good thing. But there is divergent public opinion on specific proposals for the new document being hammered out now by the legislature, sitting at a constitutional convention in Austin.

Those and other findings from a statewide survey of the public have just been released by Belden Associates, Dallas-based market and opinion research firm, which conducted five hundred personal interviews with a representative sampling of persons 18 and older.

On six issues facing the convention, the sampling showed:

1. There is overwhelming sentiment for not increasing the power of the governor and for not allowing 18-year-olds to run for the legislature.
 2. There is majority approval, but not as lopsided as on the above questions, for requiring state judges to run for office without political party affiliation and for having them appointed, subject to a later popular election.
 3. There is a wide division of opinion on whether branch banking and the question of gambling should be covered in the constitution or by statutes enacted by the legislature.
- "These measurements were made in late January, after the constitutional convention had been in session for about two weeks," declared Joe Belden, president of Belden Associates. "The data were collected as part of another survey and have been released to the newspapers as a public service." The firm has been measuring Texas public opinion trends continuously since 1940.

Analysis of the results by various demographic characteristics of the respondents indicates minor differences by age or by the size of the place where the person lives. Education, however, makes a greater difference: the more schooling a person has the more he is likely to accept changes from the present constitution, especially in willingness to eliminate from the new document details on which the legislature could then pass laws. The present constitution contains more than 55,000 words.

The questions asked in the Belden survey, and the replies received, follow:

Wettest Year
HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong experienced its wettest year on record during 1973. Rainfall reached more than 124 inches, more than 40 per cent above the average.

The crown colony also felt the effects of nine typhoons and tropical storms during the year.

By FRED KARPIN

Some years ago, the late Helen Sobel, one of the greatest players the world has ever known, was playing a slam contract, and she had a choice of two lines of play. After some thought, she selected one of the lines and fulfilled the slam. Had she chosen the alternative line, she would have gone down.

At the conclusion of play, a mathematically inclined kibitzer told Helen that her line of play had only a 48 per cent chance of succeeding, while the line she had rejected offered a 52 per cent chance. Helen shrugged her shoulders and replied: "A good hunch is worth at least two per cent."

And so it goes, and so it will go: the correct out-of-context mathematically correct play is on occasion rejected because a "hunch" or a feeling, or something that has come up in the bidding or play lowers the abstract odds on what appears to be the right play. Such was the case in today's deal, in which our South declarer seemed to make an abnormal and unorthodox play. But, as will be observed, it was the winning play. The hand came up in a duplicate game.

Russia Attracts BIELEFELD. Germany (UPI) — West Germans not only consider the Soviet Union the most important trading partner among all East European countries, but also rate Russia their number one tourist attraction.

A survey conducted by the Emnid Institute for Sociology said 55 per cent of those questioned considered Russia West Germany's top trading partner. Twenty-two per cent said they wanted to spend their holidays in Russia if they had a choice of East European nations.

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television has discovered

women. I'd better explain that. It used to be that almost all the authority figures in video were men.

That meant behind the cameras as well as in front of them. Despite television's women stars, the home medium was essentially a man's world.

And though men still hold most of the cards in video, things are definitely changing. Once upon a time, for instance, you almost never saw glamorous women reporting serious news events on television.

Now there are quite a few such reporters, and it certainly makes the bad news a lot nicer. Production of programs was another video area in which women's names were virtually never heard or seen.

But now there are plenty of women's names turning up in the behind-the-scenes credits. We see women listed as writers much more than before. Every so often there is also a woman producer or director.

Woman TV Prexy?
And these breakthroughs are really just in their initial stages. In the old days, women work executives were all but unheard of. And there still aren't too many. But they are coming in in this area too.

The fact is, television might be a lot livelier and more up-to-date if modern women controlled more programming jobs at the networks.

I'm personally looking forward to the day when there is a woman network president. Television is trying to offer more contemporary views of women in its programming.

From Westerns to stories set in the present, women have more authoritative roles than before—though still not enough. But one problem is that they generally continue to reflect the values of a man's world—because video remains male-dominated.

290 Nominations Received For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Churchill Downs Saturday announced a record 290 nominations for the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby

Amarillo First Place In Tourney

Amarillo High, led by Kim Snook who was low girl for the day with 39, won the second annual Pampa High School Girls Golf Tournament with a nine-hole 186 Friday afternoon at Pampa Country Club.

The Harvesters tied for third with Brownfield and Palo Duro as all three shot 217. Tascosa finished second with 192. Borger sixth with 226. Dalhart seventh with 241 and Caprock eighth with 255.

Runner-up medalist was Palo Duro's Patty Brogdon with a 45. Debbie Thompson led Pampa by carding a 48. She was followed by Serena Shearer with 49, Gail Simon with 57 and Gisele Hudson with 63. Paula Simpson carded a 65 but the fifth highest score for each team was dropped.

In singles competition for Pampa were Linda Howard, 55; Sharon White, 61; Geryl Hills with 62 and Jeffie Suttle with 77. Pampa will next compete in the Amarillo High School Girls Golf Tournament Friday in Amarillo.

despite efforts to hold down the starting field by increasing both entry and starting fees.

The mile and a quarter $125,000 added classic for three-year-olds will be run Saturday, May 4.

Churchill Downs officials last fall increased the Derby entry fee from $2,500 to $4,000 and the starting fee from $1,500 to $3,500 in an effort to reduce the field and avoid running the Derby in two divisions. The fee for nominating a Derby horse remained at $100.

But the prestige of having a nominee in the centennial Derby apparently proved too much for the nation's horsemen. Downs officials said the 290 nominations are a world record for any three-year-old race.

No Super Horse
The fact that no "super" horse such as 1973's Triple

Crown winner Secretariat has developed this year probably helped swell the nominee list.

Meadow Stable of Maryland, winner of the last two Derbies, has three nominees carrying its blue and white colors this year in hope of making it three in a row. They are Capital Asset, Capito and Pet Theory.

Capital Asset is a half-brother to Secretariat and Capito is a half-brother to 1972 Derby winner Riva Ridge.

Florida's Harbor View Farm has the largest number of nominees with six, including Green Gambados, winner of the Fountain of Youth at Gulfstream last month.

Highly regarded by many hardboots is Protagonist, Elmdorf Farm's 1973 "Two-Year-Old of the Year," who makes his 1974 debut March 16 in the Bay Shore Stakes at Aqueduct.

Calumet Farm, near Lexington, Ky., which has fielded a record eight Derby champions, is among 10 stables with three nominees—including two of last year's best juveniles. They are Raise A Cup, Who Duzzit and Lothario.

Seth Hancock's Claiborne

Farm near Paris, Ky., where Secretariat is at stud, has Jünger, a Damascus colt who showed promise in Florida.

And John Olin nominated Cannonade, winner of five of 17 starts last season, including the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

He added $141,870 to his owner's bank account in 1973.

Two foreign breds—Bitache from Mexico and Sir Tristram from England, are among the nominees.

The first Derby, run in 1875 when the Downs was spanking new, was won by Aristides.

petition to revoke his three-year probation.

Sample, 36, was placed on probation last March 19 by U.S. District Court Judge Daniel H. Huyett III after he was convicted of cashing $7,400 in government checks stolen from the mails in 1971.

Huyett ruled Friday that the government had shown probable cause for a full hearing on a petition to revoke the probation. The government maintained that Sample accepted $4,500 in stolen U.S. Treasury checks from two men shortly after his sentencing.

Sample, who has spent the past two days in the detention center here, was returned there pending the hearing. Huyett denied a request by Sample's attorney, Frederick Herman, that his client be released on bond.

Judge Huyett said the testimony of Secret Service agent Gerald J. Gibson was a key factor in his decision to order the hearing. Gibson told the court Friday that Sample had accepted the stolen income tax refund checks with a promise to pay one-third of their face value when they cleared the banks.

Gibson testified the 17 refund drafts which were stolen coincided with checks deposited in a "fraudulent account" in a local bank under the name of Gregory Van Appline.

Sample, operator of a ticket agency, denied he ever took the checks from two men identified as Melvin "Skeeter" Grover and Clarence "Bonehead" Jones. He said he had only a passing acquaintance with the two, who were described as "dope addicts" by defense counsel.

Sample, who played football professionally with the Baltimore Colts and the New York Jets, also denied paying Grover $250 last March 22 as the first installment for the checks.

The three leagues offered are women's, men's and mixed.

Games will be played on Monday and Thursday nights. Those desiring additional information need to contact George Smith at the Youth Center after 4 p.m.

Foreman Facing Breach Suit

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPI) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman, facing a possible $2.5-million breach of contract suit involving ancillary rights to his fights, plans to break camp here this week and head for Caracas, Venezuela, site of his March 26 defense against Ken Norton.

KO, Inc., filed the suit against Foreman and is seeking an injunction to prohibit the champion from going ahead with his defense against Norton. The suit names Foreman, his trainer, Dick Sadler, Leroy Jackson, an associate, and three Foreman corporations.

KO, Inc., alleges it entered into a contract with Foreman and Sadler in January 1971 in which it was agreed KO, Inc., would have all ancillary rights stemming from any of Foreman's fights between 1971 and 1975.

Steve Bomse, an attorney for the champion, said Friday he doesn't think KO, Inc., has grounds for a suit.

"I really don't understand it," said Bomse. "I have seen the complaint. I have seen the contract. As far as we're concerned, the contract is unenforceable, if it is, in fact, a contract. We have some serious doubts that it is."

The champion refused comment on the suit and said Bomse will handle the matter. Instead, he talked about his title defense plans.

"I'm thinking," he said, "of breaking camp about March 5 and going straight to Caracas. That will give me three weeks to get used to the South American climate."

Tascosa leads the tourney with 600, including Friday's 301.

Wilson Leads FNB To Tournament Win

Mickey Wilson pumped in 22 points to lead his First National Bank team to a 77-58 victory over defending champion Spearman in the championship game of the Top O' Texas Independent Basketball Tournament Thursday night at the Pampa Youth Center.

Larry Reed and James Cooper each scored 14 for the runners-up.

Citizens Bank and Trust won third place in the tourney.

AMARILLO shot a 312 to earn a 621 total. Following the Sandies are Borger, 310 — 626; Caprock, 315 — 644; Pampa, 325 — 649; Amarillo "B," 666; Tascosa "B," 667; Palo Duro, 696; Borger "B," 701; Pampa "B," 723; Caprock "B," 728 and Palo Duro "B," 810.

Medalist so far is Tascosa's Dan Bentley who has a 74-70-144. Runner-up is Donnie Loerwals of Amarillo High with 74-75-149. Pampa's Wiley McIntire is in the 10th place thus far with 81-78-159.

Other Harvester scores are Randy Watson, 81-80-161; Scott White, 81-83-164; Mickey Lowe, 81-84-165 and Joel Hickey, 92-84-165. And 84 was dropped Friday since only the four best scores each round are included in the team's score.

"Again, the double bogeys hurt us," said Woldt, "because we had six double bogeys and one triple bogey. Our game on and around the greens is what's hurting us."

B-team scores Friday for Pampa were Randy Robertson, 89; Danny Koehler, 92; Mark Poik, 93; Tim Neslage, 98 and Bruce Hungerford, 98. Mike Lyle played in the singles competition for Pampa and carded a 106.

Pampa's other golfer is Richard Norwood, who did not make the trip to Amarillo.

The third round will be held Friday at Huber Country Club in Borger. It was originally scheduled for Pampa Country Club but the construction of a sprinkler system prohibits play there.

SERENA SHEARER of Pampa comes up short on a putt in the second annual Pampa High School Girls Invitational Golf Tournament, which was won by Tascosa Friday. Miss Shearer carded a 49 in the nine-hole tourney. "On our better scores, each girl had at least one bad hole," said Coach Tommy Lindsey, whose Harvesters tied for third. (Photo by Bill Kincaid)

Huntington Takes State

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Huntington Red Devils won their fourth state basketball championship in as many appearances in the state tournament Saturday when they took advantage of poor second half shooting by Snook's Blue Jays for a 41-39 decision in Class A.

Snook, which was making its ninth tournament appearance and fifth time in the finals, led 10-4 and 19-16 after the first two quarters, but then managed only seven of 28 field goal efforts in the second half to allow the Angelina County team to make its winning rally.

Neither team was very sharp from the floor. Huntington hitting only 15 of 45 shots for a 33.3 percentage and Snook 15 of 50 for 30 per cent.

Robert Barnes' 13 points and 11 rebounds led Huntington, while Ray Myers with 12 and Steve Thornton with 10 provided strong support. Ronnie Hejl's 15 points paced Snook.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you by B.F. Dorman

One of the most amazing teams in sports history was the Arvado, Wyoming High School basketball team a few years ago... No players ever sat on their bench during the playing of any game that season because they had only five boys on the whole squad with no substitutes... And despite going the whole year without any substitutes, they still won their way into the Wyoming state high school championship tournament.

Here's an oddity about NBA basketball player Bailey Howell! He made 1,621 points in the NBA in the 1966-67 season, and then, unbelievably, he made exactly 1,621 points again in the NBA in the 1967-68 season... What are the odds on that happening?

Here's an oddity from auto racing... Everybody thinks that having the pole position in an auto race is an advantage — but oddly enough, in all the years that the Indianapolis 500-mile race has been run, drivers who had the pole position won only eight times, or less than 15% of the time!

We have all sizes of MICHELIN TIRES. COME GET YOURS.

I bet you didn't know there's a safety bulb of steel inside the MICHELIN tire... It carries a warranty of 40,000 miles of tread wear (many owners get more).

Robinson Tops Southwest Conference UPI List Of All-League Cage Players

DALLAS (UPI) — The three teams that scrambled for the 1974 Southwest Conference basketball title provided all five players on this year UPI all-conference team and Texas' Larry Robinson climaxed a comeback season by being named the league's player of the year.

Leon Black, whose team pulled off as complete a reversal as possible after losing 11 of 12 non-conference games, was voted coach of the year by sports writers and broadcasters and Baylor freshman Gary McGuire was named newcomer of the year.

Guard Richard Little of Texas Tech and center Ira Terrell of SMU repeated from last year's all-conference team and they were joined by Robinson and Rick Bullock of Texas Tech on the forward line and Texas' Harry Larrabee in the back court. Terrell and Bullock are sophomores and the rest are seniors.

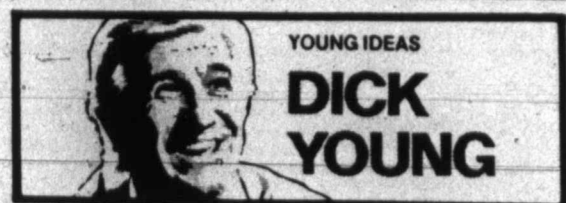

The front line on the second team was made up of Baylor's Charles McKinney, Arkansas' Dean Tolson and Texas Tech's William Johnson. On the outside were SMU's Zack Thiel and Baylor's Steve Dallas, who left the Bear squad with four games remaining in the season in an attempt to maintain his grade average with an eye towards law school.

Johnson, a junior, was the only underclassman on the second team.

Robinson made UPI's all-Southwest Conference team as a sophomore season before last, but has been plagued with knee problems ever since.

Robinson appeared to be favoring his knees early in the season during Texas' disastrous non-conference season, but once league play began he became the most dangerous scoring threat during the conference campaign and scored 30 points or more in four straight games.

Terrell, in making the all-conference team his first two years at SMU, now has a chance to become the first four-time all-conference basketball player in SWC history.

Hank Aaron... What's Going On?

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23 — Standing on the white sands of Reddington Beach and peering off into the Gulf of Mexico, his mind turgid as the calm waters, Bowie Kuhn ponders the Hank Aaron situation. It is the same deep, contemplative posture he assumes when asked by Mrs. Kuhn to go across the street for a quart of milk.

"I'll have to give it some thought," says Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of professional baseball.

"What is there to think about? What is there to ponder?"

"I don't want to speculate on the outcome before the Braves have a chance to put forward their best argument," says Bowie Kuhn.

Braves Ownership Started It All
What argument? The ownership of the Braves already has stated its position. That is what started the whole stink a week ago. Bill Bartholomay, sportsman-owner of the ballclub, announced his intention of holding Henry Aaron out of the opening series in Cincinnati, three games. He was not doing this to fill his ballpark for the home opener the next night, when Hank Aaron would be unleashed for his assault at Babe Ruth's patient ghost. Nor was Bartholomay doing this at the behest of NBC, which suddenly decided to televise that game nationally.

Ho, no. Bill Bartholomay was doing it for the people of Atlanta, the home fans who deserve the right to pay to see Hank Aaron hit homers No. 714 and 715 because they have been so loyal in their support. (See NL attendance figures which place Braves 11th among 12 teams.)

The audacity of Bill Bartholomay offends me. He should be working on Madison Avenue, writing ads for an oil company, telling how tough they have it, but they want you to know they are working for you.

The audacity of Bowie Kuhn offends me. He thinks all people are gullible fools. His tremendous ego leads him to believe he can get away with any statement, regardless of how absurd. When a situation cries out for strong action, he invariably comes out with weak words. "I have talked with Bill Bartholomay, and he assures me his team will do its very best to beat Cincinnati."

How, without Hank Aaron in the lineup?

Front-Office Stoges Rally-around

Equally amusing are the rally around response of some front-office stoges, men whose words are transparently defensive. "They are as honest as they can be," says Joe L. Brown, who equates honesty with the bottom line of an attendance sheet.

Peter Bavasi, starting what promises to be a bright career as a baseball executive in San Diego, says "I don't see why a great player like Aaron should not reserve it for the fans in Atlanta."

If young Bavasi doesn't see why not, then I'm afraid I can't help him. I refer him to the reaction of Ray Sadecki, who has a different set of values: "In 1969, I was with the Giants. We opened in Atlanta and they beat us three straight. We finished that season three lengths behind Atlanta. That's the year they won the division. If we had won two of those first three, we'd have been in there against the Mets in the playoffs. We spent the winter thinking about that. I'll never forget it. When do you win the pennant, the first day or the last day?"

Perhaps Bill Bartholomay and Bowie Kuhn would like to hear a few other random expressions of opinion by Mets players:

TOM SEAYER: "Henry should play if he's healthy. He has some responsibility to Atlanta, but his bigger responsibility to all baseball fans in the sense of a pennant race, and to his teammates."

TUG MCGRAW: "From a pitcher's standpoint, I hope he doesn't play all year."

YOGI BERRA: "I'd play him if I had him. The thing to do is win. Sure, we'd like to see him hit it in Atlanta, but that's not what really matters."

RUBE WALKER: "If we didn't win the first two games last year, we wouldn't have won the pennant."

JERRY KOOSMAN: "I have to pitch against him everytime I face him. Why should somebody else luck it out?"

JERRY GROTE: "All games are important. You can't give up on opening day. Just his being in the lineup is enough to start a rally. Most pitchers would probably walk him rather than give up the home run."

BUD HARRELSON: "If they really want to do it for the Braves' fans, let them play the games in Milwaukee."

ROY McMILLAN: "What if Atlanta loses by one game and looks back? They'll say, if only we had known, we'd have done it differently."

Rote Makes Rank Of 'Superstar' For Only A Few Days Of Work

DALLAS (UPI) — It is in some ways ironic Kyle Rote Jr., a young, pleasant looking lad who stars in a sport that is virtually unknown in the United States, will achieve his largest glory outside that sport.

Rote won $53,400 in the Superstars competition at Rotunda, Fla., last week, and upwards of 20 million people will watch his efforts when the American Broadcasting Company airs the program today. During Rote's year with the Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League, some 192,700 fans were witnesses.

The son of the former Southern Methodist University and New York Giants football star has said he hoped to make his way playing soccer, and perhaps help soccer make its way in the United States.

"Perhaps I can help give the sport an air of credibility," Rote said in a recent interview with UPI. "Simply because I am the son of Kyle Rote Sr. People can see the son of a football oriented family chose soccer."

Rote returned to Dallas Wednesday night and chose that particular topic, recognition, to comment upon in light of the Superstars.

"In our society, athletes have a tremendous amount of power, particularly with kids," he said. "I hope I can uphold my responsibility. What I did in the Superstars is not going to make me any better of a soccer player than I was before, but as far as drawing a crowd to the stadium, I think it will benefit."

Before the Superstars, Rote began an argument with Tornado officials on the "principal" of a higher salary, not because of the money but because of what higher pay would signify for professional soccer in the United States. He makes around $1,500 currently, and began negotiations in the neighborhood of $15,000.

He said the Superstars would have "a neutral effect on the negotiations. Right now, we are having an intellectual argument. My position with the Tornado has been one of principal rather than amount."

"I'm not going to ask any more than I was asking before, and I'm not going to ask any less."

Rote could become one of the most talented Americans to play the sport, but he doubts his name will become familiar in other parts of the world.

"I have no expectations of ever becoming a world class player," he said. "I didn't start playing soccer until I was 17. I missed that chance to learn the game when it is easiest to learn."

"I speak at clinics in the area and I find kids starting as young as three or four. The ball is almost as big as they are. And they can do things that I can't do. When they grow and mature, they're going to have an understanding of the game that I will never have."

However, Rote's domination of the Superstars event included domination of such household names as football's O.J. Simpson, baseball's Pete Rose, track's Bob Seagren and tennis's Stan Smith. Wednesday, he said he would start looking around for charities to divide some of his winnings with.

"As I've said before, I'll always be the same old jerk," he said. "I'm not interested in seeking any extravagant lifestyle. We'll end up paying a few bills, putting some of the money

Chris Looock Might Ruin A Few Egos

DALLAS (UPI) — Don't bother dredging up a Women's Lib banner for Christine Looock, but there is a letter jacket in the closet somewhere it might come in handy.

Miss Looock, 19, one of the best women divers in the country, is probably going to record a little history next week. But it is not history she is after. She simply wants to dive well.

The Southwest Conference holds its swimming and diving championships next week in Fayetteville, Ark., and Miss Looock will be competing for Southern Methodist University on both the one and three-meter boards.

She may not win either event, but if she places in the top six — and she certainly has the talent to do that — she will be the first female in the conference's history to become a letter person.

"I'm not much of a women's libber as such," said Miss Looock, who won high point honors in last year's women's AAU national diving championship. "I don't think it is smart to make enemies and alienate myself to certain people. It is just not smart politics to hop on one side of the question like that."

"I do think this is an important step, though, and I'm very glad women are taking part in conference diving. I hope it stirs up enough interest so that we can have separate women's teams."

Conference officials, going along with NCAA and governmental guidelines, altered the league bylaws last December to allow women to compete with men.

Soon, Texas A&M's Susan Johnston was diving in dual meets, as was Mary Sharpe at Rice University and Jan Boldt at Texas Christian University.

Miss Looock's appearance in the conference championship for SMU, which has won the league crown for the last 17 years, will be her first official competition for the Mustangs.

"Our diving coach (Bryan Robbins) wanted me to compete in some dual meets," she said. "To give me more experience and help me get used to the pressure."

"But our head coach (George McMillon) is of the old school. He didn't want to push SMU on the other schools. He was afraid that it might seem showy and arrogant (that SMU had a female diver who could defeat most of the guys around)."

"Then, when Rice and TCU took the step, he saw no reason why I shouldn't compete."

Parks And Wildlife News

By J.D. PEER

According to a recent news report, this is the driest it has been since 1911 in Texas.

The lack of water for irrigation, stock and private use has prompted some landowners to look to man made lakes or tanks. The construction of tanks has always been big business especially with government support for part of the cost.

The multiple use of ponds or tanks for fishing and hunting, along with the farm or ranch demands, are the goals that most landowners want.

Normally, the first few years after a tank is filled and stocked with fish, it is very productive. But, like larger lakes, these small watershed reservoirs soon become clogged with water vegetation, over populated with rough fish or are too murky or muddy for recreation.

Most fishermen who have access or own their own private pond or lakes are continually fighting the conditions mentioned such as muddy water and water weeds.

Several chemicals can be used for controlling aquatic vegetation. The most common enemy of the pondowner is algae; the most common controller of algae and chara plants is copper sulfate (bluestone). It is better to get help from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. personnel such as Ronnie L. Stapleton, extension biologist, Inland Fishery Research Lab., 4002 N. Chabourne, San Angelo Texas, 76901. Stapleton is available for management consultation of private lakes and streams.

The procedure for contacting Stapleton requires a written request by the landowner for inspection and for a lake survey of the owners' property. The landowner will then be contacted by the biologist and date and time set up for a meeting and discussion of problems concerning the lakes or tanks.

The management of small ponds covering from one to several hundred acres is a year-around job. Water, like land, can only support so many pounds of fish, whether they are bass or carp. The over stocking or continued stocking of lakes with a current over population of fish is a waste of time and money. It is more economical sometimes to completely kill the fish population in the lake and start over.

For more information about pond management, contact Stapleton or stop by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. office and pickup pamphlets on Pond Planning.

Business Today

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) —

The phonograph and recording industry appears to be moving rapidly towards sound that comes out of all four walls of the room.

Quadrasonic phonographs and records have been on the market a little more than two years and yet about one million sets of the expensive equipment are in homes. More than 250 FM radio stations are broadcasting quadrasonic sound, and 100 manufacturers representing 90 per cent of all audio production in the world are turning out the sets.

Wurlitzer soon will be marketing the first quadrasonic jukebox and a Columbia SQ recording by the Santana rock and roll group will be the first quadrasonic "Gold Record" — a disc with wholesale sales of more than $1 million — sometime this year.

All this causes Pierre Bourdain and Joseph Dash, executives of the CBS Record Group, to predict that quadrasonic sound will take over 70 to 80 per cent of the total market in 10 years. That market amounts now to $1.4 billion in the United States and $3.5 billion worldwide.

Stereo (two speaker) high-fidelity sound is upgraded to quadrasonic sound by adding two more speakers, additional amplification and a decoder to unscramble the four scrambled channels of sound on the disc and play them together properly.

The quadrasonic discs can be played on stereo sets and even on monaural hi-fi phonographs, but then you don't get sound coming from four directions.

Why are music lovers turning to this expensive equipment? Do the people who buy it really have the musical ear to appreciate it? Or is it the kind of status symbol buying that caused the hi-fi industry to grow so fast in the early 1960s?

Bourdain and Dash said some people buy quadrasonic equipment as a status symbol, but the real cause of its popularity is that Americans have become amazingly sound conscious. They also think some impetus comes from musical artists, both popular and classical, who insist on quadrasonic recording because they can do so much more with it, either with the voice or instruments.

That Americans have become remarkably sound conscious also is demonstrated by the growth of the profession of free lance recording producers, some of whom earn $200,000 to $300,000 by their studio wizardry. They utilize 14 to 16 track tapes and many unusual sound effects. Then they edit and reedit and splice them to get a perfect song disc out of a performer or a group whose actual talent and performance may be less than perfect. The more talented of these producers earn more than the performers.

Ellen Lawley Kretzmeier was born in Indian Territory in Oklahoma. She lived there until she was 16 years old then moved to Pampa and lived with a sister while attending school.

Roy Kretzmeier was born at Clay Center, Kan., moved to Pampa in 1922 and settled on a farm west of Pampa. In 1922 Pampa had dirt streets and board sidewalks, a population of 887, which was smaller than Miami, Tex., with a population of 935.

Later Roy and his brother, Stan, bought the farm equipment and went into farming on their own and their folks moved back to Kansas.

Roy met Ellen while driving a school bus for the Pampa School District. On Aug. 5, 1931 Roy and Ellen Kretzmeier and Carl and Cora Lee Baer were married in a Sunrise double wedding in the front yard of the Baer home, west of Pampa.

About one hundred people attended and were served a wedding breakfast after the wedding.

Roy and Ellen made their home on the farm west of Pampa and have lived there ever since. They have one son, Le Roy who is married and has two children.

Roy joined the Odd Fellow Lodge Feb. 28, 1928 in Manhattan, Kan., at the age of 20 and has held continuous membership for 46 years. He transferred to Pampa Lodge in 1930. Roy was Noble Grand for the Pampa Odd Fellows the fall term of 1934.

Ellen joined the Pampa Rebekah Lodge in 1936. She has been an active member since that time, holding all of the offices several times. She has served as Rebekah Degree team captain and on the Funeral Ceremony Team for several years, serving as Pampa Rebekah Noble Grand in the spring of 1941. Ellen served as President of The Panhandle Association in 1947.

Ellen helped institute the Pampa Theta Rho Girls Club and was an active member, helping with all their bus trips and went with them to all the State Assemblies.

Twentieth Century Club Presents Awareness Program

The Twentieth Century Club met recently in the home of the President, Mrs. Gene Steele. She opened the meeting by asking Mrs. David McGahey to lead the club members in the collect, and the Pledges of Allegiance to the American and Texas flags.

Mrs. Dick gave the treasurers report and told the members that the annual fashion show will take place the last Saturday in September. The money derived from this project goes for the Scholarship Fund.

The program was on "Awareness." Mrs. McGahey opened with a talk on "listening." She pointed out that very few of us use our ability to listen, to its greatest potential. The extent of our vocabulary increases our ability to listen. Subconscious beliefs also color our ability to listen and interpret.

Mrs. Fred Neslage spoke on the sense of "seeing" and "touching." She told the members of the talking books, the stand and magnifying glass that are available to the visually handicapped, at the Lovett Library. She also spoke of the Fragrance Garden in Amarillo. The flowers are at touch level, water flows over rocks, stimulating the sense of hearing, and the flowers are fragrant appealing to the sense of smell. It is an exhilarating experience for the sighted and more so for the visually handicapped.

Mrs. Tom Wilkinson's topic was "Taste and Smell."

She exhibited a number of articles that are used by the public to make them smell more pleasing. She also conducted a tasters test that illustrated the interplay of one sense upon another. She concluded with a poem "Noses," by Dr. Sues.

"Extrasensory Preception" was Mrs. Roy Braswell's topic of discussion. She stated that people born with the transcendent all five senses. ESP can be developed. There are many books on the subject. Russia has accepted ESP for the past 25 years. They hope to use it in their space program. Thought control via ESP can be a Pandora's box or Topsy depending upon the user.

The panel arrived at the conclusion that "The best way to know God is to love many things."

Refreshments were served to Mmes. Calvin Jones, Bob Andis, Jerry Bond, Roy Braswell, Frank Culberson, Loyd Hamilton, David McGahey, Ed Myatt, Fred Neslage, John Rankin, Rex Rose, Robert Sanford, C.E. Steele, Richard Stowers, Tom Wilkinson and Charles Pagan.

Civic Culture Members Study Bicentennial

Mrs. E. L. Anderson was hostess to the Civic Culture Club, Feb. 26, in her home, 1002 E. Francis. Mrs. A. D. Hills, opened the meeting by leading the Pledges to the Flags of the United States and Texas.

After the business meeting, Mrs. D. A. Rife, program chairman, presented Mrs. Frank Grantham with her program on the Bicentennial.

"The Bicentennial has started," Mrs. Grantham began. "Come July 4, 1976, these United States of America will be 200 years old. For all its shortcomings, we still have a pretty good country here! And now we have a grand opportunity to review the ideals of 1776, and consider their successes or failures. The Bicentennial emerges as an acceleration for renewed harmony and solidarity as we stand on the threshold of America's next 100 years."

Recognizing these potentials, the President of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission developed a triangular approach to planning, calling its program:

Heritage '76 - in which we recall our past, and place it in its historical perspective;

Festival U.S.A. - a nationwide opportunity to travel, celebrate and enrich our understanding of our country, and to extend a particular welcome to visitors from different parts of the U.S.A. and from abroad; and Horizons '76 - a challenge to every American acting individually and with others, to undertake at least one project which manifests the pride, the priorities and the hopes of this community as we enter our third century.

There won't be any massive World's Fair, but there will be innumerable "grass roots" projects involving the people and their communities, giving more meaningful celebration, reflecting the ideals and hopes of Americans. Every state has its own Bicentennial Commission, and has established regional commissions. We have one in our own region in which almost every city in the Panhandle is participating. Many communities have the ground plans made and are forging ahead for a memorable year that will make us proud of our Nation. Every citizen is urged to participate and enjoy to the fullest. Heritage '76, Festival U.S.A. and Horizons '76," she stated.

"May we stand by the Republic with courage and goodwill, and under God's light serve the common goal and the common effort even at the cost of ease, fortune or life itself," she concluded.

The Miracle at Pentecost
Topic For Varietas Club

Mrs. Aubrey Sprawls presented the program for Varietas Study Club on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Thomas. Mrs. Clyde Ellis, club president, was in charge of the meeting.

The program theme was "Visual and Performing Arts" and was centered on Pentecost, carrying the Bible quotation, "And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing, mighty wind." Mrs. W. D. Burden, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Sprawls' topic was "The Miracle at Pentecost" and concerned the famous painting of that name, depicting the conversion of 3000 people by Jesus' disciples on that day, as related in the second chapter of Acts. The speaker told the Bible story and then showed photographs of the painting which hangs in a specially designed building in Dallas, exhibited in a three-dimensional setting.

She said, "This great painting is the work of Torger G. Thompson, a distinguished Dallas artist, who spent many years in research, in sketching, and in the completion of a 'pilot' 124 feet long and 20 feet high. It is the center of a complete presentation in sound and light and narration; it shows not only the disciples but also the other characters in the New Testament records who had been personally touched by Jesus in His ministry."

Mrs. Sprawls described the program presented daily in the Miracle of Pentecost Building, which seats 250 people. She concluded her talk by saying, "The story of God's second greatest gift told in the form of a major painting is a magnificent experience for all who have the opportunity to see it. The events of Pentecost come alive as the audience seems to become a part of the painting."

Present at the club meeting were one guest, Mrs. Crystal Durham of Mangum, Okla.; Miss Anna Pierce; and Mmes. W. A. Bohot, W. H. Burden, F. A. Cary, H. Price Dossier, Clyde Ellis, S. C. Evans, J. E. Gibson, Lee Harrah, Rue Hestand, J. E. Kirchner, R. W. Lane, L. B. Penick, J. R. Spearman, Aubrey Sprawls, Ralph Thomas, and Sherman White.

National Nutrition Week
Will Be Observed March 3-9

"Nutrition Saves" is the message Panhandle dietitians and nutritionists are emphasizing during the second annual National Nutrition Week, March 3-9.

"With ever increasing food costs and changing food patterns, we think Nutrition Saves is an important and timely message for everyone," Wilma Hayter, Registered Dietitian, Highland General Hospital said.

Proper nutrition saves not only dollars spent on the weekly food budget, but also saves and enhances good health. Daily food intake, including snacks, should be built around the Basic Four food groups — milk, meat and fish, fruits and vegetables and enriched or whole-grain breads and cereals.

National Nutrition Week is sponsored by the American Dietetic Association, Texas Dietetic Association and the Panhandle Dietetic Association.

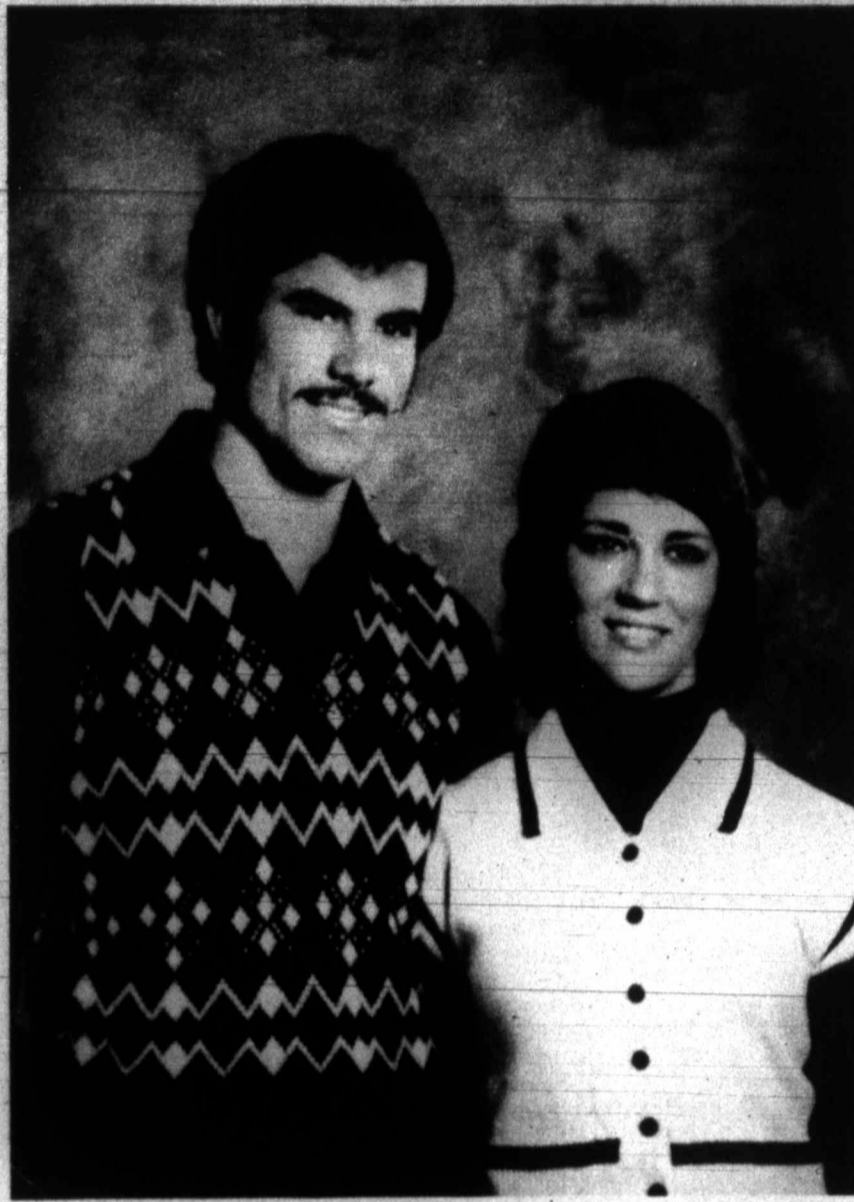

"We hope people will remember the importance of sound nutrition not only during this week, but all year long. Sound nutrition must become part of everyone's life style," Mrs. Hayter added.

Don't share your bed with your ex-husband

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband and I are dating again. We may get married again, but not right away. (He has to make good a few promises first.)

We have two children, ages 8 and 11, who live with me. They know their father and I have been divorced for over a year and in all that time I have conducted myself like an unmarried woman. I have dated other men, but I have never allowed any man, [including my ex-husband] to spend the night here.

My ex has asked if he could stay overnight when he takes me out. It would save him driving about 20 miles because his place of work is near my home, and he lives on the other side of town. What do you think?

It makes sense with the gas shortage. DOTTY

DEAR DOTTY: It's okay—as long as you don't have a "bed shortage," too!

DEAR ABBY: I was all set to have a face-lift by a reputable plastic surgeon when he asked me if my husband knew about it. When I told him I had not discussed it with my husband because I didn't want any hassles over it, the doctor told me he wouldn't do it without my husband's approval!

Abby, it's MY face, and my money, and I am 49 years old, so why should I need my husband's approval?

Now, can you tell me why a doctor would take this ridiculous attitude? FLABBERGASTED IN PHOENIX

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Your doctor probably has "survival" (for himself) in mind, and I don't blame him. You told the doctor you didn't even discuss it with your husband because you were afraid he'd object, so the doctor fears if he performs the surgery, your husband may come after him with a deadly weapon, shouting, "What have you done to my wife? I liked her face the way it was!"

DEAR ABBY: Earl and I have four wonderful children and a good marriage. Or we DID have, until a few months ago. Then a young woman [I'll call Vera] joined his organization, and started confiding her marital problems to him. [He repeats them to me.] All Vera's problems seem to be about her sex life with her husband. Earl says it's good for her to "unload" on someone.

Abby, it upsets me to have Earl tell me these things, and I am beginning to wonder why a woman should tell such intimate things to a man she hardly knows. Or do you think maybe they know each other better than Earl lets on?

Should I tell Earl I don't care to hear any more about Vera's sex life? I don't want to drive him away from me. We've always had such an honest and open relationship. TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Vera should discuss her marital problems with a professional counselor, and Earl should tell her to. Unloading her problems may be good for Vera. But when Vera unloads on Earl, it's bad for your marriage.

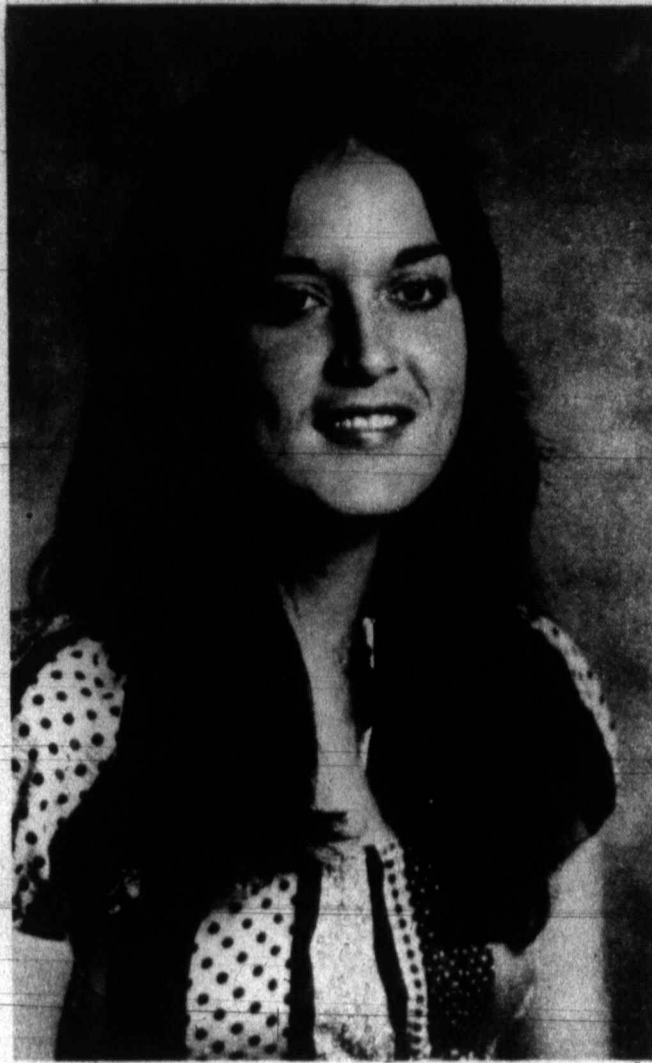

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and my fiance and I agree that we don't want any children or even young teen-agers there. Would it be okay to put, "No children under 18 admitted" on the invitations? PAT AND GLO

DEAR P AND G: No. It sounds like you're sending out invitations to an X-rated movie.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 122 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Mulanax-Snow

Miss Starla Shane Mulanax and John W. Snow have set 7 p.m., March 8 in Lamar Full Gospel Church as their upcoming wedding date. Making the announcement are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Mulanax, 1325 Duncan. The prospective bridegroom is the son of T.D. Snow, 1144 S. Faulkner. Both attended Pampa High School and the bride-elect is employed by Highland General Hospital. Her fiance is employed by Shook Tire Co.

 Visit any campus — high school or college. You will see that we're living in the blue denim generation.

Denim was developed in the Middle Ages in Nimes, France. It was called serge de Nimes—cloth of Nimes. That name was Americanized. The Denim Council says so.

Guess how many bales of cotton are used domestically in the making of denim. Some 673,000 bales. That figure is for 1972. It is up from 348,000 bales in 1968.

The demand for denim is making things rosy for cotton farmers. In 1968, the cotton farmers got $38.3 million from cotton for denim. In 1972 they got $87.5 million for cotton gone to denim making.

Lesson of Watergate
 —AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Ralph Yarborough, former Democratic senator from Texas, says the one great lesson of Watergate is that there is a danger in putting too much power in the hands of the executive branch. "The great weakness is the weakness of the legislative branch and the argument about the weak executive are people that don't want to strengthen the co-equal branch, the legislature, elected directly by the people," Yarborough said.

JANE LONG HD CLUB
 The Jane Long Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday, Feb. 26, in the Courthouse Annex, with Mrs. Karl Parks hostess.

The meeting was opened with club prayer. Roll call was answered with "One goal I have in life." The door prize was won by Mrs. Larry Holmes. The program was given by Mrs. Neil Fulton on how to make an owl shaped note pad holder.

Members present were Mmes. Paul Graham, Rusty Williams, Jerry Reagan, Bill Gillis, Glen Knight, Larry Holmes, Karl Parks, Neil Fulton, Willard Taylor and O.B. Elkins.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, March 12 and will be followed by a covered dish luncheon. Mrs. O.B. Elkins will be hostess and Mrs. Larry Holmes will present the program on how to make and decorate sugar molded Easter eggs.

John Raitt Will Star As King Arthur In Musical

The wondrous delights and romantic adventures of King Arthur and his knights is the subject of John Raitt Productions' presentation of "Camelot," the lavish musical hit by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe. This musical comedy by the creators of "My Fair Lady" is scheduled for Saturday, April 6 at 8 p.m. in the M. K. Brown Memorial Auditorium.

Tickets for the musical, sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, are priced at $7.50 for adults and $4 for students.

John Raitt (King Arthur) will star as the medieval king who gathered the most stalwart Knights of ancient England about his fabled Round Table, but in the book that Lerner fashioned from T.H. White's best-selling novel, "The Once and Future King," he will be very much occupied with his sprightly and beautiful Queen Guenevere, to be portrayed by Jolene Podor.

This Round Table harbors a very famous triangle, at the third corner of which stands that most noble of knights and dashing of men, Sir Lancelot, played by William Covington, whose song, "If Ever I Would Leave You" thrilled many a heart during its long tenure high on the hit parade lists.

Christopher Hewitt will direct "Camelot" and marshal all the musical elements of the production. The settings of the highways and byways, jousting fields and throne rooms of the towered Camelot where the crested knights cavorted will be designed by Donald Padgett, while the costumes will be created by Jeffrey Moss. Richard Natkowski will be in charge of choreography and the musicals accompaniment will be provided by the "Camelot" Orchestra under the direction of Boyd Staplin.

A sugar mill is one of the buildings on the campus of Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

The Rev. Nat Lunsford officiated for the ceremony before antique white candelholders surrounded with pale blue and orchid flower rings and white tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of orchid silk styled with orchid chiffon sleeves and matching slippers. She wore an orchid veil and carried a pale blue and orchid bouquet of camellias.

Mrs. Larry Mitchell of Amarillo was matron of honor wearing a pale blue formal length dress and Miss Sherry Elliott of Pampa, was maid of honor, wearing a formal length white and blue floral designed gown.

Douglas Burks, brother of the bride, Amarillo, lighted the candles.

Danny Whitley, Pampa, served as best man.

The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and was decorated with white roses. Mrs. Larry Mitchell served cake and Sherry Elliott assisted at the punch service. Mrs. David Burks registered guests.

Household Hints

Updated Press International
Dirty furnace filters increase energy requirements. Watt-watchers suggest filters be checked once a month during the heating season.

If your furnace is more than five years old, it's energy-saving to have it inspected. It could be keeping you comfortable but using too much energy in the process.

Everytime an outside door is opened during winter, heat escapes. To save energy have the family use just one door.

Changing your winter thermostat setting back and forth a lot during the daytime wastes fuel.

Use the kind of dishwasher detergent recommended by the manufacturer of the appliance.

At an electric range, always remember: you can save energy by using the lowest heat setting that will do the job.

Before opening the refrigerator door, know what you're looking for. Standing there with the door wide open runs up the electric bill and wastes lots of energy.

The trick to conserving energy with your refrigerator-freezer is in remembering one thing: it doesn't cool by blowing cold air in. It cools by taking heated air out. Opening the refrigerator door as few times as possible keeps heated air from getting inside.

When possible pay cash for your purchases. Or at least make as large a down payment as possible. You will save by not paying credit charges on the whole amount.

FIRST BAPTIST WOMEN
The Jackie Shaw Bible Study Group met Wednesday, Feb. 27, at 9:30 a.m., in the home of Mrs. Jerry Allen, 2517 Duncan.

Mrs. John Glover led the "Call to Prayer" and Mrs. Neal Stovall led the opening prayer.

The chairman of the group, Mrs. Ed Langford, was in charge of the meeting. She announced that next week, March 3-10, is the Week of Prayer for home missions. Instead of meeting at the church each day, as in the past, the prayer meetings and studies will be in various homes on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. These meetings will be at 10 a.m. on these mornings. On Wednesday, the groups are urged to attend a salad luncheon at the church at 12 noon and the prayer meeting and study will follow at 12:45 p.m.

She also reminded the group of the upcoming revival to be March 10-17. The members were urged to help prepare for the annual banquet to honor all graduating seniors.

The group gave donations to go to the Woody Northcutt family who serve as missionaries in South Dakota.

The Bible lesson from the New Testament was given by Mrs. Glover.

One visitor, Mrs. Jerry Wilson, and one new member Mrs. Joseph Stewart were welcomed.

Members attending included Mmes. DeWayne Barrett, David Hutto, Jewell Snider, Glover, Stovall, Langford and Allen.

The Tale Of A Whale

Some say that this country is going to Hell. Although there's no doubt that we are going through perilous times, we don't believe that for a minute. If we did, we'd close up shop and go off and stick our head under a rock in a "Galt's Gulch" somewhere.

One of the reasons for our optimism about the future are the youth of the land who, in increasing numbers, and in spite of attempts to regiment their minds, are doing some pretty sharp thinking these days.

As an example coming across our desk recently, is a statement put together by the student staff of Campus Studies Institute Division, World Research, Inc., San Diego, California. Entitled "Let's Get One Thing Straight," here it is:

"In no way are we condoning the rape of the earth, or using the energy shortage as an excuse for relaxing environmental concerns.

"Because there are nonpolluting sources of energy, such as solar and geothermal, these sources should be developed, for no matter how frantically we search for more oil now, ultimately it will be gone.

"Judging from the historical record of government intervention in the energy business, we prefer to place our chips on free entrepreneurs in a free market.

"Judging from the historical record of government intervention in the energy business, we prefer to place our chips on free entrepreneurs in a free market.

"These entrepreneurs may or may not be the existing oil, gas and power companies. They will be individuals who recognize that fossil fuel supplies are limited and will eventually be priced out of the market.

"So we are not defending or condemning any corporation or individual. We are, however, attempting to communicate a preference for a system which history tells us is most likely to provide new and cleaner sources of energy in the shortest possible time and at the lowest possible cost... and most important of all, provide the best chance for man to be free."

How's that for clear, uncluttered thinking? But there was more. Accompanying the mailing sent out by World Research president Theodore B. Loeffler was a piece, presumably also formulated by the student staff, which goes to the heart of the so-called energy crisis. There is, in reality, no true shortage of energy. There IS a shortage of freedom to develop the energy resources which the earth has in inexhaustible quantities. Entitled "The Tale of a Whale," the text of the piece follows:

"About a century ago, oil came from whales.

"As the demand for whale oil in an every more populous and industrialized country rose, the supply of whales shrank. Conservationists were rightly concerned about the future of the whale, and whalers were rightly concerned about the future of their business. The diminishing supply, coupled with the increasing demand, kept boosting the price of whale oil. Rather than setting a ceiling on the price of oil, taxing it, or rationing it, the price was allowed to rise — going from $1.43 per gallon in 1823 to $2.55 per gallon by 1866.

"The high price of whale oil had two effects. First, it prompted the consumer (in his own self interest) to conserve what supply there was. Second, it provided incentive to invest in an entirely new, and as yet undeveloped industry, that of petroleum.

"Petroleum was first taken from the ground in 1859, but not until the whale oil crisis reached its peak did it become profitable to undertake mass-scale drilling. Once the drilling operations were economically feasible, the petroleum industry began to thrive in the freedom of a relatively uncontrolled market. By 1867 kerosene outdid whale oil and the whale oil prices tumbled. Whale oil lamps became obsolete, and the nation entered a new era of modern fuel.

"A lot has changed since 1867. The last hundred years or so have seen the most rapid technological advance in this history of man. But just as whale oil priced itself out of the market and opened the way for a superior fuel, the same could happen to petroleum.

"Why not move ahead through the proven dynamics of free-market competition to the development of cleaner and virtually unlimited sources of energy — such as solar and geothermal? The need and the technological opportunities have never been greater. In the meantime, why discourage progress by permitting the stagnation created by bureaucratic controls?"

All of which goes to show, also, how easy it is to "write" an editorial... when you get a little help.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON 'Inoperative' Statements Hit Back At Nixon's Press Chief

By CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON — White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has run into trouble before the Watergate grand jury and more trouble with the House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings.

The key question before both forums involved identification of the source and authority for Ziegler's various false pronouncements on Watergate that were such an essential part of the early conspiracy to hide the White House involvement in the affair.

If Ziegler had personal knowledge that the statements he made were false or inaccurate, he was expected to be indictable along with John W. Dean III and others who have admitted involvement in carrying out the obstruction of justice.

But, if Ziegler was only an unknowing puppet of other White House figures, he can absolve himself of criminal responsibility by identifying the person or persons who gave him his orders and relating the circumstances under which he relayed the falsehoods through the White House press office.

Ziegler learned that the federal grand jury and Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski would not be satisfied with his famous public explanation that all White House statements on Watergate prior to mid-April, 1973, were "inoperative."

Such public relations gimmickry to avoid specific admissions of error may permit the Nixon White House to keep the press corps at bay. But it does not answer many relevant questions on the responsibility for the statements that misled the press and the public on criminal matters involving key White House personnel.

It is one thing for Ziegler to characterize the break-in at Democratic headquarters as a "third-rate burglary" not worthy of White House comment if he was totally unaware of the activities of Dean, Jeb S. Magruder, Gordon Strachan and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

Such actions could be a criminal act if he had knowledge that Nixon political money had financed the crimes.

Investigators and prosecutors find it difficult to believe that the former Disneyland guide would be permitted to construct a White House position on his own in a political year or that the 34-year-old advertising executive would forget who gave him his orders.

This is the same Ron Ziegler who boasted to this reporter in October, 1972, that he was no longer a puppet, but had become a policy maker.

"Things aren't like they were in 1969 and 1970," Ziegler said. "I am now consulted on policy and really know what is going on."

That was in the period in the 1972 campaign when Ziegler was lambasting the media for stories linking political saboteur Donald Segretti to White House Appointment Secretary Dwight Chapin. Ziegler on Oct. 16, 1972, labeled these stories "hearsay, innuendo and guilty by association," denying Chapin had hired Segretti but declining to go beyond the general denials.

John Dean has since testified that Ziegler was present at a meeting a day before the press conference in which there was a detailed discussion of what the administration's public posture would be to avoid disclosure of the fact that Chapin arranged to hire Segretti for political sabotage work. In addition to himself and Ziegler, Dean said the White House meeting was attended by Special Assistant John D. Ehrlichman, Patrick Buchanan and Richard Moore.

A week later, Ziegler engaged in vociferous denials of stories naming White House Chief of Staff H. R. (Bob) Haldean as one of the Nixon associates who controlled a "secret" fund of at least $700,000, which was kept by Herbert W. Kalmbach, the President's personal lawyer.

Ziegler labeled the story "untrue" and characterized it as "character assassination" and "the shoddiest type of journalism."

Subsequently testimony by Kalmbach, Haldean and Dean confirmed the existence of the secret fund for political intelligence, the use made of the fund and the control Haldean exerted over these funds.

These Kalmbach funds were used to pay more than $400,000 to the seven men who were eventually convicted of the Watergate burglary. Another $35,000 went into payments to Segretti, who entered a plea of guilty to federal charges of conspiracy involving the distribution of false campaign literature involving Democratic candidates.

Chapin has been indicted for perjury and is awaiting trial on the four-count indictment for giving allegedly false testimony to the grand jury on his relations with Segretti.

False statements to the FBI by Egil (Bud) Krogh led that younger former White House lawyer to enter a plea of guilty to a one-count conspiracy charge involving his role in directing the burglary of the office of Dr. Daniel E. Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

It was also the threat of a perjury conviction in connection with grand jury testimony which convinced Jeb S. Magruder that his best course of action was a plea of guilty to a one-count conspiracy charge involving the planning of the Watergate break-in.

The White House Press Office has confirmed that Ziegler has been before the grand jury on three occasions, but says he has not hired a lawyer because he is not the target of the grand jury probe.

But, not being a part of the substantive crime does not relieve a witness of the responsibility to be truthful, as Chapin, Magruder, Krogh and Dean have learned in various ways.

Ziegler is confident that he is running no risk with the grand jury and the confidence is buoyed by his years of success in parrying the questions of the White House Press Corps.

The skill served him well in interviews with the Senate Watergate Committee staff in the early stages of the investigation.

But, the fact that Ziegler has been questioned three times by the grand jury indicates some dissatisfaction with his first answers and non-answers.

Inevitably, the House Judiciary Committee will have to make the same inquiries in its public sessions if it is to systematically explore the nature of President Nixon's responsibility for the torrent of falsehoods that poured from his press office.

When the House Judiciary Committee lawyers ask the questions in official investigation with Ziegler under oath, it won't be enough to say that all prior statements are "inoperative."

Editor Of The News

ALL WE know in the way of news to report in this column is what we hear from the City Hall Cat, School House Kitty, the mob or the underground.

Just four sources — and this first bit comes from the underground. It is suspected the undergrounder got most of his information from School House Kitty.

School House Kitty gets the blame because the City Hall Cat is not interested in school news and the mob couldn't care less about what's going on in the realm of education and educators. As for the underground — well, it will listen to anybody and come up with anything that's considered off-beat.

So, the undergrounder dishes out some lowdown that points toward the close friend of a school board member who he says has been soliciting another candidate to run for the board at that April 6 election.

Why would anyone be doing that? That is the first question the underground reporter was asked. He said School House Kitty claims it's because only three candidates had (at that time) announced intentions to run.

SO FAR, so good. Now then, if there are two posts to be filled on the school board and three people running for them — well, anybody knows two of the three are going to be elected.

But — which two? There's where the fly gets into the ointment. Well, let's say you are very much interested in one of the three candidates and don't care which one of the other two is elected.

Okay, the underground agent says if you can get a fourth candidate to enter — there's a good chance the three-way division in the vote for the other three will bring your candidate out as one of the two winners providing you get busy and herd a lot of people to the polls who promise to mark the ballot for your candidate.

That's the way it works. The underground reporter adds that he spent some time with his slide rule and has concluded School House Kitty is a pretty knowledgeable political figure — outer.

ALL THAT starts one to wondering why there is so much interest brewing in the April 6 school election.

If you put an ear to the ground, one of the things you will hear is that it all stems from that 3 to 2 vote on the school superintendent's contract and the pros and cons attached to it.

That definitely will be the issue when voters mark their ballots for school board candidates on Saturday, April 6, if you are to believe the scuttlebutt currently going the rounds.

It will be recalled that the 3-to-2 vote in favor of renewing the school superintendent's contract was the result of a motion by board member Warren Hasse, second by board member Mrs. Dick Stowers and the deciding "yes" vote by board president Bob Carmichael.

The "no" votes were cast by board members Paul Simmons and Curt Beck.

And that's why out there in voteland sides are being taken and folks are lining up in support of those who voted "yes" or those who voted "no."

There are some who say the April 6 balloting will be a vote of confidence or no confidence either way you look at it. Now, try and figure that out.

RIGHT ABOUT now we begin to wonder why all this Rearview Mirror space is being wasted on a school board election. Like one man told us — it doesn't make much difference who is elected because state and federal governments will tell 'em what they can do and can't do, anyway.

AND HERE we are — almost ready to bump into that crossword puzzle at the bottom of the page. (By the way, what is a 3-letter word for "joke"?)

Having been half-way serious so far, let's turn to something that has at least half a chuckle in it.

It's the tale of the empty envelope that came to us in the mail from the Texas lieutenant governor's office. Just an envelope. Nothing in it.

It was called to the attention of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's press secretary. He wrote back:

"Frankly you are the first to notice our neat way of saving paper by not including the news release. It's a good idea, but apparently ahead of its time."

"Enclosed you will find the release and in the future we will endeavor to ensure that your weekly missive is somewhat more informative."

SOTTO VOCE: County Judge Don Cain is not an acrobat. He did not flip backwards off that chamber luncheon platform on purpose. He just got too near the edge. And, for those wondering about it — he was not injured.

OUTRIDER Magazine Lets Nixon Haters Cut the President To Pieces

By GARRY WILLS

I have been lectured, for years now, with the message that Lefties have been picking on poor Nixon overmuch. I at last, and reluctantly, agree. Things have gone too far. A smartaleck Lefty magazine asks, tongue in cheek, what happened to Kohoutek, and answers: "Nixon probably erased it."

In the same magazine, Big Lefty Number One sneers at President Nixon's last State of the Union message: "The whole thing was phony." The speech, he says, "suffered from immodesty, hyperbole, and whitewash." Even his admirers had to wince at "The little flicking words and phrases that constantly mark his rhetoric."

Particular fun is made of "Mr. Nixon's addiction to first." He made three of those rote claims to primacy — the first such speech in twelve years to celebrate an achieved peace, the first to signal a full effort on the environment, the first to put energy first on the nation's agenda. The writer just adds that Nixon is "The first president to achieve in one year an inflation rate of 8.8 per cent."

Then comes the mandatory psychobistory: "Mr. Nixon flounders. His essentially private nature remains constantly at war with his public life. Reserved, indrawn, increasingly isolated, he tends to resist the open disclosure and the public leadership that might yet salvage his second term. Getting information from the White House is like pulling impacted teeth. Facts come out bit by bit. How many versions did we have on the property purchases? How many different figures were given us on the tax funds expended at Sap Clemente? How many statements on Watergate became, at a stroke, 'inoperative'? What was the purpose of the prolonged struggle over the presidential tapes? What is gained by an Operation Candor that reverts, in a matter of days, to Operation Reticence? We drift. Now Secretary Kissinger seems to have the wheel, and now Czar William Simon is on deck, but the captain sits brooding in his quarters."

The same magazine indulges in overkill. In the same issue (of March 1), Big Lefty Number Two also mucks about in the Nixon psyche: he is "a withdrawn, moody, introspective man who reveals in a pain that is often self-inflicted... who will make himself stay up all night before deciding on a vice presidential running mate, not so much because he is thereby better equipped to pick the right man, but because he likes to be able to say, 'I stayed up all night worrying about this one.'"

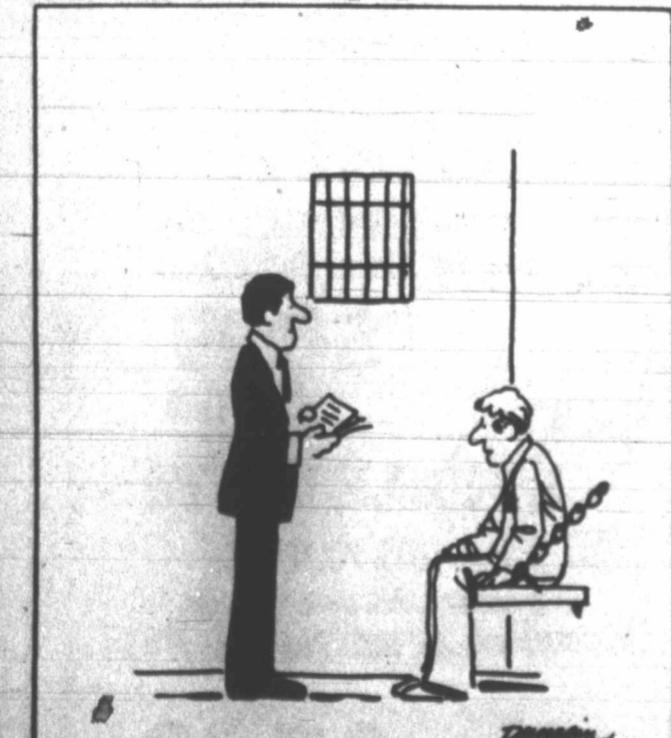

This description pegs Nixon as one who "feels that all the proper people in the East resent him because he did not go to an Ivy League college." Then the big plunge, predicting resignation as a result of Nixon's sado-masochism: "If, for the man on the make, power is an aphrodisiac, for the man facing the end, martyrdom is orgasmic. There is no other explanation for the smile on the face of St. Stephen as the archers bent their bows." I do not know who should feel more insulted, Mr. Nixon or St. Stephen — but here, I think, the Nixon-haters have gone too far.

This Big Lefty is known to consort with B.L. Number Three, who is predictably harsh on the President: "His biggest weakness has been the fact that he's lived his life by himself. He's never let his hair down to friends... I've never known a man to be such a loner in any field... And as a result he's not getting advice... And when he gets it, he doesn't listen to it."

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"WHY COULDN'T MY SUBORDINATE HAVE BEEN SENT IN THE MAIL SO I WOULD HAVE NEVER GOTTEN IT?"

H.L. Hunt Writes FREEDOM FOR WILDCATTERS

It is individual initiative that provides the answers for human problems and a great problem facing this nation today is finding sources of energy. Being an old oil wildcatter, I advocate that this breed of Americans be given the go-ahead to find untapped oil pools. Government would only complicate the shortage perils by taking over the oil industry. Government regulations already have crippled initiative to discover more oil to get it out of the ground and to distribute it to a nation whose energy thirsts grow daily.

It was a shortage of oil-producing whales in the 1800s that drove prices of oil up and led men to seek out other sources. Oil was found beneath the ground in Pennsylvania. This was the beginning of the search for the power that would oil and turn the wheels of the industrial revolution. It was the pioneering drive of thousands of men, including this writer, that led to the discovery of many great fields. The competition was fierce and that is why we found oil. Individuals, not government, operating under the impetus of profit-motive found the energy that kept the nation going forward.

There has been some clamor that the government nationalize the oil industry direct its operations and snuff out the profits that accrue to private industry which has labored long and hard to provide oil and gas. Such experiments in other nations have failed in the past. There is no reason to believe they would succeed in the U.S. Bureaucracy has strangled initiative in government itself. Free the wildcatters of government restraint and they will find the oil.

Tranquilizers Help Heart Beat

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote that "accelerated heart beat needn't cause worry." I am 80 years old and had palpitation for many years and doctors told me the same thing.

One day I got tired of that advice and asked my doctor if he had anything that would help me fight these spells, and if so I wanted it. He gave a prescription for half-grain phenobarbital tablets, a bottle of 100.

That was three years ago and I haven't taken them all, but I never have palpitation anymore. I put them by my bed every night. Please tell your patients about it. If I had not asked for help I'd still be having spells.

—Mrs. C.F.S.
Good for your doctor. He hit the right answer for you.

Palpitation, which worries so many people so much, in the vast majority of cases comes from two causes. The first is nervous tension, which includes the sheer tension of worrying about the spells. The other is overstimulation from too much smoking, coffee or other forms of caffeine, or drug stimulants.

There are other patients to whom I would not give it, and I refer to the pill-poppers who lean so heavily on medication that they don't know when to stop.

Some of them would take the phenobarb every night, and indeed some would start gradually taking two, or maybe more until they got themselves into a barbiturate habit, or even barbiturate poisoning.

It's a safe drug when used according to instructions, and as you have used it, but overuse is a possibility of which we must always remain aware.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At the onset of menses each month a lesion about the size of a silver dollar appears at the base of my spine, or sometimes on the left hip. Its itching and burning lasts four or five days. Is there any particular cause?

—Mrs. W.T.
It is pretty much impossible to diagnose skin eruptions or lesions without seeing them, so I would suggest having a dermatologist examine you when this occurs.

All I can give you is a guess: since it appears in pretty much the same place and the same time each month, I would suspect that it is a form of herpes simplex — kin to the "cold sores" that periodically bother some folks. I have seen lesions on thigh and buttocks that I guess would resemble yours.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a tubal pregnancy? A friend of mine had one and so did her sister. Is it hereditary?

—L.S.
For a pregnancy to occur, an ovum (egg) is released from an ovary and travels down one of the Fallopian tubes. If it encounters and unites with a male sperm, then pregnancy has begun.

Ordinarily the ovum continues down to the uterus, or gets there before meeting a sperm, and everything is fine. But if it lodges in the tube, that's a tubal pregnancy. As the fetus begins to grow, there is no space in the tube to permit fetal growth. The tube ruptures, so the tube containing the fetus has to be removed surgically to save the mother's life.

It is not hereditary.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy of his booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT
Nothing Happening On The Bus

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — "What happens on the bus on those bus-and-truck tours of a show like 'Guys and Dolls' and repeated her success in London. 'Equity won't let us miss sleeping in a hotel or motel, we never have to ride all night. Once I get in the hotel or motel, I sleep with one foot out the door, because I'm afraid I'll hold them up."

She replied with genuine disgust in her voice: "Nothing!"

And primly added, "But of course I'm a bride of two months anyway."

But this is a slice of Show Business that's different and yet vital. The actors go by bus, the stage sets go by truck, and never the twain shall miss, or there is no show tonight.

We travel in the daytime, then stay in a hotel or motel at night," said Vivian, who starred on Broadway in "Guys and Dolls" and repeated her success in London. "Equity won't let us miss sleeping in a hotel or motel, we never have to ride all night. Once I get in the hotel or motel, I sleep with one foot out the door, because I'm afraid I'll hold them up."

I put the cream on and eyelashes and lipstick and dark glasses and say "They're just going to have to love me like this." And I put on extra Shalimar

Vivian doesn't travel with quite the elegance of Elizabeth Taylor with 20 or 30 bags. One big suitcase and a couple of small ones are enough, and she's happy to say that the muscular guys in the cast always help her lug them.

I carry endless eyelashes, and cosmetics — you can't find them in some of the towns. False eyelashes are important because I have to cry a lot when I play the second daughter."

Vivian plays three daughters and the mother and is only off-stage during the intermission "when I'm being made up all over again and changing costume I play the mother of all time," she says. "I can hardly look at myself in the makeup of that woman turned soild."

Bus-crossing the country, it gets to be like a dance marathon assault on their stamina, as they sweep from Pennsylvania, Connecticut, West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, Oklahoma, Colorado, Wisconsin, and then a long jump to Hamilton, Ontario — taking a plane for once.

It's not my first tour," Vivian said. "That was 'Zorba.' I stopped in every Holiday Inn and Ramada Inn along the way. It's a very rough life and a lonely life. What is there to do? You have to love the play and I love this one. It doesn't have any frozen lines. George Furth's dialogue is so true. And the main thought is, 'As the twig is bent, so grows the tree.'"

On the two tours, Vivian's been in every major city, but once between tours when she stayed home in her East Side apartment, she met a man named Stuart Clark in her own building.

He lives on the 11th floor. I'm on the fifth."

We spent our honeymoon on the elevators."

That was just before Christmas. "I'd like to get him on the bus tour for a couple of days but I'm afraid it's not very romantic. I think I will get a little vacation soon and I want Stuart and I to take a little trip I would like to travel a little, to see a little of the country."

Executive Secretary ARC
We have a new Multimedia First Aid instructor. Bincente Martinez, who is working for Northern Natural Oil Co., Skellytown, Martinez will begin classes for Northern Natural Co. March 13-14 and 19-20. About 40 employees will take this course.

Mrs. Judy Livingston taught a class in Multimedia First Aid Saturday in the City Club Room. The Girl Scout Leaders and several community people took the course also. Watch for their names next week.

We have two new Hospital Volunteers who will work with the Red Cross serving juice, delivering flowers and cards to the patients in the hospital. They are Mrs. Barbara Skruggs, who will work with Mrs. Mike Roach on the second Monday morning, and Miss Chloe Darden, who will work with Miss Lelia Clifford on the second and third Friday mornings.

We are glad to have these fine people working with us.

Our sincere sympathy goes to Mrs. W.R. Campbell in the loss of her grandson this past week. Mrs. Campbell has been on the Red Cross Board and worked with the Red Cross for many years.

Also our sympathy to Mrs. Jess Hatcher in the loss of her husband. Mrs. Hatcher has been a Hospital Volunteer for many years and although she has not been active for the last three years, we know she remembers her work with our chapter.

We have received a letter from Sally A. Poland, chief, Dietetic Service at the VA Hospital in Amarillo, thanking the Austin School for the patriotic tray favors sent the patients for George Washington's birthday.

Miss Poland says, "The split log tray favors with the ax inserted in it that we examined closely had 'Love, Cindy Clark, 4th grade,' written on it."

All the logs were signed in this way except by a different student.

Miss Poland goes on to say, "The veterans were delighted to have personalized tray favors. The tray mats were especially original, as were the nut cups."

Mrs. Lois Marsh is the teacher sponsor for Austin School and we thank her and the children who made these tray favors.

Congratulations to Ted Gikas, who drove to Borger this week and took the Advanced FA class. We now have two instructors in the new updated standard FA. Ted Gikas and J.D. Ray, and one updated advanced instructor, Ted.

A SPECIAL NOTE: Norman (Sandy) Sanders, had back surgery Feb. 26 and is in Harris Hospital, 1300 W. Cannon St., Fort Worth, Texas. We know that Sandy would appreciate a card from the FA and Water Safety instructors.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Confused by conflicting statements about the fuel shortage and economic slump?

If so, it may be because you don't understand the terminology. Perhaps the following glossary will help.

Allocation — A fairer and impartial distribution system under which some other areas get more gas.

Bottleneck — Someone who draws up allocation plans.

Crisis — An odd-numbered license plate on an even-numbered day.

Downturn — An economic slump that is too mild to cause a depression but severe enough to divert attention from Watergate.

Emergency — An even-numbered license plate on an odd-numbered day.

Feet — A new mode of transportation still in the experimental stage.

Gasoline — When available, a fuel burned up by motorists. When it is unavailable, motorists are burned up.

Hairsplitting — The difference between a downturn and a recession.

Inflation — An economic phenomenon that produces rising wages and declining income.

Jerk — The service station attendant who hands out the "last car" sign just as you are pulling into the line.

Kissoff — What a governor gets when he complains about his state's allocation.

Limit — The maximum amount of gas a motorist can buy that runs out before he can make another purchase.

Middle East — See "Utopia."

Natural gas company — A firm that urges consumers to use less fuel and then raises rates to make up for declining sales.

Oil company — A firm whose tax incentives to look for more oil permit such high profits it doesn't need to find any.

Problem — An energy crisis as viewed by someone who doesn't have to wait in line for gas.

Queue — A gas line formed by motorists who still haven't gotten the word that the energy crisis has passed.

Recession — An economic slump that is severe enough to cause a Republican congressman up for re-election to vote for impeachment.

678 Is Average... Fertilizer Use Jumps Again... Texas Citrus Prospects Are Reduced.

What's your idea as to the average size of a Texas farm? It could range from a few acres to several hundred thousand. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has made it official: the average size of a farm in Texas contains 678 acres.

That's almost twice the size of the average farm for the nation. As the average size gets larger, the number of total farms in the state and the nation continue to decline, with perhaps an exception for 1974.

Preliminary figures now show that there are 209,000 farms in Texas as of January 1. This is the same number as of January 1 in 1973 and 1972. Fifteen years ago—back in 1959—there were 252,000 farms in the state with an average size of slightly more than 600 acres.

Nationwide, the total number of farms has declined slightly as of January 1 from a year ago. It's estimated there are 2,821,000 farms in the nation now, compared to 2,844,000 in 1973.

Average size of a farm in the nation is 385 acres, an increase of almost 100 acres during the past 15 years.

In Texas, there are 141,800,000 acres in farms; for the nation there is slightly more than a billion acres in farmland.

FERTILIZER use in Texas during 1973 as of June 30 showed a slight increase from 1972. The June 30, 1973 total is 2,556,371 tons of fertilizer compared to 2,514,837 tons in 1972.

Fertilizer is broken down into three categories: mixed fertilizer, primary nutrient, and secondary and micronutrient.

Mixed fertilizer utilized in Texas in 1973 was up four per cent from the 1972 usage.

Primary nutrient fertilizer used in the state was one per cent below 1972.

Secondary and micronutrient fertilizer applied amounted virtually the same in 1973 and 1972.

Nitrogen fertilizer accounted for the biggest use in Texas in 1973.

BASED on February 1 prospects, the 1973-74 citrus crop for the state is forecast at 18,500,000 boxes, which is four per cent below the production of last season.

The February 1 forecast is one per cent less than the January 1 forecast reflecting freeze damage which is now apparent in the Valencia orange crop.

The grapefruit estimated at 11,500,000 boxes and the early and mid-season orange estimate of 4,600,000 boxes is unchanged from a month ago.

Grapefruit harvest was active in January. Harvest of early and mid-season oranges is virtually complete.

COMPLETE details of the experimental program to control predators in 44 Texas counties are now being implemented. The Texas Department of Agriculture is in charge of the program on a state level.

Through the cooperation of the Environmental Protection Agency and several state agencies, the use of the M-44 coyote spring ejection device will be available to eligible producers.

1974 Wheat Crop Should Be Bigger Than In 1973

DALLAS (UPI) — The editor of Farmer-Stockman magazine said this week the 1974 wheat crop will be larger than last year's and said bakers want wheat exports cut to insure bargain basement flour prices for themselves.

"The American Baker's Association is conducting a campaign of calculated lies aimed at alarming the public, intimidating farmers and stampeding Congress into making what would be a horrible decision to limit wheat exports," said Charles Taylor. "This is being done in a callous attempt to line their own pockets with unjustified profits."

ABA officials Tuesday said American consumers face a bread shortage this spring unless Congress trims wheat exports. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., publicly agreed with the bakers but Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz today said bakers were conducting a scare campaign "to divert attention from the fact that 24 cents out of the retail price of a one pound loaf of bread is associated with their own costs and profits."

Taylor said there should neither be a bread shortage nor will prices reach $1 a loaf as predicted by bakers.

"We have ample wheat supplies in the nation to last until the new crop comes in," Taylor said. "The 1974 spring and summer wheat crop will be at least 10 per cent bigger than last year."

"If we revert to limiting exports we will be back into the old cycle of surpluses. The government will have to institute subsidies to support the farm community and no reasonable citizen wants that."

Taylor said for two decades the nation produced more wheat than could be consumed domestically and foreign markets were not open or profitable.

"Last year, for the first time in three years, we had a favorable balance of trade," Taylor said. "We are at last in a position to sell abroad. We have a unique commodity in agriculture that can earn us foreign exchange. If the nation acts to limit exports we will be in a horrible economic situation as far as world trade is concerned."

Hanging baskets for indoor plants should be rotated periodically to allow for even plant growth all around, horticulturists say.

Farm experts say beef producers can increase their income significantly by marketing heavier weight calves, even if this means keeping calves on the farm for longer periods.

Tax Shelters Available To Farmers, Ranchers

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of six weekly news articles on income tax management for farmers and ranchers.)

COLLEGE STATION — Texas farmers and ranchers can enjoy the same tax sheltered pensions and profit-sharing plans long enjoyed by corporate employees by enrolling in a self-employed retirement plan, says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"This advantage was extended by a 1962 Congressional law known as the Keogh plan. Retirement plans are available through many major banks, insurance companies and mutual funds," explains the economist.

Under the law, a self-employed person can set aside a certain portion of his income in a retirement fund. Earnings on the accumulated money are not taxable until the individual retires. The money may then be taxed as a capital gain or ordinary income, depending on the method of withdrawal.

"Any self-employed person is eligible for the program which is completely voluntary. Up to

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS

The Texas Water Conservation Association held its annual meeting in Austin on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the past week. Fred Vanderburg, a member of the Irrigation Panel and Felix Ryals, manager of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, attended the three day convention.

Thursday's business included meetings of the Ground Water, Irrigation, Municipal, Industrial, Navigation, River Authorities Panels. Friday's schedule included addresses by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Joe Moore, director of the National Commission on Water Quality, Jim Langdon, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission and Congressman Ray Roberts, chairman of the Public Works Subcommittee on Water Resources. Next week we will carry a portion of the address by Gov. Briscoe.

Last week we carried a portion of the address by John C. Ball, chief of the Planning Branch of the Fort Worth District Corps of Engineers, to the annual meeting of Water, Inc., Feb. 16 at Lubbock. In the final portion of the column we carried his statements on the effects of new principles and standards brought about by the recommendations of the National Water Policy

Commission. Today we continue his address:

"In order to understand the new trends in water resource development, you must first understand the feelings in the office of Management and Budget, and the fact that their principle goal is to reduce federal spending, and land and water resource programs are set within the framework of those ceilings. Use of the new 6% percent discount rate for amortizing federal investment in projects was the first step. One effect of this new interest rate will be to wipe out about 50 percent of the Corps' presently authorized but unfunded projects. In addition, they have set up cost-sharing formulas in which local interest must hereafter assume a greater share of project costs than in the past.

"Prior to adoption of the new principles and standards, the benefit-cost ratio method served to separate attractive projects from unwarranted ones. Under the old system more than 50 percent of the proposed projects failed the BCR test and were not recommended by the Corps of Engineers. Thus, the Congress and the President were not required to spend their valuable time considering unworthy projects because the system screened them out. In recent time, concern for the environment has served to refine the screening process and additional unattractive projects have fallen by the wayside. Under the new system of principles and standards, more rigorously defined economic factors, environmental considerations, and social analysis will be applied to all projects studied. In effect, a much finer screen will be used and a greater percentage of projects will be deemed unattractive.

"The new Principles and Standards, along with the use of the 6% percent interest rate, became effective on Oct. 25, 1973. It would be impossible at this time to make an accurate, detailed assessment of the probable effect of the new Principles and Standards on Corps of Engineers' involvement in Water Resource Development — However, the following effects may be expected: Marginal projects will drop out as the new 6% percent discount rate is applied. Projects that have significant negative environmental impacts will not be built, particularly if the economic benefits are marginal. Power projects will be favored because of the "energy crisis." Project features requiring significant participation by non-federal agencies will diminish or drop out because local interests cannot afford the cost of these features. These features include such items as water supply and recreation. Controversial projects will be delayed or dropped. The water problems of urban areas and cities will have priority over water problems in rural areas. Projects with delayed future benefits will be more difficult to justify."

Pampa's Rick Smith Essay Contest Winner

The essay that won first place from Pampa High School in the Gray County Soil & Water Conservation District was written by Rick Smith on the subject of "Our Soil — Our Strength."

The essay follows:

By RICK SMITH

In 1620, it is said, America's virgin forests were so vast that a squirrel could travel through tree tops from the Atlantic Ocean to the Mississippi River without once touching the ground. A mere 300 years later, man had destroyed forever one-third of the topsoil, turned lush and fertile valleys into barren, lifeless deserts and sanded up an incredible toll of wildlife slaughter. The ignorance of conservation has brought ruin and desolation since ancient times, these ruins giving warning that today we face even graver problems if we are to preserve not only our wildlife areas, but also the soil upon which all depends.

Soil conservation is the practice which halts the deterioration of man's basic resources and restores the fertility of eroded lands. Agriculture is a great milestone in man's progress, but it threatens the base upon which his progress was built. In man's enthusiasm to farm the earth, he overcuts the timberline, overplows the farm lands, and overgrazes the grass lands. The objective of soil conservation is to put every acre to its best possible use.

Crop rotation is the simplest soil conservation practice, and is important as a beginning measure. Crop rotation keeps the soil in good condition and enables more water to be absorbed. In lands too steep to control erosion by contour farming, terraces should be constructed. Steepness of slope, the character of the soil and the type of precipitation determine the height of terraces and the distance between them. The system of terraces breaks long slopes into short ones to control water.

Other important types of soil conservation are: strip farming, buffer strips, grass waterways, cover crops, gully control, diversion channels, and shelter belts.

Strip farming divides long slopes into a series of fields running at right angles to the slope. Cover crops, such as rye, wheat, or a legume, are planted after clean culture crops are harvested to prevent erosion during winter months. Shelter belts (long rows of trees) decrease wind velocity and cause soil to lodge in the belt and on the side. Shelter belts also provide cover for wildlife.

Today, preservation dominates the thinking of conservationists. The saving of scenery and open spaces, the establishment of wilderness areas and new interest in wildlife sanctuaries are all concerns of conservationists.

The need for natural resources forces consumers of environment on lands already in their possession to speed up their bulldozers and sharpen their axes and saws before public opinion can be aroused to hold them in check.

The conservationists are handicapped by fighting against such opponents as: lumber industry, the nation's highway builders, truck manufacturers and oil companies who are fighting for profits.

Soil conservation is vital to the survival of the world. Without concerned people, soil healthy foods cannot be produced. Without healthy food, man will be weak. If man is too ignorant, he will let all of the plants die, then he himself will die.

JR. LIVESTOCK SHOW
The Top O' Texas Jr. Livestock Show is now well underway. All livestock is to be checked in by 12 noon today. A total of 205 pigs and 104 calves have been entered from the seven-county area.

Farmers Should Tell Distributors Of Fuel Needs

"The essential thing a farmer must do to help assure himself adequate fuel for agricultural production is tell his distributor how much he needs. Unless a local distributor or dealer knows what his farm customer requires, that distributor cannot take the necessary steps to get enough fuel for him," said Robert F. Spreen, State Executive Director of the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Informing the distributor becomes even more important if a farmer intends to increase his acreage considerably, or if he wants to expand dairy, poultry, or other farm operations. Local dealers will need this information to request additional fuel for farm customers from their suppliers.

Spreen said, "Agricultural producers who are to receive priority allocations will be required to certify to an ongoing fuel conservation program on their operations. USDA, in cooperation with the Federal Energy Office and the Environmental Protection Agency, has developed a conservation leaflet. This leaflet, scheduled to be available early this month, includes an energy management certification that there is an ongoing conservation program and that priority fuel will be used for agricultural production."

ASCS MEETING

Evelyn Mason, manager ASCS office, advises me a meeting of the ASCS is scheduled for next week for the purpose of selecting practices for the REAP program. This is the old agricultural conservation program that was not funded for 1973. Apparently there will be some conservation practices the ASCS office will give financial assistance on for 1974. There is also a possibility the funds that were impounded for this program in 1973 might also be expended. Check with Evelyn on this.

LAND PREPARATION

Farmers are very busy preparing their land for the coming season's crops. I don't believe I've ever seen as many that have their land prepared for watering and getting ready to plant. This is an excellent idea. Last year the situation was quite different. Moisture kept farmers out of the field until near planting time. This delayed land preparation and planting. This severely reduced yields in the fall.

WHEAT CONDITION

We have now lost the dryland wheat for the third time. Remember the old saying, "You have to lose it three times before it makes."

Don't let anyone kid you, we still have a good chance on this wheat if it will rain in the next three to four weeks. This is especially true if our weather does not get either extremely cold or extremely warm. If you think that wheat is dead, carry out a 55 gallon barrel of water and water a small area. Within a week that wheat will start turning handsprings.
